

AUTO ENTHUSIASTS COMING TO ATLANTA FROM MANY STATES
Show Drawing More People Here Than Any Previous Attraction in Gate City, Says R. N. Reed.

NEW EXHIBITS PLACED SINCE SATURDAY NIGHT
Charles Sheldon Will Play This Afternoon and Evening—Sousa Will Arrive Tuesday to Give Concerts.

Monday, the second day of Atlanta's "Million Dollar Automobile Show," will see the show even better than it was on Saturday, the opening night. For on Sunday a number of new exhibits were added, and those which were already in the building were more artistically arranged.

The show will be open to the public this afternoon at 2 o'clock, and will remain open until 7 o'clock on Sunday. It will be open again, and will remain open until midnight.

Charles A. Sheldon, the Atlanta organist, who has pleased so many people at his Sunday afternoon concerts, will play at the organ at the afternoon and evening show, and will render select programs of music.

R. N. Reed, chairman of the show committee of the Atlanta Automobile and Accessory Association, under whose auspices the show is being given, was at the Auditorium-Amory for the greater part of Sunday personally supervising the rearrangement of exhibits and the placing of new exhibits.

SUFFRAGISTS DISTURB CATHEDRAL SERVICES
London, November 9.—Suffragists had another demonstration today at the service at St. Paul's. At intervals they kept shouting, "Give Same Annie Kenney and Sylvia Pankhurst, who are being persecuted for conscience sake."

INDIAN CHIEFS DANCE AT SOCKALEXIS WEDDING
Old Town, Maine, November 9.—Glad in the regalia of eagle feathers and beaded buckles, the Indian chiefs danced today at the wedding of Anna Stockalexis, the Pembosc Indian maiden, and a young man, Pauline Shay, daughter of Sebastias Shay, one of the leading tribesmen. The choice of zenzion, bear zenzion, choice out of other game made up the feast.

Women of Atlanta Plan to Entertain For Corn Club Boys
Mrs. W. L. Peel, Mrs. Linton Hopkins and Mrs. Mary Raoul Tell of Last Year's Experiences.

The fact that Atlanta's citizens greatly enjoyed entertaining in their homes the Georgia Corn club boys when they were here last year, is well attested by a number of letters which Secretary Walter G. Cooper, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, has just received from well-known Atlanta women who participated in that entertainment.

There were 700 of these boys here for the last corn show, and they were entertained one for every one in some 400 well-known Atlanta homes. They looked upon it, as it was in a measure, as a reward for the efforts they had put forth in cultivating their acre of corn and making the ground yield more than it had been accustomed to afford.

This year there will be 1,000 of these boys to come to Atlanta for a two or three days' visit, so great has been the increase in the number who have met all conditions in the successful cultivation of their acre.

Those who were here last year and who manifested keen appreciation of what is now done for them, as well as those who are to come to this year's corn show, will be glad to know what some of their hostesses thought of their visit.

Mrs. W. L. Peel Pleated.
In response to Secretary Cooper's letter of inquiry, Mrs. W. L. Peel, who for the last two years has entertained a number of the boys in her delightful home, writes:

Dear Mr. Cooper: The first year you had the pleasure of entertaining four fine boys. When they went home we had wonderful letters from them, bags of corn, and pecans, and at Christmas a wonderful bronze goblet.

Last year the same boys came back and brought with them the most interesting and stayed a day after it was over. They were most appreciative of my little attentions, and greatly encouraged in their work by their experience in Atlanta. They were most interesting and helpful work of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce for the Georgia Corn club boys. Yours, Mrs. W. L. Peel.

MRS. PEEL INVITES SOME BOYS.
So much do the boys enjoy the corn club boys in her home last year that she invited them to the 1913 corn show.

WAR IS DECLARED ON BEER SALOONS AND LOCKER CLUBS
Committee Appointed to Take Up Matter of Law Enforcement With Police Chief and Grand Jury.

LIQUOR BOTTLES SHOWN AT MEETING ON SUNDAY
Audience Told They Were Purchased From Clubs by Non-Members—Near Beer Saloons Attacked.

War to the knife was declared on the breweries, near beer saloons and locker clubs operating in Atlanta and the state of Georgia, and a committee of twenty-five representative citizens was appointed to take up the matter of law enforcement with the police authorities and the grand jury at the mass meeting held Sunday afternoon in the Grand theater, which was called by the Georgia Anti-Saloon league for the consideration of measures which will prohibit the sale of intoxicants in the state of Georgia.

More than 1,000 prohibition leaders attended the meeting, which was presided over by a degree of earnestness of purpose as if directness seldom witnessed in any gathering.

Whisky Shown at Meeting.
A number of exhibits, in the form of unbroken pints and half-pints of whisky were shown at the meeting, and while the names of the clubs from which they were purchased were withheld, it was declared by Dr. F. M. DuBose, who presided over the meeting, that drastic measures would at once be taken to prevent the further illegal sale of intoxicants in Atlanta.

It appeared that certain locker clubs and fraternal orders have not made their sales of liquors and beer in strict accordance with the state prohibition laws, that they have issued membership cards to rank outsiders, and have furnished these persons with all the intoxicants they desired. It was further declared that the near beer saloons of Atlanta are operating in open violation of the prohibition law.

Various speakers in the program strongly intimated that steps would at once be taken to close these illegal resorts by action of the grand jury and through an immediate appeal to the higher courts to put a stop to the operations of all the saloons and clubs that are not complying with the strict letter of the law.

Resolutions were read and adopted, asking the city and state authorities to put an immediate stop to all alleged and flagrant violations of the law in the sale of intoxicants, and a number of speeches were made in which the movement for nationwide prohibition was enthusiastically advocated.

Enforce Law, Demands Richards.
The principal address of the meeting was delivered by J. B. Richards, of the Georgia Anti-Saloon league executive committee, who spoke, in part, as follows:

CARRANZA ELECTIONEERING IN STATE OF SENORA.

General Carranza, leader of the constitutional party, has become the strongest opponent of President Huerta. He has several thousand troops and is supported by a large number of intelligent Mexicans, particularly in the western part of the republic.

FEAR OF SANITARIUM LEADS WOMAN OF 48 TO COMMIT SUICIDE
Body of Miss Leila Reed Found Floating in Water of Hemphill Ave. Reservoir on Sunday Morning.

As he passed the edge of the Hemphill avenue reservoir of the city water-works on the way home early Sunday morning, Ralph, a young son of J. O. Reynolds, from whose home on Howell Mill road Miss Leila Reed, aged 48 years, had disappeared the previous night, caught sight of a human form floating in the water.

It was clothed in skirt and waist and long strands of hair swirled in the suction created by the outlet. The youth made out the features of the woman who was missing from his home and ran to give the alarm. Attached to the pumping station were notified and the body dragged to shore.

From all appearances, the woman had been in the reservoir for twelve hours or more. The police and Coroner Donohoe were notified. An investigation was made by the coroner and an inquest held Sunday night in the Harry G. Poole undertaking establishment. The verdict was suicide.

The home of J. O. Reynolds, a brother-in-law of the dead woman, is only a short distance from the reservoir in which the body was found. She had been living with Reynolds for several years. For the past several weeks she had been subject to violent spells of melancholia, during which she had frequently threatened suicide. It is thought that her knowledge of these intentions drove her to self-destruction. She had reached the age of 48 only a few days previous to her death.

HEERTA'S TIME SHORT; GIVEN UNTIL TONIGHT BY THE UNITED STATES.

DICTATOR SNEERS AT INTERVENTION BY UNITED STATES
Gen. Huerta and His Intimates Freely Express the Opinion Washington Will Not Take Drastic Action.

MAJORITY IN CAPITAL FAVORS INTERVENTION
Mexican Public Recognizes Relations Are Strained Almost to Point of War. Divergent Opinions as to American Action.

Mexico City, November 9.—Government officials, foreign residents and the people of Mexico realize that the relations between this country and the United States are strained almost to the point of war but there is perhaps no man in the entire republic who knows tonight what Washington will do tomorrow.

John Lind himself, who represents the president of the United States, is ignorant of the intentions of his chief and if General Huerta is anxious at all regarding the case, about the elections, now before the congress, does not betray it. Although he has sent to the diplomatic representatives of the foreign nations a note which in effect is a defiance of Washington, he was conspicuous in the cafes about town long after the midnight hour and today indulged in relaxation in the company of his military friends.

Huerta's Statement to Diplomats.
In his formal statement to the diplomatic corps, Huerta said it was no longer possible for the government to recognize the recent elections were null, and that few precedents had participated in the voting and that therefore the new congress would annul the elections. Now relations with the United States are strained almost to the point of war but there is perhaps no man in the entire republic who knows tonight what Washington will do tomorrow.

More uneasiness is apparent at the American embassy than at the national level. At the palace the opinion was freely expressed, not infrequently accompanied by sneers, that the United States never would intervene in Mexico.

Mr. Lind is fully cognizant of the delicate situation and awaits with keen interest word from President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, but today he received only assurance that the president was not at all displeased by the developments and a request for the continuance of his observations.

Vital Developments Today.
Mr. Lind expressed the view that this waiting policy would not be continued long. He believed that the United States has recommended that all diplomatic negotiations with Mexico be suspended.

Guesses at American Action.
Opinion in Mexico is widely divergent as to what Washington's attitude will be toward the new congress. Some thought President Wilson may recommend neither intervention nor direct action. It is believed, by a majority of them, that the United States will do nothing, or at least that the capital and foreigners will take the initiative in a new rebellion.

Official Circles at Washington Believe That, Unless the Dictator Complies With the American Demands in a Few Hours, Immediate Action Will Be Taken by This Country.

CLIMAX IS VERY NEAR; WILSON SPENT SUNDAY ON MEXICAN PROBLEM
President Did Not Go to Church, But Remained at White House Conferring With Senators and Secretary Bryan—Senators Favor Lifting Embargo on Arms—Next Move by Washington Is Expected in Short While—Huerta Must Go, Still the Washington Slogan.

Washington, November 9.—Forecasting his usual custom of banishing official business on Sunday, President Wilson worked practically all of today on the Mexican problem. He did not go to church, remaining indoors during the forenoon. Later he summoned Senators Borah and McCumber, republishing matters of the senate foreign relations committee, and spent nearly two hours with them in general discussion of the situation. Tonight the president conferred at length with Secretary Bryan.

From the way the president's callers talked, the situation is rapidly approaching a climax, and developments are expected immediately. Officially, no copy of the statement of Provisional President Huerta to the diplomatic corps last night had been received, nor had the formal reply to the American demand that Huerta resign arrived. That the United States had given Huerta until tomorrow night to reply before making the next move was the general belief in official circles.

Repute Huerta and All His Acts.
The next step, in the view of some of those who have talked with the president within the last two days—since he began summoning members of the senate foreign relations committee—probably will be an announcement by the United States, not only reiterating its refusal to recognize the Huerta government, but making it clear to the world that it also shall refuse to recognize any acts of the new congress soon to be convened by Huerta.

The Washington government, it is understood, will not undertake to guarantee any business or commercial relations with the Huerta regime, and probably will stand by any legally constituted government which in future may repudiate the loans or transactions of the present government.

Both Senators McCumber and Borah declined to talk of what the president told them in their conference today, but they expressed their own views later.

Borah Would Lift Arms Embargo.
Senator Borah told the president that in his opinion, even should Huerta accede to the American request for his resignation at this time, there would be no responsible person or persons to establish a government. The Idaho senator suggested that if the embargo on arms were lifted the constitutionalists probably could get possession of the reins of government in Mexico City in about thirty days, and that the United States ought to give them an opportunity to establish themselves. Should they fail, he believes the United States might consider other steps when that contingency arises.

Bacon's Views on Situation.
Senator Bacon, chairman of the foreign relations committee, said tonight he believed a majority of the members of that committee were in favor of raising the embargo on arms. To the suggestion that raising the embargo would be inhuman, some senators have declared that such an act, on the other hand, would put an end to the revolution in a short period, and spare the country the bloodshed of an indefinitely prolonged struggle.

No developments from Mexico City were announced from the state department. Dispatches stating that Huerta had declared the presidential election null and void left a doubt in the minds of some officials as to whether the election of members of congress would be so considered by Huerta.

BATTLE'S WAGED WITHOUT QUARTER

Barbarous Struggle at Monterey Between Constitutionalists and Huerta's Forces.

Laredo, Texas, November 9.—Warfare without quarter with the opposing armies burning and dynamiting all that seemed to stand in the way of victory, has been waged at Monterey, Mexico, between the defending federalists and the besieging constitutionalists.

General Miguel, whose residence was one of the finest in northern Mexico, was burned to death with his family. The burning of the house by fire constitutionalists captured the barracks of the first federalist division.

MRS. HEPBURN DENIES REPORT OF HER DEATH

Fake Telegram, Believed to Be Work of Maid, Causes Police Visit.

A fake telegram, believed to have been sent by a negro maid determined to wreak vengeance upon her employer, caused a police visit to Mrs. W. J. Hepburn's home.

A few minutes previously police headquarters had been called over the telephone by Mrs. James A. Alexander, of 249 North Jackson street, a neighbor of Mrs. Hepburn's.

The police were rushed to No. 599 Mrs. Hepburn, herself, greeted them at the door. She was very much alive and demanded an investigation.

Mrs. Hepburn told Mrs. Alexander that he had endeavored to communicate over long distance with the telephone in his residence, but was unable to get anyone to answer.

The police are searching for her. Mr. Hepburn was wined shortly before midnight that his wife was alive and in no danger, the telegram being signed by Mrs. Hepburn.

The Automobile Show and This Furniture Store

Both are the best of their kind the south can claim. We leave it to others to tell of the automobile show. But here is a five-story furniture store that makes a claim to the home lovers' interest that no other store of the south can.

In it are gathered the most comprehensive stocks of RIGHT furniture that one could find in many a day's journey. And this is an invitation to every visitor to the Automobile Show to become a visitor to this Furniture Store, where there is always a show to warm the heart of the homekeeper.

Do not feel that you must be in a buying frame of mind before accepting this invitation. That is not at all necessary—has nothing to do with the cordiality with which you will be received.

THE FRANK CASE.

In a short while the issue of the life or death of Leo Frank will be fought out before the supreme court of the state.

He will not approach the court as a Jew or a Gentile, a beggar or a millionaire. He will be simply a man in legal peril of his life. The six justices who sit upon the bench are men of unimpeachable character. Their professional equipment is unquestioned. At every angle they are qualified to administer the law with minds single to justice and closed to all extraneous influences.

There are many who are wholly sincere in their belief in Frank's guilt. Many believe with unshakable faith that Frank is the innocent victim of circumstances. These two beliefs are, of course, fixedly incompatible. It is between the two that the supreme court must come as final arbiter.

A court of last resort can have nothing in common with prejudice, racial or otherwise. Bias of any nature must be an alien to its counsels. It is and must be concerned solely with the righteous administration of justice under the law and the evidence. It will undoubtedly discharge the function of weighing that evidence with scrupulous impartiality. Where the evidence is sufficient to support the verdict the verdict should stand. If it regards the evidence as insufficient in this case the verdict should be set aside, and the accused be given a new trial.

And it is before a court with these exalted attributes that the supreme legal fight of the Frank case will be staged. The supreme court of Georgia will come as near finding the justice of this mysterious case, as can be expected of any tribunal ruled by human beings. It is fully competent to pass upon the many troublesome issues here involved. If the court writes its indorsement to the death warrant it will be because it believes the guilt of the defendant has been legally proven. It will not permit him to go to the gallows unless it is satisfied his guilt has been established beyond a reasonable doubt.

The first guarantee of the constitution is that a man shall have a fair trial for his life. The supreme court must say whether or not Frank has had such a trial. If he has, the verdict stands. If he has not, and if the verdict is not justified by the evidence, he is entitled to and he will receive a new trial.

The proponents and the opponents of Frank may be assured the court will act with ultimate conscientiousness. In full knowledge, that whatever verdict it reaches will be cited in Georgia for many generations, it could not do otherwise.

All that is asked by anybody—everybody—is that absolute justice be done. If Frank is guilty beyond a reasonable doubt, and it is so proven to the satisfaction of the court, he should pay the penalty of crime. If not, he should have a new trial. The supreme court must say!

THE BIGNESS OF BRYCE.

James Bryce deserved all that President Wilson said in praise of him in a letter written to the London Pilgrims for reading at the dinner of which Bryce was the honor guest. The president declared that the former British ambassador to this country had been exceeded by none of his predecessors in the important task of strengthening the ties between the two nations.

That is true. Mr. Bryce is one of the best products of English diplomacy, and is a prophecy, we hope, of the type of ambassador our own country will ultimately breed in abundance. With the perfection of the steamship, the cable and the wireless, the functions of the ambassador have become steadily more delicate and exacting. It is true they do not wield the enormous plenary powers of the old days. Their influence has gained in subtlety what it has lost in the more immediately visible aspects. The principles of treaties are nowadays negotiated by cable. But it remains for the discretion, the eloquence and the penetration of the ambassador to foster that sentiment which makes treaties possible or impossible.

Bryce saw the great shift in the situation early during his mission to the country. He was prepared for it, as a nation must be for war. He was richly equipped in the literature of our political and lettered institutions. With their cardinal principles he was in sympathy. When he criticised it was in the constructive sense and with a knowledge of detail commanded by not more than two or three Americans. His victories were those of tact, his coups those of the master mind that has grasped those emotions and interests to which geographical and political, and often racial, boundaries are essentially subordinate.

It is only in the degree that we are successful in training our foreign representatives to approximate the Bryce comprehension of the great change in diplomacy that we shall establish international relations of the finally compensating character.

WORK V. CRIME.

The criminal is the most expensive parasite upon the community.
Atlanta can lessen his tribe by the establishment of a municipal employment bureau. Such is the argument advanced elsewhere on this page by Philip Weltner, secretary of the Georgia Prison association. Mr. Weltner's reasoning is sound and his conclusions convincing.

His plea is specially for the untrained worker. The man educated as a stenographer, a salesman, a bookkeeper, an artisan in any calling, knows where to search employment when one position fails. The day laborer or the follower of any unorganized vocation is helpless. He must take what he can get. His employment is intermittent. Let work give out and he is ripe for vagrancy, and the vagrant is ever the potential criminal.

It is likely that out of the thousands of derelicts which each year face the recorder and the criminal branches of the superior courts, eight-tenths could have been transformed into productive workers had expert sociology taken hold of them in time.

A municipal employment bureau would be operated not alone as a separate entity, but in connection with the police court, the Associated Charities and every other agency which registers the first significant breakdown in the fabric of the individual. The little money required for its activities, which would be in the line of finding employment for this unformed and floating class, would be overwhelmingly compensated by lessening of criminal depredations and an increase in the producing efficiency of the community.

HENRY GEORGE IN PUEBLO.

The economic shade of Henry George is marching on, in America as well as in England. The Colorado city of Pueblo has just voted in the single tax, the device with which George afflicted the standpatrollers of his day. The affirmative majority was 500. Considering that Pueblo is hardly half as large as Atlanta the electoral drift did not want in decisiveness. According to the terms of the charter amendment, municipal taxes will hereafter be levied upon lots alone. There will be no attempt to apraise the improvements upon them. The old system of taxation will continue to apply to the liquidation of county and state indebtedness.

The single tax, as it is understood and sought to be applied in this country, is almost interchangeable with a tax on the unearned increment, about which Lloyd-George so thoroughly agitated the landed gentry of Great Britain.

Henry George's basic premise is that land is the standard and creator of all wealth, urban and rural, agricultural and otherwise. His inevitable corollary was that land values were determined, not by the industry nor the genius of the men who own land, but by the collective activities of every man, woman and child in the community. To put a local illustration: What makes the land around Five Points in Atlanta almost fabulously valuable? The activities of one or all of its owners? No. Rather the direct and indirect activities of every man, woman and child in Atlanta; activities expressed in the needs which created the trolley system, the police department, the fire department, the waterworks department, the lighting of streets, what-not. If 200,000 people did not work in and around Atlanta, and if very many of them did not pass Five Points at some time in the day or week, the property there would be no more valuable than in any other part of the city.

In other words, human needs and human energies, in the mass, make values for land, while its owners may be dead or sleeping or feasting. The George theory recognizes this principle and would impose taxes, not by arbitrary estimates, but by an appraisal of the value of the land to the community. People do not shy at this doctrine as they once did. It is still sufficiently novel and revolutionary to assure that it will not for some time become of general effect. But the equity underlying it is of such appeal as to make it a strong candidate for attention in the creation of the taxation of the future.

INTERESTING RECITAL OF MEXICAN HISTORY

By MARTIN V. GALVIN.

During the past three months Mexico has been the topic of conversation and speculation of this one-time republic. The situation is lamentable beyond description. The situation, acute in its every phase, is deplorable in the extreme. It is to call into question the capacity of those who are in charge of the government. The case is not without hope, however, for the strong arm of Diaz furnishes the assurance that, if peace could be brought about, Mexico would be restored and rigidly enforced, quietude and prosperity would return to that beautiful country.

If it be true that General Carranza recently declared that the only way in which the differences between his troops and those of General Huerta could be settled is by the annihilation of one body or the other, we see how far the people as a whole have drifted from the modern conception of government. We see at once how exceedingly difficult is the task to which President Wilson has addressed himself.

It may be well to refresh our reading or our memory of those events. Some of us may have forgotten how completely the institution of slavery figured in the discussions which were based on the certain success of American arms on Mexican soil.

Alexander Hamilton Stephens said in the national house of representatives: "I am no enemy to the extension of our domain or the extension of the white race. I trust the day is not far distant when the whole of our ultimate destiny, if white conquest prevail, I confidently believe. But it cannot be accomplished by force. We can only enlarge by voluntary accretions."

I quote Mr. Stephens because he was so wise and so farseeing, and because at that time there were those who believed and acted as if Mexico would mean the "taking over" of that entire country. That belief and feeling is alive in this country today.

The capture of the Mexican capital was an immediate result of the reaction of the American ultimatum, which demanded the restoration of New Mexico and upper California to the United States.

The fall of the City of Mexico brought to the forefront the advocates of conquest outright—to incorporate all Mexico into the union.

President Polk clung to the views he had early and ably espoused. He requested Buchanan, secretary of state, to prepare a paragraph to be inserted in a message he was about to send to the congress: "That, failing to obtain a peace, we shall continue to occupy Mexico with our troops and engage and protect the citizens of the United States. Those friends were to be encouraged in their efforts to establish and maintain a republican form of government."

Mr. Buchanan incorporated in the draft, which he submitted to the president, the suggestion that "an honorable peace be not obtainable, we must fulfill the destiny which Providence may have in store for both countries."

Permit, if you please, a parenthetical remark just here: A short time after the destruction of the Maine in Spanish waters, I had the great privilege, in the First Methodist church in Atlanta, to listen to a discourse by the late Dr. Young J. Allen, missionary to China, while he discussed the true situation from a Biblical point of view. It was so eloquent and so powerful an address, it seemed to the large congregation as though its delivery had not required more than fifteen minutes of time. Dr. Allen declared that the war with Spain was inevitable; that the hand of Providence was controlling the situation and that, as a result of war, we would come into possession of the "islands of the sea"—meaning the Philippines, and other territory as well. He directed attention to the fact that we had acquired the Hawaiian Islands by a peaceful process. That acquisition, notwithstanding the fact that the acquisition of the Philippines "in the fullness of time," which latter was at hand.

Notwithstanding the fact that Mr. Toombs, Mr. Calhoun and other southern statesmen took an early and a positive stand against the policy of summary conquest, the anti-slaveryites saw their opportunity to show an ardent interest in the slavery regardless of all Mexico or no Mexico. Their thought was that to acquire all Mexico could have but one meaning and that was, the extension of the domain of the south's peculiar institution.

The Wilmot proviso in the house voted the senate down, and the fix of the policy of the evervities. A $2,000,000 appropriation had been requested by the president to be used in meeting any extraordinary expenses that might be incurred in the acquisition of territory. Mr. Wilmot from Pennsylvania proposed a rider to the pending bill—that in no territory should be acquired where slavery or involuntary servitude ever be permitted to exist.

The house incorporated the proviso into the bill and it was sent to the senate. It was developed that the proviso would be stricken from the bill. Senator John Davis, of Massachusetts, who brought the bill as a rider from the house, but was apprehensive that if it was amended by the senate and returned to the house, the proviso would be held in conference, secure the adjournment without a day. So the measure was defeated. The appropriation was increased to $3,000,000 and passed without any proviso.

But the issue had been joined. It had dawned upon the opponents of slavery that the way in which ultimately to kill it under the processes of peace was to fix metes and bounds which would be set to the south.

It was not until the passage of the act that great crisis, southern leaders, true to tradition and to history, proved themselves patriots as well as statesmen. While not taking up arms to the front, slavery agitators, they manifested their faith in the staying qualities of the institution and gave evidence of their respect for equal with the boundaries of the union; they demonstrated the fact that while they were southerners they were, first of all, Americans.

City Employment Bureau Needed to Cure Vagrancy That Feeds the Crime Rate

By PHILIP WELTNER, Secretary Georgia Prison Association.

The city of Atlanta needs a municipal employment bureau.

There are lots of folk who live on the line of bare subsistence. Every growing town is full of just that sort. They come here, expecting to get on, and soon find themselves stranded. All they pick up are odd jobs. These give out, and they are back on the streets. Many such have children at home; babies to feed. A day off means hungry stomachs. A month's sickness means that the boys quit school to sell papers. This does not happen because of hard times, but because the man does not know how to get a job.

For the fellow who is prosperous and therefore, independent it is almost enough, but hunting work on an empty stomach is a mystic maze that will rattle the stoutest heart. Many a man starts out in life with the best of intentions and winds up an occasional worker, shiftless, broken in character and careless of himself and home.

It is from that class and their children that police courts recruit their grist. It is to this class that police courts, by their system of senseless fines, put the finishing touches, sending men and women deeper and deeper down into a social stratum of shameless poverty and destitution. Criminal history follows a graduated scale. First, comes the generation of occasional workers; second, comes the sneak-thief, burglar and prostitute.

Crime is a social symptom. It means that somewhere we were careless with the odds and ends of civilization. Little can be done with the individual criminal, while much can be done with the class from which the criminal has his origin. Make it easy for breadwinners to find gainful work and more will be done to wipe out poverty and crime than is done by a million church bazaars.

Why not then a municipal employment bureau? At the time of the war the attempt to allow men to walk about idling their time away doing nothing useful; if this belief is so strong that it will undertake to punish idlers and loiterers, why is it not just as natural for the city to prevent this harmful situation by establishing a municipal bureau for the unemployed? The effort of the humble citizen? More important than the city beautiful is the city serviceable. The city that helps is the city that wins. If unemployed labor is equally so. The foundation of a city's prosperity rests on its ability to connect the worker with the capital represented by labor to be done, the man who is represented by the man who needs a job.

Prosperity is not measured by the wealth of the few, but the savings of the humble. Help the occasional worker to find steady work, a graduated scale. First, comes the generation of occasional workers; second, comes the sneak-thief, burglar and prostitute. Atlanta needs a municipal employment bureau.

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON, The Famous Prose Poet.

THE SINFUL AGENTS.

"I have been told that you are a lady of culture," said the girl, smiling demurely. "And I have gone out of my way a considerable distance to call your attention to the finest line of toilet soaps ever offered. As you must know, there is no habit more vulgar than the use of cheap soaps for the toilet."

Interrupted Mrs. Curfew, "and that is going around pestering busy women who need every minute of their time to get their housework done. I don't see what's going to become of this country and its homes and residences if something isn't done to suppress the agents for these agents."

"Agents are a nuisance every day you look at them. The things they sell never are any good, and they always come at the busiest hour of the day and are almost impossible to get rid of. My husband is old before his time because of agents, and in the end they will bring his gray hairs in sorrow to the grave. He's always buying something foolish, and taking the money I have saved away for new dusters, and he never pays for them, and then when he finds he has been stung he is furious for several days and goes around armed to the teeth, hoping and praying that an agent will come to the door, but the agents seem to know when it's dangerous to be seen around here."

Some time ago Mr. Curfew decided to run a justice of the peace, and I was hoping he would be successful, for that man knows more about justice than all the lawyers in town. One morning he went forth to interview some of our leading business men, hoping they would endorse his candidacy and help him all they could. When he returned home he was almost speechless with confidence, feeling sure that all said business men would jump at the chance to support him. But when he came back in the evening he was almost speechless with grief. First he had gone to the druggist, Mr. Halloprope, and when he explained his errand the druggist said: "You certainly have taken a fine agent for a justice of the peace, knowing full well that it comes along, I need every cent I can get, as I have two bedridden grandmothers and several crippled aunts to support. Yet you patronize the wandering agents, and when you want a public snap you have the nerve to come here and suggest that I organize a society for the relief of the poor? You can go to blunder, Mr. Curfew. When you come a candidate I'll hire an extra clerk so I can put in all my time on the streets extorting the money just what sort of a fourflusher you are."

"This discouraged my husband a great deal, but he was not to be discouraged. He went and told of his political aspirations to Mr. Higgins said: 'The other day I happened to be at the freight depot and take a walk to the office. When you are in by rail for you. I knew that an agent for one of the fake grocery houses had been canvassing the town, but I supposed that a man of your standing would have too much sense to buy from such people, knowing as you do that the home merchants bear the burden of the town. I keep the people from the poorhouse. Yet there the people's eyes was the evidence that you are a traitor to your own community, and now you have the nerve to suggest that I should support you for office. You may go to Goshen, Mr. Curfew, and if you really make this walk to the office, you may as well put a spoke in your own wheel.'"

"It was that way all day, and my husband hasn't got over it yet. He swears he'll take a walk to the office if he gets in our front yard, so the best thing he can do is to evaporate before he comes up to the barn."

The World's Mysteries
DID DE POMPADOUR ASSIST IN LOUIS XV'S DEATH?

Mme. de Pompadour was one of the most famous women of France during the middle of the eighteenth century. She was famous as a beauty, and not only set the fashions of Paris, but made and unmade ministers of France at will. For some years after Louis XIV married Marie Lezinski he was faithful to her. There was living in Paris at the time Mme. Lenormand d'Etolles, the daughter of an officer, the sister of the Duke of Orleans. One day, while attending a hunting party, she met the king, who was charmed by her beauty. He fell in love with her and their relations were soon recognized. The husband made no effort to hold his wife against her inclinations and the king's will.

It was after madame had gone on a campaign with him in 1745 that she returned as the Marquise de Pompadour, her title coming from the estate of the extinct line of the Pompadour family. Madame de Pompadour was a designing woman and entered into all sorts of schemes, leaving nothing undone to carry her ends.

At the commencement of the year 1757 an event occurred which for a moment threatened the position of de Pompadour. She was accused of being a party in the attempted assassination of the king, Louis XV was stabbed on the 6th of January of that year as he was descending the steps of the Marble Court by a middle-aged man. He assigned no reason for the act, and there were those who scented an intrigue among those high up at court against his life.

At the time of the king was in the hands of the priests and the doctors, Madame de Pompadour remained in her apartments in an agony of suspense. Angry crowds gathered under her windows; they threatened her with death, and what made her fears all the more striking was the fact that Louis never sent for her nor made any inquiry about her.

De Pompadour had many enemies at court and they took advantage of his supposed indifference to try and get rid of her. They contrived all sorts of schemes, but when the king had fully recovered his old love for the Marquise returned, and he forgave her of all suspicion and returned to her. Just as she had given up all hope, and was attempting to flee Paris, her door was suddenly opened, and who should appear

MADRID

BY GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Swab"

(Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.) Madrid, the capital of Spain and the center of the guitar, cigarette and bull fighting industries of the world, is situated in the western part of the Iberian Peninsula, above sea level, in a heavy valley of the south.

Madrid is noted in literature for its lovers, and among tourists for its climate. The lovers average 123 in the shade as they stand before the barred windows of the Madrid debutantes and sigh, but the climate is more tickle. It varies from 123 in the shade to freezing and below zero in both in the same day. The prevailing Madrid costume in summer is a thin suit, a fan, a heavy woolen blanket and a straw hat.

Madrid is not as old as most European cities. Before the sixteenth century it was only a village and a hamlet. The railway station. It has more fine paintings than New York and more churches than Chicago, but has to get along without roof gardens or Chinese restaurants. It has a university with 6,000 students, but it is a tame affair, not having a single college or burned down since the seventeenth century.

Madrid has 72 public squares, all completely filled at all times with gentlemen of leisure, including a large number of statues of deceased kings. Madrid has one fine street, two miles long, and a number of street cars, each equipped with fenders in the rear to protect pedestrians.

Madrid does most of the manufacturing for Spain and is a growing town, about the size of Cleveland, Ohio. In general liveliness it resembles the latter city after 1

"The lovers average 123 in the shade, but the climate is more tickle."

A. M. The principal amusements in Madrid are sleeping in the afternoon, promenading in the evening and betting on which precedent the King of Spain will break next. It resembles an American city in only one thing—the street cleaning department seems to require about the same amount of rest.

YOUR PRESENCE

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

There are scores of people you meet daily whose very Presence depresses you. There are others whose Presence instantly lifts you up, as though you had been suddenly hoisted by machinery, so real does it transpire.

Is YOUR Presence an Asset or a Liability?
If it is an Asset, people will be glad to see you at any time. If it is an Asset, other jobs will want you, if you don't want the Job that now holds you. Your Presence is more to you than written testimonials or a fat balance in the Bank.
Is YOUR Presence an Asset or a Liability?
For Your Presence is your Character. Worth, and it shows its merit on presentation, as though literally Trade-marked. The world either wants Your Presence—or it doesn't. And within you are adjusted, the strings that you alone may pull and which are able to flash into your Presence the Character Colors that make it desired.
If YOUR Presence an Asset or a Liability?
Compel Your Presence to Serve and Cheer no matter where it finds itself. Never let it stay where it does not fit—where it doesn't count on help. Make people ever to desire Your Presence.
Oh, Papa!
(From Judge.)
Miss Flip—I wish some one would give me an idea how to put on a hair net.
Father—I wish some one would give you an idea to put under your hair net.

Efficient Housekeeping

By HENRIETTA D. GRAUEL, Domestic Science Lecturer.

"We are fond of noodles at our house and often have noodle soup in cool weather, but I never heard of baking noodles until the other day when I saw 'breast of veal with baked noodles' on a menu card in a tea room. What can you tell me about this combination and is it a good home dish?" writes one of my readers.

Noodles in all forms are very satisfying and easy to make. They are made at home with plenty of egg yolks and rich stock. "Baked noodles" is a rather mysterious term, but one that is easily understood. Suppose we make the noodles first, and then proceed to boil, bake and fry them.

Roll flour, salt, water, egg and a very little cream. Three egg yolks will make sufficient paste to furnish a family of five with enough noodles for two dinners. Separate the eggs and to every yolk used add a half an egg shell filled with a cream or rich milk. Beat the yolks until stiff with a fork and commence adding sifted flour, then a little salt. Add enough flour to make a stiff paste, but not enough to make it hard. Roll out into a thin sheet; almost transparent. Indeed, all thin pastes the finer noodle maker you are. Germans, who excel at making this dish, claim that noodles mixed with water can be rolled thinner than if milk is used, but I cannot see that this makes any difference. When the sheet of dough is as thin as a piece of mica, roll it up and cut the noodles in as narrow strips as you can. Shake out each roll of strips and when all are cut place in a sunny window or in a warm place to dry.

Noodles are better for standing some time before they are cooked and they will keep in dry place for months.
Make a fine, rich beef or veal stock and season it well; strain it and bring to a boiling point, drop in the noodles and cook briskly fifteen minutes.

The noodles are served in the soup or they are lifted out and well drained and browned with melted butter.
Breast of veal with noodles: Bake the veal with or without stuffing and with the addition of whatever vegetables you prefer. After the noodles are cooked and drained place them around the roast and return all to the oven until both meat and garnish are slightly browned.

It is not absolutely necessary to cook the noodles in meat stock; instead you may drop them into boiling, salted water or milk, then drain and fry lightly in a little butter. Often one does not have boiling meat or stock at hand and in this case a bouillon cube will give a fine meaty flavor to the dish.

These bouillon cubes and meat extracts are very good friends in such emergencies and a box or bottle of them should be in every cupboard.

To Belinda.

I called her Sweet Belinda, for so she seemed to me
A vision of those dear old days when life held poesy;
(And O the courtin' in the barn, the scrapin' of the fiddle,
As gentlemen danced the "Dorsey Dor" and ladies "passed the middle."
A hoopskirt I would clothe her in and from her dainty head
I'd smoothe out all those Marcellad waves,
And when we'd finish dancing the Old Virginia Reel,
I'd set her feet a-twirlin' on a dusty spinning wheel.
On Christmas I would send to her Old Lavender and Lace,
The useful knitting needle should also have a place;
A breakfast cap she'd not reject since fashion books now tell
This relic of our Grandma's day is made to look quite well.
To Ante Bellum I'd appeal for just the servant,
That's fit, in my opinion, to take these gifts to her;
And Auntie'll be there on the scratch, she'll send him if she can—
Her Chesterfield in ebony—a gray-haired nigger man!

SLEW LAD TO HIDE GUILTY PASSION

Such Is State's Contention in Murder Charge Against Mrs. Ada Griffith and John England.

Macon, Ga., November 9.—(Special.) Charged with the murder of fifteen-year-old John Epps, whose lifeless body was found in a pine thicket on the fourteenth day of last December, Mrs. Ada Griffith and John England are in jail at Sparta, their arrest being made almost a year after the alleged crime was committed.

Today at Sparta, it was said, Mrs. Griffith and England both stuck to their stories told at the preliminary hearing Saturday that they were innocent of the crime. They will be tried in February.

To Conceal Relations. The contention of the state is that they concealed their relationship. Their alleged intimate relations might remain a secret. The state is proceeding on the theory that the husband had knowledge of the alleged relations and that he was killed by a blow on the head while at the home of Mrs. Griffith and the body taken in a wagon to the pine thicket where it was left to be found later by the boy's father.

Evidence in Wagon Track. That he was not killed at the spot where the body was found is another contention of the state. At the time of the finding of the body, a wagon track was noticed leading from the Griffith home to the pine thicket and there was a peculiar mark left after each revolution of the wheel. This mark, it is alleged, had been made by a wire on the tire of Mrs. Griffith's husband's wagon.

The father of young Epps, a tenant farmer, has sold all of his property to secure money with which to prosecute the case.

The chances are that Georgia will be able to face Tech with her first complete line-up of the season. It looks like they are going to line up against their old-time and their most deadly rivals with their strongest battle front.

Johnson's return to the game will be the very tonic that the Tech players would have preferred to the tactics in a broken field or under any conditions.

TARIFF LAW LOSES DISCOUNT CLAUSE

McReynolds Holds 5 Per Cent Rebate on Goods Imported in American Ships Violates Treaties.

Washington, November 9.—Attorney General McReynolds has decided that the subsection of the new tariff law authorizing a 5 per cent rebate on all goods imported in American vessels is nullified by its provision that "nothing in this subsection shall be so construed as to abrogate or in any manner impair or affect the operation of any treaty concluded between the United States and any foreign nation."

Secretary McAdoo, of the treasury department, made public the attorney general's opinion today and announced that in accordance with the collectors of customs would be directed to continue to disregard the subsection as they were instructed to do on October 8. Entries held up pending the decision can now be liquidated, leaving importers who desire to insist upon getting the 5 per cent discount to protest, with the right of finally carrying the question to the court of customs appeals.

This ends, for the present at least, long-drawn-out discussion over the proposed differential duty provision, the subject of much debate in the senate while the tariff was under consideration.

Opinion of McReynolds.

The attorney general gave his opinion to Secretary McAdoo ten days ago, but it was withheld until today to allow consideration by the treasury department.

Mr. McReynolds held—

"That the 5 per centum discount to American vessels only, which was the primary object of the subsection in question, cannot be given without impairing the stipulations of existing treaties between the United States and various other powers, and that consequently the subsection, by the expressed terms of the provision is inoperative."

Twenty-three nations have treaties with the United States under which they claimed their ships had a right to the differential in comparison with foreign ships. These included Great Britain, Germany, France, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Japan, Belgium, Denmark, Greece, the Netherlands, Spain, Norway and Sweden.

Several foreign governments, including those of Germany, France and Spain, made strong protests to the state department against the proposed discrimination, and there were some indirect threats of a trade war if no preference duty was enforced.

Efforts were being made by some of the administration leaders immediately after foreign protests were received to have congress repeal the provision. Representative Underwood, chairman of the house ways and means committee and the original champion of the clause, however, expressed himself as opposed to such action, and the president did not urge it.

Would Have Cost $10,000,000.

Allowance of the discount to ships of those nations claiming equal rights with American bottoms would have resulted in an estimated loss of $10,000,000 annually in customs duties. This would have created a deficit instead of a surplus for the treasury, it has been estimated by the tariff framers.

Rehabilitation of the American merchant marine was the expressed purpose of those who had the provision inserted. They claimed it would operate as an incentive to the construction of ships in the United States, since shippers of goods in American built bottoms would get the 5 per cent reduction and the American ship owners would be assured of an increase of business.

Importers who are dissatisfied with the opinion of the attorney general may protest to the collector of customs at the port of entry, who will lay their objections before the board of general appraisers. In case the board's decision is unsatisfactory, the appellant, the case may be carried to the court of customs appeals for final disposition.

SIZE OF COTTON CROP WORRIES THE TRADERS

Number of Important Estimates on the Output to Appear This Week.

New Orleans, November 9.—The cotton trade this week will be more concerned than ever with guesses on the size of the crop, a number of important estimates of the yield are scheduled to appear, and they will probably have more or less influence on the course of prices. The census bureau figures on ginning issued at the close of last week will be the basis of these new guesses.

From now on all estimates will lead up to the big estimate of the year, that by the department of agriculture. These figures will be issued early in December, and will be of such importance that they will undoubtedly have the effect of restricting new business during the fortnight preceding them.

Picking Nearly Over.

Picking is now rapidly nearing completion, and ginners and receiving points can begin to estimate with a fair degree of accuracy what is left of the crop to be handled. This information will allow a new angle of view and will result in private expressions of opinion that will be awaited with interest by the trade. This week Thursday ends the present ginning period in the schedule of census reports, and these figures will be used to check up opinions formed regarding the crop based on preceding statistics. At the end of the week the market may be influenced by private reports on ginning up to Thursday.

Statistics regarding mill takings and the probable consumption this season are growing in interest. Should the output of slight movement this week be anywhere near as large as it was last it will lead to renewed claims of a huge consumption this season.

Watching Spot Market.

The spot market will be watched as closely as ever by both sides in the hope that strong developments may come to light. Thus far the spot markets of the south have succeeded in doing a large business in a very quiet way. Offerings have been free, but have been readily absorbed. Any sudden check in either supply or demand will be bound to have a quick influence on the future market.

A feature that may grow in importance this week is the Mexican situation. Bears are beginning to talk in a pessimistic way of the chances of intervention by the United States and the effect it would have on business. This may have the result of curtailing the bullish endeavor to some extent in the near future.

COLORED RACE NEEDS EDUCATIONAL UPLIFT

Reporting the recent national council of Congregational church of the United States held in Kansas City, Rev. H. E. Proctor urged his people at the First Congregational church, colored, last night to consider the claims of the denomination on the colored race. Among other things, he said:

"Congregationalism stands strongly for education, and the denomination which planted Harvard and Yale in the east has sprinkled the south with educational institutions for the colored race. One-third of the colored race is still illiterate, and it needs the educational uplift of our denomination. Ignorance does not help any one and is a curse for nothing. Two-thirds of the race is yet unchurched, and it needs the practical and progressive type of religion for which Congregationalism stands. Latest called of the nations, we are behind all the rest. The heart of any people and in their religion. A people progressive in their religion will be progressive in everything else."

FRIEND'S VISIT SAVES TECH STUDENT'S LIFE

J. H. Herrington, of Atlanta, Found in Bathtub, Being Slowly Asphyxiated.

A timely visit of a friend saved the life of J. H. Herrington, a sophomore in Tech, Sunday afternoon, when he entered the bathroom to find the young student at the door of death from asphyxiation.

Herrington was unconscious, lying stretched in a tub in which he was taking a bath. He was carried to the back porch, where efforts were made to revive him. Later he was removed in an ambulance to H. M. Patterson & Son to a local sanitarium, where, it is stated, he will recover.

The youth had gone into the bathroom of the Kappa Alpha home at 460 Spring street, and had turned on the gas in an instantaneous water heater. A large hole in the rubber tube which was connected to the gas jet, emitted a heavy flow of gas, which suffocated the student as he lay in the tub.

R. H. McNulty, a Kappa Alpha, who is also attending Tech, strolled into Herrington's room several minutes after Herrington had entered the bathroom. Failing to find Herrington in McNulty opened the bathroom door. A few minutes later and the imperiled youth would have been dead.

Herrington's home is in Augusta.

TERRELL FAIR CLOSES.

Exhibition Was Big Success in Every Respect.

Dawson, Ga., November 9.—(Special.) The Terrell county fair just closed, the third one held here during the past few years, was a decided success in all respects. The exhibits were unusually attractive and numerous. The displays of farm products were very fine, as were the exhibits of garden vegetables.

Five mules were never seen at a state fair, those entered at this Terrell county fair and there were also splendid displays of hogs and cows. All these things were on hand and prevailed every day, although the crowds were large in attendance on the fair and street curfew and a single arrest for disorderly conduct was made at any time.

SOCIALISTS ARE USING SUFFRAGETTE TACTICS

London, November 9.—The socialists have adopted suffragette tactics and have decided to oppose all liberal candidates and refuse to hear at public meetings until James Larkin, leader of the striking Irish transport workers, who recently was sentenced to seven months' imprisonment in Dublin, is released.

The Right Hon. Charles Frederick Masterman, M. P., was howled down today when he attempted to speak at the Shoreditch tabernacle. The police were called to clear the church.

A demonstration was held at Dublin today by strikes in celebration of the success of the socialists in keeping the liberal candidate out in Reading. This had resulted in the resignation of Captain Wilson, the unionist candidate, in capturing the Reading seat yesterday, when the socialist, Mr. Butler, cut into the liberal vote.

REDUCE SOCIAL EVIL BY TRAINING CHILDREN

Minneapolis, Minn., November 9.—Discussed the social evil may policy reduced, their Justice Harry Olson, of the municipal court of Chicago, was the principal speaker of this afternoon's session of the International Protective League of Chicago, at the congress occupied pupils in Minneapolis churches this morning.

Judge Olson advocated the segregation of pupils in the schools and private instruction in special schools for subnormal children. The proper training of the feeble-minded child, before it has reached the age of 12, he declared, will reduce prostitution many fold.

The hereditary mental defectives, and, indeed, the whole subnormal group, he declared, "stem development intelligence beyond that of the normal child of 12. Most children attend school at that age until they are 12. Here, then, lies the crux of the matter. We must look to the public schools for the early identification of the defectives."
