

EMERSON IS STRICKEN LIKE FINLEY AND FOLLOWS HIM INTO UNKNOWN

President of Atlantic Coast Line Dies in Wilmington, N. C., Soon After Reaching There From Georgia.

EMERSON BECAME ILL WHILE NEAR WAYCROSS

Monday Night He Left Waycross for Wilmington. Reached Wilmington Just in Time to Die at Home.

Wilmington, N. C., November 25.—Thomas Martin Emerson, president of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad company, died late tonight at his home in this city, following an attack of acute indigestion yesterday while on a trip of inspection over the system with members of the board of directors.

Mr. Emerson was taken ill Sunday at Dupont, Ga., while on an inspection tour of the road of which he was president. He was taken to Waycross, Ga., Sunday night, and spent Monday under the care of physicians in a hospital here. Last night he was apparently much better, and was taken to a special train for Wilmington. A trained nurse and a physician accompanied him. When he arrived here to-day he was taken to his home in an ambulance.

Mr. Emerson was elected president of the Atlantic Coast Line eight years ago. He took the presidency of one of the South's greatest railroad systems from the very ranks of successful engineers, first as chief in the freight office, later as chief clerk in the passenger office, then general freight agent and later, until July, 1902, general traffic manager, being succeeded at that time one of the best traffic men in the entire country. He later became third vice president of the system in charge of traffic, and in November, 1905, he was elected president to succeed the late R. G. Erwin, of Savannah, Ga.

He was of the constructive type of railway presidents, and encouraged the development of the country through the safe and sound operation of the road. He was prominent socially as a Mason of high degree and took an active interest in the life of the community in which he lived.

Born March 21, 1851, in Preble county, Ohio, he was in the sixty-third year of his age. He first entered the railway service as a clerk in the freight office at Hagerstown, Ohio, and in 1870, and in 1872 he became general freight agent at Fort Wayne, Ind., and later at Cincinnati, Ohio.

He was later general traveling passenger agent of the Detroit and Indianapolis line. He came south in January, 1875, and was first clerk in the general freight office of the Charlotte, Columbia and Augusta railroad in Columbia, S. C.

Later he became chief clerk in the general freight and passenger department of the Atlantic Coast Line in Wilmington, advancing to the position of assistant general freight agent in 1890, and subsequently in the service of the Atlantic Coast Line except for a year spent at Richmond, Va., as assistant general freight and passenger agent of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway in 1885. He became general freight and passenger agent of the Atlantic Coast Line at Wilmington, advancing to the presidency by successive steps.

He is survived by his second wife, two daughters, Mrs. Albert Sydney Williams and Mrs. Corning Van Leven, and one son, F. M. Emerson, Jr., all of Wilmington. A brother in Macon and two sisters also in Indiana. Deceased only surviving members of the immediate family.

The funeral will be conducted Thursday afternoon at 1 o'clock from St. John's Episcopal church, and the interment will be in the family lot in the Oakdale cemetery here.

WINDOW IN MEMORY OF WHITELAW REID

FAIRFAX HARRISON TO SUCCEED FINLEY

President of Monon Believed Most Probable Choice for Southern Head—He Is Brother of Burton Harrison

By John Corrigan, Jr. Washington, D. C., November 25.—While Southern railway officials were too grieved by the totally unexpected death of President Finley today to even talk of the question as to who would succeed him, from persons outside the service of the Southern but who are acquainted with its affairs, it was learned that many signs point to the selection of Fairfax Harrison, formerly vice president of the southern railway and now president of the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville railway, the Monon Route, on which the southern is part owner.

Mr. Harrison is still director of the Southern railway company and of a number of the affiliated companies. He is a practical railway man, though a lawyer, and has had much experience in financial affairs. Mr. Harrison is a Virginian, his father having been the private secretary of Jefferson Davis, throughout the days of the confederacy. Francis Burton Harrison, former New York congressman and recently appointed governor general of the Philippines, is his brother.

When he arose about 7 o'clock this morning, he casually observed to Mrs. Finley that he had a feeling of slight oppression in his head. She left the room for a moment to obtain some mild remedy. When she returned he was leaning over a dresser with his head buried in his hands. She attempted to assist him, but he fell into her arms, unconscious.

Aid was summoned and the family physician called. It was evident that Mr. Finley was suffering from a stroke of apoplexy, and every effort was made to restore him to consciousness. At 1:50 o'clock this afternoon he passed away, with Mrs. Finley, three of his daughters and his son at the bedside.

Associates Didn't Know. Until the end, not even Mr. Finley's most intimate personal and business associates knew that he had been stricken. Many of his personal friends in railroad circles were in the city attending rate hearings before the interstate commerce commission. His only son, W. W. Finley, Jr., connected with the traffic department of the Pennsylvania railroad at Newark, N. J., was notified of his father's condition, and arrived at the house about fifteen minutes before the death.

Mr. Finley is survived by Mrs. Finley, Misses Lottie V., Lillie D., Leonora and Celestine Finley and his son, Miss Lottie was out of the city, and could not reach here before her father's death.

Funeral Next Friday. The funeral services will be held in St. John's Episcopal church this city, at 11 a. m. next Friday. Burial will be in Oakhill cemetery.

Mr. Finley had been apparently in good health, and the fatal stroke came without warning. With his family, he had recently returned from his country home at Warrenton, Va., and reopened his town house in the capital.

Sketch of W. W. Finley. Mr. Finley was born on September 2, 1851, in Pass Christian, on the Gulf coast of Mississippi. He was educated in the private schools of Pass Christian and grew to early manhood in the atmosphere of this picturesque section of the south. At the age of 20 he entered the railroad service as a stenographer and by 1889 he had filled all the positions of importance.

Head of Southern Railway Overcome by Apoplexy Just After He Rose From Bed in Washington Home.

HE FELL UNCONSCIOUS INTO ARMS OF HIS WIFE

Finley Had Just Returned From His Country Home to Washington—Succeeded Samuel Spencer.

Washington, November 25.—William Wilson Finley, president of the Southern railway and a leading figure in movements for the development of the south, died here today, as a result of a stroke of apoplexy he suffered a few hours before he did not regain consciousness after he was stricken.

Mr. Finley's family, friends and associates were wholly unprepared for his sudden death. Scarcely past the prime of life, he was vigorous and energetic, and seemingly in the best of health, until a moment before he was felled by the stroke. He passed yesterday evening quietly with his family, and retired apparently in the best physical and mental condition.

When he arose about 7 o'clock this morning, he casually observed to Mrs. Finley that he had a feeling of slight oppression in his head. She left the room for a moment to obtain some mild remedy. When she returned he was leaning over a dresser with his head buried in his hands. She attempted to assist him, but he fell into her arms, unconscious.

Sayre, as they appeared before the wedding Tuesday, was taken by direction of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson. Mrs. Sayre was the former Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, second daughter of President and Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Sayre's wedding gown, as described by the modistes, is made of lustrous white satin, softly draped and trimmed with real lace, the folds being held in place with clusters of orange blossoms. The bodice is embroidered in orange blossom design, which outlines the open neck and extends down the side of the skirt. The sleeves are also finished off with the same design from which falls a deep frill of the lace. The train is in the court style, cut square. The full length veil is of tulle. The head arrangement is in the Dutch cap style, the same lace being introduced as is used on the gown. It is sprayed with orange blossoms.

ENOUGH POISON TO KILL FIFTY MEN FOUND IN FLOUR

Dr. Edgar Everhart Makes Report to Dr. W. M. Girtman in Alleged Hazlehurst Strychnine Case.

WHOLE FAMILY IS SICK; HUSBAND UNDER ARREST

As Result of Illness of Jesse G. Ross, Patrick Uersery, His Son-in-Law, Is Held for Investigation.

Interest was increased last night in the case of Patrick Uersery, prominent resident of Hazlehurst, Ga., joined in following the alleged attempt to poison the family of his wife, by the announcement of Dr. Edgar Everhart, a state chemist, that poison in quantities sufficient to poison a half hundred people had been discovered in the food eaten by the family.

Hazlehurst officials who will prosecute the prisoner have been notified of the discovery. Dr. Everhart stated to a reporter for The Constitution last night that strychnine had been found in both the flour and biscuits which Uersery is suspected of having poisoned.

Dr. W. M. Girtman, a Hazlehurst physician, who attended the family of Uersery's father-in-law during their mysterious illness that resulted in the husband's arrest, came to Atlanta Tuesday morning with the flour and biscuits. He held a conference with Dr. Everhart, in which he produced a hitherto undisclosed statement from a Hazlehurst druggist to the effect that, shortly before the poisoning, Uersery had purchased an amount of strychnine.

Dr. Everhart will make a quantity analysis some time today in an endeavor to ascertain whether or not the amount of poison in the flour and food was the same as that purchased by Uersery.

Uersery's case is attracting statewide attention. Shortly after his marriage to a beautiful and attractive daughter of Jesse G. Ross, a wealthy farmer of Hazlehurst, Mr. Ross and his entire family were taken simultaneously ill with poisoning. An investigation was started a sack of flour, from the contents of which biscuits were made for the fatal meal, was sent to Dr. Everhart and resulted in the poison discovery.

Witnesses were found who testified to strange actions of Uersery during the illness of his wife's family. He and his wife were the only ones who were not victims of the poison. It was said that he had been seen acting suspiciously in vicinity of the new sack of flour which later revealed the strychnine.

A striking phase of the case is the loyalty of his girl wife, who strongly asserts belief in her husband's innocence, despite the suspicion that has lightened around him. She visits him frequently, and her loyalty to the suspected man has made him many supporters.

Dell Defends Client. S. D. Dell, a well-known attorney of Hazlehurst has been engaged as counsel for Uersery. He has stated that his client is merely a victim of circumstances, and that his prosecutors will later become convinced of his innocence. He scouts the charge that he had had anything to do with the poisoning of his wife's relatives in order to inherit their money.

Dr. Everhart, in talking with a Constitution reporter last night, declared that there was undoubtedly enough poison in the flour and food sent him to slay at least fifty persons. "It was unevenly distributed," he said, "and this fact no doubt accounts for the survival of the victims. Very little of the mixture would have proved fatal."

Just what move will be made by the prosecution following the chemist's report was not made known last night.

Atlanta Owes Recognition To Georgia Corn Club Boys

One thousand Georgia Corn Club boys are coming to Atlanta next Tuesday and Wednesday as a simple reward for the splendid and meritorious service they have rendered in the development of the state. These boys have been invited to come because they have won the right to the invitation, and it is Atlanta's duty and privilege to entertain them for the short two or three days they will be here. Earnest and energetic effort on the part of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce has succeeded in securing Atlanta homes for only 450 of these boys; homes for 550 more must be had by the end of this week. It would be to Atlanta's lasting shame to have to tell not to come even one of these boys who have so well contributed to the prosperity of Atlanta and the state. Will you take two of them in your home? If you will do this much for Atlanta and for Georgia, write or telephone at once to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce your favorable reply.

BOY SHOT DOWN WHILE SKATING

Police Say That Philip Foster, Aged 11, Admits Firing Shot That Wounded Harold Thompson, 13.

Eight boys between the ages of 10 and 13 years were roller skating on the sidewalk at Lucile avenue and Gordon street late yesterday afternoon. They were speeding in formation down an incline along Lucile avenue. As the group rolled alongside a small wood shed, near the corner, a pistol was fired from the corner of the structure.

Harold Thompson, aged 13, of 36 Inman street, who was in the center of the skaters, plunged forward, screaming as he fell. He was picked up by his comrades and carried to his home only a short distance away. As his parents were away he was then carried to a nearby grocery store, where a doctor was summoned. A bullet hole was found beneath the right shoulder blade. The ball ranged through the shoulder and lodged in the neck. He will live.

The police were called. Officer Lon Evans went to 586 Gordon street where he found Philip Foster, aged 11 years, chopping wood unconcernedly in the back yard. The playmates of the wounded boy had accused him of the shooting. At first he denied it. Later, however, the police say he made admission, saying that he did not intend shooting the Thompson boy, but had fired at Walter Mooney, a boy aged 13, of 700 Gordon street.

He and the Mooney boy, the police say, he stated, had quarreled only a few minutes prior to the shooting. He had gone home for his brother's pistol, which he slipped out of the owner's room. The police report says that he had hidden behind the shelter in waiting for the crowd of skaters, and, that as they came into sight, he aimed at the Mooney youth, shooting wildly in his excitement.

The companions of the wounded boy, Charles Peurifoy, 90 Greensterry avenue; Walter Fisher, 127 Wellington street; Charles Sanders, 663 Gordon street; Willie Haynes, 32 Inman street; and Willie Owens, of North Wellington street, each are said by the police to have seen the Foster boy fire the shot.

He was carried to the Juvenile Detention home on Central avenue, where his case will be investigated today.

28 FIRES IN ONE DAY BREAK LOCAL RECORD

Eight Alarms Were Result of Setting Lawn Grass on Fire, Says Chief.

Atlanta's fire record for one day was broken yesterday. Up to 7 o'clock last night the department responded to twenty-eight alarms in different parts of the city. At one time during the afternoon five fires burned at the same time in different parts of the city, and for the first time in many months the entire department was at work.

Chief Cummings and his men did splendid work preventing the fires spreading and causing a large property loss.

Commenting on the fires last night, Chief Cummings declared that eight of the twenty-eight fires were caused by persons setting the lawn grass on fire. "The people should be careful and not use the match to clean up their lawns," the chief said. "It is dangerous, especially when the wind is high. Dry grass burns like oil, and once it gets a start it is a difficult matter to prevent it from spreading."

HE WOUNDS HIS WIFE AND KILLS HER LAWYER

Fort Worth, Texas, November 25.—John C. Stokes, a saloon keeper, shot and killed E. Shields, a Dallas attorney, and wounded Mrs. Stokes late today, when the woman and her lawyer went to the Stokes home here to procure an inventory to be used in a suit for divorce. Stokes surrendered. He would make no statement of the circumstances attending the shooting. At the hospital to which Mrs. Stokes was taken it was said her injuries are not serious.

ONE HUNDRED CONVICTS FREED BY GOV. BLEASE

Number Includes 26 Persons Convicted of Murder and 26 Convicted of Manslaughter.

Columbia, S. C., November 25.—One hundred convicts at the state penitentiary and on chaingangs throughout the state were today accorded executive clemency by Governor Cole L. Blease. The number includes twenty-six convicted of murder and twenty-six convicted of manslaughter. One man was granted full pardon, one's sentence was commuted and the others paroled during good behavior.

Governor Blease, in a recent statement, said the convicts are granted clemency that they might eat their Thanksgiving dinners at home with their loved ones.

This is the largest number liberated in any single day by the governor, who since coming into the executive office three years ago has granted nearly 900 pardons, paroles and commutations. On last Thanksgiving day Governor Blease paroled seventy-five.

Your Kidneys Are to Blame

Thousands of men and women as unwell as the result of the kidney failing to filter the blood properly. The dangerous feature of kidney disease consists in its subtle and elusive character, and so insidious are its ravages that many victims do not suspect its existence until the advanced stage have been reached. This is not strange when we consider that the complicated and delicate structure of the kidney is poorly supplied with sensitive nerves. As the function of the kidney is to remove impurities, they are very susceptible to disease, and any disorder affecting them is dangerous, as it causes impure matter to be retained in the blood and affects the whole system. By restoring the kidneys an liver to health and activity, Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Remedy enable these organs to properly perform their functions and free the blood from urinary and biliary poisons. # A Thanksgiving Day Today for 400 Women The Coat Sale of the Season

Our enthusiasm is about to lead us to seeming exaggerations, when it would be better to leave the facts to the statistics of the sale in hand and rest our case with the women of Atlanta who know Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.'s sales and what they stand for.

Four hundred coats make up the sale. There are more than thirty distinct models to choose from, which, when one considers the different colors, it would seem there is a model for every YOU.

But best of all is the fact that we have not been able during the whole season to find more strikingly beautiful and graceful and stylish coats than these that carry with them the greatest savings of the whole season.

They are coats that stand above and out of the ordinary.

Not a disappointing one in the whole lot.

The only question to be answered is---do you need a coat? If you do, and it seems that we are still to have our cold weather, there is but one thing to do the first thing this morning---

Here:

$7.50 For $12.50 and $15 Sport Coats

Snappy and smart in line and trimmings, usually big buttons, finished with belts and big patch pockets; fabrics are Steven's chinchilla cloth, boucles and zibelines, Copenhagen, navy, green and red. They will grace the game Thursday. With these are draped matelasse coats that seem all sleeves, in mahogany, white and brown, lined with peau de cygne. They are $15.00 coats.

$20 For $27.50 $33.50 and $35 Coats

A wealth of these! There are brocaded velours, graceful affairs, copies of imported models, broadtail cloth, Persian cloth, in black and navy. The linings are elegant and colorful, large frog fastenings, collars of some are imitation (coney) mole. $20.00 never did such service. Three-quarter length, kimono sleeves as a rule.

$15 For $19.75 $22.50 and $25 Coats

"Baby Doll" cloth is much in evidence here. It is a very fine jersey cloth in black and navy, also Ural lamb in black, boucles in black and black and white stripes. Choose from half a dozen styles. One notably fine model has a fine panel back outlined with velvet buttons, plush collar and cuffs, brocaded or plain, fasten with rich silk frog, three-quarter length, slightly cut-away. Kimono and set-in sleeves. Self-colored and contrasting colored linings.

$25 For $35, $40 and $45 Coats

Broadtail cloth coats with fox and skunk and moufflon collars and cuffs; Persiana cloth coats; brocaded velours with rich brocaded and plain satin linings. Some show yokes, others set-in sleeves, others with kimono sleeves. One unusually smart model is a Russian blouse; the belt is a 6-inch black silk braid. Coats to exclaim over.

ATLANTA REGRETS DEATH OF FINLEY

Late President of Southern Railway Had Paid Many Visits to City and Was Well Known Here.

The death of President Finley has come as a severe blow to the officials of the Southern Railway company in Atlanta. The head of every department and many of the other officials and clerks knew him personally, and their feelings were those of deep grief on Tuesday when they were given their first notice, which was followed by one from H. W. Miller, of Atlanta, assistant to President Finley. Mr. Miller was in Washington at the time, having gone there for a conference with the head of the road. The blow came as a terrible surprise to him, especially as it came at a time when he expected to be with the president for some time in business and social relations.

Mr. Miller will remain in Washington until funeral arrangements are completed, and will then accompany the body, with hundreds of other officials of the Southern, to its final resting place.

Funeral Plans Not Known Here.
In the Atlanta office, none of the plans for the funeral were known Tuesday night, according to Lauren Foreman, publicity agent for the Southern Railway company here. The men in the local office are awaiting the official announcement of the disposition of the body of their president before taking steps to go to Washington.

President Finley was born in Mississippi, and lived for a number of years in New Orleans, and it is regarded as probable that he will be buried in the south. Officials here expect that the funeral train will come to Atlanta, and in that case many of them will wait and join the party on its arrival, and will accompany the body as an escort of honor.

In case the funeral and interment are held in the north, many of the more prominent officials will leave Atlanta to attend the services as soon as the announcement is made of their arrangements.

President Finley was more to Atlanta than merely a name and a figure at the head of a giant railroad line. Time and again business trips and social and other calls have brought him here. On those occasions he renewed the many acquaintances he made while located here as commissioner for the old railway and steamship association.

Here Several Times.
His last visit to Atlanta was during the spring of the present year, when he came to address the students at the Georgia School of Technology. Since that time he has been through Atlanta on more than one occasion, but had not had time to leave his private car. On those occasions he renewed the many acquaintances he made while located here as commissioner for the old railway and steamship association.

Among Atlanta business men, the death of President Finley is looked upon as a loss not only to the railroad lines, but to the entire South, in which he was born and reared, and for which he was always eager to give his time and means.

Numbers of tributes were paid him Tuesday. Officials of the Atlanta office, business men who knew what Mr. Finley had accomplished for this section, spoke of the blow to the South in his death. One of a number of such tributes was paid the dead president by Colonel A. E. Andrews, of Raleigh, N. C., first vice president of the Southern Railway company, who was passing through Atlanta when the news reached here.

"The death of President Finley is not only a great loss to the Southern Railway company," said Colonel Andrews, "it is equally as great a loss to the South and its people, for in all of his efforts he was working as much for his native section as he was for the railway."

PRESIDENT W. W. FINLEY, Of the Southern railway, who died suddenly Tuesday morning at his home in Washington.

Colonel Andrews was on his way to Birmingham to attend an important board meeting, but on hearing of President Finley's death he immediately left Atlanta on a special train. By the death of Mr. Finley, he is again the ranking official of the Southern Railway company, which place he filled during the interim between the death of the late Samuel Spencer and the election of Mr. Finley as president.

The loss of such a useful man is deplored, and it is a most bitter blow to me personally, for I had a great affection for Mr. Finley. Of him, it can be truly said that he worked himself to death. His only interests outside of considering the welfare of his family were the development of the Southern railway system, the growth of the South, and the betterment of conditions affecting its people.

Leaves For Washington.
Colonel Andrews was on his way to Birmingham to attend an important board meeting, but on hearing of President Finley's death he immediately left Atlanta on a special train. By the death of Mr. Finley, he is again the ranking official of the Southern Railway company, which place he filled during the interim between the death of the late Samuel Spencer and the election of Mr. Finley as president.

On March 3, 1910, the degree of LL. D., was conferred upon Mr. Finley by the Tulane university, of Louisiana, and on June 2, 1910, the same degree was conferred upon him by the State university, of Kentucky.

Worked for Good Roads.
He was vice president and chairman of the executive committee of the American Highway association, which is the clearing house for the good road movement in the United States. He was one of the founders of the organization and through it aided the road movement throughout the South.

During his incumbency Mr. Finley paid much attention to the agricultural and economic development of the South, and was a versatile writer and speaker on problems relating to the material advancement of the country traversed by the lines of which he was head.

14,000 WORKMEN QUIT FOR TWO COMPANIONS
All the Employees of the General Electric Go Out at the Schenectady Plant.

Schenectady, N. Y., November 25.—With more than fourteen thousand employees of the General Electric company voluntarily idle, this city tonight faces an industrial crisis. However, aside from numerous meetings of workmen and orderly crowds in the streets and about the bulletin boards in front of the various labor union meeting halls there is no excitement resulting from today's walkout of nearly all the force of the largest manufacturing plant of its kind in the world.

Throughout the city there was an atmosphere of preparation. In a dozen or more labor headquarters meetings were held and preparations begun for what many fear will be a lengthy struggle. In a central hall heads of the various unions met and discussed ways and means of carrying on a strike, should one be called. Meanwhile the leaders were emphatic in their statements that there is no strike yet. They explained today's walkout as a "protest" of the employees against the company claiming their removal was a part of a policy of retrenchment.

Waiting for Comrades.
The union workers are looking for shorter hours or more pay; they point out, but correction of what they claim to be an unjust discrimination against two of their members, Frank L. Dujay and Miss Mabel Leslie, both of whom have been active in union circles, the two were laid off recently, the company claiming their removal was a part of a policy of retrenchment.

The union workers, however, assert the laying off of the two was due to their various objections, the tribute they also claim that the receipts for the current month exceed by more than $1,000,000 the receipts for November 1912.

Company Won't Yield.

With Words You Can Really Hear, Madame Hartley Delights Audience

Miss Margaret Elizabeth Stillwell Wins Ovation by Her Expressive Piano Solos and Her Work as Accompanist.

MISS MARGARET ELIZABETH STILLWELL.

Found—A concert singer who will "put across" her words so that her audience can hear perfectly every line and syllable. A rare artist indeed! That was the unanimous verdict of an appreciative audience of music lovers who heard Madame Sybil Owen-Hartley in her first Atlanta concert Tuesday night at Cable hall. Her enunciation was the clearest that has been heard on the concert stage in Atlanta for many months.

When she rendered the old English "Shepherd Song" by Purcell, she told you all about the meadows and the sheep, the brooks and the nymphs. When she sang Henschel's "Morning Hymn," you heard and felt her every word of praise for nature in the glory of the morning sunshine. And when she sang her "Love's Philosophy," you could understand the emotion and doubt and love conveyed simply by the student of music to understand.

Miss Stillwell Applauded.
Miss Margaret Elizabeth Stillwell, who assisted Madame Hartley as accompanist and piano soloist, received an ovation from the audience. She rendered a very difficult polonaise from Liszt that called for a wide range of ability and execution of which she was fully capable. Her accompaniment work was also very expressive and a real treat to the audience.

W. W. FINLEY.

News of the death of W. W. Finley, president of the Southern railway, will be received with sorrow throughout the country.

It is said by those who knew him best that he literally worked himself to death.

The intense commercial environment of our age, Moloch-like, demands victims, and President Finley was one of them.

President W. W. Finley succeeded Samuel Spencer as president of the Southern at a time when the railways of this country were confronted by a desperate situation.

The joint result of their own folly and the conscienceless raids of demagoguery.

Problems of administration and of finance confronted the new president. During his incumbency the company faced more than one crisis.

With rare ability and courage he handled the situation, putting the system on a firm foundation and placing it among the great railroad systems of the world.

His services were rendered from "love of the day's work" and pride in a task well discharged.

He wrought wonderfully well for the railroad development of the south and for the larger development of the section.

His vision was broad and he saw the destiny waiting for the great property of which he was for so long the guiding genius.

It will be missed, not only by the company over which he presided with such eminent success, but by the whole country, and especially by the south.

THE RAILROADS SHOW CAUSE.

A new epoch for the nation is involved in the hearing, now in process before the interstate commerce commission, over the right of the railroads east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers to make a slight increase in their freight tariffs.

The other day representatives of the carriers appeared before the commission. They submitted and still are submitting exhaustive data supporting their contention.

Their claim is that revenue has run far below expenditure, and that the gap is constantly widening.

They point to increased operating expenses, mainly wages. They declare that unless they are granted relief, the safety of life on the rail will be further imperiled and traffic the country over will be penalized.

The petition now made is a renewal of efforts several months ago to a similar end, then denied by the commission with authority to reopen at a later date.

The railroads are now in embarrassing plight through their own fault. They have sown the wind. They are reaping the whirlwind.

The thing to be remembered is that, the country is in danger of reaping the whirlwind along with them, and that steps must be taken accordingly.

The era of railroad debauchery is one of the most humiliating chapters in the industrial history of America.

The juggling of railroads as Wall street pawns, instead of legitimate transportation companies; the diversion of the proceeds of bond and stock issues; financial pyramiding; ignoring of the public and glorification of the financial buccaneer. The courts in the indictment are so familiar that it is needless to recount them to a tired public.

But the railroad chickens have come home to roost and the country generally threatens to be the sufferer. State and federal commissions, mindful of the past, are reluctant to grant authority for increase in tariffs.

Investors hold off until they are certain their money will draw reasonable dividends. The railroads find it almost impossible to float their securities save on terms that are usurious. And unless money is forthcoming roadbeds will still further deteriorate, rolling stock will become antiquated, motive power will fall and trackage facilities will shrink even beyond their present dangerously inadequate proportions.

And any or all of these menaces would be calamities to American business.

That is why the carriers are appealing for authority to make their incomes stable and attractive to investors. The one and only understanding on which such authority can be forthcoming is that there will be no more of the old, disreputable practice of legalized piracy. The interstate and the state commissions must exact definite guarantees to that end.

That done, we believe American business men, as a body, sufficiently reasonable to protect their own interests by allowing a reasonable advance.

A feature to be remembered is that should these increases be authorized there will be turned loose in all industrial and economic channels in this country a sum estimated at one billion dollars, the amount required to modernize America's railroads. And a billion dollars in circulation at this time means a prosperity as yet unexampled in America's history.

A Story of the Moment By WALT MASON. The Famous Prose Poet.

NO ENCOURAGEMENT.

"Somebody in this neighborhood was lifting up his voice in song at an early hour this morning," remarked the professor, "and I have the idea that you are the guilty party. Such a thing is never heard of here, and if there's any more of it I'll complain to the police. I get my best sleep in the early morning, and I don't propose to have it ruined in such a manner."

"That's always the way," complained the new brood, "we best as sure as a fellow tries to live up to the helpful things he reads in the magazines, he gets into trouble. Last evening my Aunt Julia handed me a periodical she had been reading, and told me to make it up, and improve my mind. She said it was the best thing I ever saw, and would build up my character and make me a credit to the race. So I read an editorial which explained that the really efficient man enjoys his work. If you hear a man singing contentedly in the street, or in a trial, you may be sure that his heart is in it, and such a man is sure to succeed."

"It was a well written editorial and it made a great impression upon me, and I made up my mind right there to put some music into my work thereafter. The next morning I went out to milk the cows this morning I began singing Emmett's 'Cuckoo Song.' In my younger days I used to be strong on the 'Cuckoo Song,' especially in the yodeling part, and people traveled long distances to hear me sing it. I was sure that I had it long time, and the damper in my throat doesn't work just right. I don't insist that the singing I did this morning was first-class, but I was doing my best, and my intentions were the best in the world. I felt that I could get back to my old form in two or three mornings if permitted to exercise my larynx in peace, but that sweet boon was denied me."

"I was yodeling to beat the band, and really enjoying my work. The editorial I really enjoyed, and I was sure that I spoke of was right in theory. But just when I was most interested in my work a quart bottle grazed my head and smashed against the wall of the cowshed, and when I looked around to see where it had come from, I saw a young fellow in a white shirt and a red room overlooks our back yard, and he had a fair shot at me. The next bottle he threw was of the soda pop variety. It weighed a pound and it caught me in the ribs. The third bottle was a brick, and it hit me on the head. I was thrown out of my house, and I was lying on the ground, and when the bombardment was over our yard looked as though a wagonload of crockery had been struck by lightning."

"I have been hearing about that melody of mine ever since. Even Aunt Julia was mad, and when she came down stairs she told me that the next time I had an attack of the colic she hoped I'd take painkiller for it, instead of shrieking around the back yard like an Indian being chased by a steam train. Then Aunt Julia came along with a shotgun, and said he was sure a laughing hyena had escaped from the circus that was in town the day before. He heard the brute howling under his window, he said, and he felt better. He thought the circus proprietors should be prosecuted for letting their pesty wild animals run loose."

"Several weeks ago I read in one of my aunt's sunshine papers that we should all get up and sing to people in distress. The next day I was going along the street looking for somebody in distress, and presently I saw a man's hat blown off. The man, who was fat and short winded, had the time of his life chasing it. He went straight up to the man whose hat he had blown off, and he had it a dozen times, but the blamed hat would dodge and scot away in a new direction. Finally he got it, and then leaned against a post to mop his brow and get his wind back, and he happened to see me. He swung his right in my jaw and lifted me off my feet, saying he wouldn't stand any jollifying from a yahoo who wouldn't lend a hand to stop the infernal runaway hat. I started in to punch his nose, but he held up his hand and said never let it be said that a workmanlike job when the police came up. So you see, professor, that there isn't much encouragement for the man who tries to do the right thing."

WHAT OGLETHORPE MEANS.

The sponsors for the revival of Oglethorpe university do not appeal to Atlanta on abstract or sentimental grounds.

The call is to civic pride, prestige, and the pocketbook.

These slogans should be sufficient to bring response both from those who originally subscribed to the fund and from Atlantans who did not then have the opportunity to contribute.

What Princeton is to the town of that name, and Harvard to Boston, and Yale to New Haven, and Cornell to Ithaca, Oglethorpe will be to Atlanta.

On the financial side the accession of such an institution means much for the city. It is estimated that from 800 to 1,000 students will be in attendance. The faculty will be large. Each individual among these will be a spender. The university itself will have a considerable sum monthly to disburse among our merchants.

When the revival of Oglethorpe was first broached the people of Atlanta subscribed $265,000 toward the project. Technical obstacles only prevented its then consummation.

The great majority of these subscribers still live in Atlanta. The reasons that impelled them to subscribe then are stronger now. They have the inspiration of the plucky fight by which the sponsors of the university have, without parade or ostentation, raised a sum total of $300,000. They have before them the example of other southern cities. They have the spur of the knowledge that a dozen other cities will eagerly take over the movement if Atlanta falls down. But Atlanta never falls down.

All denominations and people outside of denominations will participate in this enterprise. For the institution will be non-denominational in its matriculation requirements and operations.

The city that raised more than $70,000 in a day for the Shriners can raise $180,000 in a few days for Oglethorpe university. For 70 Atlantans have already contributed $70,000. The remainder between that sum and $265,000 will clinch the opportunity.

Let Atlanta be prepared to meet more than half-way the committee that will soon inaugurate its campaign under the seasoned generalship of Captain James W. English.

SICKNESS AND YOUR WAGE.

The Child Welfare Exhibit which opens December 1 at the old Leyden house has a pocketbook significance to the people of Atlanta.

A large number of children die in Atlanta each year before reaching the first anniversary of their birth. Putting out of consideration human anguish, the economic loss there represented is tremendous. It is estimated that nearly or quite a third of these deaths can be prevented. It requires trained intelligence for the work of prevention. The welfare exhibit shows the way to mothers and fathers.

The exhibit also indicates methods for early detection of disease and defects in children. It shows how, by spotting the first symptoms of disease, you can forestall its development and save money in doctors' bills. If the juvenile diseases that are preventable were held in control in Atlanta the aggregate saving would be hundreds of thousands of dollars each year. The pay envelope of the average wage-earner would be considerably fatter.

The primary appeal of the display is, of course, to those intimate paternal and maternal instincts that want to give the child a square deal. But the financial side is not to be overlooked.

The prevention of sickness is only one of the phases touched by the welfare exhibit. Every father and mother, every citizen of Atlanta has a personal interest in visiting the display that opens on the 1st.

TURKEY SAUCES.

One of the best measures of a woman's ability as a cook is her ingenuity in serving the food she has prepared. It is a praiseworthy achievement to always be able to send the proper sauce with various foods.

You will want cranberry sauce with the turkey, but some other as well will add zest and refreshment to the too dry meats of this fowl. One of the most appropriate sauces is made from the giblets; the neck, heart, liver and gizzard are boiled with a pint of water until they become quite tender. Chop these, but discard the neck, strain the liquor in the roasting pan and add it to that of the giblets. Return the chopped meat to this and season. Add butter and cream and thicken a very little.

Celery is delicious with all fowl and a sauce from it is rich and piquant; slice four heads of celery in small pieces and boil two or three minutes in salted water. Drain and put in a clean sauce pan with enough veal or beef broth to cover it. Season with a blade of mace, salt and pepper and cook until the celery is tender. Make a thick white sauce, with two ounces of butter and one ounce of flour, and add together and mixed smooth with a cup of cream. Mix in the celery and keep hot until wanted, but do not let it boil after the sauce is added.

If any turkey remains after the big dinner it is very good reheated in sauce. One for dark meat is called Macedoine sauce; melt two tablespoons of butter and add one tablespoon of flour. Brown this, but do not let it scorch. As browned flour will thicken nothing dissolve four tablespoons of flour in a little milk, stirring it until a smooth batter results. Add two cups of meat broth. Heat another pint of the broth to the boiling point, add the browned flour and butter to the batter of flour and milk and stir this into the boiling broth. Desired, when seasoning, add a little onion. Put the cold chopped turkey meat in this and cook quickly until the right thickness. The usual way of serving this is with buttered toast.

FAVORITE RECIPES OF DISTINGUISHED WOMEN By MRS. CHARLES G. EDWARDS. Wife of Representative Edwards of Georgia.

Next to the plain dry dressing for turkeys and other poultry, that which is made with oysters is the most popular, possibly because it is so easy to prepare.

Oyster Dressing. For a sixteen-pound turkey take twenty-five oysters, 1 tablespoon of butter, 1 quart of stale bread crumbs, 1-2 a small onion, 1 teaspoon of salt, 1 tablespoon of minced parsley, and pepper to taste.

Drain the oysters, add them to the bread crumbs and mix in the butter, parsley, salt, pepper and onion. Fill the turkey and bake in the customary manner.

Chestnut Dressing. A good chestnut dressing is made by cooking a quart of the large chestnuts in boiling water until the skins are loosened. Remove the brown skins, again put into boiling water and cook until tender. While still hot run through a coarse sieve or colander. Mix with the stems a few tablespoons of crumbs and two tablespoons of melted butter. Season with salt and pepper, moisten with a little sweet cream and fill the turkey, taking care not to press the dressing in too closely.

Potato Dressing. There is still another dressing, the potato dressing, which is made by mixing together the following: Two cups of hot mashed potatoes, yolks of two eggs, one tablespoon each of chopped parsley and butter, one teaspoon each of onion juice and salt, four tablespoons of cream and about one-third of a teaspoon of pepper. Beat well.

Curious Tales. (From The Chicago News.)

Antoine France once agreed to write an essay on Moliere. He repeatedly broke his promise to his publisher, who finally threatened him with legal proceedings unless a certain number of pages were delivered by a specified time. France hurried off to his lawyer, who was none other than Raymond Poincare, now president. M. Poincare heard his story and said that the author would better comply with the publisher's demand, "it's impossible," said France. "But you're a gentleman," said the publisher. "I have infinite patience. I can't possibly do it in the time," said France. "Nevertheless begin," replied the advocate, "and we'll see." So Poincare dictated the first sentence, "Moliere is a Parisian," and added, "Go on from there." France was complacent, perhaps inspired by the suggestion of the words, and the brilliant piece of criticism was easily done in time.

Chance has saved the world some of its most precious books and manuscripts. The chief treasure of a museum at St. Petersburg is the oldest known Greek manuscript of the New Testament, which was about to be burned by the monks of a Syrian monastery, when, by a lucky chance, one of the priests, struck with the antiquity of the manuscript, interfered in time to save what had been thought to be valueless. The magna charta, which is carefully guarded in a glass case in the British museum, was saved from destruction by Sir Robert Cotton, who so the story goes, one day had entered his tailor's shop precisely at the moment when the knight of the scissors was about to cut up for patterns the ancient looking document with its many imposing seals attached.

Among the extraordinary frauds which have been perpetrated was one put into operation by a company of schemers who told a confiding public that many fortunes were to be made by importing into England compressed dried grapes from Spain, Italy and elsewhere, then saturating them with good English water and making wine from them. It was stated in the prospecting that dried grapes could be imported at such a cheap rate that by the making of a few gallons of produce an equal quantity of wine as good as that made abroad. Thousands of pounds were subscribed by the British public, who firmly believed in the idea until the scheme

Farmers Shy of Innovations. (From The Tifton Gazette.)

The statement from Quitman that the first rural mail carrier appointed in the United States was J. E. Fonder, of that place, recalls the difficulty experienced in getting rural mail carriers or in persuading people to petition for rural mail routes when they were first established. Mr. Fonder was a pioneer in his work, and for some time employed in the Gazette's mechanical department. Rural free delivery mail route, No. 1, at Tifton, was established through the efforts of Congressman Griggs soon after the route was put on at Quitman.

Mr. Fonder agreed to take the position as carrier on the Tifton route, but when a petition was circulated among the people along the proposed route, several refused to sign it because they thought it would increase their taxes. Owing largely to the efforts of Mr. Sellars the route was finally put on and now the people cannot get enough free delivery. It is singular that nearly every people has to be put on over their protest.

The World's Mysteries WERE THERE WHITE INDIANS?

The North American Indians have been the subject of numerous popular fallacies, some of which have gained worldwide currency. One of the most interesting of these stories is that of the White or Welsh Indians. It is to the effect that the White Indians were the descendants of a colony of Welsh founded about A. D. 1170 by Prince Madoc—well known from Southey's poem, James Mooney, who has made a careful study of the Indian, traces the development of this story from statements in an article in "The Turkish Spy" published in London about 1730.

At first these Welsh Indians, who were subsequently described as speaking Welsh, possessing Welsh Bibles, beads, crucifixes, etc., are placed near the Atlantic coast and identified with the Tuscaroras, an Iroquoian tribe, but by 1776 they had retreated inland to the headwaters of the Missouri. A few years later they were far up the Red river, continuing as time went on to recede farther and farther westward, being identified successively with the Mandan, in whose language Catlin thought he detected a Welsh element; the Moqui Pueblo tribe of northeastern Arizona, and the Modocs, of southwestern Oregon, until at last they vanished over the waters of the Pacific ocean.

The following is an account of these White Indians as given in a narrative of Captain Isaac Stuart, of the Provincial Cavalry of South Carolina in March, 1752. "I was taken prisoner in a party of Welsh, who were ward of Fort Pitt about eighteen years ago and carried to the Wabash with other white men. My companions were executed, but I was spared and was taken with an Indian tribe westward, crossing the Mississippi river near the Red river.

"Here we came to a nation of Indians remarkably white and whose hair was of a reddish color, at least, mostly so. They lived on a small river which emptied into the Red river, which they called the River Post. Accompanying our party was a Welshman who much to the man's amazement, he found this white Indian tribe spoke a language very similar to his own."

Upon inquiry the chief men of the town informed the Welshman that the forefathers of this white tribe had sailed from the west of England in London about 1170, to the west of the Missouri and landed on the east side of the Missouri, does not rest on as good authority as the Spanish taking possession of the country, they then withdrew west of the Mississippi, and as a proof of what they ad-

CUT OUT THE "I" By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS.

The greatest word in all the language of achievement is the little three-letter word, C-A-N. A man grows because of what he feels and knows in his heart and in his mind that he CAN. But the weakest word in all the language of words—C-A-N-A-I-T.

When you think that you CAN'T, just cut out the "I" and you CAN.

People are led by their masters. Sometimes these masters are Nerves, sometimes Stomachs, sometimes some infirmity, sometimes Imagination. But when a man is led by these things he is led by the wrong things. He CAN'T do are the things that he decides not to do.

WHOLE DAY SPENT ON SCHOOL BOOKS

State Board of Education Holds Long Session, but Has Not Yet Reached Any Final Decision.

After a session lasting from 10 o'clock in the morning until nearly 7 o'clock in the afternoon, the state school book commission, otherwise known as the state board of education, was scarcely any nearer to selecting the text books for the public schools for the ensuing five years than when they started. It will probably be late this afternoon before the selections can be announced.

The work of selecting books this year bristles with extraordinary difficulties because of the fact that there is to be a selection not only of common school books, but also of texts for the high schools.

There is no lack of competition on the part of the publishers. Thirty-eight different publishers submitted bids to the board Tuesday afternoon for which they stand responsible.

Before the meeting of the commission, there was a meeting of the sub-commission of educators, and their respective reports in typewritten form were submitted to the members of the board. The members of the sub-commission are L. E. Elrod, of Jackson county; E. B. Gresham, of Burke county; G. W. Brindle, of Spalding county; J. M. Colburn, of Americus, and J. F. Scarborough, of Columbus.

In speaking of the work done Tuesday, State Superintendent Brittain said:

"I am not at liberty to give out any of the results that we reached at the meeting. We made several tentative selections of books, but they are liable to be changed tomorrow. I am sure that we are not more than one-third done with our work. We will meet at 9:30 o'clock in the morning for the completion of our labors."

The fact that we have to make an entirely new selection of high school books this year, of course, adds immensely to our task. I believe we will be able to come to a conclusion in another day's meeting."

The members of the state board of education are Governor Slaton and Superintendent Brittain, ex-officio; Walter H. Steele, of Wilkes county; F. Dahlonega, of Burke county; and T. Woolf, of Athens.

EMIL STAHL IS DEAD.

His End Causes Postponement of Turners' Dance.

Because of the sudden death of Emil Stahl, a pioneer and prominent citizen in Atlanta, the Turners' dance at his home, 75 Madison and Turner avenue, the Atlanta Turn Verein family, which was to have been held at the Turn Verein hall, 26 1/2 South Pryor street, has been postponed by the chairman, until Tuesday evening.

Emil Stahl was reaching his sixtieth year when death came suddenly and unexpectedly Tuesday morning. He had been a resident in Atlanta for nearly thirty years. Associated in business with Louis Koch, also widely known in Atlanta, he had made many friends in the business world as well as socially. By all who knew him and came in contact with him, Emil Stahl was liked and appreciated for his business and contentment and disposition and manners. The funeral will be conducted at Harry Poole's undertaking parlors, 107 West Peachtree street, this afternoon. Interment in Oakland.

TAXICAB RATES WILL BE DISCUSSED TODAY

Because of the fact that Thursday—the regular meeting day of the ordinance committee—is a holiday, Chairman Roy Abernathy has called a meeting for this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

One of the most important matters to come before the committee will be the ordinance by Chairman Abernathy regulating taxicab rates. The matter has been discussed with some of the city fathers and a tentative schedule has been agreed on. The committee also wants to hear from every taxicab owner in the city.

The ordinance drawn by Alderman I. S. Baggett to prohibit smoking in theaters will be amended, it is understood, so as not to interfere with theaters catering to men only.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE BUILDING NEARLY READY

Several Floors of Structure Have Already Been Leased at Good Rentals.

The Chamber of Commerce building is expected to be ready for tenants some time during the month of January and several floors have already been leased.

The Atlanta Chamber of Commerce takes the second floor, for which it pays a good round sum. The Atlanta freight bureau, the Merchants and Manufacturers association, the Atlanta Credit Men's association and the adjustment bureau of that association have together leased practically all of the third floor. The convention bureau has taken a suite of rooms on the fourth floor, and a large real estate firm has taken quarters on the fourth floor. The directors expect that the Ad. Men's club and other commercial organizations will follow suit.

The freight bureau, Merchants and Manufacturers association and Credit Men's association will together employ about twenty-five men, with three or four bureaus whose operations extend to nearly 200,000 firms scattered through the southern states. Harry T. Moore, secretary of these associations, will direct the activities.

The presidents of these organizations are A. Parker, for the freight bureau; J. K. Orr, for the Merchants and Manufacturers association; and H. C. Thorne, for the Credit Men's association. The convention bureau is presided over by Ivan E. Allen as president, with Fred Houser as secretary in charge of the active work. They are backed by very strong boards of business men.

The chamber of commerce has had a number of inquiries for stores and offices, and it is expected that the whole space will be let in a short time. The plans are in charge of W. G. Cooper, secretary, at the chamber of commerce, 505 Empire building.

RAY DIDN'T KNOW NAME OF WOMAN HE MARRIED

David Ray, a youth of 20, solicited the aid of recorder's court to learn the identity of his wife yesterday afternoon when she was arraigned before Judge Broyles.

Mrs. Ray, a rather pretty girl of 19, had a fight with her husband previous to a charge of disorderly conduct. Her husband had also been arrested on charges which grew from a fight in front of the Bijou theater.

When the young husband was called to deliver testimony, his first statement shook the court into surprise:

"Judge, I want you to help me. I'd like to know just exactly who my wife is. We've been married for several months, now, and honest to goodness, your honor, I don't any more know who she is than I know the man in the moon."

Then he explained that he had married her under a false name. "That next day she received letters under the name of Carter, Cartrell and various other cognomes in the afternoon, which she never opened. I expressed the wife for a revelation of her identity."

Until this man gets a divorce, she answered haughtily, "my name is Ray, and that's all necessary."

The judge advised Ray to hire a detective.

ATLANTA TAX RETURNS SHOW $19,000,000 GAIN

From Unofficial Figures Increase Is $2,000,000 More Than First Anticipated.

It was learned yesterday through an unofficial source that Atlanta's tax returns for 1913 will show an increase of approximately $19,000,000. City officials say that the increase is about $2,000,000 more than was anticipated in the final revision of the city budget.

These figures verify the approximate estimates published in The Constitution a little more than three weeks ago. George Beauchamp, city tax receiver, said Tuesday that he had not completed his compilation of the figures. He has furnished a partial statement to Mayor Woodward and Charles W. Smith, chairman of the tax committee. Mayor Woodward will not make the figures known until the books are balanced.

According to unofficial information, the tax assessments aggregate $173,327,677, against $184,872,947, the real and personal assessments amount to about $153,320,000. About $14,000,000 represents assessments against public utility corporations. Increased assessments on private property are said to be $16,518,622. State Comptroller General Wright's figures show approximately an increase of $2,900,000 in utility corporations.

After the performance they stopped for him and Mrs. Shewmake went into the store for him and found him on the floor, in a half-sitting position, dead. A small gash in the back of his head had apparently been made, when he fell, by striking some sharp corner of the building. Physicians were called, but although the body was warm, nothing could be done for him. Last he was apparently in the best of health and a cheerful frame of mind when he left the party at his store and there was no suspicion of anything.

CONLEY WILL BE TRIED DURING JANUARY TERM

Negro Factory Sweeper Appears in Court in Order to Have the Time Set.

Jim Conley, the negro factory sweeper who was a witness against Leo Frank in his trial for the murder of Mary Phagan, will be tried during the January term of the criminal court of Fulton county.

This was made possible Tuesday when Conley, ready for trial, appeared before Judge Ben Hill, of the superior court, and, through his attorney, demanded trial.

Conley was brought into court from the prisoners' bullpen, looking smug and all smiles. So soon as court was officially opened, Solicitor General Dorsey called the court's attention to the fact that the negro had appeared in court once before for trial.

Judge Hill then said:

"I know that the negro is ready for such trial as shall be given him, but the court is not. I do not believe—"

At this point Attorney William Smith, the negro's legal advisor, arose and filed formal demand for trial.

"I will not do that," said the court. "I appreciate that your formal demand takes the matter of this man's trial out of my hands, but I am still of the opinion that the trial should go over until the Frank retrial motion, now before the supreme court, has been disposed of."

Attorney Smith declared that he did not wish to force the negro's trial on the court, but that, in justice to his client, he had filed motion for trial so that his client would know where he stood.

Conley will be tried at the next regular session of Judge Hill's court, which opens on January 1.

The case will resolve itself into a legal argument between Attorney Smith and Solicitor General Dorsey when the case appears for trial, as the negro, through the formal demand filed Tuesday, waived right of appeal and stands ready to plead to the two indictments hanging over his head. It will remain with the court whether the negro shall be sentenced for a misdemeanor or a felony.

Healthy, Wrinkle-Free Skin Easy to Have

(From The Woman Beautiful)
A dull, in the muddy complexion, or an over-dried, pimply or freckled skin can be a quite simple, harmless and inexpensive method, by using a skin cream of the right kind and using it in the morning and evening. One ounce of common mercuric iodine, sold by druggists generally, will remove the most unsightly complexion in from one to two weeks. It is a simple, absolute power. The water is added in the colored bag of this skin cream which hides the freckles and the skin is gradually bleached out, almost invisible patches. This is done so gently there is no itching and no trace is left on the skin except that of a healthy skin. The wax is smeared on like oil cream before retiring, and is washed off in the morning with warm water. If the skin be wrinkled or saggy a bath made by dissolving 1 or 2 powdered aspirin in 1 pt. witch hazel will be found most effective. Combine both aspirin and iodine, and you will get the best of both. This lightens the skin and gives up its supporting muscles. Advertisement

YELLOW JACKETS MUST FIGHT HARD

Clemson Tigers Will Prove Hard Nut to Crack—The Dope Is Even—The Line-Ups Are Uncertain.

The Tech Yellow Jackets have got a real battle on their hands tomorrow afternoon at Grant field when they line up against the Clemson Tigers at 2:30 o'clock.

The rivalry between Tech and Clemson has always been keen, but the rivalry between the two coaches, Heisman and Williams, is just as keen. Williams leads Heisman in victories.

Realizing the rivalry that exists between their coaches, and defending the honor of their schools as well, the two elevens are certain to furnish Atlanta football fans with a battle of a most successful football season.

A month ago, Tech would have been picked as an easy winner. Today, there is no fair-minded dopester, unless he is partisan, who would venture an opinion of the outcome.

Everyone Puzzled.

The dopester and the fan is not the only one who is puzzled. Even the players who have fought both elevens and might in the thick of the fray have seen the strength and weakness of the two elevens and give a definite answer.

Coaches, experienced football men and others who make their livelihood from this game take the same viewpoint as the dopesters. It is the hardest game to dope that has been worked in recent years.

Just how the teams will stack up in weight, height, speed and experience remains to be seen. There is no real dope at hand on these points and it is the absence of such dope that makes it the hardest to figure out the contest.

Comparative score done for this game is poor. Comparing what Clemson did a month ago and what she will do now is much like comparing black with white. There is a measure, applies to the jackets.

Strongest Line-Up.

It is one safe bet, however, that the two elevens will trot out on the field to muster this season, and with every man jack of them in the very best of condition.

The line-ups of the two teams are doubtful. Neither coach seems to be able to make up his mind as to just who he will use at the start of the game.

The jackets will hold a signal drill this afternoon. They held one yesterday afternoon. Monday they held their last scrimmage, and four Tech players—Loeb, Means and Thomson—engaged in their final scrimmage on Grant field.

Loeb held her last scrimmage Monday afternoon. Tuesday was devoted to a signal practice. This morning the jackets will have a final practice. They will probably stop off at Augusta for rest before coming on to Atlanta, and will run through signals there.

Students Coming.

The Clemson student body is coming to the game on a special train that will arrive here shortly before noon on Thursday morning. The train will be headed by the Clemson student body.

THREE LINE STARS LOST TO HARVARD

O'Brien, Hitchcock and Storer of Championship Eleven Graduate This Term.

New York, November 25.—Supremacy among football teams of the Harvard-Yale football triangle having been settled for this year, follows of the sport are taking stock of the football line-up that will be left next year.

Harvard, this year's champion, will lose three valuable members of the line—Storer, Hitchcock and O'Brien—by graduation, but Frickley and other stars are all saved for at least another year.

Bigger inroads will be made by graduation at Yale, with the loss of Captain Aetchem, Marting, the star center, Talbot, Warren, Pendleton and Avery.

From the freshman team Princeton promises to draw better material than will be the case at Harvard and Yale. Most of the Princeton varsity men will return and be augmented by Driggs, the captain, and other players, and Hoge from the line and two likely ends.

THIRTY-TWO ENTRIES FOR BIG ROAD RACE

Thirty-two entries will line up at the starting line in front of the Auburn avenue clubhouse of the Atlanta Athletic club Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

The entry list closed Monday night, and these entries, representing the Atlanta Athletic club, Marist college, Catholic American club, S. Y. L. and Freshman teams, will compete. There are also a few unattached entries.

The start was at first scheduled for 7:30 o'clock, but owing to the Tech-Yale football game at that time it was postponed until 10 o'clock. But this game, entrants from those two teams would have probably have come and the same is true of Georgia Tech.

Gold, bronze and silver medals will be awarded to the first, second and third men, respectively, and to the team showing the smallest number of laps. A handsome silver trophy will be awarded.

The race will be made from in front of the clubhouse on Auburn avenue, past the Piedmont avenue, north on Peachtree street, to the intersection of Peachtree street and Peachtree avenue and back to the clubhouse.

The complete list of entrants, officials and all other details will be announced in the Constitution tomorrow morning.

TECH HIGH'S CLAIMS. Regards Her Eleven Claimant to State Prep Honors.

The following race, scheduled by the Constitution, will be held at Grant field, Atlanta, Georgia, on Thursday, November 27, 1913, at 10 o'clock.

She has defeated the other eleven claimants to the title of state prep champion. She has defeated the other eleven claimants to the title of state prep champion.

HOOPER LOST PRIZE BY BUT ONE POINT

Boston, November 25.—Harry Hooper, right fielder of the Boston Americans, failed by a single point to win the championship of the American League.

Hooper had a batting average of .329, which would have won him the title. He was only one point away from winning the title.

CITY PREP TITLE. Boys' High and Tech High Meet Turkey Day Morning.

Tomorrow morning at 10:30, and on Grant field, the pennant winner of the city prep league will be decided. The contestants will be the two teams from Tech high and Boys' high, and the best prep game ever witnessed in Atlanta.

These two teams have a perfect record, and there is as much interest centered in this game as there is in the Tech and Georgia Tech game.

M'DONALD WILL LEAD JACKETS

Halfback and Punter Seems Certain to Be Named Captain of 1914 Georgia Tech Football Team.

Alfred McDonald, halfback and punter of the Tech football team, will be named captain of the 1914 eleven.

This announcement, though not official, is made on good authority, and is the logical announcement. He will be a fourth-year man next season, and the only one on the squad.

The graduation of Center Loeb, Halfback Cook, Guard Means and Fullback Thomson, eliminates the only other logical contenders for the place of old leader.

President Wilson Gives Boost To Oglethorpe University Plan

THE WHITE HOUSE WASHINGTON November 24, 1913

My dear Mr. Jacobs: I am very much interested in your campaign for a fund of $250,000 as the local bonus for placing Oglethorpe in Atlanta, and I sincerely hope that the campaign will be altogether successful.

Sincerely yours, Woodrow Wilson

Rev. Thornwell Jacobs, Oglethorpe University, Atlanta, Georgia.

In another letter to Mr. Jacobs on this subject under date of April 22, 1913, President Wilson says: "It was not necessary to tell me the history of Oglethorpe university. The name is as familiar to me, as well as many of the circumstances of the life of the college, as if I were Princeton itself, because of my uncle's association with it in the early days and the interest my father felt in it. I am heartily glad that you are so much encouraged in your plans for its re-founding."

WHITE WOMAN FLOGGED BY SEVEN MASKED MEN

Widow of Metter Gets Warrants for Men She Claims Thrashed Her.

Statesboro, Ga., November 25.—(Special)—Interest was created in Statesboro this morning when it became known that officers had gone to Metter to arrest seven prominent white men on warrants sworn out by Mrs. M. J. Rollison, well known white woman living one mile from Metter, charging assault and battery upon her and her son, who, with his wife, lives in the same house.

According to Fred Lanier solicitor of the city court, if one-half of the woman's story is true, it is one of the most brutal things that ever happened in this county.

Amid sobs, Mrs. Rollison related her story to the solicitor. She says the men came to her home Sunday night and called at the gate. When she arrived one of the number informed her he was an officer, giving his name and they wanted to search her house to which she consented. Holding a lamp, she welcomed the men, but failed to see the officer named.

"They asked me for my gun," she said, "and I told them there was not a gun on the place. My son and his wife were in the next room and they went in there and when the wife started to get out of bed she was knocked back."

"My son and I were taken from the house and brutally whipped with a buggy trace until I was almost unable to get up. My son is still in bed. I was on the ground and would not get up. They thought they had killed me. One of them went to the house and got a bucket of water and poured it on me. On my failure to get up, they left me lying there, and in their haste, left the piece of trace which I have. In the confusion they carried nothing for masks, letting them come from over their faces and I recognized every one of them.

When I went to the station to come to Statesboro one of them was there and said to me, 'If you say me and my wife were in the next room and you have played a part in this, you will have to get out of bed she was a knocker back.'

"I had not accused him of being connected with it. But he was unable to convince how such prominent men could commit such an act."

The solicitor asked Mrs. Rollison what kind of life she had been leading and if it had been such as to warrant the treatment to which she replied.

"The only trouble I know of is a settlement of a crop we made with a land owner. There was a difference and we submitted to arbitration, which was sent against me. My husband died one year ago Sunday. Since they entered my home he was a traveling man and we have lived in several different states and if there was ever aught against me I did not know it. My life has been a moral one and I cannot account for such treatment."

Mrs. Rollison called for the sheriff at 1 o'clock Monday morning and requested him to come and to bring a doctor. She asked a physician at Metter to examine her, but he said if he was to be a witness in court he would not. She also requested the solicitor to have her examined.

DECEMBER COTTON CLOSED AT LOSS

But Other Months Made Gains From One to Five Points—Rallies Followed Early Loss—Spot Quiet.

New York, November 25.—December liquidation unsettled the cotton market during today's early trading, but rallies followed on covering, with the close steady at a net loss of 11 points on December, while other months were from 5 to 5 points higher.

Lower cables than expected, overnight advices from the south, reporting a slack spot demand, and unfavorable trade advices seemed to be responsible for an opening decline in December contracts in New Orleans, owing to the cancellation of notices in that market.

Next Friday will be the first December notice day in the local market, and while the current stock here is only a little more than 30,000 bales, there were rumors that considerable cotton heading in this direction for delivery during the coming month.

Offerings were gradually absorbed, however, and after showing a net loss of from 11 to 14 points, the general list became steadier, although December showed a decline of 11 points.

Covering for the holiday on Thursday, or on a theoretical basis, a recovery movement led to a considerable increase in the short interest, may have been partly responsible for the rally which carried active months about 3 to 8 points net higher during the afternoon.

Spot cotton was in demand placing the crop at 14,430,000 bales and these figures probably represent some of the covering on the part of speculators still coming in to the effect that picking and ginning has been nearly completed.

The south was a moderate seller here early and houses with a leaner stock on hand were among the heavy sellers of the afternoon rally, which was attributed to the fact that the market was still in the hands of the local speculators, although some of the local spot houses were also large buyers.

Notwithstanding the fact that the market was still in the hands of the local speculators, although some of the local spot houses were also large buyers.

Cotton Warehouse Plan For the Southern Cities

N. Y. Exchange May Extend Its System—Alleged It Would Make Cotton Best Collateral in World

New York, November 25.—The committee appointed by the New York Cotton Exchange to consider the extension of the warehouse system of the exchange to southern cities reported in favor of such a plan today.

It is not much doubted that all difficulties can be met and overcome. It will prove a great boon to the whole cotton trade, will prevent corners and manipulations of the market and it will give the owners of the cotton a complete system of examining, certifying and guaranteeing the grades of cotton making it more valuable to the buyer and seller.

Just to Buyer and Seller. The difficulty, however, has been increasing because of constantly un-larging cotton crops, that one place after another offer the necessary facilities of size, safety and availability.

It seems, therefore, a sound business proposition and just to the benefit of the cotton trade that the exchange should extend this well tested system to warehouses in southern cities which offer the necessary facilities of size, safety and availability.

WHEAT MADE JUMP OF ABOUT ONE CENT

Argentine Crop Will Be Short, Is the Prediction, Europe Accepts Offers of Export From Chicago.

Chicago, November 25.—Belief that the Argentine crop will be short and that the consequence there will be a brisk demand from Europe, sent the wheat market soaring today. Prices closed firm at 3-4 to 1-2 net higher.

Other grain finished at an advance—corn at 1-8 and oats 1-32 to 1-4 to 1-32. In provisions the wind-up was the same as last night to a rise of 12-1-2.

European acceptance of export offers from Chicago gave the wheat bulls assurance. So also did Kansas City and Duluth telegrams, telling of activity on the part of foreigners. Moreover, the stocks of unshelled wheat were said to be the highest in years.

transatlantic demand having absorbed shipments as fast as made by way of Buenos Aires. A report from the Argentine harvest commission, however, stated that the Argentine crop was not so good as expected, especially in Missouri, counted against the bear side during the last half of the day. There also were estimates that the feeding of wheat to live stock in Missouri and Oklahoma would be restricted to a national total of 25,000,000 bushels.

Corn showed much firmness on account of the fact that the Argentine crop was not so good as expected, especially in Missouri, counted against the bear side during the last half of the day. GEORGIA CONSUMERS ARE SHORT WEIGHTED

Commissioner Takes Precautions to Prevent Swindling Weights and Measures.

War has been declared on dealers in short weights and measures by State Commissioner of Agriculture J. D. Price. In this connection he said yesterday:

"My attention has been called to the fact that in a number of cases the people of Georgia, consumers of various products that are being shipped into the state, are being deceived with short weights and measures."

"I find sacks of bran supposed to weigh 100 pounds which only weigh 85 or 90, sacks of wheat which weigh 24 pounds, weigh only 22 and 23. Now, a pounds shortage on wheat sacks will cheat the people of Georgia out of hundreds of thousands of dollars per year."

"I have called the attention of a number of prominent dealers to these facts and believe that they will be promptly corrected. It is not the fault of the Georgia dealer, but of the northern and western manufacturer from whom he buys. I think that if he will call his seller's attention to the requirements of the Georgia law and will correct his scales, there need be no trouble in the future."

GET THAT OVERCOAT OUT BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE. "What is so rare as a day in November?" The "whoop" is thus paraphrased— "But when, dear reader, remember—Get that coat out of 'hoop," Before it's too late.

The reason for the above outburst of verse is best condensed in the short, but scintillating statement of the bureau chief who opine that it will be clear and cool today with a possible shower in the afternoon. The temperature is in the 40's.
