SHE KISSED LOVER AS HE WAS DYING FROM HER BULLET

Amid Sobs Eighteen-Year-Old Dora Murff Tells Jury How She Killed Man Who Betrayed Her.

SUNDAY SCHOOL GIRL TILL SHE MET DELHAYE

Miss Murff Says Delhaye Promised to Marry Her, and When He Refused She Took Poison.

Crowley, La., November 29.—"I placed the gun between my brother nd step-father and pulled the trigger; then I jumped from the surrey with my revolver and called to Delaye, who was running, and I fired wice. Then he threw up his hands nd fell, crying, 'Oh, my God!'"

Thus Dora Murff, the 18-year-old irl, who with her step-father, J. S. uval, and half-brother, Allie Duval, s on trial here for the murder of J. I. Delhaye, this afternoon described he slaying of her sweetheart, whom he charged refused to marry her. She lone assumed full responsibility for he killing of Delhaye, despite that ther witnesses had testified that the lder Duval pulled the trigger.

Called Dying Lover "Darling."

After making this statement the girl roke down and between sobs said hat she did not go to town with the ntention of killing her sweetheart, but hat she loved him. She said she ran p to the side of Delhaye, bent over is body and said:

"Darling, you see what you made e do?"

According to the girl's testimony he nswered:

"Hoe the row the best you can, ora, but for God's sake tell the ruth."

Graphically she described the incients leading up to the killing of Delaye, telling the story of her life aftr she became his sweetheart. She aid that after she had called to him wice to come to the surrey, he replied that he wanted nothing further o do with her.

"I saw him reach for his pistol and fired the gun," said she.

Gave Him Last Kiss.

"When I knelt down beside Millard Delhaye) there on the street," conmued the girl, "I did not know what was doing. After I gave him the ast kiss I don't remember anything. ome one picked me up and when I oticed the crowd coming near I ouldn't stand for any one walking ver his body and I just swung the istol around and called out, 'Scatter, ou!' I didn't swear, I know it."

Pointing a finger at the accused, an ttorney for the prosecution asked her f her testimony was not a concerted tory to save the life of James Duval.

"It is not," the girl almost screamed, I swear it."

James Duval followed his stepaughter on the stand and gave practically the same testimony, adding that e did not know for what purpose she vanted the shotgun to be carried in he surrey except for protection.

The night session and the defense closed with the testimony of Allie Duval and Dr. H. C. Webb, the latter describing medicines that he had prescribed for Dora and her condition at the time he was attending her. He testified that the girl told him Delhays was responsible for her downfall.

Judge Campbell announced before adjournment that the trial would be ended Monday night if it took an allnight session. Monday night will be devoted to argument.

Miss Murff told of her acquaintance with Delhaye and her story of how he had promised marriage. She testified that a few days before Delhaye met his death she took poison, but her life was saved by quick work of physicians, and that for 120 hours before Delhaye was killed she neither ate nor slept.

She was a pathetic figure on the stand as she told her story in tones audible only a few feet from her. The state objected strenuously to her relating her past life, one of the features of which was her statement that she had missed going to Sunday school only twice in five years prior to the killing.

"Got the Son of a Gun."

From a woman lying in bed beside a baby a few days old, the prosecution claims to have gained its most damaging testimony. Last night, after a night session of court took place, the judge, jury, lawyers and stenographers went to a room in the Arenue hotel, where lay Mrs. F. A. Leger, proprietress of the hostelry.

"I got the son of a gun," are the words she attributed to J. S. Duvall just after Delhaye fell mortally wounded on a street near her hotel. The state charges that Duvall fired a shotgun from a surrey in which he and Allie Duvall and the girl were riding. Then the girl jumped out and fired a revolver at Delhaye.

U. S. MERCHANT MARINE NEEDED FOR THE CANAL

Washington, November 29.—Upon the existence of an American merchant marine depends the value of the Panama canal to this country, in the opinion of Colonel William L. Siebert, U. S. A. corps of engineers, who addressed the members of the National Geographical society here last night.

"The value of the Panama canal to the United States depends more than anything else upon whether congress enacts such laws as will bring into existence an American merchant marine engaged in foreign commerce," declared Colonel Seibert.

"Now that the canal is nearing completion what are we going to do with it?" asked the colonel. "Shall the markets of the Central American countries be supplied by the United States or by foreign countries? In my humble judgment, that depends upon the action of congress."

Colonel Seibert is in charge of the construction work on the Gatun locks on the isthmus.

ALL IN READINESS FOR BIG CORN SHOW

Week's Program Includes Exhibition Drill at Fort McPherson and Big Street Parade.

Tuesday morning will witness the first arrival of Georgia corn club boys who will be here during the week 1,000 strong, for the third annual Georgia corn show, given under the auspices of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, December 2 to 5.

Atlanta homes have, so far, been opened to 600 of these boys, and it is hoped that further responses, yet to come in, will materially increase this number. Cards from others who will take care of one or two of the boys are expected to be brought in Monday from some of the students of the Boys' High school, Tech High school and Girls' High school; while on Monday, by authority of the board of education, there will be distributed to the children of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades in all the grammar schools, 5,000 more cards with similar request, to be returned in every instance possible on Tuesday morning.

The corn show committee of the chamber of commerce hopes by this means to secure homes for all the boys who come; but if not, some provision will have to be made for the surplus elsewhere.

The chamber of commerce has addressed a letter to its 300 committee members requesting of them just one more service in addition to the many already rendered, before the end of the year, and that is wherever possible that they will take care of two of these corn club boys. Many favorable replies are expected to this letter.

Corn Show Program.

The corn show situation will begin to get lively Wednesday, December 3, when in the afternoon a special dress parade and exhibition drill will be given by the troops of the Seventeenth United States infantry at Fort McPherson. This feature has been arranged for the visiting boys by Colonel J. T. VanOrsdale, and will be especially attractive. Special cars to take the corn club boys to Fort McPherson will leave the capitol at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon as the parade will begin at 3:30. The cars will be furnished the boys free of charge, and will bring them back to the city immediately after the exhibition.

The famous moving picture, "The Dawn of Plenty," secured through Commissioner J. D. Price of the department of agriculture, will be presented for the benefit of the visiting boys and girls at the Grand opera house at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening.

This picture, accompanied by a special lecture, requires about an hour and a half for its presentation. It depicts, in picture form, the history of agriculture and harvesting from the earliest days down to the present time. The visiting boys and girls will be admitted free upon their badges, and tickets will also be sent to the hosts and hostesses who are entertaining the boys.

Parade the Big Feature.

This year's annual corn show parade will far surpass in extent and interest anything of the kind ever seen in Atlanta. It will be held Thursday afternoon, December 4, and will be in charge of Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash, as grand marshal.

This year's parade will consist of three divisions and will stretch through the streets of Atlanta for more than a mile. The first division of the parade will consist of the military and will be in command of General R. K. Evans, U. S. A. It will include the Fifth infantry regiment, Georgia national guard, the Marist college cadets, the cadets of the Georgia Military Academy and a band, together with any other military organizations that may decide to take part.

The second division will be in command of Superintendent W. M. Slaton of Atlanta's schools, and will be composed of 3,000 students of the two high schools and the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the grammar schools; of the boy scouts of Atlanta, Marietta and Decatur, and of the Georgia corn club boys 1,000 strong, with a banner from each of the 100 counties represented, showing the county's record. The Atlanta school boys and the boy scouts will be intermingled with the corn club boys.

The third division will be composed of the automobiles containing the members of the board of education, the mayor and city council, statehouse officers, officers of the Chamber of Commerce and members of the corn show committee.

The parade will assemble promptly at 2:30 o'clock at the Auditorium-Armory, and will move the minute the clock strikes 3. The military will start first, passing in review before the corn club boys, who will fall in behind, and the automobiles will come up in the rear in charge of one of the grand marshal's aides. The line of march will be across the Washington street viaduct to Mitchell street, to Whitehall street, to Peachtree to Houston, to Ivy, to Gilmer, to Washington to the capitol where the parade will be disbanded.

At this corn show there will be a total of approximately 3,000 exhibits, including exhibits by some forty or fifty of the Girls' Canning clubs of the state.

Prizes aggregating approximately $3,000 in cash and articles of value will be awarded to the successful exhibitors, in addition to which diplomas from the state college of agriculture will be presented to all the boys who have made 100 bushels of corn or more on their acre. This presentation will be made by Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the college.

HANDSOME BLONDE SOUGHT BY POLICE

After Losing $200 in Checks and Currency, W. G. Pfingstay Tells Officers He Suspects Woman.

Police and city detectives scoured the city last night in a vain effort to find a clew which would lead to the arrest of a handsome blonde woman of about 30 years of age, following the reported loss of $110 in currency and $98 in checks by W. G. Pfingstay, a well-known Decatur citizen.

Pfingstay appeared at police headquarters early last night and told the police that his pockets had been picked while aboard a Decatur car at about 6:30 o'clock.

"I waited for the car at the corner of Pryor and Alabama streets for ten minutes and when the Decatur car pulled in a large crowd boarded it," asserted Pfingstay.

"I had to stand up in the aisle. Seated just next to where I stood was a stylishly dressed woman. As I remember she wore a dark gray traveling suit. Her hair was light and she had blue eyes.

"The car had not gone more than three blocks when the woman suddenly rang the bell which stopped the car and walked out. The conductor came through a minute afterward. I felt in my pocket for my wallet to pay my fare. It was gone.

"I felt all through my clothes and I guess I created quite a turmoil in the car when I told several men that I had been robbed.

"The last time I remembered having my wallet was just before I boarded the car and I am sure that some one on the car 'frisked' me. I suspect the woman who sat next to me who rode only a short distance, because she nudged up close to me when I was on the platform of the car. In fact, she pushed so close to me that I stepped aside and let her pass. She then went forward and secured a seat which another gentleman relinquished. I came on up the aisle and stood next to her."

For several weeks the detectives have been convinced that a female "dip" is operating in this city. It is stated that only a day or so ago several prominent Atlanta society women had their purses and other valuables taken while shopping in a downtown dry goods store. They, however, did not report their loss to the police, as they did not relish the notoriety. Up until a late hour last night no clew to the handsome blonde had been secured.

TWO FATALLY INJURED AS AUTO TURNS TURTLE

Victims Pulled From Beneath Blazing Car by Five Injured Companions.

Athens, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Luke Floyd, a prominent farmer, and Hall Daniels, both of Madison county, were fatally injured, their physicians say beyond question, when a big car in which they and five others were going from Athens to Danielsville struck a bridge over the Oconee and turned turtle, pinning the two men under it.

The car caught fire and was entirely consumed in the edge of the water, just a few minutes after the five slightly injured men dragged the mangled bodies from beneath the wreckage. The accident occurred about 3 o'clock.

Wife of Sergeant Helps to Capture Intruder in Home

Mrs. Geo. C. Nealy Warns Man to Keep Away From House and Then Phones Husband for Assistance.

Mrs. George C. Nealy, wife of Police Desk Sergeant George Nealy, of No. 187 East Fair street, at 11 o'clock last night displayed great fortitude and presence of mind when, after apprehending an intruder she sounded an alarm which resulted in his arrest.

On hearing a noise which sounded like some one trying to pry open a window, Mrs. Nealy, who was upstairs at the time, looked out the window and saw a man standing on the ground beneath the dining room window making a determined effort to break in. Mrs. Nealy first telephoned her husband at police barracks to send the call officers at once. She then procured a revolver and shouted to the man to go away or she would shoot.

The man was not to be deterred by so mild a threat. He went around to the front of the house and came on the porch, where he endeavored to push in the front door. Mrs. Octavia Nealy, the aged mother of the sergeant, opened the door a little to see who it was. The man forced past her and entered the house.

It was at this instant that Tyler Eason, a roomer who had been asleep upstairs, rushed down the stairs, pistol in hand. He covered the man and held him until Call Officers Cochran and Evans arrived and placed him under arrest.

At police barracks he gave his name as D. J. Haley, 37 years old, a farmer of Woodstock, Ga., and said that he was trying to find his boarding house. He was charged with suspicion until his character could be investigated.

HE JUMPS FROM BRIDGE WITH ROPE 'ROUND NECK

Unknown Makes Determined But Unsuccessful Attempt at Suicide in Rome.

Rome, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) An unknown white man with a rope around his neck tied to the East Rome bridge across the Etowah river leaped from the span tonight with suicidal intent under the glare of an electric light. His actions were noticed by pedestrians, who ran to the spot and dislodged his body from the framework of the bridge in which it had caught before it reached the rope's end.

He tried to cut the rope as he was being pulled to the top, but was unsuccessful. He was carried to a local sanitarium, where he was unconscious late tonight, being still unidentified. Parties are dragging the river for his suit case which he threw over the bridge ahead of him in hope of finding papers of identification.

He is about 50 years of age and is believed to have reached Rome in the early part of the night from Atlanta.

Banker Robin Is Free.

New York, November 29.—Joseph G. Robin, convicted of wrecking the Northern bank, completed his sentence of one year in Blackwell's Island penitentiary today, less a month and twenty-one days deducted for good behavior.

COLYAR ARRESTED ON CHEAT CHARGES

Lawyer Held by Local Detectives to Answer Warrant Sworn Out for Him in Rome, Ga.

A. S. Colyar, principal figure in the famous dictagraph case during the Mary Phagan murder investigation, was arrested by detectives yesterday on a warrant sworn out in Rome, Ga., charging cheating and swindling.

He was carried to police headquarters to await the arrival of Rome officials. He denies the charge emphatically, and declares that he will be promptly freed and cleared. The exact circumstances are not known. The warrant was issued for H. J. Awtry, it is said, whose home is in Rome.

Chief Lanford sated to a Constitution reporter last night shortly after Colyar's detainment that the prisoner had told him that he had committed nothing illegal in Rome, and that his only transaction in that city was the legitimate collection of a lawyer's fee.

Story From Rome.

Rome, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) H. J. Awtrey, of Chicago, swore out the warrant for A. S. Colyar, charging him with cheating and swindling his mother, Mrs. L. A. Awtrey, out of $750. Colyar recently represented himself to Mrs. Awtrey as a lawyer.

He told her, it is alleged, that her son, H. J. Awtrey, was in jail and would be sent to the penitentiary for five years, but that he, Colyar, could clear him if she would give him $500.

Colyar in some manner won the friendship of Mrs. Awtrey and it is stated that she gave him notes amounting to $750. When H. J. Awtrey heard of it he immediately came south.

SHOT BY YOUNG GIRL, THOMASTON BOY DIES

Victim of Shooting Gallery Accident Was Being Rushed to Atlanta.

Robert Cash Moore, aged 22, of Thomaston, Ga., died yesterday afternoon on the train from Piedmont, Ala., where he was shot accidentally by a young kirl in a shooting gallery. Moore was the attendant in charge of the gallery conducted by E. J. Janz, of the Mayolympic Carnival company.

Miss Pearl Hawes, daughter of O. J. Hawes, a prominent resident of this place, had a gun to shoot at a target and was told it was not loaded. Moore stopped to get her a loaded gun just as she pulled the trigger, the bullet passing through his temple.

After the shooting Janz put the young man upon the train to bring him to Atlanta, where it was hoped that he might be operated upon and his life saved. Moore remained unconscious and died as the train passed Dallas, Georgia.

The body on its arrival here was placed in charge of the P. J. Bloomfield company and efforts were made to communicate with young Moore's father, who is said to live at Thomaston.

No Action on Pindell.

Washington, November 29.—The appointment of Henry M. Pindell, the Peoria publisher, as ambassador to Russia, was not acted on and will not be, leaders say, before adjournment Monday. His reappointement by President Wilson will be necessary after the new congress convenes.

Meeting Enthusiastic.

With enthusiastic but business-like determination, fifty prominent Atlanta business men met in the chamber of commerce and organized fifteen committees to make Oglethorpe university in Atlanta a success. The fifteen committee chairmen had been selected by the executive committee back of the movement, and each chairman named those he desired to serve with him.

In short order these committees were completed and the list of names of those Atlantans who subscribed to the old university fund of eight years ago, was apportioned among them, each committee receiving about 120 names.

"Double Your Subscription for Oglethorpe," will be the slogan with which these committees will call, beginning Monday, upon the subscribers to the old fund, with a view to completing Atlanta's quarter of a million subscription in the shortest possible time.

It was arranged that all of the subcommittees shall meet at the Piedmont hotel at 12:30 o'clock noon, beginning Monday, every day during the campaign. The meetings will be held on the second floor where luncheon will be served, and the daily news of the campaign will be told.

Ivan Allen Takes Hold.

After calling the meeting to order Captain James W. English, chairman, practically turned it over to Ivan E. Allen, who will act as chairman of the campaign committee. Mr. Allen jumped at once into the organization of the subcommittees, which were appointed as rapidly as the names were handed in by the respective chairmen.

When all of the subcommittees had been organized, each with business men full of determination, Mr. Allen placed in their hands the lists of their allotted portion of the subscribers to the old fund.

"Tell everyone of them that you want them to double the subscriptions they made to the old fund," Mr. Allen said. "We've got to do this to raise what we need for this new and more important movement. But don't stop with your list; see everybody else you can. Tell them they may distribute their payments over five years if they wish, but see that every possible man in Atlanta takes a hand in this movement."

Will Start Work Monday.

Many of the subcommittees held

Advices Received in Washington Indicate That the Mexican Dictator Cannot Long Maintain Himself in Power.

MEXICO CITY ISOLATED BY SUCCESS OF REBELS

Chihuahua City the Only Important Place Held by Huerta Between Capital and Border—Rebels Active in the South.

Washington, November 29.—Under pressure of constitutionalist armies in the north, advancing on Chihuahua, the most important military defense that now stands between the Mexican capital and the border, and the menacing activities of the Zapatistas to the south, the situation of the Huerta government in Mexico City was believed by officials here tonight to be more critical than usual.

Huerta's Search for Money.

Efforts of General Huerta to obtain funds for the payment of accrued interest on National railroad bonds were regarded as serving to demonstrate the deterrent effect upon foreign capital of the attitude of the American government toward speculators who would risk their money to secure exorbitant profits at this stage in the great national tragedy.

Mexico City, according to advices here, is almost isolated from the northern half of Mexico. State department reports show that while rail communicatin is still open between Laredo on the Rio Grande and Monterey, mail and telegraph matter cannot get southward beyond the latter point except to Saltillo. Fearing the speedy close of this last avenue of escape, Americans and other foreigners in Monterey are reported to be crowding the trains, starting for the American border.

Moheno's Visit to Lind.

A report that Senor Moheno, the Huerta secretary of foreign affairs, had gone to Vera Cruz to confer with John Lind upon the arrival at that port of President Wilson's personal representative, aroused interest at the state department. It was believed here that Senor Moheno might be charged with fresh propositions to lay before the American government through Mr. Lind.

News of the approaching dispatch from Cadiz to Vera Cruz of a Spanish warship, and of the vigorous demand on the part of influential French newspapers for a cessation of the internecine conflict in Mexico, also interested officials here mainly because of its probable moral effect in reinforcing President Wilson's demand for a change in the provisional government. There is still, however, no disposition to regard the subject as one beyond the ability of the United States government to handle without anything more than the moral support of other foreign nations.

Conditions In Oil Fields.

A long telegraphic report was received during the da- from Admiral Fletcher on his flagship Rhode Island. The admiral's report dealt with conditions in the oil fields which are so far quiet, but still threatening.

With the arrival in Mexican waters of the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet in the course of a fortnight, three-fourths of that great naval aggregation will be engaged in the protection of American and foreign interests in Mexico. The practical termination of the threatened Navajo uprising in northwestern New Mexico, will have the effect of a releasing the squadron of the 12th cavalry which was rushed from Fort Robinson, Nebraska, to the Indian agency and these troops will go at once to Texas, reinforcing on the border patrol the second and fifteenth cavalry now at El Paso, along with the battery of the fifth field artillery.

Immediately after the shooting a posse of fifty was organized to storm the mine and fight it out with the desperado

TRAIN CREW IS KILLED IN HEAD-ON COLLISION

Freight Trains Crash Together Near Roanoke, Va.—Orders Were Disobeyed.

According to reports received from the Virginian officials, the wreck was due to the fact that the engineer on the eastbound freight, after receiving orders at Alta Vista to meet No 33 at Keever, ran by his meeting point by nearly two thousand feet

It was on the eastbound train that all of the crew was killed The men on the other train were saved by jumping

REBELS CONTROL ALL NORTH MEXICO

Railroad Center in Central Mexico Now the Objective of Huerta's Foes--Another Troop Train Blown Up.

Mexico City, November 29—San Luis Potosi, the largest town between the capital and Monterey and the most important railroad center in Central Mexico, appears to be the objective point of those rebels who recently began concentrating south of Saltillo

Reports from the state of Tamaulipas indicate that the concentration or rebels at Victoria has brought together more than 6,000 men and that General Rubio Navarrette, the federal commander, who intended to recapture Victoria is in a difficult situation north of that town

There is an unconfirmed report that Navarrette's force has been cut to pieces although, according to war department advices, he has retaken Victoria notwithstanding the disparity between his forces and those of the enemy

Troop Train Blown Up.

West of San Luis Potosi in the state of Guanajuato on the Penjamo branch of the National railways constitutionalists today burned the new 40,000 peso station building

Another troop train was blown up near San Luis Potosi yesterday Private advices indicate the presence of a thousand rebels within striking distance of that city A passenger who arrived here today from San Luis Potosi told a story of the wiping out of a military escort of 50 men on a train bound from Tampico to San Luis Potosi four days ago He said the railway line since then has been cut and traffic suspended

The story of this man, who said he was a passenger on the train, was that the train ran into a cut guarded by rebels

Machine guns had been placed on both sides of the track and their fire was concentrated on the train When the engagement was over every soldier on board the train had been killed and forty-five passengers wounded

Rebels Express Regret.

Rebels who entered the coaches after the fight to rob the passengers, expressed regret that any passengers had been hit by their bullets The passengers were left with enough money to carry them to their destinations

Some reports received here say Tampico has been taken but in best-informed circles they are discredited although it is known that the rebel circle is slowly tightening about that port

Saltillo and Monterey continue isolated and reports from other parts of the country indicate successful rebel activity In the capital there is an absence of any news indicating an increase in government strength, either financial or military

Denials were made today both at the American embassy and the palace that any negotiations between Mexico and the United States are under way, notwithstanding the departure of foreign Minister Moheno for Vera Cruz, where, it is understood, John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative returned today

Protection of Japan Subjects.

The Japanese minister conferred today with Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires, regarding the protection Japanese subjects might expect on the west coast The minister was assured by Mr O'Shaughnessy that they would receive the same protection, as far as the United States was concerned, as other foreigners

Admiral Von Hintze, the German minister, talked with Mr O'Shaughnessy regarding plans for the defense of the foreign colonies in the capital The Americans have not yet united with the Europeans in any action looking toward defense in case it should become necessary.

Has Huerta Got New Loan?

Government officials are authority for the statement that President Huerta has obtained a new loan of 7,000,000 pesos The truth of their statement has not been confirmed

So great has become the domination of the rebels in the gulf coast oil regions, it is said, that on their demand the Mexican railway, a British corporation of Vera Cruz and Mexico City, have agreed not to haul any more fuel oil intended for the National railways If the rebels succeed in enforcing their demands it will seriously cripple federal military operations.

MILITARY PATROLS TO CHECK STRIKERS

New Mayor of Indianapolis Is Preparing to Handle Serious Trouble.

Indianapolis, Ind, November 29—Harry R Wallace, who became mayor of Indianapolis when Mayor Shank resigned yesterday, continued preparations in the police department today to handle serious trouble in the event of the threatened strike of union teamsters next Monday.

The new board of public safety granted special police powers to a number of business men who will be affected by the strike, so that they might better be enabled to protect their business In order to increase the number of patrolmen, the city civil service commission was authorized to reduce the minimum height requirements from 5 feet 9½ inches to 5 feet 8½ inches

Plans to place the downtown district under a system of military patrol have been completed by Acting Superintendent of Police Coffin The reserves which heretofore have been held at police headquarters will be divided into squads and will patrol the districts An order prohibiting congregation of crowds was promulgated today.

The union teamsters will meet in the Labor temple tomorrow and vote on the strike proposition. It is probable the men will vote to strike. Thomas J. Farrell, general organizer for the union, continued tonight to meet employers of teamsters and explain to them the demands of the union It was stated a number of employers had signed an agreement

It was announced today that the Indiana public service commission would begin Monday its hearings in the dispute between the Indianapolis Street Railway company and its employees who were recently on strike.

PUBLISHER CALLS PLAN "A CRIME"

President Pulsifer, of D. C. Heath & Co., Makes Interesting Argument Against State Publication.

Setting forth the principle that "a state never conducts a business as economically as a private concern does," and declaring that the school book publishers of the United States themselves make an average profit of less than 10 per cent, W. E. Pulsifer, president of the D. C. Heath & Co., in an interview given The Constitution cites California as proof of the fact that a state will lose money if it attempts to publish its own school books.

He declares that California has lost more than $1,000,000 from 1884 to 1913 in publishing its school books.

Mr. Pulsifer, who is a former president of the Union League club of Brooklyn, and the Graduates' club of New York, was entertained for several days last week at the Capital City club by Dudley R. Cowles, of Atlanta, he having been here incident to the meeting of the state book commission, which has just announced the books to be used in the state schools for the next year.

Active Competition.

"The Constitution and the Georgia newspapers generally have given much space to the arguments of those who are advocating that the state take over the authorship and publication of its school books," said Mr. Pulsifer as he was about to leave the city. "I am sure that it will be willing to present the other side. If I know anything in the world I know this business, and if any better evidence could be desired to show that there is absolutely no such a thing as a 'book trust' or 'book understanding' of any kind I do not know how it could be presented in stronger shape than in the fierce rivalry which existed in Atlanta during the past week for the placing of books in the state schools for the next five years. Every leading publishing house in America was represented. Competition was active from beginning to end and I am sure that the state has no cause to complain at the prices named."

Would Be a Crime.

"The state publication of books would not only be a bad policy from an educational standpoint," said Mr. Pulsifer, "but it would be a crime." "Setting aside the question of financial loss to the state fro much a policy, why should Georgia build a wall around her borders and thus deprive her children of the best talent that the world produces?"

Mr. Pulsifer stated most emphatically that such a thing as a school book trust does not exist in the United States.

"If there were a school book trust D. C. Heath & Co., would certainly be aware of it," he said. "The fact is that nearly a half hundred or more school books publishers have hotly competed against each other for Georgia's business this year. If there were any such thing as a trust, this, of course, would not be the case."

Of the argument that the manufacture by the state of books written by residents of the state would encourage local talent, Mr. Pulsifer said that no Georgia author of today who writes a meritorious book has any trouble in securing a publisher who will sell his book in all parts of the country, while if such a work were published by the state of Georgia its circulation would be limited to this state, which would be a damper to the productions of ambitious authors.

In setting forth the California situation as a warning to Georgia, Mr. Pulsifer said:

California's Experience.

"The state of California undertook in 1884 the preparation and manufacture of its own text books. An amendment to the constitution providing for state manufactured books was ratified by the people in 1884, and at the following session of the legislature statutes were enacted, putting this constitutional measure into operation. The law provided that the governor, superintendent of public instruction and the principals of the State Normal schools should constitute the state board of education, and should compile, or cause to be compiled, a series of text books for exclusive use in the common schools of the state. These books were prepared by local people, and were furnished to the public school children of the state at the cost of printing, publishing and distributing of the same. In other words, the state of California entered into a private business and became a competitor of school book publishers. The books prepared by these local people proved so unsatisfactory, and were so thoroughly denounced by the educators of California, that, after ten years, the state board of education abandoned the plan of confining their text books to those of local authorship and arranged with school book publishers to submit their best books for examination and for the state to rent from the publishers the plates of such books as the board should select. The state board of California selected, for instance, after carefully examining all the books offered, an arithmetic and other common school books, and then leased duplicate sets of plates from the publishers whose books were selected, paying the publishers royalties for the use of these plates. This plan is now in operation in California. The original law has been modified so that in 1913 the state furnishes free to the children the common school text books.

From 1884 to 1913 the cost of equipment and of manufacturing has exceeded by more than a million dollars the amount received from the sale of books. In other words, the state of California has lost a million dollars since 1884 by reason of its having undertaken the manufacture of its own text books. In addition to this the prices have not been lowered. They have been equal, and in some cases higher than the prices of books charged by educational publishers. There has been no saving at all to the pupils, but there has been a loss to the state, you see, of $1,000,000. The state records clearly show these figures. This is accounted for on the well-known principle that a state never conducts a business as economically as a private concern does. An illustration of this may be found in the tremendous amount of money now being wasted in the conduct of the highway department of the state of New York."

Ontario Plan a Poor One.

In speaking of the Ontario plan, which has had considerable discussion in connection with the proposed publication in Georgia, Mr. Pulsifer said that the "Ontario readers" are poor books, and that they have been furnished to the school children of that section at low prices—in some cases at 4 cents per copy—only by the publishers losing several thousand dollars for the sake of the advertising that is in it for them.

"Georgia has as good books as publishers know how to make," said Mr. Pulsifer. "They are bid at less than the publishers' list prices. Moreover, when changes are made in the state a school child gets a new book at one-half the contract price when he offers his old book in exchange. The books furnished Georgia for the past ten years have been furnished at a lower price than the price charged by the state printer of California during the same time."

Judge Hart Finds Sentiment Rapidly Developing in Favor of Tax Equalization Law

There can no longer be any room for doubt that the tax equalization law passed by the last legislature is growing in popularity all the time and that any effort to make of it a campaign issue next year is more than likely due to fail. The result of Judge Hart's trips throughout the state to educate the people are becoming so evident that even those who were most hostile to the law are being brought to see the necessity of it.

Judge Hart declares that he has yet to meet an opponent of the law who did not become a friend of it, after he had heard the features of the act explained.

The judge was seen Saturday morning in his office, after visiting several sections of Georgia the first of the week. He has recently visited several counties in south Georgia, and is greatly pleased over conditions, generally, as he saw them. He is especially gratified over the farming conditions. This year he said has been a remunerative one from the standpoint of farming, and especially the Georgia farmer. The farmers of Georgia have been blessed with perhaps better than an average cotton crop, for which they are getting fairly remunerative prices, and the unusual season has made it possible to gather the crop in the best of condition. The corn crop is an excellent one and altogether the farming operations have been successful. South Georgia appears to me in splendid condition.

"I have made a number of speeches, explaining the equalization tax law," said Judge Hart, "and I have the first man yet to see who opposes it after he understands the scope and meaning of the law.

The Important Feature.

"As I stated the morning I first saw the law, its success or failure depends upon the class of men appointed as local assessors and equalizers. That condition is deepened as I have studied the act. I have stressed this point wherever I have spoken, and I judge from the class of men that are being appointed that the county commissioners are impressed with that truth. The press of the state likewise realize the necessity of having the best of men appointed to this office, and this feature has been stressed and emphasized as no other feature of the law. They should be men of the highest character.

Possibilities of the Law.

"If the law is properly administered instead of its increasing the burden of taxation, it will lower it on the man who has been doing even approximately his duty. As is known, or at least should be known by every one, the state cannot raise its rate; for since the year 1907 it has been levying the full constitutional rate, to wit, 5 mills. The state can levy no additional tax, and this rate has not raised sufficient revenue to pay current expenses. The deficit has grown until it has reached a million dollars and over. In other words, the rate and the volume of property taxed has proved inadequate to raise the necessary money to conduct the business of the state and to meet its appropriations.

Where Burden Lies.

"I made the statement advisedly, after careful investigation, that not exceeding one-seventh of the property value of the state is on the tax digest. If all property was put on the digest, where it properly belongs, and placed there at a fair valuation, Georgia could pay her debt next year and the tax rate could be materially reduced. The effect would be that the man who has fairly borne his burden of taxation would be greatly benefited. And while the law aims to make the man who has not borne his burden do so, but even that man has no right to complain, it is no hardship on a man to require of him to do his duty. He really ought to feel that it is a privelege.

"The citizen who decries his property when he returns it for taxation does the state an injustice, his neighbor a wrong, and himself a wrong, by reducing his working capital. Fair valuation of property with a low tax rate is infinitely preferable to a low valuation of property and a high tax rate. The new law is designed to place upon the tax digest all of the property of the state, and then as among the taxpayers to equalize property values relatively; so that each man carries his exact burden. This is the essence of justice.

Taxes Not Always Burden.

"I have spoken of taxes as a burden. There are certain taxes laid which with greater propriety might be called an investment. A man worth $1,000 could not be required by the state to pay more than $5. For this $5 his home is protected, his family, and he is protected in the enjoyment of life, liberty and property. He may be the father of half a dozen children, and they are sent to school from five to eight months in the year. Now what $5, has any man ever invested, for which he receives so much in return?"

ATLANTA GROCERS LOSE BY NEW MILITARY ORDER

Fort McPherson Ordered to Make Requisition for Groceries on Governor's Island.

Atlanta wholesale grocers will lose over $100,000 during the next year, on account of the recent order of the war department making it imperative that all army posts in the eastern division make requisition on the eastern division headquarters at Governor's Island, N. Y., for all groceries, save perishable stuff, in the future.

The order has already gone into effect and applies to all of the forty posts in the eastern division.

Sugar, lard, flour, canned goods, prunes, salt, rice, grits and all other such supplies are affected by the order. Such things as ice, yeast and potatoes will be bought locally, as before, as they come under the head of perishable goods. This trade, however, will not amount to over $10,000 per year, according to local wholesale grocers.

George Walker, of Walker Brothers company, said Saturday:

"I think the order is an outrage. We proved four years ago to the war department that we could furnish supplies to the fort here cheaper than the department could buy them. Our proposition laid the foundation for open competition as to supplies."

The first local wholesalers knew of the order was when, after making bids during the early part of this month, it was rumored that the war department would soon furnish supplies from Governor's Island. When it came time for an acceptance or refusal of the bids the fort officers told the competing firms of the order.

"There can be no economical reason for such a change," said H. L. Singer, of H. L. Singer & Co., on Saturday. "Perhaps politics is behind it."

The matter has been laid before Georgia's delegation in the house and senate at Washington and aid has been asked looking towards a restoration of the business with the fort from Atlanta.

ATLANTA HOTEL MAN GOES TO MEXICO CITY

There is one man in Atlanta who is not afraid to go to the city of Mexico in spite of the anarchistic conditions which are said to exist there. That is Charles E. Laperrugue, one of the assistant managers of the Hotel Ansley.

Mr. Laperrugue left last night for the City of Mexico to take charge of the Plaza del Pais, one of the leading hostelries in the Mexican metropolis. His successor at the Ansley has not yet been selected.

YOUNG DICKEY'S FAMILY WELL KNOWN IN TOCCOA

Toccoa, Ga., November 19.—(Special.) James Dickey, the young mail clerk who is supposed to have attempted suicide in a Mitchell street hotel last night, in Atlanta, and who was taken to Grady hospital in a precarious condition, is the son of W. M. Dickey, a prominent citizen who lives just across Tugalo river in South Carolina. Toccoa is Mr. Dickey's postoffice, and he and his family are well known here, where they visit frequently.

About ten days ago young James Dickey while at the home of his father, was ordered by the railway mail service to report at Atlanta ot once for duty. Although sick, he left for Atlanta, and nothing was heard from him for some days, when a second order from the railway mail authorities was received by his parents. The mail authorities were at once communicated with, and it was found that young Dickey had not reported.

A search was at once instituted, but without result until Dickey was taken to Grady hospital last night.

W. M. Dickey left for Atlanta as soon as he heard of his son's illness.

James Dickey has heretofore been a very steady young man, and, so far as his parents know, there has been nothing in his past life which could account for his attempt to take his life.

WOMEN TO URGE VOTE AMENDMENT

Suffragists, Now in Session in Washington, Propose to Put the Democratic Party on Record.

Washington, November 29.—With the announced intention of starting speedily on its way an amendment to the federal constitution that will enfranchise women, suffragists by the hundreds arrived here today to attend the forty-fifth convention of the National Woman Suffrage association. Such an amendment and the women's right to it, now that they vote on national questions in ten states, is to be urged upon congress with vigorous determination, say the suffrage leaders. They also assert they will attempt to obtain, during their week's stay here, an expression from President Wilson which might be regarded as the democratic party's policy on the woman suffrage question.

Hotel lobbies buzzed tonight with discussion by groups of delegates on the questions which will come before the convention when it begins ist sessions Monday. Arrival and certification of delegates, meetings of the official board and of the executive committees and a luncheon by the National College Equal Suffrage league, at which Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the national association, Miss Jane Addams and other prominent leaders spoke, filled today. Enthusiasm will be kept alive over Sunday by a mass meeting tomorrow at which Dr. Shaw, Miss Addams and State Senator Helen Ring Robinson, of Colorado, will be speakers.

New Constitution Proposed.

The executive committee, at a meeting tonight, took up for consideration two of the important matters which will come before the convention. One was the proposal to adopt a new constitution for the association, in accordance with the recommendation of the constitutional revision committee. The other was as to the founding of a business corporation, capitalized at $50,000, to be known as the National Suffrage Publishing company, which would have charge of the printing of suffrage literature both for the national and for affiliated and other suffrage associations. The trustees of the National American Woman Suffrage association would hold a majority of the stock, so as to maintain control, although the directors of the company would not be officers of the association.

The purpose of the proposed new constitution is to place the organization on a fixed financial basis, with a budget to be presented each year to the convention for approval, and assessments made on affiliated organizations partly in proportion to their budgets.

At the college women's meeting Miss Addams declared that the recently acquired franchise in Illinois already had given the women of that state great influence in needed reforms. Miss Lucy Burns, of this city, said that one-fifth of the senate, one-seventh of the house of representatives and one-sixth of the electors now come from states where women vote on national questions.

A "Men's League for Woman Suffrage," whose main object is to work for the suffrage amendment, has been organied here, with Dr. Harvey W. Wiley as its president.

Women in Congress.

Feminine members of congress and the president's cabinet within the next ten years is the prophecy of advocates of "votes for women." They base their predictions upon the great strides that the feminist movement has made in recent years in many of the states.

"Within the next ten years," declares Senator Helen Ring Robinson, member of the Colorado legislature, "women will be legislating on the floors of the house of representatives and senate of the United States, and there will be women members of the president's cabinet."

Senator Robinson is convinced that the example of Colorado in selecting a woman to its legislative body will soon be followed by other states From this, she declared, it will be only a step to the election of women to congress.

NORFOLK MEN HELD ON CHARGE OF FRAUD

Norfolk, Va., November 29.—Samuel L. Harris, president, and J. G. Thalaker, secretary and treasurer of the Capital Security company, with home offices in Norfolk, were arrested today upon indictments found against them in Fargo, N. D., charging that they "did devise a scheme to defraud, and did deposit circulars and other papers in the United States postoffice in pursuance thereof." The indictments are based on the conduct of a money investing business carried on in many states, which, it is alleged, will not pay out in the end as represented. The defendants gave bond in the sum of $2,000 each for their appearance on Tuesday next, before United States Commissioner Stephenson.

The arrests were made by the United States marshal at the instance of Special Postoffice Inspectors C. F. Egge and George H. Chase, who came here from Fargo, N. D., armed with the grand jury indictments in the case.

The defendants deny the charges brought, and declare they are conducting a perfectly legitimate business.

It is declared that a similar prosecution started in Georgia some time ago against the Capital Security company was dismissed after an investigation. The defendants will resist the effort to have them sent to Fargo to answer the indictment charge.

The investment plan of the Capital Security company, whose officers were arrested here today, is explained to have been on the order of a building and loan association, which particular scheme, it is averred, is not based on a sound financial policy, and cannot be honestly worked out along lines represented to investors.

The defendants are vigorous in their denial of any fraudulent scheme, however, and assert that their investments are entirely legitimate, sound and proper.

FOOTBALL REVELRY DETAILED TO HOUSE

Washington, November 29.—Newspaper stories of riotous scenes in a Washington down-town cafe on the night of the recent football game between Georgetown university and the University of Virginia were read into The Congressional Record today at the instance of Representative Johnson, of Kentucky. While the descriptions of the disorderly scenes in which students and their friends engaged was being read from the rostrum, references to midnight revels amused the house, which laughed uproariously at times.

Published charges that liquor was sold to "boys and girls in the reyls that followed the football game," are to be investigated by a committee of the house. Representative Johnson, who asked for and secured the passage of a resolution of investigation, declared he considered the affair a national disgrace.

Many arrests of college students were made the night of the game, and more than $1,000 was forfeited in small bail bonds.

BECKER AND GUNMEN FIGHTING FOR LIVES

New York, November 29.—Twenty-five reasons why former Police Captain Becker should not be executed for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, will be presented next week to the state court of appeals. Becker is now in Sing Sing prison under sentence of electrocution.

Becker says the appellant's brief is "a victim of the greatest conspiracy of the age. He was not given a chance for his life. The effect of the ruling of the court made the trial a mockery."

One of the principal arguments in Becker's behalf is that Sam Schepps, the chief corroborative witness for the state, was an accomplice. His attorneys complain that the trial was rushed through and that Becker was convicted by public opinion.

An appeal also will be presented in behalf of the four gunmen convicted of the crime—"Whitey" Lewis, "Dago Frank," "Lefty Louie" and "Gyp The Blood." In their case more than 150 errors are alleged in the rulings of the trial judge and 16 reasons given for a reversal.

DENISON NOMINATION BLOCKED IN SENATE

Washington, November 29—President Wilson's nomination of Winfred T. Denison to be secretary of the interior for the hPilippines was held up today by democrats of a senate committee who want to look into Denison's politics Denison was an assistant attorney general under the Taft administration accredited to the progressive-republicans.

Henderson S. Martin, of Kansas, and Clinton L. Riggs, of Maryland, were confirmed by the senate as members of the Philippine commission, but no attempt was made to act on the appointment of W. T. Denison.

More than 100 army and navy and postmastership appointments were confirmed, but the session adjourned with nearly 100 nominations on the calendar. Unless these are acted upon at the short session before adjournment Monday noon, new appointments will have to be made.

GENERAL WM. J. SMITH DROPS DEAD ON STREET

Memphis, Tenn., November 29.—William J. Smith, brevet brigadier general of the Union army during the civil war, was stricken with heart trouble and fell dead on the street here today. He was a veteran of the Mexican war, a member from Tennessee of the forty-first congress and at his death was president of a Memphis bank. He served with a Tennessee regiment in the war with Mexico and at the outbreak of the civil war enlisted as a private, rising to the rank of brevet brigadier general. Mr. Smith was 90 years old.

Chicago, November 29.—Dr. Franklin T. Baker, of Columbia university, was elected president of the National Council of Teachers of English at its final session here today. James F. MEASURE IS DESIGNED TO CUT COST OF LIVING

McKellar Introduces Bill to Limit Cold Storage of Produce and Stop Pools.

Washington, November 29.—An elaborate anti-high cost of living bill, not only to restrict cold storage of food but to penalize agreements for storage, pooling, division of territory, interference with competition or other restraint of trade in foodstuffs, was introduced today by Representative McKellar, of Tennessee.

The new bill which will be urged immediately before the house commerce committee would make the maximum period of storage on beef or its products 7 months, veal 2 months, pork 4 months, sheep or goats 4 months, lamb or kids 3 months, poultry and game 3 months, fish 2 months, eggs 3 months to 6 months, with provision for labeling all over 3 months old after inspection, butter 3 months.

The bill proposed that cold storage articles must be labeled with the dates of production, killing, packing or manufacturing and period of storage. It would bar thawing out cold storage products, would have regulations issued by the department of agriculture and provide other precautions.

Representative McKellar has recently conferred frequently with Attorney General McReynolds on the cost of living problem and is understood to have furnished some information which department of justice agents now are investigating in their pursuit of an alleged cold storage combination. It was generally inferred at the capitol that his new bill, which is different from some of his others, has the approval of the attorney general.

After providing against long storage of foodstuffs the bill provides that packers of meat, poultry, butter and eggs and all cold storage concerns must furnish to the government daily statements of goods on hand, shipments, receipts and deliveries, in violation of which fines ranging from $100 to $1,000, or prison sentences not exceeding five years, may be imposed.

Representative Fowler, of Illinois, is collecting data to present to the judiciary committee when it takes up a long contemplated investigation of an alleged beef trust. He intends to ask the committee to investigate particularly whether meats kept in cold storage are treated with chemicals.

GREAT BRITAIN TO WAR ON THE SLAVE TRADERS

London, November 29—Immediate legislation to bar British subjects from evading the slave trade acts is urged in a memorial presented to Premier Asquith today.

The signers, an influential committee, were stirred to action by the revelations made during the inquiry into the atrocities on the rubber fields of Putomayo, Peru, and by evidence that "conditions of native labor elsewhere in South America and in other tropical and semi-tropical regions where British subjects and capital are operating, are closely akin to slavery."

A demand for the revision of the anti-slavery treaties with foreign powers is also made by the committee, which urges that these treaties should be made definitely applicable to "modern forms of slavery."

It is suggested that the government appoint a special body of consuls with roving commissioners to visit the more inaccessible parts of the world and keep watch over native labor and commercial conditions. Among the signers of the memorial are the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Earl of Cromer, Earl Curzon of Kedleston, Viscount Milner, the Earl of Selborne, James Bryce, former British ambassador at Washington, Sir Claude Macdonald, Chief Rabbi Hertz, and the lord mayor of London.

MEXICAN REBELS ARE BARBAROUS

So Declares Major Gillette, Who Unearthed Green-Gaynor Frauds — Gillette Attacks Policy of Wilson.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, D. C., November 29.—(Special.)—Major Cassius E. Gillette, formerly an officer in the regular army, but recently a resident of Mexico, continues to criticise sharply the administration's attitude toward Mexico.

Major Gillette will be recalled in Georgia as the man who unearthed the Green and Gaynor frauds in connection with the harbor work at Savannah. He later rendered a similar service in Philadelphia, in connection with the McMichal Durham frauds.

Speaking from an intimate knowledge of conditions in Mexico, Major Gillette said.

"The forces' that havt been in absolute control in Durango for many months consist of four bands. The largest is in command of a man who has been a cattle thief for years, his name being used by nurses to scare children with. He can neither read nor write.

Major Tells of Excesses.

"The second is a common farmhand peon, ignorant and a savage. The two others, I believe, can read and write. Barring Americans whom they have somewhat respected and a few of the better class of Mexicans who got away, practically every woman and girl over ten years of age within 125 miles of Durango has been outraged by the 'patriots.'

"These are the people whom our congress proposes to help get arms. The president alone holds out against it. Only the other day Senator Bacon, of Georgia, chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations, told the president that only their personal consideration for President Wilson kept the senate from passing a resolution authorizing the free sale of arms to the Carranzistas.

"A few weeks ago Carranza came to Durango to consult his 'followers.' He called a meeting—only one man attended and Carranza left at once for Hermosillo, 300 miles away over the mountains.

If Carranza Were President.

"If Carranza were made president tomorrow he would have exactly the same problem Huerta now has against 90 per cent of the same 'patriots.'

"Carranza is now forming a 'cabinet' for its avowed effect upon the United States. We seem to be easy to fool.

"The situation in Mexico today is strikingly similar to what it was in the Island of Hayti when owned by the French, but the savages of Mexico are a far more bloodthirsty race than those of Hayti. Their ancestral altars flowed with human blood like rivers.

"Wait and see what happens in the next year if our government helps arm 'the poor patriots,' who are struggling so hard against the demon Huerta, making 'cannon of axles,' as one of our sympathetic congressmen puts it, and who are incidentally destroying every mine (Madero's included, with its $1,000,000 worth of equipment, etc.), every bridge, every railroad and outraging every child they can reach.

"The Hayti horrors were brought on by equally high grade philanthropy. The Wilberforce Society got the blacks freed, armed and the island put in charge of negro generals. This is the only case in history where enslaved savages got control of the country and of their former masters. Does our philanthropic government want to make Mexico the second?

Gives Another Illustration.

"Suppose for anotaer illustration that the south and the north were separate countries; that the south had 11,500,000 of negroes equal in character to the lower half, of the present black race, against 3,000,000 whites, and they had been started on the warpath by a millionaire criminal or fool; that they had one-third of the country under their control and were destroying everything that stood in the way of making an African jungle of the country.

"I wonder how Senator Bacon would feel if the north should propose to let the negroes get free arms; especially if the conditions in the south were such that no white man could have any hope of handling it unless he laid himself open to being called a 'dictator,' 'assassin,' a 'traitor' and a few of the other gentle terms that have been so liberally applied to General Huerta and—crowning blunder of them all—were given as a reason for arming the blacks."

Spencer to Hang December 19.

Aurora, Ill., November 29.—Harry Spencer, murderer of Mrs. Mildred Allison Roxroat, was today sentenced to be hanged at Wheaton, December 19. He argued in person for a new trial and repudiated his confession of the murder, but was overruled by Judge Slusser. Spencer today spoke calmly and without gesture.

WHITE HOUSE COUPLE OFF FOR HONEYMOON

Mr. and Mrs. Sayre Cleverly Avoided Crowd When They Sailed for Europe.

New York, November 29.—The elusive white house bridal pair, Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, avoiding the gaily-decorated gangway and bunting bedocked pathway arranged for them, slipped quietly on the liner George Washington through the second cabin today and sailed away for Europe on their honeymoon. A great crowd that gathered on the decks at Hoboken was keenly disappointed at not seeing them, and even President Wilson did not know of his daughter's and son-in-law's arrival on the ship until he found them in their cabin five minutes before sailing time.

Mr. Wilson, accompanied by Miss Eleanor Wilson and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, reached the boat half an hour before the George Washington was due to start. The ship's officers stood at attention as he came on deck, and the band played the "Star Spangled Banner." The crowd cheered. There was a wait of fifteen minutes for the Sayres. Nobody seemed to know where they were. The captain of the liner was growing nervous.

Finally the president entered the suite assigned to the pair and, to his surprise, there they were with a few friends and many flowers. The band struck up Mendelssohn's wedding march as the hawsers were cast off today.

Among the floral pieces presented to Mr. and Mrs. Sayre was a cluster of American Beauty roses, presented by a committee representing the Hoboken letter carriers on behalf of all letter carriers in the United States.

WASHINGTON'S HAIR DECLINING IN PRICE

New York, November 29.—Co-incidentally from London and New York there came to light today two curious items of Americana, both concerning souvenirs of George Washington's administration as first president of the United States. It appears that Washington's hair is declining in price, while one of his letters is selling at a high figure

The hair, a lock of which is asserted upon oath to be one clipped from the head of Washington by one of the pall bearers at his funeral and sold last year at auction for $480, was disposed of at a sale of Americana here yesterday for $100.

At the same time in London a letter written by Washington on the day after his election as the first president of this country was sold for $800. The letter is one to Damuel Powell, dated February 5, 1789.

The letter was never published. In it Washington refers to George III.'s first attack of madness, saying: "Be the cause of British king's insanity what it may, his situation (if alive) merits commisseration."

WHITE HOUSE BRIDE THANKS CONGRESSMEN

Washington, November 29.—Letters from Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre thanking members of the house and senate for their wedding gifts were received today at the capitol. Letters were addressed to Senators Clarke and Martine, who were in charge of the movement for a present from senators. A letter to Speaker Clark, written the day before the white house wedding, was read to the house. It follows:

"May I not express to you very warmly my deep feeling of the honor the members of the house have paid me in presenting me with the beautiful diamond necklace which was brought to me yesterday in a setting worthy of its beauty. I shall treasure this gift all my life as an evidence of generosity, not only, but of singular courtesy and thoughtfulness on the part of yourself and the other members of the house. I beg that you will convey to the members my sense of deep obligation and lasting pleasure. Mr. Sayre joins me in warm appreciation and thanks."

BRYAN WILL APPOINT SUCCESSOR TO THAYER

Washington, November 29.—Secretary Bryan will appoint some competent lawyer now in China temporarily to discharge the duties of judge of the United States court for China at Shanghai, pending the confirmation of a successor to Judge Rufus H. Thayer, who resigned several months ago. The resignation has been accepted on urgent cable requests from Judge Thayer.

Judge Thayer had served four years of a ten-year term. Charges had been made against him and were given preliminary consideration in the house judiciary committee, but at the state department it was said Judge Thayer's resignation had nothing to do with that.

Cash Register Men Appeal.

Cincinnati, November 29.—John H. Patterson, president, and twenty-eight other officials or former officials of the National Cash Register company of Dayton, who were convicted last year of violating the criminal section of the Sherman anti-trust law, filed an appeal here today.

DEAF AND DUMB, STOWAWAY PROVES BAFFLING PUZZLE

New York, November 29.—Deaf and dumb, unable to read or write, incapable of understanding any of the sign languages tried upon him and unable to indicate on the map the land he came from, a stowaway who was brought here from South America, proved to be the most baffling puzzle the immigration bureau has ever faced.

The man is now in the hands of the Lamport and Holt Line, whose vessel, Byron, brought him here. None of the crew knows at which port the steamship stops the stowaway came on. Consequently no one on the Vestris, which today started back with the stowaway where to put him off. The line can see an endless vista of immigration officials refuse permission for the stowaway to land.

The Byron arrived Tuesday. The stowaway was taken to Ellis Island for keeping until the Vestris was ready for departure. Experts in sign languages tried their skill upon him, but he did not understand the signs or the various languages that was employed. He is about 25 years old, but there was nothing to indicate his name or nationality.

Germany and Panama Show.

Berlin, November 29.—The various parties in the reichstag today held a conference on the question of German participation in the Panama-Pacific exposition. The radicals, national liberals, socialists and clericals declared in favor of official representation. It is believed the imperialists also will support these parties.

GREAT IMPROVEMENT FOR SAVANNAH HARBOR

War Department Reports That Adequate Turning Basin Is Advisable.

Washington, November 29.—The war department reported to the house today that the federal improvement of Savannah harbor, Georgia, to provide an adequate turning basin, is advisable, within the dimensions of 2,600 feet length, 675 feet width at the ends and 800 feet wide for a central length of 1,000 feet, at an estimated cost of $154,000. This would be conditional upon Savannah city donating land necessary for the basin and space for dock and warehouses.

New German Warship.

Danzig, Germany, November 29.—The new battle-cruiser which is to take the place of the old Kaiserin Augusta was launched here today and christened the Luetzow. She will carry ten 12-inch guns as her main armament and a secondary battery of twelve 5.9-inch guns. Her length is 718 feet, her beam 98 and her draft 27 feet. She displaces about 28,000 tons and her turbine engines are to develop a speed of thirty knots.

HOW COMMISSION SAVED ON BOOKS

Estimated That Parents in the State Will Gain $34,-378.56 on Arithmetics and Readers Alone.

There is no doubt that the state schoolbook commission, in the texts adopted last week, accomplished a great saving to the people of the state It should be remembered that only the books that are adopted for basal use are those that must be used in the public schools All the supplemental books are merely recommended not adopted They may be used, or not, in the discretion of boards of education and teachers, and none of them can be used until the basal book on the same subject has been completed Excluding the supplemental books, the commission has materially reduced the aggregate cost of books for elementary grades.

The books of which the largest number are used are the first three or four readers, the spellers the arithmetics, the geographies the first United states history, and the grammars The instances that follow will show the people of the state how cheaply text books may be bought hereafter and how great a saving will be made in books that are used in largest numbers:

The Actual Saving.

Heretofore the first four readers on the state list have been sold at the following prices.

Wheeler's Graded Primer	$ .25
Graded Literature, First Reader	.20
Graded Literature, Second Reader	.25
Lee Reader, Third Book	.30
Total for Primer and 3 readers	$1 00

The first four readers just adopted, and that will be used during the next five years, will be sold at the following prices.

Practical Primer	$ .16
Practical First Reader	.18
Practical Second Reader	.20
Practical Third Reader	.27
Total for four new readers	$ .81

This will bring about a saving on the four readers of 19 cents, and this 19 cents saved will be sufficient to purchase one primer with three cents over, or one first reader with one cent over

The total amount that will be saved to the people of the state, based upon the number of first four readers bought during the last 4¼ years, is shown in the following table

Primer—Number sold during last 4¼ years, 157,840 saved on this book during adoption period beginning January 1, 9 cents each or $14,204 70

First Reader—Number sold heretofore during same period, 292,516, saved on each new book, 2 cents, or $5,850 32

Second Reader—Number heretofore sold during same period, 144,499 saved on each new book, 5 cents, or $7 224 95

Third Reader—Number heretofore sold during same period, 141,337 saved on each new book, 3 cents, or $4 240 11

It is not thought likely that the state could in any other way get as low prices of these books as the commission has obtained

Here is another instance of how money will be saved to the people The arithmetics on the present state list, that have been in use during the past four and a quarter years, are Wentworth's Elementary Arithmetic, 25 cents, and Wentworth's Practical arithmetic, 40 cents, total, 65 cents

Wentworth's Elementary arithmetic was readopted at 25 cents The Practical arithemtic was dropped, and in its place Milne's Progressive arithmetic, Book 2, at a cost of only 36 cents, was adopted This means a saving of 4 cents each on the second arithmetic, and a reduction of the total cost of the two arithmetics to be used of the same amount

The total number of second arithmetics sold during the past four and a quarter years was 71,462 Hereafter, as 4 cents will be saved on each book the total amount to be saved in four and a quarter years will be at least $2,858 48

The instances quoted show that on the basis of past sales the total amount to be saved to the people during the next adoption period on primer, three readers and two arithmetics will be $34,378 56

While three members of the commission stood out for readopting the geographies and arithmetics upon the ground that many educators wanted these books retained they finally, decided to the existence of the other three members that at least one of the arithmetics should be changed in order that a new and more up to-date book might be obtained at a lower price In this way the commission has reduced the total cost of the two arithmetics from 65 cents to 61 cents

AUGUSTA IS AFTER SALLY FRANCHISE

Augusta, Ga, November 29—(Special)—President N P Corish, Mr Walsh of the Charleston club, and Mr Walton of the Columbia club, held a conference here today to discuss the matter of Columbia and Augusta reentering the South Atlantic League the coming season

Among those in the conference, by invitation, were several of the backers of the old defunct Augusta club, whose hazy experiences rather dampened than aided the hopes of the present projector However, if the question of an old debt of $1,400 contracted by the defunct organization, when the league was forced to run the Augusta club for a period in 1911, can be gotten out of the way satisfactorily Augusta will, in all probability, re-enter the league The position taken here is that people who have never had connection with the old club and no part of bringing about that debt should not be made to pay it

Mr Corish left tonight with the understanding that he would be definitely informed what Augusta will do in the premises Wednesday. The situation tonight is as indefinite as it has been at any time

COL. ANDREWS SAILS FOR EXPOSITION WORK

New York, November 29—By the steamer George Washington, which sailed today, went the three commissioners recently appointed by President Wilson to visit the countries bordering on the Mediterranean to urge their co-operation in the San Francisco-Panama exposition.

The commission comprises Calvin B Brown, of San Francisco, Colonel W P Andrews, of Atlanta, and Thomas Rees, of Washington They will go to Spain, Portugal Greece, Italy, Turkey, the Balkan states, Egypt, Morocco and Algiers.

Robert Hilliard Pleased With New Type of Stage Detective

ROBERT HILLIARD,
As Detective Kayton, in "The Argyle Case," explaining use of the dictagraph.

"The mood of an actor is powerfully affected by the character that he is playing," says Robert Hilliard who created a new type of stage detective in "The Argyle Case," one of the sensational successes of recent years 'This is peculiarly true when he plays it night after night and month after month

'I might go further and add that his physical health, as well as his mental attitude is affected Apart from the fact that no man of my profession who is ambitious and progressive desires to be known as a 'one-part actor, there is mental stimulus to be found in variety of work and fresh characterization

The creating of a new part means hard study, intense concentration and infinite thought But all this is very welcome I cannot begin to express the delight that I feel in the popular acceptance of the new mystery play—for it has given me a happier view of life and replenished my vitality

"Four years of tense nervous and physical strain in 'A Fool There Was' were telling on me I found it more and more difficult to shake off the oppression of morbidity Depicting the delirium of the infatuated fool depressed my spirits It began to affect my health No financial gain, great as it proved to be, could compensate for what I suffered

It has always been my desire to be able to play a clean-cut, wholesome American who could command the respect and sympathy of the public Asche Kayton, the detective, found cordial ringing welcome, and I feel the keenest pleasure in playing him"

Peruna Relieved a Serious Case.

Mr. A. M. Ikerd.

Mr A M Ikerd Box 31, West Burlington, Iowa writes

"I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years I went to a number of doctors and got no relief and finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago, and I met the same fate They said they could do nothing for me said I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure I almost thought the same, for my breath was offensive and I could not eat anything without great misery and I gradually grew worse

Finally I concluded to try Peruna, and I found relief and a cure for that dreadful disease, catarrh I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin, and I now feel like a new man There is nothing better than Peruna, and I keep a bottle of it in my house all the time'

It is a remarkable story that Mr Ikerd tells It is a true story, but very briefly told If we put into his story all of the details it would make a chapter of suspense and agony, hope and final recovery, equal to the wildest fiction Any one wishing to do so can write Mr Ikerd and ascertain whether there has been any exaggeration in his case

SLOW PROGRESS MADE ON CURRENCY MEASURE

Democratic Senators Discuss Technical Question Regarding New Currency.

Washington, November 29—Subjected to an all day wrangle in the conference of democratic senators today, the administration currency bill progressed slowly in its preparation for final consideration on the floor of the senate.

Practically no change was made in the administration draft of the bill as presented by Senator Owen and the five administration senators of the banking and currency committee during the day, but for several hours the conference discussed a technical interpretation of the provision of the bill relating to the retiring of the new currency to be issued Senator Reed of Missouri, criticised the wording of the section

The democratic program for day and night sessions of the senate until the bill is disposed of probably will be delayed until the conference concludes its work next Tuesday or Wednesday The principle upon which the committee split, the public ownership and government control of the proposed regional reserve banks, was not brought before the conference and the administration plan for regional banks capitalized by enforced subscriptions of the banks and controlled by bank-selected directors was indorsed It was provided, however, that the federal reserve board should have the power to remove all directors of the regional banks

The conference passed over the provision of the bill fixing the number of regional banks At the instance of the conference democrats of the currency committee are framing a guarantee of bank deposits provision which may be written into the bill

The conference referred back to the democrats of the banking committee the section of the bill relating to the retirement of federal reserve notes and a new proposition was suggested for the refunding of the 2 per cent bonds on which the present currency is based The plan involved the acceptance of some of the features the refunding plan in the bill proposed by Senator Hitchcock and the republicans of the banking committee It would replace the present 2 per cent with 3 per cent one year government notes but would take a long period of time to effect the transfer

The conference also decided to dispose of all provisions which do not involve disputed matters at tonight's session The disputed points including all the sections passed over so far, will be taken up tomorrow by the democrats of the banking committee who will report to a session of the conference to be called tomorrow night

The leaders expect to complete the bill at that time

Late tonight the conference adopted an amendment to the Owen bill which would permit the federal reserve board to establish any number of regional reserve banks considered necessary between the limits of eight and twelve This agreement met the objection of Senators Hoke Smith and Bacon, of Georgia, that the Atlanta territory might be compelled to transfer its banking operations to a reserve bank at New Orleans

The federal reserve board would be given authority to decide where banks are needed to meet the ordinary trend of business operations The bill passed by the house fixed the numhber of banks at twelve while the Owen bill provided for eight and the Hitchcock bill four Preliminary consideration of the bill was completed by the conference tonight and finishing touches will be added at a session to begin at 3 o'clock tomorrow

GIRL AND SWEETHEART ACCUSED OF MURDER

Mayfield, Ky, November 29—Presentation of testimony in the trial here of Lucien Turk and his fiancee, Miss May Copeland, charged with the murder of Hugh Atchison, a wealthy farmer at Bardwell last July, was begun this afternoon after the jury box was filled

The state will attempt to prove that the fatal shot was fired by Turk and that Miss Copeland was a party to the crime, though she has stated she killed Atchison, alleging he had mistreated her Turk and Miss Copeland drove to Atchison's home in a buggy

The defense will contend that Turk remained in the buggy while Miss Copeland went to the house and shot her brother-in-law, who was inside

Mrs Atchison, widow of the murdered man, and the first witness, declared she heard no noise before the report of the pistol shot reached her ears.

HOT FIGHT CERTAIN IN COUNCIL MONDAY

Effort Will Be Made to Override Veto of Resolution Calling for a Test of Okenite System.

With Mayor James G Woodward firm in his determination that no money shall be paid to the Okenite company of New York on the city's new $106 000 fire alarm system—except on a cash basis in 1914—city political leaders predict today a bitter fight between the mayor and his council opponents in 1914

Hostilities have already broken out, and the first clash will occur in council Monday afternoon when an effort will be made to override Mayor Woodward's veto of a resolution passed up by council providing for the appointment of a commission of electrical experts to make a test of the system

Monday's Result Doubtful.

Council's meeting on Monday will be the last one of importance this year Every member—except those who retire in January—have their thoughts centered on committee appointments which will be dished out in January Members who have fought the mayor in the past have hinged somewhat in their attitude toward him and his relentless foes doubt whether they can muster that two thirds of the membership necessary to pass the aldermanic resolution over the mayor's disapproval

I put council and the Okenite company on notice in my inaugural address that I would not recognize illegal contracts. This contract is not only illegal, but the system itself is inefficient. Instead of being economical, it will cost the city more to operate than the old one It is inefficient, because it does not protect sections of the city which have recently been annexed and made part of Atlanta. I shall treat the Okenite company just as I treated the crematory people—that is, I shall not recognize the company as having a contract with the city'

That is the manner in which Mayor Woodward sizes up the fire alarm contract He takes the position that council cannot force him to appoint a committee to inspect the system, and that if a committee is appointed it must be by Mayor Pro Tem Warren, under a council resolution

Resolution a Joker.

Mayor Woodward charges that the resolution was thrown out at him as a joker

'Council knows my attitude on these illegal contracts I refused to put my name to any paper, or perform any act which put me in the position of recognizing the company as having a contract with the city By giving my approval to a resolution appointing a commission of experts to test the system I would have virtually compromised myself As I stand now I can go into court with clean skirts and force the city council and the Okenite company to get up a new contract and bond along legal lines'

The city has not been asked to pay any part of the contract price for the fire alarm system and the resolution which Mayor Woodward has vetoed is merely a preliminary skirmish Under the contract, which the mayor declares to be illegal, the city is bound to pay the $106,000, in installments covering a period of several years

Mayor Woodward says the city must pay for the system next year, and not saddle any part of the obligation on the council of 1915 He has already informed the representatives of the Okenite company that the city will pay cash for the system, and has demanded that the company make the city a sound business proposition

Not Over $85,000 Cash.

Mayor Woodward says he will not allow the city to pay more than $85,000 in cash for the system He has his mind set on saving the city $21,000, at least. If the Okenite company and the finance committee work out an amicable scheme for the payment of the money it will be placed in the January budget

Saturday morning Mayor Woodward announced that he is holding up the salary checks of six operators in charge of the fire department signal station He explained his action by stating that the fire alarm system is going to cost the city $7,000 a year more than the police signal station.

'The police operators answer about 500,000 calls a year, whereas the fire department operators answer only about 1,000 a year,' Mayor Woodward says 'It seems to me that if the police department can look after its system with fewer operators the fire department should do the same thing'

Mayor Woodward says that he will not approve the appointment of a superintendent of alarm for the fire department at a salary of $150 a month.

Will Oppose Ivy Street Refund.

Councilman Claude L Ashley will lead a fight on the floor of council against the majority report of the street committee which will recommend the refund of $7,500 to the property owners of Ivy street The money represents a balance in the hands of the city after paying for the material used on the street

The minority report of the street committee will urge that the surplus be held by the city and used to pay claims for damages At a previous meeting the committee recommended that the surplus be returned to the property owners, but Councilman Ashley defeated the report on the floor of council, and the matter was referred back to the street committee, and the committee has again agreed on a report urging the refund

The property owners along Ivy street gave the city $85,000 for the paving and regrading of that thoroughfare

Alderman John S Candler and Councilmen A R. Colcord and W. G Humphrey will recommend the adoption of the new traffic ordinance and regulations Monday afternoon, and a spirited fight is expected Auto owners vigorously oppose that section of the ordinance which prohibits the parking of automobiles One section provides that autos cannot be parked for more than thirty minutes in any part of the congested section another section provides that automobiles unattended shall not be allowed to stand in the congested district for any length of time

EDWIN ARTHUR KRAFT NAMED CITY ORGANIST

Spends Two Days in Atlanta Arranging All Details of Permanent Contract.

Edwin Arthur Kraft of Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, considered by many competent critics the most eminent of all the American organists of the new school, has accepted the post of Atlanta's city organist, offered him by the Atlanta Music Festival association, and will begin his active duties here on January 1

Mr Kraft was in Atlanta Friday and Saturday, and arranged the details of the permanent contract with President W L. Peel, George W. Wilkins, C B Bidwell and W Woods White, of the Music Festival board of directors

Will Be Aid to Atlanta.

The advantages to Atlanta of bringing this noted young organist here

EDWIN ARTHUR KRAFT

as a permanent citizen will be manifold Not only will the Atlanta music loving public be intensely interested in all his work, but because of his own prominence attained before coming here the eyes of the whole musical world will be on what he accomplishes in Atlanta In addition to appearing at the regular free Sunday concerts at the auditorium, Mr Kraft will have charge of the Music Festival chorus His first appearance in concert will be on Sunday, January 4

There will be no concert this Sunday on account of the poultry show, but there will be some Sunday concerts in December

An American by birth, Mr Kraft completed his musical training by years of study under the best masters in Berlin and Paris Robert Bolwell, in the course of a biographical article on Mr Kraft, prepared for the New York Evening Post, says

Tribute to Organist.

'Mr Kraft was born in New Haven, Conn., in 1883 When a little lad, he discovered a small organ lying in disuse while prowling about his father's garret one day, and secretly brought it down to the parlor in sections but in erection was prevented by his mother's German ideas about neat housekeeping He often speaks with regret of the many hours of valuable practice this refused him

'He went to Berlin in his twenty-first year, studying the German classics under Prof Franz Grunicks and Edgar Stillman Kelley the American artist residing in Berlin Later he went to Paris to derive the advantages of instruction under Alexander Guilmant and Charles Marie Widor In both musical centers Mr Kraft frequently appeared in recitals which attracted the notice of European masters to this youthful exponent of individualism

'In 1909 he was awarded the degree of Fellow of the American Guild of Organists, the highest degree offered by that society

'One of the greatest compliments any performer can receive is the dedication of compositions by masters In the organ field and Mr Kraft has been honored by these well known men in that way Faulkes, Bonnet, Renaud Silver, MacFarlane, H Alexander Matthews, Rogers, Frysinger, Maxson, Fairclough Gaul, Diggle Burnham, Sprackling Johnston, Becker, St Clair, Gillette Davis, Federlein, Cole Gordon B Nevin, Maitland, Avery He has also won commendation by his various transcriptions and compositions'

Economic Course Is Needed At Wesleyan, Says Jenkins

Macon, Ga., November 29—(Special) Methodists at the South Georgia conference in Macon expressed themselves as well pleased with the report made by Rev Charles R Jenkins, president of Wesleyan Female college, which is made annually to the North Georgia, South Georgia and Florida conferences and which was read before the South Georgia conference here

The report in full is as follows'

"Wesleyan Female college comes to you with the report of a year of great prosperity We have a loyal and faithful force of teachers, religious in life and earnest in their work, giving to the daughters of Methodism the very best instruction that is within their power

"We have a splendid student body, most of whom come from our Methodist homes, though quite a number of choice young women of other denominations are entrusted to our care Practically all of the girls belong to some church The total enrollment for last year was 412 for this year up to the present it is 382

"There is not a school anywhere within my knowledge with a more healthful religious atmosphere, or where more is done in the spiritual interest of the students At least once each year a strong, sane, religious leader is secured to conduct revival services, and in the history of the institution thousands of young women have been led to Christ in the college halls The meeting last year, under the leadership of Rev T. D Ellis, D D, was one of marvelous power, and resulted in the open Christian profession of almost every girl boarding in the institution. The Young Women's Christian association and the Missionary society are doing splendid work, while many of our students are engaged in mission study

Chair of Education.

"At last commencement the trustees established the chair of education, making special provision for an excellent course in religious pedagogy Professor G C White, a graduate of Emory college and a master from Columbia university, was elected to fill the professorship He has entered upon his work with great enthusiasm, and has already a very fine department of religious pedagogy This work has inspired a great number of our students to volunteer to teach in the Sunday schools of the city

'It gives me great pleasure to say, in the utmost of humility, but with perfect confidence, after a full investigation, that Wesleyan is doing as thorough and extensive work in the field of literary education, and in the fine arts, as can be found in any institution in the entire south for the education of women We adhere conscientiously and rigidly to published standards and absolutely make no pretentions which we do not fully carry out The maintenance of these high standards is a heavy strain upon the financial resources of the institution, and the college sorely needs a larger income independent of charges for board and tuition It will be utterly impossible for Wesleyan to take the rank that she ought in the educational world without the continued generous support of the controlling conferences

Home Economics Course.

'We are offering the daughters of Methodism the very best, and at the most reasonable cost The courses of study, however will have to be enlarged in the near future by the addition of a department of home economics, because the demand among young women for such instruction is so great that we simply cannot afford to ignore it any longer A college that will not adjust itself to the great movements in the educational world cannot possibly hope to command a very wide patronage I do not know where the money will come from for the establishment of this much-needed department, but I hope to secure it by come means for the next scholastic year I would dare not ask the conferences for increased appropriations because I am sure that the needs of other schools are also very great The liberality of the church however, is very essential to her in this critical hour of Wesleyan's history

"We have $48 000 from the general board of education of New York, which came to us last spring at a very opportune moment and enabled us to establish the new department of education and to employ two other teachers who were essential to the work of the institution

Health Record Good.

"Since last conference the health of our students has been all that we could ask, for we have really not had a very serious case of illness within the last twelve months, and an incredibly small number, even in a crowded dormitory, have been sick at all

"Wesleyan stands upon the pinnacle of her historic past and looks with the brightest hopes to a greater future Nothing but the indifference of the church could impede her progress, and the loyalty of our preachers and laymen has been too great for even a fear of coldness or indifference We beg for your hearty sympathy, your earnest prayers, your most intense interest in all the work and life of the old college, for men and women of spotless character and unselfish purpose, of high educational ideals and eminent personal ability of the deepest consecration to God and humanity are the faculty who are teaching your daughters, and whose devoted work will tell in the life of our country for the years to come and in the progress of the church of God among men We thank you for the support and co-operation of the year"

Acute Indigestion

Acute indigestion comes like a thief in the night and is no respecter of persons when it strikes the fatal blow. The high and low; the most prominent citizens fall before this dread disease, and the more dreadful because it is nearly always too late for the physician to render aid, because the cause may have been developing for years unsuspected. So many causes may lead to the attack that the most eminent physician called at the last moment can not locate the definite source. There may be an acute gastric catarrh or congestion of the kidneys. It may be a functional disturbance or mechanical obstruction. A weak heart-action tends to disturb the normal adjustment between the two sides of the circulation, or there may be structural changes of the heart, lungs or liver. So the physician is rarely called upon to treat a more complicated case than acute indigestion. He can only treat the symptoms as they appear, while the seat of the disturbance lies smouldering in a diseased organ eating the life away, producing symptoms that might come from a number of different sources. The real cause may have been dormant for years, when a slight indiscretion as to diet, varying temperature, nervous excitement, or a number of immediate causes precipitate the attack. When the physician is called it is too late to locate the real cause and the patient is gone.

Everyone should guard against those attacks, which, like every other disease, may be avoided if one will only exercise proper regard for the laws of health. The human body contains a principle all potent in healing and restoring the body when disease begins to make inroads upon the strength and vitality. The only thing necessary is to submit the body to this healing force which resides in the organism of the body. And this is the only power under the sun which can heal disease. Medicine can only establish the condition, when your own forces cure you. This Nuxcara does—works in harmony with your own forces. Establishing conditions which submit your organism to the healing principle of your own body. Subdues resistance to your own healthy force. In the ten years that Nuxcara has been performing these wonders upon thousands of sufferers from stomach trouble not one who has taken the Nuxcara treatment has had an attack of acute indigestion. G. & F. ROAD PLANNING TO EXTEND ITS LINES

Old Officers Re-Elected at the Annual Stockholders' Meeting in Savannah.

Augusta, Ga., November 29.—(Special)—While definite plans have not been announced, the intention of the Georgia and Florida railroad is to extend their lines and to greatly increase operations in the south Georgia territory. This became known today when the postponed annual meeting of the stockholders of the road was held here. No change was made in the officers of the road, all having been re-elected.

While it was not stated that the purpose of the directors would be consideration of the extension of the line into new territory, it was stated at the meeting that the officers and directors will soon make a trip over the line.

The business of the Georgia and Florida has wonderfully improved and it is understood that the proposed extension will be taken up when business conditions over the country become normal and feasible for the floating of securities.

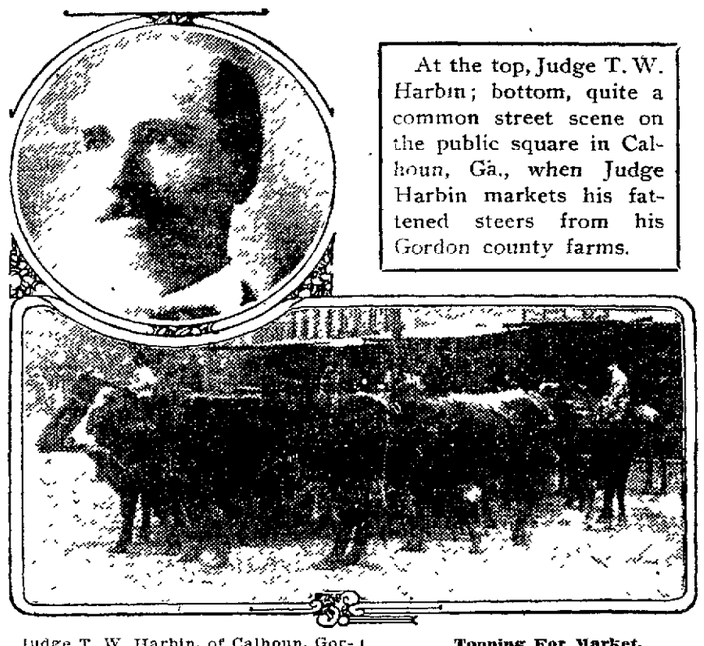
Quadrupling Land Value, Judge Harbin Proves Big Profit in Cattle Industry



At the top, Judge T. W. Harbin; bottom, quite a common street scene on the public square in Calhoun, Ga., when Judge Harbin markets his fattened steers from his Gordon county farms.

Judge T. W. Harbin, of Calhoun, Gordon county, is a man who has reversed the usual success formula of a university graduate. The old tradition ran that the boy who went forth with a diploma from his alma mater must look to the law, to medicine or one of the learned professions for his career.

Judge Harbin graduated from the University of Georgia about twenty-five years ago with a good class stand. He was ordinary of Gordon county for twelve years and won reputation and success at it as he did in the practice of law. But it is in the pursuit of business and, at that, a business just now becoming popular in Georgia, the cattle industry, that he has made his "killing" as the expressive slang goes.

Not only was he a university graduate, laid the foundation for his fortune in the cattle business and in general farming, but as a side line he has performed a state-wide service in demonstrating how farm values may be increased by the manuring of the acres and the gradual increase of their fertility. His experience is a vivid disprover of the claim of the uselessness of a college education in equipping men for other than the trained professions and it is also an argument for the value of originality in the handling of the agricultural problems of Georgia.

Not only has he quadrupled the intrinsic value of more than one farm in three years, but he has blazed a trail which Georgia farmers of the simplest education can follow with profit.

A man of intense personal magnetism and of creative energy, he made many friends and established a large personal following in his home county. He spent several months in 1911 investigating the opportunities in the cattle business and decided that for him the largest profit lay in the fattening end.

Topping For Market.

The breeding of cattle is one industry and the feeding of cattle another, although each is allied to the other. Often the man who produces cattle sells them to the man who is willing to wait for his profit, and the latter takes them over, markets feed through them and when they are in top condition for market reaps the profit.

That is the side of the industry that appealed to Judge Harbin. He saw, too, that cattle handled in this way offered big gain in their faculty for bringing up poor lands. Manure is among the best reclaimers known of lands that have gone stale from overuse. While you feed your cattle for a profit, you are increasing the value of your land for a profit. The proposition cuts both ways, for the man who is wise enough to take advantage of the situation. Judge Harbin possessed that sort of wisdom.

What He Did.

He has a long set of ledger figures to demonstrate his profit in the feeding business. The best guide is from his own conversation. "Take one instance," he said. "A 150-acre farm in Gordon county, three miles from Calhoun in 1911, rented for $300. The next year the rent rose to $1,000, a jump of a good deal more than 300 per cent. And this year, the farm rents for $1,200.

"How did I do it? By working up the value of the land, and I worked up the value of the land by enriching it with manure. I got the manure by feeding cattle, and I fed the cattle mainly on cotton seed meal and hulls.

"Take one season's work, for example. From October 19, 1913, to February 6, 1913, I worked on one hundred head of cattle. The cost of those cattle, most of them bought from Tennessee, including feed and labor, was $2,589.04. I sold them February 6, 1913, at a profit of $249.46. That was, simply net, tangible profit and did not, of course, include the enhancement of the land.

"I believe that almost any wide-awake man in Georgia can do the same thing. He can get his cattle from Tennessee or some parts of Alabama or Georgia. The feed and the meal and hulls he can get from his nearest cotton seed mill.

Cotton and Corn.

"My experience proved also that vitalizing the acres as I did with by-products from my cattle pays in what may be called the main lines of farming.

"I have steadily increased my cotton and corn yield, making my farm self-supporting, and it is all from the fact that I have discovered the secret of keeping up the fertility of my acres.

W. H. White, Jr.

"I cannot pay too much credit to W. H. White, Jr., president of the White Provision company, of Atlanta.

"He inaugurated his model packing house on the outskirts of Atlanta when the skeptics tried to laugh him out of it. He knew what he was doing. He not only has made steady profits for his shareholders, but he has as well provided a splendid market for the Georgia farmer or business man enterprising enough to enter the cattle raising and feeding business."

Judge Harbin added that he was a thorough convert to the possibilities of the cattle industry in Georgia and that he expected to devote a large share of his energies toward its development in the future.

Negro Confesses.

Rome, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Marion Barrett, a negro this morning called up a Rome attorney and confessed that he had the night before shot Joseph Collins, another negro, through the heart with a Winchester rifle. Barrett surrendered himself to the officers and is now in jail awaiting a preliminary trial next Tuesday. The shooting took place near the lock and dam on the Coosa river and Barrett claims self-defense, asserting that Collins was advancing upon him with a gun, when he shot.

Lyerly Home Burns.

Lyerly, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the residence and contents belonging to Jeff Turner, a farmer living a few miles from Lyerly, Monday night. The family had not been at home for a day or so and there was no one at home when the fire broke out, everything being destroyed. It is believed to be the work of an incendiary.

CONVICTS' ACCUSATIONS DENIED IN GWINNETT

It Is Claimed Their Statements Were Merely Excuse for Trying to Escape.

Lawrenceville, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—When seen by a Constitution correspondent Saturday morning Commissioner John H. Britt, who has charge of the white convicts in Gwinnett county, stated that there was positively no truth in the statements made by Will E. Lee and Jack Pollard, escaped convicts, upon their arrest in Atlanta Friday morning.

Lee and Pollard were given permission by the guard at the Lawrenceville camp to go out Thanksgiving afternoon and buy some chickens. When they did not show up in a few minutes the alarm was given that they had escaped and the chase was on. The escaped men were tracked as far as Gloster Thursday night, the dogs losing the track when they took to the railroad. Guard Mahaffey continued searching for them and finally tracked them into Decatur about 4 o'clock Friday morning. The police of Atlanta were notified and the men were arrested by Policeman Bell as they stepped from a Decatur, Ga., car at Edgewood avenue, about 6 o'clock.

Upon being carried to the station-house both put up a tale about they not being trying to escape, merely wanting to appear before the prison commission and ask for a transfer to another camp, telling many horrible incidents that they said happened at the Gwinnett camp, and at the hands of Deputy Warden Davis.

Commissioner Britt was in Atlanta looking for the escaped men and there being a reward of $25 each for them Policeman Bell, accompanied by Mr. Britt, brought the men to the Lawrenceville camp, Policeman Bell receiving the reward.

The Gwinnett county gang is divided into three squads, two negroes and one white, the white squad being located in the stockade about 1 mile south of Lawrenceville, and the negroes near Norcross. C. L. Nash is the warden having charge of all three camps and Fred Clarke and Fletcher C. Davis, the deputy wardens. Mr. Davis has the white gang.

The authorities here deny absolutely the statements made by the escaped men and laugh at the idea that they were only going to Atlanta to appear before the board.

Will Lee is about 28 years old and is serving a life sentence for the murder of Jack Chappell in Coweta county. He has served three years. Pollard has served seven years of a twenty-year sentence for the killing of William White in Clayton county. It is said Lee has some relatives in Jonesboro and the authorities say that these men were trying to get to them there. They also cite the fact that the men had asked for transfers and were trying to board a car for East Point, intending to catch a train there for Jonesboro.

Warden Nash and Deputy Warden Davis are considered good men in their places by the people of Gwinnett, who refuse to believe the statements of the escaped men, believing that they only talked as an excuse for trying to escape and that the facts were misrepresented by them and taken advantage of by an Atlanta newspaper. Upon every investigation and visit of members of the prison commission the Gwinnett county camp has been given a clean sheet.

Lee and Pollard are both back at work building Gwinnett some good roads and it is not believed that there will be any more trouble.

BAPTISTS PLAN BIG CAMPAIGN

Active Work Is Begun to Raise $200,000 to Make the Tabernacle Infirmary the Largest in the South.

Atlanta Baptists are planning a campaign to raise a fund of $200,000 to make the Georgia Baptist hospital, formerly the Tabernacle infirmary, the greatest Christian hospital in the south.

The board of trustees, appointed at the recent Georgia Baptist convention at Gainesville, is at work on the project, which the convention set its seal of approval on by giving the hospital a place along with other great enterprises fostered by the convention.

The following communication has been issued by the present board of trustees:

On July 2 1902 Dr Len G Broughton, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church began in a small building at 1- Spring street an infirmary for the care of the sick in Atlanta and vicinity who were not financially able to secure attention in a larger and more expensive hospital This infirmary began with one patient entered by Dr R R Kime In May 1903 the infirmary was moved to 61 Luckie street Under the matchless leadership of Dr Broughton, this institution grew in popularity and usefulness

In 1908 a three story brick building was erected at 92 Luckie street which is the present home of the hospital There are here 18 wards and fifty rooms accommodations for sixty patients

On March 15 1913 the board of missions representing the Baptists of Georgia and acting under the instruction of the Georgia Baptist convention purchased from the Tabernacle church its infirmary at a cost of $80 000 A charter was obtained incorporating the institution under the name of the Georgia Baptist hospital

During the existence of this hospital more than 6 000 patients have been treated, the total income for the institution from all sources has been a little more than $200 000 More than $80 000 has been spent in the treatment of charity patients alone

Seal of Convention Approval.

At the recent session of the Georgia Baptist convention at Gainesville, the seal of approval was put upon this enterprise by the great Baptist denomination by heartily and unanimously giving the hospital that place along with the other great enterprises fostered by the convention

The present board of trustees appointed by the convention and composed of the leading Baptist business men of Atlanta and the state at large are planning largely and wisely in projecting a campaign for enlargement upon a $.00 000 basis which in its ultimate consummation will bring to this greatest city of the south a second Johns Hopkins.

Value of Such an Enterprise.

There will be great commercial value coming to the city and community by the presence of such an institution as this in its midst It will bring money to the city and to the individuals who contribute to its promotion Besides it is Christian and philanthropic in its mission fulfilling the humanitarian idea of Jesus who devoted a large part of His time while on earth to the healing of the sick

The mission of the church as given by Jesus is three-fold—spiritual intellectual and philanthropic Thousands and even millions of dollars have been spent in the erection of church buildings for worship and the preaching of the gospel in the erection of buildings for schools, colleges and universities where the intellect can be trained under the highest Christian ideals, all this in the name of Christianity yet the Christian world has given little attention to the gospel of healing When the Christian people of all churches shall has invested an amount of money in hospitals proportionate to that invested in churches and schools, when the same attention is given to the healing of the body as to the training of the mind—whenever Christian people can say to the world 'the blind see, the lame walk the sick are healed' as well as say the poor have the gospel preached to them then will the kingdom of God have come to this world

While the Georgia Baptist hospital is owned and operated by the Baptist denomination it is in no way sectarian in its work During the eight month the institution has been owned by the Baptists, people representing fourteen religious faiths have been treated and 194 of no faith at all

While the Baptists are especially appealed to for contributions for the enlargement of the hospital contributions will be gratefully accepted from all our friends who desire to honor God and bless mankind

A careful consideration of the above appeal is earnestly sought by the undersigned who comprise the board of trustees F J Coolidge Atlanta Ga George M Brown Atlanta Ga John M Green Atlanta Ga S C Calloway Atlanta, Ga, C W Hatcher Atlanta Ga E L Connally Atlanta Ga W A Parker Atlanta Ga A J Evins Fort Valley Ga J J Bennett Kirkwood Ga J L Moore, Hampton Ga J S Hardaway Newnan Ga R T Jones Canton Ga J P Nichols, Griffin, Ga I R Corbett Columbus Ga T H Robertson Calhoun Ga S B Cousins Jr Waynesboro Ga W C Willis, Valdosta Ga A M Bennett Norman Park, Ga J S McLemore financial secretary, J. "I Don't Look Like I Did Since I Used Stuart's Calcium Wafers."

The pores of the skin are little mouths Each has a sort of valve that opens into tiny canals connecting with the blood These mouth-like pores become closed When these canals fill up, the valve refuses to work and pimples, blotches, rash, tetter, liver spots, etc, appear

Stuart's Calcium Wafers keep the pores open and the canals then carry off the waste matter the blood empties into them

Don't use cosmetics They will not hide pimples long and then they clog the skin You ought to know that the skin breathes in it almost like the lungs The pores throw off impurities every minute of the day To plaster the skin with paste, etc, is to actually prevent nature doing her work

Stuart's Calcium Wafers will in a very short time, cleanse the blood, open the pores and remove all blemishes so that your skin will become of a peach and cream kind so much desired.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers can be carried in purse or pocket. They are very pleasant to the taste and may be purchased anywhere at 50 cents a box

Atlanta Can't Afford to Lose The Oglethorpe University

By Lucien L. Knight.

If ever the Atlanta spirit was committed in honor and in self-respect to the performance of a task, it is the one whose clarion appeal is today sounded in the movement to revive Oglethorpe university, and unless this city of two hundred thousand souls is ready to lower her flag and to imperil her reputation, she will subscribe before this campaign is over every dollar of the sum needed to lift this institution from the dust

Broader than any denominational or sectarian lines is the demand which this project makes upon Atlanta's support

The time has come for united action There should be no break in the ranks It is not alone to our purse-strings but to our civic conscience that the appeal of this hour is addressed

When Oglethorpe passed away was permitted to perish in Atlanta, forty-two years ago, our streets were in ashes, our banks were feeble in strength and few in number, and our hands were paralyzed by the deadening gangrene of reconstruction

For a catastrophe which we could not avert we ought not to be censured.

But here Oglethorpe languished until the end came. Here the grave of the institution was dug with the bristling bayonets of the military regime, and there has ever since rested upon the escutcheon of our fair city a stigma which needs to be erased.

Today Atlanta is the most progressive city of the new south.

Phoenix-like she has emerged from the ashes Her railways radiate in every direction. Her sky-line resembles New York's She is the largest market for automobiles and the greatest depot for insurance within a radius of eight hundred miles.

She is famed for the genius of accomplishment—for the power to perform miracles

Where less than a century ago there lay a waste of ashes from which the smoke was rising heavenward, there stands today a stately and splendid metropolis Our postal receipts put us far in the lead of southern cities Our bank vaults are filled to overflowing with treasure Our merchants are happy over the prospect for an immense trade this season.

But there rests upon Atlanta an incubus which her civic pride must remove before the present year expires Another calendar must not find her with this task unfinished, and, standing upon the grave of Oglethorpe university, she must say and she will say, to the four winds of heaven "Breathe thou upon these dead bones and make them live!"

CORDELE CHAMBER PLANS STEEL BRIDGE OVER FLINT RIVER

Cordele Ga, November 29—A vigorous campaign for the construction of a steel and concrete bridge over Flint river at Hugenin's ferry is being pursued by the Cordele Chamber of Commerce The river is the boundary line between Sumter and Crisp counties and this move proposes to develop a splendid county site to county site highway through the two counties, connecting Cordele and Americus, and bring the cities into closer relationship

President Oscar Heard and Secretary Daniel, of the chamber of commerce, personally appeared before the Crisp county grand jury this week and obtained their recommendation to the county commissioners Next week they will go before the commissioners personally to get an understanding between the board of this county and the commissioners of Sumter. It is expected that the two boards will heartily approve the movement

This bridge will increase the property values of all farming lands within miles on both sides of the river, and its construction will be a great convenience to automobilists, many of whom in both cities will go back and forth to witness baseball games of the Georgia state league between the two cities

THREE WOULD MANAGE VALDOSTA POSTOFFICE

Valdosta, Ga, November 29—(Special)—Interest in the appointment of postmaster in this city to succeed Major J O Varnedoe, whose term will expire next May, is increasing every day Major Varnedoe, J F Stapler and J P Coffee are applicants for the appointment, but so far the wisest "dopesters" haven't been able to decide who will get the plum Other well known citizens are mentioned in connection with the appointment but so far as the public knows the three named above are the only ones who are actively in the race

Messrs Varnedoe and Stapler made application for the office soon after the election of President Wilson, and both have strong indorsements Mr Coffee has only recently become an applicant There is some talk of a primary to decide the matter, but the proposition seems not to have been taken seriously All three of the applicants are among the warmest personal friends of Congressman J. R. Walker, who it is presumed will have the naming of the postmaster Mr Stapler was financial manager of Mr Walker's campaign for congress He and Major Varnedoe have also been active supporters and admirers of Senator Hoke Smith, whose influence is to be considered. Mr Coffee, on the other hand, has not been a Hoke Smith man

BOY SLAYER SENTENCED TO STATE REFORMATORY

Hardy Miller Gets Five Years at Milledgeville for Killing Lawton Smith.

Valdosta, Ga., November 29—(Special)—Hardy Miller, a 17-year-old boy who killed Lawton Smith in a quarrel some months ago, and who was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the superior court this week, was sentenced by Judge Thomas, today, to five years in the state reformatory at Milledgeville. Smith and young Miller were both employees of the latter's uncle, W. M Miller, at Melrose, and the fight which ended in the death of Smith was caused by his refusal to let the boy ride one of the mules worked at the naval stores plant at the end of the day's work. Smith was in charge of the mules and had been instructed by his employer not to let them be uesed after work hours He struck young Miller with a stick when the boy tried to take one of the animals from the lot, and the latter became enraged and stabbed Smith to the heart with a Barlow knife The case was one of the hardest fought trials of the present session of court

George Smith, a negro convicted at the last term of superior court of the murder of Jesse Simmons at Olympia, was carried to the courthouse today to be resentenced to death, but it was discovered after the prisoner was arraigned that the official finding of the court of appeals, which recently refused a new trial of the case, had not been received here. The higher court turned down Smith's appeal for a new trial some time ago, but there has been a delay in transmitting the finding of the court This is expected in a few days and Smith will then be resentenced to death

COMMISSION RULE IN COLUMBUS SEEMS DOOMED TO DEFEAT

Columbus, Ga, November 29—(Special)—The proposition to substitute government by commission for the present mayor-and-aldermen system in Columbus seems doomed to defeat Registration for the election, which will be held early in December, closed today

There is now active, organized opposition to government by commission under the proposed bill, a "Greater Columbus club" having been formed for this and other purposes, with Walter W Curtis chairman Advocates of commission government are themselves divided, many of them taking the position that the bill as drawn, providing for a commission for the city of Columbus and defining its powers, has serious objections Originally, both the daily newspapers here favored commission government, but the morning paper, The Enquirer-Sun, now expresses itself as opposed to the present bill

It seems quite probable that the approaching election will result against commission government, and also that at some time the future another election will be held under a bill that will eliminate the most serious objections to the present measure

LIEUTENANT HAWLEY REACHES RIVERSIDE

Gainesville, Ga, November 28—(Special)—First Lieutenant Harry Hawley, Ninth Infantry, United States army, reached Gainesville yesterday and immediately assumed his duties as professor of military science and tactics at Riverside.

Lieutenant Hawley is a graduate of West Point in class of 1904 and served in the Philippines in 1905-06 and again in 1910-11, two years of which time was spent in exploration and survey work in the interior of the islands of Luzon and Mindanao He also served in the Hawaiian islands in 1912

In addition to his varied foreign service, Lieutenant Hawley is a distinguished marksman He was a member of the infantry team at Camp Perry in 1909, where he won first place among all the marksmen of the army. In 1914, also at Camp Perry, he won the governor's match over seven hundred competitors from the army, navy, national guard and marine corps

The coming of Lieutenant Hawley puts R. M. A. in the forefront of the schools in this section. Riverside is now the only private military academy in the south at which an active West Point officer is detailed, and Lieutenant Hawley's distinction as a marksman, in addition to his West Point instruction and experience fits him for his work at Riverside, whose magnificent equipment and unique location lend themselves so admirably to just that kind of work for which he is so eminently qualified

President Beaver today expressed his delight over Riverside's extreme good fortune in securing Lieutenant Hawley's services

PLAN NEW CIRCUIT.

Turner, Worth, Colquitt and Tift Counties in It.

Tifton, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) It is probable that the next general assembly will be asked to create a new judicial circuit in South Georgia by taking the counties of Turner and Worth from the Albany circuit and the counties of Colquitt and Tift from the Southern circuit. Both these circuits are already large, and recent legislation, which abolished the city courts of Sylvester and Moultrie and provided for four quarterly terms of two weeks each for the superior courts of Worth and Colquitt has added to the work of the presiding judges until they have practically no vacation period.

The time of the Southern circuit was already so well filled when the new county of Tift was created eight years ago that the spring term of Tift superior court was fixed for July and the fall term for December. Since many of the city courts have been abolished it has been necessary to hold adjourned terms of superior court to dispose of the litigation and the judges have had difficulty in finding weeks not already provided for in which these adjourned terms could be held.

Movements are already on foot to abolish the city courts of Tifton and Ashburn, a bill to abolish the one at Tifton having been introduced at the last session of the legislature. If this is done, the burden of the already crowded circuits will be increased.

The four counties mentioned form a square and a presiding judge in either of them, could be reached by a few minutes ride by rail or auto from any of the others With four terms of court of two weeks each in two of the counties, and a similar law in the other two, thirty-two weeks of superior court a year would already be provided for, leaving only twenty weeks for vacation periods, called terms and business of like nature.

Whether or not a new circuit as outlined is provided for, it is almost certain that there will be some seadjustment of the Albany and Southern circuits at an early date. An attempt was made at the last session of the legislature to put Turner in the Cordele circuit but it failed because of opposition of the citizens of that county The recent change in the judgeship of the Albany circuit leads many to think that now is an auspicious time to advocate a change in that circuit The people of Tift and Colquitt would regret to lose the services of Judge Thomas, but they realize the heavy work the large circuit is putting on him and that it will not be many years before he is called to a higher position.

Congressman, Stung While Fishing, Is Saved by Quick Medical Attention.

Valdosta, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—Congressman J. R. Walker, of the eleventh district, came very near dying from the bite of a huge spider yesterday while on a fishing trip twelve miles south of here.

Mr. Walker was the guest of J. F. Stapler and Edward Ashley, at a camp on the Willacoochee river, near Rockyford Mr. Walker was almost paralyzed from the spider's poison and suffered intensely

As soon as the gravity of his condition was discovered, Dr. Cary, of Olympia, was hastily summoned and he administered remedies which no doubt saved Mr. Walker's life. He was today brought to the Bellevue hospital in this city, and is yet suffering slightly from the poison.

The Mind Expands As Health Returns

Quick Improvement Is Noticeable When Proper Aid to Nutrition Is Given.

A low state of the general health is now the accepted cause of backwardness in children So in the case of a backward child it is best to look towards building up its health. It will usually be found that the main trouble is in the food, in lack of assimilation and digestion Hence care should be taken in the kind of food given to the child. This, with plenty of air and exercise, should bring about a change for the better

Watch the condition of the bowels, to note whether the waste is being passed off or not, or whether it is being passed too freely. It is pleasant to the taste and so perfectly safe that it is given to infants, and yet is equally effective for grown people All druggists sell it and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter for families who need it regularly

LUCILE McBROOM.

Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has no equal as a cure for constipation, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, liver trouble and kindred complaints. ARMY SPRINGS SEASON'S BIG SURPRISE

Army Mule Canters Over Navy Goat; Cadets Add to a Season of Surprises By Furnishing Biggest of Them All

New York, November 29.—The army football team furnished a spectacular and confusing finale to the eastern football season of 1913 by defeating the navy eleven at the Polo grounds today by a score of 22 to 9.

Completely outplayed during the opening period of the game, the cadets swept the sailors off their feet in the second half of the contest by a combination of brilliant individual and open team play that quickly rolled up an overwhelming lead.

With victory in sight for the first time in four years the West Point team scored rapidly and finished the game with a total that has not been exceeded by either academy in ten years.

Despite the annihilation of the navy's hope of a fourth consecutive victory over the army the game was fought out desperately until the closing moment and the sailors went down with colors flying.

Man to Man Struggle.

From a technical football standpoint the playing of both victor and vanquished did not rise above the usual caliber of the annual gridiron struggle between the two academies. Much of the work of the coaches went for naught when the battle reached its height and there was the usual catch-as-catch-can man struggle, with football team work more or less forgotten.

From the standpoint of the spectators, however, the game and its setting lost nothing of its thrilling grip and interest as a result and the 42,000 persons present gasped and cheered by turns at the kaleidoscopic playing scenes depicted.

The use of the forward pass repeatedly by the cadets opened up the play to a far greater extent than the more conservative line attack and runs of the middies, thus furnishing the spectators many brilliant football pictures. It was in the execution of this play that the army advantage lay and the final score demonstrates how successfully it was worked.

In the opening quarter, the two elevens played the usual eastern game, with the attack directed principally at the line and outside tackle. In this period the advantage lay entirely with the middies, who used their weight and speed for consistent gains.

Brown's First Goal.

Near their own goal line the Army held firmly and Brown, the middies' right guard, was called back to the cadets' twenty yard line, whence he kicked a placement goal. In the second period he duplicated the feat after Hodgson dropped one of Nicholls' punts and Gilchrist recovered.

The Army got into action in this quarter also, and sent the score seesawing with a field goal and touchdown. Early in the period the soldiers gained the ball on the Navy's 10-yard line as a result of a blocked punt from Nicholls' toe. The West Point backs could make no impression on the navy line and Woodruff, who replaced Jouett for the occasion, kicked an easy goal from placement on the navy's 25-yard line.

Just before the quarter ended Prichard caught one of Nicholl's high punts at midfield and raced 15 yards toward the middies' goal before he was down. Then three times in succession Prichard hurled a forward pass.

The first two were uncompleted, but the third shot squarely into the hands of Merrillat, the Army right end, who had run across the middies' goal line, and thus West Point registered the first touchdown of the game, leaving the score at the end of the first half, 10 to 6, in favor of the soldiers, for McEwan failed to kick the goal from touchdown.

The Navy added another goal from placement in the third period when Nicholls, by clever running back of Jouett's punt, placed the ball on the Army's 25-yard line. Checked by the soldiers' defense, Brown scored his third and last goal from placement, kicking from the 30-yard mark.

Merrillat's Great Run.

With the points nine all the cadets opened another brilliant attack. Merrillat, with little or no interference, ran from the Army's 45-yard line to the middies' 1-yard mark before he was tackled from the rear by Gilchrist. Two line plunges, with Captain Hoge carrying the ball, scored the second touchdown, and McEwan kicked the goal, making the score, Army 16, Navy 9.

Not satisfied with this lead, the cadets set out to revenge themselves for their defeats of recent years and succeeded in adding another touchdown. Immediately following the opening of the final period, Captain Hoge caught one of Nicholls' low punts on the Army's 45-yard line and ran unaided to the middies' 20-yard mark before Brown pulled him down.

On the next line-up, Hoge tore through the fast weakening sailors' line for 8 yards. Again Prichard elected to try for a forward pass and again it was Merrillat who caught the flying spheroid behind the Navy goal line for the third touchdown of the game. The ball was downed to the extreme right of the goal posts and the punt out was a failure, leaving the final score: Army 22, Navy 9.

Navy Not Consistent.

During the sixty minutes of play the Navy eleven failed to show the consistent advancing power that had brought them seven victories by big scores in the eight preliminary games of the season. While the Army did not, as a team, diagnose the attack successfully, the desperate charging and tackling of the cadets upset the interference and brought down the runner with little or no gain.

Nicholls, who played under the severe handicap of running the team and the ball, repeatedly was outpunted by Jouett and the Army ends covered the latter punts better than did the middy ends.

It was distance gained by exchange of kicks and in running back punts that usually put the Army in a position for a score. Once within the scoring zone, the cadets relied mainly on the forward pass and the records show that they tried twelve during the game. Three were completed and two resulted in touchdowns. A fourth was intercepted and eight were uncompleted. The middies tried six forward passes, one being intercepted and five grounded.

Although the attack and defense of the two teams lacked the cohesiveness seen in some of the preceding games of the seastern season there was no lack of individual brilliance and daring play.

Brown in Hall of Fame.

Brown in kicking three placement goals in three tries from an average distance of 24 2-3 yards gained a place in the 1913 football hall of fame as did Prichard and Merillat for their operation of the forward pass.

Nicholls, the middy quarterback, shouldered a heavy burden of play and responsibility and came through the contest with much credit. Markes and Merrillat more than held their own with the famous Navy ends, Ingram and Gilchrist with much credit. Markoe and Overesch's work in the Army line.

In the Navy backfield McReavy shared honors with Nicholls, while Hoge, Prichard and Jouett were effective both on the offense and defense in the Army backfield. Coach "Hurry-up" Yost, of Michigan, who spent several days at West Point this week, is also mentioned by Army men in their songs of victory tonight.

The line-up:

Brilliant Crowd.

Forty-two thousand persons saw the Navy go down in defeat this afternoon before the Army eleven on the Polo grounds, transformed from a baseball diamond to a football field. No greater throng has ever seen an Army-Navy game.

The multitude which crowded the stands included President Wilson, the secretaries of war and of the navy, other cabinet officers, senators, congressmen and the flower of the military and naval service. Every seat was occupied and many more persons would have been there had space to seat them been available.

Set in an oval of humanity was the remade gridiron, protected from the rain till this afternoon by a 12-inch blanket of straw. To the south on the side line was the Army stand, to the north sat the Navy, with the field between, raked by a cross fire of cheering that did not end till the Army's colors fluttered over the field from the tops of the goal posts.

President Wilson and his party followed precedent in dividing their time at the game between the contenders. The president was a few minutes late and the game did not start till he had taken his seat in an upper grandstand box almost directly over the Army stand. When the first half ended he was escorted by Secretary of War Garrison, Secretary Daniels, of the Navy, and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt, to the Navy side.

Rain threatened every minute during the first three periods of the game and in the last quarter a drizzle began.

Before Game Scenes.

As the Army battalions marched upon the field, headed by the Cadet band, the crowd cheered. Down the sidelines marched the band, the battalions of gray and gold following in columns of four. Around the field they marched then followed the band the length of the field down the center, fifty abreast, turning by fours, reforming in long lines and halting before the south stand.

As they marked time the Navy eleven ran on to the field. Another cheer went up. The Cadet band quickened its tune to a jig, and the lines of gray broke and ran for the stand.

Meantime a flourish of bugles announced the approach of the Naval battalions. It was nearing time for the game and they marched straight down the center of the field. Across the shoulders of each man's long blue overcoat gleamed a gold band; from each man's hand waved a gold pennant. When they made the stand the blue was hidden by a moving forest of golgen standards and streamers.

The Army eleven scurried out on the field. A great cheer went up. Across the field the Blue and Gold cheered the Army, and the Army, with the blare of many bugles and the roar of many voices, gave back a greeting to the Navy. Blue-coated and gray-garbed cheer leaders, swinging megaphones, darted out to the sidelines and took their stand before each battalion. Then came the tumult of rival cheers and songs drowning the torrent of applause from mere civilians as the elevens took their places.

Navy Cheered First.

A field goal by the Navy in the first quarter set the streamers of gold snapping wildly. For a moment the Army stand was silent, then answered with a gripping cheer of encouragement for their men on the field. In the second period the Army tied the score by scoring a field goal and the Army stand went wild.

But the greatest delirium was saved for the Army touchdown in the same period. Six hundred West Pointers rose to their feet as one man, tossed their caps on high, flashed their pennants of gold and black, unloosed their voices in wild hurrahs and forgot to give their college yells in their delight.

At the end of the game the Army celebrated with the usual rush to the colors. From the stand they stormed the field and danced in a great circle over the gridiron. The circle widened till a line of gray-clad men surrounded the field. In the center were planted the Army colors.

As the crowds surged out on the field from the grandstand two stalwart youths in gray overcoats climbed to the top of the Navy's goal posts and nailed the Army colors there.

President Wilson, who had waited for the last act of the encounter, saw them. He turned to Secretary Daniels: "That was worthy of a sailor," the president said. And Secretary Daniels agreed with him.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TO KEEP JOE TINKER

New York, November 29.—"Tinker will not be allowed to go out of the National league circuit," said President Charles H. Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club, tonight, regarding Joe Tinker, recently relieved as manager of the Cincinnati team.

"The Brooklyn club is going to make a bid for Tinker, and it will be a liberal one."

Ebbets' attention had been called to a published report that President Frank Farrell, of the New York American league club, was anxious to get Tinker.

By MIKE J. DONAHUE
(Coach Auburn Eleven)

The picking of an all-southern team is always a job that must necessarily be more or less guesswork, as it is practically impossible for anyone to see every team in even one game.

Even this would not be much help, because a player should be selected for his work throughout the whole season rather than for his work in any one particular game.

At least, that is the way the writer is going to look at it, and certain players that might otherwise be eligible are not to be considered because of their absence from the game during very critical times during the season.

Very prominent among these are Brown and Morgan, of Vanderbilt; very good men and very probably all-southern players, but, as far as their value to Vanderbilt from an S. I. A. A. standpoint is concerned, they might just as well have not been in college. Another man is Taylor, of Auburn; he was the most important man in Auburn's defense system, and very important in the offense as well. Taylor was no help in the last three games, because of injuries, and cannot be considered.

While the writer has seen nearly all the strong teams play, there are some he has not seen, and so an injustice may be done to some good players that he has not seen, but about whose work he is governed entirely by indirect report.

A man also is liable to do an injustice to some of his own players because he knows their weakness, seeing them every day and only seeing other players perhaps when going at the top of their stride. One is also liable to lean backward when dealing with his own players, for the fear that he will show them any partiality.

It is, then, with all these misgivings that I undertake the task of expressing one among many opinions of what an all-southern team should be composed of:

The Center Trio.

I am going to bunch the three center men, because the Auburn center trio, individually and collectively, outplayed everything they went against this year. Pitts, at center, was easily the best of the year; an accurate passer, a hard charger on the offense, and a terror to opponents on the defense. He knew how to use his hands on breaking through, and his eyes were always wide open.

Thigpen was the best guard of the year; shifty, aggressive, with plenty of weight, he is all-southern by big margin. He was perhaps the most consistent player in the Auburn line, and just the kind of steady player that a good guard ought to be.

Lockwood, at the other guard, was hampered a good deal by injuries, but he played in nearly all the important games, and was always prominent by his work. Not as shifty as Thigpen, he was still impervious to any assault around his territory, and occasionally surprised opponents by breaking through and nailing the runner, for a loss. The average of the year on centers was not up to the usual S. I. A. A. standard.

The next best guards were Malone, of Georgia, and Klock, of L. S. U. Malone was valuable as an interferer, and was occasionally used to carry the ball, while Klock played a very aggressive and hard game against Auburn. If Wynne, of Auburn, could have been kept at guard, he would have been as good as any; but his work was interfered with a great deal by being played in several positions.

Steed, of Auburn, was a good center, but had Pitts ahead of him, and so were Putnam, of Vanderbilt, and Loeb, of Tech.

The Tackles.

There are more candidates for the tackle positions. There were a good many fair tackles, but no really great ones, except perhaps Brown, of Vanderbilt, who is omitted for reasons already mentioned. If Louisell, of Auburn, had not been hampered by injuries most of the year, I would choose him, and if I had to pick a combination at the end of the season to play any other combination, I would take him for tackle. His kicking is, also, a very important factor. He was out a good deal of the time, however.

Perhaps the best and most consistent tackle of the year was Schiletter, of Clemson. He is heavy, aggressive, and a hard man to handle. He has held his own, and has mostly outplayed every man he has been against this season. For the other tackle, I will pick a player who, while he has not played that position, showed every indication that he could play it, and play it well.

Dutton, of L. S. U., played a roving center against Auburn, sometimes coming through at guard, sometimes at tackle, but always boring and tearing things up. He gave Auburn more trouble than any lineman this year. Esslinger, of Auburn, was a good, steady player in this position, as was also Turner, of Georgia.

The Ends.

Robinson, at right end for Auburn, was the best end of the year, and it was nearly impossible to get him out of the way. Enoch Brown, of Vanderbilt, was also good, but not as good as last year. The cares of being captain and trying to help out a weak line interfered with the effectiveness of his work. Kearley, of Auburn, is a good end that was spoiled by being shifted to the backfield in an effort to add weight to that department. He worked well in the backfield, and in the Georgia game played as good a game at the end as anyone of the year. Conklin, of Georgia, was another good, consistent player.

Halfbacks.

In the backfield, there is no trouble about the halfback positions, as Newell and McWhorter stood head and shoulders above everyone else, though I did not think that McWhorter was quite as good as he was last year. They are both fast, shifty, and capable of standing all sorts of punishment.

Newell, in spite of his light weight, played in eight S. I. A. A. games, with everyone watching him. In spite of that, he gained ground repeatedly, receiving all kinds of punishment, and never had to be taken out. He is the most valuable halfback that Auburn has ever had, and the passing of him and McWhorter removes two of the south's greatest halfbacks from the arena.

Other good halfbacks were Cook, of Tech; Vandergraff, of Alabama, and Logan, of Clemson.

The Quarters.

There are Boensch (Vanderbilt), Tolley (Sewanee), L. Dupont (L. S. U.) and Arnold, of Auburn, for quarter. As this was Arnold's first year at the position, the cares of conducting a team toward the championship interfered materially with his individual play. He is really a first-class man carrying the ball, but used himself very little.

To my mind, the best man of the lot is Paddock, of Georgia—heady, experienced, and a brilliant individual player. Boensch is as brilliant an individual player, but not nearly as good a general. He was very brilliant in his individual playing against Auburn, but the fact that Auburn was perhaps playing the poorest game of the year may have had something to do with it. The other quarterbacks followed these closely. In fact, the competition here is keener than for any other position.

At Fullback.

The question of fullback will bring on a lot of discussion.

Harris, of Auburn, was the most talked-of fullback of the year. For a man of his weight, he is the most wonderful fullback I have ever seen. However, he weighs only 147, and it is very doubtful whether he could stand a full game or not. He goes so hard that he would very likely batter himself to pieces. This is his first year, and if he puts on any weight to amount to anything he bids fair to be one of the south's greatest fullbacks.

There were other good fullbacks at Auburn—Christopher and Bidez. When these men were good, they were very good, but they were not as consistent as Harris. Vanderbilt could not stop Bidez, but against Georgia it was Christopher that could not be stopped.

Because of his experience, his defensive ability, and because of the fact that with any kind of help he would go into a line mighty hard, I am going to put Sikes, of Vanderbilt, at fullback. Harris can afford to wait for the honors to come, while Sikes has had two years at fullback as well as the present year at half. Webb, of Clemson; McDonald, of Tech, and Ward, of Sewanee, are good men, but none of them hit the line with the force and drive of those above mentioned.

This team is a little weak in just one department of the game, and that is punting. Paddock is fair, but not as good as Louisell. The team, however, is strong in all other departments of play, and could be moulded into a formidable aggregation.

Welchonce Accepts Terms And Captaincy of Locals; Exhibition Dates Fixed

Harry Welchonce, the leading batter of the Southern league during the past season, has come to terms with the Crackers for the season of 1914, and has accepted the captainey of the team as tendered him by Manager Billy.

With Welchonce, the team's best and surest hitter already lined up, Manager Smith's worries are fast leaving. Welchonce is the nucleus of a mighty fast outfield for 1913.

As for Ambrose McConnell, Manager Smith states that all the papers transferring the second-sacker from Toronto to the Crackers have been received, and that all that remains is for McConnell's consent.

Manager Smith will have a talk with McConnell when he goes to New York next week, and expects to line him up without any trouble. While in New York the local mogul will try to purchase some more infielders.

Eible Pleased.

Harry Eible, the Crackers' new first baseman, is pleased to come to the Crackers, according to a letter that Manager Smith has just received.

Eible writes in part: "I'm tickled to death over the prospect of playing for your club next season. You will never regret having purchased me. I will do my durndest."

That's the kind of spirit that Bill likes, and if Eible just lives up to that every one will be satisfied. He is 5 feet 10 inches tall, and weighs 172 pounds.

Eible lives in Brooklyn, N. Y., and Manager Smith will look him up when he goes to the National league meeting and have a talk with him.

Exhibition Games.

Seventeen exhibition games have already been booked for the Crackers for the 1914 season. One National league, two American league, one International league and one American association team will be played.

Here is the list of dates:

March 16, 17, 18—Louisville.
March 19, 20, 21—Cleveland.
March 26—New York Americans.
March 30, 31—Boston Nationals, in Macon.
April 2, 3, 4—Boston Nationals.
April 7, 8, 9, 10, 11—Rochester.

MORE SIX-DAY RIDERS ARRIVE FOR BIG RACE

New York, November 29.—Another contingent of foreign cycle racing stars who are to take part in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden, December 7 to 13, reached here today on the steamer La Lorraine. The men are Farchicot and Bruston, who will ride as a team in the colors of France, and Packenbusch and Appleans, Germans.

COMPOSITE ALL-SOUTHERN PICK BY NINE COACHES AND SCRIBES

BY JOE L. BAKER.

Knoxville, Tenn., November 29.—(Special.)—Coach Clevenger, of the University of Tennessee, and the sporting writer of The Knoxville Journal and Tribune, invited most of the football coaches and sporting writers in the S. I. A. A. to join them in selecting an all-southern football eleven by ballot.

Responses were had from nine, who chose the following team:

Ends—E. Brown (Vanderbilt), Robinson (Auburn).

Tackles—T. Brown (Vanderbilt), Turner (Georgia).

Guards—Thigpen and Pitts (Auburn).

Center—Morgan (Vanderbilt).

Halves—McWhorter (Georgia), Newell (Auburn), Rainey (Tennessee).

Fullback—Harris (Auburn), McWhorter (Georgia).

Quarter—Paddock (Georgia).

Several who selected Rainey for half made room for him by switching McWhorter to fullback, considering him the ideal man for that position, which explains how Rainey and McWhorter happened to tie for halfback and how McWhorter and Harris received the same number of votes for fullback.

But every man picking a team chose Newell for a halfback's place and McWhorter for either half or full. Likewise, T. Brown for tackle and E. Brown for end, of Vanderbilt, were unanimous selections. Carroll, of Tennessee, was a close second to Robinson, of Auburn, for an end position.

By the same process the following second eleven was chosen:

Ends—Conklin (Georgia), Robinson (Auburn), and Vandergraff (Alabama), equal votes.

Tackles—Kelley and Hayley (Tennessee).

Guards—MacCallum (Sewanee) and Lockwood (Auburn).

Center—Loeb (Georgia Tech).

Quarter—Boensch (Vanderbilt).

Halves—Rainey (Tennessee), Sikes (Vanderbilt).

Fullback—Hart (Auburn).

The coaches joining in the pick were Clevenger, of Tennessee; Cunningham, of Georgia; Graves, of Alabama; Major, of Clemson, and Hardage, of Mercer.

McGugin, of Vanderbilt; Cope, of Sewanee, and Heisman, of Tech, declined to make selections.

The first team picked by the nine men is the same as the one chosen by The Constitution's sporting editor a week ago.

The Old-Time Fan Says
HIT AND RUN NOT OBSOLETE

By Charles A. Lamar.

Recently a baseball writer whirled in and emitted, with considerable glee, not to say eclat, a bunch of chatter on the passing of the "hit and run" game in baseball. Well, he got the wires crossed at the start and when his gab was added up it was developed that he had missed the bull's-eye every time and was stranded many kilometers from the answer.

Not being in wireless distance of his goal, he dismissed the subject with the assertion: "The hit and run game is fast becoming a lost art in baseball." But is it? Well, I wot not and also nay.

Orioles Started.

The Orioles, of Baltimore, evolved and developed the "hit and run game" to a high degree of efficiency and tore the other teams in the National league to tatters with it before anybody could get wised up.

In due time, however, the other folks got "next," after which all hands fell for the art—which is simple enough if the batsmen have the necessary "class"—and used it to the limit. That was a good many years ago.

Still later it began to wane with the Orioles and then they took up the meek and lowly bunt and whiffed the whole blooming shooting match to the hog train with the "sacrifice" game as they had previously done with the "hit and run" stunt.

Collins and Bunts.

The meteoric advent of Jimmy Collins, of the Bostons, however, put a crimp in the Orioles' bunting that couldn't be straightened out with a crowbar. Collins, in my opinion, was stronger on fielding bunts than any other third baseman ever developed in baseball.

He was a wonder, and that's no iridescent dream, either. He would dive in on slow bunts from the war clubs of Keeler, McGraw, Jennings et al. and wing them a mile from first without turning a feather. According to my brand of dope that was considerable winging. Yes!

Primarily, the Orioles developed the bunt to checkmate Amos Rusie, whose high fast ones flew over the pan with a hop, skip and a roar, and the Baltimores, not being sluggers or cryptograph specialists, were compelled to sit up and take notice or take to the woods.

They couldn't hit Rusie's terrific speed and corkscrew benders with a paddle. But they could bunt, and you can lay to the fact that they finally succeeded in stopping Rusie, too. That's a guaranteed cinch, take it from me.

Hit and Run Ebbing.

Of late years, however, the "hit and run" game has been steadily ebbing. But to assert that it is a "lost art" is absurd. It is true, to be sure, that the managers in the big show seem to prefer the sacrifice system. There are two notable exceptions, namely, John J. McGraw and Frank Leroy Chance, two of the stalwarts of baseball.

The Giants and the New York Americans play the "hit and run" game to a fare-you-well. And they get away with it, at that. Of course Frank Chance had no team to start with last season and what his sordid rivals did to him was a little more than a plenty. But don't kid yourself into thinking that the "hit and run" game looks like a Chinese puzzle to Chance's men. It doesn't. Not much.

Charm of Baseball.

What is the peculiar charm that attaches to the game of baseball? Well, it would be hard to define it accurately, or even at all to an Englishman. And mainly because baseball illustrates to a very high degree the temperament of the American people.

Alertness, system and rapidity of attack and defense appeal with peculiar force to the masses, the classes and also the lassies in this country. Another potent factor is the uncertainty of the result of any given contest. That is really the sheet anchor of the game's popularity.

But above all, the game is honest to the core. The millionaires, the merchant princes, the bankers and the working men of all classes, each in their day and generation, have succumbed to it.

There is something in the crisp air of the vernal equinox when the teams from the big show start their pilgrimage to the south, which helps the loyal fans to cast off the burdens of the day and scoff at the shadows of tomorrow.

Baseball a Business.

Professional ball in this country is a tremendous business and in no sense a fad. The men who own and pilot the destinies of the baseball clubs in the American and National leagues have invested an enormous amount of money in the business.

They are trained business men and whilst there are some among them who, by their methods, have brought the game into disrepute at times, yet I am sure that baseball, as a profession, is being rapidly uplifted from year to year and the percentage of honorable men engaged in baseball as owners of franchises is as large as in any other calling in this country.

Courage and Skill.

To excel as a baseball player requires courage, skill and brains—qualifications that the world always has and always will admire. The playing of the game makes tremendous drafts on the nervous energy, vitality and physique of the players.

It is the survival of the "fittest" first, last and all the time. Therefore it stands to reason that the players who have made good and draw princely salaries know full well that they must husband their resources and live clean lives or be shunted on a dilapidated siding to commune with the dogwood blooms.

The majority of ball players are upright and honorable and as clean as a hound's tooth.

In short, the glory of baseball is the trinity of honest manager, honest player and an honest umpire.

There are loaded dice in horse racing, wrestling, sprint racing, prize fighting and also at Monte Carlo, but none in baseball.

Can you beat it? As the Japanese schoolboy would say: "I ask to know."

STAGG TAKES REST.

Chicago Coach Believes He Has Earned Vacation.

Chicago, November 29.—A. Alonzo Stagg, having, as director of athletics at the University of Chicago, achieved the football championship of the Western Inter-Collegiate conference, left today for Pinehurst, N. C., for a vacation of a month.

A little less than a year ago Stagg was threatened with a physical breakdown and went to the Rocky mountains, where he spent several months, returning to Chicago only in time to take charge of football practice.

He still feels that his health requires attention, but he will break his rest in February long enough to attend the meeting of the football rules committee at New York.

In February Mr. Stagg will attend the meeting of the football rules committee in New York and will recommend that the rule relating to the roughing of the kicker should not be enforced too severely. He said the art of blocking punts is one of the best plays in football. Under the present ruling a player who merely bumps the kicker after the latter has booted the ball should be put out of the game.

Stagg believes the officials should be made the sole judges whether the kicker is roughed intentionally or accidentally.

More Field Goal Kicking In 1914 Football Season

By Edward R. Bushnell.

Philadelphia, November 29.—(Special.)—Predictions are dangerous things, but the writer is willing to venture that next year will see more drop and place kicks scored than ever before in the history of the game. The tide toward drop and place kicking set in strongly even this year. Three of the eastern championship games were featured in not having seen a single touchdown scored. Harvard beat Princeton by the score of 8-0, a drop kick by Brickley contributing all the points. Yale and Princeton played each other to a tie a week later, each side scoring one drop kick. Then came the Harvard-Yale game, in which neither side could score a touchdown, Harvard scoring five field goals and a safety for Yale, the Elis getting three additional points for a drop kick by Guernsey.

There is no doubt that this curious situation will appeal strongly to the football rules committee. Football coaches have always preferred touchdowns to field goals, and the rules committee has consistently changed the rules of the game in order that more touchdowns may be scored. They have worked on the theory that touchdowns are to football what batting is to baseball. Originally a goal from field counted 5 points. Then it was reduced to 4 points, and finally to 3 points. A year ago there was a strong sentiment to reduce the value of the field goal to 2 points, but the committee compromised by increasing the value of a touchdown to 6 points.

It will be an interesting problem for the rule-makers to solve. They cannot very well further increase the value of a touchdown nor decrease the value of a field goal. Yet the fact remains that two teams may be evenly matched in all other respects, yet one team possessing a clever drop kicker be able to score almost at will.

As the rules now stand it is impossible for either of two evenly matched teams to score touchdowns except on trick plays. They cannot even do it on forward passes if both teams play a perfect defense for this formation. Touchdowns are the things to be desired, and some assistance will have to be given to the offense or else the defense will have to be weakened if touchdowns are to become the measure of strength between two elevens. The most reasonable method would be to reduce the number of yards to be gained in four attempts from 10 to 8 yards. The fact of the matter is the rules committee has been making wholesale experiments and will probably have to continue them until the proper balance is found between the offense and the defense.

Darlington School Football Squad

Rome (Ga., November 29.—(Special) The Darlington school has made a remarkable good record during the football season just closed Since the seven or eight high schools were organized five years ago into an athletic association Darlington has won the football championship consistently but this year it reduced its schedule so as to meet the best schools of Chattanooga and of Birmingham, Alabama

The team believes it could have won the championship of Georgia if it had been possible to meet the Atlanta school that won but it did not lose a game and the Chattanooga teams which were the only ones which held Darlington to a tie were unusually strong.

The following scores indicate something of how the season went

Darlington 4 Rome High school 0
Darlington 0, McCallie (Chattanooga) 0
Darlington 55 Cartersville 7
Darlington 41 Attalla-Gadsden 7
Darlington 14 Hearn 14
Darlington 7 Chattanooga High school 7
Darlington 40 Rome High school 0
Darlington 13 Cartersville 0
Darlington 20, Marietta 6
Darlington 44 Rome High school 0
Darlington 231, Opponents 40

Coach Harden deserves in large measure credit for the good season The team averaged only 138 pounds but it was unusually fast and it did not miss the weight very much The favorite Darlington play was the forward pass which the team had almost to perfection The best playing through the whole season was done by Riley at quarter Ramey at fullback Ledbetter at halfback, McKenzie at center, and D Arcy at end—all of whom go to college next year, but many first rate players will be left for next year's team

Coach Helped B. H. S.

Boys' High had an exceptionally good season this year and have only two defeats on their records This school had a coach this year, something they have never had before and he worked wonders with a comparative light team. The way they went to pieces in Thursday's game with Tech High is regretted They had a good chance to win this game and would have certainly copped if they had not gone to pieces so badly

Donald Fraser and Stone Mountain celebrated their first year in the Prep league by grabbing off a victory each. Donald Fraser won theirs from Stone Mountain and Stone Mountain won from G. M. A. These two schools had teams that were lighter than the other teams in the Prep league and consequently they did not play as good ball as the rest They will certainly have good teams next season, as they will have all their old men back

BANK CLEARINGS SHOW BIG GAIN IN NOVEMBER

That the bank clearings for 1913 will exceed by many millions of dollars those of last year was the indication Saturday when the clearings for November were shown to be $79,708,928.03, or an increase of $7,186,516 03 over November 1912.

The clearings compare favorably with those of any city of the size of Atlanta in the United States is the opinion of bank experts, all of whom are happy over the increase, particularly as it comes at a time of the year when there is usually a falling off in clearings

MAIDEN CLASS GOLF TOURNEY NOT PLAYED

The golf tournament over the East Lake course of the Atlanta Athletic club for the players who had never won a trophy did not materialize yesterday as expected.

When it came time to start the tournament, there were but five entries received The event will either be postponed until a later date or held over until spring.

PUBLIC CLAMORS FOR HEAVIES NOW

Lightweights Have Been Put Out of Spotlight for While—Many Bouts on Deck for Future.

By JAMES J. CORBETT
Former Heavy-Weight Champion of the World.

New York, November 29.—(Special) I wonder how frequently the public taste changes Same in sports as in everything else Take boxing for example A short while back promoters in this city couldn't attend to do business with the heavyweights it was unprofitable to put two big fellows on as the leading feature of a show The lightweight and other smaller classes had the call with the matchmakers

Now the cards have been shifted The heavies are again in favor with the fans who are clamoring for more bouts between big men To satisfy the latest public demand the larger clubs are offering inducements to bring the classiest of the white heavyweights to this city and with fair success as may be noted in the advance bulletins issued by the promoters

More matches between big fellows are scheduled right now than at any one time before in the history of boxing in New York This big town—with its several boroughs—supports something like twenty five clubs and a glance at the matches on the fire for the next few weeks show the heavies in the lead over all other classes

Reno Changed Taste.

Until that Reno thing three years or so ago the heavies had always maintained a comfortable lead in the race for popularity, but the disappointing result of that sad affair and the subsequent fruitless efforts of numberless white hopes to show anything like the form demanded of first class fighting men turned the tide in favor of the lighter classes

In the smaller divisions a boxing fan can generally be sure of fast and scientific action which is not so much a part of encounters of big men Still there is an attractiveness about a match between heavies which is lacking in a contest of little fellows, no matter how expert the latter may be

Another thing the change in the system of governing matches—that of limiting them to six and ten rounds and prohibiting referees decisions—is against the continued popularity of the little fellows as it is seldom in a bout of such short duration that there is a decisive ending

Two small men are pretty nearly a safe bet to go the ten rounds nineteen times out of twenty and when big men clash it is not any cinch a bout will go the limit, and say what you will the average fan likes a decisive finish Under the present system in New York and other states where official decisions are not rendered a decisive battle is undeniably popular

If referees decisions were permitted I think it would tend to lessen the desire for knock-out finishes Most fans would be satisfied if the fighters were both on their feet at the end of a bout if the referee was allowed to name the winner, and in my mind the rules prohibiting such official action generates a desire in the public mind for knock-outs

Morris vs. Willard.

The more important heavyweight matches arranged for the entertainment of local fans are the Carl Morris Jess Willard bout at Madison Square Garden next Tuesday night (which Matchmaker Billy Gibson assures me will positively take place despite rumors to the contrary), the Jack Lester-Jim Coffee match at the Fairmount A C on Friday and the come back attempt of 'Fireman' Jim Flynn in a bout with Battling Levinsky at the Atlantic Garden Tuesday week

Giving this layout the once over it will be observed that most of the classy hopes are here on the job With the exception of the Gunboat and Petky who are to meet in San Francisco around the holidays, and Frank Moran, who is still sticking around Paris in the hope of getting a match with Johnson, we have the cream of the white heavyweight talent in New York

A hustling promoter could corner the crop of white heavies and settle the so-called white heavyweight championship right here in Gotham before the winter is over

Let us hope one of the gentlemen who provide fistic entertainment will arise to the occasion

Levinsky v. Flynn.

A word about Battling Levinsky who boxes Jim Flynn next week This young fellow formerly performed under the name of 'Barney' Williams, but when Danny Morgan took hold of him he was persuaded to sail under his own colors Levinsky is a light heavyweight, weighing 170 at the most, and the way he has been cleaning up the third raters around here makes him look due for better company

Flynn, while not the man he was two years ago, is still good enough to lick any counterfeit and if Levinsky is not "there" it will not take the hard hitting ex-fireman long to discover it The match should determine Battling's" rating among the heavies

Manager Morgan has already dubbed Levinsky a 'second Joe Choynski" Outside of a similarity in names and the fact that both are Hebrews nothing Levinsky has accomplished to date would entitle him to consideration in the same breath with the famous Joseph In his prime Joe was a bear I know I fought him several times, once to a finish, and believe me Choynski could battle some

Smith Underrated.

There are quite a few skeptics in this world of ours It is difficult to make some folks believe that 'Gunboat' Smith beat Sam Langford on the level I wonder what Smith would have to do to Langford to convince the doubters he is the better man Had he put Sam away the same fellows would have claimed that the negro laid down

The truth of the matter is that Langford was not in shape to show at his best, also that 'Gunboat' Smith has graduated from the sucker class in pugilism It is a case where one man was overrated and the other fellow underrated Langford is not the man he was before he took that Australian trip He has gone back or I am no judge

I am not claiming that Smith can beat Langford if the latter is properly trained But I doubt very much if Sam will ever again be the terror he was a few years ago In the recent match with Joe Jeannette he fought a very bad battle His judgment of distance was miserable and at no time did he resemble the great fighter we knew in the past Of course, he was fat and all that, but a fat man can fight a round or two at a pretty good lick when pressed, and Sam failed to show even a flash of his old form

Anyway it is not fair to the Gunboat to insinuate that he stayed the twelve rounds and earned the referees decision simply because Sam allowed him to do so The probability is Smith stuck the distance without permission from the negro and strictly on his ability

Tourney for Middles.

Jim Coffroth will try to accomplish what other matchmakers have failed to do—promote a middleweight elimination tournament to decide the championship of that class With that object in view Coffroth is offering inducements to the leading aspirants for the title, including George Chip, Mike Gibbons, Frank Klaus and Jack Dillon and if his plans do not miscarry an undisputed champion may be developed within the next few months Jimmy Clabby is already on the ground and ready to take on all comers as fast as they arrive

While other promoters have fallen down on similar projects Coffroth may succeed He is the most capable man in the fight promotion line today, and generally goes through with anything he undertakes From advices I have received from parties closely associated with 'Sunny Jim' I understand his offers are so liberal that only lack of ambition or fear of defeat on the parts of those invited will keep them from entering the tourney

I am told Frank Klaus plans a trip abroad where the pickings have been pretty soft for him in the past But I imagine that if Chip enters the proposed tournament nothing short of an earthquake would keep Frank from making the trip to the coast to try to even up matters with his rival

Of Chip's plans nobody seems to know a thing Jimmy Dime, the old time boxer who looks after his affairs, says Chip is willing to meet anyone in the division, but I know that he refused to consider a proposition to box Mike Gibbons at the middleweight limit of 158 Is Chip another of those light heavies who have been masquerading as middleweights the past few years' Looks that way, else he would not have insisted on a higher scale for the Gibbons match

CITY PREP SEASON BEST IN HISTORY

Good Football Played--The Financial Returns Were Better Than Ever Before. Five Teams in League.

Final Standing of Prep League.

Boys High School	3	1	750

By Carl Taylor

The above is the way the local Prep league ended its 1913 football season The playing of all five teams was good and consistent throughout the entire season Every team played every game, and what's more, fought hard for every game they played

The league had the best season both financially and in the class of ball played, it has had in many years

Five Teams.

The league started off with five teams, which was two more than comprised it last year, and also admitting Stone Mountain to the local circuit, which is an innovation to this league.

Stone Mountain has always had betters teams than the local schools and it was expected that they would clean up everything in sight But the converse of this was true, Stone Mountain succeeded in winning only one game out of the four that they played, and this was from the disheartened G M A Nevertheless, they played good ball and will be heard from next year when the season of 1914 begins

Another huge surprise to followers of the Prep league was the showing of G M A This school had for the last four years turned out teams that have been the class of the Prep league and have cleaned up everything in sight This year, they had a good team, but the Boys' High and Tech High simply had the best teams that they have had in years and G. M A was forced to bow to them

Tech High Best.

Tech High has copped the honors of the league and also has a perfect record for games played this year. They have played seven games and won every one of them Riverside was the first to fall before them and this was something that a Prep team from Atlanta has never been able to accomplish before. Then Rome Athletic club, who outweighed Tech High 20 pounds to the man, were the next to fall before the conquerors Locust Grove, G. M. A., Donald Fraser, Stone Mountain and B H S fell in the order named They have as good claim to the state Prep championship as anybody, and as they have beaten Riverside and as Riverside tied Georgia Military College, they have an even better claim than G. M C

Many Alibis in Baseball; Billy Evans Relates Few

By Billy Evans.

Baseball furnishes some of the most extraordinary alibis imaginable. Two that I recall as originated by Ping Bodie, of the White Sox, and Hank Perry, for a time with Detroit, are decidedly out of the ordinary.

When Perry joined the Tigers his reputation as a slugger had preceded him. The Detroit outfield was such a strong one, however, that it was impossible for Perry to break in as a regular. Several times Jennings sent him to bat in the pinch, and each time he responded with long drives that were captured by the outfield.

Knowing that Perry hit the ball hard when he connected, the outfielders played extremely deep for him. Each time after flying out, Perry came back to the Detroit bench the picture of disgust.

A few days later, with the bases filled and two down, Jennings yanked out the pitcher and sent Perry into bat. He urged him to take a crack at the ball and break up the game. Perry, as he stepped to the plate, noticed that the fielders backed up almost to the fence for him. Perry had an idea. He decided he would pull the unexpected. The pitcher, knowing that Perry could hit, tried to get him to go after a bad ball, but Perry refused. Finally the count stood three balls and no strikes. It was a cinch that the pitcher would try to get the next one over, for if he failed it would force in a run. It was over, but Perry let it go by. The umpire declared it a strike.

Perry's Alibi.

That was good enough baseball, but it was up to Perry to take a crack at the next one if it was over. The pitcher sent another one right over, but Perry stood motionless. It was declared a strike by the umpire, making the count three balls and two strikes. Jennings, on the coaching line, was raving like mad. The next ball was in the same place, but once more Perry refused to hit at it. It was declared a strike, retiring the batter and the side, and ending a rally.

This time as Perry approached the bench he was roasted by every Detroit player, but instead of being sore or disgusted he wore a broad smile. As he took the usual drink of water, customary after striking out, he remarked:

"Well, if it wasn't for that blind umpire I would have pulled the unexpected. They felt sure I would hit the ball, but I fooled them by waiting 'em out." Perry is no longer with Detroit.

One day last summer Callahan sent Ping Bodie to bat in the ninth in place of the pitcher. The Sox were five runs behind and two were out. Naturally Ping tried his best to hit, but fanned. As he walked back to the bench he remarked to me with a smile:

"What is the use of hitting with no one on the bases and five runs behind? It would only have prolonged the game." A few weeks later Ping went to the bat with the bases filled, two out and three runs needed to tie. He tripled and the game went extra innings before Chicago finally won. Two or three innings later I referred to the way he had prolonged the game, but Ping was too much for me.

"I thought we only needed three runs to win, Bill, or I would have stretched that hit into a home run," was his reply. Don't believe I ever saw Ping run quite so fast before in my life.

Jennings Likes to Mix Them Up.

Hughey Jennings, famous leader of the Detroit Tigers, always believes in mixing up the style of play. He never wants a man to go through with a play when it appears suicidal. Often Cobb goes to the plate with the intention of bunting. He sees the infield is set for just such a play, that in all probability the pitcher will put a ball up to his liking, hoping that he will go through with the play. Then it is that Cobb switches things and either pulls the ball down the right field line a mile a minute or else almost knocks the third baseman's legs off.

When a new player joins the Tigers Jennings always impresses on him the importance of mixing things up, of trying to outguess the opposition by doing the unexpected. For a number of years, while studying law at Cornell, Jennings also coached the varsity baseball team.

Naturally he always tried to make the collegians play the same style of ball that he demanded of the professionals. Incidentally, the collegian can offer just as many alibis as the professional.

"When you see the first baseman or third baseman creeping in on you to get the hunt, switch your play and hit it out," was the bit of advice often handed out by Jennings to the collegians.

Collegians Had Some Alibi.

In a game down south Hughey signaled for the squeeze play, a man being on third. Of course the runner dashed in as the pitcher delivered the ball, and in so doing, almost hit the runner on the head with the ball. The batter connected safely, driving the ball over the right fielder's head for a home run. Jennings didn't enthuse a bit.

On the contrary, he was very much peeved. No one was looking for the squeeze, and had the batter bunted he would have had the infield flat-footed. He called the collegian down in good style. He almost keeled over in a faint, however, when the collegian, on being asked why he had ever switched, replied:

"Didn't you see the right infielder creeping in on me?"

A few years ago the Chicago Americans secured a pitcher from one of the smaller minor leagues. In batting practice the recruit showed a lot of stuff when pitted against the regulars. It looked very much as if the White Sox had picked up a real find in the youngster.

Lack of experience and ability to field his position was the only thing that kept Manager Callahan from starting him in a game. In order to get the recruit accustomed to big league ways also to acquire confidence, he was sent into pitch after several games were hopelessly lost. In each instance the young pitcher came through in the most approved style.

In one game, which I umpired back of the plate, I remember that he allowed only one hit in the last five innings of the play. He showed me a sweeping curve ball that caused five of the opposition to go out on strikes in as many innings. His other appearances were just about as successful. The youngster began to realize his importance, began to feel that he was being discriminated against in only being allowed to finish games that were lost.

Before the start of one of the games with the Athletics he was sitting on the bench next to me. I complimented him on his work of the day previous. It was late in the season and he had yet to start his first game.

Wanted to Show the Natives.

"I'm getting tired of this big league stuff," remarked the youngster in response to my words of praise, "I would rather be back in the bushes where you get a chance to display your ability."

"Many of the present stars held down the bench for a couple of years before getting a chance," I replied.

"That may be all right for some of them, but I'm ready to go the route in the big league now. I'm a whole lot better than a bunch of these fellows who get knocked out only to have me finish the game. Instead of starting a game I warm up for five innings and then finish it."

The youngster was very much discouraged.

The great success he had met with on each appearance made him feel confident of his ability to deliver. I told him that his chance to make good would come in due time, if he was but patient. Strangely enough it came the next afternoon. Crippled condition of the pitching staff practically made it necessary that he be used to start the game. Naturally he was nervous. The sensation of starting a game was entirely different from finishing a contest that was lost.

In his effort to puzzle the opposition he tried to get too much on the ball, was wild, and being constantly in the hole, was forced to put the ball over and trust to luck. In such cases the Athletics hopped on the cripple and in three innings had piled up a seven-run lead. That marked the exit of the recruit. As he walked past me on the way to the bench I whispered:

"It is a trifle different—starting from finishing."

"I'm so used to pitching four or five innings before getting a chance to pitch that ten minutes' workout failed to get me properly warmed up," was his response. "The next time they intend using me I'm going to insist on knowing at least an hour before game time." The trimming handed the youth had not destroyed his confidence in the least. He will probably be a star in a couple of years.

G. M. C. Claims Prep Title On Their Season's Record

The following letter from the heads of the Georgia Military college explains itself:

To the Sporting Editor: In concluding the football season, which was ended with us on Thanksgiving, when the Georgia Military college defeated Gordon Institute by a score of 15 to 6, we want to take occasion to thank you for the excellent treatment received by your paper and the consideration you have shown us in your sporting columns.

The history of the athletic features of the Georgia Military college for the past season has been a story of unbroken success, due largely to the splendid manhood embodied in the students ad their unusual compliance with all rules of the institution, including the literary department and the military discipline, together with their love for athletics.

We are absolutely sure of our claim to the state prep championship being secure and the strong teams we have played, without defeat, will show this when comparisons are made. Tech High, which is one of the contenders for the position, has not played all the representative teams which we have fought successfully; they canceled their Gordon date, met Riverside in a crippled condition and won a victory by one point. One of the games demonstrating our strength was the contest with Dahlonega, which team held Georgia 61 to 0, and when played by Georgia Military college the score was 25 to 0 in favor of our team. Tech High did not play Hahlonega at all.

The following is a list of our games and scores:

G. M. C. 40, Granite Hill 0.
G. M. C. 60, Mercer Subvarsity 0.
G. M. C. 30, Gordon 14.
G. M. C. 102, Tenth District A. & M. 6.
G. M. C. 25, Dahlonega 0.
G. M. C. 26, Georgia Freshmen 19.
G. M. C. 20, Riverside 20.
G. M. C. 15, Gordon 6.

The total score of the entire series shows G. M. C. 332 and all others 59.

A close comparison will show conclusively that the Georgia Military college has made the hardest schedule of any institution in its class in the state and is playing under the strict rules of G. I. A. A. and complying with every requirement, while some other contenders are bound by no regulations. Details of any other institution compared to G. M. C. will show our school leading in points made and with less tallies against it than any other institution.

We will thank you to present our claim to the public for consideration, assuring you of our appreciation of your kindness in the premises. Signed, O. R. Horton, president G. M. C., A. K. Maddox, coach.

Milledgeville, Ga., November 29, 1913.

Regimental Basketball Closes on Friday Night; Title Game at Wind-Up

But one week of the 1913 season of the national guard basketball league remains. The two games on Wednesday night, and the championship battle of Friday will terminate the league.

The fight for first place is between Company G and the Governor's Horse Guard Regulars. Neither team has lost this season, but Company G has won one or two games by the narrowest of margins, and has not yet played the strong Company H team.

The Horse Guard team has experienced but little difficulty in defeating all teams met this season, and the team is now in the best condition of the season.

The Horse Guard team has played six games, as scheduled. Company G has played four, two having been postponed. Hence the two teams meet on Friday night with clean slates. The winner will no doubt be the champions.

A clause in the league constitution provides that shuld a team not lead the league standing by two games over the team in second place, a championship series of three games should be played between the first and second teams. Therefore the winner of Friday's game might not win the championship.

The Governor's Horse Guard Specials, Companies A, K and C, will not again be seen in action in this league. Companies E and H, as well as G, have several games yet to pay. These postponed games will probably be played after the end of the scheduled season.

Rivers v. Dundee.

New Orleans, November 29.—It was announced today that Johnnie Dundee, of New York, and Joe Rivers, of Los Angeles, had been matched for a ten-round fight here Christmas day at Pelican park. It was also announced that "Wild Cat" Ferns, of Kansas City, and Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, welterweights, would fight ten rounds here December 10.

Which Do You Buy Discount or Value?

There are two methods of securing business: One by offering the customer a good article at an established price for a legitimate margin of profit; the other by offering an inferior article at a cut price, trusting to the customer's love of a discount to make the sale. In the first case, the buyer receives the assurance that he paid a standard price; that his neighbor did not buy the article for a lesser amount. In the second case the buyer is left with a bitter taste, realizing that his price depended upon his ability as a trader, not upon the value he received.

In every business there is at least one article that is recognized as a standard by which competing goods are judged. That article is always sold at a fixed price. When you pay that price you are protected against poor quality and cut price. When you buy a competing article listed at the same price you must realize that the article is inferior or the price could not be cut.

The Overland is one of the few automobiles on the market that maintains its price. You can not buy an Overland in Atlanta at one dollar less than list price. Most of our competitors offer you a discount.

LOCAL SOLDIERS DEFEAT 'NOOGAS

The Seventeenth Infantry Eleven Wins From the Eleventh Cavalry by Score of 16 to 7.

In one of the fastest and most evenly contested games of the season the Seventeenth Infantry defeated the Eleventh Cavalry of Chattanooga yesterday afternoon at Fort McPherson by the score of 16 to 7.

There was a large crowd, which included both the local soldier boys and a good-sized delegation from Chattanooga present to witness the contest and to cheer their favorites.

Both of the teams used a great variety of plays with the forward pass claiming the most attention from both field generals.

The Infantry relied more on the pass than the Cavalry did as a result of which they gained much ground for first downs on the fourth down after three unsuccessful attempts at rushing the ball.

Locals Kicked Off.

The Cavalry received the kick-off to start the game. After carrying the ball on end runs and line-bucks from their 25-yard line to the Seventeenth's 35, the Chattanooga team was held for three downs without a gain. But on the fourth a long forward pass from Jones into the waiting arms of Tingle resulted in the first and only score of the game for the Cavalry bunch.

The only other time during the game that the Cavalry threatened the Seventeenth's goal line came in the final period when Tingle intercepted one of the locals passes an ran for 40 yards before he was downed by Swartz. With the ball on the Infantry's 15-yard line a forward pass was attempted, which resulted in Swartz's intercepting it.

Locals First Score.

The Infantry's first score was in the second quarter when Moore carried the ball over for a touchdown on a 12-yard buck, after Swartz had made a pass to Bradberry for a 10-yard gain.

Their second score was in the third quarter on a wonderful 40-yard kick from placement by Bingle from a very difficult angle.

The final touchdown came in the last few minutes of play on a fake place kick formation. As Swartz was kneeling down to hold the ball for a placement kick, he suddenly rose and passed the ball over the goal line to Bradberry for a touchdown.

Swartz Starred.

Swartz played a great game at quarter for the Infantry, running the team in grand style and making some very accurate forward passes to his men. He also returned punts back to practically the same place from which they were kicked.

For the Cavalry, Dezindorf put up the most consistent article of ball. He made a number of swell gains around the ends and also got off some extra long punts.

The line-ups follow:

INTERESTING BOOKLET ABOUT MARMON "48"

An interesting and attractive book just issued by Nordyke & Marmon company is called "The Marmon Forty-Eight in Service." This book is a decided innovation in the field of automobile literature, and is causing much favorable comment wherever it goes. Its obvious purpose is to acquaint owners and prospective owners of motor cars with the very wide distribution enjoyed by the Marmon Forty-Eight.

This purpose is admirably carried out by means of photographs which carry more conviction than pages of reading matter could do and with less fatigue to the reader. Truly, he who runs may read this book.

A single page of reading matter by way of introduction is followed by fourteen pages of photographic reproductions showing the Marmon Forty-Eight in use in widely separated parts of the United States and Canada.

A feature that adds tremendously to the pleasing effect is the color scheme. A sepia brown ink on a dull finish buff paper lends an air of distinctiveness and tone to the book, that could hardly have been secured with any other combination of colors for this particular subject.

NO-RIM-CUT

Five Minutes Will Win You to

All-Weather Treads

The treads are double-thick—
The rubber is extra tough—
The grips are deep and enduring—
The edges stay sharp—
They face the skidding direction—
The blocks meet at the base—
The surface is flat and smooth.

Here is a tread which runs as smoothly as plain treads. It is just as economical.

It gets rid of all features which made anti-skids costly, or made them cause vibration.

On dry roads it runs like a plain tread. To wet roads it gives an irresistible grip.

It is the tread for all wheels and all seasons. On Goodyear tires—the largest-selling tires in the world—it is outselling plain treads with users. In winter it is an essential.

Five minutes will show you that no other anti-skid begins to so meet the requirements.

Some are shallow, some soft, some irregular. Some have rounded grips.

Some have separate projections which center the strains at one point in the fabric. Some cause much vibration.

Here is a flat tread, broad, smooth and regular. Here are deep grips which last for thousands of miles. Here is rubber toughened by a secret process.

Here are sharp edges which stay sharp. And the edges face the skidding direction.

Here are blocks that widen out and meet at the base, so the strains are spread as with plain treads.

This is the latest of Goodyear inventions. It solves anti-skid problems as never before. It combines plain-tread economy with the safety of a most tenacious grip.

You are bound to adopt it. A five-minute comparison will make you a convert. Don't buy a tire for winter use without coming to see this tread.

Plus These Savings

All-Weather treads, if wanted, now come on No-Rim-Cut tires. And you get these features too:

Tires that can't rim-cut—
Tires that save blow-outs—
Tires that save loose treads.

We control the No-Rim-Cut feature. The saving of blow-outs adds to our tire cost $1,500 daily. No other maker adds this extra cost. Our way of preventing tread separation is patented, and we control the patent.

You get all these savings in No-Rim-Cut tires, and in no other tires in the world. As a result, these tires today are the largest-selling tires in the world. You are courting tire trouble, you are wasting tire money, so long as you go without them. Let us prove this to you.

All-Prep 1913 Football Team Chosen for The Constitution By Coach Maddox of G.M.C.

BY ARTHUR K. MADDOX.
(Coach Georgia Military College.)

After the last curtain has been rung down closing the football season on Thanksgiving the only remaining points of interest to the general public is the appearance of the all prep picks by the so called football experts

It is rather a difficult undertaking to choose any group of players that will satisfy all but there are many men in prep ball this season who stand out preminently and who doubtless will find a place on every all prep selection In choosing this team I shall endeavor to take into consideration the experience natural ability endurance and general worth of the players in prep circles

However, I do not think it at all necessary to give the players the positions they have played simply because they are the best on the right or left of the line as the case may be A man who has shifted on the left of the line could in a short time learn to play on the opposite side equally as well

Several Good Ends.

The end positions find several candidates for this select team and it is regretted that only two men can be chosen for this post on G M C has three star ends in Godwin David and Fuller Fuller would undoubtedly find a place were it not for the fact that sprained ankles has kept him out o many games this season David of G M C has had a creditable career for a first year man but owing to his inexperience I must leave him off I will select Godwin and Kingery for the end positions

For tackles I shall choose Bell and Smith, of the Gordon both being of power o strength both on offense and defense Burson of G M C considering his 11 pounds is one of the fiercest and best players prepdom has ever seen in spite o his light weight I shall name Burson as first substitute in the line as he has had experience at guard center and tackle and can hold his own with any prep player I have ever seen

Many Guards.

There are many guards worthy of a place, but only two may be selected Thomson, Rossee, Nash, Beasley and Wilder are all good steady players and any of these men could fill the place to a king's taste However, I am going to select two men who filled the position of tackle this season, but since they have had experience at guard, I take Nash, of G M C, and Wilder, of R M A

I find it no easy task to select a center Hall, of G M C, is the best offensive center in prep ball, but weak on defense Hence, I choose Hatton, of R M A to snap the ball, with a most honorable mention for Hall

The backfield is comparitively easy to select, though there are many stars to be looked over before a selection can be made Ellison, Wilkinson, Arnold, Tunnell, Bradford, Little, Mangham, Strupper, Townsend are all worthy of mention

The Backfield.

Ellison, as fullback, has no peer in prep ball He is good both on offense and defense and is a splendid punter, drop kicker and long distance forward passer

I choose Wilkinson and Townsend for the halfback Both are steady, hard working men and have proven to be the mainstays of their respective teams

Tunnell, of G M C, is a star of wonderful brilliancy at the quarterback position but unfortunately, weak ankles has kept him out of many of the games this season Hence, Strupper of R M A, to call signals for this team

The team I have selected is as follows

Godwin, L E		G M C
Bell L T		Gordon
Wilder L G		R M A
Hatton C		R M A
Nash R G		G M C
Smith R T		Gordon
Kingery R E		Gordon
Wilkinson, L H		G M C
Townsend, R H		R M A
Ellison F B		G M C
Strupper, Q T		R M C
Subs.
Burson		G M C
Beasley		Gordon
Bradford		G M C
Tunnell		G M C
Arnold		G M C

SWEENEY WON'T TRY TO SUCCEED TINKER

Boston, Mass., November 29 —Captain Sweeney, of the Boston Nationals, announced tonight that he would make no effort to obtain an appointment as manager of the Cincinnati club. He has left the matter in the hands of President James J. Gaffney, of the local club. OVERLAND IS FIRST IN SPACE DRAWINGS AT BIG AUTO SHOWS

The Willys-Overland company of Toledo, Ohio, is receiving many compliments these days from people interested in the industry, on the fact that it did the largest business of any firm in the automobile chamber of commerce This prosperity is evidenced by the recent drawing for space at the two national automobile shows, the New York exhibition, which is to be held in the Grand Central Palace, January 3 to 10, and the Chicago show, which is to be held in the Coliseum in that city January 23 to 30 In these drawings for space the firms are given preference according to the amount of business done during the previous year Thus the firm with the largest volume of business has first choice as to the location of its show space In both drawings the Overland company chose space No 1, an exceptionally advantageous location

The Willys-Overland company manufactured and sold 40 000 cars during the 1913 season, this amount representing a gross business of more than $50, 000,000

All-Star Football Eleven Meets Seventeenth Infantry Next Saturday at Poncey

A great post-season game of football has been arranged for the football fans of Atlanta for next Saturday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park,

Lewie W Hardage, the former Vanderbilt and Auburn football star, and now coach of the Mercer university eleven, has arranged the game

Hardage has arranged to bring a team of all-star, all-southern football players to Atlanta to play a game against the Seventeenth infantry eleven coached by Lieutenant Devore, the great tackle of the Army eleven last year and now a lieutenant at the local post

The Seventeenth infantry eleven has come forward with great strides for the past month, and now they are regarded as formidable as most of the college elevens in the south

On Hardage's team will be football stars who have just completed their football experience on southern gridirons, or who have been engaged in coaching southern elevens during the past season

In the backfield will be such stars as Hardage and Morris of Vanderbilt, McWhorter of Georgia, Newell of Auburn and Cook of Tech

In the line will be Pitts of Auburn and Morgan of Vanderbilt, at center, Cheape of Sewanee, Hasslock of Vanderbilt and Peacock of Georgia at guards Lamb of Auburn, T Brown of Vanderbilt and Cogdell of Auburn, at tackles and Gillem of Sewanee, Major of Auburn and E Brown of Vanderbilt, at ends

These players have been sent a set of signals, which they have been studying for the past two weeks They will arrive in Atlanta Wednesday, and will practice Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to perfect their teamwork

All of the players are in fine shape, by reason of keeping in condition all season, either playing or coaching, and only a little teamwork will be all that is necessary to weld them into a formidable aggregation

Atlanta fans should witness a good game here, and those who have wanted to see Hardage, McWhorter, Newell and Morrison in one backfield will get the chance here

DEMAND FOR CLOSED CAR SHOWN BY THE FORD CO.

Detroit, Mich., November 29 —It was only a few short years ago that the motor car, still fighting a strenuous battle for consideration by the public, was considered absolutely a summer proposition and every owner prepared to store his car in the winter time

Now practically everyone uses a car all the year around and the closed car has been gaining in popularity every winter. The growing demand for a closed car is evidenced by a report of the Ford Motor company which says that the demands from their agents for closed cars is greater this fall than ever before

The use of the closed car was undoubtedly helped along by the taxicab people seeing how the taxis operated all winter came to the conclusion that they could use their own cars as well

The Ford company, by the way, has always been a strong factor in the taxicab field The first Ford taxicab in New York was driven by Max Eller He saw how the profits of the taxi business, largely given over to foreign cars, was being eaten up in the maintenance charges and he bought a light Ford with a Candaulet body As soon as it got noised around among other drivers how much Max was making because of the small sum necessary to maintain the Ford, many other independent drivers hurried to buy Ford cars Now many big taxicab companies use Fords exclusively

Lawson Robertson Signed To Speed Up the Dodgers

Wilbert Robinson, the veteran catcher and new manager of the Brooklyn Trolley Dodgers, has shown his hand He has proven convincingly that he believes in the McGraw system and style of play.

"More speed," is Robinson's cry He echoed this immediately that he assumed active charge of the Brooklyn entry in next year's National league sweepstakes

The Dodgers have been a formidable team for some time, in and outers, however, who relied on their hitting ability alone to win games. They were formidable batsmen last season, but they wasted a lot of hits.

Robinson has signed Lawson Robertson, the noted trainer of the Irish-American Athletic club, to round the candidates for places on the team into the best of shape, and to teach them how to utilize their speed to the best advantage.

If Robertson is as successful as Robinson believes that he will be, the Dodgers, with their natural hitting ability, are going to make it mighty interesting for the other National league teams in 1914

Harvard's 1913 Eleven Better Than 1912 Team

By Edward R. Bushnell.

Philadelphia, Pa November 29—(Special)—There has been a good deal of discussion as to whether this years Harvard eleven was as strong as that of 1912 It is the opinion of the writer that the present Harvard team was more powerful in every department than that of 1912 In only one department did the 1912 team possibly excel this years combination That was in line plunging A year ago Harvard scored two touchdowns against Princeton and two against Yale Much of the Crimson's scoring power last year was due to the line plunging of Wendell, but it should be remembered that Princeton had a very weak team last year and that Yale, as the Blue faced Harvard this year, was a stronger combination than 1912 Also it should not be forgotten that one of Harvard's 1912 touchdowns was due to a long run from a fumbled kick

This year both Princeton and Yale were strong defensive teams, or at least they had the ability to stop line plunges directed between the ends Assuming that two elevens are evenly matched as to strength a perfect defensive game will make it impossible for an opponent to score a touchdown or make as consistent gains by line plunging Therefore inability to score touchdowns this year does not indicate greater strength by the 1912 eleven

In their eulogy of Brickley football enthusiasts quite overlook another man in the Harvard back field who was just as valuable and necessary to the Crimson as Brickley himself and who but for the presence of Brickley would have earned quite as much distinction in defeating Yale This was Mahan the left halfback Mahan gave the best exhibition of running back kicks that has been seen on any eastern college gridiron this year. In addition he did all of Harvard's punting and consistently outkicked both of Yale's long distance punters Knowles and Guernsey Mahan was quite as useful a punter as Felton of last year's team He may not average quite as much distance as Felton, but he got his kicks away more quickly and placed them with more accuracy. Mahan did wonderful work in the return of punts His catching was without a flaw and on account of his great speed he nearly always got away from the Yale ends

But Mahan is likewise a great drop kicker, though he will probably not get a chance to shine in this department until his senior year, after Brickley has graduated Whenever Brickley did not play in the preliminary games Mahan did all the drop kicking and performed with almost as much accuracy as Brickley himself Had Brickley not been in the game last week Mahan could probably have scored enough field goals to have enabled the Crimson to win

RETREADING DELAY OBVIATED BY NEW TIRE PROTECTORS

"The delay in retreading a casing is now obviated by the introduction of a satisfactory substitute—the Standard Tire Protector," says L C Rockhill, manager automobile tire department, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company, Akron, Ohio "It is a veritable retread 'while you wait,' and aside from the time saved by this method of recovering it has many advantages over the ordinary retread

Not having the direct air pressure against it and being separate from the tire it acts as a cushion for the casing to prevent stone bruises and blow-outs. An object penetrating the protector will in nearly every instance glance off before continuing through the casing, making it practically puncture proof

When a tire is retreaded, making the tread an integral part of the casing, and the tire gives way within a few miles, the retread is lost But when the retread is made with a protector the only loss is that of the old carcass and the protector can be removed and used on another tire In this manner you are sure of value received"

1914 CADILLAC SPARK ADVANCE AUTOMATIC

At the present stage in the development of the motor car more or less attention is being paid to refinements that make the driving of a car simpler and safer The 1914 Cadillac has several improvements that illustrate this point One is its automatic spark advance Without this device the driver must manipulate his spark lever according to his own best judgment of the engines requirements It is not alone a question of speed Sometimes heavy going puts a drag on the engine that necessitates manipulation of the spark lever With the novice this is frequently nothing more than good guessing The Cadillacs automatic spark advance takes this task of guessing from the driver and makes the action positive, automatic, according to the engine's needs

This is accomplished by a ring governor which automatically advances and retards the spark according to the demands of various loads and various speeds It thus automatically prevents the injuries which are possible by too much advance or too much retard

SPECIAL SESSION COMES TO CLOSE

Longest Extra Session in History—Regular Session Begins on Monday—Summary of Work.

Washington, November 29. — The longest continuous extraordinary session in the history of congress practically ended tonight and the regular session will begin at noon next Monday.

Democratic leaders, acting in concert with President Wilson, would not permit an actual finish to be written to the special session although the house adjourned finally. The senate will meet again at 10 o'clock Monday and adjournment will not formally come until a few minutes before the time for the regular session to convene.

Two Great Projects.

Two great projects have held the attention of congress and the country throughout the unprecedented work of the year. One of these, tariff revision, crystalized into law in September. The other, currency reform, still is the chief subject of legislative interest, and will remain so, undisposed of, in the regular session.

The special session, opening a month after the democratic forces took complete control of the government, began with a re-organization of party leadership in the senate which overthrew precedent and brought the so-called progressive forces into control, and throughout the contests on tariff and currency the session has been marked by solidification of the democratic ranks.

Demand of the democratic leaders that the currency bill be passed at once brings the extra session to a stirring close. Day and night sessions of the democratic currency conference have marked the last week and day and night sessions of the senate are promised for the new session until currency legislation is concluded.

Some Important Legislation.

Although President Wilson urged the congress just closing to hold itself to the two chief projects—tariff and currency, several other matters of general importance have been considered. One important legislative act was the so-called Newlands law for mediation and conciliation in labor disputes. Under this enactment federal arbitrators were able to avert the threatened strike of trainmen on eastern railroads last summer which threatened to tie up American commerce and industry for an indefinite time.

The abolishment of the United States commerce court also was accomplished, through an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill. Another appropriation bill "rider" took out of the classified civil service most of the deputy United States marshals and deputy collectors of internal revenue. Exemption of labor unions from prosecution under the anti-trust laws, so far as certain funds were concerned, also was accomplished.

Many important legislative acts were embraced in the tariff bill, in the form of amendments. These included prohibitions against the importation of feathers of birds, a step long demanded by bird protection societies, and a special rebate on goods brought in American ships, an act designed to encourage American ship building and to strengthen the American merchant marine.

Tax On Cotton Futures.

The long fight over the proposed tax on cotton futures, to prevent "cotton gambling," failed in the final developments prior to the passage of the tariff bill. The cotton tax subject was so thoroughly discussed, however, and the advocates of it came to such an understanding, that it is expected that a measure to regulate trading in futures will be passed before the new session ends.

Many bills which underwent preliminary preparation in the committee rooms will be pushed to conclusion in the new congress. These include the "seaman's servitude bill," which passed the senate; the hetch-hetchy bill to grant San Francisco water supply rights in that valley, which passed the house and is to be voted on by the senate December 6, and the Alaskan railroad bill, which the senate has agreed to take up in December.

The Alaskan measure would provide for government railroads that would more adequately open Alaska's resources.

The investigating activities of the special session were confined chiefly to the probing of lobbying activities and to the inquiry into causes and conduct of the strike in the West Virginia coal fields. The special committee that conducted these investigations have not completed their work and will not report until early next year.

SOUTHERN PACIFIC OWNS OIL COMPANY

San Francisco, Cal., November 29.—The Southern Pacific Railroad company, through W. F. Herrin, as trustee, holds 200,685 shares of the 400,000 shares of capital stock of the Associated Oil company, according to testimony given here today by F. G. Williams, secretary of the oil corporation. Williams said also that the railroad had subscribed $12,104,000 of the $13,685,000 worth of bonds issued by the Associated Oil company January 15, 1910.

Williams was testifying in the hearing in connection with the government's suit against the railroad company in the federal district court of southern California, seeking the recovery of lands in the Elk hills, California, oil region. The government has met the contention of the Southern Pacific company that the odd-numbered sections it holds are not mineral lands with the reply that this is untenable if the same stockholders, through the Associated Oil company, are holding the even-numbered sections as mineral ground.

TO PROTECT POTATOES OF THE UNITED STATES

Washington, November 29.—To protect the United States from foreign potato diseases and to find a way in which some of the foreign crop may be brought in because of this year's scant native supply, estimated to be almost 100,000,000 bushels short, Secretary of Agriculture Houston today issued a call for a public meeting here December 15 to discuss the subject.

The call directs particular inquiry as to whether "it is possible to safeguard this country from known foreign potato diseases by introductions under permit of potatoes which have been inspected and pronounced free from infection by foreign experts."

A few days ago Secretary Houston announced that a public hearing would be given December 13 as to why the present quarantine against the potato wart should not be extended after January 1, to all Canada and Europe, to certain parts of which it now applies.

Nursery stock found free of infection is allowed to enter the country. Under the plant quarantine act it is necessary for the secretary to call a public hearing before this could be applied to potatoes.

Three Boys Drowned.

Mobile, Ala., November 29.—John Fath, a white newsboy, aged 12 years, and two negro boys were drowned here at 3 o'clock this afternoon when the waves caused by a passing tug overturned the skiff in which they were fishing on the river. Robert Chew, a crippled newsboy, 30 years of age, who came to Mobile last week from St. Louis, was taken into custody by the police. Chew said he had rented a skiff to go fishing and induced four boys to go with him, though in a downpour of rain. Chew admitted he had been drinking. He was rescued, with the fourth boy, by the mate of a schooner.

ELLERY'S BAND TO PLAY AT THE AUDITORIUM

Will Give Two Concerts Daily From December 12 to December 18.

Atlantans are not going to have to wait for grand opera season this year to hear some truly great music. The Atlanta Music Festival association has just closed a contract with the famous Ellery band to appear in Atlanta at the Auditorium-Armory, December 12 to 18, in a series of remarkable concerts.

There will be two concerts a day,

matinee and night for a week, all under music festival auspices. In addition to the large appeal that this series of concerts will make to the whole Atlanta music loving public, Vice President Wilkins of the Music Festival association, is making special arrangements to have all the school children in Atlanta hear this band.

The Original Band.

The Ellery band is the parent stem from which every Italian band now existing in this country has sprung. But while others may be said to have abandoned themselves to gallery play and the commercial side of the enterprise, Mr. Ellery's great organization has been absolutely faithful to a high ideal. While this wonderful band is naturally charged with temperament and expression, its director, Taddeo di Trolamo, never descends to the use of superfluous gymnastics to help make his meaning clear to his audiences. The Ellery music is founded on a living, abstract idea. The result is that the band appeals to the many through the deep human feeling visible in all its work; it appeals with equal force to the knowing few who appreciate all of its finer technical touches.

High Class Singers.

The Ellery band will be accompanied on its present tour by two singers of the highest class. They are Mr. Thomas Wallace, tenor, and Mr. Bayne Young, baritone, and both are from Glasgow, Scotland, where they were discovered by Mr. Ellery two years ago on the occasion of the band's triumphal visit to the Scottish exhibition. Mr. Wallace's voice is lyric in character and is on the same order as that of the famous John McCormack. Mr. Wallace sings many of the celebrated Irish tenor's songs with unvarying success. Mr. Young, the baritone, is without doubt one of the greatest singers in the United Kingdom; his voice is of splendid quality and of an almost phenominal range. In addition to their grand opera numbers, both of these distinguished artists will be heard in a large repertory of English, Scotch, Irish and American songs. Both possess the very rare merit of distinct enunciation so that their words can be heard and enjoyed by everyone in range of their voices.

BANK IS CRACKED BY EXPERT YEGGMEN

Charlotte, N. C., November 29.—Robbers, believed by officers to be expert yeggmen, blew the safe in the Bank of Ellenboro, a small town 50 miles west of there, at an early hour this morning, and got away safely with $2,900 in cash, leaving $7.70 in money in the vault.

Citizens of the town say nine explosions were heard. One man approached the bank upon hearing the explosions, and was driven back at the point of guns. The robbers constructed a defense of heavy wire fencing in front of the bank. The vault was entirely demolished.

Bloodhounds traced the men to Henrietta, a small station several miles away, where it is believed the men escaped by automobile. From the tracks officers say there were five men in the party. The institution worked under a state charter.

DOREMUS AND A GIRL HELD UP BY ROBBERS

New York, November 29.—Three robbers effected a daring hold-up of an automobile party early today, taking money and jewelry worth $2,000 from Cornelius Doremus, president of the Germania Life Insurance company, a young woman companion and his chauffeur.

The masked men jumped from underbrush beside the Pelham parkway, near the scene of an automobile collision in which four persons were killed early this week, and by using their revolvers they brought the motoring party to a stop. Doremus was taken over the hand and forced to hand over his watch and money, and the young woman, whose identity was not revealed, fainted as the robbers tore two valuable rings from her hands.

No More Free Passes.

Philadelphia, November 29.—Free transportation between points in this state to members of the families of officers and employees of the Pennsylvania railway company will be discontinued after January 1, according to announcement by the company tonight. The announcement says this action will be in compliance with the terms of the public service company law of Pennsylvania, which becomes effective January 1, 1914.

Protest Against Loft.

Washington, November 29.—When George W. Loft, who succeeds the late Timothy D. Sullivan in the house, stepped to the dais to take the oath of office, Speaker Clark had read a protest from some voters in his district, based on legal technicalities concerning the manner of the holding of the special election to fill Sullivan's place. The speaker administered the oath and referred the protest to a house committee for report on the validity of the election.

TWO SERIOUSLY INJURED AS GAS PLANT EXPLODES

John Deen and Daughter Are Cared For in Waycross Hospital.

Waycross, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—As the result of an explosion of gas in a small outhouse near his home east of Waycross, John Dean and his daughter, Miss Mell Dean, are in a local hospital in a serious condition. Dean's right leg was crushed by the explosion, and his daughter, who was holding a lamp for him to investigate the gas plant, which was not working as he wanted it, was seriously burned about the face and body. Two sons were nearby, and the force of the explosion knocked them to the ground, inflicting painful bruises.

DIFFICULT TO GET JURY IN CRAIG MURDER CASE

Shelbyville, Ind., November 29.—Failure to obtain a jury satisfactory to both prosecution and defense up to the noon recess today caused Judge Blair to adjourn the trial of Dr. William A. Craig, for the murder of Dr. Helene Knabe, until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Eleven men had been accepted tentatively, but the two sides had been unable to agree on the twelfth juror. The state had exhausted seven and the defense nine of its twenty peremptory challenges.

Dr. Craig's attorneys made clear today their determination not to admit to the jury box any man who was convinced that Dr. Knabe was murdered. Counsel for the state indicated they would not accept any juror who acknowledged prejudice against circumstantial evidence. Ephriam Inman, who represents the Indianapolis council of women in the prosecution of Craig, is expected to make the opening statement for the state.

The first witnesses will be the physicians who examined the woman's body soon after it was found in her apartment on the morning of October 24, 1911. Augusta Knabe, cousin of the deceased, probably will follow them on the stand.

Dr. Knabe is alleged to have told her cousin she had quarreled with Dr. Craig a few days before her death.

Another witness in whom the state places strong dependence will be Harry W. Haskett, who is expected to identify Dr. Craig as the man he met coming out of the areaway of the apartment house in which Dr. Knabe lived, shortly after 11 o'clock the night of October 23.

The defense expects to establish an alibi.

RADICALS CONTROL BUILDING TRADES

Seattle, Wash., November 29.—The building trades department of the American Federation of Labor adopted today, by a vote of 36 to 25, a constitutional amendment which will substitute for the present elected executive council a board composed of one member from each affiliated organization, the president and secretary-treasurer to have a voice, but not a vote.

This is a radical departure from the former policy of the department. It was vigorously opposed by President James Duncan, of the Granite Cutters, who is first vice president of the American Federation of Labor.

The radicals followed their victory by electing Thomas J. Williams, a tile layer of Pittsburg, president. William J. Spencer, of Washington, D. C., was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

UNDERWOOD RESUMES LEADERSHIP OF HOUSE

Washington, November 29.—Representative Underwood, of Alabama, fresh from his preliminary campaign for the United States senatorship in Alabama, returned to Washington today and resumed the democratic leadership of the house.

Mr. Underwood expressed confidence that he would win the senatorial race. He has no intention of resigning from the house prior to his election. He will return to Alabama for a speaking campaign during the Christmas holidays.

The democratic leader received an ovation from his colleagues and held an informal reception when the house broke up after adjournment.

WALL STREET FIRMS GO OUT OF BUSINESS

New York, November 29.—Four stock exchange firms announced their dissolution today. The business of one of the firms will be continued by a reorganization of the partnership. The other concerns, it is understood, will wind up their affairs permanently.

A large number of partnership dissolutions is expected at the end of the year. Dull times in Wall street have reduced the price of stock exchange seats from $90,000 to less than half that amount and have made it difficult for many stock brokers to earn a living.

Trading in stocks for the month just ended was the smallest for any month since May, 1897. The total number of shares exchanged for November was 3,777,449.

WIFE SAYS HUSBAND WAS BENT ON SUICIDE

Paris, November 29.—The Seine Assizes today acquitted of murder Mme. Suzanne Poekes, whose husband, a Paris business man, was found dead in bed at his home here last June with five bullets in his body and one bullet in his head. Explaining the number of wounds in the body the woman said Poekes had attempted to commit suicide and had shot himself in the head and that the five shots in his body were fired accidentally while she was struggling to take the revolver away from him.

Three days after the shooting a child was born to Mme. Poekes in St. Lazare prison.

OWNERS OF TITANIC SUED FOR DAMAGES

Washington, November 29.—The question of liability of the owners of the Titanic for payment in full of the millions of dollars of claims for loss of lives and property came today before the supreme court from the circuit court of appeals at New York.

The owners of the Titanic, the Oceanic Steam Navigation company, petitioned the federal court to limit its liability under American law to the value of the salvage, the freight and passage money collected on the ocean voyage that was never completed. The passage money amounted to $85,000 and the freight and salvage brought the total to $91,000. At the time the company filed its petition, October 4, 1912, one million dollars' worth of claims had been filed.

GERMAN ARMAMENTS HAVE REACHED LIMIT

Munich, Bavaria, November 29.—"There must be a pause in armaments; the German people is not in a position to bear further burdens of this nature," declared Baron George F. Von Hertling, premier of Bavaria, in discussing the armaments bill today. Bavaria is the second largest state of the German empire.

The imperial government, in proposing the latest increase in the army last spring, informed the federated states that it could not assume responsibility for the safety of the empire unless the augmentation of the forces was agreed to. Bavaria was bound under such conditions to give her assent but she did so without enthusiasm.

U. S. NAVAL OFFICERS GREETED AT QUIRINAL

Rome, Italy, November 29.—Hearing that it was the desire of the officers of the American battleship fleet now visiting Italian waters, to pay their respects to him, King Victor Emmanuel invited the naval commanders to the quirinal tonight. At the same time Queen Helena, who had not yet received Mrs. Thomas Nelson Page, decided to give a dinner after the reception to the wife of the American ambassador to Italy, in honor of the fleet's officers and the members of the United States embassy staff.

Ambassador Page made the presentations. The king received Rear Admiral Cameron McR. Winslow, comman of the first division of the Atlantic fleet; Rear Admiral Frank E. Beatty, commander of the fourth division; Captain William J. Macwell, commanding the battleship Florida; Captain Roy C. Smith, commanding the battleship Arkansas; Lieutenant Commander Earl P. Jessop, of the Arkansas; Commander Frank Lyon, of the battleship Kansas; Lieutenant Commander Arthur B. Keating, of the Arkansas; Lieutenant William Norris, of the Florida; Lieutenant John Downes, Jr., aide on the staff of Rear Admiral Beatty; Lieutenant William W. Gailbraith, of the Connecticut, and Lieutenant Rufus F. Zogbarn, of the Arkansas.

His majesty declared he was a great admirer of the splendid American navy, and said he was delighted to shake hands with the officers of the fleet.

Queen Helena, whose dinner Ambassador and Mrs. Jage attended, was served immediately after the king's audience. In addition to the American officers, the guests included prominent court officials, the ladies and gentlemen in waiting and diplomatic attaches.

In proceeding to the banquet hall Ambassador Page, with Queen Helena on his arm, led the way. They were followed by King Victor Emmanuel, who escorted the Princess Mirko, of Montenegro. After the dinner the king and queen bade farewell to the American officers, and wished them good luck.

PRESIDENT WILSON RETURNS TO CAPITAL

New York, November 29.—President Wilson accomplished today the two purposes that brought him to New York from Washington—he bade bon voyage to the white house bride and bridegroom, his daughter and Francis Bowes Sayre, who sailed for Europe on their honeymoon, and as commander-in-chief of the armed land and water forces of the country he attended the Army-Navy football game at the Polo grounds, where he was an interested spectator. Tonight the president went to the theater. He terminated his 30 hours visit to the city by taking a late train back to Washington.

The president, accompanied by Miss Eleanore Wilson and Dr. Carey T. Grayson, waited on the deck of the steamship George Washington in Hoboken in the forenoon for Mr. and Mrs. Sayre to appear. He did not see them board the vessel for the bridal couple eluding the crowd that had gathered to say good-bye, used the second cabin entrance. The president finally entered the Sayre suite and was surprised to find them there.

When the ship had sailed the president, after a luncheon, went to the Polo grounds, entering the box of Secretary of War Garrison. With him were Miss Wilson, Dr. Grayson, Secretary Tumulty and Colonel and Mrs. E. M. House at whose home the president was a guest while here. Following the presidential precedent Mr. Wilson occupied the box of the secretary of the navy, Josephus Daniels, during the second half.

After the game crowds surrounded the box the president occupied and he acknowledged their cheers by lifting his hat.

President Wilson was cheered as he entered the theater tonight with Miss Eltanore Wilson, Secretary McAdoo and Miss McAdoo and Colonel and Mrs. House. The president seemed keenly interested in the performance and laughed in evident enjoyment of the humorous lines in the play.

As he came out he found a crowd in waiting which rapidly grew to large proportions. He went directly from the theater to the Pennsylvania terminal, entered his car and retired shortly after 11 o'clock, more than an hour before the departure of the train for Washington.

8-HOUR WORK DAY MAY BREAK STRIKE

Calumet, Mich., November 29.—Belief was expressed here today that the introduction of an eight hour working day for mine, mill and smelter workers on December 1 will cause a break in the ranks of copper mine strikers. The mine managers late yesterday agreed the eight-hour plan should go into operation Monday at all, but a few shafts of the Calumet and Hecla where the men work on contract basis. Surface employees will be given a nine-hour day.

The managers hereafter will devote Tuesday afternoon of each week to hearing and adjusting complaints and grievances of employees.

Now only two of the original demands made last July have not been met—recognition of the union and abolishment of the one-man drill.

MILADY'S JEWEL BILL WILL TOTAL $57,000,000

Washington, November 29.—Milady's jewelry bill for 1913 will approximate $57,000,000, according to statistics of jewelry importations just published by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. This is declared to be more than 30 per cent in excess of the highest record yet established.

The bureau declares the value of all the diamonds in this country has reached the enormous sum of nearly $1,000,000,000. To this must be added the importations of other precious stones, the value of which is not estimated in the statistics.

The diamonds showed the greatest gain in recent years. For the first nine months of 1913 there were imported $23,500,000 in these gems as against $18,000,000 last year. The total of all precious stones for the same period was $43,333,333, as against $32,250,000 last year.

These figures are declared by the bureau to warrant the belief that this year's importations will greatly exceed those of former years.

Some Odd All-American Elevens

By Raymond S. Frost.

As the football season is now practically over, the experts will come forward with their all-American, all-eastern, all-western and other all-choices. That is all very interesting to the reader and, no doubt, immensely gratifying to the few lucky ones who are chosen for these representative elevens. What a pleasure it must be to the bruised and body-sore warriors to find that they have been chosen above their worthy competitors to figure on these "paper" elevens. We have chosen several consolation elevens that will appeal to the rank and file of football players and their followers. Somewhat different all-American teams have been made up by our expert, but their texture is out of the ordinary.

For example: We have selected an all-animal eleven, that is, a team composed of athletes who are the possessors of names similar to the inhabitants of the animal kingdom. These men are chosen from preparatory, high school and college elevens from all sections of the country—from Maine to California and from Canada to the gulf. Playing ability counts to a certain extent; for instance, where there are three candidates for one position, the collegian is given the preference over the prep school men. When there are two college men for the same position, of course, the leading player is placed on the eleven. In only a few instances has it been necessary to transpose a player from one side of the line to the other.

These selections are made up in various forms, as all-Bird, all-Smith, all-National, all-Motorcar, etc. This may be a sort of comfort to the many who are unavailable for the "large" elevens. It will be noted that there are college men playing side by side with athletes from obscure high schools. However, some of these elevens would undoubtedly be able to give a good account of themselves on the football field.

Our first choice is an all-animal eleven, who should be able to chew up their opponents.

BARRELS OF OYSTERS THROWN INTO THE SEA

Mobile, Ala., November 29.—Many barrels of oysters were thrown into the sea yesterday at Alabama and Mississippi coast points, where canning factories are located, owing to the fact that the canning plants have been forced to close because of a scarcity of shuckers and unskilled laborers. Bohemians by the trainload are brought south every winter, principally from Baltimore, but factory representatives have been able to secure only about a dozen families this year. Unusually warm weather has spoiled practically all the supply of oysters brought in for canning during the past week.

ARMY CELEBRATES FOOTBALL TRIUMPH

Military Hop Given to the Victors—The Navy Team Not Neglected.

New York, November 29.—The Army's football triumph over the Navy was enthusiastically celebrated by West Pointers and their friends tonight at the hotel where the Army squad made its headquarters here. Army officers, most of the cadet corps and society people, sat at a dinner while the Army's gridiron heroes and Colonel E. W. Sladen and his staff of West Point viewed the scene from smaller tables set in the boxes overlooking the main floor of the ball room. There were many reunions of veteran officers and former classmates. When the football players entered they received a tremendous ovation. A military hop was held after the dinner.

Friends of the Navy did not forsake the defeated team. The Annapolis players attended a theater and then returned to their hotel, where they were guests at a dinner attended by Naval academy officials, Naval officers and several national and state dignitaries.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS STIR ALSATIAN TOWN

Zabern, Alsace, Germany, November 29.—Scores of townspeople, including several civilian officials, were under arrest here today as the result of a night of rioting. The disturbance was so violent at times that troops cleared the main streets at the point of the bayonet.

The demonstrations were designed to express indignation at certain insulting remarks recently made by German army officers. The trouble started at the conclusion of classes of the evening school when the pupils met and denounced the army officers. Troops were summoned to disperse the meeting and everybody who failed to "move on" promptly was arrested.

The townspeople, excited by the repressive measures of the military, gathered in the principal square. Soon afterward an officer with fifty soldiers appeared. The officer ordered his men to load their rifles and the front rank to kneel. When the detachment was ready to fire the officer stepped forward and commanded the crowd to disperse. The people at once scattered but the soldiers pursued and prodded them with bayonets.

Detachments of troops with fixed bayonets patrolled the streets throughout the night and continued on duty today.

Forty people were arrested. It is understood they are to be tried by a military court.

Lieutenant Baron Forstner, whose remarks started the trouble between the army and the citizens, went shopping yesterday in the town, accompanied by four soldiers who guarded the entrances of the stores while he was inside.

A number of young lieutenants of the 99th infantry were seen today pursuing, with drawn swords, a youth who had shouted an insulting epithet at a man who was singing the German national anthem.

She Flirts With a Cop And He Is Ungallant Enough to Arrest Her

Warning to girls who flirt indiscriminately: Mind that the object of your wiles is not a plain clothes attache to the police "vice squad."

Here's why:

Plain Clothes Policeman J. H. Kirk, in company with his civilian-clothed partner, was sauntering down Marietta street in the vicinity of Five Points. A quite pretty little girl, with blue eyes and brown locks, came from a soda fount and cast an enticing smile at the policeman.

Kirk stopped and stared. She smiled again. He wore a scarlet rose in his lapel. Where he got it he hasn't said. In fact, nobody has yet asked him.

"That's a pretty rose you have," she said.

"Much oblige. I like it, too."

"May I have it?"

"Well, hardly!" That ended the flirtation. The policeman ducked into a stairway and watched the girl as she went up the street. Then he shadowed her. Later, she was arrested in company with another girl.

She gave the name of Trilla Pittman, aged 22, of Howell Mill road. Her companion gave the name of Ruby Thomas, aged 21, of the same address. When arraigned in court yesterday afternoon, Kirk told of the flirtation and her request for the rose.

"The next time you want to flirt," Judge Preston told her, "make sure the man hasn't got a badge underneath his coat. You also might stop asking men for roses. They're rare and costly this time of the year."

Both girls were put under probation by Miss Ethel Claxton, the policewoman.

INDUSTRIAL TOUR WILL BE SHOWN IN "MOVIES"

Moving pictures of the Atlanta Industrial tour will be shown Monday at the Vaudette theater through special arrangement with the chamber of commerce and the theater management.

The film will show the people who went on the tour, the interior of several of the factories visited and other scenes.

Secretary Leahy, of the Industrial Bureau of the chamber, has already had a number of inquiries as to the date of the second tour, plans for which are already under way.

PRESIDENT OF FURMAN WILL LECTURE MONDAY

Dr. Edwin M. Poteat, president of Furman university, Greenville, S. C., will lecture Monday night, December 1, at 8 o'clock at the Second Baptist church, on the subject, "The Philosophy of Happiness."

Dr. Poteat is one of the most entertaining speakers and prominent ministers in the south. He is well known in Atlanta, having occupied many of the Baptist pulpits of the city.

The lecture is for the benefit of the Young Men's Bible class of the Second Baptist church. Admission only 50 cents. A large attendance is assured.

NAVAL MAIL CLERKS BEING HELD AFTER THEFT OF LETTERS

A radiogram from Guantanamo, Cuba, via Key West, Fla., to R. E. Barry, chief postoffice inspector for the Atlanta division, received yesterday, sweeps away much of the mystery surrounding the pilfering of money laden letters coming from that country and which the best secret service men in the postal department have been trying to solve for the past four or five years.

Inspector Barry was directed to take up the investigation and a month ago made his second trip to Cuba, carrying with him J. M. Adamson and Frank Pulsipher, two of the best men on his service list. From his first visit Inspector Barry was satisfied that the Cuban postal service was in no way to blame for the losses and within a short time his assistants were working on the same line, which proved right, as Inspector Barry's radiogram yesterday tells him. The message advises Inspector Barry that his representatives had just arrested John Grams and O. Hunter, two naval mail clerks, and that pieces of the marked money used had been found in Grams' possession.

Neal Stationed in Atlanta.

Rev. C. C. Neal, former state superintendent of Sunday schools for Georgia and Florida, has been stationed in Atlanta at West Mitchell Street church, colored. He will preach his introductory sermon today. Subject for the morning service will be, "A Divine Call for a Personal Inventory." At the evening service he will speak on "Christ's Estimation of a Christian." Bishop Halsey has shown wisdom in placing several strong men in this city.

NEGRO 8 FEET TALL BLOCKS TRAFFIC ON "GREAT BLACK WAY"

George Bell, a giant negro, who is seven feet and ten and one-half inches tall, is in Atlanta. He is visiting his brother.

The negro went down Decatur street yesterday and while on the "Great Black Way" found that his progress was barred by the curious throngs who desiged him on every side.

The negro, who is a circus freak, wears a number eighteen collar, number twenty-three shoe, and weighs 350 pounds.

He comes from a normal family of negroes and is aged 26 years.

WANT MAGNOLIA ROUTE.

Many Bids Made for Warm Springs Road.

Columbus, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—Lively competition has developed for the Magnolia route between Columbus and Warm Springs, Ga.

Land owners realize that values will be greatly enhanced by such a first-class automobile highway, and are willing to pay good round sums for the road to pass through their property.

The route as originally proposed did not take in Cleola station on the Southern railway, but passed a mile to the east, the present route from Waverly Hall to Oak Mountain and Shiloh being utilized. J. H. Miller, of Cleola, who has extensive property holdings in that section, offers $1,200 for the road to be built by his station.

Now comes W. H. Harvey, of Columbus, and offers $1,000 for the road to be built via Schatulga and Midland, the present Macon road being followed as far as Schatulga.

The new road will not only be the best route between Columbus and Warm Springs, but it will form a part of the Atlanta-Tallahassee highway.

Citizens along the Central of Georgia railway north of Columbus have also become enthused on the subject of road improvement and have formed an organization.

The necessary fund for the construction of the Columbus-Warm Springs highway has practically been subscribed.

SEABOARD BRIDGE UP TO COMMISSION

Railroad Declines to Build Until Street Car Company Agrees to Give Certain Guarantees.

The proposed street car line extension through Brady place to Howell's mill is "hung up" because the Georgia Railway and Poweh company refuses to give a guarantee for adequate service to employees of the Seaboard Air Line railroad, and further because it has declined to enter into a contract to keep up the superstructure of a steel bridge which the Seaboard is willing to erect over its tracks.

Until the Georgia Railway and Power company enters into the agreements, or until the controversy is adjusted in some amicable way, the Seaboard will not erect the bridge and all the work that has been done towards making the project possible will go for naught and the scores of persons living in the neighborhood of the proposed extension will continue to suffer.

Stanley Makes Announcement.

The fact that the Seaboard will not build the bridge until the railway company enters into both agreements was made known by G. B. Carlton, division superintendent of the Seaboard last night. The ultimatum came to Atlanta in the shape of a letter from General Manager Stanley.

President Preston S. Arkwright, through whom the Seaboard negotiated for the contracts, has taken the position that both matters are subjects for the Georgia railroad commission to decide and citizens who started the extension project say that the commission will be asked to take cognizance of the situation.

According to authentic information the railroad commission will be asked to decide the issue. It is probable that a petition will be filed some time during the week.

As the proposition now stands it is not likely that work will be started on the extension at an early date. On the assurance that the line would be extended the Union Stock yards gave a strip of its land for the right-of-way of the line and the county commissioners made a cut for the right-of-way and graded the street. The county completed its task more than a week ago. The work was rushed to completion because it was understood that the Georgia Railway and Power company would be ready to start work just as soon as the county finished the grading.

Wants Schedule Arranged.

With all obstacles removed, the railway company throws an obstruction in the path of the improvement by declining to enter into an agreement with the Seaboard. The railroad is under a contract with more than 400 of its shop employees to transport them from the city to the shops and from the shops to the city. According to Superintendent Carlton four trains are operated for the purpose. The Seaboard asks the railway company to provide a schedule to take the men into the city, also to provide adequate cars.

Superintendent Carlton says that the improvements asked of the Georgia Railway and Electric company are in the nature of a convenience for the men and in nowise a benefit to the railroad company. As to the upkeep of the bridge, Superintendent Carlton contends that because the bridge will be used by the street car company it should assume the burden for its upkeep.

W. H. Glenn, superintendent of the railway company, stated Saturday that the matter in dispute is in the hands of President Arkwright and that he had no comment to offer or statement to make.

Superintendent Carlton, of the Seaboard, made the following comment:

"When this matter first came up and was brought to our attention the railroad agreed to erect a new bridge. I wrote to Mr. Stanley and asked him about the matter, and he informed me that the bridges would be erected provided the Georgia Railway and Electric company entered into an agreement guaranteeing our employees a service which would be agreeable, also provided the company entered into a contract to keep up the superstructure of the bridge.

Seaboard's Position.

"The Seaboard has nothing to gain by erecting the bridge for the railway company to use. We did, however, expect the company to keep up the bridge, and also to take care of our employees who work out in the shops. These men come into the city on trains, and it was our intention of arranging it so that they could get off on the line of the extension and come to the city on the trolley cars. We are under an agreement with these men to carry them to the city, and expected the railway company to furnish an agreeable schedule and suitable cars.

"As to the upkeep of the bridge we feel that the railway company should share that responsibility inasmuch as it was designed for its benefit."

Residents to be served by the proposed new extension are displeased over the turn of affairs and are preparing to have the controversy settled in order that they might get the relief which has been promised them.

Telegraph News, Hot Off the Bat, Is Phoned Direct to Linotype Operator in Columbia

SCENE IN THE OFFICE OF THE COLUMBIA STATE.

Charleston, S. C., November 29.—A gathering of prominent newspaper men, Associated Press officials and telephone officials, in The Columbia State office this evening saw a practical demonstration of the newest and what is destined to be one of the greatest scientific and mechanical developments in the production of the modern newspaper.

Those gentlemen saw the operation of the transmission of this item from The News and Courier office in Charleston over a telephone "talking" circuit directly to a linotype machine in The Columbia State office, and produced in type ready for use without the use by the linotype operator of "copy." It was the first practical use to which the experiment has ever been put in the south, and one of the first in the country, and will be the means of writing the names of the Charleston and Columbia papers into modern newspaper history in future years.

In addition to the practical demonstration of the idea in use, the circuit was operated the entire length of the state of South Carolina, and while the "copy reader" was sending the item from The News and Courier office to the operator putting the item in type in The State office in Columbia, it was simultaneously being copied in the office of The Spartanburg Herald, The Greenville News, and a second office in The State building.

The new method of direct transmission of news matter over a "talking" circuit to a linotype machine eliminates fifty per cent of the time heretofore required to handle news matter, eliminates the necessity of a "Morse" code operator as well as typewriter operator, and accomplishes what modern journalism has been fighting for for years—serves the news to the people in the quickest actual time; just one-half the time heretofore required.

The idea was conceived in The Augusta Chronicle about six years ago by J. W. Hammond, the equipment arranged and a test first made between that office and The Columbia State office. It was found to work to complete satisfaction, and was said at the time, by telephone experts, to have been the first of the newest rapid news transmission. This item is the first ever transmitted in the south by this system for use in the columns of a newspaper.

REGIMENTAL DANCE WILL BE HELD DEC. 11

Gold Medal Will Be Awarded Winner of the Prize Drill, Which Precedes Ball.

Various committees are busy making arrangements for the regimental dance and prize drill to be held on Thursday evening, December 11, at the Fifth regiment armory. Special care is being taken to prepare such a program as will be interesting to the public. Four picked men from each company will participate in the drill, the winner of which will be awarded a gold medal, to be worn one year, when it will be drilled for again.

A dance will be held after the drill in Taft hall. The armory portion of the building will be open for inspection by the public, which is also invited to witness the drill without charge. Members of the regiment in uniform and all ladies will be admitted free to the dance. Male dancers, not in uniform, will be required to pay $1 for a dance ticket. This charge is not for the purpose of raising funds but rather to make the dance exclusive. Music for both the drill and dance will be furnished by the Fifth Regiment band of twenty-four pieces and excellent selections will be rendered.

A series of entertainments of this character are being planned by the regiment for the pleasure of the members of the regiment and those who desire to participate in these festivities with them.

The prize drill committee is composed of Captain C. A. Stokes, Captain W. J. Stoddard, Captain W. H. Leahy.

The dance and program committee consists of Lieutenant R. V. Anderson, and Lieutenant C. A. Langford.

Lieutenant Coburn is treasurer and Major W. J. Preston is general chairman.

The drill is to be judged by Captain J. M. Kimbrough, army instructor of the Georgia national guard, and Lieutenant Snider of the Seventeenth United States infantry. Captain John W. Quillian will give the commands. Captain Leahy and Lieutenant Langford will be referees. Lieutenant D. R. Winn will be timekeeper.

The drill is so arranged that commands will be given for three minutes with an intermission of one minute. As soon as a man makes three errors he will be dropped out at the next intermission. In case of a tie the man making the first error will drop out. Lieutenant-Colonel Hall is ex-officio member of all committees and is taking great interest in this work, as he feels the more entertainments of this character that are pulled off the more interest will be generated by the people of Atlanta in this solid regiment of twelve companies, the only full city regiment south of Baltimore. The "at home" given by the officers of the Fifth regiment on Thursday evening, November 20, was a most delightful occasion. The Fifth regiment band was on hand and a number of lady members of the officers' families graced the occasion by their presence. It was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

National Secretaries Will Speak Sunday at Central Congregational

Sunday morning at the Central Congregational church, Ellis street and Carnegie way, Rev. H. Paul Douglass, D. D., secretary of the American Missionary association, will speak on the work of that organization. The American Missionary association is one of the oldest missionary organizations in this country and has achieved great results throughout the length and breadth of the land. Probably its most important work has been the establishment of schools in the mountain regions of the south, eight academic and manual training schools being supported in the states bordering the Apalachian range.

At the evening service Dr. J. P. O'Brien, secretary of the Congregational Sunday School and Publishing society, will give an address on "Missouri in Picture and Story." For many years Dr. O'Brien was superintendent for this body in the middle west, making his home in Missouri. He has an interesting account of the settlement and development of that state and illustrates same with lantern slides.

The public is invited to both services of the day. Mr. Leslie Hubbard will sing both morning and evening.

TECH NIGHT SCHOOL SECOND TERM OPENS WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10

At the beginning of the second term of the season of 1913-14 of the night school of the Georgia School of Technology, on December 10, a splendid opportunity is offered Atlantans who were not able to enter at the beginning of the season in September to start the course now.

Professor J. N. G. Nesbit, dean of the night school, states that it is not necessary for any person to await the beginning of a new year, but that all who enter now can complete the course within three years, the same as if they had entered at the beginning of the year. That is, those who enter with the beginning of the coming term, can finish their course at the same date three years from now.

The attendance on Tech night school the past term, which began September 17, has been the largest in its history. There were 170 students enrolled, and an enthusiastic interest in the work kept up a splendid attendance throughout the term. It is believed from inquiries already made, that the coming term will even exceed the record of that which has just passed.

The coming term will last until March 1, when the spring term will follow. Where students are unable to enter for the full course, arrangements have been made by Professor Nesbit for a one-term course or just as many terms as the students finds he can give to the work. Classes for special work will also be held during the term, and if there is any particular line of work which a student desires to follow the work will be laid out for him by the dean.

Services at Proctor's Church.

Distinguised visitors will be heard at the First Congregational church, colored, today. At 11 a. m. Rev. J. P. O'Brien, D. D., of Kansas City, Mo., will give an address on "The Place of the Sunday School in Modern Life," and at the close of his address he will give an illustrated talk with slides on Sunday school work. At 7:45 p. m. Rev. H. P. Douglass, Ph. D., secretary of the American Missionary association, New York, will speak. Dr. Proctor will have charge of the services and will give as a prelude at the evening service a talk, entitled "Daybreak in Georgia; or, Three Extraordinary Reasons for Thanksgiving." There will be special music. The general public is cordially invited.

Conditions Couldn't Be Better.

"I don't think conditions could be very much better," Captain English said. "Collections are better this year than ever, and deposits have increased away above the figures of this period of last year. The cotton crop alone will put about $200,000,000 in Georgia's banks."

"I have never seen greater prosperity ahead," declared C. E. Currier, president of the Atlanta National bank. "Nearly all the clearing house banks have paid back every dollar of their indebtedness, and I know of only one country bank that renewed its note."

Atlanta bankers declare that it has been the custom in the past to pay New York back along from December to March, but this year finds the banks clear now.

"The deposits of Atlanta's banks are now higher than ever in their history," said Robert F. Maddox, vice president of the American National bank. "The banks borrowed $5,000,000 during the summer months to move the crops. They have now paid that back. The year 1914 will spell PROSPERITY, not only for Georgia and the southeast, but across the republic."

All of this property is located right in the wake of improvements now going on, in the section where the city is spending several thousand dollars. There never was and never will be a better chance to make money in Atlanta than there is in buying property at this sale. This property is enhancing in value every day, and when these improvements are completed you will see values jump on West Peachtree Street. Get in on the ground floor now. For further particulars apply to the receivers, or

DELEGATES NAMED BY METHODISTS

Ministers Selected to Represent South Georgia Conference at General Conference—Busy Day Passed.

By Rev. W. A. Brooks.

Macon, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) The South Georgia conference opened today eager for a rapid dispatch of business, as there was, at the beginning of this morning's session, a very large volume of unfinished business of which disposition must be made today and Monday, in order that the conference may adjourn Monday night at the latest in order that Bishop Candler may reach Natchez by next Wednesday morning to preside at the session of the Mississippi conference.

Rev. John C. Elkins, an elder from the Methodist Episcopal, who is doing splendid service as missionary in Cuba, was received by this conference.

Delegates to Conference.

The balloting for the election of clerical delegates to the general conference was completed this morning, and the full delegation is as follows: Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon; Dr. T. D. Ellis, of Savannah; Dr. Charles R. Jenkins, of Macon; Dr. E. T. Cook, of Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. W. C. Lovett, of Atlanta, and Dr. Bascom Anthony, of Wrightsville, principals, and Rev. J. M. Outler, of Thomasville, and Rev. W. F. Smith, of Guyton, as alternates.

The call of question twenty-two, "Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration?" Was resumed and the pastors from the Savannah, Macon and Columbus districts made their reports.

Rev. T. B. Stanford has enjoyed a year of great prosperity at Trinity, Savannah.

Dr. T. D. Ellis has completed a quadrennium of most successful service as pastor of Wesley Memorial church, Savannah, and will be assigned by Bishop Candler to a new field of labor for the ensuing conference year.

There have been two hundred and thirty-five accessions to the church at Grace, Savannah, this year, under the proficient and progressive pastorate of Rev. J. M. Glenn.

The Waynesboro Church.

The Waynesboro church has contributed a grand total of $2,500 to foreign missions. Rev. W. K. Dennis has seen the affairs of the kingdom prosper in his hands in Statesboro this year.

Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, pastor of Mulberry Street church, this city, has had a year of phenomenal prosperity. There have been three hundred and four accessions to the church; a total of between $9,000 and $10,000 collected for the various missionary endeavors, a grand total of $19,500 raised for all purposes.

Dr. W. C. Lovett, editor of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, Atlanta, ably represented the interest of that inspiring and indispensable conference organ; as Dr. Charles R. Jenkins, president of Wesleyan Female college, Macon, the claims of that famous institution, and as did likewise Rev. J. A. Smith, financial agent of the South Georgia Conference Orphans' home, Vineville, the crying needs of that noble orphanage.

Rev. J. A. Rountree, of Davisboro, has made upwards of nine hundred pastoral calls during the year. Three young men from the Spread charge, Rev. R. J. Pollard, have been licensed to preach this year.

Major Guinn Speaks.

Major R. J. Guinn, of Atlanta, president of the Wesley Memorial enterprise, made a stirring appeal for these most worthy benevolences.

Rev. Hugh H. Harris, director of the Wesley Memorial institute, Atlanta, was presented to the body.

Mrs. George C. Thompson, of the Wesley Memorial hospital, Atlanta, addressed the conference in behalf of raising $50,000 in acceptance of Mr. Asa Candler's munificent offer to donate $3 for eevry dollar raised. This movement is looking toward the early erection of a new hospital building. The conference pledged its heartiest support of the enterprise. The Wesley Memorial hospital is the only hospital in Southern Methodism belonging exclusively to one church. Let all our Georgia pastors be sure to plan well for the charity patients of this hospital, as every presiding elder's district of both the North Georgia and South Georgia conferences have received this year more aid to its needy patients than was received from the two conferences last Christmas. Bishop Candler spoke most encouragingly and laudably of the work of both Memorial enterprises and the Memorial hospital. Bishop Candler declared that he has not nor ever had any interest in his brother's business enterprise, and tersely remarked: "I have no business except the business of the kingdom of God."

To Establish Headquarters.

Dr. James Connor, Jr., directed the attention of the body to the Southern Assembly grounds located at Junaluska, N. C., the great assembly grounds of our church. Dr. E. F. Cook introduced a resolution that South Georgia conference headquarters be established and a commitee of ten to carry out this resolution will be appointed.

Pierce Institute Accepted.

The conference adopted today the following resolution from the report of the board of education:

"Whereas, The board of trustees of the Pierce Collegiate institute has made tender of their plant to the South Georgia conference, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the South Georgia conference accept the institution as its own property."

This resolution was unanimously adopted. The Pierce institute, named in honor of Dr. Lovick and Bishop George F. Pierce, is located at Blackshear, and was successfully conducted for eleven years by the Presbyterians, under the name of the Presbyterian institute. Rev. W. A. Huckabee, so well known in educational circles in south Georgia, is the president of the institution. No institution in Georgia or the south is better located or has a more promising future than the Pierce institute.

Rev. J. L. Jerdine, a member of this conference and a missionary from Korea, spoke interestingly and instructively of the missionary endeavors in that distant land. Rev. Mr. Jerdine did not speak sanguinely of the realese from prison of Baron T. H. Yun, formerly a student at Emory college, and whose unjust trial and imprisonment have created interest and sympathy on the part of the entire Christian world.

Baron Yun is preaching to the inmates of the prison in which he is confined.

Rev. O. B. Chester, pastor of St. Luke's, Columbus, reports a good year in spiritual things. A total of $13,500 has been raised for all purposes.

One hundred and nineteen accessions have been added to St. Paul's church, Columbus. Rev. T. M. Christian, pastor.

Rev. H. C. Ewing has completed four years of acceptable service as pastor of the Methodist Tabernacle, Columbus.

Transfers Are Made.

It is with supreme regret that the conference parts company with two of our most acceptable members in the persons of Revs. V. P. Scoville, of Reynolds, and K. Read, of McRae, who have been transferred to the North Georgia conference and stationed at the Second church, Rome, and at Greenville, respectively.

At 2 o'clock today the conference body was entertained at the South Georgia Conference Orphans' home, Vineville, at a delightful barbecue served in superb style. The grounds, buildings and group of 156 orphan children at this orphanage were of deep interest to conference members and visitors.

In order to expedite the dispatch of routine business of the body an afternoon session was held today at 3:30, at which Dr. T. D. Ellis gracefully presided. Dr. John D. Hammond, president of Paine college, Augusta, made a convincing plea in behalf of negro education. A liberal offering was made for this cause.

Hon. John D. Walker, of Sparta, treasurer of Asbury Brotherhood of the North Georgia conference, outlined the plan of that organization to our body this afternoon with a view of perfecting a like organization. The conference voted as being favorable to the organization.

To Meet In Dawson.

Dr. Fletcher Walton and Rev. A. E. Sansburne, of the North Georgia conference, were introduced to the conference. Invitations to the conference to hold its next session there were extended by both Dawson and Thomasville. Dawson's invitation was accepted for 1914 and the conference will possibly meet in Thomasville in 1915. The following boards and committees made, through their presidents or secretaries, well prepared reports: The Sunday School American Bible Society, the Epworth League, books and periodicals, Wesley Memorial hospital, district conference records, Wesleyan Christian Advocate, all of which with the exception of the last, which was laid on the table, were adopted.

The Bible boards report recommends that the conference cease to levy assessments for the American Bible society, but each pastor be requested to take a collection instead for this cause; the reports also recommended the appointment of Rev. J. H. Mather, of Atlanta, as agent for the American Bible society.

George R. Neal and W. T. Knight and Rev. H. S. Allen were appointed members of the Epworth League board to fill vacancies created by the transfer of Rev. V. P. Scoville, location of Rev. P. H. Stubbs and decease of Rev. J. C. Ingram.

Conference adjourned to meet tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in a memorial. There were no religious services at the church this evening, but several boards were in session. It is now thought the conference will adjourn about noon Monday so that the minsters may receive the appointments to the labors for the ensuing year in time to catch the afternoon trains to their homes.

Summerville Election.

Lyerly, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) An election for the purpose of selecting a mayor and one councilman from each of the four wards in the city of Summerville has been called for Saturday, January 3, 1914.

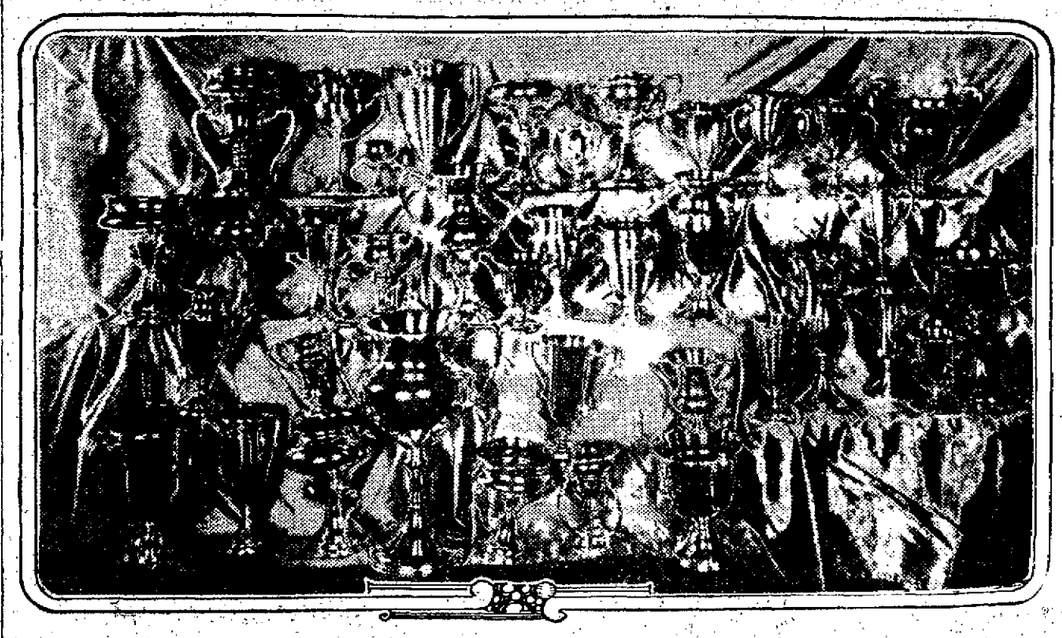
Southern International Poultry Show Opens In Auditorium Monday, With 4,000 Entries



Many beautiful cups offered as trophies at Southern International Poultry show.

At noon tomorrow the Southern International Poultry show, with entries and exhibits of over 4,000 birds, will open in the auditorium-armory, to continue day and night for the entire week.

So extensive are the exhibits that they cover not only the floor of the main auditorium, but Taft hall as well. In addition to the birds entered for competition, there will be present for exhibition purposes only scores of the finest birds in the south and many sent from other parts of the country. Some of these exhibition birds are world-famous prize winners.

For the amusement of the children and for that class of the general public which is not technically interested in poultry breeding, there will be numerous pet and freak exhibits. Rabbits of all kinds, a beautiful variety of doves and pigeons, guinea pigs, and some strange fowls that are a cross between a guinea and ordinary hen will be shown.

Interesting Exhibits.

All in all the exhibits will probably be the most interesting ever brought together under one roof in the south before. The show has brought hundreds of out-of-town visitors to Atlanta, and it is estimated that the total attendance for the week will run well up toward 75,000 people.

Many Atlanta merchants are planning to follow out the suggestion to purchase a quantity of poultry show tickets and send them to their out-of-town patrons. Other large employers in Atlanta are purchasing quantities of tickets in order that all employees may be given an opportunity to see the show. The sale of tickets will begin tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the auditorium box office and from that time on tickets can always be purchased there. The tickets are 10 cents.

The annual meeting of the association officers and directors and executive committeemen to make arrangements for the 1914 show will be held at the auditorium on Tuesday, December 4, this year.

The officers are: Will V. Zimmer, president; J. M. Karwisch, vice president; Loring Brown, chairman executive committee; T. M. Poole, secretary and treasurer and active manager. Executive committee, Loring Brown, chairman; T. M. Poole, E. P. Hunnicutt, John S. McCreight, J. M. Karwisch, Will V. Zimmer, W. S. Thompson, O. O. Ray.

The prize list this year is extensive in money prizes and ribbons, and includes the handsomest collection of cups ever seen in Atlanta. Competition will necessarily be keen.

Enters 120 Fine Birds.

The largest single entrant in the show is O. E. McConnell, of College Park, who has entered 120 fine birds. The largest woman exhibitor will be Mrs. J. M. Hart, of College Park, who will have about 100 birds. The largest entries in the children's class will probably be the S. B. Turman children.

The judges for the main show will be as follows: George Ewald, Cincinnati; D. M. Owen, Athens, Tenn.; G. B. Young, Columbus, Ga.; Julian McCamy, Dalton, Ga.; James P. Keer, Haw River, N. C.

All are experienced poultrymen who have been connected for years with the best interests and ideals of poultry fancying in this country. The children's departments in which some handsome prizes have also been offered, will be conducted separately. The judges for the children's department will be Mr. Alf Bertling, of Chamblee, Ga., and Mr. S. J. Harwell, of Adel, Ga.

The Southern International show will be held under the rules of the American Poultry association, of which it is a member. All awards will be made by comparison. The judging will begin at 9 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, December 2.

Large Variety of Subjects.

Not only are the individual prizes handsome, but a larger variety of subjects is covered than in past years. In addition to special club ribbons by the national association and handsome silk badges by national organizations and other trophies, the following prizes will be offered:

$100 in gold for the best display of 100 or more birds of different variety exhibited by one breeder.

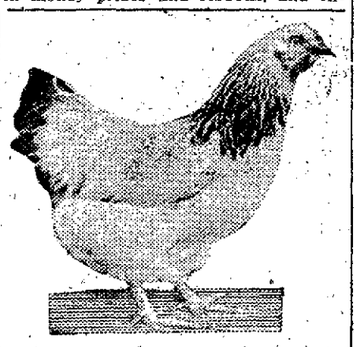
$50 in gold for the best display of 50 birds or more exhibited by one breeder.

$25 in gold for 25 or more birds of one variety. Bantams not competing.

The following special prizes for members of the Southern International Poultry association only:

Handsome cup for the largest and best display by a member.

Handsome cup for the best display in the American class.



Columbian Wyandotte Hen entered by W. L. Embry.

Handsome cup for best display in the Mediterranean class.

Handsome cup for best display in Asiatic class.

Handsome cup for best display in English class.

Handsome cup for best display of any one breed.

The following open prizes are offered:

Handsome cup for best cock bird. Handsome cup for best cockerel. Handsome cup for best hen. Handsome cup for best pullet. Handsome cup for best pen. Handsome cup for largest and best display of 20 or more birds will be offered to each state of the union. This cup is offered as a special inducement to breeders who come from many states.

Buff Rock Club.

The Buff Rock club will meet with the Southern International Poultry association December 1 to 6, and all club members will compete for the district prize cup in addition to the five cups offered by the Southern International Poultry association. Cups are offered respectively for the best cock, cockerel, hen, pullet and pen; in addition $25 in gold to club members.

In the duck class handsome cups will be offered for Buff Orpingtons, White Indian Runners, Light Fawn Indian Runners and Dark Fawn Indian Runners.

The egg prize competition for ribbon trophies will be open to the world. Cash prizes, cups and ribbons will be given in the pigeon class.

In the Bantam class there will be handsome cups offered by the Southern International Poultry assoication, and also cash and ribbon prizes by the association. All standard breeds and varieties will be recognized.

In addition, of course, cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded under the Southern International Poultry association rules for cock, hen, cockerel, pullet and pen of every known standard variety.

The Silver Wyandotte Club of America offers three silver cups and four elegant blue ribbons, to be competed for by club members only.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN ATLANTA THEATER

Improvements which will add materially to the comforts of the theatergoers, have been made the past week in the Atlanta theater. Most important of all has been the laying of carpeting to protect the feet of patrons from contact with the concrete floor. This work has been done in a manner which is admirable and safeguards the theater-going public at all times.

In addition to the carpeting, the management has arranged to give additional heat on the orchestra floor and during the coldest weather the theater will be comfortable. The announcement was made early this season regarding the carpets, but the adding of extra heat ducts was made only after much figuring and changing of the heating arrangements of the playhouse.

With the opening of the "Ben-Hur" engagement tomorrow night, the theater will be taxed to take care of the patronage and to keep all comfortable. The "Ben-Hur" engagement promises to be almost a record breaker, though plenty of good seats are to be had for all performances. Hundreds are coming to the city from out of town, many coming from South Carolina and Alabama.

Mount Airy Negro Woman Claims to Be 115 Years Old; Works Every Day

Mount Airy, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—Among many other claims to unique distriction, Mount Airy is believed to possess the oldest person in northeastern Georgia. Samley Jackson, colored, aged 115 years, has made her home with her son, Jack Nemons, and family for a number of years, and is today one of the most active members of the family. She walks erect and with a sure step without the aid of a walking cane or other assistance. She can see well without spectacles and hears remarkably well.

She makes fine buttonholes, does embroidery well for one of her race. She can do the washing for a large family, care for the milk, even churning and dressing the butter. Her snowy caps are kept clean by her own hands and worked beautifully as well. She is never idle and can be seen with her broom sweeping about the doorsteps and far beyond with the quickness of a girl.

OLD TIME DISTILLERY

ONE RELIC OF THE PAST IS STILL BUSY PRODUCING CORN LIQUOR IN ALABAMA

Alabama has one thing no other state has—that is, the only corn whiskey distillery of the old type so prevalent a few decades ago. In this case the seeming lack of progress is real progress, for by the old method the distiller got only two and a half gallons of liquor from a bushel of corn, and it was considered to be a generally healthful and palatable beverage.

By the newer modern method the distillers add what is known as a cooker to their equipment, and boil out the last drop of juice from the corn, getting as much as five gallons to the bushel. But the quality is said not to be so good.

This old-time distillery is busy every day turning out corn liquor for people who prefer the old-time article.

"Yes," said Mr. Moore, proprietor of this old plant at Girard, Ala., "we are satisfied to do it the old-fashioned way, because we turn out so much better article. No, we charge no more than others.

"Oh, yes, we will mail orders and pay the express, too. Of course, unless a man really appreciated an old-time superior corn liquor, we don't care for his trade, for we sell about all we can make.

"However, anybody that wants to try some of our Good Stuff Corn Liquor can send $3 for 4 hottest quarts." Address Moore's Distillery, Box 28, Girard, Ala.—(Adv.)

Washington, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—With the current issue of The Washington Reporter, the only newspaper published in Wilkes county, the ownership and editorial control pass from Messrs. Ficklen and Neeson to Ben A. Neal, who for the past year has been the editor of The McDuffie Progress at Thomson, Ga.

Mr. Neal has not severed his business connection with the Thomson paper. It is understood to be his intention to give his active attention to the editorship of the Washington paper, but will install a linotype machine and do much of the typesetting for The McDuffie Progress in his office here. The local paper will be very much enlarged and improved under Mr. Neal's regime.

The Washington Reporter was founded fifteen years ago by George C. Jones, of North Dakota, and was soon after purchased by Messrs. Boyce Ficklen, Sr., and J. C. Williams. When the latter sold his interest in the newspaper property to acquire The Greensboro Herald-Journal, The Reporter was purchased by Messrs. F. H. Ficklen, C. G. Neeson and Boyce Ficklen, Jr., who have since been its editors and publishers.

In Three Conferences President of Wesleyan Reports to Brothers

Macon, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Dr. Charles R. Jenkins, president of Wesleyan Female college, of Macon, and generally regarded as one of the strongest young men in the Methodist church, south, must make an annual report to each of three conferences which control his college—the North Georgia conference, the South Georgia conference and the Florida conference. To whichever conference he goes to read his report he is welcomed by at least one brother, for there are five Jenkins brothers and all of them are preachers.

One of the brothers is doing itinerant work in Missouri and the others are connected with active work in one of the three conferences which control the Methodist College for Girls. All the brothers are graduates of Emory college and all of them members of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity, with the exception of Rev. Elliott Jenkins, who graduated in Florida before entering Emory. He is also a fraternity man and belongs to the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity.

G. N. & I. COLLEGE LEADS IN TEMPERANCE WORK

Milledgeville, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—Announcement was made at the recent state meeting of the W. C. T. U. that official statements were made at the national meeting in New York last month that Georgia is leading all other states in America in its temperance work in the colleges. Incidentally it was brought out that the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, at Milledgeville, was the first institution in the state to send delegates to a state temperance meeting the first delegation going several years ago to Savannah. And the Georgia Normal and Industrial college is ahead of all others in America in taking up the work for temperance.

SHE KISSED LOVER AS HE WAS DYING FROM HER BULLET

Amid Sobs Eighteen-Year-Old Dora Murff Tells Jury How She Killed Man Who Betrayed Her.

SUNDAY SCHOOL GIRL TILL SHE MET DELHAYE

Miss Murff Says Delhaye Promised to Marry Her, and When He Refused She Took Poison.

Crowley, La., November 29.—"I placed the gun between my brother and step-father and pulled the trigger; then I jumped from the surrey with my revolver and called to Delhaye, who was running, and I fired twice. Then he threw up his hands and fell, crying, 'Oh, my God!'"

Thus Dora Murff, the 18-year-old girl, who with her step-father, J. S. Duval, and half-brother, Allie Duval, is on trial here for the murder of J. T. Delhaye, this afternoon described the slaying of her sweetheart, whom she charged refused to marry her. She alone assumed full responsibility for the killing of Delhaye, despite that other witnesses had testified that the elder Duval pulled the trigger.

Called Dying Lover "Darling."

After making this statement the girl broke down and between sobs said that she did not go to town with the intention of killing her sweetheart, but that she loved him. She said she ran up to the side of Delhaye, bent over his body and said:

"Darling, you see what you made me do?"

According to the girl's testimony he answered:

"Hue the row the best you can, Dora, but for God's sake tell the truth."

Graphically she described the incidents leading up to the killing of Delhaye, telling the story of her life after she became his sweetheart. She said that after she had called to him twice to come to the surrey, he replied that he wanted nothing further to do with her.

"I saw him reach for his pistol and I fired the gun," said she.

Gave Him Last Kiss.

"When I knelt down beside Millard (Delhaye) there on the street," continued the girl, "I did not know what I was doing. After I gave him the last kiss I don't remember anything. Some one picked me up and when I noticed the crowd coming near I couldn't stand for any one walking over his body and I just swung the pistol around and called out, 'Scatter, you!' I didn't swear, I know it."

Pointing a finger at the accused, an attorney for the prosecution asked her if her testimony was not a concerted story to save the life of James Duval.

"It is not," the girl almost screamed, "I swear it."

James Duval followed his stepdaughter on the stand and gave practically the same testimony, adding that he did not know for what purpose she wanted the shotgun to be carried in the surrey except for protection.

The night session and the defense closed with the testimony of Allie Duval and Dr. H. C. Webb, the latter describing medicines that he had prescribed for Dora and her condition at the time he was attending her. He testified that the girl told him Delhaye was responsible for her downfall.

Judge Campbell announced before adjournment that the trial would be ended Monday night if it took an all-night session. Monday night will be devoted to argument.

Miss Murff told of her acquaintance with Delhaye and her story of how he had promised marriage. She testified that a few days before Delhaye met his death she took poison, but her life was saved by quick work of physicians, and that for 120 hours before Delhaye was killed she neither ate nor slept.

She was a pathetic figure on the stand as she told her story in tones audible only a few feet from her. The state objected strenuously to her relating her past life, one of the features of which was her statement that she had missed going to Sunday school only twice in five years prior to the killing.

"Got the Son of a Gun."

From a woman lying in bed beside a baby a few days old, the prosecution claims to have gained its most damaging testimony. Last night, after a night session of court took place, the judge, jury, lawyers and stenographers went to a room in the Avenue hotel, where lay Mrs. F. A. Leger, proprietress of the hostelry.

"I got the son of a gun," are the words she attributed to J. S. Duvall just after Delhaye fell mortally wounded on a street near her hotel. The state charges that Duvall fired a shotgun from a surrey in which he and Allie Duvall and the girl were riding. Then the girl jumped out and fired a revolver at Delhaye.

U. S. MERCHANT MARINE NEEDED FOR THE CANAL

Washington, November 29.—Upon the existence of an American merchant marine depends the value of the Panama canal to this country, in the opinion of Colonel William L. Siebert, U. S. A. corps of engineers, who addressed the members of the National Geographical society here last night.

"The value of the Panama canal to the United States depends more than anything else upon whether congress enacts such laws as will bring into existence an American merchant marine engaged in foreign commerce," declared Colonel Seibert.

"Now that the canal is nearing completion what are we going to do with it?" asked the colonel. "Shall the markets of the Central American countries be supplied by the United States or by foreign countries? In my humble judgment, that depends upon the action of congress."

Colonel Seibert is in charge of the construction work on the Gatun locks on the isthmus.

ALL IN READINESS FOR BIG CORN SHOW

Week's Program Includes Exhibition Drill at Fort McPherson and Big Street Parade.

Tuesday morning will witness the first arrival of Georgia corn club boys who will be here during the week 1,000 strong, for the third annual Georgia corn show, given under the auspices of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, December 2 to 5.

Atlanta homes have, so far, been opened to 600 of these boys, and it is hoped that further responses, yet to come in, will materially increase this number. Cards from others who will take care of one or two of the boys are expected to be brought in Monday from some of the students of the Boys' High school, Tech High school and Girls' High school; while on Monday, by authority of the board of education, there will be distributed to the children of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades in all the grammar schools, 5,000 more cards with similar request, to be returned in every instance possible on Tuesday morning.

The corn show committee of the chamber of commerce hopes by this means to secure homes for all the boys who come; but if not, some provision will have to be made for the surplus elsewhere.

The chamber of commerce has addressed a letter to its 300 committee members requesting of them just one more service in addition to the many already rendered, before the end of the year, and that is wherever possible that they will take care of two of these corn club boys. Many favorable replies are expected to this letter.

Corn Show Program.

The corn show situation will begin to get lively Wednesday, December 3, when in the afternoon a special dress parade and exhibition drill will be given by the troops of the Seventeenth United States infantry at Fort McPherson. This feature has been arranged for the visiting boys by Colonel J. T. VanOrsdale, and will be especially attractive. Special cars to take the corn club boys to Fort McPherson will leave the capitol at 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon as the parade will begin at 3:30. The cars will be furnished the boys free of charge, and will bring them back to the city immediately after the exhibition.

The famous moving picture, "The Dawn of Plenty," secured through Commissioner J. D. Price of the department of agriculture, will be presented for the benefit of the visiting boys and girls at the Grand opera house at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening.

This picture, accompanied by a special lecture, requires about an hour and a half for its presentation. It depicts, in picture form, the history of agriculture and harvesting from the earliest days down to the present time. The visiting boys and girls will be admitted free upon their badges, and tickets will also be sent to the hosts and hostesses who are entertaining the boys.

Parade the Big Feature.

This year's annual corn show parade will far surpass in extent and interest anything of the kind ever seen in Atlanta. It will be held Thursday afternoon, December 4, and will be in charge of Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash, as grand marshal.

This year's parade will consist of three divisions and will stretch through the streets of Atlanta for more than a mile. The first division of the parade will consist of the military and will be in command of General R. K. Evans, U. S. A. It will include the Fifth infantry regiment, Georgia national guard, the Marist college cadets, the cadets of the Georgia Military Academy and a band, together with any other military organizations that may decide to take part.

The second division will be in command of Superintendent W. M. Slaton of Atlanta's schools, and will be composed of 3,000 students of the two high schools and the sixth, seventh and eighth grades of the grammar schools; of the boy scouts of Atlanta, Marietta and Decatur, and of the Georgia corn club boys 1,000 strong, with a banner from each of the 100 counties represented, showing the county's record. The Atlanta school boys and the boy scouts will be intermingled with the corn club boys.

The third division will be composed of the automobiles containing the members of the board of education, the mayor and city council, statehouse officers, officers of the Chamber of Commerce and members of the corn show committee.

The parade will assemble promptly at 2:30 o'clock at the Auditorium-Armory, and will move the minute the clock strikes 3. The military will start first, passing in review before the corn club boys, who will fall in behind, and the automobiles will come up in the rear in charge of one of the grand marshal's aides. The line of march will be across the Washington street viaduct to Mitchell street, to Whitehall street, to Peachtree to Houston, to Ivy, to Gilmer, to Washington to the capitol where the parade will be disbanded.

At this corn show there will be a total of approximately 3,000 exhibits, including exhibits by some forty or fifty of the Girls' Canning clubs of the state.

Prizes aggregating approximately $3,000 in cash and articles of value will be awarded to the successful exhibitors, in addition to which diplomas from the state college of agriculture will be presented to all the boys who have made 100 bushels of corn or more on their acre. This presentation will be made by Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the college.

HANDSOME BLONDE SOUGHT BY POLICE

After Losing $200 in Checks and Currency, W. G. Pfingstay Tells Officers He Suspects Woman.

Police and city detectives scoured the city last night in a vain effort to find a clew which would lead to the arrest of a handsome blonde woman of about 30 years of age, following the reported loss of $110 in currency and $88 in checks by W. G. Pfingstay, a well-known Decatur citizen.

Pfingstay appeared at police headquarters early last night and told the police that his pockets had been picked while aboard a Decatur car at about 6:30 o'clock.

"I waited for the car at the corner of Pryor and Alabama streets for ten minutes and when the Decatur car pulled in a large crowd boarded it," asserted Pfingstay.

"I had to stand up in the aisle. Seated just next to where I stood was a stylishly dressed woman. As I remember she wore a dark gray traveling suit. Her hair was light and she had blue eyes.

"The car had not gone more than three blocks when the woman suddenly rang the bell which stopped the car and walked out. The conductor came through a minute afterward. I felt in my pocket for my wallet to pay my fare. It was gone.

"I felt all through my clothes and I guess I created quite a turmoil in the car when I told several men that I had been robbed.

"The last time I remembered having my wallet was just before I boarded the car and I am sure that some one on the car 'frisked' me. I suspect the woman who sat next to me who rode only a short distance, because she nudged up close to me when I was on the platform of the car. In fact, she pushed so close to me that I stepped aside and let her pass. She then went forward and secured a seat which another gentleman relinquished. I came on up the aisle and stood next to her."

For several weeks the detectives have been convinced that a female "dip" is operating in this city. It is stated that only a day or so ago several prominent Atlanta society women had their purses and other valuables taken while shopping in a downtown dry goods store. They, however, did not report their loss to the police, as they did not relish the notoriety. Up until a late hour last night no clew to the handsome blonde had been secured.

TWO FATALLY INJURED AS AUTO TURNS TURTLE

Victims Pulled From Beneath Blazing Car by Five Injured Companions.

Athens, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Leke Floyd, a prominent farmer, and Hall Daniels, both of Madison county, were fatally injured, their physicians say beyond question, when a big car in which they and five others were going from Athens to Danielsville struck a bridge over the Oconee and turned turtle, pinning the two men under it.

The car caught fire and was entirely consumed in the edge of the water, just a few minutes after the five slightly injured men dragged the mangled bodies from beneath the wreckage. The accident occurred about 8 o'clock.

Wife of Sergeant Helps to Capture Intruder in Home

Mrs. Geo. C. Nealy Warns Man to Keep Away From House and Then Phones Husband for Assistance.

Mrs. George C. Nealy, wife of Police Desk Sergeant George Nealy, of No. 187 East Fair street, at 11 o'clock last night displayed great fortitude and presence of mind when, after apprehending an intruder she sounded an alarm which resulted in his arrest.

On hearing a noise which sounded like some one trying to pry open a window, Mrs. Nealy, who was upstairs at the time, looked out the window and a saw a man standing on the ground beneath the dining room window making a determined effort to break in. Mrs. Nealy first telephoned her husband at police barracks to send the call officers at once. She then procured a revolver and shouted to the man to go away or she would shoot.

The man was not to be deterred by so mild a threat. He went around to the front of the house and came on the porch, where he endeavored to push in the front door. Mrs. Octavia Nealy, the aged mother of the sergeant, opened the door a little to see who it was. The man forced past her and entered the house.

It was at this instant that Tyler Eason, a roomer who had been asleep upstairs rushed down the stairs, pistol in hand. He covered the man and held him until Call Officers Cochran and Evans arrived and placed him under arrest.

At police barracks he gave his name as D. J. Haley, 37 years old, a farmer of Woodstock, Ga., and said that he was trying to find his boarding house. He was charged with suspicion until his character could be investigated.

HE JUMPS FROM BRIDGE WITH ROPE 'ROUND NECK

Unknown Makes Determined But Unsuccessful Attempt at Suicide in Rome.

Rome, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) An unknown white man with a rope around his neck tied to the East Rome bridge across the Etowah river leaped from the span tonight with suicidal intent under the glare of an electric light. His actions were noticed by pedestrians, who ran to the spot and dislodged his body from the framework of the bridge in which it had caught before it reached the rope's end.

He tried to cut the rope as he was being pulled to the top, but was unsuccessful. He was carried to a local sanitarium, where he was unconscious late tonight, being still unidentified. Parties are dragging the river for his suit case which he threw over the bridge ahead of him in hope of finding papers of identification.

He is about 50 years of age and is believed to have reached Rome in the early part of the night from Atlanta.

Banker Robin Is Free.

New York, November 29.—Joseph G. Robin, convicted of wrecking the Northern bank, completed his sentence of one year in Blackwell's Island penitentiary today, less a month and twenty-one days deducted for good behavior.

COLYAR ARRESTED ON CHEAT CHARGES

Lawyer Held by Local Detectives to Answer Warrant Sworn Out for Him in Rome, Ga.

A. S. Colyar, principal figure in the famous dictagraph case during the Mary Phagan murder investigation, was arrested by detectives yesterday on a warrant sworn out in Rome, Ga., charging cheating and swindling.

He was carried to police headquarters to await the arrival of Rome officials. He denies the charge emphatically, and declares that he will be promptly freed and cleared. The exact circumstances are not known. The warrant was issued for H. J. Awtry, it is said, whose home is in Rome.

Chief Lanford sated to a Constitution reporter last night shortly after Colyar's detainment that the prisoner had told him that he had committed nothing illegal in Rome, and that his only transaction in that city was the legitimate collection of a lawyer's fee.

Story From Rome.

Rome, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) H. J. Awtrey, of Chicago, swore out the warrant for A. S. Colyar, charging him with cheating and swindling his mother, Mrs. L. A. Awtrey, out of $750. Colyar recently represented himself to Mrs. Awtrey as a lawyer.

He told her, it is alleged, that her son, H. J. Awtrey, was in jail and would be sent to the penitentiary for five years, but that he, Colyar, could clear him if she would give him $500.

Colyar in some manner won the friendship of Mrs. Awtrey and it is stated that she gave him notes amounting to $750. When H. J. Awtrey heard of it he immediately came south.

SHOT BY YOUNG GIRL, THOMASTON BOY DIES

Victim of Shooting Gallery Accident Was Being Rushed to Atlanta.

Robert Cash Moore, aged 22, of Thomaston, Ga., died yesterday afternoon on the train from Piedmont, Ala., where he was shot accidentally by a young girl in a shooting gallery. Moore was the attendant in charge of the gallery conducted by E. J. Janz, of the Mayolympic Carnival company.

Miss Pearl Hawes, daughter of O. J. Hawes, a prominent resident of this place, had a gun to shoot at a target and was told it was not loaded. Moore stopped to get her a loaded gun just as she pulled the trigger, the bullet passing through his temple.

After the shooting Janz put the young man upon the train to bring him to Atlanta, where it was hoped that he might be operated upon and his life saved. Moore remained unconscious and died as the train passed Dallas, Georgia.

The body on its arrival here was placed in charge of the P. J. Bloomfield company and efforts were made to communicate with young Moore's father, who is said to live at Thomaston.

Meeting Enthusiastic.

With enthusiastic but business-like determination, fifty prominent Atlanta business men met in the chamber of commerce and organized fifteen committees to make Oglethorpe university in Atlanta a success. The fifteen committee chairmen had been selected by the executive committee back of the movement, and each chairman named those he desired to serve with him.

In short order these committees were completed and the list of names of those Atlantans who subscribed to the old university fund of eight years ago, was apportioned among them, each committee receiving about 120 names.

"Double Your Subscription for Oglethorpe," will be the slogan with which these committees will call, beginning Monday, upon the subscribers to the old fund, with a view to completing Atlanta's quarter of a million subscription in the shortest possible time.

It was arranged that all of the subcommittees shall meet at the Piedmont hotel at 12:30 o'clock noon, beginning Monday, every day during the campaign. The meetings will be held on the second floor where luncheon will be served, and the daily news of the campaign will be told.

Ivan Allen Takes Hold.

After calling the meeting to order Captain James W. English, chairman, practically turned it over to Ivan E. Allen, who will act as chairman of the campaign committee. Mr. Allen jumped at once into the organization of the subcommittees, which were appointed as rapidly as the names were handed in by the respective chairmen.

When all of the subcommittees had been organized, each with business men full of determination, Mr. Allen placed in their hands the lists of their allotted portion of the subscribers to the old fund.

"Tell everyone of them that you want them to double the subscriptions they made to the old fund," Mr. Allen said. "We've got to do this to raise what we need for this new and more important movement. But don't stop with your list; see everybody else you can. Tell them they may distribute their payments over five years if they wish, but see that every possible man in Atlanta takes a hand in this movement."

Will Start Work Monday.

Advices Received in Washington Indicate That the Mexican Dictator Cannot Long Maintain Himself in Power.

MEXICO CITY ISOLATED BY SUCCESS OF REBELS

Chihuahua City the Only Important Place Held by Huerta Between Capital and Border—Rebels Active in the South.

Washington, November 29.—Under pressure of constitutionalist armies in the north, advancing on Chihuahua, the most important military defense that now stands between the Mexican capital and the border, and the menacing activities of the Zapatistas to the south, the situation of the Huerta government in Mexico City was believed by officials here tonight to be more critical than usual.

Huerta's Search for Money.

Efforts of General Huerta to obtain funds for the payment of accrued interest on National railroad bonds were regarded as serving to demonstrate the deterrent effect upon foreign capital of the attitude of the American government toward speculators who would risk their money to secure exorbitant profits at this stage in the great national tragedy.

Mexico City, according to advices here, is almost isolated from the northern half of Mexico. State department reports show that while rail communicatin is still open between Laredo on the Rio Grande and Monterey, mail and telegraph matter cannot get southward beyond the latter point except to Saltillo. Fearing the speedy close of this last avenue of escape, Americans and other foreigners in Monterey are reported to be crowding the trains starting for the American border.

Moheno's Visit to Lind.

A report that Senor Moheno, the Huerta secretary of foreign affairs, had gone to Vera Cruz to confer with John Lind upon the arrival at that port of President Wilson's personal representative, aroused interest at the state department. It was believed here that Senor Moheno might be charged with fresh propositions to lay before the American government through Mr. Lind.

News of the approaching dispatch from Cadiz to Vera Cruz of a Spanish warship, and of the vigorous demand on the part of influential French newspapers for a cessation of the internecine conflict in Mexico, also interested officials here mainly because of its probable moral effect in reinforcing President Wilson's demand for a change in the provisional government. There is still, however, no disposition to regard the subject as one beyond the ability of the United States government to handle without anything more than the moral support of other foreign nations.

Conditions In Oil Fields.

A long telegraphic report was received during the day from Admiral Fletcher on his flagship Rhode Island. The admiral's report dealt with conditions in the oil fields which are so far quiet, but still threatening.

With the arrival in Mexican waters of the fourth division of the Atlantic fleet in the course of a fortnight, three-fourths of that great naval aggregation will be engaged in the protection of American and foreign interests in Mexico. The practical termination of the threatened Navajo uprising in northwestern New Mexico, will have the effect of releasing the squadron of the 12th cavalry which was rushed from Fort Robinson, Nebraska, to the Indian agency and these troops will go at once to Texas, reinforcing on the border patrol the second and fifteenth cavalry now at El Paso, along with the battery of the 5th field artillery.

REBELS CONTROL ALL NORTH MEXICO

Railroad Center in Central Mexico Now the Objective of Huerta's Foes--Another Troop Train Blown Up.

Mexico City, November 29—San Luis Potosi, the largest town between the capital and Monterey and the most important railroad center in Central Mexico, appears to be the objective point of those rebels who recently began concentrating south of Saltillo.

Reports from the state of Tamaulipas indicate that the concentration or rebels at Victoria has brought together more than 6,000 men and that General Rubio Navarrette, the federal commander, who intended to recapture Victoria, is in a difficult situation north of that town

There is an unconfirmed report that Navarrette's force has been cut to pieces although, according to war department advices, he has retaken Victoria notwithstanding the disparity between his forces and those of the enemy

Troop Train Blown Up.

West of San Luis Potosi in the state of Guanajuato on the Penjamo branch of the National railways constitutionalists today burned the new 40,000 peso station building

Another troop train was blown up near San Luis Potosi yesterday Private advices indicate the presence of a thousand rebels within striking distance of that city A passenger who arrived here today from San Luis Potosi told a story of the wiping out of a military escort of 50 men on a train bound from Tampico to San Luis Potosi four days ago He said the railway line since then has been cut and traffic suspended

The story of this man who said he was a passenger on the train, was that the train ran into a cut guarded by rebels

Machine guns had been placed on both sides of the track and their fire was concentrated on the train When the engagement was over every soldier on board the train had been killed and forty-five passengers wounded

Rebels Express Regret.

Rebels who entered the coaches after the fight to rob the passengers, expressed regret that any passengers had been hit by their bullets The passengers were left with enough money to carry them to their destinations

Some reports received here say Tampico has been taken but in best-informed circles they are discredited although it is known that the rebel circle is slowly tightening about that port

Saltillo and Monterey continue isolated and reports from other parts of the country indicate successful rebel activity In the capital there is an absence of any news indicating an increase in government strength, either financial or military

Denials were made today both at the American embassy and the palace that any negotiations between Mexico and the United States are under way, notwithstanding the departure of foreign Minister Mohero for Vera Cruz, where, it is understood John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative returned today

Protection of Japan Subjects.

The Japanese minister conferred today with Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires, regarding the protection Japanese subjects might expect on the west coast The minister was assured by Mr O'Shaughnessy that they would receive the same protection, as far as the United States was concerned as other foreigners

Admiral Von Hintze, the German minister, talked with Mr O'Shaughnessy regarding plans for the defense of the foreign colonies in the capital The Americans have not yet united with the Europeans in any action looking toward defense in case it should become necessary

Has Huerta Got New Loan?

Government officials are authority for the statement that President Huerta has obtained a new loan of 7,000,000 pesos The truth of their statement has not been confirmed

So great has become the domination of the rebels in the gulf coast oil regions, it is said that on their demand the Mexican railway, a British corporation of Vera Cruz and Mexico City, have agreed not to haul any more fuel oil intended for the National railways If the rebels succeed in enforcing their demands it will seriously cripple federal military operations

The union teamsters will meet in the Labor temple tomorrow and vote on the strike proposition. It is probable the men will vote to strike Thomas J Farrell, general organizer for the union, continued tonight to meet employers of teamsters and explain to them the demands of the union It was stated a number of employers had signed an agreement

President Pulsifer, of D. C. Heath & Co., Makes Interesting Argument Against State Publication.

Setting forth the principle that a state never conducts a business as economically as a private concern does," and declaring that the school book publishers of the United States themselves make an average profit of less than 10 per cent W. F. Pulsifer president of the D. C. Heath & Co. in an interview given The Constitution cites California as proof of the fact that a state will lose money if it attempts to publish its own school books.

He declares that California has lost more than $1,000,000 from 1884 to 1913 in publishing its school books.

Mr. Pulsifer who is a former president of the Union League club of Brooklyn and the Graduates club of New York, was entertained for several days last week at the Capital City club by Dudley R. Cowles of Atlanta he having been here incident to the meeting of the state book commission which has just announced the books to be used in the state schools for the next year.

Active Competition

The Constitution and the Georgia newspapers generally have given much space to the arguments of those who are advocating that the state take over the authorship and publication of its school books," said Mr. Pulsifer as he was about to leave the city. "I am sure that it will be willing to present the other side. If I know anything in the world I know this business and if any better evidence could be desired to show that there is absolutely no such a thing as a book trust or book understanding of any kind I do not know how it could be presented in stronger shape than in the fierce rivalry which existed in Atlanta during the past week for the placing of books in the state schools for the next five years. Every leading publishing house in America was represented. Competition was active from begin ning to end and I am sure that the state has no cause to complain at the prices named.

Would Be a Crime

The state publication of books would not only be a bad policy from an educational standpoint," said Mr. Pulsifer but it would be a crime. Setting aside the question of financial loss to the state for such a policy why should Georgia build a wall around her borders and thus deprive her children of the best talent that the world produces?"

Mr. Pulsifer stated most emphatically that such a thing as a school book trust does not exist in the United States.

"If there were a school book trust D. C. Heath & Co. would certainly be aware of it," he said. The fact is that nearly a half hundred or more school books publishers have hotly competed against each other for Georgia's business this year. If there were any such thing as a trust this of course would not be the case.

Of the argument that the manufacture by the state of books written by residents of the state would encourage local talent Mr. Pulsifer said that no Georgia author of today who writes a meritorious book has any trouble in securing a publisher who will sell his book in all parts of the country while if such a work were published by the state of Georgia its circulation would be limited to this state which would be a damper to the productions of ambitious authors.

In setting forth the California situation as a warning to Georgia, Mr. Pulsifer said:

California's Experience.

The state of California undertook in 1884 the preparation and manufacture of its own text books. An amendment to the constitution providing for state manufactured books was ratified by the people in 1887 and at the following session of the legislature statutes were enacted putting this constitutional measure into operation. The law provided that the governor superintendent of public instruction and the principals of the state Normal schools should constitute the state board of education and should compile or cause to be compiled a series of text books for exclusive use in the common schools of the state. These books were prepared by local people and were furnished to the public school children of the state at the cost of printing publishing and distributing of the same. In other words the state of California entered into a private business and became a competitor of school book publishers. The books prepared by these local people proved so unsatisfactory and were so thoroughly denounced by the educators of California that after ten years the state board of education abandoned the plan of confining their text books to those of local authorship and arranged with school book publishers to submit their best books for examination and for the state to rent from the publishers the plates of such books as the board should select. The state board of California selected for instance after carefully examining all the books offered as arithmetic and other common school books and then leased duplicate sets of plates from the publishers whose books were selected paying the publishers royalties for the use of these plates. This plan is now in operation in California. The original law has been modified so that in 1913 the state furnishes free to the children the common school text books.

From 1884 to 1913 the cost of equipment and of manufacturing has exceeded by more than a million dollars the amount received from the sale of books. In other words the state of California has lost a million dollars since 1884 by reason of its having undertaken the manufacture of its own text books. In addition to this the prices have not been lowered. They have been equal and in some cases higher than the prices of books charged by educational publishers. There has been no saving at all to the pupils, but there has been a loss to the state you see of $1,000,000. The state records clearly show these figures. This is accounted for on the well known principle that a state never conducts a business as economically as a private concern does. An illustration of this may be found in the tremendous amount of money now being wasted in the conduct of the highway department of the state of New York."

In speaking of the Ontario plan, which has had considerable discussion in connection with the proposed publication in Georgia Mr. Pulsifer said that the Ontario readers are poor books and that they have been furnished to the school children of that section at low prices—in some cases at 4 cents per copy—only by the publishers losing several thousand dollars for the sake of the advertising that is in it for them.

Georgia has as good books as publishers know how to make said Mr. Pulsifer. They are bid at less than the publishers list prices. Moreover, when changes are made in the state a school child gets a new book at one-half the contract price when he offers his old book in exchange. The books furnished Georgia for the past ten years have been furnished at a lower price than the price charged by the state printer of California during the same time."

Judge Hart Finds Sentiment Rapidly Developing in Favor of Tax Equalization Law

There can no longer be any room for doubt that the tax equalization law passed by the last legislature is growing in popularity all the time and that any effort to make of it a campaign issue next year is more than likely due to fail. The result of Judge Hart's trips throughout the state to educate the people are becoming so evident that even those who were most hostile to the law are being brought to see the necessity of it.

Judge Hart declares that he has yet to meet an opponent of the law who did not become a friend of it after he had heard the features of the act explained.

The judge was seen Saturday morning in his office after visiting several sections of Georgia the first of the week. He has recently visited several counties in south Georgia and is greatly pleased over conditions, generally as he saw them. He is especially gratified over the farming conditions. This year he said has been a remunerative one from the standpoint of farming and especially the Georgia farmer. The farmers of Georgia have been blessed with perhaps better than an average cotton crop for which they are getting fairly remunerative prices and the unusual season has made it possible to gather the crop in the best of condition. The corn crop is an excellent one and altogether the farming operations have been successful. South Georgia appears to me in splendid condition.

I have made a number of speeches explaining the equalization tax law said Judge Hart and I have the first man yet to see who opposes it after he understands the scope and meaning of the law.

The Important Feature.

As I stated the morning I first saw the law its success or failure depends upon the class of men appointed as local assessors and equalizers. That condition is deepened as I have studied the act. I have stressed this point wherever I have spoken and I judge from the class of men that are being appointed that the county commissioners are impressed with that truth. The press of the state likewise realize the necessity of having the best of men appointed to this office and this feature has been stressed and emphasized as no other feature of the law. They should be men of the highest character.

Possibilities of the Law

If the law is properly administered instead of its increasing the burden of taxation, it will lower it on the man who has been doing even approximately his duty. As is known, or at least should be known by every one, the state cannot raise its rate, for since the year 1907 it has been levying the full constitutional rate, to wit, 5 mills. The state can levy no additional tax, and this rate has not raised sufficient revenue to pay current expenses. The deficit has grown until it has reached a million dollars and over. In other words the rate and the volume of property taxed has proved inadequate to raise the necessary money to conduct the business of the state and to meet its appropriations.

Where Burden Lies.

"I made the statement advisedly, after careful investigation, that not exceeding one seventh of the property value of the state is on the tax digest. If all property was put on the digest where it properly belongs and placed there at a fair valuation, Georgia could pay her debt next year and the tax rate could be materially reduced. The effect would be that the man who has fairly borne his burden of taxation would be greatly benefited. And while the law aims to make the man who has not borne his burden do so, but even that man has no right to complain. It is no hardship on a man to require of him to do his duty. He really ought to feel that it is a privilege.

The citizen who decries his property when he returns it for taxation does the state an injustice his neighbor a wrong and himself a wrong by reducing his working capital. Fair valuation of property with a low tax rate is infinitely preferable to a low valuation of property and a high tax rate. The new law is designed to place upon the tax digest all of the property of the state and then as among the taxpayers to equalize property values relatively so that each man carries his exact burden. This is the essence of justice.

Taxes Not Always Burden.

I have spoken of taxes as a burden. There are certain taxes laid which with greater propriety might be called an investment. A man worth $1,000 could not be required by the state to pay more than $5. For this $5 his home is protected his family and he is protected in the enjoyment of life liberty and property. He may be the father of half a dozen children and they are sent to school from five to eight months in the year. Now what $5 has any man ever invested for which he receives so much in return?

ATLANTA GROCERS LOSE BY NEW MILITARY ORDER

Fort McPherson Ordered to Make Requisition for Groceries on Governor's Island.

Atlanta wholesale grocers will lose over $100,000 during the next year on account of the recent order of the war department making it imperative that all army posts in the eastern division make requisition on the eastern division headquarters at Governor's Island N. Y. for all groceries save perishable stuff in the future.

The order has already gone into effect and applies to all of the forty posts in the eastern division.

Sugar lard flour canned goods prunes salt rice, grits and all other such supplies are affected by the order. Such things as ice yeast and potatoes will be bought locally as before as they come under the head of perishable goods. This trade however will not amount to over $10,000 per year according to local wholesale grocers.

George Walker of Walker Brothers company said Saturday:

I think the order is an outrage. We proved four years ago to the war department that we could furnish supplies to the fort here cheaper than the department could buy them. Our proposition laid the foundation for open competition as to supplies.

The first local wholesalers knew of the order was when, after making bids during the early part of this month it was rumored that the war department would soon furnish supplies from Governor's Island. When it came time for an acceptance or refusal of the bids the fort officers told the competing firms of the order.

There can be no economical reason for such a change said H. L. Singer, of H. L. Singer & Co. on Saturday. Perhaps politics is behind it.

The matter has been laid before Georgia's delegation in the house and senate at Washington and aid has been asked looking towards a restoration of the business with the fort from Atlanta.

Mr. Laperrugue left last night for the City of Mexico to take charge of the Plaza del Pais one of the leading hostelries in the Mexican metropolis. His successor at the Ansley has not yet been selected.

YOUNG DICKEY'S FAMILY WELL KNOWN IN TOCCOA

Toccoa Ga. November 29.—(Special.) James Dickey the young mail clerk who is supposed to have attempted suicide in a Mitchell street hotel last night in Atlanta and who was taken to Grady hospital in a precarious condition is the son of W. M. Dickey a prominent citizen who lives just across Tugalo river in South Carolina. Toccoa is Mr. Dickey's postoffice and he and his family are well known here where they visit frequently.

About ten days ago young James Dickey while at the home of his father was ordered by the railway mail service to report at Atlanta at once for duty. Although sick he left for Atlanta and nothing was heard from him for some days when a second order from the railway mail authorities was received by his parents. The mail authorities were at once communicated with and it was found that young Dickey had not reported.

A search was at once instituted but without result until Dickey was taken to Grady hospital last night.

W. M. Dickey left for Atlanta as soon as he heard of his son's illness.

James Dickey has heretofore been a very steady young man and so far as his parents know there has been nothing in his past life which could account for his attempt to take his life.

WOMEN TO URGE VOTE AMENDMENT

Suffragists, Now in Session in Washington, Propose to Put the Democratic Party on Record.

Washington November 29—With the announced intention of starting speedily on its way an amendment to the federal constitution that will enfranchise women suffragists by the hundreds arrived here today to attend the forty fifth convention of the National Woman Suffrage association Such an amendment and the women's right to it now that they vote on national questions in ten states, is to be urged upon congress with vigorous determination say the suffrage leaders They also assert they will attempt to obtain during their week's stay here an expression from President Wilson which might be regarded as the democratic party's policy on the woman suffrage question

Hotel lobbies buzzed tonight with discussion by groups of delegates on the questions which will come before the convention when it begins its sessions Monday Arrival and certification of delegates meetings of the official board and of the executive committees and a luncheon by the National College Equal Suffrage league at which Dr Anna Howard Shaw president of the national association Miss Jane Addams and other prominent leaders spoke filled today Enthusiasm will be kept alive over Sunday by a mass meeting tomorrow at which Dr Shaw Miss Addams and State Senator Helen Ring Robinson of Colorado will be speakers

New Constitution Proposed.

The executive committee at a meeting tonight took up for consideration two of the important matters which will come before the convention One was the proposal to adopt a new constitution for the association in accordance with the recommendation of the constitutional revision committee The other was as to the founding of a business corporation capitalized at $50 000 to be known as the National Suffrage Publishing company which would have charge of the printing of suffrage literature both for the national and for affiliated and other suffrage associations The trustees of the National American Woman Suffrage association would hold a majority of the stock so as to maintain control, although the directors of the company would not be officers of the association

The purpose of the proposed new constitution is to place the organization on a fixed financial basis, with a budget to be presented each year to the convention for approval and assessments made on affiliated organizations partly in proportion to their budgets

At the college women's meeting Miss Addams declared that the recently acquired franchise in Illinois already had given the women of that state great influence in needed reforms Miss Lucy Burns of this city said that one fifth of the senate one seventh of the house of representatives and one-sixth of the electors now come from states where women vote on national questions

A Men's League for Woman Suffrage whose main object is to work for the suffrage amendment has been organized here with Dr Harvey W Wiley as its president

Women in Congress

Feminine members of congress and the president's cabinet within the next ten years is the prophecy of advocates of votes for women They base their predictions upon the great strides that the feminist movement has made in recent years in many of the states

Within the next ten years declares Senator Helen Ring Robinson, member of the Colorado legislature women will be legislating on the floors of the house of representatives and senate of the United States and there will be women members of the president's cabinet

Senator Robinson is convinced that the example of Colorado in selecting a woman to its legislative body will soon be followed by other states From this she declared it will be only a step to the election of women to congress

Norfolk Va November 29—Samuel L Harris president and J G Thalaker secretary and treasurer of the Capital Security company with home offices in Norfolk were arrested today upon indictments found against them in Fargo N D charging that they did devise a scheme to defraud and did deposit circulars and other papers in the United States postoffice in pursuance thereof The indictments are based on the conduct of a money investing business carried on in many states which it is alleged will not pay out in the end as represented The defendants gave bond in the sum of $2 000 each for their appearance on Tuesday next before United States Commissioner Stephenson

The arrests were made by the United States marshal at the instance of Special Postoffice Inspectors C F Egge and George H Chase who came here from Fargo N D armed with the grand jury indictments in the case

The defendants deny the charges brought and declare they are conducting a perfectly legitimate business

It is declared that a similar prosecution started in Georgia some time ago against the Capital Security company was dismissed after an investigation The defendants will resist the effort to have them sent to Fargo to answer the indictment charge

The investment plan of the Capital Security company whose officers were arrested here today is explained to have been on the order of a building and loan association which particular scheme it is averred is not based on a sound financial policy and cannot be honestly worked out along lines represented to investors

The defendants are vigorous in their denial of any fraudulent scheme however and assert that their investments are entirely legitimate, sound and proper

Becker says the appellant's brief is a victim of the greatest conspiracy of the age He was not given a chance for his life The effect of the ruling of the court made the trial a mockery

One of the principal arguments in Becker's behalf is that Sam Schepps the chief corroborative witness for the state was an accomplice His attorneys complain that the trial was rushed through and that Becker was convicted by public opinion

MEASURE IS DESIGNED TO CUT COST OF LIVING

McKellar Introduces Bill to Limit Cold Storage of Produce and Stop Pools.

Washington November 29—An elaborate anti high cost of living bill not only to restrict cold storage of food but to penalize agreements for storage pooling division of territory interference with competition or other restraint of trade in foodstuffs was introduced today by Representative McKellar of Tennessee

The new bill which will be urged immediately before the house commerce committee would make the maximum period of storage on beef or its products 7 months veal 2 months pork 4 months sheep or goats 4 months lamb or kids 3 months poultry and game 3 months fish 2 months eggs 3 months to 6 months with provision for labeling all over 3 months old after inspection butter 3 months

The bill proposed that cold storage articles must be labeled with the dates of production killing packing or manufacturing and period of storage It would bar thawing out cold storage products would have regulations issued by the department of agriculture and provide other precautions

Representative McKellar has recently conferred frequently with Attorney General McReynolds on the cost of living problem and is understood to have furnished some information which department of justice agents now are investigating in their pursuit of an alleged cold storage combination It was generally inferred at the capital that his new bill which is different from some of his others has the approval of the attorney general

After providing against long storage of foodstuffs the bill provides that packers of meat poultry butter and eggs and all cold storage concerns must furnish to the government daily statements of goods on hand shipments receipts and deliveries in violation of which fines ranging from $100 to $1 000 or prison sentences not exceeding five years may be imposed

Representative Fowler of Illinois is collecting data to present to the judiciary committee when it takes up a long contemplated investigation of an alleged beef trust He intends to ask the committee to investigate particularly whether meats kept in cold storage are treated with chemicals

London November 29—Immediate legislation to bar British subjects from evading the slave trade acts is urged in a memorial presented to Premier Asquith today

The signers an influential committee were stirred to action by the revelations made during the inquiry into the atrocities on the rubber fields of Putomayo Peru and by evidence that conditions of native labor elsewhere in South America and in other tropical and semi tropical regions where British subjects and capital are operating are closely akin to slavery

A demand for the revision of the anti slavery treaties with foreign powers is also made by the committee which urges that these treaties should be made definitely applicable to modern forms of slavery

It is suggested that the government appoint a special body of consuls with roving commissioners to visit the more inaccessible parts of the world and keep watch over native labor and commercial conditions Among the signers of the memorial are the Archbishop of Canterbury the Earl of Cromer Earl Curzon of Kedleston Viscount Milner the Earl of Selborne James Bryce former British ambassador at Washington Sir Claude Macdonald Chief Rabbi Hertz and the lord mayor of London

So Declares Major Gillette, Who Unearthed Green-Gaynor Frauds — Gillette Attacks Policy of Wilson.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington D C November 29—(Special)—Major Cassius E Gillette formerly an officer in the regular army but recently a resident of Mexico continues to criticise sharply the administration's attitude toward Mexico

Major Gillette will be recalled in Georgia as the man who unearthed the Green and Gaynor frauds in connection with the harbor work at Savannah He later rendered a similar service in Philadelphia in connection with the McMichal Durham frauds

Speaking from an intimate knowledge of conditions in Mexico Major Gillette said

The forces that havt been in absolute control in Durango for many months consist of four bands The largest is in command of a man who has been a cattle thief for years his name being used by nurses to scare children with He can neither read nor write

Major Tells of Excesses.

The second is a common farmhand peon ignorant and a savage The two others I believe can read and write Barring Americans whom they have somewhat respected and a few of the better class of Mexicans who got away practically every woman and girl over ten years of age within 125 miles of Durango has been outraged by the patriots

These are the people whom our congress proposes to help get arms The president alone holds out against it Only the other day Senator Bacon of Georgia chairman of the senate committee on foreign relations told the president that only their personal consideration for President Wilson kept the senate from passing a resolution authorizing the free sale of arms to the Carranzistas

A few weeks ago Carranza came to Durango to consult his followers He called a meeting—only one man attended and Carranza left at once for Hermosillo 500 miles away over the mountains

If Carranza Were President

If Carranza were made president tomorrow he would have exactly the same problem Huerta now has against 90 per cent of the same patriots

Carranza is now forming a cabinet for its avowed effect upon the United States We seem to be easy to fool

The situation in Mexico today is strikingly similar to what it was in the Island of Hayti when owned by the French but the savages of Mexico are a far more bloodthirsty race than those of Hayti Over their ancestral altars flowed with human blood like rivers

Wait and see what happens in the next year if our government helps arm the poor patriots who are struggling so hard against the demon Huerta making cannon of axles as one of our sympathetic congressmen puts it and who are incidentally destroying every mine (Madero's included with its $1 000 000 worth of equipment etc) every bridge every railroad and outraging every child they can reach

The Hayti horrors were brought on by equally high grade philanthropy The Wilberforce Society got the blacks freed armed and the island put in charge of negro generals This is the only case in history where enslaved savages got control of the country and of their former masters Does our philanthropic government wait to make Mexico the second?

Gives Another Illustration

Suppose for another illustration that the south and the north were separate countries that the south had 11 000 000 of negroes equal in character to the lower half of the present black race against 3 000 000 whites and they had been started on the war path by a millionaire criminal or fool that they had one third of the country under their control and were destroying everything that stood in the way of making an African jungle of the country

I wonder how Senator Bacon would feel if the north should propose to let the negroes get free arms especially if the conditions in the south were such that no white man could have any hope of handling it unless he laid himself open to being called a dictator assassin a traitor and a few of the other gentle terms that have been so liberally applied to General Huerta and—crowning blunder of them all—were given as a reason for arming the blacks

Mr. and Mrs. Sayre Cleverly Avoided Crowd When They Sailed for Europe.

New York November 29—The elusive white house bridal pair Mr and Mrs Francis B Sayre, avoiding the gaily-decorated gangway and bunting bedocked pathway arranged for them slipped quietly on the liner George Washington through the second cabin today and sailed away for Europe on their honeymoon A great crowd that gathered on the decks at Hoboken was keenly disappointed at not seeing them and even President Wilson did not know of his daughter's and son in law's arrival on the ship until he found them in their cabin five minutes before sailing time

Mr Wilson accompanied by Miss Eleanor Wilson and Dr Cary T Grayson reached the boat half an hour before the George Washington was due to start The ship's officers stood at attention as he came on deck and the band played the Star Spangled Banner The crowd cheered There was a wait of fifteen minutes for the Sayres Nobody seemed to know where they were The captain of the liner was growing nervous

Finally the president entered the suite assigned to the pair and to his surprise there they were with a few friends and many flowers The band struck up Mendelssohn's wedding march as the hawsers were cast off today

Among the floral pieces presented to Mr and Mrs Sayre was a cluster of American Beauty roses presented by a committee representing the Hoboken letter carriers on behalf of all letter carriers in the United States

WASHINGTON'S HAIR DECLINING IN PRICE

New York November 29—Co incidentally from London and New York there came to light today two curious items of Americana both concerning souvenirs of George Washington's administration as first president of the United States It appears that Washington's hair is declining in price while one of his letters is selling at a high figure

The hair a lock of which is asserted upon oath to be one clipped from the head of Washington by one of the pall bearers at his funeral and sold last year at auction for $480 was disposed of at a sale of Americana here yesterday for $190

The Byron arrived Tuesday The stowaway was taken to Ellis Island for keeping until the Vestris was ready for departure Experts in sign languages tried their skill upon him but he did not understand the signs or the various languages that was employed He is about 25 years old but there was nothing to indicate his name or nationality

Estimated That Parents in the State Will Gain $34,378.56 on Arithmetics and Readers Alone.

There is no doubt that the state schoolbook commission in the texts adopted last week accomplished a great saving to the people of the state. It should be remembered that only the books that are adopted for basal use are those that must be used in the public schools. All the supplemental books are merely recommended not adopted. They may be used or not in the discretion of boards of education and teachers, and none of them can be used until the basal book on the same subject has been completed. Excluding the supplemental books the commission has materially reduced the aggregate cost of books for elementary grades.

The books of which the largest number are used are the first three or four readers, the spellers, the grammars, the geographies, the first United States history and the grammars. The instances that follow will show the people of the state how helpful text books may be bought hereafter and how great a saving will be made in books that are used in largest numbers.

The Actual Saving.

Heretofore the first four readers on the state list have been sold at the following prices:

Wheeler's Graded Primer	$ 25
Graded Literature, First Reader	20
Graded Literature, Second Reader	25
Lee Reader, Third Book	30
Total for Primer and 3 readers	$1 00

The first four readers just adopted, and that will be used during the next five years, will be sold at the following prices:

Practical Primer	$ 16
Practical First Reader	18
Practical Second Reader	20
Practical Third Reader	27
Total for four new readers	$ 81

This will bring about a saving on the four readers of 19 cents, and this 19 cents saved will be sufficient to purchase one primer with three cents over or one first reader with one cent over.

The total amount that will be saved to the people of the state, based upon the number of first four readers bought during the last 4½ years, is shown in the following table:

Primer—Number sold during last 4½ years 157 859 saved on this book during adoption period beginning January 1 9 cents each or $14 204 70

Latest Reader—Number sold heretofore during same period, 292 516 saved on each new book, 2 cents or $5 850 32

Second Reader—Number heretofore sold during same period 144 499 saved on each new book, 5 cents or $ 724 95

Third Reader—Number heretofore sold during same period 141 337 saved on each new book 7 cents, or $4 240 11

It is not thought likely that the state could in any other way get as low prices of these books as the commission has obtained.

Here is another instance of how money will be saved to the people. The arithmetics on the present state list, that have been in use during the past four and a quarter years are Wentworth's Elementary Arithmetic 25 cents and Wentworth's Practical Arithmetic 40 cents total 65 cents.

Wentworth's Elementary arithmetic was readopted at 25 cents. The Practical arithmetic was dropped and in its place Milne's Progressive arithmetic Book 2, at a cost of only 36 cents was adopted. This means a saving of 4 cents each on the second arithmetic and a reduction of the total cost of the two arithmetics to be used of the same amount.

The total number of second arithmetics sold during the past four and a quarter years was 71 462. Hereafter as 4 cents will be saved on each book the total amount to be saved in four and a quarter years will be at least $2 858 48.

The instances quoted show that on the basis of past sales the total amount to be saved to the people during the next adoption period on primer three readers and two arithmetics will be $34 378 56.

While three members of the commission stood out for readopting the geographies and arithmetics upon the ground that many educators wanted these books revised, they finally yielded to the insistence of the other three members that at least one of the arithmetics should be changed in order that a new and more up to date book might be obtained at a lower price. In this way the commission has reduced the total cost of the two arithmetics from 65 cents to 61 cents.

AUGUSTA IS AFTER SALLY FRANCHISE

Augusta Ga. November 29.—(Special)—President N. P. Corish, Mr. Walsh of the Charleston club, and Mr. Walton of the Columbia club, held a conference here today to discuss the matter of Columbia and Augusta re-entering the South Atlantic League the coming season.

Among those in the conference by invitation were several of the backers of the old defunct Augusta club, whose hazy experiences rather dampened than aided the hopes of the present projector. However if the question of an old debt of $1 400 contracted by the defunct organization, when the league was forced to run the Augusta club for a period in 1911 can be gotten out of the way satisfactorily Augusta will, in all probability re-enter the league. The position taken here is that people who have never had connection with the old club and no part of bringing about that debt should not be made to pay it.

Mr. Corish left tonight with the understanding that he would be definitely informed what Augusta will do in the premises Wednesday. The situation tonight is as indefinite as it has been at any time.

COL. ANDREWS SAILS FOR EXPOSITION WORK

Robert Hilliard Pleased With New Type of Stage Detective

ROBERT HILLIARD,
As Detective Kayton, in "The Argyle Case," explaining use of the dictagraph.

The mood of an actor is powerfully affected by the character that he is playing, says Robert Hilliard who created a new type of stage detective in The Argyle Case, one of the sensational successes of recent years. This is peculiarly true when he plays it night after night and month after month.

I might go further and add that his physical health as well as his mental attitude is affected. Apart from the fact that no man of my profession who is ambitious and progressive desires to be known as a one part actor there is mental stimulus to be found in variety of work and fresh characterization.

The creating of a new part means hard study, intense concentration and infinite thought. But all this is very welcome. I cannot begin to express the delight that I feel in the popular acceptance of the new mystery play—for it has given me a happier view of life and replenished my vitality.

Four years of tense nervous and physical strain in "A Fool There Was" were telling on me. I found it more and more difficult to shake off the oppression of morbidity. Depicting the delirium of the infatuated fool depressed my spirits. It began to affect my health. No financial gain great as it proved to be could compensate for what I suffered.

It has always been my desire to be able to play a clean cut wholesome American who could command the respect and sympathy of the public. Archie Kayton the detective found ringing welcome and I feel the keenest pleasure in playing him.

UGH! NOT CALOMEL, OIL OR SALTS, TAKE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Delicious "Fruit Laxative" Cleanses Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

A harmless cure for sick headache, biliousness, sour stomach, constipation, indigestion, coated tongue, sallowness—take "California Syrup of Figs." For the cause of all such misery comes from a torpid liver and sluggish bowels.

A tablespoonful tonight means all constipation poison, waste matter, fermenting food and sour bile gently moved out of your system by morning without griping. Please don't think of California Syrup of Figs as a physic. Don't think you are drugging yourself or your children because this delicious fruit laxative can not cause injury. Even the most delicate child can take it as safely as a robust man. It is the most harmless, effective stomach, liver and bowel cleanser, regulator and tonic ever devised.

Your only difficulty may be in getting the genuine, so ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of California Syrup of Figs, then see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Company. This city has many counterfeit fig syrups; so watch out.

HAD CATARRH OF THE STOMACH.

Peruna Relieved a Serious Case.

Mr. A. M. Ikerd.

Mr. A. M. Ikerd, Box 33 West Burlington, Iowa, writes:

I had catarrh of the stomach and small intestines for a number of years. I went to a number of doctors and got no relief and finally one of my doctors sent me to Chicago and I met the same fate. They said they could do nothing for me, said I had cancer of the stomach and there was no cure. I almost thought the same, for my breath was offensive and I could not eat anything without great misery and I gradually grew worse.

Finally I concluded to try Peruna and I found relief and a cure for that dreadful disease catarrh. I took five bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin and I now feel like a new man. There is nothing better than Peruna and I keep a bottle of it in my house all the time.

It is a remarkable story that Mr. Ikerd tells. It is a true story but very briefly told. If we put into his story all of the details it would make a chapter of suspense and agony, hope and final recovery equal to the wildest fiction. Any one wishing to do so can write Mr. Ikerd and ascertain whether there has been any exaggeration in his case.

The Ills of Life will be sent free by addressing the Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

SLOW PROGRESS MADE ON CURRENCY MEASURE

Democratic Senators Discuss Technical Question Regarding New Currency.

Washington November 29.—Subjected to an all day wrangle in the conference of democratic senators today the administration currency bill progressed slowly in its preparation for final consideration on the floor of the senate.

Practically no change was made in the administration draft of the bill as presented by Senator Owen and the five administration senators of the banking and currency committee during the day, but for several hours the conference discussed a technical interpretation of the provision of the bill relating to the retiring of the new currency to be issued. Senator Reed of Missouri criticised the wording of the section.

The democratic program for day and night sessions of the senate until the bill is disposed of probably will be delayed until the conference concludes its work next Tuesday or Wednesday. The principle upon which the committee split, the public ownership and government control of the proposed regional reserve banks, was not brought before the conference and the administration plan for regional banks capitalized by enforced subscriptions of the banks and controlled by bank selected directors was indorsed. It was provided, however, that the federal reserve board should have the power to remove all directors of the regional banks.

The conference passed over the provision of the bill fixing the number of regional banks. At the instance of the conference democrats of the currency committee are framing a guarantee of bank deposits provision which may be written into the bill.

The conference referred back to the democrats of the banking committee the section of the bill relating to the retirement of federal reserve notes and a new proposition was suggested for the refunding of the 2 per cent bonds on which the present currency is based. The plan involved the acceptance of some of the features the refunding plan in the bill proposed by Senator Hitchcock and the republicans of the banking committee. It would replace the present 2 per cent with 3 per cent one year government notes, but would take a long period of time to effect the transfer.

The conference also decided to dispose of all provisions which do not involve disputed matters at tonight's session. The disputed points including all the sections passed over so far will be taken up tomorrow by the democrats of the banking committee who will report to a session of the conference to be called tomorrow night.

The leaders expect to complete the bill at that time.

Late tonight the conference adopted an amendment to the Owen bill which would permit the federal reserve board to establish any number of regional reserve banks considered necessary between the limits of eight and twelve. This agreement met the objection of Senators Hoke Smith and Bacon of Georgia that the Atlanta territory might be compelled to transfer its banking operations to a reserve bank at New Orleans.

The federal reserve board would be given authority to decide where banks are needed to meet the ordinary trend of business operations. The bill passed by the house fixed the number of banks at twelve while the Owen bill provided for eight and the Hitchcock bill four. Preliminary consideration of the bill was completed by the conference tonight and finishing touches will be added at a session to begin at 3 o'clock tomorrow.

GIRL AND SWEETHEART ACCUSED OF MURDER

Mayfield, Ky., November 29.—Presentation of testimony in the trial here of Lucien Turk and his fiancee, Miss May Copeland, charged with the murder of Hugh Atchison, a wealthy farmer at Bardwell last July, was begun this afternoon after the jury box was filled.

The state will attempt to prove that the fatal shot was fired by Turk and that Miss Copeland was a party to the crime, though she has stated she killed Atchison, alleging he had mistreated her. Turk and Miss Copeland drove to Atchison's home in a buggy.

The defense will contend that Turk remained in the buggy while Miss Copeland went to the house and shot her brother-in-law, who was inside.

Mrs. Atchison, widow of the murdered man, and the first witness, declared she heard no noise before the report of the pistol shot reached her ears.

HOT FIGHT CERTAIN IN COUNCIL MONDAY

Effort Will Be Made to Override Veto of Resolution Calling for a Test of Okenite System.

With Mayor James G Woodward firm in his determination that no money shall be paid to the Okenite company of New York on the city's new $106 000 fire alarm system—except on a cash basis in 1914—city political leaders predict today a bitter fight between the mayor and his council opponents in 1914

Hostilities have already broken out, and the first clash will occur in council Monday afternoon when an effort will be made to override Mayor Woodward's veto of a resolution passed by council providing for the appointment of a commission of electrical experts to make a test of the system

Monday's Result Doubtful

Council's meeting on Monday will be the last one of importance this year Every member—except those who retire in January—have their thoughts centered on committee appointments which will be listed out in January Members who have fought the mayor in the past have changed somewhat in their attitude toward him and his relentless foes doubt whether they can muster that two thirds of the membership necessary to pass the fire department resolution over the mayor's disapproval

I put council and the Okenite company on notice in my inaugural address that I would not recognize illegal contracts This contract is not only illegal, but the system itself is inefficient Instead of being economical, it will cost the city more to operate than the old one- It is inefficient, because it does not protect sections of the city which have recently been annexed and made part of Atlanta I shall treat the Okenite company just as I treated the crematory people—that is, I shall not recognize the company as having a contract with the city

That is the manner in which Mayor Woodward sizes up the fire alarm contract He takes the position that council cannot force him to appoint a committee to inspect the system and that if a committee is appointed it must be by Mayor Pro Tem Warren, under a council resolution

Resolution a Joker.

Mayor Woodward charges that the resolution was thrown out at him as a joker

Council knows my attitude on these illegal contracts I refused to put my name to any paper, or perform any act which put me in the position of recognizing the company as having a contract with the city By giving my approval to a resolution appointing a commission of experts to test the system I would have virtually compromised myself As I stand now I can go into court with clean skirts and force the city council and the Okenite company to get up a new contract and bond along legal lines

The city has not been asked to pay any part of the contract price for the fire alarm system and the resolution which Mayor Woodward has vetoed is merely a preliminary skirmish Under the contract which the mayor declares to be illegal, the city is bound to pay the $106 000 in installments covering a period of several years

Mayor Woodward says the city must pay for the system next year and not saddle any part of the obligation on the council of 1915 He has already informed the representatives of the Okenite company that the city will pay cash for the system and has demanded that the company make the city a sound business proposition

Not Over $85,000 Cash.

Mayor Woodward says he will not allow the city to pay more than $85 000 in cash for the system He has his mind set on saving the city $21,000, at least. If the Okenite company and the finance committee work out an amicable scheme for the payment of the money it will be placed in the January budget.

Saturday morning Mayor Woodward announced that he is holding up the salary checks of six operators in charge of the fire department signal station He explained his action by stating that the fire alarm system is going to cost the city $7,000 a year more than the police signal station

"The police operators answer about 500 000 calls a year whereas the fire department operators answer only about 1 000 a year Mayor Woodward says It seems to me that if the police department can look after its system with fewer operators the fire department should do the same thing"

Mayor Woodward says that he will not approve the appointment of a superintendent of alarm for the fire department at a salary of $150 a month

Will Oppose Ivy Street Refund.

Councilman Claude L. Ashley will lead a fight on the floor of council against the majority report of the street committee which will recommend the refund of $7 500 to the property owners of Ivy street The money represents a balance in the hands of the city after paying for the material used on the street.

The minority report of the street committee will urge that the surplus be held by the city and used to pay claims for damages At a previous meeting the committee recommended that the surplus be returned to the property owners, but Councilman Ashley defeated the report on the floor of council and the matter was referred back to the street committee and the committee has again agreed on a report urging the refund

The property owners along Ivy street gave the city $35,000 for the paving and regrading of that thoroughfare

Alderman John S Candler and Councilmen A R Colcord and W G Humphrey will recommend the adoption of the new traffic ordinance and regulations Monday afternoon, and a spirited "fight is expected Auto owners vigorously oppose that section of the ordinance which prohibits the parking of automobiles One section provides that autos cannot be parked for more than thirty minutes in any part of the congested section and another section provides that automobiles unattended shall not be allowed to stand in the congested district for any length of time

Spends Two Days in Atlanta Arranging All Details of Permanent Contract.

Edwin Arthur Kraft, of Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, considered by many competent critics the most eminent of all the American organists of the new school, has accepted the post of Atlanta's city organist, offered him by the Atlanta Music Festival association, and will begin his active duties here on January 1

Mr Kraft was in Atlanta Friday and Saturday and arranged the details of the permanent contract with President W L Peel, George W Wilkins, C B Bidwell and W Woods White, of the Music Festival board of directors

The advantages to Atlanta of bringing this noted young organist here

as a permanent citizen will be manifold Not only will the Atlanta music loving public be intensely interested in all his work, but because of his own prominence attained before coming here the eyes of the whole musical world will be on what he accomplishes in Atlanta In addition to appearing at the regular free Sunday concerts at the auditorium Mr Kraft will have charge of the Music Festival chorus His first appearance in concert will be on Sunday, January 4

There will be no concert this Sunday on account of the poultry show but there will be some Sunday concerts in December

An American by birth Mr Kraft completed his musical training by years of study under the best masters in Berlin and Paris Robert Bolwell in the course of a bigraphical article on Mr Kraft prepared for the New York Evening Post, says

Tribute to Organist.

Mr Kraft was born in New Haven Conn in 1883 When a little lad he discovered a small organ lying in disuse while prowling about his father's garret one day and secretly brought it down to the parlor in sections but in erection was prevented by his mother's German ideas about neat housekeeping He often speaks with regret of the many hours of valuable practice this refused him

He went to Berlin in his twenty first year studying the German classics under Prof Franz Grunicks and Edgar Stillman Kelley the American artist residing in Berlin Later he went to Paris to derive the advantages of instruction under Alexander Guilmant and Charles Marie Widor In both musical centers Mr Kraft frequently appeared in recitals which attracted the notice of European masters to this youthful exponent of individualism

In 1909 he was awarded the degree of Fellow of the American Guild of Organists the highest degree offered by that society

One of the greatest compliments any performer can receive is the dedication of compositions by masters in the organ field and Mr Kraft has been honored by these well known men in that way Faulkes, Bonnet, Renaud Silver MacFarlane, H Alexander Matthews Rogers, Frysinger Maxson Fairclough Gaul Diggle Burnham Sprackling Johnston Becker St Clair Gillette Davis Federlein Cole Gordon B Nevin Maitland, Avery He has also won commendation by his various transcriptions and compositions

Economic Course Is Needed At Wesleyan, Says Jenkins

Macon, Ga November 29—(Special) Methodists at the South Georgia conference in Macon expressed themselves as well pleased with the report made by Rev Charles R Jenkins, president of Wesleyan Female college, which is made annually to the North Georgia, South Georgia and Florida conferences and which was read before the South Georgia conference here

The report in full is as follows

"Wesleyan Female college comes to you with the report of a year of great prosperity We have a loyal and faithful force of teachers, religious in life and earnest in their work, giving to the daughters of Methodism the very best instruction that is within their power

"We have a splendid student body, most of whom come from our Methodist homes though quite a number of choice young women of other denominations are entrusted to our care Practically all of the girls belong to some church The total enrollment for last year was 412 for this year up to the present it is 382

"There is not a school anywhere within my knowledge with a more healthful religious atmosphere, or where more is done in the spiritual interest of the students At least once each year a strong, sane, religious leader is secured to conduct revival services and in the history of the institution thousands of young women have been led to Christ in the college halls The meeting last year, under the leadership of Rev T D Ellis, D D, was one of marvelous power and resulted in the open Christian profession of almost every girl boarding in the institution The Young Women's Christian association and the Missionary society are doing splendid work while many of our students are engaged in mission study

Chair of Education.

"At last commencement the trustees established the chair of education making special provision for an excellent course in religious pedagogy Professor G C White, a graduate of Emory college and a master from Columbia university was elected to fill the professorship He has entered upon his work with great enthusiasm and has already a very fine department of religious pedagogy This work has inspired a great number of our students to volunteer to teach in the Sunday schools of the city

It gives me great pleasure to say in the utmost of humility but with perfect confidence after a full investigation that Wesleyan is doing as thorough and extensive work in the field of literary education and in the fine arts as can be found in any institution in the entire south for the education of women We adhere conscientiously and rigidly to published standards and absolutely make no pretentions which we do not fully carry out The maintenance of these high standards is a heavy strain upon the financial resources of the institution, and the college sorely needs a larger income independent of charges for board and tuition It will be utterly impossible for Wesleyan to take the rank that she ought in the educational world without the continued generous support of the controlling conferences

Home Economics Course.

"We are offering the daughters of Methodism the very best, and at the most reasonable cost The courses of study however will have to be enlarged in the near future by the addition of a department of home economics because the demand among young women for such instruction is so great that we simply cannot afford to ignore it any longer A college that will not adjust itself to the great movements in the educational world cannot possibly hope to command a very wide patronage I do not know where the money will come from for the establishment of this much needed department but I hope to secure it by some means for the next scholastic year I would dare not ask the conferences for increased appropriations because I am sure that the needs of other schools are also very great The liberality of the church however is very essential to her at this critical hour of Wesleyan's history

"We have $48,000 from the general board of education of New York, which came to us last spring at a very opportune moment and enabled us to establish the new department of education and to employ two other teachers who were essential to the work of the institution

Health Record Good.

"Since last conference the health of our students has been all that we could ask for we have really not had a very serious case of illness within the last twelve months and an incredibly small number, even in a crowded dormitory, have been sick at all

"Wesleyan stands upon the pinnacle of her historic past and looks with the brightest hopes to a greater future Nothing but the indifference of the church could impede her progress and the loyalty of our preachers and laymen has been too great for even a fear of coldness or indifference We beg for your hearty sympathy, your earnest prayers your most intense interest in all the work and life of the old college for men and women of spotless character and unselfish purpose of high educational ideals and eminent personal ability of the deepest consecration to God and humanity are the faculty who are teaching your daughters and whose devoted work will tell in the life of our country for the years to come and in the progress of the church of God among men We thank you for the support and co-operation of the year

Acute indigestion comes like a thief in the night and is no respecter of persons when it strikes the fatal blow. The high and low; the most prominent citizens fall before this dread disease, and the more dreadful because it is nearly always too late for the physician to render aid, because the cause may have been developing for years unsuspected. So many causes may lead to the attack that the most eminent physician called at the last moment can not locate the definite source. There may be an acute gastric catarrh or congestion of the kidneys. It may be a functional disturbance or mechanical obstruction. A weak heart-action tends to disturb the normal adjustment between the two sides of the circulation, or there may be structural changes of the heart, lungs or liver. So the physician is rarely called upon to treat a more complicated case than acute indigestion. He can only treat the symptoms as they appear, while the seat of the disturbance lies smouldering in a diseased organ eating the life away, producing symptoms that might come from a number of different sources. The real cause may have been dormant for years, when a slight indiscretion as to diet, varying temperature, nervous excitement, or a number of immediate causes precipitate the attack. When the physician is called it is too late to locate the real cause and the patient is gone.

Everyone should guard against those attacks, which, like every other disease, may be avoided if one will only exercise proper regard for the laws of health. The human body contains a principle all potent in healing and restoring the body when disease begins to make inroads upon the strength and vitality. The only thing necessary is to submit the body to this healing force which resides in the organism of the body. And this is the only power under the sun which can heal disease. Medicine can only establish the condition, when your own forces cure you. This Nuxcara does—works in harmony with your own forces. Establishing conditions which submit your organism to the healing principle of your own body. Subdues resistance to your own healthy force. In the ten years that Nuxcara has been performing these wonders upon thousands of sufferers from stomach trouble not one who has taken the Nuxcara treatment has had an attack of acute indigestion. G. & F. ROAD PLANNING TO EXTEND ITS LINES

Augusta, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—While definite plans have not been announced, the intention of the Georgia and Florida railroad is to extend their lines and to greatly increase operations in the south Georgia territory. This became known today when the postponed annual meeting of the stockholders of the road was held here. No change was made in the officers of the road, all having been re-elected.

While it was not stated that the purpose of the directors would be consideration of the extension of the line into new territory, it was stated at the meeting that the officers and directors will soon make a trip over the line.

The business of the Georgia and Florida has wonderfully improved and it is understood that the proposed extension will be taken up when business conditions over the country become normal and feasible for the floating of securities.

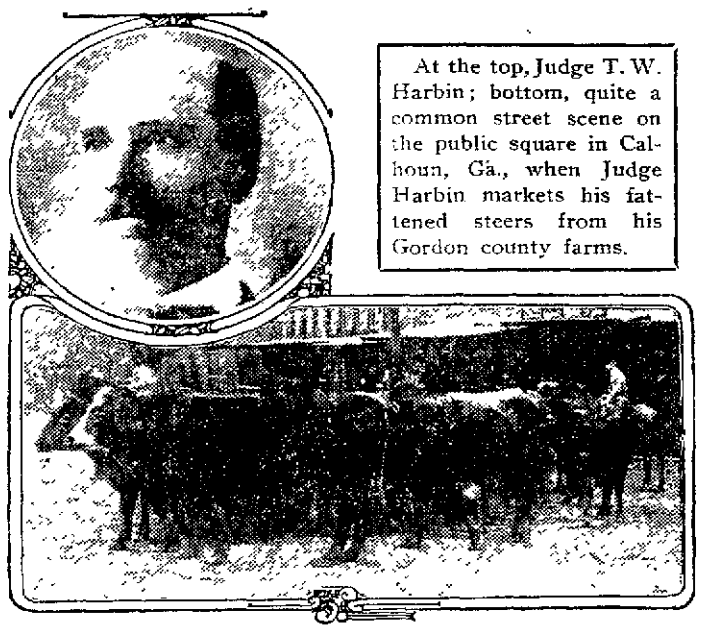
Quadrupling Land Value, Judge Harbin Proves Big Profit in Cattle Industry



At the top, Judge T. W. Harbin; bottom, quite a common street scene on the public square in Calhoun, Ga., when Judge Harbin markets his fattened steers from his Gordon county farms.

Judge T. W. Harbin of Calhoun, Gordon county, is a man who has reversed the usual success formula of a university graduate. The old tradition ran that the boy who went forth with a diploma from his alma mater must look to the law, to medicine or one of the learned professions for his career.

Judge Harbin graduated from the University of Georgia about twenty-five years ago with a good class standing. He was ordinary of Gordon county for twelve years and won reputation and success at it as he did in the practice of law. But it is in the pursuit of business and, at that a business just now becoming popular in Georgia, the cattle industry, that he has made his "killing" as the expressive slang goes.

Not only was he a university graduate, laid the foundation for his fortune in the cattle business and in general farming, but as a side line he has performed a state-wide service in demonstrating how farm values may be increased by the manuring of the acres and the gradual increase of their fertility. His experience is a vivid disprover of the claim of the uselessness of a college education in equipping men for other than the trained professions and it is also an argument for the value of originality in the handling of the agricultural problems of Georgia.

Not only has he quadrupled the intrinsic value of more than one farm in three years, but he has blazed a trail which Georgia farmers of the simplest education can follow with profit.

A man of intense personal magnetism and of creative energy, he made many friends and established a large personal following in his home county. He spent several months in 1911 investigating the opportunities in the cattle business and decided that for him the largest profit lay in the fattening end.

Topping For Market.

The breeding of cattle is one industry and the feeding of cattle another, although each is allied to the other. Often the man who produces cattle sells them to the man who is willing to wait for his profit, and the latter takes them over, markets feed through them and when they are in top condition for market reaps the profit.

That is the side of the industry that appealed to Judge Harbin. He saw, too, that cattle handled in this way offered big gain in their faculty for bringing up poor lands. Manure is among the best reclaimers known of lands that have gone stale from overuse. While you feed your cattle for a profit, you are increasing the value of your land for a profit. The proposition cuts both ways, for the man who is wise enough to take advantage of the situation. Judge Harbin possessed that sort of wisdom.

What He Did.

He has a long set of ledger figures to demonstrate his profit in the feeding business. The best guide is from his own conversation. "Take one instance," he said. "A 150-acre farm in Gordon county, three miles from Calhoun in 1911, rented for $300. The next year the rent rose to $1,000, a jump of a good deal more than 300 per cent. And this year, the farm rents for $1,200.

"How did I do it? By working up the value of the land, by enriching the land, and I worked up the value of the land by enriching with manure I got the manure by feeding cattle, and I fed the cattle mainly on cotton seed meal and hulls.

"Take one season's work, for example. From October 18, 1913, to February 6, 1913, I worked on one hundred head of cattle. The cost of those cattle, most of them bought from Tennessee, including feed and labor, was $2,589.04. I sold them February 6, 1913, at a profit of $249.46. That was simply net, tangible profit and did not, of course, include the enhancement of the land.

"I believe that almost any wide-awake man in Georgia can do the same thing. He can get his cattle from Tennessee or some parts of Alabama or Georgia. The feed and the meal and hulls he can get from his nearest cotton seed mill.

Cotton and Corn.

"My experience proved also that vitalizing the acres as I did with by-products from my cattle pays in what may be called the main lines of farming.

"I have steadily increased my cotton and corn yield, making my farm self-supporting, and it is all from the fact that I have discovered the secret of keeping up the fertility of my acres.

W. H. White, Jr.

"I cannot pay too much credit to W. H. White, Jr., president of the White Provision company, of Atlanta.

"He inaugurated his model packing house on the outskirts of Atlanta when the skeptics tried to laugh him out of it. He knew what he was doing. He not only has made steady profits for his shareholders, but he has as well provided a splendid market for the Georgia farmer or business man enterprising enough to enter the cattle raising and feeding business."

Judge Harbin added that he was a thorough convert to the possibilities of the cattle industry in Georgia and that he expected to devote a large share of his energies toward its development in the future.

Negro Confesses.

Rome, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Marion Barrett, a negro this morning called up a Rome attorney and confessed that he had the night before shot Joseph Collins, another negro, through the heart with a Winchester rifle. Barrett surrendered himself to the officers and is now in jail awaiting a preliminary trial next Tuesday. The shooting took place near the lock and dam on the Coosa river and Barrett claims self-defense, asserting that Collins was advancing upon him with a gun, when he shot.

Lyerly Home Burns.

Lyerly, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Fire of an unknown origin destroyed the residence and contents belonging to Jeff Turner, a farmer living a few miles from Lyerly, Monday night. The family had not been at home for a day or so and there was no one at home when the fire broke out, everything being destroyed. It is believed to be the work of an incendiary.

CONVICTS' ACCUSATIONS DENIED IN GWINNETT

It Is Claimed Their Statements Were Merely Excuse for Trying to Escape.

Lawrenceville, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—When seen by a Constitution correspondent Saturday morning Commissioner John H. Britt, who has charge of the white convicts in Gwinnett county, stated that there was positively no truth in the statements made by Will E. Lee and Jack Pollard, escaped convicts, upon their arrest in Atlanta Friday morning.

Lee and Pollard were given permission by the guard at the Lawrenceville camp to go out Thanksgiving afternoon and buy some chickens. When they did not show up in a few minutes the alarm was given that they had escaped and the chase was on. The escaped men were tracked as far as Gloster Thursday night, the dogs losing the track when they took to the railroad. Guard Mahaffey continued searching for them and finally tracked them into Decatur about 4 o'clock Friday morning. The police of Atlanta were notified and the men were arrested by Policeman Bell as they stepped from a Decatur, Ga., car at Edgewood avenue, about 6 o'clock.

Upon being carried to the stationhouse both put up a tale about they not being trying to escape, merely wanting to appeal before the prison commission and ask for a transfer to another camp, telling many horrible incidents that they said happened at the Gwinnett camp, and at the hands of Deputy Warden Davis.

Commissioner Britt was in Atlanta looking for the escaped men and there being a reward of $25 each for them Policeman Bell, accompanied by Mr. Britt, brought the men to the Lawrenceville camp, Policeman Bell receiving the reward.

The Gwinnett county gang is divided into three squads, two negroes and one white, the white squad being located in the stockade about 1 mile south of Lawrenceville, and the negroes near Norcross. C. L. Nash is the warden having charge of all three camps and Fred Clarke and Fletcher C. Davis, the deputy wardens. Mr. Davis has the white gang.

The authorities here deny absolutely the statements made by the escaped men and laugh at the idea that they were only going to Atlanta to appear before the board.

Will Lee is about 28 years old and is serving a life sentence for the murder of Jack Chappell in Cowets county. He has served three years. Pollard has served seven years of a twenty-year sentence for the killing of William White in Clayton county. It is said Lee has some relatives in Jonesboro and the authorities say that these men were trying to get to them there. They also cite the fact that the men had asked for transfers and were trying to board a car for East Point, intending to catch a train there for Jonesboro.

Warden Nash and Deputy Warden Davis are considered good men in their places by the people of Gwinnett, who refuse to believe the statements of the escaped men, believing that they only talked as an excuse for trying to escape and that the facts were misrepresented by them and taken advantage of by an Atlanta newspaper. Upon every investigation and visit of members of the prison commission the Gwinnett county camp has been given a clean sheet.

Lee and Pollard are both back at work building Gwinnett some good roads and it is not believed that there will be any more trouble.

BAPTISTS PLAN BIG CAMPAIGN

Active Work Is Begun to Raise $200,000 to Make the Tabernacle Infirmary the Largest in the South.

Atlanta Baptists are planning a campaign to raise a fund of $200,000 to make the Georgia Baptist hospital, formerly the Tabernacle infirmary, the greatest Christian hospital in the south.

The board of trustees, appointed at the recent Georgia Baptist convention at Gainesville, is at work on the project, which the convention set its seal of approval on by giving the hospital a place along with other great enterprises fostered by the convention.

The following communication has been issued by the present board of trustees:

On July 4, 1903 Dr Len G Broughton pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church began in a small building at 14 Spring street, an infirmary for the care of the sick in Atlanta and vicinity who were not financially able to secure attention in a larger and more expensive hospital This infirmary began with one patient entered by Dr. R. R. Kime in May 1904 the infirmary was moved to 62 Luckie street Under the matchless leadership of Dr Broughton, this institution grew in popularity and usefulness

In 1908 a three-story brick building was erected at 92 Luckie street which is the present home of the hospital There are here in wards and private rooms accommodations for sixty patients

On March 15 1913 the board of missions representing the Baptists of Georgia and acting under the instruction of the Georgia Baptist convention purchased from the Tabernacle church its infirmary at a cost of $85,000 A charter was obtained incorporating the institution under the name of the Georgia Baptist hospital

During the existence of this hospital more than 6 000 patients have been treated the total income for the institution from all sources has been a little more than $200 000 More than $80 000 has been spent in the treatment of charity patients alone

Seal of Convention Approval.

At the recent session of the Georgia Baptist convention at Gainesville the seal of approval was put upon this enterprise by the great Baptist denomination by heartily and unanimously giving the hospital a place along with the other great enterprises fostered by the convention

The present board of trustees appointed by the convention and composed of the leading Baptist business men of Atlanta and the state at large are planning largely and wisely in projecting a campaign for enlargement upon a $200 000 basis which in its ultimate consummation will bring to this greatest city of the south a second Johns Hopkins.

Value of Such an Enterprise.

There will be great commercial value coming to the city and community by the presence of such an institution as this in its midst It will bring money to the city and to the individuals who contribute to its promotion Besides it is Christian and philanthropic in its mission, fulfilling the humanitarian idea of Jesus, who devoted a large part of His time while on earth to the healing of the sick

The mission of the church as given by Jesus is three-fold—spiritual, intellectual and philanthropic Thousands and even millions of dollars have been spent in the erection of church buildings for worship and the preaching of the gospel in the erection of buildings for schools, colleges and universities, where the intellect can be trained under the highest Christian ideals, all this in the name of Christianity yet the Christian world has given little attention to the gospel of healing When the Christian people of all churches shall have invested an amount of money in hospitals proportionate to that invested in churches and schools when the same attention is given to the healing of the body as to the training of the mind—whenever Christian people can say to the world "the blind see, the lame walk, the sick are healed" as well as say "the poor have the gospel preached to them then will the kingdom of God have come to this world

While the Georgia Baptist hospital is owned and operated by the Baptist denomination it is in no way sectarian in its work During the eight months the institution has been owned by the Baptists, people representing fourteen religious faiths have been treated, and 194 of no faith at all

While the Baptists are especially appealed to for contributions for the enlargement of the hospital contributions will be gratefully accepted from all our friends who desire to honor God and bless mankind

A careful consideration of the above appeal is earnestly urged by the undersigned, who comprise the board of trustees F J Coledge Atlanta Ga George M Brown Atlanta, Ga John M Green Atlanta, Ga, S C Callaway, Atlanta, Ga., C W Hatcher Atlanta Ga, E L Connally, Atlanta Ga W A Parker Atlanta, Ga A J Evans Fort Valley Ga, T J Bennett Kirkwood Ga, J L Moore, Hampton Ga J S Hardaway Newnan Ga R T Jones Canton Ga J P Nichols, Griffin, Ga L R Christie Columbus Ga T H Johnston Gainesville Ga S B Cousins Jr, Waynesboro Ga W Willis, Valdosta Ga A M Bennett Norman Park, Ga J S McLemore financial secretary, J. Watch Your Pimples Go Away

Then Feel the Ecstacy of Delight When Your Complexion Is Made Perfect By Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

Don't worry about your pimples. Stop that heart ache and regret. Just make up your mind that you are going to use Stuart's Calcium Wafers and make pimples vanish.

"I Don't Look Like I Did Since I Used Stuart's Calcium Wafers."

The pores of the skin are little mouths Each has a sort of valve that opens into tiny canals connecting with the blood These mouth-like pores become closed When these canals fill up, the valve refuses to work and pimples, blotches, rash, fetter, liver spots, etc, appear.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers keep the pores open and the canals then carry off the waste matter the blood empties into them.

Don't use cosmetics They will not hide pimples long and then they clog the skin You ought to know that the skin breathes in and out almost like the lungs The pores throw off impurities every minute of the day To plaster the skin with paste, etc, is to actually prevent nature doing her work.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers will in a very short time, cleanse the blood, open the pores and remove all blemishes so that your skin will become of a peach and cream kind so much desired.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers can be carried in purse or pocket. They are very pleasant to the taste and may be purchased anywhere at 50 cents a box.

Look at your pimples and unsightly skin in the right way as a disease of the blood and pores and use Stuart's Calcium Wafers to give you the complexion you want.

Atlanta Can't Afford to Lose The Oglethorpe University

By Lucien L. Knight.

If ever the Atlanta spirit was committed in honor and in self-respect to the performance of a task, it is the one whose clarion appeal is today sounded in the movement to revive Oglethorpe university, and unless this city of two hundred thousand souls is ready to lower her flag and to imperil her reputation, she will subscribe before this campaign is over every dollar of the sum needed to lift this institution from the dust.

Broader than any denominational or sectarian lines is the demand which this project makes upon Atlanta's support

The time has come for united action There should be no break in the ranks It is not alone to our purse-strings but to our civic conscience that the appeal of this hour is addressed

When Oglethorpe university was permitted to perish in Atlanta, forty-two years ago, our steeds were in ashes, our banks were feeble in strength and few in number, and our hands were paralyzed by the deadening gangrene of reconstruction

For a catastrophe which we could not avert we ought not to be censured.

But here Oglethorpe languished until the end came. Here the grave of the institution was dug with the bristling bayonets of the military regime, and there has ever since rested upon the escutcheon of our fair city a stigma which needs to be erased.

Today Atlanta is the most progressive city of the new south.

Phoenix-like she has emerged from the ashes Her railways radiate in every direction. Her sky-line resembles New York's. She is the largest market for automobiles and the greatest depot for insurance within a radius of eight hundred miles.

She is famed for the genius of accomplishment—for the power to perform miracles.

Where less than a century ago there lay a waste of ashes from which the smoke was rising heavenward, there stands today a stately and splendid metropolis Our postal receipts put us far in the lead of southern cities. Our bank vaults are filled to overflowing with treasure Our merchants are happy over the prospect for an immense trade this season.

But there rests upon Atlanta an incubus which her civic pride must remove before the present year expires Another calendar must not find her with this task unfinished, and, standing upon the grave of Oglethorpe university, she must say and she will say, to the four winds of heaven. "Breathe thou upon these dead bones and make them live"

CORDELE CHAMBER PLANS STEEL BRIDGE OVER FLINT RIVER

Cordele, Ga, November 29—A vigorous campaign for the construction of a steel and concrete bridge over Flint river at Hugenin's ferry is being pursued by the Cordele Chamber of Commerce The river is the boundary line between Sumter and Crisp counties and this move proposes to develop a splendid county site to county site highway through the two counties, connecting Cordele and Americus, and bring the cities into closer relationship.

President Oscar Heard and Secretary Daniel, of the chamber of commerce, personally appeared before the Crisp county grand jury this week and obtained their recommendation to the county commissioners Next week they will go before the commissioners personally to get an understanding between the board of this county and the commissioners of Sumter. It is expected that the two boards will heartily approve the movement

This bridge will increase the property values of all farming lands within miles on both sides of the river, and its construction will be a great convenience to automobilists, many of whom in both cities will go back and forth to witness baseball games of the Georgia state league between the two cities

Valdosta, Ga, November 29—(Special)—Interest in the appointment of postmaster in this city to succeed Major J. O Varnedoe, whose term will expire next May, is increasing every day Major Varnedoe, J F Stapler and J P Coffee are applicants for the appointment, but so far the wisest "dopesters" haven't been able to decide who will get the plum Other well known citizens are mentioned in connection with the appointment, but so far as the public knows the three named above are the only ones who are actively in the race.

Messrs Varnedoe and Stapler made application for the office soon after the election of President Wilson, and both have strong indorsements. Mr Coffee has only recently become an applicant There is some talk of a primary to decide the matter, but the proposition seems not to have been taken seriously All three of the applicants are among the warmest personal friends of Congressman J. R. Walker, who it is presumed will have the naming of the postmaster Mr. Stapler was financial manager of Mr. Walker's campaign for congress. He and Major Varnedoe have also been active supporters and admirers of Senator Hoke Smith, whose influence is to be considered. Mr. Coffee, on the other hand, has not been a Hoke Smith man

Whitesburg, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—A S Farmer, who lives seven miles from town, had the misfortune to be bitten by a maddog Friday night at his home. Mr. Farmer was attacked by the dog and badly bitten on the wrist. His son and a Mr. Bishop, who came to his rescue, were scratched and otherwise hurt by the dog. All three were carried to Atlanta for treatment Saturday morning.

YOUNG VALDOSTANS PLANNING TO WALK TO SAN FRANCISCO

Valdosta, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—D W Vance and J H Bailey, two young Valdostans, are preparing to start early in the new year on a walk across the continent to the Panama exposition in San Francisco They propose to give themselves plenty of time and expect to be in San Francisco long before the opening of the exposition in 1915 By way of getting themselves in condition they are making trips of from 10 to 25 miles a day on foot and are making more than local reputations in that line The young men walked from this city to Adel, Ga., a distance of 24 miles, on Thanksgiving day, and were in such good trim afterward that they felt able to duplicate the performance the next day.

BOY SLAYER SENTENCED TO STATE REFORMATORY

Hardy Miller Gets Five Years at Milledgeville for Killing Lawton Smith.

Valdosta, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—Hardy Miller, a 17-year-old boy who killed Lawton Smith in a quarrel some months ago, and who was convicted of voluntary manslaughter in the superior court this week, was sentenced by Judge Thomas, today, to five years in the state reformatory at Milledgeville. Smith and young Miller were both employees of the latter's uncle, W. M Miller, at Melrose, and the fight which ended in the death of Smith was caused by his refusal to let the boy ride one of the mules worked at the naval stores plant at the end of the day's work. Smith was in charge of the mules and had been instructed by his employer not to let them be uesed after work hours He struck young Miller with a stick when the boy tried to take one of the animals from the lot, and the latter became enraged and stabbed Smith to the heart with a Barlow knife The case was one of the hardest fought trials of the present session of court.

George Smith, a negro convicted at the last term of superior court of the murder of Jesse Simmons at Olympia, was carried to the courthouse today to be resentenced to death, but it was discovered after the prisoner was arraigned that the official finding of the court of appeals, which recently refused a new trial of the case, had not been received here. The higher court turned down Smith's appeal for a new trial some time ago, but there has been a delay in transmitting the finding of the court This is expected in a few days and Smith will then be resentenced to death.

COMMISSION RULE IN COLUMBUS SEEMS DOOMED TO DEFEAT

Columbus, Ga, November 29.—(Special)—The proposition to subscitute government by commission for the present mayor-and-aldermen system in Columbus seems doomed to defeat. Registration for the election, which will be held early in December, closed today

There is now active, organized opposition to government by commission under the proposed bill, a "Greater Columbus club" having been formed for this and other purposes, with Walter W Curtis chairman Advocates of commission government are themselves divided, many of them taking the position that the bill as drawn, providing for a commission for the city of Columbus and defining its powers, has serious objections. Originally, both the daily newspapers here favored commission government, but the morning paper, The Enquirer-Sun, now expresses itself as opposed to the present bill.

It seems quite probable that the approaching election will result against commission government, and also that at some time the future another election will be held under a bill that will eliminate the most serious objections to the present measure.

LIEUTENANT HAWLEY REACHES RIVERSIDE

Gainesville, Ga., November 28.—(Special)—First Lieutenant Harry Hawley, Ninth Infantry, United States army, reached Gainesville yesterday and immediately assumed his duties as professor of military science and tactics at Riverside.

Lieutenant Hawley is a graduate of West Point in class of 1904 and served in the Philippines in 1905-06 and again in 1910-11, two years of which time was spent in exploration and survey work in the interior of the islands of Luzon and Mindanao He also served in the Hawaiian islands in 1912

In addition to his varied foreign service, Lieutenant Hawley is a distinguished marksman. He was a member of the infantry team at Camp Perry in 1909, where he won first place among all the marksmen of the army. In 1913, also at Camp Perry, he won the governor's match over seven hundred competitors from the army, navy, national guard and marine corps

The coming of Lieutenant Hawley puts R. M. A. in the forefront of the schools in this section. Riverside is now the only private military academy in the south at which an active West Point officer is detailed; and Lieutenant Hawley's distinction as a marksman, in addition to his West Point instruction and experience fits him for his work at Riverside, whose magnificent equipment and unique location lend themselves so admirably to just that kind of work for which he is so eminently qualified.

Rev. W. W. Kelley, Whitesburg

Whitesburg, Ga., November 29—Rev W W Kelley, of this place, passed away Thursday after a long illness He was for many years a prominent Baptist minister of Carroll and adjoining counties, and helped many a struggling church The deceased was about 67 years of age, and leaves three sons, three brothers and one sister.

PLAN NEW CIRCUIT.

Turner, Worth, Colquitt and Tift Counties in It.

Tifton, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) It is probable that the next general assembly will be asked to create a new judicial circuit in South Georgia by taking the counties of Turner and Worth from the Albany circuit and the counties of Colquitt and Tift from the Southern circuit. Both these circuits are already large, and recent legislation, which abolished the city courts of Sylvester and Moultrie and provided for four quarterly terms of two weeks each for the superior courts of Worth and Colquitt has added to the work of the presiding judges until they have practically no vacation period.

The time of the Southern circuit was already so well filled when the new county of Tift was created eight years ago that the spring term of Tift superior court was fixed for July and the fall term for December. Since many of the city courts have been abolished it has been necessary to hold adjourned terms of superior court to dispose of the litigation and the judges have had difficulty in finding weeks not already provided for in which these adjourned terms could be held.

Movements are already on foot to abolish the city courts of Tifton and Ashburn, a bill to abolish the one at Tifton having been introduced at the last session of the legislature. If this is done, the burden of the already crowded circuits will be increased.

The four counties mentioned form a square and a presiding judge in either of them, could be reached by a few minutes ride by rail or auto from any of the others. With four terms of court of two weeks each in two of the counties, and a similar law in the other two, thirty-two weeks of superior court a year would already be provided for, leaving only twenty weeks for vacation periods, called terms and business of like nature.

Whether or not a new circuit as outlined is provided for, it is almost certain that there will be some readjustment of the Albany and Southern circuits at an early date. An attempt was made at the last session of the legislature to put Turner in the Cordele circuit but it failed because of opposition of the citizens of that county. The recent change in the judgeship of the Albany circuit leads many to think that now is an auspicious time to advocate a change in that circuit The people of Tift and Colquitt would regret to lose the services of Judge Thomas, but they realize the heavy work the large circuit is putting on him and that it will not be many years before he is called to a higher position.

DR. M'MURRY ONE OF CONFERENCE VISITORS

By Rev. W. A. Brooks.

Macon, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Dr. W. F. McMurry, of Louisville, Ky secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, was a visitor to the conference. Of the 737 church edifices within the bounds of the South Georgia conference, 378 of them were erected by the aid of church extension funds; and of the 16,827 church houses of southern Methodism, 8,682 have church extension funds in them.

During the thirty-one years of the history of the board of church extension, it has averaged aiding a fraction above five and one-half churches per week to lift their spires to heaven and to invite waiting congregations to worship at their altars This board now averages assisting in constructing two church edifices for every day in the year

WALKER NEARLY DIES FROM BITE OF SPIDER

Congressman, Stung While Fishing, Is Saved by Quick Medical Attention.

Valdosta, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—Congressman J. R. Walker, of the eleventh district, came very near dying from the bite of a huge spider yesterday while on a fishing trip twelve miles south of here.

Mr. Walker was the guest of J. F. Stapler and Edward Ashley, at a camp on the Willacoochee river, near Rockyford. Mr. Walker was almost paralyzed from the spider's poison and suffered intensely.

As soon as the gravity of his condition was discovered, Dr. Cary, of Olympia, was hastily summoned and he administered remedies which no doubt saved Mr. Walker's life. He was today brought to the Bellevue hospital in this city, and is yet suffering slightly from the poison.

TEN CLUB ENTERTAINED BY COLONEL W. S. WEST

Valdosta, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—A majority of the "Ten Club," composed of ten congenial spirits among Atlanta's prominent citizens, came down to this section this week and were the guests of Colonel W. S. West at the Ocean Pond Fishing and Hunting club, and at Colonel West's magnificent fishing preserve in the southern part of this county.

Those who came here were Dr. John E. White, of the Second Baptist church, Dr. Purser, of the West End Baptist church; Judge Lumpkin and Judge Evans, of the supreme court; J. K Ott, Mr Willett and Colonel Fred Paxon, the latter accompanied by his wife The visitors, together with a number of prominent Valdostans, enjoyed an elaborate dinner at the Ocean Pond club house, and spent a couple of days hunting and fishing. They were the guests of Colonel West at his home in this city at an informal dinner Friday evening and left that night on their return to Atlanta.

FIRST TRAIN TO PERRY OVER H. & W. RAILROAD

Perry, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) The Hawkinsville and Western railroad has completed its line to Perry and ran the first train to town on Thursday afternoon at o'clock.

On Thursday, December 4, a free excursion will be run from Perry over this road to Brownsdale in Pulaski, a station on the road about two miles from Grovania. A regular schedule will be put on in about ten days between Perry and Hawkinsville, which will relieve the "bottled up" condition which has confronted Perry in the way of railroad facilities for a great many years.

Perry Court Adjourns.

Perry, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) The city court, which has been in session all this week trying criminal cases, adjourned Friday until Monday, December 8, when court will again be convened for the trial of civil cases. On that date the appearance docket of the court will be called. Forty-two criminal cases have been disposed of during this week. A number of criminal cases were continued to January term for various legal reasons:

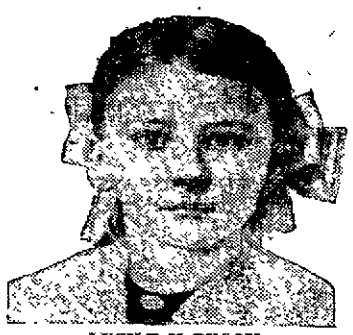
The Mind Expands As Health Returns

Quick Improvement Is Noticeable When Proper Aid to Nutrition Is Given.

A low state of the general health is now the accepted cause of backwardness in children So in the case of a backward child it is best to look towards building up its health. It will usually be found that the main trouble is in the food, in lack of assimilation and digestion Hence care should be taken in the kind of food given to the child This, with plenty of air and exercise, should bring about a change for the better

Watch the condition of the bowels, to note whether the waste is being passed off or not, or whether it is being passed too freely. If either condition prevails give a small dose of that gentlest of all laxative tonics, Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Thousands of mothers will testify to the wonders it has wrought in the lives of their own children, and for that reason legions of families like those of Mrs. Daisy McBroom, Hillsboro, Ind, are never without it in the house. She is the mother of Lucile and has been using Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for Lucile since she was two. Mrs. McBroom says he saved Lucile's life It is the standard family medicine in the McBroom home

It is pleasant to the taste and so perfectly safe that it is given to infants, and yet is equally effective for grown people All druggists sell it and the price is only fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter for families who need it regularly



LUCILE McBROOM.

Dr Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has no equal as a cure for constipation, indigestion, biliousness, headaches, sour stomach, gas on the stomach, liver trouble and kindred complaints. It has so many advantages that those who once use it forever after discard cathartics, salts, pills and other coarse remedies, for they are seldom advisable and should never be given to children

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington st, Monticello, Ill A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

ARMY SPRINGS SEASON'S BIG SURPRISE

Army Mule Canters Over Navy Goat; Cadets Add to a Season of Surprises By Furnishing Biggest of Them All

New York November 29—The army football team furnished a spectacular and confusing finale to the eastern football season of 1913 by defeating the navy eleven at the Polo grounds today by a score of 22 to 9

Completely outplayed during the opening period of the game the cadets swept the sailors off their feet in the second half of the contest by a combination of brilliant individual and open team play that quickly rolled up an overwhelming lead

With victory in sight for the first time in four years the West Point team scored rapidly and finished the game with a total that has not been exceeded by either academy in ten years

Despite the annihilation of the navy's hope of a fourth consecutive victory over the army the game was fought out desperately until the closing moment and the sailors went down with colors flying

Man to Man Struggle

From a technical football standpoint the playing of both victor and vanquished did not rise above the usual caliber of the annual gridiron struggle between the two academies Much of the work of the coaches went for naught when the battle reached its height and there was the usual man-to-man struggle with football team work more or less forgotten

From the standpoint of the spectators, however the game did not lose any interest as a result and the 42 000 persons present saw a good match played by teams at the kaleidoscope of changing scenes depicted

The use of the forward pass upset early by the cadets opened up the play to a far greater extent than the more conservative line attack and runs of the middies, thus furnishing the spectators many brilliant football pictures

Wynne in the execution of this trick at the army advantage In and the final score demonstrates how successfully it was worked

In the opening quarter the two elevens played the usual eastern game with the attack directed principally at the line and outside tackle In this period the advantage lay entirely with the middies who used their weight and speed for consistent gains

Brown's First Goal

Near their own goal line the Army held firmly and Brown the middies right guard was called back to the cadets twenty yard line whence he kicked a placement goal In the second period he duplicated the feat after Hodgson dropped one of Nicholls punts and Gilchrist recovered

The Army got into action in this quarter also and sent the score seeswinging with a field goal and touchdown Early in the period the soldiers gained the ball on the Navy's 30 yard line at a result of a blocked punt from Nicholls toe The West Point backs could make no impression on the navy line and Woodruff who replaced Jouett on the occasion kicked an easy goal from placement on the navy's 25 yard line

Just before the quarter ended Richard caught one of Nicholls high punts at midfield and raced 15 yards toward the middies goal before he was down Then three times in succession Richard hurled a forward pass

The first two were uncompleted but the third shot squarely into the hands of Merrillat the Army right end who ran across the middies goal line and thus West Point registered the first touchdown of the game leaving the score at the end of the first half 6 to 6 in favor of the soldiers for McEwan failed to kick the goal from touchdown

The Navy added another goal from placement in the third period when Nicholls by clever running back of Jouett's punt placed the ball on the Army's 25 yard line Checked by the soldiers defense Brown scored his third and last goal from placement kicking from the 30 yard mark

Merrillat's Great Run.

With the points nine all the cadets opened another brilliant attack Merrillat with little or no interference ran from the Army's 45 yard line to the middies 1 yard mark before he was tackled from the rear by Gilchrist Two line plunges with Captain Hoge carrying the ball scored the second touchdown and McEwan kicked the goal making the score Army 16 Navy 9

Not satisfied with this lead the cadets set out to avenge themselves for their defeats in recent years and succeeded in adding to their touchdown total Irwin drives following the opening of the final period Captain Hoge circled one of Nicholls low punts on the Army's 5 yard line and ran unaided to the middies 20 yard mark before Brown pulled him down

On the next line up Hoge tore through the first for 4 yards Sailors line for 8 yards Then Richard shot a forward pass and again it was Merrillat who caught the flying spheroid behind the Navy goal line for the third touchdown of the game The ball was kicked to the extreme right of the goal posts and the punt out was a failure leaving the final score Army 22 Navy 9

Navy Not Consistent

During the sixty minutes of play the Navy eleven failed to show the consistent attacking power that had brought them seven victories on big scores in the eight preliminary games of the season While the Army did not at any time diagnose the attack successfully the desperate charging and tackling of the cadets upset the interference and brought down the runner with little ceremony

Nicholls who played under the severe strain of running the team and his all around work was outpunted by Jouett of the Army ends covered the latter not better than did the middy ends

It was time gained by exchange of kicks and returning back punts that usually put the Army in a position for a scoring within the scoring zone the game was settled mainly on the forward pass and the records show that the cadets during the game threw seven forward passes and two resulted in touchdowns Another was intercepted and only uncompleted The middies tried six forward passes one being intercepted and five grounded

Although the attack and defense of the two teams lacked the cohesiveness seen in some preceding games of the season there was no lack of individual brilliance and daring play

Brown to Hall of Fame.

Brown in kicking three placement goals in three tries from an average distance of 45 yards gained a place in the 1913 football hall of fame as did Prichard and Merrillat for their operation of the forward pass

Nicholls the diminutive quarterback shouldered a heavy burden of play and responsibility and came through the contest with much credit Markee and Merrillat more than held their own with the famous Navy ends Ingram and Gilchrist Two hard plunges with Captain Hoge carrying the ball scored the second touchdown and McEwan kicked the goal making the score Army 16 Navy 9

Not satisfied with this lead the cadets set out to avenge themselves for their defeats in recent years and succeeded in adding to their touchdown total Irwin drives following the opening of the final period Captain Hoge circled one of Nicholls low punts on the Army's 5 yard line and ran unaided to the middies 20 yard mark before Brown pulled him down

On the next line up Hoge tore through the first for 4 yards Sailors line for 8 yards Then Prich

Darlington School Football Squad

Rome, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) The Darlington school has made a remarkably good record during the football season just closed. Since the Seventh District high schools were organized five years ago into an athletic association, Darlington has won the football championship consistently; but this year it enlarged its schedule so as to meet the best schools of Chattanooga and of northwest Alabama.

The team believes it could have won the prep championship of Georgia if it had been possible to meet the Atlanta school that won, for it did not lose a game; and the Chattanooga teams which were the only ones which held Darlington to a tie, were unusually strong.

The following scores indicate something of how the season went:

Darlington 4; Rome High school 0.
Darlington 0; McCallie (Chattanooga) 0.
Darlington 55; Cartersville 7.
Darlington 24; Attalla-Gadsden 7.
Darlington 14; Hearn 13.
Darlington 7; Chattanooga High school 7.
Darlington 40; Rome High school 0.
Darlington 33; Cartersville 0.
Darlington 20; Marrietta 6.
Darlington 44; Rome High school 0.
Darlington 281; Opponents 16.

Coach Harden deserves in large measure credit for the good season. The team averaged only 138 pounds, but it was unusually fast; and it did not miss the weight very much. The favorite Darlington play was the forward pass, which the team had almost to perfection. The best playing through the whole season was done by Riley at quarter, Ramey at fullback, Ledbetter at halfback, McKenzie at center, and D'Arcy at end—all of whom go to college next year, but many first rate players will be left for next year's team.

Coach Helped B. H. S.

Boys' High had an exceptionally good season this year and have only two defeats on their records. This school had a coach this year, something they have never had before and he worked wonders with a comparative light team. The way they went to pieces in Thursday's game with Tech High is regretted. They had a good chance to win this game and would have certainly copped if they had not gone to pieces so badly.

Donald Fraser and Stone Mountain celebrated their first year in the Prep league by grabbing off a victory each. Donald Fraser won theirs from Stone Mountain and Stone Mountain won from G. M. A. These two schools had teams that were lighter than the other teams in the Prep league and consequently they did not play as good ball as the rest. They will certainly have good teams next season, as they will have all their old men back.

BANK CLEARINGS SHOW BIG GAIN IN NOVEMBER

That the bank clearings for 1913 will exceed by many millions of dollars those of last year was the indication Saturday when the clearings for November were shown to be $79,708,928.03, or an increase of $7,186,515.03 over November 1912.

The clearings compare favorably with those of any city of the size of Atlanta in the United States is the opinion of bank experts, all of whom are happy over the increase, particularly as it comes at a time of the year when there is usually a falling off in clearings.

MAIDEN CLASS GOLF TOURNEY NOT PLAYED

The golf tournament over the East Lake course of the Atlanta Athletic club for the players who had never won a trophy did not materialize yesterday as expected.

When it came time to start the tournament, there were but five entries received. The event will either be postponed until a later date or held over until spring.

PUBLIC CLAMORS FOR HEAVIES NOW

Lightweights Have Been Put Out of Spotlight for While—Many Bouts on Deck for Future.

By JAMES J. CORBETT
Former Heavy-Weight Champion of the World.

New York, November 29.—(Special.) Funny how frequently the public taste changes. Same in sports as in everything else. Take boxing for example. A short while back promoters in this city couldn't afford to do business with the heavyweights; it was unprofitable to put two big fellows on as the leading feature of a show. The lightweight and other smaller classes had the call with the matchmakers.

Now the cards have been shifted. The heavies are again in favor with the fans, who are clamoring for more bouts between big men. To satisfy the latest public demand the larger clubs are offering inducements to bring the classiest of the white heavyweights to this city, and with fair success as may be noted in the advance bulletins issued by the promoters.

More matches between big fellows are scheduled right now than at any one time before in the history of boxing in New York. This big town—with its several boroughs—supports something like twenty-five clubs and a glance at the matches "on the fire" for the next few weeks show the heavies in the lead over all other classes.

Reno Changed Taste.

Until that Reno thing three years or so ago the heavies had always maintained a comfortable lead in the race for popularity, but the disappointing result of that sad affair, and the subsequent fruitless efforts of numberless "white hopes" to show anything like the form demanded of first-class fighting men turned the tide in favor of the lighter classes.

In the smaller divisions a boxing fan can generally be sure of fast and scientific action which is not so much a part of encounters of big men. Still there is an attractiveness about a match between heavies which is lacking in a contest of little fellows, no matter how expert the latter may be.

Another thing the change in the system of governing matches—that of limiting them to six and ten rounds and prohibiting referees' decisions—is against the continued popularity of the little fellows as it is seldom in a bout of such short duration that there is a decisive ending.

Two small men are pretty nearly a safe bet to go the ten rounds nineteen times out of twenty and when big men clash it is not any cinch a bout will go the limit, and say what you will the average fan likes a decisive finish. Under the present system in New York and other states where official decisions are not rendered a decisive battle is undeniably popular.

If referees' decisions were permitted I think it would tend to lessen the desire for knock-out finishes. Most fans would be satisfied if the fighters were both on their feet at the end of a bout if the referee was allowed to name the winner, and in my mind the rules prohibiting such official action generates a desire in the public mind for knock-outs.

Morris vs. Willard.

The more important heavyweight matches arranged for the entertainment of local fans are the Carl Morris-Jess Willard bout at Madison Square Garden next Tuesday night (which Matchmaker Billy Gibson assures me will positively take place despite rumors to the contrary), the Jack Lester-Jim Coffee match at the Fairmount A. C. on Friday and the "come back" attempt of "Fireman" Jim Flynn in a bout with Battling Levinsky at the Atlantic Garden Tuesday week.

Giving this layout the once over it will be observed that most of the classy "hopes" are here on the job. With the exception of the "Gunboat" and Pelky, who are to meet in San Francisco around the holidays, and Frank Moran, who is still sticking around Paris in the hope of getting a match with Johnson, we have the cream of the white heavyweight talent in New York.

Let us hope one of the gentlemen who provide fistic entertainment will arise to the occasion.

Levinsky v. Flynn.

A word about Battling Levinsky who boxes Jim Flynn next week. This young fellow formerly performed under the name of "Barney Williams," but when Danny Morgan took hold of him he was persuaded to sail under his own colors. Levinsky is a light heavyweight, weighing 170 at the most, and the way he has been cleaning up the third raters around here makes him look due for better company.

Flynn, while not the man he was two years ago, is still good enough to lick any counterfeit, and if Levinsky is not "there" it will not take the hard hitting ex-fireman long to discover it. The match should determine "Battling's" rating among the heavies.

Manager Morgan has already dubbed Levinsky a "second Joe Choynski." Outside of a similarity in names and the fact that both are Hebrews nothing Levinsky has accomplished to date would entitle him to consideration in the same breath with the famous Joseph. In his prime Joe was a bear. I know. I fought him several times, once to a finish, and believe me Choynski could battle some.

Smith Underrated.

There are quite a few skeptics in this world of ours. It is difficult to make some folks believe that "Gunboat" Smith beat Sam Langford on the level. I wonder what Smith would have to do to Langford to convince the doubters he is the better man. Had he put Sam away the same fellows would have claimed that the negro laid down.

The truth of the matter is that Langford was not in shape to show at his best; also that "Gunboat" Smith has graduated from the sucker class in pugilism. It is a case where one man was overrated and the other fellow underrated. Langford is not the man he was before he took that Australian trip. He has gone back or I am no judge.

I am not claiming that Smith can beat Langford if the latter is properly trained. But I doubt very much if Sam will ever again be the terror he was a few years ago. In the recent match with Joe Jeannette he fought a very bad battle. His judgment of distance was miserable and at no time did he resemble the great fighter we knew in the past. Of course, he was fat and all that, but a fat man can fight a round or two at a pretty good lick when pressed, and Sam failed to show even a flash of his old form.

Anyway it is not fair to the "Gunboat" to insinuate that he stayed the twelve rounds and gained the referee's decision simply because Sam "allowed" him to do so. The probability is Smith stuck the distance without permission from the negro and strictly on his ability.

Tourney for Middies.

Jim Coffroth will try to accomplish what other matchmakers have failed to do—promote a middleweight elimination tournament to decide the championship of that class. With that object in view Coffroth is offering inducements to the leading aspirants for the title, including George Chip, Mike Gibbons, Frank Klaus and Jack Dillon and if his plans do not miscarry an undisputed champion may be developed within the next few months. Jimmy Clabby is already on the ground and ready to take on all comers as fast as they arrive.

While other promoters have fallen down on similar projects Coffroth may succeed. He is the most capable man in the fight promotion line today, and generally goes through with anything he undertakes. From advices I have received from parties closely associated with "Sunny Jim" I understand his offers are so liberal that only lack of ambition or fear of defeat on the parts of those invited will keep them from entering the tourney.

I am told Frank Klaus plans a trip abroad where the pickings have been pretty soft for him in the past. But I imagine that if Chip enters the proposed tournament nothing short of an earthquake would keep Frank from making the trip to the coast to try to even up matters with his rival.

Of Chip's plans nobody seems to know a thing. Jimmy Dime, the old time boxer who looks after his affairs, says Chip is willing to meet anyone in the division, but I know that he refused to consider a proposition to box Mike Gibbons at the middleweight limit of 158. Is Chip another of those light heavies who have been masquerading as middleweights the past few years? Looks that way, else he would not have insisted on a higher scale for the Gibbons match.

CITY PREP SEASON BEST IN HISTORY

Good Football Played--The Financial Returns Were Better Than Ever Before. Five Teams in League.

Final Standing of Prep League.

	Won.	Lost.	P. C.
Tech High School	4	0	1.000
Boys' High School	3	1	.750
Ga. Military Academy	1	3	.250
Donald Fraser	1	3	.250
University Stone Mt.	1	3	.250

By Carl Taylor.

The above is the way the local Prep league ended it's 1913 football season. The playing of all five teams was good and consistent throughout the entire season. Every team played every game, and what's more, fought hard for every game they played.

The league had the best season, both financially and in the class of ball played, it has had in many years.

Five Teams.

The league started off with five teams, which was two more than comprised it last year, and also admitting Stone Mountain to the local circuit, which is an innovation to this league.

Stone Mountain has always had betters teams than the local schools and it was expected that they would clean up everything in sight. But the converse of this was true, Stone Mountain succeeded in winning only one game out of the four that they played, and this was from the disheartened G. M. A. Nevertheless, they played good ball and will be heard from next year when the season of 1914 begins.

Another huge surprise to followers of the Prep league was the showing of G. M. A. This school had for the last four years turned out teams that have been the class of the Prep league and have cleaned up everything in sight. This year, they had a good team, but the Boys' High and Tech High simply had the best teams that they have had in years and G. M. A. was forced to bow to them.

Tech High Best.

Tech High has copped the honors of the league and also has a perfect record for games played this year. They have played seven games and won every one of them. Riverside was the first to fall before them and this was something that a Prep team from Atlanta has never been able to accomplish before. Then Rome Athletic club, who outweighed Tech High 20 pounds to the man, were the next to fall before the conquerors. Locust Grove, G. M. A., Donald Fraser, Stone Mountain and B. H. S. fell in the order named. They have as good claim to the state Prep championship as anybody, and as they have beaten Riverside and as Riverside tied Georgia Military College, they have an even better claim than G. M. C.

Many Alibis in Baseball; Billy Evans Relates Few

By Billy Evans

Baseball furnishes some of the most extraordinary alibis imaginable. Two that I recall as originated by Ping Bodie, of the White Sox, and Hank Perry, for a time with Detroit are decidedly out of the ordinary.

When Perry joined the Tigers his reputation as a slugger had preceded him. The Detroit outfield was such a strong one however that it was impossible for Perry to break in as a regular. Several times Jennings sent him to bat in the pinch and each time he responded with long drives that were captured by the outfield.

Knowing that Perry hit the ball hard when he connected the outfielders played extremely deep for him. Each time after flying out, Perry came back to the Detroit bench the picture of disgust.

A few days later with the bases filled and two down, Jennings yanked out the pitcher and sent Perry into bat. He urged him to take a crack at the ball and break up the game. Perry as he stepped to the plate noticed that the fielders backed up almost to the fence for him. Perry had an idea. He decided he would pull the unexpected. The pitcher knowing that Perry could hit, tried to get him to go after a bad ball, but Perry refused. Finally the count stood three balls and no strikes. It was a cinch that the pitcher would try to get the next one over, for if he failed it would force in a run. It was over, but Perry let it go by. The umpire declared it a strike.

Perry's Alibi

That was good enough baseball, but it was up to Perry to take a crack at the next one if it was over. The pitcher sent another one right over but Perry stood motionless. It was declared a strike by the umpire, making the count three balls and two strikes. Jennings on the coaching line was raving like mad. The next ball was in the same place but once more Perry refused to hit at it. It was declared a strike, retiring the batter and the side, and ending a rally.

This time as Perry approached the bench he was roasted by every Detroit player but instead of being sore or disgusted he wore a broad smile. As he took the usual drink of water customary after striking out he remarked:

Well, if it wasn't for that blind umpire I would have pulled the unexpected. They felt sure I would hit the ball but I fooled them by waiting em out. Perry is no longer with Detroit.

One day last summer Callahan sent Ping Bodie to bat in the ninth in place of the pitcher. The Sox were five runs behind and two were out. Naturally Ping tried his best to hit but fanned. As he walked back to the bench he remarked to me with a smile:

What is the use of batting with no one on the bases and five runs behind? It would only have prolonged the game. A few weeks later Ping went to the bat with the bases filled two out and three runs needed to tie. He tripled and the game went extra innings before Chicago finally won. Two or three innings later I referred to the way he had prolonged the game but Ping was too much for me.

I thought we only needed three runs to win. Bill or I would have stretched that hit into a home run, was his reply. Don't believe I ever saw Ping run quite so fast before in my life.

Jennings Likes to Mix Them Up.

Hughey Jennings famous leader of the Detroit Tigers, always believes in mixing up the style of play. He never wants a man to go through with a play when it appears suicidal. Often Cobb goes to the plate with the intention of bunting. He sees the infield is set for just such a play, that in all probability the pitcher will put a ball up to his liking hoping that he will go through with the play. Then it is that Cobb switches things and either pulls the ball down the right field line a mile a minute or else almost knocks the third baseman's legs off.

When a new player joins the Tigers Jennings always impresses on him the importance of mixing things up of trying to outguess the opposition by doing the unexpected. For a number of years while studying law at Cornell Jennings also coached the varsity baseball team.

Naturally he always tried to make the collegians play the same style of ball that he demanded of the professionals. Incidentally the collegian can offer just as many alibis as the professional.

When you see the first baseman or third baseman creeping in on you to get the bunt switch your play and hit out, was the bit of advice often handed out by Jennings to the collegians.

Collegians Had Some Alibi

In a game down south Hughey signaled for the squeeze play, a man being on third. Of course the runner dashed in as the pitcher delivered the ball and in so doing almost hit the runner on the head with the ball. The batter connected safely, driving the ball over the right fielder's head for a home run. Jennings didn't enthuse a bit.

On the contrary he was very much peeved. No one was looking for the squeeze and had the batter hunted he would have had the infield flat footed. He called the collegian down in good style. He almost keeled over in a faint however when the collegian on being asked why he had ever switched replied:

Didn't you see the right infielder creeping in on me?

A few years ago the Chicago American league secured a pitcher from one of the smaller minor leagues. In batting practice the recruit showed a lot of stuff when pitted against the regulars. It looked very much as if the White Sox had picked up a real find in the youngster.

Lack of experience and ability to field his position was the only thing that kept Manager Callahan from starting him in a game. In order to get the recruit accustomed to big league ways also to acquire confidence he was sent into pitch after several games were hopelessly lost. In each instance the young pitcher came through in the most approved style.

In one game which I umpired back of the plate I remember that he allowed only one hit in the last five innings of the play. He showed me a sweeping curve ball that caused five of the opposition to go out on strikes in as many innings. His other appearances were just about as successful. The youngster began to realize his importance began to feel that he was being discriminated against in only being allowed to finish games that were lost.

Before the start of one of the games with the Athletics he was sitting on the bench next to me. I complimented him on his work of the day previous. It was late in the season and he had yet to start his first game.

Wanted to Show the Natives

"I'm getting tired of this big league stuff," remarked the youngster in response to my words of praise. "I would rather be back in the bushes where you get a chance to display your ability."

Many of the present stars held down the bench for a couple of years before getting a chance. I replied.

That may be all right for some of them but I'm ready to go the route in the big league now. I'm a whole lot better than a bunch of those fellows who get knocked out only to have me finish the game. Instead of starting a game I warm up for five innings and then finish it.

The youngster was very much discouraged.

The great success he had met with on each appearance made him feel confident of his ability to deliver. I told him that his chance to make good would come in due time if he was but patient. Strangely enough it came the next afternoon. Crippled condition of the pitching staff practically made it necessary that he be used to start the game. Naturally he was nervous. The sensation of starting a game was entirely different from finishing a contest that was lost.

In his effort to puzzle the opposition he tried to get too much on the ball, was wild and being constantly in the hole was forced to put the ball over all true to luck. In such cases the Athletics hopped on the cripple and three innings had piled up a seven to nothing. That marked the exit of the recruit. As he walked past me on the way to the bench I whispered:

It is a trifle different—starting from finishing.

I'm so used to pitching four or five innings before getting a chance to pitch that ten minutes' workout failed to get me properly warmed up, was his response. The next time they intend using me I'm going to insist on knowing at least an hour before game time. The trimming handed the youth had not destroyed his confidence in the least. He will probably be a star in a couple of years.

G. M. C. Claims Prep Title On Their Season's Record

The following letter from the heads of the Georgia Military college explains itself:

To the Sporting Editor: In concluding the football season which was ended with us on Thanksgiving when the Georgia Military college defeated Gordon Institute by a score of 19 to 0, we want to take occasion to thank you for the excellent treatment received by your paper and the consideration you have shown us in your sporting columns.

The history of the athletic features of the Georgia Military college for the past season has been a story of unbroken success due largely to the splendid manhood embodied in the students and their unusual compliance with all rules of the institution including the literary department and the military discipline together with their love for athletics.

We are absolutely sure of our claim to the state prep championship being secure as the strong teams we have played without defeat will show this when comparisons are made. Tech High, which is one of the contenders for the position has not played on the representative teams which we have fought successfully they canceled their Gordon date, met Riverside in a crippled condition and won a victory by one point. One of the games demonstrating our strength was the contest with Dahlonega which team held Georgia 51 to 0 and when played by Georgia Military college the score was 35 to 0 in favor of our team. Tech High did not play Dahlonega at all.

The following is a list of our games and scores:

G. M. C. 40, Granite Hill 0
G. M. C. 60, Mercer Subvarsity 0
G. M. C. 20, Gordon 14
G. M. C. 102, Tenth District A. & M. 0
G. M. C. 35, Dahlonega 0
G. M. C. 39, Georgia Freshmen 19.
G. M. C. 70, Riverside 20
G. M. C. 19, Gordon 6

The total score of the entire series shows G. M. C. 377 and all others 59.

A close comparison will show conclusively that the Georgia Military college has made the hardest schedule of any institution in its class in the state and is playing under the strict rules of G. I. A. A. and complying with every requirement while some other contenders are bound by no regulations. Details of any other institution compared to G. M. C. will show our school leading in points made and with less tallies against it than any other institution.

We will thank you to present our claim to the public for consideration assuring you of our appreciation of your kindness in the premises. Signed: O. K. Horton, president; G. M. C. A. K. Maddox, coach.

Regimental Basketball Closes on Friday Night; Title Game at Wind-Up

But one week of the 1913 season of the national guard basketball league remains. The two games on Wednesday night, and the championship battle of Friday will terminate the league.

The fight for first place is between Company G and the Governor's Horse Guard Regulars. Neither team has lost this season but Company G has won one or two games by the narrowest of margins and has not yet played the strong Company H team.

The Horse Guard team has experienced but little difficulty in defeating all teams met this season and the team is now in the best condition of the season.

The Horse Guard team has played six games as scheduled. Company G has played four, two having been postponed. Hence the two teams meet on Friday night with clean slates. The winner will no doubt be the champions.

A clause in the league constitution provides that should a team not lead the league standing by two games over the team in second place a championship series of three games should be played between the first and second teams. Therefore the winner of Friday's game might not win the championship.

The Governor's Horse Guard Specials, Companies A, K and C will not again be seen in action in this league. Companies E and H as well as G have several games yet to play. These postponed games will probably be played after the end of the scheduled season.

Rivers v. Dundee.

New Orleans, November 29.—It was announced today that Johnnie Dundee of New York and Joe Rivers of Los Angeles, had been matched for a ten-round bout here Christmas day at Pelyean park. It was also announced that Wild Cat Ferns of Kansas City and Mike Gibbons of St. Paul, welterweights, would fight ten rounds here December 10.

Which Do You Buy Discount or Value?

There are two methods of securing business: One by offering the customer a good article at an established price for a legitimate margin of profit; the other by offering an inferior article at a cut price, trusting to the customer's love of a discount to make the sale. In the first case, the buyer receives the assurance that he paid a standard price; that his neighbor did not buy the article for a lesser amount. In the second case the buyer is left with a bitter taste, realizing that his price depended upon his ability as a trader, not upon the value he received.

In every business there is at least one article that is recognized as a standard by which competing goods are judged. That article is always sold at a fixed price. When you pay that price you are protected against poor quality and cut price. When you buy a competing article listed at the same price you must realize that the article is inferior or the price could not be cut.

The Overland is one of the few automobiles on the market that maintains its price. You can not buy an Overland in Atlanta at one dollar less than list price. Most of our competitors offer you a discount.

LOCAL SOLDIERS DEFEAT 'NOOGAS

The Seventeenth Infantry Eleven Wins From the Eleventh Cavalry by Score of 16 to 7.

In one of the fastest and most evenly contested games of the season the Seventeenth Infantry defeated the Eleventh Cavalry of Chattanooga yesterday afternoon at Fort McPherson by the score of 16 to 7.

There was a large crowd which included both the local soldier boys and a good sized delegation from Chattanooga present to witness the contest and to cheer their favorites.

Both of the teams used a great variety of plays with the forward pass claiming the most attention from both field generals.

The Infantry relied more on the pass than the Cavalry did as a result of which they gained much ground for first downs on the fourth down after three unsuccessful attempts at rushing the ball.

Locals Kicked Off

The Cavalry received the kick off to start the game. After carrying the ball on end runs and line bucks from their 25 yard line to the Seventeenths 35 the Chattanooga team was held for three downs without a gain. But on the fourth a long forward pass from Jones into the waiting arms of Pingle resulted in the first and only score of the game for the Cavalry bunch.

The only other time during the game that the Cavalry threatened the Seventeenths goal line came in the final period when Pingle put returned one of the locals passes an ran for 40 yards before he was downed by Swartz. With the ball on the Infantrys 15 yard line a forward pass was attempted which resulted in Swartzs intercepting it.

Locals First Score

The Infantrys first score was in the second quarter when Moore carried the ball over for a touchdown on a 12 yard buck after Swartz had made a pass to Bradberry for a 40 yard gain.

Their second score was in the third quarter on a wonderful 40 yard kick from placement by Bingle from a very difficult angle.

The final touchdown came in the last few minutes of play on a fake place kick formation. As Swartz was kneeling down to hold the ball for a placement kick he suddenly rose and passed the ball over the goal line to Bradberry for a touchdown.

Swartz Starred

Swartz played a great game at quarter for the Infantry running the team in grand style and making some very accurate forward passes. In this manner he also returned punts back to the distance from which they were kicked.

For the Cavalry Lyndorf put up the most consistent game of ball he made a number of sweeping around the end and also got off some extra long punts.

The line ups follow:

INTERESTING BOOKLET ABOUT MARMON "48"

An interesting and attractive book just issued by Nordyke & Marmon company is called The Marmon Forty Eight in Service. This book is a decided innovation in the field of automobile literature and is causing much favorable comment wherever it goes. Its obvious purpose is to acquaint owners and prospective owners of motor cars with the very wide distribution enjoyed by the Marmon Forty Eight.

This purpose is admirably carried out by means of photographs which, clearly and concisely, tell the reading matter could do and with less fatigue to the reader. In fact, it runs may read this book.

A single page of reading matter by way of introduction is followed by fourteen pages of photographic reproductions showing the Marmon Forty Eight in use in all sections of the United States and Canada.

A feature that adds tremendously to the pleasing effect is the color scheme. A sepia brown ink on a dull finish buff paper lends an air of distinctive class and tone to the work that could hardly have been secured with any other combination of inks for this particular subject.

NO-RIM-CUT

Five Minutes Will Win You to All-Weather Treads

The treads are double-thick—
The rubber is extra tough—
The grips are deep and enduring—
The edges stay sharp—
They face the skidding direction—
The blocks meet at the base—
The surface is flat and smooth.

Here is a tread which runs as smoothly as plain treads. It is just as economical.

It gets rid of all features which made anti-skids costly, or made them cause vibration.

On dry roads it runs like a plain tread. To wet roads it gives an irresistible grip.

It is the tread for all wheels and all seasons. On Goodyear tires—the largest-selling tires in the world—it is outselling plain treads with users. In winter it is an essential.

Five minutes will show you that no other anti skid begins to so meet the requirements.

Some are shallow, some soft, some irregular. Some have rounded grips.

Some have separate projections which center the strains at one point in the fabric. Some cause much vibration.

Here is a flat tread, broad, smooth and regular. Here are deep grips which last for thousands of miles. Here is rubber toughened by a secret process.

Here are sharp edges which stay sharp. And the edges face the skidding direction.

Here are blocks that widen out and meet at the base, so the strains are spread as with plain treads.

This is the latest of Goodyear inventions. It solves anti-skid problems as never before. It combines plain-tread economy with the safety of a most tenacious grip.

You are bound to adopt it. A five-minute comparison will make you a convert. Don't buy a tire for winter use without coming to see this tread.

Plus These Savings

All Weather treads, if wanted, now come on No Rim Cut tires. And you get these features too:

Tires that can't rim-cut—
Tires that save blow-outs—
Tires that save loose treads.

We control the No-Rim Cut feature. The saving of blow-outs adds to our tire cost $1,500 daily. No other maker adds this extra cost. Our way of preventing tread separation is patented, and we control the patent.

You get all these savings in No-Rim-Cut tires and in no other tires in the world. As a result, these tires today are the largest-selling tires in the world. You are courting tire trouble, you are wasting tire money, so long as you go without them. Let us prove this to you.

All-Prep 1913 Football Team Chosen for The Constitution By Coach Maddox of G.M.C.

BY ARTHUR K. MADDOX.
(Coach Georgia Military College.)

After the last curtain has been rung down, closing the football season on Thanksgiving, the only remaining points of interest to the general public is the appearance of the all prep picks by the so-called football experts.

It is rather a difficult undertaking to choose any group of players that will satisfy all, but many fine many men in prep ball this season who stand out preminently and who doubtless will find a place on every all prep selection. In choosing this team I shall endeavor to take into consideration the experience natural ability, endurance and general worth of the players in prep circles.

However, I do not think that all necessary to give the players the positions they have played simply because they are the best on the right or left of the line, as the case may be. A man who has starred on the left of the line could in a short time learn to play on the opposite side equally as well.

Several Good Ends.

The end positions find several candidates for this section and it is regretted that only two men can be chosen for this position. G M C has three star ends in Godwin, David and Fuller. Fuller would undoubtedly find a place were it not for the fact that sprained ankles has kept him out of many games this season. David of G M C has had a remarkable career for a first year man, but owing to his inexperience I must leave him off. I will select Godwin and Kingery for the end positions.

For tackles I shall choose Bell and Smith, of the Gordon, both being of power of strength both on offense and defense. Burson, of G M C considering his 115 pounds is one of the fiercest and best players prepdom has ever seen in spite of his light weight. I shall name Burson as first substitute in the line as on his had experience at guard, center and tackle and can hold his own with any prep player I have ever seen.

Many Guards.

There are many guards who this of a place, but only two may be selected. Thomson, Rosace, Nash, Beasley and Wilder are all good steady players and any of these men could fill the place to a king's taste. However, I am going to select two men who filled the position of tackle this season, but since they have had experience at guard, I take Nash, of G M C., and Wilder, of R M A.

I find it no easy task to select a center. Hall, of G M C., is the best offensive center in prep ball, but weak on defense. Hence, I choose Hatton, of R M A., to snap the ball, with a most honorable mention for Hall.

The backfield is comparitively easy to select, though there are many stars to be looked over before a selection can be made. Ellison, Wilkinson, Arnold, Tunnell, Bradford, Little, Mangham, Strupper, Townsend are all worthy of mention.

The Backfield.

Ellison, as fullback, has no peer in prep ball. He is good both on offense and defense and is a splendid punter, drop kicker and long distance forward passer.

I choose Wilkinson and Townsend for the halfback. Both are steady, hard working men and have proven to be the mainstays of their respective teams.

Tunnell, of G M C., is a star of wonderful brilliancy at the quarterback position, but unfortunately, weak ankles has kept him out of many of the games this season. Hence, Strupper of R M A., to call signals for this team.

The team I have selected is as follows:

Godwin, L E	G M C.
Bell L T	Gordon
Wilder L G	R M A
Hatton C	R M. A
Nash R G	G M C
Smith R T	Gordon
Kingery R E	Gordon
Wilkinson, L H	G M. C
Townsend, R H	R M A
Ellison, F B	G M C
Strupper, Q T	R M C
Subs.
Burson	G M. C
Beasley	Gordon
Bradford	G M C
Tunnell	G M C
Arnold	G M C

Harvard's 1913 Eleven Better Than 1912 Team

By Edward R. Bushnell.

Philadelphia, Pa., November 29.—(Special.)—There has been a good deal of discussion as to whether this year's Harvard eleven was as strong as that of 1912. It is the opinion of the writer that the present Harvard team was more powerful in every department than that of 1912. In only one department did the 1912 team possibly excel this year's combination. That was in line plunging. A year ago Harvard scored two touchdowns against Princeton and two against Yale. Much of the Crimson's scoring power last year was due to the line plunging of Wendell, but it should be remembered that Princeton had a very weak team last year and that Yale, as the Blue faced Harvard this year, was a stronger combination than 1912. Also it should not be forgotten that one of Harvard's 1912 touchdowns was due to a long run from a fumbled kick.

This year both Princeton and Yale were strong defensive teams, or at least they had the ability to stop line plunges directed between the ends. Assuming that two elevens are evenly matched as to strength, a perfect defensive game will make it impossible for an opponent to score a touchdown or make as consistent gains by line plunging. Therefore inability to score touchdowns this year does not indicate greater strength by the 1912 eleven.

In their eulogy of Brickley football enthusiasts quite overlook another man in the Harvard back field who was just as valuable and necessary to the Crimson as Brickley himself and who but for the presence of Brickley would have earned quite as much distinction in defeating Yale. This was Mahan the left halfback. Mahan gave the best exhibition of running back kicks that has been seen on any eastern college gridiron this year. In addition he did all of Harvard's punting and consistently outkicked both of Yale's long distance punters, Knowles and Guernsey. Mahan was quite as useful a punter as Felton of last year's team. He may not average quite as much distance as Felton, but he got his kicks away more quickly and placed them with more accuracy. Mahan did wonderful work in the return of punts. His catching was without a flaw and on account of his great speed he nearly always got away from the Yale ends.

But Mahan is likewise a great drop kicker, though he will probably not get a chance to shine in this department until his senior year, after Brickley has graduated. Whenever Brickley did not play in the preliminary games Mahan did all the drop kicking and performed with almost as much accuracy as Brickley himself. Had Brickley not been in the game last week Mahan could probably have scored enough field goals to have enabled the Crimson to win.

RETREADING DELAY OBVIATED BY NEW TIRE PROTECTORS

"The delay in retreading a casing is now obviated by the introduction of a satisfactory substitute—the Standard Tire Protector," says L. C. Rockhill, manager automobile tire department, the Goodyear Tire & Rubber company, Akron, Ohio. "It is a veritable retread 'while you wait,' and aside from the time saved by this method of recovering it has many advantages over the ordinary retread.

"Not having the direct air pressure against it and being separate from the tire it acts as a cushion for the casing to prevent stone bruises and blow-outs. An object penetrating the protector will in nearly every instance glance off before continuing through the casing, making it practically puncture proof.

"When a tire is retreaded, making the tread an integral part of the casing, and the tire gives way within a few miles, the retread is lost. But when the retread is made with a protector the only loss is that of the old carcass and the protector can be removed and used on another tire. In this manner you are sure of value received."

1914 CADILLAC SPARK ADVANCE AUTOMATIC

At the present stage in the development of the motor car more or less attention is being paid to refinements that make the driving of a car simpler and safer. The 1914 Cadillac has several improvements that illustrate this point. One is its automatic spark advance. Without this device the driver must manipulate his spark lever according to his own best judgment of the engine's requirements. It is not alone a question of speed. Sometimes heavy going puts a drag on the engine that necessitates manipulation of the spark lever. With the novice this is frequently nothing more than good guessing. The Cadillac's automatic spark advance takes this task of guessing from the driver and makes the action positive, automatic, according to the engine's needs.

This is accomplished by a ring governor which automatically advances and retards the spark according to the demands of various loads and various speeds. It thus automatically prevents the injuries which are possible by too much advance or too much retard.

OVERLAND IS FIRST IN SPACE DRAWINGS AT BIG AUTO SHOWS

The Willys-Overland company of Toledo, Ohio, is receiving many compliments these days from people interested in the industry, on the fact that it did the largest business of any firm in the automobile chamber of commerce. This prosperity is evidenced in the recent drawing for space at the two national automobile shows, the New York exhibition, which is to be held in the Grand Central Palace, January 3 to 10, and the Chicago show, which is to be held in the Coliseum in that city January 23 to 30. In these drawings for space the firms are given preference according to the amount of business done during the previous year. Thus the firm with the largest volume of business has first choice as to the location of its show space. In both drawings the Overland company chose space No. 1, an exceptionally advantageous location.

The Willys-Overland company manufactured and sold 40,000 cars during the 1913 season, this amount representing a gross business of more than $50,000,000.

All-Star Football Eleven Meets Seventeenth Infantry Next Saturday at Poncey

A great post-season game of football has been arranged for the football fans of Atlanta for next Saturday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park.

Lewie W. Hardage, the former Vanderbilt and Auburn football star, and now coach of the Mercer university eleven, has arranged the game.

Hardage has arranged to bring a team of all-star, all-southern football players to Atlanta to play a game against the Seventeenth infantry eleven coached by Lieutenant Devore, the great tackle of the Army eleven last year and now a lieutenant at the local post.

The Seventeenth infantry eleven has come forward with great strides for the past month, and now they are regarded as formidable as most of the college elevens in the south.

On Hardage's team will be football stars who have just completed their football experience on southern gridirons, or who have been engaged in coaching southern elevens during the past season.

In the backfield will be such stars as Hardage and Morris of Vanderbilt, McWhorter of Georgia, Newell of Auburn and Cook of Tech.

In the line will be Pitts of Auburn and Morgan of Vanderbilt, at center. Cheape of Sewanee, Hasslock of Vanderbilt and Peacock of Georgia, at guards. Lamb of Auburn, T. Brown of Vanderbilt and Cogdell of Auburn, at tackles and Gillem of Sewanee, Major of Auburn and E. Brown of Vanderbilt, at ends.

These players have been sent a set of signals, which they have been studying for the past two weeks. They will arrive in Atlanta Wednesday, and will practice Wednesday, Thursday and Friday to perfect their teamwork.

All of the players are in fine shape, by reason of keeping in condition all season, either playing or coaching, and only a little teamwork will be all that is necessary to weld them into a formidable aggregation.

Atlanta fans should witness a good game here, and those who have wanted to see Hardage, McWhorter, Newell and Morrison in one backfield will get the chance here.

DEMAND FOR CLOSED CAR SHOWN BY THE FORD CO.

Detroit, Mich., November 29.—It was only a few short years ago that the motor car, still fighting a strenuous battle for consideration by the public, was considered absolutely a summer proposition and every owner prepared to store his car up the winter time.

Now practically everyone uses a car all the year around and the closed car has been gaining in popularity every winter. The growing demand for a closed car is evidenced by a report of the Ford Motor company which says that the demands from their agents for closed cars is greater this fall than ever before.

The use of the closed car was undoubtedly helped along by the taxicab people seeing how the taxis operated all winter came to the conclusion that they could use their own cars as well.

The Ford company, by the way, has always been a strong factor in the taxicab field. The first Ford taxicab in New York was driven by Max Eller. He saw how the profits of the taxi business, largely given over to foreign cars, was being eaten up in the maintenance charges and he bought a light Ford with a Candaulet body. As soon as it got noised around among other drivers how much Max was making because of the small sum necessary to maintain the Ford, many other independent drivers hurried to buy Ford cars. Now many big taxicab companies use Fords exclusively.

Lawson Robertson Signed To Speed Up the Dodgers

Wilbert Robinson, the veteran catcher and new manager of the Brooklyn Trolley Dodgers, has shown his hand. He has proven convincingly that he believes in the McGraw system and style of play.

"More speed," is Robinson's cry. He echoed this immediately that he assumed active charge of the Brooklyn entry in next year's National league sweepstakes.

The Dodgers have been a formidable team for some time, in and outers, however, who relied on their hitting ability alone to win games. They were formidable batsmen last season, but they wasted a lot of hits.

Robinson has signed Lawson Robertson, the noted trainer of the Irish-American Athletic club, to round the candidates for places on the team into the best of shape, and to teach them how to utilize their speed to the best advantage.

If Robertson is as successful as Robinson believes that he will be, the Dodgers, with their natural hitting ability, are going to make it mighty interesting for the other National league teams in 1914.

SPECIAL SESSION COMES TO CLOSE

Longest Extra Session in History—Regular Session Begins on Monday—Summary of Work.

Washington, November 29 — The longest continuous extraordinary session in the history of congress practically ended tonight and the regular session will begin at noon next Monday

Democratic leaders, acting in concert with President Wilson, would not permit an actual finish to be written to the special session although the house adjourned finally The senate will meet again at 10 o'clock Monday, and adjournment will not formally come until a few minutes before the time for the regular session to convene

Two Great Projects.

Two great projects have held the attention of congress and the country throughout the unprecedented work of the year One of these, tariff revision crystalized into law in September The other, currency reform still is the chief subject of legislative interest, and will remain so undisposed of, in the regular session

The special session opening a month after the democratic forces took complete control of the government, began with a reorganization of party leadership in the senate which overthrew precedent and brought the so-called progressive forces into control and throughout the contests on tariff and currency the session has been marked by solidification of the democratic ranks

Demand of the democratic leaders that the currency bill be passed at once brings the extra session to a stirring close Day and night sessions of the democratic currency conference have marked the last week and day and night sessions of the senate are promised for the new session until currency legislation is concluded

Some Important Legislation.

Although President Wilson urged the congress just closing to hold itself to the two chief projects—tariff and currency, several other matters of general importance have been considered One important legislative act was the so-called Newlands law for mediation and conciliation in labor disputes Under this enactment federal arbitrators were able to avert the threatened strike of trainmen on eastern railroads last summer which threatened to tie up American commerce and industry for an indefinite time

The abolishment of the United States commerce court also was accomplished, through an amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill Another appropriation bill rider took out of the classified civil service most of the deputy United States marshals and deputy collectors of internal revenue Exemption of labor unions from prosecution under the anti trust laws, so far as certain funds were concerned, also was accomplished

Many important legislative acts were embraced in the tariff bill, in the form of amendments These included prohibitions against the importation of feathers of birds, a step long demanded by bird protection societies, and a special rebate on goods brought in American ships, an act designed to encourage American ship building and to strengthen the American merchant marine

Tax On Cotton Futures.

The long fight over the proposed tax on cotton futures, to prevent "cotton gambling," failed in the final developments prior to the passage of the tariff bill The cotton tax subject was so thoroughly discussed, however, and the advocates of it came to such an understanding, that it is expected that a measure to regulate trading in futures will be passed before the new session ends

Many bills which underwent preliminary preparation in the committee rooms will be pushed to conclusion in the new congress These include the "seaman's servitude bill," which passed the senate the hetch-hetchy bill to give San Francisco water supply rights in that valley, which passed the house and is to be voted on by the senate December 6 and the Alaskan railroad bill which the senate has agreed to take up in December

The Alaskan measure would provide for government railroads that would more adequately open Alaska's resources

The investigating activities of the special session were confined chiefly to the probing of lobbying activities and to the inquiry into causes and conduct of the strike in the West Virginia coal fields The special committee that conducted these investigations have not completed their work and will not report until early next year

SOUTHERN PACIFIC OWNS OIL COMPANY

San Francisco Cal November 29 — The Southern Pacific Railroad company, through W F Herrin, as trustee holds 200,685 shares of the 100,000 shares of capital stock of the Associated Oil company according to testimony given here today by F G Williams secretary of the oil corporation Williams said also that the railroad had subscribed $12,104,000 of the $15,685,000 worth of bonds issued by the Associated Oil company January 15, 1910

Williams was testifying in the hearings in connection with the government's suit against the railroad company, the trial of which is in progress at Los Angeles, California seeking the recovery of lands in the Elk hills California oil region The government has met the contention of the southern Pacific company that the odd-numbered sections it holds are not mineral lands with the reply that this is untenable as the same stockholders, through the Associated Oil company, also hold all the even-numbered sections is mineral ground

TO PROTECT POTATOES OF THE UNITED STATES

Washington, November 29 — To protect the United States from foreign potato diseases and to find a way in which some of the foreign crop may be brought in because of this year's scant native supply estimated to be almost 100,000,000 bushels short, Secretary of Agriculture Houston today issued a call for a public meeting here December 15 to discuss the subject

The call directs particular inquiry as to whether it is possible to safeguard this country from known foreign potato diseases by introductions under permits of potatoes which have been inspected and pronounced free from infection by foreign experts"

A few days ago secretary Houston announced that a public hearing would be given December 15 as to why the present quarantine against the potato wart should not be extended after January 1 to all Canada and Europe, to certain parts of which it now applies

Nursery stock found free of infection is allowed to enter the country. Under the plant quarantine act it is necessary for the secretary to call a public hearing before this could be applied to potatoes

Three Boys Drowned.

Mobile, Ala November 29—John Fath, a white newsboy, aged 12 years, and two negro boys were drowned here at 3 o'clock this afternoon when the waves caused by a passing tug overturned the skiff in which they were fishing on the river Robert Chew, a crippled newsboy, 30 years of age who came to Mobile last week from St Louis, was taken into custody by the police Chew said he had rented a skiff to go fishing and induced four boys to go with him, though in a downpour of rain. ELLERY'S BAND TO PLAY AT THE AUDITORIUM

Will Give Two Concerts Daily From December 12 to December 18.

Atlantans are not going to have to wait for grand opera season this year to hear some truly great music The Atlanta Music Festival association has just closed a contract with the famous Ellery band to appear in Atlanta at the Auditorium-Armory, December 12 to 18, in a series of remarkable concerts

There will be two concerts a day,

TADDEO DI TROLAMO, Director Ellery Band

matinee and night for a week, all under music festival auspices In addition to the large appeal that this series of concerts will make to the whole Atlanta music loving public, Vice President Wilkins of the Music Festival association is making special arrangements to have all the school children in Atlanta hear this band

The Original Band.

The Ellery band is the parent stem from which every Italian band now existing in this country has sprung But while others may be said to have abandoned themselves to gallery play and the commercial side of the enterprise, Mr Ellery's great organization has been absolutely faithful to a high ideal While this wonderful band is surcharged with temperament and expression, its director, Taddeo di Girolamo, never descends to the use of superfluous gymnastics to help make his meaning clear to his audiences The Ellery music is founded on a living, abstract idea. The result is that the band appeals to the many through the deep human feeling visible in all its work; it appeals with equal force to the knowing few who appreciate all of its finer technical touches.

High Class Singers.

The Ellery band will be accompanied on its present tour by two singers of the highest class. They are Mr Thomas Wallace, tenor, and Mr. Bayne Young, baritone, and both are from Glasgow, Scotland, where they were discovered by Mr Ellery two years ago on the occasion of the band's triumphal visit to the Scottish exhibition Mr Wallace's voice is lyric in character and is on the same order as that of the famous John McCormack Mr Wallace sings many of the celebrated Irish tenor's songs with unfailing success. Mr Young, the baritone, is without doubt one of the greatest singers in the United Kingdom. his voice is of splendid quality and of an almost phenominal range In addition to their grand opera numbers, both of these distinguished artists will be heard in a large repertory of English, Scotch, Irish and American songs Both possess the very rare merit of distinct enunciation so that their words can be heard and enjoyed by everyone in range of their voices.

Citizens of the town say nine explosions were heard One man approached the bank upon hearing the explosions, and was driven back at the point of guns The robbers constructed a defense of heavy wire fencing in front of the bank The vault was entirely demolished

Washington, November 29 — Milady's jewelry bill for 1913 will approximate $57,000,000, according to statistics of jewelry importations just published by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce This is declared to be more than 20 per cent in excess of the highest record yet established

Cut diamonds showed the greatest gain in recent years For the first nine months of 1912 there were imported $25,500,000 in these gems as against $18,000,000 last year. The total of all precious stones for the same period was $43,333,333, as against $32,250,000 last year.

These figures are declared by the bureau to warrant the belief that this year's importations will greatly exceed those of former years.

Some Odd All-American Elevens

By Raymond S. Frost.

As the football season is now practically over, the experts will come forward with their all-American, all-eastern, all-western and other all-choices. That is all very interesting to the reader and, no doubt, immensely gratifying to the few lucky ones who are chosen for these representative elevens What a pleasure it must be to the bruised and body-sore warriors to find that they have been chosen above their worthy competitors to figure on these "paper" elevens. We have chosen several consolation elevens that will appeal to the rank and file of football players and their followers. Somewhat different all-American teams have been made up by our expert, but their texture is out of the ordinary.

For example: We have selected an all-animal eleven, that is, a team composed of athletes who are the possessors of names similar to the inhabitants of the animal kingdom These men are chosen from preparatory, high school and college elevens from all sections of the country—from Maine to California and from Canada to the gulf. Playing ability counts to a certain extent, for instance, where there are three candidates for one position, the collegian is given the preference over the prep school men When there are two collegiate men for the same position, of course, the leading player is placed on the eleven In only a few instances has it been necessary to transpose a player from one side of the line to the other

These selections are made up in various forms, as all-Bird, all-Smith, all-National, all-Motorcar, etc This may be a sort of comfort to the many who are unavailable for the "large" eleven it will be noted that there are college men playing side by side with athletes from obscure high schools However, some of these elevens would undoubtedly be able to give a good account of themselves on the football field.

Our first choice is an all-animal eleven, who should be able to chew up their opponents

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS STIR ALSATIAN TOWN

Zabern Alsace Germany November 29—Scores of townspeople including several civilian officials were under arrest here today as the result of a night of rioting The disturbance was so violent at times that troops cleared the main streets at the point of the bayonet

The demonstrations were designed to express indignation at certain insulting remarks recently made by German army officers The trouble started at the conclusion of classes of the evening school when the pupils met and denounced the army officers Troops were summoned to disperse the meeting and everybody who failed to move on promptly was arrested

The townspeople excited by the repressive measures of the military gathered in the principal square Soon afterward an officer with fifty soldiers appeared The officer ordered his men to load their rifles and the front rank to kneel When the detachment was ready to fire the officer stepped forward and commanded the crowd to disperse The people at once scattered but the soldiers pursued and prodded them with bayonets

Detachments of troops with fixed bayonets patrolled the streets throughout the night and continued on duty today

Forty people were arrested It is understood they are to be tried by a military court

Lieutenant Baron Forstner whose remarks started the trouble between the army and the citizens went shopping yesterday in the town accompanied by four soldiers who guarded the entrances of the stores while he was inside

A number of young lieutenants of the 99th infantry were seen today pursuing with drawn swords a youth who had shouted an insulting epithet at a man who was singing the German national anthem

She Flirts With a Cop And He Is Ungallant Enough to Arrest Her

Warning to girls who flirt indiscriminately Mind that the object of your wiles is not a plain clothes attache to the police vice squad

Here's why

Plain Clothes Policeman J H Kirk in company with his civilian clothed partner was sauntering down Marietta street in the vicinity of Five Points A quite pretty little girl with blue eyes and brown locks came from a soda fount and cast an enticing smile at the policeman

Kirk stopped and stared She smiled again He wore a scarlet rose in his lapel Where he got it he hasn't said In fact nobody has yet asked him

That's a pretty rose you have she said

Much oblige I like it too

May I have it

Well hardly That ended the flirtation The policeman ducked into a stairway and watched the girl as she went up the street Then he shadowed her Later she was arrested in company with another girl

She gave the name of Trilla Pittman aged 22 of Howell Mill road Her companion gave the name of Ruby Thomas aged 21 of the same address When arraigned in court yesterday afternoon Kirk told of the flirtation and her request for the rose

The next time you want to flirt Judge Preston told her make sure the man hasn't got a badge underneath his coat You also might stop asking men for roses They're rare and costly this time of the year

Both girls were put under probation by Miss Ethel Clayton the policewoman

NAVAL MAIL CLERKS BEING HELD AFTER THEFT OF LETTERS

A radiogram from Guantanamo Cuba via Key West Fla to R E Barry chief postoffice inspector for the Atlanta division received yesterday, sweeps away much of the mystery surrounding the pilfering of money laden letters coming from that country and which the best secret service men in the postal department have been trying to solve for the past four or five years

Inspector Barry was directed to take up the investigation and a month ago made his second trip to Cuba carrying with him J M Adamson and Frank Pulsipher two of the best men on his service list From his first visit Inspector Barry was satisfied that the Cuban postal service was in no way to blame for the losses and within a short time his assistants were working on the same line which proved right as Inspector Barry's radiogram yesterday tells him The message advises Inspector Barry that his representatives had just arrested John Grams and O Hunter two naval mail clerks and that pieces of the marked money used had been found in Grams possession

WANT MAGNOLIA ROUTE.

Many Bids Made for Warm Springs Road.

Columbus, Ga., November 29—(Special.)—Lively competition has developed for the Magnolia route between Columbus and Warm Springs, Ga.

Land owners realize that values will be greatly enhanced by such a first-class automobile highway, and are willing to pay good round sums for the road to pass through their property

The route as originally proposed did not take in Cleola station on the Southern railway, but passed a mile to the east, the present route from Waverly Hall to Oak Mountain and Shiloh being utilized. J H. Miller, of Cleola, who has extensive property holdings in that section, offers $1,200 for the road to be built, by his station

Now comes W H Harvey of Columbus, and offers $1,000 for the road to be built via Schatulga and Midland the present Macon road being followed as far as Schatulga.

The new road will not only be the best route between Columbus and Warm Springs but it will form a part of the Atlanta-Tallahassee highway

Citizens along the Central of Georgia railway north of Columbus have also become enthused on the subject of road improvement and have formed an organization

The necessary fund for the construction of the Columbus-Warm Springs highway has practically been subscribed

SEABOARD BRIDGE UP TO COMMISSION

Railroad Declines to Build Until Street Car Company Agrees to Give Certain Guarantees.

The proposed street car line extension through Brady place to Howells mill is 'hung up' because the Georgia Railway and Power company refuses to give a guarantee for adequate service to employees of the Seaboard Air line railroad and further because it has declined to enter into a contract to keep up the superstructure of a $40,000 steel bridge which the Seaboard is willing to erect over its tracks.

Until the Georgia Railway and Power company enters into the agreements or until the controversy is adjusted in some amicable way the Seaboard will not erect the bridge and all the work that has been done towards making the project possible will go for naught and the scores of persons living in the neighborhood of the proposed extension will continue to suffer.

Stanley Makes Announcement

The fact that the Seaboard will not build the bridge until the railway company enters into both agreements was made known by G. B. Carlton, division superintendent of the Seaboard last night. The ultimatum came to Atlanta in the shape of a letter from General Manager Stanley. President Preston S. Arkwright through whom the Seaboard negotiated for the contracts has taken the position that both matters are subjects for the Georgia railroad commission to decide and citizens who started the extension project say that the commission will be asked to take cognizance of the situation.

According to authentic information the railroad commission will be asked to decide the issue. It is probable that a petition will be filed some time during the week.

As the proposition now stands it is not likely that work will be started on the extension at an early date. On the assurance that the line would be extended the Union Stock Yards gave a strip of its land for the right of way of the line and the county commissioners made a cut for the right of way and graded the street. The county completed its task more than a week ago. The work was rushed to completion because it was understood that the Georgia Railway and Power company would be ready to start work just as soon as the county finished the grading.

Wants Schedule Arranged

With all obstacles removed the railway company throws an obstruction in the path of the improvement by declining to enter into an agreement with the Seaboard. The railroad is under a contract with more than 400 of its shop employees to transport them from the city to the shops and from the shops to the city. According to Superintendent Carlton four trains are operated for the purpose. The Seaboard asks the railway company to provide a schedule to take the men into the city, also to provide adequate cars.

Superintendent Carlton says that the improvements asked of the Georgia Railway and Electric company are in the nature of a convenience for the men and in nowise a benefit to the railroad company. As for the upkeep of the bridge, Superintendent Carlton contends that because the bridge will be used by the street car only it should assume the burden for its upkeep.

W. H. Gleun, superintendent of the railway company, stated Saturday that the matter in dispute is in the hands of President Arkwright and that he had no comment to offer or statement to make.

Superintendent Carlton of the Seaboard made the following comment:

"When this matter first came up and was brought to our attention the railroad agreed to erect a new bridge. I wrote to Mr. Stanley and asked him about the matter and he informed me that the bridges would be erected provided the Georgia Railway and Electric company entered into an agreement guaranteeing our employees a service which would be agreeable, also provided the company entered into a contract to keep up the superstructure of the bridge.

Seaboard's Position

"The Seaboard has nothing to gain by erecting the bridge for the railway company to use. We did however expect the company to keep up the bridge and also to take care of our employees who work out in the shops. These men come into the city on trains and it was our intention of arranging it so that the could get off on the line of the extension and come to the city on the trolley cars. We are under an agreement with these men to carry them into the city, and expected the railway company to furnish an agreeable [illegible] suitable cars.

"[illegible] the upkeep of the bridge we feel that the railway company should stand the expense, inasmuch as it was instituted for its benefit. Residents to be served by the proposed line must necessarily be dispersed over the turn of airlines and are paying to have the cars easy set tled in order that they might get there [illegible] which has been promised them."

SCENE IN THE OFFICE OF THE COLUMBIA STATE

Charleston, S. C., November 29.—A gathering of prominent newspaper men, Associated Press officials and telephone officials in The Columbia State office this evening saw a practical demonstration of the newest and what is destined to be one of the greatest scientific and mechanical developments in the production of the modern newspaper.

Those gentlemen saw the operation of the transmission of this item from the News and Courier office in Charleston over a telephone talking circuit directly to a linotype machine in The Columbia State office and produced in type ready for use without the use by the linotype operator of copy. It was the first practical use to which the experiment has ever been put in the south and one of the first in the country and will be the means of writing the names of the Charleston and Columbia papers into modern newspaper history in future years.

In addition to the practical demonstration of the idea in use the circuit was operated the entire length of the state of South Carolina, and while the copy reader was sending the item from The News and Courier office to the operator putting the item in type in The State office in Columbia, it was simultaneously being copied in the office of The Spartanburg Herald, The Greenville News and a second office in The State building.

The new method of direct transmission of news matter over a talking circuit to a linotype machine eliminates fifty per cent of the time heretofore required to handle news matter, eliminates the necessity of a Morse code operator as well as typewriter operator and accomplishes what modern journalism has been fighting for for years—serves the news to the people in the quickest actual time by one-half the time heretofore required.

The idea was conceived by The Augusta Chronicle about six years ago by J. W. Hammond, the equipment arranged and a test first made between that office and The Columbia State office. It was found to work to complete satisfaction and was said at the time by telephone experts to have been the first of the newest rapid news transmission. This item is the first ever transmitted in the south by this system for use in the columns of a newspaper.

REGIMENTAL DANCE WILL BE HELD DEC. 11

Gold Medal Will Be Awarded Winner of the Prize Drill, Which Precedes Ball.

Various committees are busy making arrangements for the regimental dance and prize drill to be held on Thursday evening, December 11 at the Fifth regiment armory. Special care is being taken to prepare such a program as will be interesting to the public. Four picked men from each company will participate in the drill, the winner of which will be awarded a gold medal to be worn one year, when it will be drilled for again.

A dance will be held after the drill in Taft hall. The armory portion of the building will be open for inspection by the public which is also invited to witness the drill without charge. Members of the regiment in uniform and all ladies will be admitted free to the dance. Male dancers not in uniform will be required to pay $1 for a dance ticket. This charge is not for the purpose of raising funds but rather to make the dance exclusive. Music for both the drill and dance will be furnished by the Fifth Regiment band of twenty-four pieces and excellent selections will be rendered.

A series of entertainments of this character are being planned by the regiment for the pleasure of the members of the regiment and those who desire to participate in these festivities with them.

The prize drill committee is composed of Captain C. A. Stokes, Captain W. J. Stoddard, Captain W. H. Leahy.

The dance and program committee consists of Lieutenant R. S. Anderson and Lieutenant C. A. Langford.

Lieutenant Coburn is treasurer and Major W. J. Preston is general chairman.

The drill is to be judged by Captain J. M. Kimbrough, army instructor of the Georgia national guard, and Lieutenant Snider of the Seventeenth United States infantry. Captain John W. Quillian will give the commands. Captain Leahy and Lieutenant Langford will be referees, Lieutenant D. R. Winn will be timekeeper.

The drill is so arranged that commands will be given for three minutes with an intermission of one minute. As soon as a man makes three errors he will be dropped out at the next intermission. In case of a tie the man making the first error will drop out. Lieutenant Colonel Hall is ex officio member of all committees and is taking great interest in this work as he feels the more entertainments of this character that are pulled off the more interest will be generated by the people of Atlanta in this solid regiment of twelve companies, the only full city regiment south of Baltimore. The at home given by the officers of the Fifth regiment on Thursday evening November 20 was a most delightful occasion. The Fifth regiment band was on hand and a number of lady members of the officers' families graced the occasion by their presence. It was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

TECH NIGHT SCHOOL SECOND TERM OPENS WEDNESDAY, DEC. 10

At the beginning of the second term of the season of 1913-14 of the night school of the Georgia School of Technology on December 10 a splendid opportunity is offered Atlantans who were not able to enter at the beginning of the season in September to start the course now.

Professor J. N. G. Nesbit, dean of the night school, states that it is not necessary for any person to await the beginning of a new year, but that all who enter now can complete the course within three years the same as if they had entered at the beginning of the year. That is those who enter with the beginning of the coming term can finish their course at the same date three years from now.

The attendance on Tech night school the past term, which began September 17, has been the largest in its history. There were 170 students enrolled and an enthusiastic interest in the work kept up a splendid attendance throughout the term. It is believed from inquiries already made that the coming term will even exceed the record of that which has just passed.

The coming term will last until March 1, when the spring term will follow. Where students are unable to enter for the full course arrangements have been made by Professor Nesbit for a one term course or just as many terms as the students finds he can give to the work. Classes for special work will also be held during the term and if there is any particular line of work which a student desires to follow the work will be laid out for him by the dean.

National Secretaries Will Speak Sunday at Central Congregational

Sunday morning at the Central Congregational church, Ellis street and Pryor, Rev. H. Paul Douglass, D. D., secretary of the American Missionary association, will speak on the work of that organization. The American Missionary association is one of the oldest missionary organizations in this country and has achieved great results throughout the length and breadth of the land. Probably its most important work has been the establishment of schools in the mountain regions of the south, eight academic and manual training schools being supported in the states bordering the Appalachian range.

At the evening service Dr. J. P. O'Brien, secretary of the Congregational Sunday School and Publishing society, will give an address on Missouri in lecture and story. For many years Dr. O'Brien was superintendent for this body in the middle west making his home in Missouri. He has an interesting account of the settlement and development of that state and illustrates some with lantern slides.

The public is invited to both services of the day. Mr. Leslie Hubbard will sing both morning and evening.

LUCKY CAROLINA GIRL GETS BEAUTIFUL DOLL

E. B. Wilson, an electrician who lives at the Hotel Terminal, Atlanta, will give to a little South Carolina girl a magnificent doll on Christmas day.

The doll was on exhibition Saturday at the hotel. It is thirty-seven inches high and came directly to Atlanta from Paris.

The box in which the doll is kept is electrically wired so that when it is opened tiny lights glow in the corners in a very effective manner.

Mr. Wilson will not tell who the lucky child is who gets the rare gift.

Conditions Couldn't Be Better.

"I don't think conditions could be very much better," Captain English said. "Collections are better this year than ever, and deposits have increased away above the figures of this period of last year. The cotton crop alone will put about $200,000,000 in Georgia's banks."

"I have never seen greater prosperity ahead," declared C. E. Currier, president of the Atlanta National bank. "Nearly all the clearing house banks have paid back every dollar of their indebtedness, and I know of only one country bank that renewed its note."

Atlanta bankers declare that it has been the custom in the past to pay New York back along from December to March, but this year finds the banks clear now.

"The deposits of Atlanta's banks are now higher than ever in their history," said Robert F. Maddox, vice president of the American National bank. "The banks borrowed $5,000,000 during the summer months to move the crops. They have now paid that back. The year 1914 will spell PROSPERITY, not only for Georgia and the southeast, but across the republic."

All of this property is located right in the wake of improvements now going on, in the section where the city is spending several thousand dollars. There never was and never will be a better chance to make money in Atlanta than there is in buying property at this sale. This property is enhancing in value every day, and when these improvements are completed you will see values jump on West Peachtree Street. Get in on the ground floor now. For further particulars apply to the receivers, or

Ministers Selected to Represent South Georgia Conference at General Conference—Busy Day Passed.

By Rev. W. A. Brooks.

Macon, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) The South Georgia conference opened today eager for a rapid dispatch of business, as there was at the beginning of this morning's session a very large volume of unfinished business of which disposition must be made today and Monday, in order that the conference may adjourn Monday night at the latest in order that Bishop Candler may reach Natchez by next Wednesday morning to preside at the session of the Mississippi conference.

Rev. John C. Elkins, an elder from the Methodist Episcopal, who is doing splendid service as missionary in Cuba, was received by this conference.

Delegates to Conference.

The balloting for the election of clerical delegates to the general conference was completed this morning, and the full delegation is as follows: Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, of Macon; Dr. T. D. Ellis, of Savannah; Dr. Charles R. Jenkins, of Macon; Dr. E. T. Cook, of Nashville, Tenn.; Dr. W. C. Lovett, of Atlanta, and Dr. Bascom Anthony, of Wrightsville, principals, and Rev. J. M. Ontler, of Thomasville, and Rev. W. F. Smith, of Guyton, as alternates.

The call of question twenty-two, "Are all the preachers blameless in their life and official administration?" was resumed and the pastors from the Savannah, Macon and Columbus districts made their reports.

Rev. T. B. Stanford has enjoyed a year of great prosperity at Trinity, Savannah.

Dr. T. D. Ellis has completed a quadrennium of most successful service as pastor of Wesley Memorial church, Savannah, and will be assigned by Bishop Candler to a new field of labor for the ensuing conference year.

There have been two hundred and thirty-five accessions to the church at Grace, Savannah, this year, under the proficient and progressive pastorate of Rev. J. M. Glenn.

The Waynesboro Church.

The Waynesboro church has contributed a grand total of $2,300 to foreign missions. Rev. W. K. Dennis has seen the affairs of the kingdom prosper in his hands in Statesboro this year.

Dr. W. N. Ainsworth, pastor of Mulberry Street church, this city, has had a year of phenomenal prosperity. There have been three hundred and four accessions to the church; a total of between $9,000 and $10,000 collected for the various missionary endeavors, a grand total of $19,500 raised for all purposes.

Dr. W. C. Lovett, editor of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, Atlanta, ably represented the interest of that inspiring and indispensable conference organ; as Dr. Charles R. Jenkins, president of Wesleyan Female college, Macon, the claims of that famous institution, and as did likewise Rev. J. A. Smith, financial agent of the South Georgia Conference Orphans' home, Vineville, the crying needs of that noble orphanage.

Rev. J. A. Rountree, of Davisboro, has made upwards of nine hundred pastoral calls during the year. Three young men from the Spread charge, Rev. R. J. Pollard, have been licensed to preach this year.

Major Guinn Speaks.

Major R. J. Guinn, of Atlanta, president of the Wesley Memorial enterprise, made a stirring appeal for these most worthy benevolences.

Rev. Hugh H. Harris, director of the Wesley Memorial institute, Atlanta, was presented to the body.

Mrs. George C. Thompson, of the Wesley Memorial hospital, Atlanta, addressed the conference in behalf of raising $50,000 in acceptance of Mr. Asa Candler's munificent offer to donate $3 for every dollar raised. This movement is looking toward the early erection of a new hospital building. The conference pledged its heartiest support of the enterprise. The Wesley Memorial hospital is the only hospital in Southern Methodism belonging exclusively to one church. Let all our Georgia pastors be sure to plan well for the charity patients of this hospital, as every presiding elder's district of both the North Georgia and South Georgia conferences have received this year more aid to its needy patients than was received from the two conferences last Christmas. Bishop Candler spoke most encouragingly and laudably of the work of both Memorial enterprises and the Memorial hospital. Bishop Candler declared that he has not nor ever had any interest in his brother's business enterprises, and tersely remarked: "I have no business except the business of the kingdom of God."

To Establish Headquarters.

Dr. James Connor, Jr., directed the attention of the body to the Southern Assembly grounds located at Junaluska, N. C., the great assembly grounds of our church. Dr. E. F. Cook introduced a resolution that South Georgia conference headquarters be established and a commitee of ten to carry out this resolution will be appointed.

Pierce Institute Accepted.

The conference adopted today the following resolution from the report of the board of education:

"Whereas, The board of trustees of the Pierce Collegiate institute has made tender of their plant to the South Georgia conference, therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the South Georgia conference accept the institution as its own property."

This resolution was unanimously adopted. The Pierce Institute, named in honor of Dr. Lovick and Bishop George F. Pierce, is located at Blackshear, and was successfully conducted for eleven years by the Presbyterians, under the name of the Presbyterial institute. Rev. W. A. Huckabee, so well known in educational circles in south Georgia, is the president of the institution. No institution in Georgia or the south is better located or has a more promising future than the Pierce institute.

Rev. J. L. Jerdine, a member of this conference and a missionary from Korea, spoke interestingly and instructively of the missionary endeavors in that distant land. Rev. Mr. Jerdine did not speak sanguinely of the realese from prison of Baron T. H. Yun, formerly a student at Emory college, and whose unjust trial and imprisonment have created interest and sympathy on the part of the entire Christian world.

Baron Yun is preaching to the inmates of the prison in which he is confined.

Rev. O. B. Chester, pastor of St. Luke's, Columbus, reports a good year in spiritual things. A total of $13,500 has been raised for all purposes.

One hundred and nineteen accessions have been added to St. Paul's church, Columbus. Rev. T. M. Christian, pastor.

Rev. H. C. Ewing has completed four years of acceptable service as pastor of the Methodist Tabernacle, Columbus.

Transfers Are Made.

It is with supreme regret that the conference parts company with two of our most acceptable members in the persons of Revs. V. P. Scoville, of Reynolds, and K. Read, of McRae, who have been transferred to the North Georgia conference and stationed at the Second church, Rome, and at Greenville, respectively.

At 2 o'clock today the conference body was entertained at the South Georgia Conference Orphans' home, Vineville, at a delightful barbecue served in superb style. The grounds, buildings and group of 156 orphan children at this orphanage were of deep interest to conference members and visitors.

In order to expedite the dispatch of routine business of the body an afternoon session was held today at 3:30, at which Dr. T. D. Ellis gracefully presided. Dr. John D. Hammond, president of Paine college, Augusta, made a convincing plea in behalf of negro education. A liberal offering was made for this cause.

Hon. John D. Walker, of Sparta, treasurer of Asbury Brotherhood of the North Georgia conference, outlined the plan of that organization to our body this afternoon with a view of perfecting a like organization. The conference voted as being favorable to the organization.

To Meet In Dawson.

Dr. Fletcher Walton and Rev. A. E. Sansburne, of the North Georgia conference, were introduced to the conference. Invitations to the conference to hold its next session there were extended by both Dawson and Thomasville. Dawson's invitation was accepted for 1914 and the conference will possibly meet in Thomasville in 1915. The following boards and committees made, through their presidents or secretaries, well prepared reports: The Sunday School American Bible Society, the Epworth League, books and periodicals, Wesley Memorial hospital, district conference records, Wesleyan Christian Advocate, all of which with the exception of the last, which was laid on the table, were adopted.

The Bible boards report recommends that the conference cease to levy assessments for the American Bible society, but each pastor be requested to take a collection instead for this cause; the reports also recommended the appointment of Rev. J. H. Mather, of Atlanta, as agent for the American Bible society.

George R. Neal and W. T. Knight and Rev. H. S. Allen were appointed members of the Epworth League board to fill vacancies created by the transfer of Rev. V. P. Scoville, location of Rev. P. H. Stubbs and decease of Rev. J. C. Ingram.

Conference adjourned to meet tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in a memorial. There were no religious services at the church this evening, but several boards were in session. It is now thought the conference will adjourn about noon Monday so that the ministers may receive the appointments to the labors for the ensuing year in time to catch the afternoon trains to their homes.

Summerville Election.

Lyerly, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) An election for the purpose of selecting a mayor and one councilman from each of the four wards in the city of Summerville has been called for Saturday, January 3, 1914.

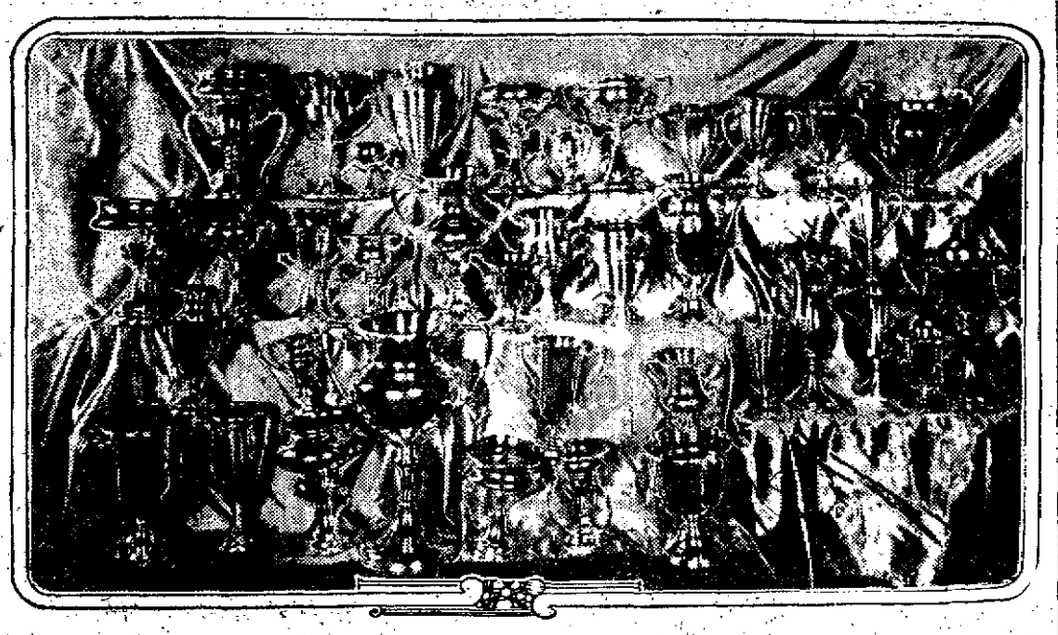
Southern International Poultry Show Opens In Auditorium Monday, With 4,000 Entries



Many beautiful cups offered as trophies at Southern International Poultry show.

At noon tomorrow the Southern International Poultry show, with entries and exhibits of over 4,000 birds, will open in the auditorium-armory, to continue day and night for the entire week.

So extensive are the exhibits that they cover not only the floor of the main auditorium, but Taft hall as well. In addition to the birds entered for competition, there will be present for exhibition purposes only scores of the finest birds in the south and many sent from other parts of the country. Some of these exhibition birds are world-famous prize winners.

For the amusement of the children and for that class of the general public which is not technically interested in poultry breeding, there will be numerous pet and freak exhibits. Rabbits of all kinds, a beautiful variety of doves and pigeons, guinea pigs, and some strange fowls that are a cross between a guinea and ordinary hen will be shown.

Interesting Exhibits.

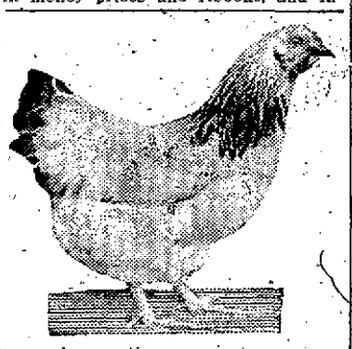
All in all the exhibits will probably be the most interesting ever brought together under one roof in the south before. The show has brought hundreds of out-of-town visitors to Atlanta, and it is estimated that the total attendance for the week will run well up toward 75,000 people.

Many Atlanta merchants are planning to follow out the suggestion to purchase a quantity of poultry show tickets and send them to their out-of-town patrons. Other large employers in Atlanta are purchasing quantities of tickets in brief that all employees may be given an opportunity to see the show. The sale of tickets will begin tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the auditorium box office and from that time on tickets can always be purchased there. The tickets are 10 cents.

The annual meeting of the association officers and directors and executive committeemen to make arrangements for the 1914 show will be held at the auditorium on Tuesday, December 4, this year.

The officers are: Will V. Zimmer, president; J. M. Karwisch, vice president; Loring Brown, chairman executive committee; T. M. Poole, secretary and treasurer and active manager. Executive committee, Loring Brown, chairman; T. M. Poole, E. F. Hunnicutt, John S. McCreight, J. M. Karwisch, Will V. Zimmer, W. S. Thompson, O. G. Ray.

The prize list this year is extensive in money prizes and ribbons, and includes the handsomest collection of cups ever seen in Atlanta. Competition will necessarily be keen.



Columbian Wyandotte Hen entered by W. L. Embry.

Entern 120 Fine Birds.

The largest single entrant in the show is O. E. McConnell, of College Park, who has entered 120 fine birds. The largest woman exhibitor will be Mrs. J. M. Hart, of College Park, who will have about 100 birds. The largest entries in the children's class will probably be the S. B. Turman children.

The judges for the main show will be as follows: George Ewald, Cincinnati; D. M. Owen, Athens, Tenn.; G. B. Young, Columbus, Ga.; Julian McCamy, Dalton, Ga.; James P. Keer, Haw River, N. C.

All are experienced poultrymen who have been connected for years with the best interests and ideals of poultry fancying in this country. The children's departments in which some handsome prizes have also been offered, will be conducted separately. The judges for the children's department will be Mr. Alf Bertling, of Chamblee, Ga., and Mr. S. J. Harwell, of Adel, Ga.

The Southern International show will be held under the rules of the American Poultry association, of which it is a member. All awards will be made by comparison. The judging will begin at 9 o'clock a. m., Tuesday, December 2.

Large Variety of Subjects.

Not only are the individual prizes handsome, but a larger variety of subjects is covered than in past years. In addition to special club ribbons by the national association and handsome silk badges by national organizations and other trophies, the following prizes will be offered:

$100 in gold for the best display of 100 or more birds of different variety exhibited by one breeder.

$50 in gold for the best display of 50 birds or more exhibited by one breeder.

$25 in gold for 25 or more birds of one variety. Bantams not competing.

The following special prizes for members of the Southern International Poultry association only:

Handsome cup for the largest and best display by a member.

Handsome cup for the best display in the American class.

Handsome cup for best display in the Mediterranean class.

Handsome cup for best display in Asiatic class.

Handsome cup for best display in English class.

Handsome cup for best display of any one breed.

The following open prizes are offered:

Handsome cup for best cock bird. Handsome cup for best cockerel. Handsome cup for best hen. Handsome cup for best pullet. Handsome cup for best pen. Handsome cup for largest and best display of 20 or more birds will be offered to each state of the union. This cup is offered as a special inducement to breeders who come from many states.

Buff Rock Club.

The Buff Rock club will meet with the Southern International Poultry association December 1 to 6, and all club members will compete for the district prize cup in addition to the five cups offered by the Southern International Poultry association. Cups are offered respectively for the best cock, cockerel, hen, pullet and pen; in addition $25 in gold to club members.

In the duck class handsome cups will be offered for Buff Orpingtons, White Indian Runners, Light Fawn Indian Runners and Dark Fawn Indian Runners.

The egg prize competition for ribbon trophies will be open to the world. Cash prizes, cups and ribbons will be given in the pigeon class.

In the Bantam class there will be handsome cups offered by the Southern International Poultry association, and also cash and ribbon prizes by the association. All standard breeds and varieties will be recognized.

In addition to the cups, cash prizes and ribbons will be awarded under the Southern International Poultry association rules for cock, hen, cockerel, pullet and pen of every known standard variety.

The Silver Wyandotte Club of America offers three silver cups and four elegant blue ribbons, to be competed for by club members only.

IMPROVEMENTS MADE IN ATLANTA THEATER

Improvements which will add materially to the comforts of the theatergoers, have been made the past week in the Atlanta theater. Most important of all has been the laying of carpeting to protect the feet of patrons from contact with the concrete floor. This work has been done in a manner which is admirable and safeguards the theater-going public at all times.

In addition to the carpeting, the management has arranged to give additional heat on the orchestra floor and during the coldest weather the theater will be comfortable. The announcement was made early this season regarding the carpets, but the adding of extra heat ducts was made only after much figuring and changing of the heating arrangements of the playhouse.

With the opening of the "Ben-Hur" engagement tomorrow night, the theater will be taxed to take care of the patronage and to keep all comfortable. The "Ben-Hur" engagement promises to be almost a record breaker, though plenty of good seats are to be had for all performances. Hundreds are coming to the city from out of town, many coming from South Carolina and Alabama.

Mount Airy Negro Woman Claims to Be 115 Years Old; Works Every Day

Mount Airy, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—Among many other claims to unique distriction Mount Airy is believed to possess the oldest person in northeastern Georgia. Samley Jackson, colored, aged 115 years, has made her home with her son, Jack Nemons, and family for a number of years, and is today one of the most active members of the family. She walks erect and with a sure step without the aid of a walking cane or other assistance.

She can see well without spectacles and hears remarkably well.

She makes fine buttonholes, does embroidery well for one of her race. She can do the washing for a large family, care for the milk, even churning and dressing the butter. Her snowy caps are kept clean by her own hands and worked beautifully as well. She is never idle and can be seen with her broom sweeping about the doorsteps and far beyond with the quickness of a girl.

OLD TIME DISTILLERY

ONE RELIC OF THE PAST IS STILL BUSY PRODUCING CORN LIQUOR IN ALABAMA

Alabama has one thing no other state has—that is, the only corn whiskey distillery of the old type so prevalent a few decades ago. In this case the seeming lack of progress is real progress, for by the old method the distiller got only two and a half gallons of liquor from a bushel of corn, and it was considered to be a generally healthful and palatable beverage.

By the newer modern method the distillers add what is known as a cooker to their equipment, and boil out the last drop of juice from the corn, getting as much as five gallons to the bushel. But the quality is said not to be so good.

This old-time distillery is busy every day turning out corn liquor for people who prefer the old-time article.

"Yes," said Mr. Moore, proprietor of this old plant at Girard, Ala., "we are satisfied to do it the old-fashioned way, because we turn out so much better article. No, we charge no more than others.

"Oh, yes, we will mail orders and pay the express, too. Of course, unless a man really appreciated an old-time superior corn liquor, we don't care for his trade, for we sell about all we can make.

"However, anybody that wants to try some of our Good Stuff Corn Liquor can send $3 for 4 honest quarts." Address Moore's Distillery, Box 28, Girard, Ala.—(Adv.)

WASHINGTON REPORTER SOUGHT BY BEN NEAL

Washington, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—With the current issue of The Washington Reporter, the only newspaper published in Wilkes county, the ownership and editorial control pass from Messrs. Ficklen and Neeson to Ben A. Neal, who for the past year has been the editor of The McDuffie Progress, at Thomson, Ga.

Mr. Neal has not severed his business connection with the Thomson paper. It is understood to be his intention to give his active attention to the editorship of the Washington paper, but will install a linotype machine and do much of the typesetting for The McDuffie Progress in his office here. The local paper will be very much enlarged and improved under Mr. Neal's regime.

The Washington Reporter was founded fifteen years ago by George C. Jones, of North Dakota, and was soon after purchased by Messrs. Boyce Ficklen, Sr., and J. C. Williams. When the latter sold his interest in the newspaper property to acquire The Greensboro Herald-Journal. The Reporter was purchased by Messrs. F. H. Ficklen, C. G. Neeson and Boyce Ficklen, Jr., who have since been its editors and publishers.

In Three Conferences President of Wesleyan Reports to Brothers

Macon, Ga., November 29.—(Special.) Dr. Charles R. Jenkins, president of Wesleyan Female college, of Macon, and generally regarded as one of the strongest young men in the Methodist church, south, must make an annual report to each of three conferences which control his college—the North Georgia conference, the South Georgia conference and the Florida conference. To whichever conference he goes to read his report he is welcomed by at least one brother, for there are five Jenkins brothers and all of them are preachers.

One of the brothers is doing itinerant work in Missouri and the others are connected with active work in one of the three conferences which control the Methodist College for Girls. All the brothers are graduates of Emory college and all of them members of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity.

G. N. & I. COLLEGE LEADS IN TEMPERANCE WORK

Milledgeville, Ga., November 29.—(Special.)—Announcement was made at the recent state meeting of the W. C. T. U. that official statements were made at the national meeting in New York last month that Georgia is leading all other states in America in its temperance work in the colleges. Incidentally it was brought out that the Georgia Normal and Industrial college, at Milledgeville, was the first institution in the state to send delegates to a state temperance meeting, the first delegation going several years ago to Savannah. And the Georgia Normal and Industrial college is ahead of all others in America in taking up the work for temperance.

REAL ESTATE THE SUNDAY CONSTITUTION'S SPECIAL PAGE DEVOTED TO REALTY AND BUILDING

NEW BUILDINGS OF ALL CLASSES BEING ERECTED BACK UP REAL ESTATE MEN'S TALK OF PROSPERITY

EXTENSION OF SPRING TO INCREASE VALUES

Grading of School Lot Already Passed Up and Committee Is Pushing Work.

What is believed to be a sure method of relieving the daily increasing congestion along Peachtree street and also of increasing the real estate values on either side will be the grading and extension of Spring street out to Peachtree road just south of Brookwood.

The street which is intended to be a boulevard for automobiles and other traffic going north will enter Peachtree road just north of the residence of A G Rhodes and 100 feet south of the F L Seeley home.

Direct connection on the street free from street car lines will thus be established between Brookwood and the terminal station. At no point on the street which will have a width its entire distance of 60 feet, do the promoters intend to have a grade of over two per cent.

Funds Needed For Survey.

At present the committee in charge of the work of which E. L. Winn is chairman, is raising funds to have an engineer survey the street and make plans for the work to be done. They have asked that each property owner along the street donate funds at the rate of ten cents per front foot of property they own facing on Spring street.

On Saturday morning members of the committee appeared before the public work committee of the county commissioners, of which Shelby Smith is chairman, and secured a promise from the committee that the school lot and its approaches at Spring and Eighteenth streets would be graded by the county by the middle of January.

The school lot fronts 250 feet on Spring street and runs back 700 feet on Eighteenth street. The grading which the public works committee has agreed to complete early in January, includes about 1,000 feet in all.

Will Grade Approaches.

Spring street will be graded between Seventeenth and Nineteenth street. Eighteenth street will be graded between Spring and West Peachtree streets and Nineteenth street will be graded between Spring and Peachtree streets.

The committee intends later to ask the county to grade the street in many other places where it is to be made level. City council will be asked to appropriate funds for paving and finishing up the work. Property owners on the street and automobile owners who will use the street will also be asked to contribute. The committee feels that many people living north of Brookwood who use their machines daily to come to the city would gladly give from $5 on up to a larger amount in order to make possible the new thoroughfare.

Ask Aid of Owners.

The following letter has been sent to property owners by the finance committee consisting of J. W. English, A. G. Rhodes and Carroll Payne. W. T. Perkerson, E. C. Peters and Morris Brandon, chairman.

We are writing this letter to advise you of our efforts to make Spring street a boulevard, one of Atlanta's most desirable automobile driveways from Brookwood to the Terminal station.

This is the main topic of interest in Atlanta's rapid advance among Spring street property owners.

Definite plans actually under way will soon make this possibility a reality and within a few months Spring street boulevard will be a fact.

The first step will be the employment of engineers to establish permanent grade plans, profiles, maps, etc.

For this purpose and for other initial requirements a small cash fund is necessary.

The committee in charge has estimated that an assessment of 10c per front foot will be ample to cover preliminary needs providing every Spring street property owner will put his or her shoulder to the wheel and help along this movement.

Therefore, we would request that you send check for the amount representing 10 cents a front foot of your spring street holdings to W. T. Perkerson, assistant cashier Fourth National bank, Atlanta, to evidence your interest in this great improvement and help defray initial expenses. Any residue from this initial fund will be used to defray expenses of actual physical improvements.

We are depending on your individual cooperation and if perchance you have sold any portion of your Spring street holdings, please advise the secretary, G. A. Martin, 602 Peters building, so I can ask the purchaser for check.

Let's all go into this work seriously and honestly and by so doing not only add to Atlanta's general good but incidentally double the intrinsic value of our Spring street holdings. Don't delay a single day and your check by return mail while the matter is fresh in mind.

Colonel Glover to Speak.

Griffin, Ga., November 29.—(Special) Colonel O. T. Glover, representative of Crisp county in the state legislature and one of the most eloquent orators in Georgia, will deliver the address at the Elks' memorial services in this city on the first Sunday in December, instead of Col. J. T. Hill who accepted the invitation to make the address, but has since declined, on account of the fact that he will be in Washington city at the time engaged in pressing duties.

ATLANTA STRIDES FROM DAY TO DAY

Buying and trading of real estate during the past week has been confined for the most part to the smaller lots and residences and, while there have been a number of these, the pieces of property valued at over $10,000 have been in the background.

Some realty men do not expect much activity in their field before the first of the year while others are going ahead on the theory that it is only those who on December 1 knock off until after New Years, who talk this way.

Two public auctions of valuable property are announced for early in December and that is sure to bring about activity and to loosen up the market. One will be conducted by Forrest Adair and will consist of valuable railroad frontage on Nelson street, the property being that of F. M. Stocks.

Steve R. Johnson will conduct an auction sale of the property of the defunct Guarantee Trust and Banking company, which includes some valuable lots and houses on West Peachtree as well as other parcels.

Edgewood Avenue Sales.

An announcement made Saturday was that by W. P. Walthall, sales manager for Forrest and George Adair. For M. E. Turner Mr. Walthall sold to A. W. Brewerton, a lot on Edgewood avenue at a cost of $9,000. The lot lies between Jackson street and the Boulevard and fronts 52 feet on Edgewood. It has a depth of 100 feet.

Announcement was also made that Brown Hayes, a merchant of Edgewood avenue, has bought from McWhorter Milner, a lot on Boulevard, for $4,000. REAL ESTATE TALK BY ADAIR

FOR A LONG time bankers were shy at recommending real estate for investment. They advised their depositors to buy stocks and bonds, liquid assets to use an expression common among financial men. What are liquid assets? Those that are easily convertible in time of need. A good example of convertible stocks is New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad stock. In 1902 this stock sold at 200. It now brings 80. Even at 80 the stock does not sell very well because everybody who owns any of it is trying to sell and there are no buyers. Yet this was one of the best railroads in the United States reaching from New York to Boston right through the heart of the manufacturing district of New England.

FROM time to time we have been placing witnesses on the stand in support of our claims that real estate is the best investment for the average man. We always try to introduce good witnesses, men of high standing, and of unimpeachable character. We put up as witnesses men in other fields besides real estate men, whose testimony is fully disinterested. You will remember that we once put on the stand as a witness Mr. Darwin P. Kingsley, president of the New York Life Insurance Co. In his statement of the earnings of this company he said the highest rate of net earnings from any asset was from real estate owned by the company. The second highest net rate was from real estate loans. The lowest rate obtained was from bonds.

THE testimony of President Kingsley is of special value because of the wide range of investments in that company's experience. It covers investments in 42 American cities, so that it can be seen that the data obtained by Mr. Kingsley is of the utmost value. His testimony was not given for the purpose of boosting real estate, but for a very different purpose. The accompanying tables showed that the New York Life Insurance company had three times as much money invested in stocks and bonds as in real estate. He gives the same old reason the same old formula that has been repeated over and over again until some people really believe it—that stocks and bonds are convertible, they are liquid assets.

NOW we have had a little experience along this line. In 1908 we were called upon to realize upon the assets of one of the largest estates in Georgia, that of Walker P. Inman. Over $600,000 in money had to be raised in order to meet short term obligations. The real estate was quickly sold, and it went up in value while it was being sold. All this was in the face of a panic. After disposing of enough property to pay all debts enough was left over to give each of the residuary legatees a half million apiece. Wait a minute. How about the corner of Broad and Luckie? It is worth half a million by itself and it is one of the parcels left unsold. The testimony of Mr. Kingsley and the evidence of the Walker Inman estate go far toward showing the earning power and convertibility of real estate. We now have another witness to put on the stand. We introduce Hon. Robert F. Maddox, vice president of the American National Bank, ex-mayor of Atlanta.

IN AN address before the Real Estate association of Atlanta Mr. Maddox spoke highly of real estate as an investment and recommended it strongly. When bankers indorse real estate that makes it unanimous. Everybody else already knew it. But bankers for many years frowned on real estate. They warned their depositors to put money in good stocks and bonds easily convertible in time of need. We can see now a picture of a benevolent banker in Boston one with side whiskers leaning back in a mahogany chair and advising a widow to buy New York, New Haven and Hartford at 200. That was gilt edge stock. Convertible ought to mean that you can get your money back any time. New Haven is liquid now at about 70. In 1902 when New Haven brought 200 the corner of Peachtree and Ellis was worth $300.

WE KNOW now why Mr. Maddox recommends real estate as an investment. Suppose he wanted to convert something into cash right now. Glancing through the list of stocks and bonds he finds that they have all gone down. Stocks formerly listed at 180 now bring 104½; bonds listed at 110 now bring 90. How about the corner of Peachtree and Ellis? Suppose he wanted something he could really convert right quick. In 1902 it was quoted at $300 any morning before breakfast. It would sell at $3,000. The bankers have seen the light just like Saul of Tarsus. Ten years ago leading bankers in Chicago recommended to their depositors and customers the purchase of Illinois Central stock. Here was a good railroad running from Chicago to New Orleans right down the Mississippi valley. The stock sold in 1903 at 200. It now brings 104. It is claimed that the last several dividends were not earned but were paid with borrowed money. The time has come when a banker cannot keep a straight face and advise a client to buy stocks and bonds on account of convertibility.

SOME STOCKS are called preferred though nobody knows why. Preferred stocks are all down in 1907. Luther Rosser bought the corner of Houston and Ivy for $10,000. That is what you might call preferred real estate. It has gone up. In July, 1902, Martin Amorous bought the corner of Mitchell and Forsyth for $30,000. He sold it in 1912 for $[illegible]. We all know what preferred real estate is. In 1907 Luther Rosser bought the Collins place at 187 Peachtree, 110 feet front, for $10,000. It went up. Quotations in that block are now about $1,500 a foot. In 1902 the First Baptist church bought from Glenn estate the corner of Church and Cain for $40,000, a tract 100x14[illegible], being at the rate of $400 a foot. That was when Illinois Central and New Haven shares were bringing 200 a share. The land went up and the shares came down, passing each other on the way.

MR. MADDOX is no ordinary witness. He has been for years an officer in the Maddox-Rucker bank, now the American National Bank. He has been mayor of Atlanta, he is a director of the Seaboard Air Line railway, he was on the committee of bankers appointed to inform the senate how to write a currency bill. He is familiar with stocks and bonds and with Atlanta real estate. He owns some of the best property in the southern states. We wish he would take a notion some day to convert it into liquid assets. It might take an hour to sell it.

MILLIONS TO SIGN PETITIONS ASKING EMPEROR OF JAPAN TO PARDON KOREAN NOBLEMAN EDUCATED AT EMORY COLLEGE

Whole World Has Been Stirred by Misfortune of the Brilliant and Scholarly Baron Yun--Bishop Candler Interested.

By Ida Clyde Clarke

Will the millions of American Christians petition the emperor of Japan in behalf of Baron Yun now under sentence of six years imprisonment for conspiracy against the Japanese government

Baron Yun is the most eminent man among Oriental Christians He is a member of the Methodist Episcopal church south which has 2 000 000 members But interest in his fate is by no means confined to the members of his own church for his great work among the people of his native land after he became a Christian has been widely recognized by Christians the world over and as ardently as he is loved by them so ardently is he hated by those opposed to Christianity

The recent decision of the Korean supreme court affirming the decision of the lower court and five other courts ends the matter so far as the courts are concerned and there is now no recourse unless the 2 000 000 members of Mr Yun's church in America and other Christians interested get on the emperor of Japan in behalf of the Little Foreign King

It may be seen at a glance that should the five thousand ministers in the southern Methodist church start and lead to petitions the number of names would doubtless soon run into the millions and just what effect such a mammoth petition would have on the Japanese emperor furnishes food for interesting speculation

Almost all of his fifty years Baron Yun has been in the limelight and his charming personality brilliant wit and scholarly attainments have made him the center of attention wherever he has been He has frequently been the storm center of stirring and dramatic events in his own land of Korea once The Hermit Nation and now known as the Miracle of Modern Missions

Master of Six Languages

He speaks six languages fluently—Korean Chinese Japanese Russian French and English When he was quite young we find him the center of interest at banquet given by Prince Min's party to celebrate a victory gained when the king granted their petition for the establishment of a postal service While the banquet was in progress a band of hired assassins burst in upon the company and there began a scene of bloody slaughter Yun fled to the American legation where he had already become a favorite with the American minister He was so coolly and tenaciously pressing on the vessel bound for Shanghai

Yun later entered an Anglo Chinese college in Shanghai where he remained for almost a student for six years and during that time he was converted to Christianity

In 1896 Mr Yun came to America and entered Vanderbilt university in Nashville Tenn later he studied at Emory college in Oxford Ga and at both places he made brilliant records His temperament attracted him to oratory which he developed to a good following and his good fellowship won hosts of friends to him wherever he went and he was easy to see that he was a bound side of fun

A Pretty Romance

A few years later Mr Yun returned to Shanghai to teach in the Anglo Chinese college Here a pretty romance awaited him a little Korean girl named Susan Isung who had been born of Christian parents and nurtured under Christian influence was organist in the little chapel The custom of Christ is not favorable to courtship but in the orient as in the Occident true love laughs at barriers and soon the wedding was announced

Dr Reid tells this story of the wedding

The wedding was unique in that it called for considerable discussion from both Oriental and Occidental customs The old schoolmates of Susie Isung and the lady guests were strictly confined to the dining room and Mr Yun and the gentlemen friends were confined to the parlors The happy couple stood in the doorway separating the two rooms each on the side representing the sex to which they belonged No sooner had the preacher pronounced the words whom God hath joined let no man put asunder than the sliding doors were promptly closed and the bride and groom parted never as such divided as could be done by a pair of heavy doors

The little bride of that evening was destined for many heart breaking experiences but be it recorded not every demand made upon her and she was in every sense a lovely and lovable Christian heroine

Miss Laura Yun eldest daughter of this marriage was born in Shanghai Mrs Yun spent some time and the younger daughter is now in school in Millersburg Ky Miss Laura Yun is at present in the Carolina college in Seoul Korea

Some time after the death of his first wife Mr Yun married a heathen Korean woman who became unto him a Magdalen after her husband's death and now lives in Korea and mourns the fate of her brilliant and unfortunate husband

Later Yun became a famous man throughout the civilized world He has had every conceivable part in all of the events that have occurred in Korea's history in the past thirty years

Story of His Undoing

At the close of the Chino Japanese war the Japanese were very active at the Korean court and each was eager to gain a dominating influence It was during these exciting days that the so called independents arose and the spirit of independence of patriotism was born in the breasts of Korean men but later died

The independents were composed of a number of young men who had been educated in the United States and returned to their native land filled with the spirit of liberty and progress They were fearlessly exposed and the corruptionists held up to the scorn of the people It was not to be expected that a crusade of this kind could long be carried on without arousing bitter enmity

The old conservative officials who had grown fat on plunder and the men who were secretly aiding until a time the designs of diplomatic agents could all block to have their deeds dragged into public view and thus put their heads and hands together to unite and finally destroy the new forces that were so persistently arrayed against them

Dr Jaison was dismissed from his post as adviser to the king and Mr Yun succeeded him as editor of The Independent

It was soon after this that a deep laid plot was formed to overthrow him and nineteen prominent men of the land pandered to the plot Mr Yun made a swift and dramatic escape and continued to write editorials for The Independent He rang this note in a plume from Africa (I am) a minister of Jesus Christ and my future business is to make men out of Korean boys

It was while discharging his duties as head of this great institution that Mr Yun was arrested charged with conspiracy against the Japanese government

In 1910 Mr Yun visited America at the urgent invitation of the board of missions of the Methodist Episcopal church south His address at Chicago on The Last a Complement to the West created a profound impression and was widely commented upon Again at Asheville at Washington and other cities he proved himself a peer

During his short campaign of about three months he secured subscriptions for his school amounting to about $50 000

court and the oppression of the people chafed and angered him It was not possible for him to remain long in Korea and withhold his hand from the efforts that were being made to bring about a better state of things

A young Korean nobleman who had fled to America and there received a liberal education and had been admitted to American citizenship under the name of Dr Philip Jaison had returned to Korea with an American bride under contract with the government to act as adviser to the king In pursuing his plan to educate the people and reform the government Dr Jaison established a weekly newspaper which he named The Independent He had also organized the young noblemen and students in Seoul under the name of The Independence club

Leader of Advance Party

Mr Yun at once became a prominent member of this club and before long a regular contributor to The Independent under the nom de plume of Ariss (one who knows) His articles attracted wide attention The paper and the club rapidly acquired influence and soon became powerful factors in the affairs of the government of Korea

Corruption and official crimes of all kinds were fearlessly exposed and the perpetrators held up to the scorn of the people It was not to be expected that a crusade of this kind could long be carried on without arousing bitter enmity

The old conservative officials who had grown fat on plunder and the men who were secretly aiding until a time the designs of diplomatic agents could all block to have their deeds dragged into public view and thus put their heads and hands together to unite and finally destroy the new forces that were so persistently arrayed against them

Speculation Is Now Waiting On Currency Bill Action

Past Was Dullest Week on Wall Street in Many Years—Business Seems to Be Quiet All Over World.

New York, November 29—(Special) The stock market recently has been duller than at this time of year in the memory of the oldest members It is true that years ago smaller transactions than in many recent sessions were current but there were fewer members then and a larger average amount of trading commissions for each At the present commissions are barely sufficient to pay the salary of the office boy, according to average transactions per member of the exchange As a whole values were a little lower towards the end of this week though earlier there had been firmness in ten of the dullest sessions of the month just closing there was a total of a little over 1 000 000 shares passed hands, while in an active single session a few years back, 1 250 000 shares was by no means a rare total for one day There were a few bullish developments, but a result of the many important contingencies being awaited little attention was paid to the very favorable trade statement showing a gain of nearly $45,000 000 in excess exports over imports for the first ten months of 1913 The gold shipments to Canada were not considered unfavorable as there is still plenty of money here for all needs even though reserves are depleted by the withdrawals

The hearings before the interstate commerce commission at Washington on the petition for an advance in railroad freight rates is being closely watched by Wall street with hopes general that higher charges will be allowed The present dullness threatens to continue however until the Mexican situation is cleared up and until the new currency bill is out of the way at Christmas time the latter will probably be cleared, but when Mexico is pacified is a puzzle to traders who cannot get any information pointing towards an answer to this question Charles M Schwab issued a very gloomy prediction as to the future of business while reports of weakness in the metal markets have cast a further shadow of pessimism over Wall street Still prices are now on such a low comparative basis when taking into account the high yield obtainable on dividend paying stocks at present selling levels, that bears hesitate to take up all the bad news they hear

Money rates have been comparatively easy, although tightening up a little towards the end of the week in preparation for the first of the month needs The main event in money circles was the movement of gold to Canada Banks there wish to have as large reserves as possible for the first of the month for what is known as window dressing There has been a total movement to the dominion of $10 200 000 so far There has also been $2 200 000 in gold withdrawn from New York for San Francisco $180,000 for Mexico and $100 000 for Haiti making a total gold movement from here in November $12 580 000 Bank reserves suffered here though not to the extent of forcing call money rates to abnormal levels

Quiet Price Over the World

Not only in New York has there been a remarkably quiet period in all kinds of speculation but in all of the old world centers, quiet conditions have prevailed in securities In metals grain and other speculative mediums the same light interest on speculative accounts has been shown in nearly the whole world for several weeks, but in cotton alone the trading has been active both here and abroad One cause of hesitancy is tight money abroad from the increasing idleness of industrial machinery with about 150 000 spindles and 10 000 looms and textile industries said to be out of employment has been one cause of lack of interest in speculation President Wood, of the American Woolen company for instance after a trip through the country reports that a business recession has started Other leading authorities on conditions have also expressed pessimistic views It has been predicted that 1 000 000 men will be idle by spring And yet in spite of all the gloomy news and gloomy signs in Wall street there seems to be good sentiment in most of the country according to those who have recently been in touch with people away from here

One unfavorable sign of poor business recently given was the showing of idle freight cars On November 1 there was a shortage of 1 843 which was turned into a surplus of 22,652 idle freight cars on November 15 At that time last year railroads were so busy that there was a shortage of 71 112 cars a difference of nearly 74 000 between the two years in the demand on freight room

The October earnings of the Union Pacific showed increases of $66 923 in gross and $278,699 in net The Southern Pacific's gross was $402 817 less than for the same month last year with net $374 956 less

Dividend and interest disbursements of the principal corporations of the country for December are placed at $112 000 000 as against about $9 000 000 less for the same month last year So far in 1913 there have been dividend and interest disbursements in excess of $1 700 000 000 with the estimates for December counted in This is about $40 000 000 in excess of the total for 1912 on the same securities figuring this year

One of the important questions to be decided in the next few days is as to whether or not the directors of the Standard Oil company of New York will take any action in initiating dividends on the next stock Over a month ago a director stated that action would be taken before the end of the year and as nothing was done at the October meeting it is thought probable that something will transpire at the coming meeting The company has $75 000 000 stock of which $60 000 000 was given to shareholders as an extra dividend last June No dividends have been paid on the new stock since It is estimated that earnings on the new capitalization are in excess of 25 per cent

Standard Oil Dividends.

It is figured that the various companies once comprising the Standard Oil company of New Jersey have paid or will pay in the next few weeks a total of over $110 000 000 in cash dividends this year exclusive of stock dividends Last year cash dividends amounted to about half the 1913 total while the largest year's dividends before the dissolution of the "oil trust" were $48 000 000 with $40 000,000 the average before dissolution The big increase this year was largely the result of a $40 000 000 cash melon by the Standard Oil company of New Jersey the former parent concern With the stock dividends at par value counted in since the dissolution of the Standard Oil company in December 1911, there has been over $30 000 000 given to holders of the shares of the parent and thirty two subsidiary companies shares not counting in the tremendous advance in the value of the securities held or given This is over 300 per cent on the old company's stock

With copper metal below 13 cents a pound doubts are thrown on the ability of the Anaconda Copper company to continue its dividends at the present rate and if further weakness in the metal continues it is thought probable that the dividends paid by that company and by the Amalgamated may be reduced Up to about 13 cents a pound for copper the Anaconda rate is safe Recently there have been sales of the metal at below 13 cents a few as low as 12¾ cents, whereas a few weeks back 17 cents was obtained Users of the metal are holding back in placing orders feeling insecure as to business conditions The statistical position of copper at the time is the strongest on record another cause of light buying is a strike of 15 000 men employed by the General Electric company which uses over 100 000 000 pounds of copper a year Similar conditions prevail in Europe

Weakness of Steel Market.

The steel market continues weak, with prices cutting going on almost daily The new prices on an average are at about the lowest level in recent years. Operations of steel mills are at about 60 per cent of capacity with orders only enough to supply about half of the plants with business at even the present rate the other half of production coming from unfilled tonnages of past months The number of men turned out of employment because of the idleness or slack operations of steel mills increases daily, with over 50 000 out of work now who were formerly in steel mills Many mills are running only two to four days a week Buying of rails for 1914 has been unusually light, while railroads are placing practically no orders for cars or locomotives Structural steel business has fallen away very much Practically no profit exists at present steel prices Moderate purchases of steel have been made in Europe for consumers here The steel industry abroad is almost as dull as here which means sooner or later a keen competition for business here under the new tariff between domestic and foreign manufacturers

Wheat has been moderately strong in domestic trading centers during the week with many bears reported to have covered their shorts and turned to the long side Firmer foreign markets and reports of losses in the Argentine crop were the chief influences Receipts continued large with the favorable weather Corn advanced moderately

Some Cotton Estimates

Cotton prices eased off during most of the week largely on the belief that the large crop idea was the correct one The ginning report showed 10 434 857 bales to November 14 on which the south sold in this market Buying for manufacturers was a sustaining feature at times but shorts pressed the market on rallies Neill Bros of London placed the crop at 14 750 000 bales Joseph Newberger usually considered accurate in his estimates placed the crop at 14 800 000 bales with 2 500 000 for Georgia 1 800 000 for Alabama 1 550 000 for South Carolina 1 000,000 for Texas and 900 000 for Oklahoma, the rest scattered

REVIEWS OF THE WEEK IN AMERICAN MARKETS

Cotton.

New Orleans November 29—This was a dull week in the cotton market The principal feature in the small amount of trading was the liquidation from both sides Early in the week longs were lightening their loads of contracts but from Wednesday on shorts were the heavier traders and bought covers for much cotton This was a supporting influence of importance

The net receipts of the week's trading were a decline of 6 points on December and an advance of 4 to 11 points on the other months The high prices were made on Friday and the low prices were scattered through the week At the highest the trading months were 4 to 14 points over last week's close at the lowest they were 6 to 22 points under The range of prices was 19 to 26 points

Tuesday was first notice day for December deliveries and notices for about 8 000 bales were issued They had the effect of driving out a large number of holders of long December contracts and put the price of December to 12 72 On Wednesday the selling continued but not in large volume and the price went to 12 70 This was the lowest level touched by any month in many weeks

Weather conditions for the week were favorable on the whole and reports from the belt were that picking and ginning were making fast progress They caused some selling on the belief that favorable conditions had lengthened the picking season and added materially to the total number of bales

Statistics of the week attracted considerable attention chiefly because mill takings were so large The takings for the week were put by Hester at 436 000 bales against 478,000 this week last year and 406 000 this week two years ago This showing increased the disposition of shorts to cover on the week-end

In the spot department prices lost one sixteenth of a cent middling closing at 13 cents against 13 1-16 last week and 13 3 this week last year Sales on the spot amounted to 7 294 bales against 7 166 last week and 5 020 bales against 7 166 last week and 5 020 this week last year Sales to arrive amounted to 8 337 bales against 11 760 last week and 4 150 this week last year

Financial.

New York November 29—Steadiness of the stock market this week, during a period of exceptional dullness indicated that unfavorable factors now discernible have been discounted Monday's dealings in stocks were the smallest in 25 years

The case presented by the railroads for the proposed 5 per cent increase of tariffs in official classification territory was considered sufficiently strong to justify the assumption that an increase was probable Commissioner Prouty's agreement with New England public service commissions to recommend an increase for Boston and Maine was regarded as another indication of good chances for success on the part of the roads In speculative estimation this is ranked as the most important subject for the market

Bad news from the steel and copper trades, reduction of railroad shop forces decreased railroad earnings and gloomy predictions from so prominent a steel authority as Charles M Schwab all had their effect on sentiment in spite of the fact that pessimistic feelings did not bring about a further lowering of stock market values October's record of agricultural exports and the heavy excess of export values offset the domestic trade recession

December settlement requirements constricted the money market Canada's large gold takings were for seasonal and temporary needs New York's assumption of money burdens protected the London market Discounts eased abroad Delay in fixing the terms of the French loan was disappointing and held back relaxation everywhere Material easing of money markets is expected after the turn of the year

Iron and Steel.

New York November 28—Smaller orders and lighter specifications forced the steel mills to curtail operations further this week by reducing the number of hours and by eliminating some days from the weekly calendar Before the Christmas holidays it is expected that the industry will be on half schedules

The rail mills were especially in need of specifications The wire drawers were also hungry for business and competition resulted in a drop of $1 per ton in all sections and $2 in the south and Ohio valley Nails are now selling at $1 90 to $1 56 and plain wires at $1 30 to $1 55 for immediate specifications Even so the largest interests have accumulated stocks of 100,000 tons Tin plate mills also are accumulating stock

Steel building work throughout the country was again light, the largest contracts being 2 000 tons for the Penn Square building at Philadelphia and 2 500 to the Bloomfield bridge, at Pittsburg Fabricated contracts in November were the smallest of the year less than 50 000 tons

The only recent railroad contracts of interest are 3 300 tons of tin plate for the Louisville and Nashville and 2 500 of angle bars for the Atlantic Coast Line In November the railroads ordered only 10,200 tons rails 2,000 cars 2,100 steel underframes 195 locomotives, 4 000 tons of structural work and 18,000 tons of track supplies

Cotton Goods.

New York November 29—Primary cotton goods markets during the past week have ruled very quiet and cotton yarns have worked to lower price levels Lack of confidence in current values was not seen as spot prices on gray cloths are holding very steady and goods do not accumulate sufficiently to induce selling pressure The lack of forward orders was the weak point in the situation and that may be due in part to the seasonal quiet, or to weaker cotton markets and a general uncertainty concerning the long future of general business.

Jobbers are still asking for deliveries on contracts and retailers have given little beyond the seasonal inkling of a lessening in trade in staples Staple prints were quiet while fancy prints for spring are growing in broader demand every week Ginghams were quiet, but steady Cotton blankets were firm and scarce Heavy goods of all kinds were steady for spot deliveries but concessions from spot prices will be made to induce late business Labor difficulties are threatened at Fall River, but have not yet affected the markets Prices on cotton ruled as follows

Print cloths 28-inch, 64x64s, 3 7-8 nominal, 64x60s 3 3-4, 38 1-2 inch 64x64s 5 1-2@5 7-8 brown sheetings southern standards, 8@8 1-4 denims 9 ounces 14 1-2 tickings 8-ounce 14 standard prints 5 1-4 standard staple ginghams, 6 3-4 dress ginghams, 9 2 4

Quits Job as Conductor To Become Crack Farmer

Captain J M Boone and blue ribbon bale at Putnam county fair

Eatonton Ga November 29—(Special)—Following in the wake of Governor Slaton's advocacy of county fairs as a wholesale stimulus to agricultural pursuits and also as an inducement to the growth of those counties in which they are held the story of Captain J M Boone and his blue ribbon bale of cotton will be one of the first not only to Georgians but to farmers wherever he was a popular conductor on the Flagler system for many years and in that capacity made many friends throughout the union as the tourists who annually visit the land of flowers

As the first chapter in the story it may be of interest to know that Captain Boone married a Putnam girl Later visit to Georgia impressed him more and more with the possibilities of this section agriculturally and soon all of the wild became stronger than the call of the siren whistles of the Flagler system and with his family he purchased a fine Georgia farm lying along the Central railway about two miles out from Eatonton and came to Georgia to live Genial and popular as a conductor he made many friends in his new home and met success with his farm

Last spring he raised the finest Bermuda onions grown in Georgia say those who know and raised them at a big profit at small cost of cultivation with a ready local market Fine poultry came in for a good share of success

Captain Boone's happiness was complete when the blue ribbon was pinned on his prize bale of cotton at the recent county fair The bale is of the Pull Not variety grown on gray land and weighs 460 pounds It is said to be one of the prettiest bales ever placed in an Eatonton warehouse Governor Slaton had to stop and take an extra look at the bale when on his visit here

Captain Boone is popular in Putnam's politics and has a son J M Boone, now taking the cruise with the Atlantic squadron in Mediterranean waters on the battleship Connecticut.

Myron Whitney to Appear Under Y. W. C. A. Auspices

Following its policy of stimulating wholesome recreation of all kinds the Atlanta Young Women's Christian association announces the coming of the celebrated concert artist Myron W Whitney who will sing in Atlanta under the auspices of the Y W C A on Tuesday December 9 The concert will be given at the Ansley hotel and tickets are now in the hands of Y W C A workers

Mr Whitney will be assisted by the accomplished little English pianist Marguerite Valentine, who won unstinted praise from the critics last season throughout the east and south when she made her introductory tour of America as associate artist with Mr Whitney

The name of Myron W Whitney has become so well known in music circles throughout America that it scarcely needs introduction For years Myron W Whitney Sr was acknowledged the greatest bass this country had ever produced In opera and oratorio his name was one to conjure with

Then his son and namesake, the present Myron W Whitney took his father's place in the hearts of music lovers and rapidly rose to the very front rank of American singers Four years as associate artist with Madame Nordica, served to introduce him throughout America and created an immediate demand for his services in concert

During his long engagement with Nordica he was often heard in recitals and critics and music lovers continually urged him to appear in concert These many requests eventually decided him and last year he successfully filled nearly one hundred concert engagements.

COTTON WAS FIRM AT CLOSE OF DAY

Covering and Scattering Buying Caused Market to Rally From Early Decline Spot Quiet.

New York November 29—The cotton market was quiet today but prices ruled generally steady on covering and scattered buying with the close firm at a net advance of to points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 1 to 4 points in response to lower cables but prices quickly rallied on denials of yesterday's bullish reports that partial returns to date of the southern status indicated a ginning of 13 100 000 bales.

Some scattered liquidation seemed to be encouraged by expectations that the annual cotton estimate of a New Orleans authority to be issued on Monday would make a bullish showing while bullishly disposed traders appeared to be somewhat impressed by reports of an increase in the amount of cotton on shipboard leaving the ports and two years ago.

The demand was not overwhelming but proved sufficient to absorb the active months at times, with net higher closing prices showing a point or two of the best. Shorts and later point.

Members of the New York cotton exchange estimate the crop will be 13 500 000 bales. The government report on December 8 will be followed on the basis of the amount for the ginning.

Gibert & Clay.

New York November 29—During the past week the local market has continued to show a declining tendency under the load of hedge selling which has in turn been followed by liquidation. Wall's offerings were not heavy the demand was not broad enough to absorb them at all times except at concessions. Below 13 cents however the demand improves and the action of the market indicates that the trade is willing to buy rather freely on this basis. Ideas as to the size of the crop are as wide apart as ever and this fact has the effect of preventing buyers from following advancing prices. Now that the early movement is being taken care of at the present level the feeling is gaining ground that the final yield must prove in excess of 14 500 000 bales in order to bring about a permanent decline.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York November 29—Apparently the absorbing of the notices yesterday was a expected by the trade; for prices have shown a steady improvement since and today on the small trading and disposition to even up at the week end undertone has been good and the close at the best. Spinners takings show well and are significant in view of the price of cotton and the decrease in trade here and abroad. Stocks generally are low and confidence is only needed to stimulate activity. Foreign advices were poor but did not effect the market here materially. Outside business is lacking trading local; a bullish crop estimate the 17th proximo is suggested and should that happen the needed stimulus may be found. Meanwhile prices do not easily yield below the present level.

New York November ?9—Apparently the absorbing of the notices yesterday was a expected by the trade; for prices have shown a steady improvement since and today on the small trading and disposition to even up at the week end undertone has been good and the close at the best. Spinners takings show well and are significant in view of the price of cotton and the decrease in trade here and abroad. Stocks generally are low and confidence is only needed to stimulate activity. Foreign advices were poor but did not effect the market here materially. Outside business is lacking trading local; bullish crop estimate the 17th proximo is suggested and should that happen the needed stimulus may be found. Meanwhile prices do not easily yield below the present level.

Railroads and Their Fight For Increase in Freight Rates

Immense Mass of Figures Presented by the Roads. Would Not Increase High Cost of Living?

New York November 29—(Special)—Even Wall street with its finished training in the science of statistics was dumbfounded this week by the mass of figures submitted by the eastern railroads in arguing the needs of a 5 per cent increase in freight rates. To the ordinary statistician the mere suggestion of arriving at the ten year average gross earnings detailed expenses assets liabilities etc of a single railroad like the Pennsylvania would be appalling. The evidence submitted at Washington this week however not only included the ten year average results of individual roads but the ten year average of forty nine separate companies treated as one system. Such a task even with the help of a battery of adding machines would never be undertaken by any one but an executive official accustomed to doing things on a big scale. Daniel Willard president of the Baltimore and Ohio and Samuel Rea president of the Pennsylvania ordered the tons and tons of figured which were dumped on the interstate commerce commission during the first two days of the hearing.

When the totals were reached Willard and Rea found themselves dealing with such items as property investment $6 280 ?71 611 gross earnings $1 386 073 429 operating expenses $984 314 319 tons of freight hauled one mile 160 000 000 000 etc.

Those figures were presented in such workmanlike shape however that it is not difficult to follow the line of argument. In brief the statements show that the forty nine railroads now before the commission own 52 5?0 miles of road was with 116 238 miles of track. Gross earnings from that mileage increased $186 000 000 for the three years ended June 30 1913. During the same period however operating expenses including taxes increased $201 000 000. That much is clear.

Railroad Betterments.

Next this week's figures show that since the request for an increase in freight rates was refused three years ago $660 000 000 has been added by the forty nine railroads to their investment in roadbed and equipment. Then the argument was driven home that despite the $186 000 000 in gross earnings and the $660 000 000 spent for additions and improvements, net operating income for 1913 was $14 000 000 smaller than it was for 1910.

Next figures were given to show that the forty nine companies had $4 300 4?? 902 invested in roadbed and equipment in 1902. $? 820 ?? 0?2 at the close of 1910 and $6 280 5 ?11 on June 30 last, with the ten year average at $5 152 092 242. It was then figured out that the net income for 1903 amounted to 5 8o per cent on the property investment to 6 28 per cent in 1910 but to only 5 36 per cent last year. The dividends actually declared last year amounted to $130 000 000 which was $19 000 000 less than the dividends paid out in 1912.

To merely state those figures argues the case of the railroads—that is that they will not be able to get new capital to make the improvements which are demanded by the public unless freight rates are increased.

Willard pointed out that the railroads had increased their gross earnings and they had increased their operating efficiency as shown by the increase in the average trainload of over 6½ per cent in three years the gross of 7 per cent in average tractive power of locomotive during the same period and the increase of over 3½ per cent in the average capital of freight cars. The increases in wages and the increase in the cost of new capital, he said could not be overcome without an increase in freight rates. Wall street doubts whether Louis D. Brandeis when he comes to present the side of the shippers will be able to wipe out the impression made by the railroads this week that they were entitled to an increase of 5 per cent in freight rates.

May Cause Higher Wages.

There is one phase of the question however aside from interlocking directorates, abnormal bankers commissions and the New Haven and Frisco disclosures which is engaging the attention of thoughtful men and that is whether a large percentage of the 5 per cent increase in rates if obtained by the railroads will not go to further increases in wages. The increases just granted in the wages of the engineers the firemen the conductors and the trainmen were granted on evidence showing that since the wage increases of 1910 there had been a substantial increase in the cost of living. If freight rates are raised there will be a further increase in the cost of living calling for a further increase in wages. That circle caused by one increase following another is behind the steady increase in the cost of capital a condition which is causing world wide complaint. Obviously the railway employes must be taught to think of wages not as money but as purchasing power. An increase in wages which does not enable a man to buy more food and clothes is no increase at all.

Beyond question the trend of events is toward out and out profit sharing. At some time in the not distant future labor will share the profits or losses with capital. That day will come just as soon as the laboring man is able to understand that he individually is paying the price of steadily increasing wages shorter hours extra crew laws etc in the steady reduction which is taking place in the buying power of his wages.

Should Save Their Profits.

That argument suggests another bit of philosophy which the idle stock ticker is bringing home to Wall street. When trading on the stock exchange this week dropped to the lowest level since 1888 more than one broker recalled the old story of the grasshopper and the ant. When times are good the profits made by a member of the stock exchange are out of proportion with those made in any other business and it naturally follows that the reverse is true during a lean period. Every stock broker knows that and yet there is not one in a hundred that takes the ordinary business precaution of laying aside part of the profits for a bull market. When the public is buying away the stock broker habitually spends money without thought of the morrow. That characteristic explains why Wall street is frequently in the dumps. Despite Wall street's present fit of gloom a number of men can be found in the financial district who firmly believed that the turning point for the better in general trade and stock market conditions is only a short way off.

During the past week Wall street has been flooded with rumors of terrible things that are about to happen. Rumors of that character invariably mark the end of a long decline in prices. It means that speculators who are short of the market are alarmed over their position and are trying to frighten investors into selling and thus furnish stocks to settle the short commitments.

CONSPIRACY CHARGED TO TIN CAN COMBINE

Government Files Suit for the Dissolution of the Concern.

Baltimore Md November 29—Suit was filed here today in the United States district court to dissolve the American Can company the so called tin can trust which the department of justice alleges controls a large per cent age of business of the United States in tin cans containers and packages of tin The American Sheet and Tin Plate company was made a defendant because of an agreement it is alleged to have with the American company to sell it tin for cans at a preferential rate

The government alleges practices in restraint of trade agreements by absorbed concerns not to reenter the field contracts by consumers to buy from the trust exclusively and arbitrary fixing of prices Attorney General McReynolds asked in the bill for a dissolution other than on a pro rata basis by asking for a separation into units of different ownership to insure the restoration of competition

The government's bill declares that the alleged conspiracy and combination in restraint of trade was entered into in 1901 by Robert Moore Daniel G Reid Fred S Wheeler Henry W Phelps William T Graham and George G McMurtry are named as active in its formation

The American Can company the principal defendant was incorporated in New Jersey with a capital of $88 000 000 and within a few months the government charges obtained control of about 100 theretofore independent tin can manufacturing plants

The government hopes to prove that for some time after organization the American Can company controlled about 80 per cent of the trade While that quantity is admitted to have diminished it is said now to be close to fifty per cent and the American company is declared to be the dominating factor in the business In agreements made with the American company by the concerns absorbed they were not to engage in can manufacture within a radius of 1000 miles of Chicago for fifteen years subsequent to their acquisition

The government alleges that the combination has at times increased the price of cans

AGAINST FRENCH HATE GERMANY IS WARNED

Former Chancellor Von Buelow Says Undying Hostility Animates French Policy.

Berlin November 29—Prince Bernhard Von Buelow formerly German imperial chancellor today abandoned the silence which he once declared he would maintain until death He does this in order to warn his countrymen he says that inveterate hostility to Germany is the soul of French policy This he declares will continue so long as Frenchmen have the slightest hope of regaining Alsace Lorraine by their own efforts or with outside assistance

Prince Von Buelow expresses the conviction in a review of German politics published this morning He points out the folly of ignoring this inbred hostility of the French and of trying to hope for a reconciliation with France on any other basis It is idle to hope for a reconciliation with France he says without restoring the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine The French determination to attack Germany whenever there is a prospect of success must continue to be a factor in the calculations of statesmen

Germany should try to maintain courteous and correct relations with France with whom she can co operate in minor questions but she should not chase fantasies nor aspire to overcome influences ingrained rancor by compliments

Prince Von Buelow does not criticize the French declaring that he fully comprehends their attitude On the other hand he criticizes indirectly the emperor's occasional holding out of the olive branch

Other parts of his statement dealt with the Moroccan policy of Germany the Bosnian crisis and Buelow's resignation of the imperial chancellorship

COWARDICE IN DOLLAR SCORED BY MARSHALL

Vice President Says Country Will Welcome Legislation to Make Dollar Brave.

Washington November 29—Refreshed by a vacation in Arizona Vice President Marshall returned to Washington tonight ready for the severe grind of the opening weeks of the new session of congress

Bankers I know and on whose opinions I really want corrective currency legislation as soon as possible said Mr Marshall They believe no time should be lost in passing legislation that will give the people greater confidence in their banking system and that will open the way for the average man to have equal opportunity with every other man in the use of capital and credit

I have no criticism of the American dollar for the luxury or comfort that may honestly be gotten from it My criticism is of the bluff and cowardice in the dollar When a time of money stringency comes the banks call in the money they have loaned because they fear they will have to pay the money they have borrowed from their depositors

The whole country should and will welcome a speedy reinforcement of the currency system that will effectually take this cowardice out of the dollar and make it a thing to be depended upon in time of stress

WOMEN WARRING ON PRICE OF EGGS

Housewives of Chicago Continue Boycott, and Aid of Women All Over Country Will Be Enlisted.

Chicago November 29—The housewives of Chicago and the egg dealers through their representatives conferred for two hours here today over the women's boycott and there was no compromise The boycott will continue The wholesalers said the high prices were due to a shortage and that the boycott might be a good thing for all concerned as the abstemiousness of the boycotters would lighten the task of the dealers who have not eggs enough to go around

To Enlist All Women

The women declared that every effort would be made to enlist women throughout the country in addition to the 100 000 said to be in the ranks in Illinois

You ask for co operation said Mrs Caroline E Bley president of the Clean Food club and leader of the boycott at one stage of the proceedings Well we would be glad to sit with you at meetings of the Butter and Egg Board

There was no response to this suggestion

Replying to a statement of John Mitchell president of the board that in the absence of official figures a press estimate of a reserve supply of only 50 000 000 eggs would give only six eggs per capita for six weeks Mrs Bley said

Your argument falls down You know there are thousands of persons in this city who have not eaten an egg in six months If the eggs will not last six weeks or until the new crop comes why don't you give them to us at decent prices We are not concerned with the shortage we are fighting the high prices which seem to be brought about by profits to four or five middlemen including speculators.

Kansas City Women Act

Kansas City November 29—A meeting of the Kansas City Housewives league at which a nation wide boycott of eggs will be discussed was called today for next Thursday Mrs W Q Church president acted on a communication from the national headquarters of the league in New York calling on members in all parts of the country to protest against the present manipulation of the egg market by ceasing to buy eggs until conditions change

8-HOUR ACT OF 1912 AND GOVERNMENT WORK

Washington November 29—Predictions that under the eight hour act of 1912 manufacturers and contractors would ignore the navy department's call for supplies and work and decline government contracts have not come true according to Graham Egerton solicitor of the navy department

In his annual report he says the act has somewhat increased first costs to the government but has not diminished competition nor increased the cost of maintenance Moreover the act has had a decided effect in the direction of making the eight hour work day more general he declares

Approval also is given to the section of the new tariff act permitting importation free of duty of naval material The solicitor says this will benefit the navy department generally and will more than offset any increase in costs resulting from the operation of the eight hour law

About one fifth of the $140 000 appropriation by congress for the officers and crews of the old Wyoming and Jamestown for meritorious and perilous services in the destruction of hostile vessels in the Straits of Shimonoseki Japan in 1863-1864 remains unclaimed probably because of the ignorance of the individuals entitled thereto Solicitor Egerton suggests that the department advertise that these benefits are open to proper claimants

Value of Free Kindergartens Discussed by Mrs. F. G. Hodgson

By Mrs. F. G Hodgson, President Atlanta Free Kindergarten Association.

The Child Welfare exhibit will soon throw open its doors to the public Those who have the interest of the child—the future citizen—at heart will welcome this opportunity for gaining valuable information and for taking stock of the local community work Those who are interested will see what the various social agencies are trying to do in this city and they will go on their way with clearer vision and strengthened heart

I doubt however if many of these social workers have given the kindergarten its proper due have assigned to it the important place it occupies in the uplift of the neighborhood or have appreciated its value as a social center —the phrase so often on our lips these days I want to highly emphasize this point, to interest readers in this phase of our work before the exhibit opens because we are giving a lecture for our benefit next week and people must understand our value

The public schools take in children at the age of 6 The years from 3 to 6 in a child's life are very very valuable and the thoughts installed in the little brains during this sensitive period will make or mar the character

The Free Kindergarten opens its doors in a thickly populated and poor neighborhood The teacher—God bless her—visits the families makes friends with the mothers and gradually collects her thirty little children After a while there's a waiting list and many anxious mothers hoping for the blessing of the kindergarten to fall on her over burdened shoulders No need to go into detail of the constructive kindergarten work here—It is the influence that reaches out into the families and the neighborhood that concerns us

The patient little teacher becomes the friend of the parents. She forms mothers clubs and you would be surprised at the interest shown in their discussions of every phase of the welfare of the child The mothers entertain the fathers in the evening at the little kindergarten home They earn money too to buy the materials, yes even the pianos are sometimes paid for by the determined mothers

The young girls are drawn into cooking classes, and this opens the way with golden opportunities to raise the standard of living in the heart of our big city where ignorance and attendant evils are manifest

All this and much more can the Free Kindergartens do for you and me for not one of us can remain untouched by the condition of our neighbors We must have more and more of these little neighborhood homes we must develop them into even more useful places We must not keep so many little souls waiting in the streets playing in the gutter We must not rest until we have gathered them all in—and we will not rest for we believe in the divine command "Inasmuch"

Therefore dear fellow citizens of Atlanta we ask you to show your interest in our work by making the most of this privilege we are offering you to hear a wonderful woman speak and to contribute something to the support of five free kindergartens whose doors are open to your unfortunate neighbor as well as to mine

Georgia Federation Leader Urges Women to Visit Welfare Exhibit

Mrs Ida Fitzpatrick president of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs has addressed an appeal to the clubwomen of the state to attend the child welfare exhibit which is to be held in Atlanta this coming week

She urges that a visit to the exhibit will not only prove interesting and educational to the clubwoman but to those who are not affiliated with organizations

The communication follows

Thomasville Ga November 8

To the Club Women of Georgia

It gives me pleasure to call the attention of the club women of Georgia to the fact that through the agency of the City Federation of Women's Clubs in Atlanta the chamber of commerce of that city and affiliating agencies the Child Welfare exhibit which was the most striking feature of the National Conservation exposition in Knoxville will hold in Atlanta from December 8 to 16 The exhibit covers in epitomized form every phase of work which has so far been undertaken by organized men and women in the interest of the child Besides the local exhibits Atlanta contributes there will be those from other cities and suggestions which will prove helpful to woman in her individual interest and that which she has in humanity at large Take an hour at least from the time you have planned to give to Christmas shopping and make yourself the present of the broad and beautiful lesson which is taught in the Child Welfare exhibit

NEWS— Such As You Read But Once In a Year Tomorrow The Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.'s

Clearaway of Suits and Dresses

Here it is, the classic of the suit and dress occasions.

Atlantans know in a measure what to expect, but they do not know how drastically prices have been cut, the absolute finality the sale lends to the suit and dress question.

Women have a right to know such news. They would not like it a bit did we not print it.

Suppose you, for one, not knowing of these prices, started out tomorrow to select a suit, and after it was too late learned what savings were possible here. Indeed, you would not like it!

So this advertisement is of mutual concern and benefit.

We shall right stocks. You shall have the choice at cut rates of suits that only the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose suit store could offer.

Is there any need of descriptions, should we attempt to word this huge collection of suits and dresses that are as right as fashion itself in this good season? We think not.

The character of Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co.'s ready-to-wear through the regular season stands out boldly.

These suits and these dresses are those that have given it character, have set it above and apart from the rest.

Assured, then, of so much style, of that charm, chic, verve that reduced prices alone could not give to the woman who is in the least particular, the story of tomorrow's event is complete when you know the little cost of things, the fine economies you shall enjoy.

$18.75, $21.75, $25 and $29.75 Suits, now $12.50

$33.50, $35, $39.75 and $40 Suits, now $17.50

$42.50, $45, $50 to 55 Suits, now $25.00

The rich and exquisite "Novelty" Suits including velvets that were $50 to $85, now Half-Price

Note: It is pertinent to add that in this greatest disposal of the season there are suits of a far greater diversity than any individual would care to look over. It is catholic in its scope. There are sizes for the woman of stout figure—there are misses' sizes. The shades you know to be favored this season are the prominent ones. There are plenty of black and blue suits, there are the smartest of trimmed suits and the trimmest of smartly tailored suits; notable among the latter are the Max M. Schwarcz suits, for which we are the exclusive Atlanta agents, now $25.00. Women of discrimination will readily appreciate a sale that brings the REAL Max M. Schwarz suit at $25.00.

The Dresses

$25.00, $29.75 and $31.75 Silk Dresses, Now $14.75

$35.00, $40.00 to $50.00 Silk Dresses, Now $23.75

$25, $35 to $45 Velvet Dresses, Now Half Price

When the Big 14-Inch Guns

of Uncle Sam's superdreadnoughts boom the lesser roar of small guns is as nothing. So with sales—the clatter of things done in a little way is dimmed, and the odium that attaches to comparisons gives place to the common sense of saving.

This sale brings to the women of Atlanta and vicinity greater economies (collectively and individually) than any similar sale the year knows.

Are you going to miss your share?

They may be termed street and afternoon dresses. Also they may be termed exquisite creations with all the Americanized Parisian chic that master makers could impart. To list the fabrics and colors means to list those most favored right now—the Canton crepes, the crepes de chine, the brocaded crepes, the charmeuses in mahogany, greens, blues, tans, purples, wistarias, etc. Wonderful styles! But we will leave all those wonderful effects of lace waists, of bold plaid girdles and rich embroideries to your eyes.

Been waiting for such a sale?

Then do not delay a moment in the morning.

Diamond Gifts Never Lose Their Charm

Diamonds never go out of style. A diamond is always a diamond—always King of Jewels—always fashionable and a diamond gift at Christmas distinguishes the recipient.

For the woman who admires beautiful jewels a Haynes diamond ring is the best gift.

No more exquisite present can be secured than a diamond ring and the Haynes name on the little casket that bears it gives an added prestige and pleasure to its arrival

The word Haynes certifies purity, fashion and skill in the jewel that goes out under our endorsement.

This year we have on exhibition in our new Louis XVI. store, built for the Southland's Christmas, what we believe is the most elaborate collection of jewels ever gathered this side of New York. Among them are rings from $20 to $3,000. Rings bought now will be safely kept in our vaults until any day you name for their delivery.

Will you pay cash, or have them charged?

When we tell you that the store doing a cash business economizes for you by a saving of at least 1-3, oftentimes 1-2, we are not indulging in the prevalent pastime of making claims—we're ready to "prove up."

There are no bad accounts—no slow pays—no extra bookkeeping, and the expense of maintenance, added to the cost of the merchandise.

Then, why not pay cash?

Shall we co-operate with you, giving you the fullest measure of value on a cash basis, and making Christmas more enjoyable by the facts that——all your purchases will then be paid.

—there will be no cause for worry over the "January," so sure to follow.

—no uncertainty as to the charges, so easy to accumulate, exceeding your limit.

Put our claim to the test—we know comparison of values and point by point will prove it.

All May Be Fair in Love and War; Depends On Who Is in Full Retreat

FELLOW WITH BULLET IN HIS HEART THINKS NOT

By Isma Dooly

The setting is different sometimes it may be within the din and turmoil of the big city always out there in the mountains where not even the whistle of a train is heard it may be in the orchestra of the big department store it may be just a quiet heart to heart talk but going on as surely all the time as the break of day the hues of the moon and the twinkling of the stars is the little drama of the every day attraction as it is expected it ought not to be and people smile when they say of it as they always say All is fair in love and war

This drama generally enough is by a cast of three with lots of chokers chaperons and spectators generally ends with the principals satisfying themselves that no matter what part in it they have taken they have done the right thing it is settled by the ubiquitous All is fair in love and war The leading of the drama is the person who does not believe it—who stands first for his or her own feelings in the matter—who arises to the height of claiming that he has a right that the person who gave rise to the idea of the fairness of all in love and war is a criminal who selfishness has done much to wreck the happiness of the human family

WHY SHE NEVER MARRIED

There are those in the fast flying world who still cling with romantic touch to the tradition why one of the greatest of English novelists has never married It was not because she had not offers not because she has not loved but she became a victim of people who believed that philosophy of manners All is fair in love and war Rather than be the bone of contention of people who believed that she was the right man who chose her and who was the best and the time for happiness and dominion

In this particular case the battle was decided and the novelist returned to her villa in Italy where under the glow of Italian sunsets she might celebrate the happy event surrounded by her friends She counted a few up of them Unluckily in the number was a pretty young Italian actress The latter was duly presented to the novelists fiance the most trusted of trusted at the moment

There were moonlight serenades tete a tetes in perfumed arbors at the subtle hour of twilight meetings in the rose garden when the flowers were dew kissed and we know the rest The countess and the prince felt overcoming them that interest—that attraction people talk about but can never define They could not help it and the tragedy came when the countess pledging everlasting fidelity to the fiance of her friend was discovered in the moment of tender profession

The betrothal house party ended and the literary world of two continents put their pens aside and began to discuss the ethics of it They fumed and gossiped and grew emotional over it and arguments for and against the countess and the inconstant lover would have filled volumes It all ended however when pretty shoulders shrugged under lace straps and manly heads wagged and all left themselves to the frivolous refrain 'All is fair in love and war

HER FAULT OR HIS?

When the countess realized what was happening that she was becoming too fond of her friends lover and he or her ethics demanded that she remonstrate with him that she remind him of his obligation to the woman to whom he was betrothed instead of sitting with him in the moonlight and allowing the rippling waters of Lake Como to inspire on the new passion aspired one good woman

And another It was lack of force of strength in the man he was the one to blame he should have withstood the charms of the Italian siren stood by the promise he was under with the woman who believed in him and married her even if it wrecked his life

SHOOT ME IN THE HEART

You did it, you know you did I challenged the young offender

It was awful disloyal and you will be punished for it, and you ought to go and make a clean breast of it to your friend Go and point to your heart and say Shoot me there, I am conscious of the great wrong I have done you but I saw she loved me—and if he don't shoot you before you get any further then you deserve the girl

It seemed to me this was the ethical thing to do but the young man who has the essentially masculine spirit looking again on the pretty face picture with the pinched conscience asked blandly

Wouldn't it be better if she told the man the truth Women can do those difficult things so much better than men can and they are more merciful in their method

I was busy and not being able to accept the opinion of an expert I suggested that he my erring friend should act let things go on for awhile as they were and that maybe the man being so ruthlessly deceived would make a discovery for himself and that maybe right nobly he would say I see things as they are bless you my children go and be happy together

For the first time in the course of the interview the young man became really alarmed The thought that matters might be worked out in this easy way, that the cornered problem might be solved without any trouble whatever and the whole romance appear to lose interest The moment he eased to be in his own mind the disloyal friend and sub rosa lover the moment he found himself no longer dramatized he forgot the girl with pretty face turned to his desk with its piles of work and I believe that dear little girl is on the verge of having to marry the man she is engaged to I did not mean to deprive her of hidden sweets I was only trying to adjust matters when I said all might be well but the young man would have preferred going on doing what he believed was wrong and lying to himself wickedly and nonchalantly. All is fair in love and war

BRACELET WATCHES

The beauty of our selection threatens to make this the leading novelty in the holiday buying.

Altho' we must give some credit to the becoming and practical nature of the vogue.

Some are wonderful expressions in Diamonds and platinum, but those, too, in gold, are very tempting.

$100,000 Production

A 3-reel extra Multiple Special Vitagraph, which is positively the greatest railroad drama ever shown. A railroad wreck is actually shown on the screen, depicting a head-on collision of a runaway locomotive with another train filled with passengers. The fearful reality of this scene beggars description. It is not our custom to run pictures more than one day, but the demand to see this will be so great that a second day will be neeessary.

THE USE OF CHRISTMAS CARDS

Never in the history of the development of social customs have Christmas Cards been so much used as they are today.

The custom is almost universal and is extending each year a fact that is natural, when it is remembered that this is the least expensive and most delicate means of conveying our share in the sum total of Christmas happiness

While ready made cards for this occasion are offered for sale at many places, these are not so much in demand now as those which are specially engraved Cards for Christmas Greeting should express one's individual taste in as great a degree as a cordial personal greeting and this can only be accomplished through the medium of a card engraved in accordance with your own taste in arrangement and artistic effect

The most satisfactory results can be obtained by consulting the J P Stevens Engraving Co 47 Whitehall street Atlanta who will send samples of the very latest style—send today so that the work can be made up for you in ample time —(adv)

To Overcome Winter Complexion Troubles

(From Woman's Tribune)

If the chill air causes your skin to dry and scale or become unduly red or spotted before you go to bed spread a thin layer of ordinary mercolized wax over your entire face Remove next morning with warm water This is the ideal complexion treatment for the winter girl The wax gently absorbs the dead particles of surface skin so gradually there's no discomfort This gives the underlying skin a chance to breathe and to show itself In a week or so the new and younger skin is wholly in evidence and you have a really matchless complexion Naturally all the defects disappear with the dissolved cuticle—no chaps roughness blotches pimples freckles blackheads sallowness Usually an ounce of mercolized wax procurable at any drug store is enough to renovate even the worst complexion

Wrinkles need bother you no more if you'll use this simple face wash Powdered saxolite 1 oz dissolved in witch hazel ½ pt Just one application will affect even the deepest lines and soon your skin will be smooth as a child's —(adv)

EACH RAILROAD WILL ISSUE OWN MILEAGE

Pending Action of High Court, Interchangeable Books to Be Abolished in Georgia.

Pending the final adjudication of the case by the supreme court of the United States, the railroads of Georgia will conform to the decision of the state supreme court and pull mileage on the trains but they will cut out the interchangeable mileage books

Hereafter every traveling man will have to have a mileage book for each road upon which he travels In doing this the railroads are following the same course of action taken in South Carolina after the courts upheld the legislation that mileage should be pulled on trains

Attorneys for the roads have reached an agreement with Judge J R Hines attorney for the railroad commission whereby the decision of the superior court of Fulton county as reversed by the supreme court will be held up for thirty days before being officially promulgated This will give the roads time in which to have printed individual mileage books

At the end of that time the separate mileage books will replace the interchangeable mileage now on sale It was Judge Hines opinion that this would apply to penny scrip as well as to the regular form of mileage books

NOT ENOUGH OFFICERS TO MAN THE WARSHIPS

Note of Alarm in the Annual Report of Rear Admiral Blue.

Washington November 29.—The number of officers now in the navy is not sufficient to man all the fighting ships in the event of a war with a foreign power is the declaration made in the annual report of Rear Admiral Victor Blue, chief of the bureau of navigation made public today He urges that congress enact legislation providing for a gradual redistribution of officers in the various grades to obviate a condition that is growing worse

Admiral Blue points out that there now are 1 000 officers of the grades of junior lieutenant and ensign as compared with 700 officers above these grades, and that at the present rate of promotion of forty each year the junior ensign reaches the grade of lieutenant at an age at which officers are now promoted to be captain

Letters to High Schools.

Admiral Blue says a circular letter is being sent to the principals of high schools to ascertain if the examination for admission to the naval academy is such that the ordinary high school student should be capable of passing Members of congress also are being aided in their selection of candidates by the naval medical officers who conduct unofficial examinations of boys bearing letters signed by the members In this way it is expected to detect physical defects before the regular academic examinations affording opportunity for cure before the boy presents himself at Annapolis

Recruiting for the navy last year was unsatisfactory until June when there was an unprecedented number of enlistments a large part due to the approaching European visit of the battleship fleet The enrollment of a naval reserve is strongly urged It is pointed out that the authorized peace strength of the navy of 1 000 men is far short of the number required to put into active commission all of the naval vessels

Dependence of Navy

The main dependence of the navy must be upon the men who have honorable left the service after one of two enlistments Many thousands of these men are now in civil life and should be enrolled in a national reserve and given a short period for drill upon ship at stated intervals

There should be included in the reserve ex officers of the navy yachtsmen and officers and men of the merchant marines as well as those at set faire occupations The bureau has already established an oath of the national reserve which has obtained pledges from 600 men to enroll in an organization is provided by congress

Statue of Dr. Gorrie to Go In National Hall of Fame; Inventor of Ice Machine

By S. A. Martin.

In the times when necessity was the mother of inventions and discoveries the south contributed two that are regarded as the most important in the history of the world One was the discovery of anesthesia for producing artificial sleep by Dr Crawford Long, of Georgia, who has been honored by this state having his monument placed in the hall of fame in Washington The other was the discovery or invention of the process for making ice This discovery was made by a Florida man Dr John Gorrie at Apalachicola in 1850, and that state will in January place its seal of honor on her most distinguished citizen by placing his monument in the hall of fame in Washington Both the discoveries of Dr Long and Dr Gorrie were made during researches in the interest of humanity

Dr Gorrie was born in Charleston, S C October 3, 1803 of Spanish parentage say those who knew him although his daughter says he was of Scotch Irish descent He gave early indication of extraordinary intellectual powers and was prepared for the study of medicine in the schools of Charleston and in New York He went from South Carolina to Apalachicola in 1833, which was then an important seaport it being the outlet for all the cotton grown in the Chattahoochee valley in Georgia and Alabama

The greatest drawback to the growth of the town was the prevalence of fever in summer and Dr Gorrie found it difficult to treat successfully violent cases of fever during the hot months and he evolved the theory of cooling the air in sick rooms and in hospitals for fever patients He worked upon his theory to convert water into ice artificially by absorbing its heat of liquefaction with expanding air and he was successful in building a small machine that not only served his purpose of pre-cooling the air in rooms but it also made small blocks of ice about the size of bricks

Make Sure Title.

This was in 1850, and his letter patent No 8080 dated May 6 1851, with a description of his icemaking machine given make sure forever his right to the title of being the first person in the world to make artificial ice

Dr Gorrie had by this time become one of the foremost physicians of the country and so advanced were his theories on the treatment of fever cases with the pre-cooling process that he was regarded as a crank and his icemaking plan was ridiculed

Undaunted however he practically gave up his practice and devoted his whole time to his icemaking machine and expended much money in an effort to perfect a machine that would make ice in large quantities

He was not successful in raising funds with which to perfect his larger machine and as a result of that disappointment he became despondent to the degree that it affected his health He died June 16 1855 at the age of 55 During two days that his body lay in state throngs of people viewed his body and his funeral cortege was the largest ever seen in Apalachicola His body rests in the city cemetery of Apalachicola

Two children survived Dr Gorrie a son and a daughter The son died in 1867 the daughter was twice married the last time to a Mr Robinson who has since died She and her three children who now live at Milton Fla are the lone surviving Gorries

Not a Penny Reward.

As fate'll as it appears to have been inventions in those days Dr Gorrie never received one penny reward for his icemaking machine neither has his daughter who says her sole support of herself and children is teaching

Statue of Dr John Gorrie, which will be placed in Hall of Fame in Washington

After the death of Dr Gorrie no icemaking machines appeared until ten years later when an inventor in France produced one that had the earmarks of the Gorrie machine A Frenchman who had assisted Dr Gorrie in perfecting his machine had returned to France and it is presumed assisted in the production of the French machine ten years later

The wonderful contribution made to industrial science by this great Floridian was overlooked by the south for a long time In a few technical works due credit was given him for his invention but so far as the public was concerned he was forgotten until Captain George H Whiteside an ice manufacturer of Apalachicola in 1890 launched a movement for the erection of a monument to Dr Gorrie Each member of the Southern Ice exchange was urged to contribute the proceeds of one ton of ice to the fund and on April 6 1900 the monument of bronze and about five feet high was unveiled in Apalachicola Mr T A Rashury, publisher of Ice through his magazine has been instrumental in giving wide publicity to Dr Gorrie

The 1911 session of the Florida legislature appropriated $10 000 for the erection of a marble statue of Dr Gorrie to be placed by her in the statuary hall in Washington C Adrian Pillars of Jacksonville is the sculptor and he announces that the statue will be ready for unveiling in January

CONFEDERATES WOULD ACCEPT U. S. PENSIONS

So Declares J. H. Shelnutt, Denying Statement Made By Mrs. White.

Emphatically denying the recently-published statement made at the U D C convention in New Orleans by Mrs White, to the effect that a "great majority of the Confederate veterans would not accept a pension from the government," J H Shelnutt of Atlanta, an ardent confederate, declared yesterday that practically all the veterans would accept such a pension

He takes the position that the United States government owes it to the south to grant pensions to the confederate veterans and that those who wouldn't accept would be few and far between

"I unhesitatingly say that it would be a very small minority indeed that would not accept pensions said Mr Shelnutt "First because we believe that it is due us for more reasons than one second, because soon after the war the national government enacted laws giving pensions to all the disabled union soldiers thereby putting a tax upon the whole people that now amounts to between $15,000 000 and $20 000 000 annually and the southern states have paid their pro rata share unmurmuringly for nearly fifty years again because of the enormous load that the south has been carrying in trying to educate the millions of negroes turned loose upon us by the government and because of the tax laid upon southern farmers in the years following the war amounting to between $60 000 000 and $100 000 000 which the supreme court of the United States has held was illegally collected from the south and which the national government was holding illegally

We feel that we are really not asking the national government for one penny continued Mr Shelnutt but that we would only be receiving what rightfully belongs to us Now if congress should reimburse the south for what has been illegally collected from us the state of Georgia's pro rata part would be between $10 000 000 and $16 000,000—enough to make decent pensions for all if it could be paid into our state treasury to increase the confederate veterans pensions now being paid

We again say that we don't feel there is any humiliation in simply asking for our own with the United States owing this debt to the southern states And if the government will give to each confederate veteran a sufficient pension for the remainder of his days—and it will be but a few brief years at any rate before they will all have departed—then I say let the United States keep the illegal tax collected after the war and wipe out this debt by the payment of pensions to the veterans of the confederacy.

COMMITTEE HOPES TO SELL MILLION STAMPS

Active Campaign For Sale of Red Cross Seals Begins Monday.

With the splendid organization which will begin its active campaign with the opening of December the hopes of the Atlanta Red Cross Christmas seal committee for the sale of

The 1913 Red Cross Christmas Seal It is printed in red and the center in white ing in green

1 000 000 seals in Atlanta and vicinity this year will be sold

The first work beginning this week will be the organization of the business women Atlanta under the direction of Mrs John O Bidwell who has consented to take charge this feature of the work She will be assisted by Mrs George Scarlett who was chairman of this committee last year

Mrs Bidwell has called a meeting of the business women of Atlanta to be held in the rooms of the Young Women Christian association Courtenaie Wednesday Penchtree at 6 to 8 p m Tuesday December and earnestly requests that every Atlanta business woman who can possibly do so will attend Sh will have a sufficient supply of the seals for all who come

The business women will take charge placing the seals in all of the business offices of the city The work is a difficult as well as important one but this year it will better organized they are expected to double the amount realized when they attacked it last year when they had only short time

The committee is also arranged to have a Red Cross Christmas seal booth at the Child Welfare exhibit during the whole time the exhibit is open and is anxious to have a number of young ladies interested take charge of this booth as it is believed a large number of the seals can be sold there

Sales on the Streets

The sales on the streets and in the big stores will as heretofore be in the hands of many of Atlanta's most charming and most popular young ladies These have volunteered for the work this year in larger numbers than ever before and where it was difficult last year for the average citizen to get by the women with a button hole it will be doubly difficult this time

This the real big feature of the campaign will fall directly upon the work of the business women and thorough and effective plans for it are now being made

In addition the work of the young ladies the Atlanta boy scouts under Philip Weltner have volunteered their services for the month of December The scouts rendered valuable assistance last year in the anti tuberculosis campaign and this year they are stronger and better organized than ever A substantial reduction is expected from them

Another effort is to be made in behalf of open air schools for Atlanta This work is in charge of Mrs J Wade Cocklin and it is hoped to add materially to the fund in hand which now amounts to $700 This fund was raised through the sale of seals by Atlanta school children and not sufficient in itself for opening the school an appeal was made to council at that time could not find the money for the purpose and it hoped to be deterred It is hoped to add sufficiently to the fund this year to establish and maintain one open air school for a period of one year

Postoffice Requirements

There are just two simple rules laid down by the postoffice department for the benefit of business men mail matter and if these rules are followed there will be no trouble or delay whatever in connection with the transmission of such mail

The first of these rules is that no seal can be placed on the front or address side of the package If placed on the back side of letter or package they will be fully cancelled with the requirement and all difficulty will be avoided

The next rule is that on all mail matter addressed to foreign countries only whether first class or otherwise upon which the seals are placed full postage must be prepaid

If these simple rules are borne in mind and it is also remembered that there are only three countries in the world which forbid the use of the seals—Austria Portugal and Norway—mail matter will experience no delay whatever so far as the seals are concerned

Business firms and individuals are coming to find not every use to use the seals on their packages and on stationery but during the month of December it means every seal sold a boost for the vigorous campaign that is being waged against tuberculosis

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Keep Her Locks Dark, Glossy, Thick.

The old time mixture of Sage Tea and sulphur for darkening gray streaked and faded hair is grandmothers treatment and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage

Nowadays, though we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy for about 50 cents a bottle It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time by morning the gray hair disappears but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive besides prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair

GET READY FOR RAIN; IT IS DUE HERE TODAY

Embellishments and minutiae for today However it will be slightly warmer than Saturday on account of the fact that the wind will blow from the south during the early part of today instead of from the west where it brought chills Saturday to the thousands who thronged the down town streets

The rain is coming in a storm which broke over Texas yesterday New Orleans was belched on Saturday and the disturbance is expected to reach here on its trip up the Mississippi valley some time today

Atlanta will not suffer alone in the wet The whole state is due for a drenching as is Alabama

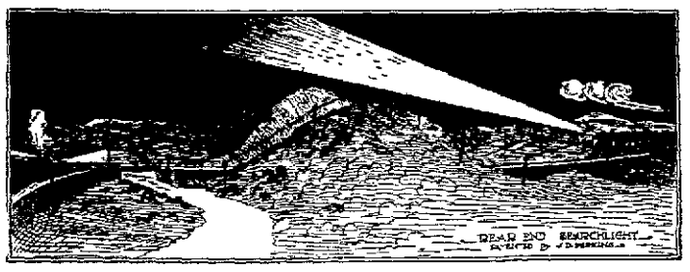
Atlantans Patent Device To Prevent Collisions



REAR END SEARCHLIGHT, PATENTED BY J D PERKINS

The cut shows a new device recently patented for the protection of trains from rear-end collisions

A lamp of powerful reflecting power is placed on the stoop of the rear coach and so arranged as to give warning to following trains for a distance of about two miles regardless of curves cuts or timberland

The intention is to place one of these lamps on the rear end of each train that is liable to be operated after dark The lamp is to be lighted from the same source as the lights in the coaches This then enables the engineman on a following train to see the warning in ample time to avert a collision

It is evident that some safety device for the protection of the rear end of trains is essential for with all the improved block signals and flagging these collisions occur almost weekly and are often very disastrous Had this device been in service there are a number of recent serious wrecks that would in all probability have been avoided

A device of this kind has been needed for a long time and it is a great wonder that something of the kind has not been put in operation before now as railroad travel is rapidly increasing and there is a constant demand for appliances for the protection of the traveling public

At the last meeting in Savannah Ga of the Association for the Education of the Georgia Mountaineer $100 was voted to the Tallulah Falls school for mountain children this school owned and maintained by the Federated Women of Georgia In a report of the meeting appearing in the Savannah Press the following interesting facts are given

The association moved to send to the Tallulah Falls school which is called the federation school $150 this amount to apply on next year's work for the school Several months ago the sum of $50 was sent to this school making the donation to the school $200 Other donations were sent to a school conducted at White Springs near Columbus This was sent through Miss Craven who had asked for assistance A most grateful letter of thanks was read from Miss Craven for this donation at the meeting today Other amounts were sent to the Rabun Gap school

The association has done a wonderful amount of work along educational lines and the annual report will be one filled with interest to those who are interested in educational work throughout the state Since the organization of the association only a few years ago nearly $3 000 has been expended in scholarships and assistance to the rural schools in the mountain districts This is a remarkable showing for one organization and as the people of the other clubs are beginning to see the excellent work accomplished by this association they will lend their aid in every way to further this most needed work of educating the children of Georgia to make good citizens of this our Empire State of the South

Edwin H. Blashfield, Artist, Lectures on Mural Decoration

Pleading for a wider latitude in artistic decoration of homes public buildings and institutions and broadly hinting that only the artist—trained to know what is best in art—can be the judge of paintings decorations and examples of the brush Edwin H Blashfield, the nationally known mural painter addressed the members and guests of the St Elizabeth's guild of St Luke's church Saturday afternoon, in the ballroom of the Hotel Winecoff

Mr Blashfield's lecture was followed by a display of stereopticon slides representing the best in mural art throughout the world

The lecture was an understandable talk on the work of a mural painter, and the problems confronting each effort to depict allegorical or historical scenes

Theory and Practice.

Mr Blashfield said in part

Mural painting is a combination of theory and practice A mural decorator simply guesses at proper decoration He finds that his problem resolves itself into properly and artistically decorating a given wall space inside of a room His picture must fit the given space He is unlike the man was painter unable to pick and choose his background It is already laid out for him, even down to the inches

The first consideration a mural painter takes into reckoning in his scale or in other words, what he shall place in his space and how large his figures—if figures are to be used—are to be Charcoal sketches are made at the studio and these sketches are cut out just like paper dolls and pinned to the wall of dome space to be painted I have made as many as six sketches or models in doing one piece of work before I ever went into colors or color schemes

Then comes the question of detail I once found that too much detail entirely spoiled one of my murals in that after I had painted the face of a female figure I found that from the ground the features could not be distinguished — they were only a blur I learned by the experience to wield a broader brush—to deal in impressions—not detail

Approaching the question of colors and color use the artist finds his greatest problem It is truly said that a mural is only at its best during a few hours each day—when the sun strikes it at a proper angle This is true as is witnessed in the Sistine chapel where some of the masterpieces there are gloomy and dark and entirely blank so far as inspiration goes when the sun is in the east But when the sun turns on its westward voyage each day and strikes these murals the effect is glorious

Try Out Colors Repeatedly.

Therefore, each artist must try out his colors repeatedly before he finally selects that combination of pigments he will use I have covered many square yards of ceilings for instance with colors to find that after the work was half done it would all have to be done over again

If anyone were to tell me that colors for any piece of decorative work could be named before the decoration were attempted I would have to disbelieve them

Then the actual work of making the picture after design size and color had been determined is reached

A person cannot call in an artist and just say Put this room in red—that one in blue and put a picture here or there There is too much of that sort of thing An artist must be left to do what is his opinion is the best thing in the way of decoration, and money must be the last consideration to enter into such a proposition.

Mr Blashfield then entered into a general description of his work on the Congressional library dome in Washington, and the problems that he faced in doing that work His auditors were very attentive, and enjoyed his talk immensely, if applause is a gauge

The altar piece of St Luke's church, just completed by Mr Blashfield is considered one of his masterpieces The decoration, which is directly above the altar at the church, is called the "Good Shepard The actual work done on the painting has consumed the better part of the last two months

The magnificent painting is the gift of the St Elizabeth's guild of the church to the parishers

WAYCROSS ALDERMAN WILL SUE FOR LIBEL

Waycross, Ga., November 29—(Special)—That he would immediately bring suit against a morning paper of this city for libel was the statement made public today by Alderman Beaton, one of the candidates for mayor The action proposed by him by based on a page advertisement appearing in the paper today occupying a position contracted for by the Good Government club

The advertisement deals almost entirely with the position of Alderman Beaton on the prohibition question, and contains a statement to the effect that breweries are willing and have so offered to contribute as much as $25 000 to aid Beaton in his campaign

Beaton denies an such campaign fund condition, and says it is ridiculous The manager of the paper informed Beaton he was not responsible for the advertisement Beaton declares he will hold the paper as much responsible as the Good Government club

"AWAY ABOVE EVERYTHING"
Flying Across the Continent

SWEEPING across the Continent like a huge eagle, a Wright aeroplane safely carried Calbraith P. Rodgers in his world-beating flight from New York to Pasadena, Cal., "lighting" at Tournament Park November 4, 1911.

Rodgers tripled the longest continuous flight in the history of aviation. Although 59 days were consumed by the trip, the actual flying time for the 4,231 miles covered was 4,924 minutes. The longest single flight was 133 miles through Arizona.

For more than 50 consecutive days, Rodgers was "Away Above Everything." For nearly 50 continuous years, Lewis 66 Rye has been "Away Above Everything."

"Away Above Everything"

Rodger's record sooner or later will be beaten, but the record of Lewis 66 Rye NEVER will be eclipsed. It's the accepted "Standard Whiskey of the South."

OR THEIR MILEAGE THEY RAISE HOWL

ongressmen Sore on President Wilson For Depriving Them of Perquisites—What Mileage Means.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, November ...—(Special.)—The statement of Representative Thomas of Kentucky in the house last week that he intended congress should adjourn so that he could draw his mileage, which both he and his creditors needed, has attracted much amused interest. "I want my mileage because I want it" was the naive explanation of Mr. Thomas.

With most of the members of congress mileage is a petty gram but with some it is a considerable item. It goes far toward meeting expenses. Each session an allowance of 20 cents a mile one way has been made for each senator and representative for the round trip from his home to Washington.

As there will be no adjournment of the special session, for the reason that it begins on December 1, there will be no extra mileage allowance. That is to say, members will get only one round trip allowance for the special and one for the regular session.

Means From Grabbers.

It is the special session bug bugaboo that has the mileage grabbers here been getting louder and louder moans. Chairman Fitzgerald of the house appropriations committee said a month ago that probably there would be no adjournment because the boys are making pretty hauls for their mileage. Finally, a real agreement was reached that an adjournment would be taken today. That would leave in the members a couple of weeks to go to their respective homes and it would have given them their extra mileage.

However the best laid plans of senators and representatives so often go wrong that they rarely ever come to pass. Woodrow Wilson the moment word was carried to the white house that congress would adjourn today so that the president could have the money to increase mileage made up his mind that he would not consent to any adjournment of congress. Such would ill become the public business spirit in order to give senators and representatives an extra mileage allowance.

Champ Clark was raised it once on a tall hill but it availed nothing. Leaders in both houses specially that president of them if necessary that the only thing for them to do was to yield as gracefully as possible. Therefore they indicated that the idea of an adjournment had been rational. Mere than a few of the leaders like Senator O'Gorman of New York now declare that in the future there will be mileage grab that is easy in comparison with the votes that voted each for and the press will be relieved of the heavy traveling expenses to his home in Washington instead of being given 20 cents per mile one way for the amount per mile each will admit of saving over and above actual traveling expenses. Such will be proposed as one of the economy reforms of the Wilson administration and there is little doubt that it will go through.

If You Were in Congress

Now if you were a member of congress from one of the far off states and had been enjoying a mileage pick-up of anywhere from $1 to $4 000 a year wouldn't you be inclined to be peeved toward President Wilson? Very likely you would be. But Washington observers are rapidly coming to the conclusion that getting peeved with Woodrow is the proper thing to do nowadays.

The president certainly has congress where he wants it. He has made it up, he does not have to run for office and each member of congress is his own man. The chief executive has intimated that if congress does not adjourn it will be in session about eight months before the next congress. Theodore Roosevelt never dreamed of doing as many things as Roosevelt is supposed to have done. Impeachment is the only thing that will stop the president now and that is not likely to stick. The national legislature.

The president has created many precedents in the business of congress. He is submitting his message in writing by messenger. Congress did not like the way Taft submitted his message. Wilson sent it by messenger. Congress did not like the way Roosevelt submitted his message. Wilson sent it

DISTRICT REPORTS

First District

The number of clubs in the first district has increased from five to nine since the last annual meeting. The new clubs are the Savannah Federation of Women's Organizations the Kensington club of Savannah and the Women's Civic club and the Woman's Home Culture club of Savannah.

It is to be hoped that the first district will not [illegible] it should be now [illegible] district meeting, but we have plans for one in the near future. Consequently I have not been able to send reports to the chairmen of the [illegible] prize essay contest, household economics study units and the Junior Civic League of the nine counties in the first district only three are represented in the state Federation—Chatham, Jenkins and Screven. I do not despair of [illegible], for other counties in the district [illegible] there is the hope of a club in Statesboro Bulloch county.

The State Association for the Education of Georgia Mountaineers is still active in its great work of furnishing its funds to the mountain schools in Georgia. At its last meeting held a few days ago the board voted another amount—$5,000—to the Tallulah Falls school.

The Association of Jewish Women of Savannah continues to maintain its free kindergarten with great success. Besides giving a scholarship to the Kate Baldwin Free Kindergarten. They meet weekly for the study of religion and history.

The Young Women's Aid of Savannah secured last April their connection with the Margaret Reid Home circle of King's Daughters in their work amongst the tubercular patients of the city and turned over to the circle $1250 which they kept in a separate fund for that work. In addition they also furnish all the supplies in the loan closet [illegible] the visiting nurses. The Young Women's Aid are now formulating plans for [illegible] philanthropic work this winter.

To quote the secretary of the Registered Nurses Association of Savannah: "We feel we can do so little along specialties of education but we must be content to do small things in a club like a nurses club which has more or less limited state of work."

The Women's Club of Miller has given to the Tallulah Falls school [illegible] students and funds and toward the support of a girl in the domestic science department of the Blackley school at Clayton. They have raised them by [illegible] issued every attractive booklet containing the program of the literary meetings.

On the beloved president Mrs H C White came to Savannah [illegible] at our request to assist in the organization and stirred us by her deep devotion to the work of the state federation. The efforts of this Savannah organization up to this time have been solely in the direction of civics and though only eight months [illegible] themselves in numbers have proved themselves [illegible] student support in all important measures.

The kindergarten of Cobbs has been [illegible] and [illegible] has grown has been steadily and strong and we are glad to welcome into our federation.

Thursday's business meeting is to be given over to the [illegible] of the kindergarten bill through the state legislature during the past summer.

Two clubs in Sylvania were organized and join the state federation in June with the Woman's Civic club and the Women's Civic and Junior Civic League of the nine counties in the first district only three are represented in the state Federation—Chatham, Jenkins and Screven. I do not despair of [illegible], for other counties in the district [illegible] there is the hope of a club in Statesboro Bulloch county.

AMONG The PLAYERS

Vernon Wallace, Leading Man, Was Once Local Office Boy

Fourteen years ago Vernon Wallace was office boy for an Atlanta newspaper. Today he is leading man with the Jewell Kelley company, which is playing at the Bijou theater. And while fourteen years seems a long time it doesn't appear to have made even a dent in Mr. Wallace's youthfulness.

He's had lots of experience in his profession since he left Atlanta and this is his first appearance in his home town as a professional actor. For six years he played in and around New York, and a metropolitan engagement is one of the things which actors, be they young or old, look forward to with mingled feelings of pride and elation.

Since he left Atlanta, Mr Wallace has been with Viola Allen in "The White Sister," Maclyn Arbuckle in "The Round Up," and a dozen other big companies He also has had considerable experience in the "movies"

It was while working for an Atlanta paper that he heard the call of the footlights. He had been singing in St. Luke's choir, in fact, was soloist, and went to Macon to join a company. Most of his worth then was as a singer. Later he returned to Atlanta, but the lure of the stage was too much and he joined another company

He went to the public schools here, having been a pupil in the Edgewood Avenue school Although he never went higher than the sixth grade, he is marvelously well equipped in the matter of education. He has studied the languages, read all the standard authors and spends most of his spare time in company with a French grammar, Latin grammar or some other work that appeals to his fancy.

"I realized quite early," said he last night, "that if I expected to make any headway in my profession I would have to equip myself mentally for the work. I have always liked to read and I had the good fortune to care more for the standard authors than for the efforts of the flash-in-the-pan novelists I know my Shakespeare thoroughly I have determined to learn as many languages as possible I am partial to French and I'm learning Spanish German I shall take up as soon as possible Of course, I am kept pretty busy with two performances a day, but I have learned to burn the midnight oil and I get rest and recreation reading my favorite books after my night's work at the theater is over."

Since joining the Jewell Kelley company, Mr. Wallace has appeared in some excellent parts and has already become a prime favorite with Bijou audiences.

The Political Rights of Women

MRS. MARY L. McLENDON, Editor

President Georgia Woman's Suffrage Association

THE W. C. T. U. AND WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

I was disappointed in finding the two columns devoted by The Atlanta Constitution to the woman's suffrage department filled last Sunday by something entirely foreign to that most interesting subject

Inquiring, I learned that the office cat, the gopher or some other equally responsible body, had disposed of my Sunday's message to the Woman's Christian Temperance union of Georgia. The W C T U in the ten free states, and in the territory of Alaska, have accomplished a great work in aiding the woman suffragists to secure the ballot for the women, regardless of "race, color or previous conditions of servitude"

I reminded them that Rosalind, the Countess of Carlisle, president of the world's W. C. T. U, has all along avowed her belief in the right, the justice and expediency of giving the ballot to all women, and of her daughter, who represented her noble mother at the ninth triennial convention of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union, held at Brooklyn, N. Y., October 23-28, 1913, and also of the Hon Jeffrey Howard, son of the Countess of Carlisle, who had come over to America with his sister to show how he honored his mother and sister and the great cause which they represent as officers of the world W. C. T. U He said, "The work you are carrying on in this country is absolutely in common with that which we in our politics are trying to put through in our country," etc

I told them of the franchise demonstration which showed the progress of "Votes for Women" in foreign countries, how Rev Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage association, and Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the International Woman Suffrage association (both of them prominent women in the national W C T U), made strong speeches in favor of equal rights for women. But I did not tell them that our own Mary Harris Armor, whom Mrs Lillian M N Stevens, president of the national W C T U introduced to the vast audience as "The Georgia breeze and cyclone," and how OUR MARY excelled them all in making a strong and convincing speech in favor of woman suffrage

Mrs Armor is a member of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association and it is not impossible that she will do telling work for the enfranchisement of the women of Georgia in the very near future Very soon The Union Signal will give a report of that marvelous suffrage speech of Mrs. Armor's and I hope all our women will read it carefully

Suffrage at the Convention.

Time was when the words "woman suffrage" were not to be mentioned in a W C T. U convention in Georgia. Not so today The women are getting used to the sound and do not "shy" as in former years The pastor of the Methodist church in Bainbridge told the members of the Georgia W C T U they could do and say anything they desired in that church Twenty-three years ago we were told not to mention woman suffrage in a house of the Living God, that it was rank heresy and not to be tolerated

The Georgia Woman's Suffrage association sent fraternal greetings which were received with thanks and appreciation and ordered spread upon the minutes Hon Seaborn Wright announced himself as being in favor of woman suffrage, and declared the women would have to enforce the law, for the men would not. A motion was made to add the franchise department to the plan of work, as it had been for years, in all but six southern state unions, and it was defeated by fewer votes than it had ever received against it in the past when a similar motion had been presented. The signs of the times indicate that it will not be long before the six southern states will fall into line with the national W C T U. Perhaps it will come next year, when the Georgia W. C T U will hold its state convention in Atlanta, two days before the national comes to Atlanta

"The world do move" and Georgia must move with it and if the W. C T U wishes to finish up its business it must get a move on it

What Leaders Said.

Mrs Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the World's Suffrage association, declared at the W. C. T. U world's suffrage demonstration. "I have learned that the greatest enemy today of the enfranchisement of women is not ignorance, is not stubbornness, is not prejudice, but is the legalized government-protected saloon system" Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Suffrage association, on the same occasion, declared: "We all know who our foes are, the foes of your organization are the foes of ours. It does not matter whether it is the church or the Woman's Christian Temperance union or any other group working for reform, our foes are one and the same. We can count them all, we know them all and we see that the great mass of them are the people who are engaged not only in the business of the liquor traffic, but every business which fattens itself on the virtue and integrity of manhood and womanhood, the destruction of the home and the prostitution of boyhood and girlhood. The time has come when all women must combine to ask that we have that power which is mightier than any other force in the world to bring to pass in our government those things which are best for all."

These women belong to the W C T U and their statements are worthy of credence Frances E. Willard, the greatest leader the W. C T U. ever had, declared we could never have national prohibition until all the women of the United States could help the good men to vote the liquor traffic out of existence.

Prohibition Victories in Illinois.

The Union Signal tells us that twenty-two Illinois cities and towns were carried by the drys Thirty-one counties in that state are now entirely dry. Women went to the polls in large numbers and voted dry in about the ratio of four to one

That is the way the women of Frances Willard's state voted. How she rejoices if permitted to know all that is going on in this world.

The unfinished business of the W. C. T. U. is to make the whole world dry, to outlaw and destroy the deadliest enemy of the home and all its loved inmates.

"Votes for Women" Will Make This Possible.

The suffrage clans will gather in Washington, D C, November 30, and remain in session through December 6, and will appeal to the United States congress to make it possible by enfranchising the women as the negro men were in 1869

May God hasten the day!

Labor Supports Suffrage.

Labor organizations and leaders are coming out for woman suffrage all along the line John Mitchell, speaking in Butte, Mont, said recently "Women should have the right to use the ballot for their own protection They say that the place of women is in the home I grant it But we face the fact that in this country there are 5,000,000 women compelled to earn their own living These women should have the right to use the ballot in their own protection On all the great moral questions that affect the home, the great mass of women will vote right They will make mistakes The men have made mistakes but we can't lose anything by letting the women have a chance"

Voting at Home.

The new election laws of Wisconsin and South Dakota have spiked one anti-suffrage gun inasmuch as they provide for the mailing of ballots by men unable to go to the polls Men physically unable to go to the polls certainly cannot go to war, as the opponents of woman suffrage claim all voters should be able to do. In fact, two guns are spiked, for if voting by mail is legal, mother can register her will without leaving either the baby or the baking

Suffrage Situation in Canada.

Woman suffrage is making progress in Canada. Four years ago the Canadian press was practically closed to the question of suffrage Today there are few, if any, Canadian papers which do not discuss it. As a measure of the rising tide of discussion all over the Dominion, the formation of an anti-suffrage society in Toronto is significant Toronto has six suffrage associations Ottawa, Fort William and Port Arthur each have live societies and several other places in Ontario have the beginnings of such In Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, the marriage disqualification for the municipal franchise has been removed Woman suffrage bills were during the last session before all the provincial parliaments of Canada, except in Quebec, where the existence of two nationalities makes the work difficult

Teacher-Mothers and Mother-Voters.

The court decision in the case of Mrs Bridget Peixotto a teacher-mother, requiring her reinstatement in the schools, invalidates the ruling of the New York city board of education that a married woman teacher shall be dismissed after absence on account of the birth of a child As Mrs Beatrice Forbes Robertson Hale observed: "If absence is permissible on account of nervous prostration, it should be permissible for maternity, since as between a convalescent neurasthenic and a healthy mother as a daily companion for the school children the choice would seem clear."

SURE WAY TO END RHEUMATISM

Ease Stiff, Sore Joints and Muscles. Makes Pains and Backache Promptly Vanish.

"Most all rheumatism is due to one cause—weak kidneys," says a noted authority. The kidneys become clogged up, get sluggish and filter or strain out only a part of the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, all the rest remains in the blood and circulates through the system, where it lodges in the joints and muscles, and causes all the trouble

The only way to overcome this, is to make your kidneys work properly You can easily and surely do this by taking a little Croxone, which never fails to act promptly

Croxone not only cleans out the clogged up kidneys, strengthens them and makes them active, but it neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous waste substances, and uric acid, that scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism, so the kidneys can filter it from the blood and drive it out of the system.

Croxone is believed to be the most remarkable preparation ever known for the prompt relief and cure of rheumatism, kidney troubles, and bladder disorders It is entirely different from other remedies It is so prepared that it is practically impossible to take it without results Relief follows the first few doses and you will be surprised how quickly stiff, sore, swollen joints, and muscles, rheumatic pains, and all such misery ends

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and every druggist recommends and sells it on a positive money-back guarantee Three doses a day, a few days, is often all that is needed to overcome the worst backache or most annoying urinary disorders.

The International "Ben-Hur."

(At the Atlanta.)

Pomp pageantry and magnificence mark the movement of Lew Wallace's great drama Ben Hur, which will be the offering at the Atlanta theater one week commencing tomorrow evening, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

All the Roman plays and biblical dramas of the past decade have had their hearing and are laid away, but Ben-Hur goes on without a hitch and is still the most successful spectacular drama of the American stage. The Young Men's institution of General Wallace's great book has been seen by more people than any other play and although it is now in its fifteenth year, it will continue to be the foremost production of the kind for many reasons to come.

Reasons for the wonderful hold this play has on theater goers and on the public generally are easy to seek. In the first place Ben Hur is a great play. It has romance, adventure, vengeance, triumph and it ends to engender in the public mind a thirst for amusement, and aside from these theatric qualities it has a great invitation to the mind of women who seldom if ever visit the playhouse more clearly than any printed word set forth the power of Christ to draw all men to him does this play exemplify this superhuman fact and the dignity, and the reverence, the spiritual quality with which the power of Jesus are shown is almost beyond the ken of ordinary man The presence of the living Christ is never boldly paraded before the eye, but it is suggested by almost impalpable bits of action and dialogue The exaltation of the final scene, where in the population of Jerusalem is awaiting the coming of their long expected King without the knowledge of the Holy City chanting Hosanna to the Son, them is impressible Even in this supreme moment the personal presence of the Nazarene is saved and the curtain falls with the shining light of His presence full in the eyes of the audience All that relates to the religious element in the story is treated with the utmost respect and reverence and ministers and the churches generally have indorsed Ben Hur as a great lesson for the lover of Biblical lore

The dramatic side of the story has been no less carefully considered

Among the members of the fine company assembled to present "Ben-Hur" in this city are Thomas Holding, who has the title role Arthur Linden, Walter M Shewin, George Sydenham, Leslie Stowe, Theodore Hardy, Noel Leslie, Cassius C Quinor, Edmund Lee, Virginia Howell, Muriel Godfrey-Turner, Marie Condon, Roberta Brennan and Frances Van Wilkens.

It is well to bear in mind that the curtain rises on the evening performances of "Ben-Hur" promptly at 8 o'clock and at 2 o'clock at the matinees, and that no one will be seated during the prelude which shows the appearance of the star of Bethlehem to the Three Wise Men and which should be seen by all who would thoroughly enjoy the performance of "Ben-Hur"

"The Argyle Case."

(At the Atlanta.)

The production of any play in which Robert Hilliard appears is a theatrical event of special significance He is one of America's best actors with fine technique, sure, authoritative method and distinguished personality "The Argyle Case," which he presents under the direction of Klaw & Erlanger at the Atlanta Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week achieved instant success during its wonderful six months run at the Criterion in New York last season

Quite unusual interest attaches to The Argyle Case because of its authorship in which are associated Harriet Ford playwright, and Hulbert J. Higgins the story writer The had the co-operation of Detective William J Burns, who directed the development of the mystery precisely as if it were a real life case brought to his office for investigation Burns, who is personified by Mr Hilliard, and his men work along the lines that Burns would follow with his own operatives Yet there is no attempt to treat of political or industrial issues or graft or celebrated cases in which Burns has become a conspicuous figure. The processes employed in tracing the criminals and incidentally, breaking up a dangerous band of counterfeiters are logical and accurate Apart from the dramatic quality of the play, it is interesting to obtain an insight into the inner workings of a big detective agency where the tangled clues to a crime are straightened out and a legal case established against its perpetrators

"The Argyle Case" which is a detective play and not a "crook" drama requires a large cast of some thirty characters including people of polite society, criminal investigators and underworld types It has been staged by the well-known director Gustav von Seyffertitz, who also plays the part of a German scientist turned counterfeiter Among the other well-known people associated with Mr Hilliard are Edwin Holland Joseph Tousy, John J Pierson, W T Clark, Bert Walter, Harvey Clark, Charles Morrell, W C. Van Brunt Fred Russell, Robert Newcombe, Olive Oliver Stella Archer, Agnes Everett Elizabeth Eyre, Wanda Carlyle and others

"The White Slave."

(At the Lyric.)

Bartley Campbell's picturesque play "The White Slave," begins an engagement at the Lyric theater commencing this week

The author of "The White Slave" wrote numerous plays, but in no other play of his did he live so close to human nature as in his ideally beautiful interesting and entertaining story of the sunny south before the war There had been many dramas before this about the slavery question Mrs Stowes "Uncle Tom's Cabin" had won fame all over the world, and Boucicault's "The Octroon" was said to be even a better play It was in 1882 that Bartley Campbell set to work to improve upon the effects of these masters. Having in his earlier days lived in the south he had become acquainted with the manners and customs as well as the geography of the land of cotton This knowledge he used to splendid advantage in "The White Slave"

The heroine Lisa, is a white girl of high parentage but it is in the admirably created mastery with which he surrounds her birth and the intricate circumstances which throw her into slavery that the author has won the admiration of the theatergoer To have the virtue of a young and pure woman assailed after she had been made to suffer for the sins of another is to a play a heart interest, without which no play can hope to survive

In "The White Slave" there is romance which develops through many exciting and pathetic scenes The escape of Lisa and her lover from the plantation at Osceola, the destruction of the Belle-Creole in mid-stream and the capture of the fugitives on Red Devil island are the features of the play while the cast selected for this elaborated revival of "The White Slave" is in all probability, the best since the original production and no expense has been spared to make this presentation one of the dramatic events of the present season so that "The White Slave" will have a new interest for those who find keen enjoyment in seeing it over again.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

Determined to make the Forsyth busier and more popular than ever in its glorious history, the management has put together for this week a program that will be one of the greatest offerings that has ever been staged in the theater Acts of distinguished importance here and abroad are under contract for appearance, and the program has been so arranged that there will not be anything conflicting with anything else, there will not be too much of one good thing and not enough of another, all along the line of entertainment from the first act to the closing number there will be something of keen interest and unusual worth The star feature will be Miss Orford and her wonderful elephants positively the greatest headline act at this time identified with Keith vaudeville

The elephants are not the ordinary circus performers doing the old and worn tricks that have been seen by every generation since the first trained exhibited elephants but this trio under the skillful direction of a pretty maiden, will perform a series of feats that will be a wonderful entertainment The elephants have been the special attraction on the Orpheum circuit for thirty weeks and are en route to New York from New Orleans In New York they will play an engagement of twenty weeks before sailing for the other side to be a special all season feature in one of the great cities of the old world Miss Orford handles three elephants Each has been thoroughly drilled in some special feature and that the act will duplicate the success that was scored in all of the large cities of the west is a sure prediction

Charles and Fannie Van, with the assistance of Fred C Van, will offer their newest edition of their famous vaudeville sketch, "From Stage Carpenter to Actor" There is no better act in vaudeville in the laugh winning department Charlie Van is the sort of comedian who makes friends quickly and his two helpmates are thoroughly as capable of entertaining The sketch is positively one of the best in vaudeville and will have much to do with accomplishing the idea of the management to make a new attendance record for the busy theater

Everybody who has become acquainted with vaudeville remembers Miss Norton and Paul Nicholson, the clever legitimate comedy players, who came into vaudeville two seasons ago They play a dramatic cartoon written by Miss Norton and it is one of the most successful hits in vaudeville The young people have taken headline honors on a number of bills and here in Atlanta will win favor

The Vivians, the really interesting sharpshooters, who have just finished a complete tour of the world, showing the people of every city in the world what can be accomplished with a rifle revolver and shotgun, will present what promises to be one of the most pleasing numbers on the bill and a hit as well

Ward and Weber, the singing and dancing comedians, well known and well liked wherever they have been introduced, will add to the value of the show and a pleasing feature will be the first appearance of Miss Ruth Pove, a talented young comedienne, who has made a New York hit and who has been given a contract for a tour of forty weeks

The show is one of the strongest that has yet been billed for appearance at the Forsyth

"Fine Feathers."

(At the Atlanta.)

Very seldom is a theatrical success achieved such as has been scored by Fine Feathers Eugene Walters dramatic masterpiece, which H H Frazee produced with an all star cast last season and which broke all attendance records during an entire years run at the Astor theater, New York, and the Cort theater, Chicago This play, with its remarkable cast intact, has been booked for a special tour of the principal cities, and local playgoers will have an opportunity to see one of those rare things—a genuine original all star cast in what has been pronounced the biggest drama of the generation The engagement is for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week

There has not been a single change in the all star cast of Fine Feathers since its opening night, and local audiences will see this notable drama with such actors as Wilton Lackaye, Robert Edeson Max Figman, Rose Coghlan, Lolita Robertson and Lydia Dalton—sufficient stellar material to [illegible] a half dozen dramatic successes

Press Feathers judging from the New York and Chicago reviews, is the dramatic sensation of the day Written by Eugene Walter, author of "Paid in Full" and "The Easiest Way" it surpasses that author's former efforts It is a play of modern times and modern conditions, discussing problems that are familiar to the average household It deals with the question of how to make the weekly income keep pace with the growing demands upon it For his characters he has taken people from life, and he has given them lines to speak which, according to Ashton Stevens, the able dramatic critic are no less than inspired

With a play of this sort, acted by the very aristocracy of the American drama, playgoers can easily conceive the wonderful performance that results.

"Nobody's Claim."

(At the Bijou.)

Melodramas with special scenic effects have always been amongst the most popular productions, and the announcement that the Jewell Kelley company will offer the coming week one of the biggest scenic melodramas of its repertory has caused unusual interest in the play, and the advance sale for Monday night promises the biggest crowds that have gathered any Monday night so far during the fifteen weeks' engagement The play scheduled for next week is Holden Brothers melodrama of the western gold fields, entitled "Nobody's Claim" It is the story of a villain Robert McWade, who murders old man Brentz in order to get possession of a rich gold mine, but the deed to the claim is lost, and the mine is always known as 'Nobody's Claim," as no one had, since the death of old man Brentz, been able to prove possession Madge Brentz, the daughter of old man Brentz and heir to the property, is a stumbling block in the ways of Robert McWade, and he goes to any length to try to get rid of the rightful heir for possession of the mine The play is one of the strongest melodramas full of sensational features, with wholesome comedy thrown in, and the various scenic effects, especially the flight of the Frisco express through the Bitterwood cut, will be amongst the most sensational that have been offered at the Bijou in many weeks The entire company will appear in this play and, judging from the splendid success that the play has had in other cities, it will prove to be one of the big winning cards of the stock company. Matinees will be given daily at 2 30, and Monday night ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by an escort holding a paid thirty cent ticket, purchased before six o'clock.

Columbia Theater.

"By the Sad Sea Waves."

For the week beginning with matinee at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon Charlie Gramlich will be featured at the Columbia burlesque theater in a catchy musical burlesque called "By the Sad Sea Waves," supported by a capable cast and the Broadway Broilers chorus of twenty This vehicle is said to be the best produced in New York last year Not only does it teem with interest and rapid-fire fun, but gives broad scope to the company Special new scenery and costumes, and ten tuneful musical numbers and an olio of three big acts give indication of a high-class production in every respect

At an enormous expense, the management of the Columbia has secured the great Red and Gray Eagle Indian act Red Eagle is a famous Sioux warrior and scout He was induced to leave the Sioux reservation to go into vaudeville with his squaw, Gray Eagle The act is one of daring and dexterity, consisting of lariat throwing, arrow shooting and Indian dances and pastimes. It will be positively the first and last appearance of the act in the south for the reason that it has been booked for a long metropolitan run and a tour of Europe.

Three other high-class acts will round out the Columbia bill.

THE FEDERAL PRISON

Whether the astounding and persistent attacks on the federal prison at Atlanta are actuated by malice sincerity or sensationalism they have reached the stage where they can no longer be ignored. In justice to the management and in justice to its accusers the facts must be revealed. There is only one effectual method by which this end can be accomplished. That is for congress, immediately upon the assembling of the regular session on Monday, to designate and send here a committee that is absolutely impartial to investigate and demonstrate the truth or the falsity of the charges.

Innuendo and personal assertion and rumor have gone far enough. It is time for the truth.

The origin of the present situation constitutes an amazing chapter in the penal history of this country. Up to a few weeks ago the new federal prison on the outskirts of Atlanta bore an unblemished reputation. It frequently had been ranked by unofficial and unbiased experts as one of the model penal institutions in the world. The efficiency of its management was proverbial. Accusations of cruelty or oppression had never been whispered. The treatment of inmates was assumed to be human and irreproachable, the discipline firm but kindly. As a specimen of a rehabilitating penal machine in full operation unhampered by raids and unspoiled by harshness it was the subject for admiring comment by not only people in and around Atlanta and visitors from outside the state but as well by distinguished foreigners who had crossed the sea to study its system.

Then came the release of Hawthorne and Morton and with it automatically a cloud burst of accusation. These men themselves admitted they had enjoyed the best of treatment personally. But they represented that less fortunate prisoners were subjected to privations and tortures. Siberian in their ferocity and medieval in their premeditated cruelty. Diet was scant and poor they said. Discipline was brutal. The spirit of insurrection was rampant. Men came out with spirits crushed. If the matter had stopped there it would have created relatively little comment being dismissed as the vaporings of the average disgruntled convict who has fallen from a high station in life. But the insinuations were caught up and amplified by minor witnesses and former employees and ex-convicts. Almost every day brings some fresh rumor of horrors and inefficiency frequently traced back to discharged guards.

Significantly Warden Moyer was himself the first to demand a searching investigation of these charges. He courted inquiry. And he did not lack for friends. For every former inmate or employee that attacked him there was another to testify to his ability and to his humaneness. Those Atlantans whose errands of business or mercy sent them at frequent and unexpected intervals to the prison were among his staunchest defenders.

The department of justice has not dignified these charges by a formal investigation. But for the sake of the reputation of the institution in justice to Warden Moyer and in justice to those criticising him the policy of non action must be abandoned.

It must be disclosed whether these tales are hatched in imagination and set going by malignancy or whether they uncover faults so glaring that it would be criminal to ignore them.

So let congress act and start the investigation at once!

Let us have the truth!

THE ARGUMENT OPENS.

Expression on any subject from Judge Samuel B. Adams of Savannah carries interest and importance. One of the leaders of the bar in Georgia and a man whose receptivity is tempered by wonderful poise, his counsel on any subject is clear cut and illuminating. These qualities are typically illustrated in a communication published elsewhere in this issue in which Judge Adams views with apprehension the spread of the propaganda for woman's suffrage.

Judge Adams believes that for political historic and physiological reasons it is unwise to extend the vote to women. He thinks they would be the ultimate losers in an even more pronounced degree than society in general. Even the advocates of the movement will be impressed with the strength and the sincerity of his presentation. It is tolerant, well reasoned and good natured.

Before universal suffrage gains meridian we shall hear much of it pro and con in this section. We need all possible light on the subject. And Judge Adams is among the best and most sincere light givers in the state. His views carry weight for their very sincerity.

Replying to Judge Adams Mrs. J. K. Ottley of Atlanta will deal with the question in next Sunday's Constitution.

Mrs. Ottley in response to The Constitution's invitation to present the other side consents to do so with the understanding that her motive is not to be misconstrued as advocating either militant or emergent methods. She is in no hurry about making the issue in Georgia, believing that woman's suffrage will come in due time and as a matter of right. She will discuss only the principle involved in the issue in her answer to Judge Adams, holding that as a matter of right God has given man no exclusive prerogative at the ballot or anywhere else. As to the expediency of making the issue in Georgia now or later—that is not the point with Mrs. Ottley.

At any rate the discussion is on, and the first two installments—from Judge Adams today and from Mrs. Ottley in next Sunday's Constitution—will make a brilliant opening of the argument from both standpoints.

TUBERCULOSIS SUNDAY

Sunday, December 7, has been set aside as Tuberculosis Sunday by the American Anti-Tuberculosis association. On that day the propaganda against the great white plague will be preached from every pulpit in the land. Newspapers will contain compact articles on treatment and prevention. From every angle the fight on the great cost decimating influence in civilization will be waged with precision and emphasis.

In the past twenty years the attitude toward tuberculosis has undergone a radical change. Folk were formerly either criminally indifferent to the disease or needlessly panic stricken by the specters it conjured. These qualities have been replaced by a calm assurance that the disease is curable when taken in time and by the even more potent reliance on that if proper measures are instituted the world-wide infection can be wholly stamped out in a specified length of time. The old method of practically imprisoning consumptives and smothering them with blankets and in illy ventilated rooms has been abandoned. Always and eternally the treatment is that of God's great out of doors. And along with that awakening has come the realization that if scrupulous precaution is observed the tubercular patient is not a menace to those with whom he mingles. That one fact has wrought wonders in lifting from the afflicted the morbid thought that they are pariahs cast out and separated from the ordinary enjoyments and amenities of society.

As a result of the intelligent and persistent campaigns that have been waged the death rate from the disease has been lowered materially. Foremost in this effort has been the work not only of private sanatoria but public sanatoria state and city and nation realizing that it is economy in the long run to spend money in the treatment of this universal malady and in educating its victims in the protection of themselves and the public.

Tuberculosis Sunday this year ought to mark high tide in the propaganda looking toward curtailment and prevention. In the south it ought to mark an awakening of the white people to the menace of the tubercular negro never forgetting but that there is no color or geographical line in disease and that the infected house servant or farmhand is a walking threat to all with whom he comes in contact unless he be properly treated.

REMEMBERING MARY

J. M. Barrie the gentle English author invented the term Little Mary as a suave euphemism with which to refer to one's stomach. But the classical Mary in profane literature is the one with a lamb as white as snow and with the peripatetic habit annoyingly developed. Which reminds us that there has just passed in Massachusetts one Mr. Powers who claimed to be the first cousin to the Mary whose lamb has come sounding down the decades in nursery rhyme. He always said he remembered vividly the incident that gave birth to the poem and that to her dying day the girl grown a woman did not outlive the distinction.

The nation ought to erect a monument to Mary. The foolish little couplet connecting her with the lamb has soothed more children than Carter has oats. Men who have since won fame and glory cherish the rhyme as among the most sacred memories of their childhood. It is even said that with the typical American habit of discounting the tragic they used to go into battle during the Spanish American war with the couplet on their lips.

We may not yet have evolved the great American novel but we have evolved a bit of doggerel that has gone the rounds of the kindergartens and nurseries of the world. Many a less worthy cause has had a memorial.

FEED THE COW!

It is probable that the left handed cow of Cartoonist Gregg immortalized in the Georgia Products Day edition of The Constitution did more to stimulate the pocket nerve of the average Georgian than any sermon, editorial or preachment on home industries within the past decade. Men and women are only children grown up and children learn from pictures where they turn away impatiently from the text.

The lesson of that cartoon was—

"Feed the cow!"

The cow symbolized the farms and factories of Georgia. It was shown that if these were fed with patronage the supply of milk or wealth in tangible form would increase in due ratio.

The parallel is perfect. Every farmer, even the city man who has worn thin a swivel chair, knows that an ill fed cow is a non productive cow; that a cow well fed is a cow prolific in milk.

Here are two leading and realizable ifs.

If the farmers of Georgia raised all their home supplies they would keep millions of dollars in this state now annually being sent away to pay for the necessities of life and they would pile up an export margin for additional revenue.

If the farmers and the city people of Georgia bought articles made at home the same process would apply to every commercial item and the amount of money kept here to circulate through every conceivable channel would be increased almost beyond estimate.

Take the city end of the proposition. It is astounding to know the range of necessities and luxuries of apparel and equipment that can be purchased in Atlanta if the individual possesses the essential energy and initiative. W. H. White Jr., president of the White Provision company, offered a handsome prize to the Atlantan who should present himself at the Georgia Products banquet most completely garbed in home made attire. The prize winner was provided with almost every article that figures in the raiment and equipment of the man of refinement. His adventure cost him nearly $5.00 because he had to hunt high and low for many of the articles and the special cost of having them made was heavy. In the main he supplied himself by applying to the nearest up to date establishments.

Now the point is this. It should not have cost him more than the usual standard to equip himself. Why did it cost him more? Because Atlantans have not become educated into asking for things with the home label. You must have a demand before you develop the market. To establish the market first is to break one of the first rules in economics.

If increasingly the men and women of Atlanta will call for home made articles, factories that turn them out will increase their output, other factories will come into existence. Every dollar spent on the products of one of these factories will circulate through the business arteries in the community. Every factory worker, every office man, every commercial traveler added to the population of the city means more spenders. Gradually and by the inevitable law of evolution the process will build up a great manufacturing city, taking tribute of all the south and of the west coast of South America and of the Orient with the opening of the Panama canal.

The duty of the farmer to raise his home supplies is also an adventure in self interest bigger than that of the city man to buy the home made article. Individual and community wealth lie in that direction.

That is what it means to feed the cow. The more the feed the more the milk!

Suppose we blame the high cost of living on the republican party.

Just as the price of diamonds gets reasonable eggs demand all our money.

Six cities have put in bids for the next G. O. P. convention. Probably from curiosity to see what is left of the old machine.

Even a man out of a job is not anxious for a Mexican situation.

Perhaps the Mexican revolutionist will celebrate Christmas by burning a milder kind of red fire.

But for the rewards of the remunerative lecture platform Mr. Bryan would not have been able to have given a dinner to nineteen clergymen.

Probably much of the red fire on the border is but a reflection from the luminous tresses of George Bailey's red headed widow.

John Lind is a man without a voice. He doesn't even sing at his work.

The white house bride promised to obey as meekly as the humblest girl that ever made a home happy.

The poems in the Christmas magazines were written last June by poets who had to crawl into refrigerators.

Harry Kemp is perfectly safe in writing poems in an English jail. Over there they don't increase your sentence for that sort of thing.

Doc Cook is to go into vaudeville. It is a wonder he hasn't claimed that he invented it.

A Sermon on Ventilation

The editor of The Downs News says that churches need drilling on the subject of ventilation.

A morning or evening congregation of several hundred persons is entitled to pure air for there are oceans of it outside. Every window should be lowered. After the morning service the whole room should be thoroughly aired and yet no doubt the doors are closed when the people leave and the foul air is cursedly boxed for the evening service. This is dreadful and therefore it is no wonder folks sleep and get a headache. They are dying for oxygen. Open the windows if it does take more coal. If a church ought to get the reputation of always being well ventilated there will be more people at every service to drop extra coal money in the contribution box.

The World's Mysteries

DID PETER I DESERVE THE NAME OF "GREAT?"

When Ivan of Russia died suddenly in 1696 leaving two minor daughters and no sons his brother Peter proclaimed himself czar. His administration of the office of the greatest autocrat in Europe is a study that historians have found a great difficulty in attempting to solve and properly dissect. The official historians of Russia have given him the title of "The Great" and they have been followed by many historians of other countries until the thoughtless will imagine that he is entitled to that distinction. One of the independent Russian writers said that they had forgotten to add that the qualification great should be followed by scoundrel and that only for the sake of brevity he was called great.

That sarcastic remark, many historians believe is so well founded that it is impossible to understand how some people have been able to concede to Peter any merits as a civilizer. According to his contemporaries Peter traveled, studied and civilized his country. But in the eighteenth century the German countries in which Peter spent most of his time had very few elements of culture. The truth is that Peter did not care in the slightest for spreading true civilization in his country and all he wanted was to make autocracy firm and lasting.

Peter's reforms began by rooting up the republican idea which had then a firm hold on the people. He abolished the election of officials and judges, introduced division into castes, originated fourteen classes of officials, violated the freedom of the church by abolishing the authority of the patriarch and substituted a synod controlled by the czars. Finally he crowned his efforts as a civilizer and reformer by making the peasants slaves to the noblemen.

These civilizing propensities were appreciated by Peter's subjects so much that the big bell which used to ring for the gathering of the Dumas in Moscow resounded as alarm. Peter quenched the rebellion in a sea of blood. Because Peter objected to the wearing of long beards and of jackboots and his subjects dared to resent it 8,000 of them were sentenced to death. The czar's ministers competed for the prize as to which should execute the greatest number and it was won by the czar's favorite, Menshikov. Those historians who dare tell of these crimes believe that if it had not been for Peter Russia today would be on the same level of progress as the rest of Europe.

Peter's bad reputation is a ruler can be redeemed by the virtues of his private life. His first wife was Eudoxia and her he had a son named Alexis whom he made successor to his throne. He soon tired of his first wife and fell in love with Anna Moens, daughter of a dramshop keeper in Moscow. The Czarina Eudoxia took consolation to a young nobleman. Peter however not wishing his wife to imitate him in his amours, ordered her to shut up in a monastery and Alexis to be impaled.

Even in this Peter wished to be cruel. The impaling was done in his presence, while the unfortunate lover was in agony the czar climbed the executioner's platform and placing himself in front of the victim began to preach to him about the future life.

Then Peter met the daughter of the Lithuanian workman and eventually married her and she became the czarina under the name of Catherine. Because the Czarevitch Alexis opposed this marriage and left the court his father had him brought back through promises of forgiveness which were never kept but instead had the court sentence him to death.

When Peter found that he unfaithful to him he had her love Moens decapitated and it is said that when he saw his victim's head roll from the block he could not master his joy but rushed into the square mounted the platform seized Moens head by the hair and laughed with satisfaction.

It would therefore seem that Peter must justly be called the great scoundrel among his subjects had their revenge. Catherine feared the czar and Menshikov noticed that he had less influence with Peter and understood that the alteration of the will making Catherine his successor meant the downfall of Menshikov. The latter came from Peter's school and Catherine was found ruling consequently Peter died suddenly and at an opportune moment for Catherine and Menshikov. The rule of the reformer was so much disliked throughout Russia that no one thought of inquiring about the cause of Peter's death for it seemed to be a blessing for everybody.

A STORY OF THE MOMENT

By WALT MASON
The Famous Prose Poet

OLD HABITS

Somebody persuaded old Quarterbush that he ought to take a cold bath every morning; said the retired merchant and he got busy. After he had taken two baths he had the worst case of rheumatism ever seen in this precinct and he says that if he ever recovers he will go gunning for the man who got him into this trouble.

I don't blame him, remarked the hotel keeper. When a man is used to bathing in warm water once or twice a year he is taking big chances if he turns over a new leaf and begins bathing in cold water every day. It's almost sure to bring every latent disease in his system to the surface. When people are getting into the sere and yellow leaf they should think twice about abandoning old habits or contracting new ones.

When old Tom Cribbage married the widow Stiltz he had a trusty old briar pipe that he communed with at all hours of the day and night except when he was eating and sleeping. I don't suppose there ever was a man who got more comfort out of his pipe. There was a cloud of smoke around him at all times.

In all other respects he was a model husband and his wife admitted as much when she called on the neighbors to discuss the living issues. Tom was industrious and a good provider and kept his wife well supplied with pin money and his good nature was so profound that it couldn't be disturbed. If his wife had had any sense she'd have considered herself mighty fortunate in getting her lariat on such a man but they hadn't been married a week before she began hinting around that Tom's pipe was a nuisance. Her former husband, the late Ezekiel Stiltz, never touched the vile weed, she said, and there was some pleasure in living under the same roof with him.

She tried argument and entreaty for a while and Tom just grinned at her in his good natured way and told her she might ask anything else and it would be granted but he couldn't give up smoking without ruining his life. Then she put up a job on him. She had a doctor among her relatives and she primed this medical man and then managed to induce Tom to call upon one pretext or another. So the sawbones examined Tom and told him that he had the worst case of tobacco heart he ever saw and threw such a scare into the unfortunate man that he threw away his pipe and tobacco and vowed he'd never smoke again.

Tom is one of these doggone bullhead men who never change their minds after making them up. When he threw away his smoking utensils it was for keeps. You can imagine his wife's joy when she saw the success of her scheme. She danced all over the back yard and then went around telling the neighbors of her famous victory. But her happiness didn't last long.

Quitting smoking seemed to change the whole nature of her husband. His nerves were insisting upon tobacco and couldn't get it so they had to take it out some way and Tom became the most cantankerous man in seven states. He began snooping around the house looking for things to find fault with and if a two cent dish was broken he would howl like a gray wolf. He fired the hired girl and told his wife she would have to do her own housework and all the time he was telling his wife she'd have to quit this habit of that. If he could break loose from the tobacco habit, he said, she ought to be able to quit buying ice cream and confectionery. He became so obnoxious that his wife went and bought him a new pipe and a big glass jar of tobacco and begged him on her bended knees to resume smoking where he left off but he carried the outfit outdoors and threw it into the alley and said that nothing on earth would ever induce him to touch the filthy stuff again.

Mrs. Cribbage is the most miserable woman in town right now and all because she wouldn't leave well enough alone.

Actors Don't Use Walking Stick

(From The London Chronicle)

There is one profession that has always refrained from carrying a walking stick. The actor knows well that on the stage he must walk without extraneous support and he knows that the mere hint of a walking stick in his hand as he walks the streets is a temptation to lean this way or that. Actors even when out of a job never lean on a stick. They know that their balanced walk is their asset. If the whole of society recurs to walking sticks the actors will refrain.

Whistler and the Bull.

(From The London Evening Standard)

Whistler was once walking through a field when suddenly he found that a huge bull was making straight toward him. He ran as he had never run before. When he reached the other side of the fence he saw a farmer, the owner of the field coolly watching the proceedings. Mr. Whistler was furious and shaking his fist at the farmer said: "What do you mean, sir, by letting a savage bull like that roam at large? Do you know who I am, sir? I'm Whistler." "Are you?" replied the farmer. "Then what's the good of telling me? Why didn't you tell the bull?"

Baseball Championships.

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

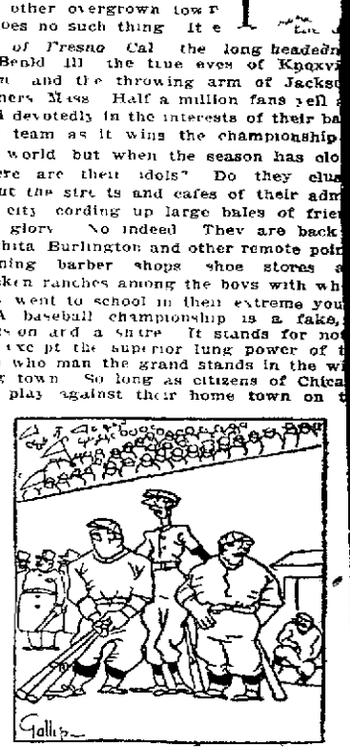
(Copyright 1913 for The Constitution.)

A baseball championship is a prize which is won for New York, Philadelphia and other cities by residents of Wall, Bishop Hill, Honolulu, Havana, Cuba and elsewhere.

To win a championship is a great event. Whenever a Chicago team ends the season in front Chicagoans are as pleased as if Chicago really had something to do with it. The loyalty with which a citizen can claim natives of Tennessee, Sauk Center, Kalamazoo, Montreal, Dublin and elsewhere, as they battle fiercely against patriots from California, Kansas, Germany, Texas and miscellaneous points for the championship of New York city is affecting in the extreme. Baseball is the great destroyer of local prejudice and when a local player rambles home run through the scoreboard no one stops to look up his voting place before rising to give him feverish acclaim.

A baseball championship is supposed to settle the relative baseball [illegible] New York, Chicago, Boston and other overgrown towns, but it does no such thing. It settles [illegible] ing of Fresno, Cal., the long headed[illegible] of Bend, Ill., the true eyes of Knoxville, Tenn., and the throwing arm of Jackson's Corners, Mass. Half a million fans yell and read devotedly in the interests of their baseball team as it wins the championship of the world but when the season has closed where are their idols? Do they club about the streets and cafes of their adopting city, cording up large bales of fried and glory. No indeed. They are back in Wichita, Burlington and other remote points running barber shops, shoe stores and chicken ranches among the boys with whom they went to school in their extreme youth.

A baseball championship is a fake, delusion and a snare. It stands for nothing except the superior lung power of the men who man the grand stands in the winning town. So long as citizens of Chicago can play against their home town on the



"The daring of Fresno, Cal., the true eye of Knoxville, Tenn., and the throwing arm of Jackson's Corners, Mass."

New York team and the champion swatter of the league can make home runs for Chicago against New York which educated him at the cost of $12.57 per term in its public schools we decline to perspire with anxiety over the result. Let us have home made champions and not heroes imported at great cost for a few seasons only. This would not only increase the excitement in our metropolis but it would give the little towns a chance.

Interesting People.

(From The Chicago News)

Louise Pearce recently appointed assistant to Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research in New York, occupies an unusual position in the medical world. She has served as the only woman on the staff of the Johns Hopkins hospital and was appointed to the psychiatric staff at the Phipps clinic. Dr. Pearce was preparing to take up this important work when she received the Rockefeller assignment. In her research work with Dr. Flexner she expects to confine her efforts chiefly to the isolation of the bacilli of infectious diseases.

Practical Advice on Singing

BY THE WORLD'S GREATEST SINGERS

Copyright, 1913, for The Constitution.)

By Frieda Hempel.

First Coloratura Soprano of the Berlin Royal Opera and the Metropolitan Opera House, New York City.

Singing is a fine and deserved ly popular art. To learn to sing is the ambition of several million American people. Even successful singers, who are still studying, welcome suggestions from sources that are authoritative. Others, less advanced, often grope in the dark for information ordinarily impossible to obtain. For the special benefit of the readers of this newspaper, arrangements have been made with a number of the world's greatest singers to write a series of practical, entertaining and easily understood articles. One will be printed each week. These articles are the first of their kind ever assembled, and are as useful and interesting to the amateur as to the professional singer, or to the student planning for a professional career. They have been planned and edited by Pierre V. R. Key, one of New York's leading musical critics, a regular contributor to the leading national magazines and himself an authority on "voice production" and "the art of singing." Any questions will be fully and cheerfully answered on receipt of self-addressed stamped envelope.

I esteem it a privilege to be permitted to speak to fellow singers who would increase their capabilities. My audience in this great country his been, in brief. Thus far I am fa miliar with little outside the walls of my hotel suite and those of the New York Metropolitan opera house. This is my first season in America, and that means much to one who must sting first coloratura roles to such operas as 'Les Huguenots,' 'Il Barbiere di Seviglia,' Rigoletto and Lucia di Lammermoor."

But in Europe I often heard Amer ican singers. Therefore can I understand why the hundreds of thousands I am told are seriously interested in learning how to sing or who are making more perfect an already excellent vocal and artistic equipment are thus engaged. The reason, do you not see? Well, I soon discovered that in America on the other side with my extensions to a world professional edition possessed exceptional natural qualifications.

They have voice, intelligence and the artistic capacity. Where there is a single desire to rise it has been apparent that their resources fit the occasion. In foreign countries, other than many American vocalists have gained respect and admiration and I have every belief that the future holds in greater things for those who will develop talents entitling them to look forward honorable posts in the realms of opera and concert.

Five Rules on Singing.

The editor of this series of articles asked me to give five Hempel rules on singing. Consequently I reply.

No. 1—Sing only when you have the inclination, never when you are out of humor or at times when the health is not of the best.

No. 2—Lead a healthful and normal life. Avoid excesses of any sort, display reasonable care in diet and take regularly outdoor exercise. Chiefly:

Walk fresh air—indoors as well as without.

Always be your own severest critic.

Know your own limitations and try to exceed them.

Study of this vast continent is serious of obtaining recognition as a operatic or concert pianist.

Finally, let me say two things. Be assiduous in your studies, be earnest in learning them to the best of your relative abilities.

The opportunity never was better for the singer who really has strength of merit. I do not mean by that—that voice alone and more voice is required, but that young men and women who have fairly good means in hand may, by training them in the correct ways they should go—assuredly ascend to artistic levels attained only by great artists.

Other Important Details.

Inexperienced singers who have attained that they may regard careers with reasonable certainty should remember that while they should make sure they have acceptable natural voices there are other details even more important. One of the first should be the acquiring of a general education. Not to know anything other than music narrows the artistic vision and the true artist who achieves unusual heights is almost always in close touch with the world's events. In science politics or indeed art in its broadest accept nce.

I grant that some successful singers who have been proclaimed distinguished" are persons of narrow views and virtually no general culture yet they are exceptions who prove the rule solely because of singular vocal gifts. For the average man and woman it is virtually compulsory to take advantage of whatever will aid in building up a many-sided, serviceable equipment that means to study and to think in channels far from the course of musical progress.

Music however, is a severe task master to those who would embrace some branch of it as a means of livelihood. And if one is to become a singer no detail possible to be turned to account should be overlooked. The vocalist who does not play the piano in my judgment, is handicapped. True accompanists may be readily engaged but why be at the mercy of accompanists?

Lays the Foundation.

It is a fact beyond dispute that the singer who plays some instrument moderately well has laid the foundation—no matter how slight—for musicianship. Personally I incline toward the piano because it is the singer's daily ally. Without the piano such practice as is imperative cannot proceed far. This being so it behooves singers to treat this instrument with the consideration it deserves and to entrust its faithful co-operation at first hand.

FRIEDA HEMPEL

Getting started presents perhaps the most vexatious problem the young vocal student has to encounter. The natural questions are: With whom shall I study, where can the instructor be found, how much will the lessons cost. Weigh them well and take abundant time to satisfy yourself that the teacher selected is at least competent.

One excellent way to determine this is to find out with whom the most great artists studied the mechanics of singing and then to make a choice from one of these names. Never mind the fees asked by the celebrities for the best teaching is at any price—is cheaply bought when we measure it in terms of music.

If the aspirant for vocal fame is not fortunate financially I believe it is wise for him to devote the sum necessary to obtain a diploma to one of the conservatories of music. Never mind the higher artistic accomplishment claimed for the church choir singer. Endeavor to secure proficiency and then put on all the paint you want. Don't hurt the singing, but not more than twenty consecutive minutes. Paris always allows one rest and when the hour is adhered to there is no danger of straining the delicate vocal mechanism.

Another highly essential duty which the pupil owes to himself is never to take one exercise until it has been perfected. Before attacking exercise number two make number one something to be regarded with pride.

Get into the way of doing things with songs as well as with technical exercises. Then custom will be found that cannot fail to yield untold benefits.

Aim For Quality.

I cannot impress too strongly on the minds of young singers the propriety of establishing a foundation for smooth easy and reliable production of tone. Avoid striving for power be content to let power come naturally, as the voice develops for under such conditions it is a proper power that does not endanger the purity of the instrument. Aim continually for quality and for the legato—the basis of true singing.

Shouting is ruinous to the voice. It is also wearing upon the ears of an audience. Cultivate repose in singing and endeavor to acquire a control of the breath that will cause every particle used to be converted into pure tone. These matters are very hard but they have been done by fine artists and can be done by those aiming to join their ranks.

If this advice will be followed there need never be a question as to the kind of work a fine voice is suited to. The finished vocalists whose technical methods are secure and right sing with equal ease all kinds of music—whether it be operatic or strict concert.

With the God given talents which Americans possess there is no good reason why they should not accomplish even greater things than now stand to their credit in the field of song. They have only to utilize those talents their intelligence and give themselves sufficient time to command the unbiased admiration of the whole world. And I am sure that they will.

ON TWO-HORSE FARM
$3,000 IS NET PROFIT

Hinton, November 29.—(Special.) Three thousand dollars profit from a two-horse farm in staple crops for one year is an interesting announcement of T. J. Parker of Fifth District, Fairfield County. Enigma and was cultivated exclusively this year by hired labor. There were sixty-four acres in cultivation with eighteen acres in oats following the hay, the oat crop not being counted as they were sown last fall. This shows a net profit on the land in cultivation of nearly $50 an acre.

The crop was a good one, and the estimated value now, as follows: Thirty-six bales of cotton, including seed at $70; 320 seventeen tons of hay at $20; 500 bushels of corn, $400; fifty hogs, $500; 200 gallons of syrup, $100. Total, $3,960. The expenses were: Fertilizer, $224; wages, $760; picking cotton, $288; miscellaneous, $88; total expense, $960. Net profit, $3,000. The item of mule feed is not counted in the expense and the value of the oats, peanuts, sweet potatoes and other side crops is not figured in the receipts.

The crop acreage was divided into: Cotton, 40 acres; corn, 12 acres; peanuts, 12 acres. Eighteen acres in hay followed the oats.

The handsome profit shows that there is money in South Georgia land planted in staple crops and cultivated by hired labor, despite often expressed opinions to the contrary. Counting the profits from its cultivation Mr. Parker figures that his farm land is worth $251 an acre.

An Invitation to the Mothers Of the State of Georgia

To All Georgia Mothers: Across the spaces that separate us, whether it be spaces of city blocks or miles of hills and plains of swamp or pine lands, I write to ask that every mother in Georgia meet with the Atlanta mothers some time during the first two weeks of December and share with us the pleasure and profit to be derived from the great Child Welfare exhibit which will be shown in Atlanta during those dates.

Perhaps there are many mothers in Atlanta who will let the stress of the season, the duties of the home or the many demands which all mothers know, prevent them from visiting this splendid exhibition of what science and skill have combined to provide for the protection of the child. These mothers should consider it a duty and a privilege to visit this exhibit, and I hope and believe every mother in Atlanta as well as every mother throughout the state will need only to know what is being offered to them, in order to eagerly avail themselves of it.

Every phase of child life will be touched upon; health will be stressed as a gift, if to be freely bestowed upon our children by our own wisdom and judgment rather than by nature or accident or even by an all-wise Providence. The fact that health can be preserved and procured by knowledge is the best evidence of the wisdom of "the great divine design," and it is a fuller understanding of this wisdom that our Georgia mothers will be able to possess after they attend the great display of work done and planned and perfected for the child.

It must ever be a source of infinite satisfaction to the members of the Mothers Congress that the most cherished principles for which we stand are the principles which the Child Welfare exhibit in Atlanta will present in practical working form. It is a sort of miracle to see these principles take form and shape and every visitor to the exhibit, who is also a member of the Georgia branch of the National Congress of Mothers, will feel personally proud of being a part of this great work.

It is upon the child of the present that the civilization of our future is built. There is no broader or bigger work in all the world than that which deals with this child's adequate growth along moral mental, physical and spiritual lines. This work is yours, dear mothers of Georgia, and I wish I could ask each woman in our state, separately and by name, to meet me in Atlanta between the 1st and the 15th of December. I could show them then the wonderful mission which is theirs.

MRS. JAMES R. LITTLE, President.

What the Georgia Congress Is Working to Attain

What the Georgia Congress of Mothers works to attain. Briefly, because space forbids details we wish to mention just what the Georgia branch of the National Congress of Mothers hopes to accomplish in this state:

1. A general health bill: this means legal protection and preservation of our children's health.

2. A registration bill: this provides for the registration of every child born in Atlanta. The need for such a bill is universally recognized as it aids in the prevention of disease, the protection of property rights, the preservation of identity and in numerous other civic necessities.

3. We are working for the proper care of the defective dependent and delinquent children of the state. An institution designed for this purpose is greatly needed.

4. We are bending every energy toward procuring a kindergarten in every public school in Georgia. The advantages of such an improvement cannot be over-estimated.

5. We recognize the need of medical inspection in our country schools and as far as women's influence can secure it we will bring this inspection into our state.

6. We are actually bringing the home and the school into closer union than has ever before been done in this state. Ask our city and state teachers if this is not true.

Legislation regarding the foregoing projects has not yet been secured, agitation is the first step legislation the next. The first we have taken, the next our representatives must take in the legislative halls.

Every mother in Georgia represents influence. We want more mothers to work with us. "In union there is strength" in numbers there is power. The force of personal influence cannot be resisted. When every mother in Georgia is enlisted with us our causes are absolutely won.

How to Become a Member.

There are no perplexing rules, no intricate regulations, no "red tape" and no formality about joining the Congress of Mothers. The Georgia branch of this great national organization is open to every woman in the state. The only thing a mother must do to become a member in good standing entitled to all possible privileges and all advantages is to ally herself with her nearest mother club or class or parent-teacher association. Whatever form of "club" she likes best or which is most convenient to her, she may choose, if on the other hand no organization of the kind presents itself to her then she may easily form one for herself. Surely we all have ten friends or acquaintances who would meet with us to talk children" say once or twice a month. Let us then gather these ten together, each pay our dues of 10 cents per year and thus become a part of the Congress of Mothers.

If you already belong to any church class of mothers or of any parent-teacher club in Georgia and have paid the dues required by this class or club you should be sure that 10 cents a year from these dues goes to the Congress of Mothers and entitles you to a membership card in that great organization of women all working for a common cause—the good of our children!

Send in Your Name.

If you have not already received one of these cards, ask your secretary to send in your name so that you may receive one. Then, if there is anything at all you want to know about the care of your child, about its health, its mental development or its needs, you can get this information from the headquarters by writing to the National Congress of Mothers 806 Loan and Trust building, Washington D. C.

If you want to know about forming a club or about the Georgia work in any way or about any subject connected with the Congress of Mothers in your state, write to your state president, Mrs. James R. Little, Peachtree road, Atlanta.

Membership in this organization means more to you and to your child than you can afford to miss.

THE SOCIAL CENTER

Every neighborhood whether in town or country, in city or village should possess some place where the young people and their elders can meet together for wholesome and protected amusement. The human instinct for play, for fun, for relaxation is one of nature's most positive efforts to fit the young bodies and brains for the duties and responsibilities which life imposes upon every individual. We cannot escape these obligations, and we should not permit our children to escape the safe preparation for them. It is a sad fact that if young people do not find the proper outlet for their physical energies they will seek any sort of outlet, and alas, there is deep danger close at hand.

Students of sociology recognize this, parents recognize it, teachers and preachers recognize it and all would welcome a place where young people might meet for protected play. No place is so well adapted for this as the school buildings out of school hours. Parents, too, should find in the modern school building an ideal place for meetings for lectures, for small social gatherings of any sort; in fact parents and children might meet at the same time in different parts of the same building.

Already the Parent-Teacher clubs of Atlanta, of which there are fourteen live working bodies, are using our school rooms for lectures, for stereopticon pictures for "social centers and neighborhood clubs."

The localities where there is a good neighborhood club is generally a locality where much of the old-time spirit of kindly neighborliness is revived where the new comer to the city is made welcome and where the old resident enjoys a pleasant hour or two of relaxation and rest. This is especially true of the young people of the neighborhood meet together for amusement purposes as well as the elders.

The members of the Mothers' councils can do much to provide these social centers in every portion of our state. We hope to show what has been done and what is yet to be done along this line, at the child welfare exhibit to be held in Atlanta next month. Other cities are working along this same line every city as well as every part of Georgia where two or three are gathered together for mutual help can do the same.

Books have been written about the "social center." Do you want to know the names of these books? If so the Mothers' congress will gladly send such names to any one interested in this subject.

If you are not interested now, you will be after you visit the social center section in Atlanta next month, at the exhibition mentioned above.

The first grade received the highest number of credits.

The ones who made the highest marks in the fifth grade are: Hennie Thomason, Lee Bryant, Louise Adams and Miss Brown.

Our school is going to have a Parent-Teacher meeting Friday. We need to have a large attendance.

The society meeting took place Wednesday afternoon.

The program began with a debate, the subject of which was: Resolved, That the girls of Atlanta could afford better high schools.

The decision was rendered in favor of the negative side. The debaters on that side were arguing against their own convictions, therefore they deserve the more credit for their skillful use of points.

Of course we all think that the city could afford better high schools and hope that in the near future we shall have better high schools.

The debating medal was given to Joyce Deadwyler.

Following the debate a delightful program appropriate to Thanksgiving day was rendered.

TECH HIGH NOW CHAMPIONS OF THE LOCAL PREP LEAGUE

Prep Standing.

	W.	L.	P.C.
Tech High	4	0	1.000
Boys' High	1	1	.500
Donald Fraser	1	3	.250
Stone Mountain	1	3	.250
G. M. A.	1	4	.000

The above is the complete and final standing of the local prep league for the season of 1913, which has been by far the best that the organization has ever enjoyed.

The interest in the league has known no bounds, as evidenced by the fact of the record breaking crowd which attended the games that have been for the championship, especially the one in which the two local high schools were the opponents on Thanksgiving day morning.

For the first time in the history of the league the final battle for the title was fought elsewhere than on the campus of the G. M. A. school, as this institution has always up until this year, put forth a championship eleven, one that the school would be only too glad to honor as their own.

Both of the local high schools have shown a clean pair of heels to all rivals in the Prep association, a result of which there was nothing else for them to do but to meet to see which one should wear the football crown until next season.

Game Bitterly Fought.

The two elevens met and after one of the fiercest and most bitterest contested contests that have ever been offered to the gaze of the local public, Tech high triumphed over her rival for championship honors by the score of 40 to 6.

The fact that the score appears to be large does not in any way signify that the Tech high bunch had just a practice romp, as a great majority of their scores came as a result of long runs from broken fields for touch downs.

A small idea of the fierceness of the struggle can be obtained from the fact that the boys high was forced to make in the neighborhood of some eight or nine substitutions throughout the entire game, while Tech high was not far behind her when it came to using new men.

Tech's First Pennant.

The pennant captured by Tech high by winning this game is the first one that the Marietta street school has ever floated for a championship team in football. Practically all of the teams of past years were weak ones, but year after year the boys kept plugging away until today they have the strongest eleven in or around the city, and possibly in the entire state, as they defeated one of the principal contenders when they downed the Riverside team early in the season.

State Street School.

The school physicians have been with us this week making their annual examination of our eyes, ears, throats, teeth and lungs. They have expressed themselves as much pleased with our physical condition.

Indeed it would be hard to find a healthier bunch of youngsters as our remarkable record for attendance will testify. During the month just past 195 children did not miss a day. How is that for high?

After all, how to keep well is not such a problem if you will but follow this simple safe and sure prescription, to wit: Sleep enough, eat enough (no more) and drink enough water.

Our school building is perched on the tip top of a hill overlooking all Atlanta with her forest of smoke-stacks, her pretentious skyscrapers and her hundreds of homes.

We stand much in awe of our distinguished neighbor—the Georgia Tech—but the boys hope to go there some day and fit themselves for larger usefulness.

The sixth grade owns a magnificent picture far more beautiful than can be found in old world galleries. It is a painting on the walls, but can be seen from six of their five windows—a great stretch of forest, the trees heavy with autumn foliage. A few weeks ago they were a study in reds—Italian sunsets, golden glow of early morning, Titians, midnight suns, all their own. Today this picture is a study in browns, but when the autumn has life as and the winter is middle-aged we expect these trees to be clad in shimmering white, as shot with rainbows. Now isn't this a priceless picture?

Miss Pitts has told us all about the great art galleries of Europe, the Pitti, Uffizi, Louvre, Pitts, and the rest, but she says none of their treasures compare with this wonderful moving picture that we can see just outside our windows.

The eighth grade is deservedly much elated over their record made in arithmetic this month. Everybody got 100 except four who made 95. The work was discussing interest bearing notes, time drafts and other puzzling subjects that keep the bank clerks guessing.

The first grade B is a record-breaker in attendance. There were only three children absent during the month just past, and there is an enrollment of fifty-six. Miss Long, their teacher, is justly proud of these little people.

The report cards were sent out last week. These cards ought to make interesting reading for both parents and pupils, for they record just how we are spending our time.

The class leaders in our thirteen grades are as follows: Eighth, Bernice Wallace; seventh, Louvenia Coggins; sixth, Fannie Mae York; fifth, Amanda Maner; fourth A, Lucile Bell; fourth B, Mary Griffith; third A, Clifford Bradley; third B, Inez Martin; second A, Pauline Vinson; second B, Dinah Whitfield; first A, Louise Hightower; first B, Marvin Coleman; first C, Ernest Rudasill.

Boys' Night School.

In the eighth grade there were some fine reports this month. Lawton Flournoy and William Morgan tied for first place with 95 per cent, and Rex Morris again was perfect in attendance, not having been absent or tardy since the beginning of the school term.

We are glad to welcome Louis Word who comes from the Georgia Military academy.

The Seventh Grade Current Events club held an interesting meeting last Friday night. In addition to hearing several new items, the boys had the pleasure of studying the picture of Sir Galahad and his search for the Holy Grail.

We are glad to enroll Ralph Grimes from Battle Hill, seventh grade, as a new pupil.

Mr. Grady Crenshaw has taken a position out of the city, and has been forced to leave the night school. Our best wishes go with him.

A tablet of Babylonian writing of the time of Abraham was shown to the class during the geography lesson on Asia. In attempting to guess what the tablet was Eric Braswell made the closest guess when he called it Egyptian Hieroglifice.

The sixth grade are pleased with their reports this month.

We are having a continued spelling match this week which is proving very interesting to the boys who are doing the spelling.

On Tuesday night as all the boys were wondering whether or not they were going to get off Thursday night, Mr. Summers, our principal, came around and while talking to the boys, one of them asked him about Thursday night. Mr. Summers said that as it was Thanksgiving we might get out fifteen minutes earlier and then left the room. On Wednesday night he come around again and said: "Well boys, I have got sad things to tell you, but don't weep. One is that you won't have to come to school Thursday night and the other is that you won't have to come Friday night."

They sure were sad tidings. But when he left the room there were some happy boys in it.

On account of the holiday Friday night, we are going to postpone our entertainment until next week.

Formwalt Street School.

The seventh grade and the eighth grade held their declamation and elocution contests together Thursday afternoon in the eighth grade room. When the votes were counted, Lena Fordon and M. D. Spinner of the eighth and Lillie Harrington and Alex Rosenfeld of the seventh, were the winners of the medals.

The eighth grade spelling pins were won by Mary Lemon Chirsty Holmes, Stanton Hale and Forrest Garrard.

So many children in the seventh grade were perfect in oral and written spelling the past week that it was quite a hard matter to divide two spelling pins among them—especially the girls. The children who are to wear them for the week are: Charles Spivack, Max Feldman, Mary Howell, Lillie Harrington, Louise Martin, Annie May Bradley, Ruby Clarke and Addie Kate Wheeler.

The fifth grade are proud of the fact that they won the spelling banner, which is the result of having four hundreds for the week. In fact, the whole school is proud of themselves for the fine monthly report in spelling that they handed in. Each average was in the nineties, the highest being 98.8 per cent and the lowest, 92.1 per cent.

The sixth grade proved to be the winners of the attendance banner.

The little third grade is improving in copying very much lately.

Ten little children in the second grade have received one hundred in deportment and attendance this week, which is considered a very fine report.

There will be talks and entertainments in every room about Thanksgiving. Miss Sams gave us a little pleasure surprise, saying that we would not have any lessons for Friday, so it will be a complete holiday for us.

The reports were given out Monday and below are the two highest averages of the various grades:

Eight—Maggie Williams, 97.1, and Stanton Hale, 96.9.

Seventh—Annie May Bradley, 96.9, Mary Howell, 96.9, and Max Feldman, 95.9.

Sixth—Lola Stephens, 92.3, George Freeman, 90.5.

Fifth—Aubry Burch, 97.2; Kellogg Maddox, 95.

Fourth—Eva Lassiter, 96; Fain Abbot, 92.9.

Third—Louise Carroll, 94.1, Lewis Cole, 94.

Second—Wilhelmina Kean, 97.5; Edward Wilder, 97.5.

CHRISTY HOLMES.

Pryor Street School.

Our Court and S. Winn society met last Friday. Several mothers were present. The program was well prepared and much enjoyed.

Miss Milledge and Miss Harralson visited us last week. The first grade is very proud to have a large star on the black-board for music. The directors were very much pleased with the music in all the grades.

In the eighth Mattie, Boston and Catherine Pennington tied with 97.9 average, and Alvin Butler came next with 97.8. Bertha Caudle in the seventh grade averaged 98.1. In the sixth, Margaret Grainger and I. W. Arch held averaged the highest. Louise Deangelo and Malvern Newton in the third tied with 95.

The eighth grade has won the spelling banner two consecutive weeks. Their average last week was 90.

The boys of the fourth and eighth grades won in stars last week, but the girls won in the third, sixth, seventh and first grades.

The fifth grade had a spelling match and four children "stood up" through everything. They were Annie Mae Cook, Ester Isenberg, Comer Cimball and Edith Markham.

In the seventh grade they have been spelling the hard words of names o' places in Asia, and eleven girls and four boys did not miss a single one, thus received a star.

The children of the first grade B were delighted to play "the three bears" in their class room. The children of this grade, who had not missed in spelling for a week were rewarded, and so over half the class enjoyed a game of out-of-doors.

Our school expects to enjoy the Thanksgiving holiday, and our candy-pulling on Friday. We hope to make a good sum too.

LOUISE DEAN.

Calhoun Street School.

The upper grades were visited by Miss Harralson recently. The seventh and eight grades received excellent in music. The work of the eighth grade was very highly complimented.

The Eighth Grade Literary and Debating society held its third meeting on Wednesday, November 26.

The following program was entertainingly rendered:

Reading—The President's Proclamation—Charles Reardon.

Recitation—Thanksgiving When We Were Young—Lucene Rogers.

Violin solo, "Il Trovatore"—Alice Wilson.

Quotations by class.

Recitation—A Child's Wisdom—Thelma Stanfield.

Composition—The Thanksgiving Day—Helen Foster.

Recitation—The Pumpkin Pie—Sara Moore.

Reading—"The Governor's Proclamation"—Katherine Blake.

Piano solo—"Valse Caprice"—Louie Hardage.

Debate, subject—Resolved, That Fire Is More Destructive Than Water." Affirmative, Benjamin Milner, Lee Loeb and Kenneth Baines. Negative, George James, Stanley George and William Mallard.

According to the custom of the school the sixth grade boys and the seventh grade girls were invited to the society for having the best lines on the yard. The same grades had this honor at the last meeting.

The officers elected for the term are: William Mallard, president; De Sales Harrison, vice president; Martha Boykin, secretary; Evelyn Lovett, treasurer.

The second grade had the highest average in attendance for the past week.

The fifth grade had a spelling match last week. Fourteen out of a class of forty-five remained standing. They are: Emily Arnold, Robert Avery, Elizabeth Bancher, Arthur Campbell, Richard McMillan, Fay Watson, Martha Tripod, Mary Cooper, Mary Hardage, Robert Reid, Sadie Beall Woodliff, Mary Phillips and Nellie West.

EVELYN LOVETT.

Lee Street School.

We have had visits from Miss Milledge and Miss Harralson. Our principal is very proud of the reports. At any rate, the eighth grade did not let the seventh beat them. They both received excellent.

In the primary grades four classes received "excellent" and three had "very good—plus." Was that not a fine report for seven out of eight grades? The report for these was "excellent for first A, first B, second A and third A, very good—plus; for second B, fourth A and fourth B, good."

The sixth received very good—plus,' and the fifth 'very good.'"

The second grade A are trying to capture all the pictures, banners, stars and everything else that is offered. They won the picture for getting the highest in attendance for the month and the banner for the highest in attendance for the week. They have two stars in music, and more stars for lines than any other grade in the school.

Those in fourth A who made the highest averages and are on the honor roll are: Westelle Cartmel, Dentress Tom, Celestia McGinty, Eva Moore, Max Evans and Ruth Moore.

The eighth grade had a physiology match and thirteen stood up. The old saying that thirteen is unlucky was disproved this time.

Those on the eighth grade honor roll are: Elizabeth Wheeler, Mildred Ryan, Edgar Wilson, Angelyn Sasnett, Evelyn McGahee and Blanche Ryan.

We miss Miss Bass from the eighth grade very much. She was called away suddenly yesterday on account of the death of her grandmother. We extend our deepest sympathy to our beloved teacher and her family.

The fifth grade and the whole school miss Miss Richardson and hope she will soon be able to come back to us.

The seventh grade had an elocution match, in which the competitors were: Maude Baker, Elsie Calmes, Laura Bynes, Marie Moore, Gladys Atkinson and John Simpson. After a long meeting the judges decided Elsie Calmes was the best.

EVELYN M'GAHEE.

North Avenue School.

These are busy days with us, as work and play are closely intermingled.

We are very proud of our little second grade, which made one hundred in attendance last week, thereby winning the attendance banner.

The eighth grade boys have made a record which we think hard to beat. They have won the reward for the best lines every week since school began in September.

The eighth grade had two very interesting debates Friday.

The girls who debated on "Woman Suffrage" certainly convinced every one present that women should vote.

On last Friday, the seventh grade gave us a delightful surprise in the form of an entertainment to which the four grammar grades were invited.

The following program was rendered:

1. Debate—"Resolved, that life in the country is more favorable to human development that life in the city." The judges decided in favor of the negative.
2. Music by Henrietta Cohen.
3. Recitation—Sixth grade.
4. Debate—"Resolved that fire is more destructive than water." The debate was nearly a tie but the affirmative won by one point.
5. Music—Miss Rosa Nash.

Our report cards were received last Monday and many hearts were made glad by the excellent marks which were earned for we try to do good work as well as to have interesting entertainments.

KATHERINE VAUGHAN.

Luckie Street School.

The William M. Slaton Literary and Debating society held their first meeting last week. An interesting program was rendered by the children of the different grades. Some of the most interesting numbers were:

"America"—Eighth grade.

Recitation—"Poor Little Joe"—Bella Joselove.

Recitation—"The Burial of Sir John Moore"—Lorena Beauchamp.

Selection on phonograph.

Song—"A Vow"—Sixth grade.

"The Two Little Squirrels"—Judson Walraven.

Reading—"The Landing of the Pilgrims"—Rufus Woodbright.

Honorable mention—First A.

Recitation—"The Builders"—Twelve girls of seventh grade.

Selection on phonograph.

Recitation—"The Duel"—Kenneth Mabe.

Song of praise—Seventh grade.

Recitation—"The Naughty Girl"—Florence Ashe.

Song—"Good-night"—Eighth grade.

Song—"The Sea"—Children of fourth A and B.

Declamation—"Our Country and Our Duty"—Howard Smith and Troy Nabers.

Selection on phonograph.

Recitation—"The Sandpiper"—Four boys of fifth grade.

Declamation—"Napoleon and His Acquisitions"—Horace English.

Selection on phonograph.

Second B received a star in music and in physical training last month for doing excellent work in these studies. Mary Wallace stood up the longest in a spelling match in first A.

Miss Milledge was so pleased with the work in first B that she gave them a star and sang them a song too.

The boys are ahead of the girls in arithmetic in third B.

Fourth grade A is doing fine work in spelling. There are three rounds each day, and there have been but twelve misses so far.

We are expecting a visit from Mr. Slaton and hope he will come to see us soon.

MARGARET BEAUCHAMP.

The Story of Four Nimrods

Thanksgiving has been an occasion for much hunting from time immemorial On this glorious November Thursday each year sees scores of mighty huntsmen rare forth from every city town and hamlet in the length and breadth of the land With guns on shoulder the annual slaughter of the woods and fields is thoroughly done and the setting sun on each Thanksgiving day sees the doughty nimrods wending their homeward way with loads of birds rabbits etc Enough about the general idea Let us get to particulars

Four members of the force and firm of Fain & Stamps decided to go hunting last Thursday They made magnificent arrangements The four gentlemen are W P Fain W S Gaston and Cliff and Allen Edwards They decided to limit the scene of their operations to the plantation of the Edwards family in Cobb county Many were the preparations A special train was chartered in which to bring back the bag

Various firms which are amongst the largest dealers in game approached the hunters in advance about securing part of the results but the entire quartet remembered the game laws of the state and bravely resisted temptation Special pots and pans were installed in their various kitchens for the roasting and basting and frying and broiling and all round cooking of the victims And Cliff Edwards bought a new gun Forty dollars he paid for it But he figured he would get back his money se worth by noon Thursday and the rest of the day would be devoted to piling up the profits

The great day came A special wire from the scene of carnage brought in the results After a tedious wait (doubtless while they arrived at the scene) the first report came in One rabbit Shot by W P Fain Two hours later, report No 2 gave one bird, shot by W P Fain As the dusky shades of night fell over the earth, the final results came sizzling over the wire One rabbit two birds all killed by W P Fain

But what of Bill Gaston and the two Edwards What of Cliff Edwards and his forty dollar gun? Deponent knoweth not It is hinted that he decided to save the gun for bigger game Or that his heart refused to allow the slaughter of innocent rabbits and birds Or that the said rabbits and birds refused to be shot Anyway there was a hitch somewhere and as stated above results hardly came up to expectations

The Customer's Confidence

No matter what the transaction is confidence is the basis of all trade and the sole study is therefore how to establish that confidence

Some seem to think that enthusiasm and energy are all that is needed to get business They are necessary but along with them every salesman must cultivate the habit of observation without which he will never succeed in the study of human nature and cannot tell what effect his line of argument is having

While perhaps only a certain amount of talk is needed to close a sale there are various ways to make the statement of facts about any article and some one certain way is bound to be the most influencing to one kind or class of people while a different appeal influences others It takes a close observer to tell this before he may be getting too far on the wrong line of talk

For a time it may be necessary for the lesser observer to feel his way thus noting the effect on the customers and then he should go ahead at full speed

It is an old story that there are four different steps in selling no matter whether the article is small or large in price

First—the customer's attention must be attracted This may be done by advertising a personal call at the home or his call at your place of business

Next—his interest must be aroused Therefore it is essential that everything be done to attract his attention favorably

Third—as the desire to buy—impressing the customer of the need of the article for utility or for comfort

Fourth—and the most important to you is the decision to buy and to buy of you

Since you have the customer so far this ought to be the easiest step to take if you have handled it right yet it is proven in practice it is the hardest Many can get the prospect so far and no further This lack the ability to gain that element of confidence which is the subject of this article Before the fourth step is attained in your favor you must have secured your customer's confidence

If your manner talk and knowledge of your goods are not such as to inspire confidence uncertainty will take the place of desire on the customer's part

Whether you are an employer or an employee to a knowledge of your goods add enthusiasm for work This with experience and a reasonable amount of common sense will not fail to bring success

To a question as to the best profession a man can make for his family Justice Henry A Gildersleeve of New York replied

To a man of moderate income I would suggest life insurance as the best method of providing for his family but provision should be made for the payment at death of an annuity and not of the full sum at one time

An investment should be selected in such a way as to give the widow only the income

Rosebush Changes Color From Bright Red to Pink At Different Bloomings

Mount Airy Ga November 29—(Special)—A rosebush in Miss Cora McConnell's rose garden here has shown some peculiarity during the past season by variance in color at different bloomings

It is of the meteor variety and in former seasons was a true meteor In the early spring the first roses were a pale red the next blooming was the meteor later bloomings beautiful and fragrant pink roses covered the bush

LAURENS FARMERS TO HAVE 50,000 BALES

Dublin November 29—(Special)—Laurens county has taken the lead in cotton production for the present year outstripping Burke her nearest competitor by over 500 bales according to the ginners report up to November 14 This report which is the latest one issued gives Laurens county 43,376 bales and to Burke 42,870 bales Burke has been leading for the two reports preceding the one of November 14 with Laurens a close second and the people of this county have been watching the figures closely

The estimate of 50,000 bales for Laurens county is now considered as safe, as the county has a good deal of cotton in some sections that has not been gathered, and as the staple is coming in every day to Dublin It is considered safe to say that the crop in Laurens will beat least 50,000 bales, and possibly more This is the third year that Laurens has taken the lead in cotton raising in Georgia and she has already picked so far the second largest crop ever gathered in her history as a county.

His Love of Life Keeps Great Novelist in Hot Water

Kuprin, the Leading Writer of Fiction in Russia, Leads a Strange Life of Adventure — Constantly in the Limelight, Russia Is Wondering What Next Will Happen to the Weird Homeric Author.

He Has Been Assailed by Bandits, Fought Duels, Accomplished Almost Impossible Swimming Feats and Engaged in Bloody Bouts With Rival Authors--Only Novelist Czar Nicholas Can Read With Pleasure.

KUPRIN in CARICATURE.

(Copyright 1913 by Curtis Brown)

St Petersburg November 29—Russia is waiting to know what will happen to Kuprin the most talented novelist since the death of Tolstoy What will overtake the wild romantic genial nebulous and quarrelsome artist to whom something striking comes at least once a month? One day Kuprin is assailed by forest bandits next day he quarrels with an authors society next he fights a duel next he bets he can swim fifteen miles and next the world reads of his bloody boxing match in a fashionable salon There is something Homeric or Dumas like in Kuprin Russians expect him to climb Mount Kasbek or steal some Georgian princess outright or slay his publisher They expect his serial it will produce a brilliant novel and simultaneously smack the jaw of some worthless foe

Loves and Enjoys Life

Kuprin is king of Russian novelists precisely because of his Homeric or Three Musketeers character He is the one Russian writer who loves and enjoys life The morbid novelists the Andreyeffs Tchirikoffs and Andrei Bielys all neurotic psychopathical enemies and deriders of life and their heroes and heroines not fit to live They hardly even the pluck to drink a draught of poison But Kuprins heroes like himself think every thing in sight and their authors thirst and ambition are imaged in every page That makes Kuprin the essentially vital one of the most pessimistic of living pen artists and it explains why old Tolstoy ascetic as he was loved and lauded Kuprin and prophesied his worship to the skies

Homeric he does not look his part He is stout jovial bourgeois type who never looks ought to be selling anything but vast vivacity passionate stories loving appreciative life He lives and thinks with them But not until the evolutionary year 1907 did Kuprin spring into fame as author of The Duel The Duel ran through fifteen editions was dramatized and played wonderfully by the Art Theatre company and appeared in French German Italian and other tongues When The Duel came out Russia first learned that Kuprin was an ex officer that he had already written ten unread stories and that he was a jolly violent generous fellow with high contempt for the literary pedants psychopaths and drones who make poor Russia the dreary land she is

"The Duel" Caused Trouble

The Duel comes into the class of Beverley's Jena or Sedan the Tales of a Small Garrison Town and the Czech romance Under Arms It reveals the tiresome shiftless sides of army life and handles the problem of the army in its social relations its moral prejudices its disintegrating effect on individual personality Naturally The Duel caused trouble In some towns the stage version was forbidden The story is an ordinary one The young unspoiled line officer Romashoff falls passionately in love with the wife of an elder officer Anonymous letters betray him insults follow and the regimental court of honor requires Lieut Romashoff whose love has been spotless is convinced of the ineptness and folly of the duel but under pressure of caste feeling he obeys the decree to fight and is shot dead This very ordinary intrigue does not awaken the story which glows with clever descriptions of the tedious and empty life of a Muscovite line officer The book differs from the newer literature in that it goes straight into life And this vital verisimilitude is the merit of all Kuprins tales

Kuprin draws his strength from his own storms and highly colored life He has been everywhere and been everything After leaving the army he was official farmer river publisher manual worker and even circus performer These occupations appear in his writings The stories Allez The Circus and The Clown gives with striking reality the things he has seen himself The stories are grim Kuprin is however no pessimist If his heroes and heroines end badly he makes it clear that this is not the essence of life and that the failures are due to the criminal inability of men and women to enjoy an existence which is naturally vital and entrancing That is Kuprins only lesson for he is free from the publicist tendencies of other Russians who see in institutions the source of all human ills Kuprins stories over the wilful spoiling of life comes out clearest in his Utopian story of 2908 when all the worlds ills have been abolished and man is free and proud Kuprin paints the incorrigible man of Utopia as dissatisfied with his lot and as looking back enviously to the troubled past when all doles of happiness had to be won by struggle and bloodshed

He Loves Women

To Kuprin woman and woman's beauty are the essence of life Love is a great thing in its life it is spoiled only through the human inability to use it worthily In his stories Pearlies and Zidoika (The Jewess) Kuprin almost exaggerates the power of beauty This note is stronger still in his Bracelet Sulamith in which the exultation of the female body is carried almost to heights of mania Sulamith borrows its sentiment and imagery from the Song of Songs and it has scandalized the church fathers because of its relation to Holy Writ But at heart Kuprin counts as respectable In his attitude to sex for his stories again and again harp upon the misery and degradation to love of all forms of impurity

Kuprins stories deal with all sides of life The heroes are intelligents soldiers engineers aristocrats students Crimean fishermen peasants and criminals His story The Horse Thieves has been translated by Grand Duchess Cyril who is a great admirer and published under the pseudonym Therese Boimdre Kuprin has also written of the feminine underworld One of these stories The Pit is considered the strongest contribution to sexual pathology since Tolstoys Kreutzer Sonata

Kuprin is even greater than Kuprins tales His adventures would fill volumes When playing as circus performer at Kieff he attracted the attention of a black eyed equestrienne and so aroused the jealousy of the circus owner that a gypsy was hired to drive a dagger into his back Later Kuprin was nearly drowned and had it not been for his wife (who plays role of guardian angel) he would have perished He has had fierce quarrels with the literary critic Bunin and other unfriendly writers one of whom assailed him for exaltations into godhood of flesh and devil And the author of The Duel who exposed the vanity of duelling has been thrice challenged to duels Only an authors code of honor saved some one from the fate of Lieutenant Romashoff

In Conflict With Church.

Kuprin has duly been in conflict with the church and with the Black Hundred which is at the beck and call of the fanatical priests The Black Hundred threatened him and sent an emissary to take vengeance Kuprin made the emissary thoroughly drunk pinned the legend idiot to his back and tied him in a marsh with mud up to his waist His enemies thereafter left him alone

Next he had two fierce quarrels with brother artists First with Ralvil Ral vil made accusations against Kuprin's morality Over this a feud waged for weeks With Leonid Andreyeff the novelist and dramatist Kuprin had his other feud It culminated at a salon gathering of Russias literary aristocracy when Kuprin tripped Andreyeff up and engaged in a fight with him in which both lights of culture were covered with blood

That Kuprins literary talent is as great as ever his passions his craze for adventures and his intemperance of speech and action is admitted by Russias best critics Apart from the praise of Tolstoy who was a one sided critic he had the praise of the critic Michailowsky who died a few years ago To Michailowsky our officer novelist has a literary coldness and a psychological penetrativeness which we have not seen since Turgenieff s day Among living critics Ismailoff and Grigorieff are most enthusiastic over Kuprins talents and it is further said —which is not necessarily a compliment—that he is the only novelist whom Nicholas II can read It is hard to conceive a greater contrast than that between furtive Nicholas and full blooded brigand Kuprin

He Has Steadily Improved

Russians watch Kuprins literary production with amazement He is one of the few writers who has steadily improved on his first public success Also Kuprins personality is such that he cannot easily be forgotten Were he an intentional self advertiser he could not manage better to keep in the public mind than he does by his monthly incidents of different kinds And this is all the more puzzling because all who know Kuprin declare him as at heart a meek kindly devoted and studious individual who is devotedly and happily united to the third of a provincial wife

It is interesting as literature but is still more interesting as life Kuprin writing as he feels Kuprin producing great literature and by feeling as writes he keeps Russias public alive to the incessant question What will Kuprin do next

England Making Great Experiment in Socialism

Royal Commission to Consider Nationalization of the Railways the First Step Toward Saddling State With Undertaking That Will Cost $5,000,000,000.

Railroads Are Declining as Money-Makers, and Stockholders Would Be Glad to Unload--Business Men and Farmers Clamor for Better Service.

(Copyright 1913 by Curtis Brown)

London November 29—Railway nationalization so long talked of by theorists has become a question of practical politics in England within the last fortnight It has been made so by the appointment of a royal commission the terms of reference of which though vague are understood to comprise the big question of nationalization

These terms are

To inquire into the relationship between the railway companies and the state in respect of matters other than safety of working and conditions of employment and to report what changes if any are desirable in that relationship

Make-Up of Commission

The very make up of the commission indicates that serious consideration is to be given to the great business and financial problems involved in such a departure The members are

Chairman Lord Loreburn the ex lord high chancellor

The Earl of Derby formerly postmaster general

Sir Henry Primrose K C B late chairman of the board of inland revenue

F Huth Jackson late president of the Institute of Bankers

Sir F D Lycett K C V O late chairman of the board of Indian railways

Sir W Plender head of the firm of Deloitte Plender & Co chartered accountants and late president of the Institute of Chartered Accountants

A Balfour late master cutler of Sheffield

R E Brotherton agent to the Duke of Bedford

D J Shackleton senior labor adviser to the home office and previously Labor M P for Clitheroe

E W Pownall of the board of trade will act as secretary

Some idea of the magnitude of the task may be gained from the following figures relating to the railways of Great Britain and Ireland as they stood at the end of last year

Miles of line open	20 441
Total capital	£1 481 90
Passengers carried	1 491 00 048
Weight of goods carried (tons)	20 79 1 8
Gross receipts	£84 [illegible] 080
Working expenses	£40 [illegible] 1 1
Net profits	£46 615 [illegible]
Average dividend (per cent)	[illegible]
Rates and taxes paid	£2 [illegible] 000
Annual coal bill	£31 [illegible] 000
Annual wage bill (17 coys)	£80 020 6

Public opinion in this country has been slowly crystallizing in favor of nationalization and events of the last two or three years have had the effect of notably hardening that opinion even among railway shareholders who are now quite ready to fall in with any scheme which will substitute for their rather speculative and declining holdings of railway shares government stock which shall pay a fixed return regardless of earnings

Returns From Railroads.

The average return to railway shareholders in this country is now a little over 4 per cent Some important lines pay nothing at all and more pay dividends that are negligible in value No railways in this country bring in an adequate return to investors

It must be remembered too that in this country more perhaps than in any other railways are suffering from motor competition England is a country of small distances and it needs take less time now to make a journey from say a London suburb to a point 100 or 150 miles away by motor car than by rail The motor omnibuses take passengers door to door takes baggage and all and delivers them at their destination starting from the front door of a house in a London court and perhaps a drive of several miles at the other end The cost of such traveling for four or five people is actually less than the first class fare and the rich are more and more deserting the railways for the motor Even the third class traffic is suffering from the competition of the humble motor bicycle and sidecar which will carry father mother and the kids to the seaside for less money and in greater comfort than the railway

The same conditions are affecting the railway freight traffic It is some years now since the postmaster general found out that it was cheaper and better to send the mails by road up to 150 miles than by rail and now great motor vans carry London's letters and parcels to Birmingham Southampton, Colchester, Oxford Cambridge and other great centers of population Big traders have made the same discovery When a full load can be obtained road is cheaper than rail for the delivery of small goods being used more and more

The Labor Situation

Still another factor in the situation English railwaymen and still more for some years have been demanding more wages and better conditions and a little over a year ago the trade of the country was paralyzed by which was practically a general railway strike The government had to intervene and force the companies to grant concessions which put the situation on this count for the time being

Parliament has since passed and the rates were raised but the result was that the companies lost traffic still faster to the motor car and their condition was rather worse than before

The cry of the traders for better rates is a strong factor in the situation Foreign competition is hitting England harder and harder and it is alleged that the railways help the foreigner It is certain that cotton goods are carried to London from German at cheaper rates than from Lancashire while France, Denmark and Russia can land their poultry and eggs in London for less money than Ireland can Of course this is due largely to the fact that the foreign shippers send full carloads while the domestic producer feeds his market from hand to mouth, but that doesn't allay the British producers sense of grievance

Traders also have in mind the policy of countries like Germany and Belgium which use their state railways to foster their home trade

Another of the reasons of the decline of British railways as profit earning concerns is the mad orgy of competition which has been indulged in until quite recently Three or four lines, for instance run from London to Manchester and all their trains are running half empty It is possible to get a train almost once an hour One line or at most two would amply serve the traffic The same condition applies to Birmingham Glasgow and other big centers

Principle of Nationalization

The principle of nationalization is not a new one in British politics although there is not a mile of state owned line in the country Under the railway act of 1844 by virtue of which practically all the British railway companies are incorporated the state reserves to itself the right to purchase these undertakings at the end of twenty one years after their construction for a sum equal to twenty one years purchase of the annual net profits for the previous three years provided that these profits shall be under 10 per cent At present it is estimated that the purchase price of the railways on this basis would be roughly about $5 000 000 000 but as the profits are steadily declining the railway shareholders are quite willing to make a quick sale

The opinion of the companies is epitomized in the following statement by the manager of one of the greatest British railways

The real fact he said is that the people who have the most claim for grievances against the railways today are not the traders or the passengers but the shareholders It is they who though they have found the money to make the railways in Great Britain the best in the world have gained less in proportion than either the trader or the public For some years past the working expenses of railways have gone up by leaps and bounds and one railway has spent within the last half year alone an increase of over $4 000 000 in maintenance of way traffic and locomotive departments, and wages The following list for a recent half year in the case of the principal companies will show the extra sum paid for coal alone

	Extra cost of coal	Reduction in profits
Great Eastern	$220 000	$230 000
Great Northern	190 000	20 000
Great Central	193 000	360 000
London and South Western	190 000	390 000
South-Eastern and Chatham	165 000	200 000
London Brighton and South Coast	0 000	70 000

If the companies were given opportunity by the government to embark on enterprises which would be governed by commercial principles there is no doubt that the working expenses could be reduced but there would not be so great a saving from suppressing duplicate services as may be supposed

State and Private Railroads.

The following is a list of the principal countries of the world showing the mileage of state and privately-owned railways

	State Companies Miles	Miles
France	1 868	27 133
Germany	32,036	2 [illegible]
Belgium	2 [illegible]	370
Russia	19 726	12 6[illegible]
Italy	8 216	1 956
Austria	5 158	7 818
United States		218,101
Japan	4 572	442
Canada	1 877	18,702
New South Wales	3,281	81
New Zealand	2 407	113
	Total Miles
State-owned railways		161,244
Company-owned railways		388 548

Of course the attitude of the leading men in the government is important in considering the possibilities of nationalization Lloyd George the chancellor of the exchequer who is the real driving force of the government is frankly in favor of it He has declared so again and again and has promised to do all he can to bring it about As with the prime minister is at least not opposed to it He has made no public declaration since last May when he was on the fence In that month he said to a delegation of trade unionists and socialists who waited on him at the house of commons to urge railway nationalization

So far as I am personally concerned I do not think at this moment that the burden of proof which rests on those who argue in favor of nationalization has been satisfied

But the question is a very large and complex one and I think in all its aspects it is worthy of full investigation That investigation ought not to be one sided or partial but ought to embrace opportunities for hearing all the interests concerned—employers employees and public which after all comes in and is perhaps on the whole the most important factor in the case

Asquith Has Seen New Light

There is reason to believe however that Asquith has seen a new light since then and is ready to consider nationalization favorably as part of the great scheme of social and industrial reform of which Lloyd George is the prophet The beginning of this is the land policy whereby it is proposed to abolish the landlord in England much as he has been removed in Ireland and set up a race of small independent cultivators on the soil Obviously any such scheme must fail if the cultivators were unable to reach their markets in the great cities cheaply and quickly and if preference were shown by the carriers to their foreign competitors The railways might also be used to help the traders and manufacturers by a government which is pledged against the principle of a protective tariff and must have something to offer this very important class The labor men of course are wholly in favor of the scheme for the state is always an easier master than the private employer

It will be seen then that the prospects for railway nationalization are bright Everybody who counts is in favor of it even the shareholders who are to be 'expropriated and the only note of dissent comes from a few extreme anti-socialist doctrinaires

$1,000,000 Radium Cargo.

(From The New York Sun)

The largest shipment of radium ore ever sent out of this country left yesterday for France on the steamship Chicago of the French line It amounted to 150 tons and will yield a little more than 11 grams of pure radium which it was said will represent a cash value of $1 000 000

Hermann L C Thofebru of Paris who came here on a special mission to procure a large amount of this mineral for France said that he had gained control of the entire output of radium producing mines in Mexico and also owned 80 per cent of the ore production in the United States

Our fellow worker inquires, "What is worse than a gloomy day?' Candidly, two of them.

SHOT TAKEN AT CHURCH BY SIR HERBERT TREE

Answering Criticism of "Joseph and His Brethren," Says Religious Plays Here to Stay.

London November 30—There has been considerable criticism of Sir Herbert Tree because of his smashing of conventions by putting Joseph and His Brethren on at His Majesty's It is of great interest therefore to hear him give an interview his views on the subject of religious plays and the mission of the stage in that direction

You want to know the future of the stage he asked Well I will tell you in one word it is freedom Freedom of thought—not the freedom which is the greatest tyranny the world knows—the freedom to kill your neighbors character in public

I do not know he continued what the public will demand next year even next month but I am quite certain of this, that if the public want religious plays they will have them for it is not absurd as the clergyman said in this so called twentieth century to think that any branch of the most powerful of all—the bar of public opinion can be set upon the demands of humanity? The church in the dark past tried hard to ban science but it had equally hard to ban democracy today It will no longer ban the stage Now virtuous they must be who think that the stage will be decadential to a dwindling minority of fishwives and irresponsive to the boisterous commands of advancing humanity No one shrugs the shoulders at such grotesque absurdity But how to kill those influences which tend to make religion real which inculcate noble principles and which are on the side of truth and truth while the other thing the thing of detrimental dogmas passes without discussion and is left to the skies by the strictures of the public taste

Although bigots cannot master the stage they can intimidate managers they can make men nervous about providing good plays which are religious interest I cannot for the life of me understand why all refined people religious and secular will not most gratefully welcome in office so long as it is in office and beautifully framed will exhibit the noblest faculties of man's soul in action

HE QUIT BULL FIGHTING AT HIS WIFE'S REQUEST

With Scissors Spanish Hero Cut Off Lock of Hair That Was Husband's Badge.

Madrid November 29—Another famous Spanish toreador Machaquito has followed his wife Bonanita into retirement Machaquito and his wife were together in a cafe after a bull fight one Sunday when he had particularly distinguished himself when she said

Why don't you retire too? We are rich Why should you go on risking your life

Machaquito took a pair of scissors from his pocket and handed them to his wife saying If you wish it, I will never fight another bull

Senora Machaquito took the scissors and with one snap cut off the braided lock of hair which is the badge of the bull fighter Then she fell into her husbands arms sobbing The incident has caused as much excitement here as the downfall of the Romanones cabinet.

THE MAKING OF A FIRST-CLASS ATLANTA BOOSTER; SOME BOOSTERS I HAVE MET AND INTERVIEWED

We Are All Boosters, You Know, But There Are Boosters Extraordinary, Incurable and Chronic, Who Can Always Be Depended on at All Times to Hand Out a Redhot Line of Boosting Stuff.

By Ned Mehitabel

It was one or two afternoons last week and I was sitting at my desk in the Constitution office, trying to make myself believe that I was actually earning the $25 a week that I was receiving in payment for my services, when the telephone bell rang.

Being a reporter on the Constitution, I am frequently called to the telephone by persons who wish to tell me about some fire that has occurred in the suburbs, or about some prominent citizen who has died suddenly, or about some other matter of interest to the readers of the paper, but I had never before had a telephone message from a man who wished to tell me about the weather.

Before I had time to tell the Whitehall Peachtree car that I knew that Atlanta was the best town in the South, that Atlanta's assessors had overlooked a ton or two of real estate in their last trip around the city limits, that Atlanta's bank clearings were going to be the largest in the world, that Atlanta was the only city in the United States to be proud of New York and Chicago, which dislodged from the throne of the world's greatest commercial city, and

There is a hum of activity in the churches The home mission boards are working with might and main The pot of the Salvation Army is bubbling with pedestrian dimes The kitchen of the household is a seat of charitable endeavor Everywhere there are signs of the universal charity that awakens with autumn

The season of big-hearted kindness is upon us As the sere and yellow leaf enfolds its death out souls turn to love and generosity It's the spirit of Christmas the soul of Thanksgiving

It's a funny thing about autumn It would seem that charity would be predominant more in spring than in autumn but it isn't Spring it seems causes the heart to effervesce but the soul is mellow in autumn

A certain son who had left his native heath to do battle in the city, who so hard to stay in advance for a time and where he learned to appreciate with soul and appetite the comforts and table of his home in the pines and woods wrote his father on the eve of Thanksgiving, that he was depressed by his love

The father was a hard old soul He had to wield the same road and he too had fought just at that season of the year—that there would never be another such as land and her chance

He felt sheer sympathy for the son but the season was on and sympathy seemed to the father wrote

IT'S THE AUTUMN NOT LOVE

It's the time that in your soul my boy It's the season when man is moved deeply and his thoughts turn to fireplaces and companionship of dear ones that a Woman's heart fairly wells up to the rooftops and her soul sings a song of love in June

It's different with man When the wild winds make an organ harp of the splintered shingle and the fireplace roars with a warmth everlasting that's the time of year when man's soul wells with affection

The women are charitable in autumn Along about Christmas and Thanksgiving times I have seen some men so generous that they would give their husbands and fathers out and home for the sake of the poor and old. If you want to be kind little lady, wait until June and sacrifice for you at this time you can't resist love. It's symbolic

Children feel the spirit of giving It is not to be disputed that the first of winter is schedule time for the portion to begin writing letters to the hoary-haired old saint in fairyland and to begin making specifications of the chimney to ascertain whether or not it is ample to admit his portly figure

Did you know that Atlanta is one of the foremost centers of charity in America? Not Well, it is It's not published in advertising pamphlets not chronicled in poster talk, for true charity is modest.

HALF MILLION A YEAR.

But it's there just the same and Atlanta spends somewhere in the neighborhood of $200 000 annually for charity More charitable institutions are maintained here than in any other city of the south and, maybe, any other two cities For this reason Atlanta cares for a surprising degree of the entire state's charity cases

There is the tubercular victim the pauper the old veteran the mentally crippled the incurably diseased the orphan every type of dependent known all of whom find a welcome over the gates of Atlanta town so hearts that it dispels a wonderful lot of misery

The philosopher who uttered that it was happier to give than to receive no doubt was in Atlanta by birth breeding nature and spirit

Just consider the Associated Charities which spends nearly more than $20 000 the office of city warden with its $15 000 that goes to the needy destitute the Salvation Army sending thousands a helping all classes the Sheltering Arms with its homeless babes the Home for the friendless with its hundred kiddies who know no home nor parents the several orphans homes the Anti-Tuberculosis Society the Children's Home Finding association the Old Soldiers home the Paupers home the Home for Incurables and many, many others too numerous to mention

Then consider the hundreds of boys to the aid of which Atlanta has responded in the past Some time about a year ago an earnest hard working man whose home and family required every mite of his meager wages attempted to protect a pedestrian from the keen of a drug crazed negro

THE CASE OF AARON MORRIS.

Just one case Aaron Morris and his case aptly illustrated the benevolent soul of Atlanta He saved the negro intended victim but the knife struck into his own breast He dropped in his tracks dying before the ambulance could reach him Out at his little home a wife and several children stared destitution in the face as a result of the father's murder

But they didn't face it as long as they had feared A Constitution reporter who was born and reared in Atlanta spirit came for a picture of the dead man that night and returned to his office with two pictures—a photograph for which he had gone and a mind picture of the pitiful plight the little family

The next day Atlanta read and A number of good women took up the cause The newspapers began a campaign Hardly before anyone realized just exactly what was happening $1 000 had been banked for the future of the family of the dead Aaron Morris And, that's just one instance There have been hundreds of others Now suffers from need in Atlanta

The frost is on the pumpkin now The air is clear and cold and the first chapter of a new winter is being written. Just look at the accompanying photographs! Are they not enough to stir the soul? What would the world be without the spirit of giving.

These pictures were taken a day or so before Thanksgiving The one in which the women are grouped around the young mountain of vegetables and fruits and food was taken at the First Methodist church, where the Harvest day program last Sunday netted almost $500 worth of edibles

These were distributed by the good ladies of the church among the needy families and charitable institutions for Thanksgiving dinners All contributions had been made by the children of the church The program was observed by a number of other churches

One little chap brought 20 cents

"I didn't have anything else" he said, but I have been saving these three dimes for a long time and thought, maybe you might could use 'em'

They could use them Those thirty pennies inside the golden endowments that occupy front page space not infrequently look cheap and shoddy in the minds of the good folk of the city Fifty cents from a child—there's no telling how long he had been saving, perhaps for months and months, a penny a day

And, Speaking of Atlanta Spirit.

There's Mrs P S Arkwright, a leader in select church and social worlds She and a number of other church folk were discussing good cheer and editing the Wesley Mission house in the cotton mill district a few days ago

She and her party had driven in her car to the mill section The machine was burdened with fruit and all manner of fashion of good things to eat As the machine rolled up to the curb in front of the mission house, a swarm of children surrounded it The chauffeur began unloading the gifts on the sidewalk Mrs Arkwright directed the work

The throng eyes gaped on with saucer eyes and watering lips Some of them spoke weak but did it in whispers A wee figure with a dirty face and tattered apron caught Mrs Arkwright's attention He looked so pathetic and wonder struck. She grabbed him in her arms, gurgling something enthusiastically about his being the best of all things

The little shaver took the orange given him by Mrs Arkwright, but little or less unconcernedly. His mind seemed troubled with something else He never took his eyes from the pile of goodies Suddenly he looked into the face of the woman who held him still tightly for a moment then his eyes returned to the goodies on the curb Then he looked straight at Mrs Arkwright

"Say" he lisped, "can I take you home with me?"

Certainly she answered

"Don't you mind Klausthetha wife

No no she laughed Why?"

"I jus thought you wuth kin to him them sis or other—you dot tho pitch funkunta thtuff here"

WORK OF THE SALVATION ARMY.

With the church folk are helping the needy families, the Salvation Army's pot is perpetually boiling Last Thursday night scores of life's unfortunates sat down to a hearty feast that was donated by pedestrian Atlanta For several days the lassies of the Army had had their pots on downtown corners, procuring a nickel here, a dime there and a quarter yonder from passers-by who glanced beyond the big sign that told the pot's mission and visualized the happiness of the hungry and penniless squads who would sit down to the Army's Thanksgiving dinner.

This Christmas it will be the same, only the feast will be bigger and the feasters in larger numbers. All tragedy is taken from a tragic life when the wreck sits to a dinner of the Salvation Army's It is a charity so democratic, so cheerful. The dependent feels that the charity is given on the dependent's same level and he indulges in it feeling—as he is designed to feel—that it was given by folk of his or her own class

YOU SEE HER EVERYWHERE.

There is something so wonderfully sincere about the charity of the Salvation Army. The hardest thing on earth to do is to fail to recognize the tambourine of an army lass You see her everywhere on the streets of the city. The saloon, poolroom, the underworld, beneath the glitter of the white lights—everywhere, you see her a spirit of benevolence, soliciting benevolence, dispensing it.

As she walks into the saloon, the noises cease She has nothing to say—her tambourine speaks, and the money it contains tells how liberal others have been and suggests forcefully just how liberal you ought to be. It is strange—and, then, again it isn't—but the Salavation Army obtains more funds from the saloon than from any other source.

Maybe, it's because the giver feels that he eases his own conscience by donating. Maybe, it's because of the air of pity that clothes every girl of the army, for, as they represent a class worthy the pity and sympathy, they seem to carry with them a suggestion of pathos.

Whatever it is, it is something that has taken the wherewith of many a last drink.

This Christmas, every phase of Atlanta, in some fashion or other, will be a center of charity. Church folk, pedestrians, institutions, business men and women, transients, actor folk, the police, the newspapers, every stratum of life will participate in the season of philanthropy. Nobody need be without Christmas cheer and food.

From Decatur street to Peachtree the spirit will be uppermost The stockyard will have its cheer and the upper element will reach down to help less fortunate beings. The newsboys will give to one another, and even in the prisons there will be gifts

Brother Coogler, in his haven of refuge for the driftwood of life's shores, will dispense an imitation eggnog, that hasn't quite so much kick in it, being minus the nogg but is just as good And there will be music and service and a fine bath

The man on the beat won't be quite so conscientious if the jubilant partaker of yuletide cheer grows overaffectionate with a favorite lamp post The wandering tramp will find a glowing hospitality in the farmhouse and a benevolent stove in the wayside station The churches will have open doors and hearts to all

Everywhere there will be the warmth of love and charity

For such is Christmas time in Georgia.

New Evening Wraps

THIS season evening wraps are more gorgeous than ever before. The cloak in the centre is made of an exquisite Japanese blue brocaded velvet, that at the upper left is of a vivid green brocade, trimmed with ermine and curled ostrich feathers. The other wrap on the upper part of the page, which is made of rust-colored poplin, is likewise trimmed with curled ostrich feathers. The effect is very dainty. The cloak beneath is made of a Chinese mandarin coat. The remaining evening wrap is beautiful, indeed, bestrewn, as it is, with blue, rose and yellow beads over a satin foundation of a soft Alice blue.
