MAKED BY HOUSTON, TEX, PRINCE AS PHAGOSUSPECT DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF CRIME

Continued From Page 1. Last night, shortly after midnight, officers went to the place. Bowen answered a knock at his door and then, straightened, himself and looked directly at the officers.

Holds Knife in Hand.

"Who are you fellows and what do you want here?" he asked. "The officers answered that they wanted to talk to him and he then invited them into his room. He kept a distance from them, however, and held an open knife in his right hand. Bowen appeared nervous throughout the conversation of perhaps fifteen minutes, but replied to all queries promptly and to the point.

"When one of them told him to consider yourself under arrest," he coolly answered, "That's all right, but you got the wrong man."

Bowen closed his knife and handed it to an officer and sat on the side of the bed. To one officer he pointed out the trunk and suitcase—a small affair in the nature of a traveling man's kit. As this officer opened the trunk, they lifted out clothes—some nice ones that indicated a well-to-do man—and there, with the trunk, cards and pictures, were piled on the floor.

"If I had a run you never would know that I had a run," said Bowen. "The things in there are mine, and not yours. I don't know anything about this affair and don't have any more to say."

Steady Denial Crimes.

Officers talked to Bowen for more than an hour at the police station, but Bowen steadily denied any knowledge of the killing of the young girl. He continued to show perseverance, though, and frequently inquired of the detectives why he should be treated as a suspect. "If I had the least suspicion that this would happen to me, I would not have been in Houston, Tex. long," he said. "I would have left here Sunday night."

Bowen was taken from the rooming house to the police station and was placed in a cell across the hall from the "chief of detectives" office. He slept but little and did not address to him. This morning he was at the "cell door early and looked backward.

Bowen complained of being hungry. He declared that he was tired almost worn out. He walked the floor nervously, then sat down on the side of his cell. Next he stepped to the grating and inquired if he was going to be allowed to starve to death of would he be given some breakfast. About 7 o'clock, he was taken to a private office with chief of detectives, Kevin and Detective Arthur F. Shelly. He admitted that he lived in Atlanta and had been in Houston, Tex. to Houston, but stoutly denied that he even knew Mrs. Phagan.

Only Interested, He Says.

When shown the pictures in his trunk and grip, he indicated the name of persons, including several names which Bowen had never heard of. He said that he was "Mary Deaton" of Bowen.

Bowen Well Educated.

Bowen is 22 years of age and has light hair. He is well dressed and well educated. He is a member of the Morrow Transfer Company, and claims to have been in Houston, Tex. for a few days at the time of the murder.

from out of the hands of a coroner," because there never was a point of time in any murder case's history that it was not more in the hands of the coroner than it possibly could be. No man may be put in Georgia of his life a second time in Georgia (save of his own motion) in criminal proceedings, but the "bitten in" of a coroner's jury cannot be pleaded as former jeopardy.

Fullowers, coroners, sheriffs are all peace officers, and have the direct and indirect duty to perform in the presence of crime against the State, but never is there a time when any one of them is not in duty or authority to the solicitor general.

GIRL FEELS FROM UNWEDDED FIANCER MRS. WILSON ROSES

Emily Douglas, of Daytona, Fla., Arrested Here, Says Mother Tried to Force Marriage.

A story of flight to escape marriage with a man she did not love was told to the police Tuesday morning at the home of Mrs. Douglas, who is Miss Emily Douglas, a pretty 18-year-old girl from Daytona, Fla., who has been arrested at the Terminal station as she alighted from the Cincinnati and Florida Limited from Savannah, Fla.

According to the story the girl told Police Captain May, her mother, Mrs. M. H. Douglas had tried to force her to marry a man who lives in Chicago, Ill. The would-be bridegroom, Miss Douglas says, is many years older than she.

"I told mama I did not love him," the girl said, and the said I had to marry him any way. She said he would make me a good husband. But I wouldn't marry a man I didn't love, so I ran away. I don't want to get married, anyway. I'm too young. I want to have some fun, and I have had some fun. An hour later she was arrested.

The girl left her home early yesterday morning. An hour later her appearance was noticed, and P. W. Haskell, chief of police, was called to the girl's address. She was taken to the train, several hours after she had been arrested at the Terminal station. Haskell has volunteered to take her to her home in Daytona, Fla., and to hold her until they hear from her mother.

REFERENDUM ON ALIEN LAND LAW IS LIKELY

Move Is Begun to Put Japanese Question to a Vote in State of California.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—The anti-alien bill, as soon as it becomes a law, will be attacked by referendum. Word came from New York that Californians at present in that city, consulting their Eastern business representatives, had joined in an urgent appeal which will be telegraphed to C. C. Moore, chairman of the Panama-Pacific Exposition Board, asking that immediate steps be taken to petition for a referendum on the issue, so that it may be put squarely up to the people of the State.

The signers of this message, it is reported, assert to Mr. Moore their belief that the measure rushed through the State Legislature will seriously injure the prospects of California's great world's fair.

At the same time Assemblyman Shearer, of San Francisco, said that the referendum movement now is on. He asserted yesterday that the Senate bill as introduced in the Assembly, did not fit the requirements of the State as regards aliens, and especially the Japanese, and that a recall would be made necessary.

After the recall, in his opinion, the right sort of anti-alien legislation will be enacted. He pointed out that the present bill is weak and that it will not accomplish the purpose for which it was originally designed.

Alabama Wins Fight For 2 1-2-Cent Fares

Federal Judge Grubb Decides For State in Railroad's Test Case.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 5.—The state of Alabama won a sweeping victory over the railroads today when Federal Judge W. I. Grubb handed down a decision upholding the state railroad commission in requiring the Louisville and Nashville Railroad to establish a two-and-one-half-cent passenger fare in Alabama. This was a test case for all lines.

The reduced passenger rate has been a political factor in Alabama for nearly eight years. The United States court, through Judge Thomas G. Jones, a few years ago, upheld the contention of the railroads and the three-cent rate was restored, after the state legislature had reduced it to two-and-one-half-cent.

Father of Twins Feasts in Orinoco

Men Have Big Vacations When Children Arrive, A. S. Williams Says.

He left Venezuela he found a native just a year married, whose wife had presented twins to him in a hammock in a tree top. She got up the next day and went on with her work. The happy father immediately went to bed. He had a ham, mutton, and all the men and women of the tribe brought food to him, including his wife and two young boys. If his wife had given him only one boy he would have been very disappointed. The wife also visited in the hammock and they had a good time. Nobody took any notice of her, but he seemed to think it was all right.

CONGRESSMAN URGES TAX FOR $1000 INCOMES

Others Demand Revenue From Bachelors and Dogs in "Race Suicide" Families.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The sundries schedule today was under consideration together with the free list. It is probable the House will complete these sections of the bill this evening and take up the income tax tomorrow.

The income tax section as framed exempts all incomes of less than $4,000 from taxation. Representative Gillett, of Massachusetts, intends to offer an amendment putting the limit down so as to make incomes of more than $1,000 taxable. He believes a low limit will have the effect of making people take a sharper interest in their work.

Government finance and least on a rigid economy in Congress. The amendment may obtain some support on the Democratic side. It is doubtful if any change will be made in the bill.

An amendment by Representative Burton, of Illinois, to make single men pay higher taxes than married men was offered by Representative Kitchin, of North Carolina, has received little attention. It is said that "race suicide" families be taxed in lieu of children.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The District of Columbia court of Appeals today reduced the sentence of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, in the Bucks case to 30 days in jail.

The sentence of John Michael, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, was remitted and days of 1893.

Chief Justice Shepard dissented.

LEO M. FRANK

Superintendent of the National Pencil Factory, was a witness late Monday afternoon in the coroner's inquest into the death of Mary Phagan.

There was a sensation when it was learned for the first time from the lips of Frank that another man was in the factory aside from those already known after Mary Phagan drew her pay, shortly after noon on the Saturday she met her death. The man was Lommie Quinn, foreman of the tipping department.

Frank told in detail all he knew about Quinn and his work in the factory.

Frank was cool and collected. He answered the questions shot at him by the coroner without hesitation and his utterance was distinct. He seemed absolutely sure of himself.

Solicitor Dorsey and Luther Z. Rosser, attorney for Frank, occupied prominent places, but Solicitor Dorsey did not interpose any questions during the early part of the inquiry. None of the questions directed at Frank were objected to by his attorney.

Coroner Donehoob's questioning was uninterrupted.

Another significant point in Frank's testimony was that he says he heard Mary Phagan talking with another girl as the two left the building.

This gives strength to the report that another girl actually accompanied Mary to the factory.

Where is this girl now? The detectives have reported nothing of the discovery of the girl who is said to have waited at the factory door for Mary to come out and finally left when some one from the factory told her that Mary would be detained for a half hour with some work.

Factory girls called as witnesses were excused at 6:30 o'clock, indicating that the inquest would be adjourned with the conclusion of Frank's testimony or the testimony of the Bellig's who follow him.

INQUEST OPENING DELAYED.

The coroner's inquest into the Phagan mystery did not really begin until 3 o'clock on Monday afternoon, instead of 2 o'clock, the hour set for the hearing.

Lo M. Frank and Newt Lee left the jail in charge of Chief of Police Beavers, Detectives Lanford and Starnes and entered the patrol wagon for the trip to police headquarters.

A curious crowd waited around the jail doorway to get a look at the two prisoners.

Both men appeared nervous. Frank walked with a quick step between Beavers and Lanford. He was freshly shaved, wore a dark suit and a derby hat. Starnes followed with Lee. Neither man was handcuffed.

MARY PHAGAN'S BODY EXHUMED; HURT LOOKS FOR SIGNS OF 'DOPE'

Coroner and County Physician Will Have Girl's Stomach Examined.

The reason for the delay in beginning the coroner's inquest was that Coroner Donehoob was in Marietta up to 10 o'clock.

The body of Mary Phagan was exhumed by direction of the coroner who went to Marietta for the purpose. An examination of the contents of the stomach will be made for the purpose of determining whether the child had been "doped" before she was attacked on the day of her death.

It will probably be several days before this examination can be completed.

The exhumation was done very quietly, and few people in Marietta knew anything about it.

With the coroner were Dr. J. W. Hurt, County Physician, and Dr. H. P. Harris, of the State Board of Health, acting under the direction of Solicitor Dorsey.

It is understood that the analysis of the stomach contents will be made by Dr. Harris at the laboratory of the State Board of Health at the capital.

Aide from this the State official made a thorough examination of the stomach.

Frank's father-in-law and mother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. Bell, 55 East Georgia Avenue were summoned as witnesses at the inquest late Monday afternoon to testify as to Frank's whereabouts on the night of the slaying and the following morning.

Orders for their appearance were issued by Coroner Donehoob who before the inquest was resumed, following a short conference with chief Lanford.

Hearst Editorial Is Read in Congress

Incorporated in the Record as Part of the Tariff Debate by Mr. Austin, of Tennessee.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The editorial edited by W. R. Hearst from December 10, 1912, warning the Democrats against free trade theories and making comparisons with foreign conditions, was read into the Congressional Record during the tariff debate by Representative Austin, of Tennessee.

Mr. Austin was complaining against excessive tariff cuts by the Underwood bill, and declaring that the bill would prove injurious alike to business and to labor, said:

"I want to read to you what Mr. Hearst said about free trade Mr. Hearst rendered splendid service to the Democratic cause during the last campaign. He rendered splendid service to the country in championing the cause of our speaker, Mr. Clark."

Mr. Austin then read the editorial.

LEMMIE QUINN IN FACTORY ON DAY OF DEATH

Phagan Inquest, Starting Late Monday Afternoon, Attracts Through 200 Girls and Women Summoned As Witnesses, at Police Station.

Leo M. Frank, Superintendent of the National Pencil Factory, was a witness late Monday afternoon in the coroner's inquest into the death of Mary Phagan.

Both men appeared nervous. Frank walked with a quick step between Beavers and Lanford. He was freshly shaved, wore a dark suit and a derby hat. Starnes followed with Lee. Neither man was handcuffed.

They arrived at police headquarters five minutes later and were greeted by 700 or 800 people, who packed the corridors and stairways of the police station.

Both Frank and Lee were taken directly to the detectives' room through a rear entrance, where the inquest was held.

It was necessary for the officers to cut a passage way through the jam of humanity. Into this narrow lane Frank, with Chief Lanford's hand on his arm, entered, looking neither to the right nor the left. He walked with a hurried step and appeared to be relieved when the room, where the inquest is being held, was reached.

Lee seemed less concerned and walked carelessly along from the rear door, up the stairs and through the packed corridors.

BAR MERELY CURIOUS FROM ROOM.

The inquest room was closed to all but those who could prove that they had actual business inside. Sergeant Maddox stood at the doorway and denied admittance to several hundred persons who were eager to hear the testimony.

Nearly 200 women and young girls, most of whom are employees either of the pencil factory, or of the paper factory where Mary Phagan formerly worked, were herded into the large roll-call room on the first floor to await the coroner when they should be called upon to testify.

Just before the inquest was called Coroner Donehoob was closeted in a conference with Solicitor Dorsey, Detective Lanford, Chief Beavers and the detectives who had been working on the case.

Chief Lanford held subpoenas for two more witnesses when it was decided to call at the last moment.

Before the first witness, Leo Frank was called, the coroner

MARY PHAGAN, 'EX', POLICE AS PHAGAN SUSPECT DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF CRIME

Last night, shortly after midnight, officers went to the place. Bowen answered a knock at his room door, and then, straggling himself and jostled directly at the officers.

Holds Knife in Hand.
"Who are you fellows and what do you want here?" he asked. The officers answered that they wanted to talk to him and he then invited them into his room. He kept a distance from them, however, and held an open knife in his right hand. Bowen expressed nervous throughout the conversation of perhaps fifteen minutes, but replied to all questions promptly and to the point. When one of them told him to "consider yourself under arrest" he coolly answered, "That all right, but you've got the wrong man."

Bowen closed his knife and handed it to an officer and sat on the side of the bed. To one officer he pointed out his trunk and suitcase—a small affair in the nature of a traveling man's grip. As the officers examined the trunk Bowen lifted out clothes—some nice ones that indicated a well-dressed man—and these, with letters, postcards and pictures, were piled on the floor.

"If I had a gun you never would go through that trunk," said Bowen. "The things in there are mine, and not yours. I don't know anything about the killing of the young girl, but you can arrest and you'll have to show me a warrant."

Stoutly Denies Crime.
Officers talked to him for more than an hour at the police station, but Bowen stoutly denied any knowledge of the killing of the young girl. He continued to show nervousness, though, and frequently invited the detectives away to be about the street the way they were doing him.

"If I had the least suspicion that this would happen to me, I would not have been in Houston this long," he said. "I would have left here Sunday night."

Bowen was taken from the rooming house to the police station and was placed in a cell across the hall from the chief of detectives' office. He slept but little and did not address to the little. This morning he was in the cell early and looked haggard.

Bowen complained of being hungry. He declared that he was tired—almost worn out. He walked the floor nervously, then sat down on the side of his cot. Next he stepped to the grating and inquired if he was going to be allowed to starve to death or would be given some breakfast. About 9 o'clock he was taken into a private office with Chief of Detectives Perry and Detective Andrew Shelly. He admitted that he lived in Atlanta and had come from that city to Houston, but stoutly denied that he even knew Mary Phagan.

Only Interested, He Says.
When shown the pictures in his trunk and grip, he pointed out a number of persons, including one of the young women, but declared that none of them was Mary Phagan or any of her kind.

Bowen Well Educated.
Bowen is 22 years of age and has light hair. He is well dressed and well educated. He has been a bookkeeper and stenographer, and claimed that he worked in the office of the Western Transfer Company. He gave his home address as 117 West 11th street. He claimed this was his first visit

POLICE HAVE NEW AND STARBING EVIDENCE NOT YET MADE PUBLIC

Body of Mary Phagan Exhumed, Bloodstains on Clothing Analyzed and Every Effort Made to Uncover Additional Clues in the Mystery.

Solicitor General Dorsey, Chief of Detectives Lanford, Chief of Police Beavers, and all men working under them in the Phagan case seem thoroughly satisfied with the progress they are making in the great mystery. They are actively engaged in many unknown directions--as they say, "piling up evidence to strengthen the case."

What evidence the officials have other than that which has already been made public they refuse to divulge. Solicitor Dorsey declines to make public his case in the newspapers. He is investigating every phase of the matter through trusted men working under his own direction.

It is perfectly proper for the chief prosecuting officer to withhold any and all evidence until such time as he may present his case to the Grand Jury.

That there is new and startling evidence seems true, but just what it indicates the officials refuse to say, and the newspaper reporters, therefore, are merely guessing at what may be, or may not be, the actual facts.

Solicitor Dorsey was reluctant about the nature of the most recent discovery, but his general statement was that he considered the discovery which has been made by the force of detectives, physicians and chemists working under his direction as having a most important bearing on the solution of the crime.

Mr. Dorsey issued this statement: "I see in an interview attributed to Quinn that I asked him if I could not get further information. I was not paid by counsel for Frank to protect Frank."

This statement, so far as I am concerned, is absolutely false. Throughout my talk with him I did not mention the name of Quinn and I did not intimate that I could not get further information. I am not guilty of any such conduct.

It is known that a more thorough and minute examination of every locality and every article having any connection or possible connection with the slaying of Miss Phagan is being made now than was undertaken in the first few days of the mystery.

Under the direction of Solicitor Dorsey, chemists have made a new analysis of the blood found on the factory floor, where the Phagan girl evidently struggled with her assailant.

Mr. H. H. Harz, director of the State Board of Health, is making a second examination of the body of the slain girl, which was taken from the grave in the cemetery at Marietta.

Whether it was from any one of the sources that Solicitor Dorsey obtained his new lead in tracking down the slayer, he would not say. He would only repeat that every clue that offered the slightest ray of hope would be followed to the end.

May Have Been Hidden Down Shaft. A startling theory announced by the solicitor is that the body of Miss Phagan was thrown, alive, down the elevator shaft from the second floor to the basement. He has found in the soil at the bottom of the shaft a soft and that the girl might not have been actually killed by a fall of this distance. He would not say whether if subsequent developments proved that the girl was slain not on the second floor of the factory, but in the basement at least about the spot where the body was found.

"To insure that not the smallest particle of evidence is overlooked, Solicitor Dorsey is continuing his rigid investigation of the factory floor. Electric lights have been strung in every nook and cranny of the basement, where before it was black and gloomy. The light and trace covering the floor have searched minutely in the hope that some latent clue may be discovered that the girls' murderer may be caught at any time by this proceeding. MAN TAKEN BY THE POLICE OF HOUSTON STILL IS BEING HELD

Youth Arrested in Connection With Phagan Mystery Protests Innocence. Woman Says He Moaned, "Why Did I Do It?"--Local Men Skeptical.

Chief of Detectives George Peyton, of Houston, Texas, sent the following telegram to Chief of Police Beavers, of Atlanta, Tuesday: "Am still holding Bowen as per your wire this morning. He did stop at 185 Ivy Street. He denies everything. The evidence here is very strong against him. Mrs. A. Blanchard, formerly of Atlanta, first to suspect, gave first information about him. Answer soon."

HOUSTON, TEXAS, May 6.--Paul P. Bowen, arrested because of the suspicion of the local authorities that he was connected with the murder of Mary Phagan in Atlanta, denied Tuesday all knowledge of the girl and the crime except as he read of it in the newspapers.

A score of clippings telling the story of the little girl's death were found in the young man's room. His only explanation was that Atlanta was his home town, and he was particularly interested in the crime because of that.

The police here regard as more significant than the clippings, the copies of Bowen's actions in his room at the St. Jean Hotel, and later at a rooming house. Roomers in adjoining rooms are said to have been disturbed by his moans and mutterings and by his constant peering of the door.
