Solicitor Darsey Puts Wade Campbell Through Severe Cross-Examination, Calling Attention to Discrepancies in His Testimony and Signed Statement Given to the Solicitor. Frank's Movements on Day of Tragedy to Be Proved Decidedly the feature of the Tuesday morning session of the trial of Leo M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, was the successful attack made by the defense on the credibility of C. B. Dalton.

On Tuesday morning, when the witness was called to the stand, he was asked by the defense to state whether or not he had seen Dalton in the factory on Saturday morning, August 8, 1913.

Another important witness examined during the morning was Wade Campbell, brother of Mrs. Arthur White, who had testified that she saw a negro sitting on a box near the stairway on the first floor at 11:30 o'clock on the day of the murder.

When court resumed at 12 o'clock, it was expected that "shop hammer" would be the first witness to testify in regard to the alleged purchase of the hammer by the defendant.
