FRANK INNOCENT SAYS MAN WHO CLAIMS TO BE MURDER WITNESS

WHEN I QUIT, SAYS HUERTA, IT WILL BE TO SEEK REST SIX FEET UNDER THE SOIL

Mexican Dictator Indignantly Denies That He Has Resigned or Intends to Flee From the Capital.

MONEY FOR ALL NEEDS, BOASTS GEN. HUERTA

Huerta Declares That Lies Are Being Told in Order to Injure Him, But That He Will Stick to His Position.

Mexico City, October 18.—Provisional President Huerta has not resigned, nor has fled from the capital. When seen at the national palace at 5 o'clock this afternoon he said he had no intention of doing either.

"When I resign," said General Huerta, "it will be to seek a resting place 6 feet in the soil. When I flee the capital it will be to shoulder a rifle and take my place in the ranks to fight the rebels."

This was President Huerta's answer to queries as to whether there was any foundation for reports which have been freely circulated in the capital and have found their way to the United States.

General Huerta looked the picture of health and energy. He greeted the Associated Press correspondent with extreme cordiality, asked for a cigarette and listened to the explanation of the motive for the visit.

No Intention of Resigning.

"So it is reported that I have fled," the president said. "You can see for yourself that I am here at my post, to say that I have resigned or intend to resign is an absolute falsehood. I have no intention of resigning.

"Should the elections, which will be held as I have promised, indicate another for the presidency, I shall step aside. Until that time you will find me here complying with my promises to the nation, which are to re-establish peace, within the law, if possible, but to re-establish peace."

President Huerta interspersed his talk with anecdotes illustrative of his points.

"Another thing," said the president. "I have money for my requirements. Don't you think I haven't. Where did I get it? My secret!" he responded, tapping his chest with a satisfied smile. "But I have it."

On the question of pacification he declared that before the end of the month the government would have retaken Torreon and made headway toward the pacification of the state of Durango. "I have 8,000 men at Hipolite," said the president, "moving on Torreon and 2,000 more are proceeding north from Zacatecas."

"More Lies," Says Huerta.

In reply to a suggestion that further rumors were afloat to the effect that a troop train proceeding to Torreon had been blown up, he exclaimed:

"More lies! Nothing of the kind has occurred."

"It has been said that all Americans have been ordered to leave the capital," the interviewer mentioned.

In response General Huerta made a gesture of disgust. "What nonesense," he replied. "As I have repeatedly said since I came to the presidency foreigners, from Hottentots to the most enlightened, have received and will continue to receive every guarantee. Mexicans likewise, who obey the law, have nothing to fear from me. Transgressors must watch out. They shall be punished through every means the law affords."

In the opinion of General Huerta, the sensational rumors have originated with the enemies of the administration at the capital and elsewhere for the effect they would have with the revolutionists.

General Huerta is working from fif-

MY FATE TO KILL CORRUPT BOSSES, ASSERTS SULZER

Admirers of the Deposed Governor Gather at the Executive Mansion and Present Him a Loving Cup.

BIG MONEY IS OFFERED FOR SERIES OF LECTURES

One Man Willing to Pay Sulzer $100,000 for Season. Every Mention of "Boss" Murphy Is Hissed.

Albany, N. Y., October 18.—There was red fire, oratory and music by a brass band at the executive mansion tonight when several hundred admirers of William Sulzer called to present him with a loving cup.

Rain fell while the marchers were en route to the mansion. Sulzer started to shake hands with all his callers, but he never completed the task. They crowded around him and refused to move. Some one said a few words of consolation to him, only to be interrupted by Mrs. Sulzer.

"The action of the court is the least of our troubles," she said.

The crowd began to cheer. "We'll have you back here next year, Bill!" one man yelled.

Another enthusiast cried, "Hurrah for the next president of the United States," whereupon there was more cheering. Cheers for Mrs. Sulzer followed.

Hisses for Boss Murphy.

Chester C. Platt, Sulzer's secretary, read a speech, assuring Sulzer that he had been removed because he would not obey the bosses. Mention of the name of Charles F. Murphy brought hisses. "Lynch him!" shouted one man at the mention of the name of an assemblyman. The cup presented to Sulzer was inscribed: "To William Sulzer, a victim of corrupt bossism. October

MRS. PANKHURST TAKES HER CASE TO WASHINGTON

Leader of the English Militants Will Fight the Order Excluding Her From the United States.

MILITANT IS ACCUSED OF MORAL TURPITUDE

Mrs. Pankhurst Says She Was Tried by "Star Chamber." Women Stirred by Deportation Order.

New York, October 18.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, foremost of English militant suffragettes, who reached America today on the liner Prevence to appeal for the sympathy and support of the American people in "the revolution" for which she says she is fighting, is a prisoner tonight at Ellis Island under order of deportation awaiting the issue of an appeal which is expected to be decided tomorrow at Washington.

With Mrs. Rheta Childe Dorr, one of the English militants' strong sympathizers, who was "voluntarily detained" that she might be with her leader, Mrs. Pankhurst occupies the commissioner's suite of two rooms in the administration building. While presenting an appearance of barrenness, the rooms are comfortably furnished and are the best in the building. They are the ones in which Cipriano Castro, former Venezuelan dictator, was detained while his case was pending. From the broad windows overlooking the harbor Mrs. Pankhurst can see the statue of liberty.

Her Exclusion Ordered.

Mrs. Pankhurst was detained by an immigration inspector on her arrival here and was at once taken before a special board of inquiry which, after examining her, decided because she had been convicted abroad for acts involving moral turpitude she was an undesirable alien. The board therefore ordered her exclusion.

An appeal immediately was entered and Immigration Commissioner Camilletti is to hear argument on her case tomorrow in Washington.

Mrs. Pankhurst's representatives expressed confidence that whatever might be done about the appeal, the English militant would be released under bond for three weeks so that she might fill her speaking engagements here. Mrs. Pankhurst tonight had still another recourse under consideration.

"Of coruse, even if the appeal fails we still have the habeas corpus proceeding," she said.

Because of uncertainties surrounding the immediate course of the proceedings in her case, the meeting at Madison Square garden set for tomorrow night, at which Mrs. Pankhurst was to speak, was postponed today until Monday night.

Threatened Hunger Strike.

Mrs. Pankhurst seemed to have little doubt that she would be freed in time to speak at that meeting and to carry her message to the people of this country. She was on the point of starting a "hunger strike" when she heard that the deportation order was issued. But on learning that a speedy decision of the appeal was probable, she broke fast and swallowed with evident relish a chicken sandwich and a pot of tea, which she had requested.

"I am confident that whatever happens it will be good for the cause in which I am interested," she said. "I have great faith in the American people's sense of justice and fair play and I know they want to give me a chance

TRIAL OF WATSON BEGINS TOMORROW

Charged With Sending Obscene Matter Through the Mails in His Attack on the Roman Catholic Church.

Augusta, Ga., October 18.—No church officials have been summoned by the government as witnesses in the trial of Thomas E. Watson, of Thomson, Ga., charged with using the mails for the transmission of obscene matter, by printing in his magazines a severe attack upon the Catholic church in a series of articles, "The Roman Catholic Hierarchy; the deadliest menace to our liberties and our civilization." Watson's trial begins Monday, and will be the first business taken up by United States district court. If any churchmen are called to testify in the trial, court officials said today, they will be summoned by the defense.

S. G. McLendon, Watson's attorney who arrived here today, indicated that the defense of the former nominee of the people's party for president on the charge against him will be that "the liberty of the press" is attacked through him and that to convict him would be to attack the constitution of the United States.

Watson is expected to arrive in Augusta from his home tomorrow.

Judge Rufus E. Foster, of the southern district of Louisiana, who has been designated to preside, vice udge Emory Speer, will arrive tomorrow. A raidcal departure from the methods of Judge Speer was taken when the jury list, from which the twelve men who are to sit in the Watson case will be selected, was drawn in open court a week ago, one of Watson's attorneys being present. Heretofore, it has been an unwritten law with Judge Speer that federal jury lists should be safeguarded with the greatest secrecy.

FOUR PERSONS KILLED IN JUST BOUGHT AUTO

Mrs. Jerolleman and Family Trying Car at New Orleans When Struck by Engine.

New Orleans, October 18.—Four persons were killed and one is dying at Charity hospital tonight as the result of an accident when a terminal company switch engine, drawing a string of cars, crashed into an automobile at City Park avenue and Terminal crossing, containing the family of Samuel Jerolleman, Sr., a flour manufacturer.

The dead:

MRS. SAMUEL JEROLLEMAN.

SAMUEL JEROLLEMAN, JR., aged sixteen.

MRS. MARY GUITERREZ, mother of Mrs. Jerolleman.

SAMUEL CLOSE, chauffeur.

Mr. Jerolleman is not expected to live.

The car had just been purchased, and Close, with Jerolleman seated by him, was demonstrating the merits of the car. There are no gates at the crossing and the locomotive struck the automobile squarely, dragging it and its human freight 300 feet before it could be stopped.

Mrs. Jerolleman's body was dragged from beneath the firebox of the engine, where it was being incinerated. The body and head of Mrs. Guiterrez was severed, and her gray-haired scalp torn from her head. Young Jerolleman was also instantly killed, evidently by injuries to the skull. Close was rescued alive from the automobile, which was completely demolished, but died soon afterwards.

The engineer and fireman were put under arrest. The engineer said the car approached from the fireman's side of the engine, and that he applied the emergency brakes as soon as the fireman shouted, but too late to prevent the collision.

FOUR PERSONS ARE KILLED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES AUTO

Laporte, Ind., October 18.—Four persons were killed and one probably fatally hurt near here late today when an automobile, driven by Edwin W Schurz, treasurer of a piano company, was truck by a Pere Marquette freight train. The accident happened at what is known as the most dangerous grade crossing in northern Indiana.

The dead are:

MRS. EDWIN W. SCHURZ.

MRS. FANNIE P. HEINZE.

MRS. CARLETON SCHAFER.

All of LaPorte.

MRS. WILLIAM BRACE, of Washington, D. C.

Edwin W. Schurz was so seriously injured it is believed he cannot survive.

At the place of the accident the highway crosses the railroad tracks through a deep cut.

Schurz was driving at moderate speed, but failed to see a train, the engine of which was pushing a box car ahead. The box car struck the machine squarely. Schurz was thrown out clear of the track, but the four women were dashed under the train, Mrs. Schurz's body being cut in two. Mrs. Brace was the wife of a Washington druggist. All the other victims of the accident were prominent socially in this city.

SHOCKED TO DEATH, YOUNG BOY FALLS FROM TOP OF POLE

Mother and Twin Sister Are Witnesses of Tragedy at Corner of Rawson Street and Central Avenue.

DARE FROM COMRADES RESULTS IN ACCIDENT

Body of Victim Almost Strikes His Companions in Its Fall, After Claude Bowles Touched a Live Wire.

Electrocuted at the top of a thirty-foot pole while his mother and twin sister gazed on with horror, the lifeless body of Claude Eugene Bowles, aged 13, of 210 Rawson street, fell in the midst of a group of companions at Rawson and Central avenue late yesterday afternon.

He had taken a dare to climb the pole. Reaching the top, he grasped a high-tension lead wire at a point where the insulation had worn through. As he reached out his hand his mother, Mrs. W. A. Bowles, cried a warning. The next instant there was a flash, a choked scream of terror from the lad, and his body shot downward.

He was killed outright. The skin was seared to the bones of his right fingers. A hole was crushed in his skull, where it struck the pavement, head first. The body was removed to the Burkert-Simmons undertaking establishment. Funeral services will be held some time Monday at the residence.

Wouldn't Take Dare.

Late Saturday afternoon, Claude, with two chums, Fain Albert and Ernest Harwell, both of whom live in the neighborhood, met at the corner of Rawson street and Central avenue. Mrs. Bowles, mother of the dead boy, and his twin sister, Maude Lorene, were sitting on the veranda at No. 210. Fain challenged Ernest to climb a thirty-foot power pole at the corner. The dare was not taken. Claude was dared to do the stunt. He had never been knwn to take a similar dare, and, with pride in his past achievements, said:

"I'll take it—climb to the top, too."

Mounting the iron steps that projected from the pole, the lad reached the top. He swung about for a moment, looking down at his friends. Suddenly he was seen by his mother upon the porch of their home. She cried a warning.

"Get down from there!"

The words had no more than left her lips when the youngster, apparently losing his balance, reached out for the high-tension wire. A blue flame flashed from the wire, accompanied by a scream cut short, and the body fell to the ground, almost striking the shoulders of the Harwell boy.

Cry from Mother.

There was also a cry from the mother, who witnessed the tragedy. hSe threw her hands to the eyes to hide the spectacle, while the little girl who stood beside her ran to the boy's side. Mrs. Bowles was almost prostrated and her condition necessitated medical attention. An ambulance was called from Grady hospital, but the lad was beyond meidcal aid.

The body will be carried to Chester, S. C., for interment.

HE WILL TELL WHO COMMITTED CRIME ON ARRIVAL HERE

Makes Statement to Chief of Birmingham Police and Catches Train at Midnight for Atlanta in Company With Detective—Prominent Citizen Slew Girl, He Says, But It Was Not Frank.

By L. W. Friedman.

Birmingham, Ala., October 18.—(Special.)—A Birmingham man who says he was an eye-witness to the murder of Mary Phagan in Atlanta, and who asserts positively that Leo M. Frank is not guilty, left here at midnight tonight for Atlanta in company with a detective sent to Birmingham by Sheriff Mangum, of Fulton county.

This man, whose name has not been given out here, works in Birmingham, and is a respectable citizen, according to local police officers, to whom he made his statement.

"The guilty man is a prominent citizen of Atlanta," he told Chief Bodeker, of the Birmingham police, "but it is not Leo Frank. I have no interest in the case other than to see that no innocent man hangs for the crime, and I will tell the whole story when I get to Atlanta."

This man told his story to Chief Bodeker Friday, and the chief promptly wired Sheriff Mangum. A detective arrived today, and the man left with him for Atlanta at midnight.

Sheriff Mangum was reached by phone at his home early Sunday morning and stated to a Constitution reporter that he knew nothing about such a man in Birmingham—that he had never heard anything of the case, and had not sent a detective to Birmingham. Mr. Friedman, the man who sends the story to The Constitution, is a reporter for The Birmingham News, and has been for twenty years. He is probably the best known and one of the most highly respected newspaper men in Alabama. The Birmingham News is printing the story.

Bride's Queer Tale Jails Her Husband On Murder Charge

Found Suffering From Chloroform, Mrs. Arthur Davis, Rome Society Girl, Accuses Husband.

Rome, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Arthur Davis, son of a wealthy Rome merchant, was jailed today on the charge of assault with attempt to murder his wife, Mrs. Pauline Davis, a Rome society girl. After a few hours he was released on bond and it is understood that the prosecution will be dropped by his wife's relatives, who admit that her story of attempted murder was a hallucination.

Mrs. Davis was discovered suffering from the effects of chloroform and when she revived told astounded kinpeople that her husband had sent her for $2 worth of the drug and then had administered it to her with the intent to cause her death. Her relatives immediately had a warrant sworn out. The young man asserted his innocence and claimed an alibi, while the young woman, upon regaining her strength, withdrew former statements, attributed them to temporary mental aberration and exonerated her husband.

Both parties are prominently connected here. They were married in Chattanooga a few weeks ago and have just returned from a bridal tour to Little Rock.

MRS. PANKHURST TAKES HER CASE

to defend the movement which has been so misrepresented. There is no doubt that my detention is unjust."

Three things in connection with the examination of Mrs. Pankhurst seemed particularly to arouse her indignation. One was that she was accused of "moral turpitude," another that the proceedings were in secret and the third, that her "political opponents" in England had in her belief furnished much of the material used by the special board in questions put to her. Her examiners were courteous, "more or less," she admitted.

As to Moral Turpitude.

"The climax came," she declared, "when they said I was guilty of moral turpitude. Then I said, 'Your ancestors were guilty of moral turpitude when they threw the tea into Boston harbor.' I reminded them that Charles Stewart Parnell, Michael Davitt and John Redmond, the Irish political leaders, who were convicted under the same act of parliament under which I was convicted, were received here with open arms, although they destroyed property and were guilty of acts of a political nature and were convicted by parliament for them."

Mrs. Pankhurst, according to the stenographic report of her examination, admitted she had made incendiary speeches in England, but firmly denied she ever had advocated the taking of life.

"I have made speeches urging riot and rebellion, and the destruction of property when necessary," the minutes quote her as saying. "I always have urged that care be taken against the destruction of human life." Her object in coming here, she said, was that which the ancestors of present day Americans had in visiting Europe in the time of the revolution—"for support and sympathy." She freely admitted she had several times come in contact with the English authorities and been imprisoned.

"Star Chamber Proceedings."

After the questioning ended and the newspaper men were permitted to talk with her, Mrs. Pankhurst was quick to register her objection to "star chamber proceedings." They had "a bad moral effect," she contended. As to the decision of the board she said:

"Who is responsible for the action taken by the special board in ordering me deported? I am of the opinion it was done by our political opponents on the other side. I think the minds of the members of the board were made up before I arrived here. My experiences before the board were very painful to me. At the beginning I asked to have a lawyer present to look after my rights, but this was bluntly refused. The board refused to let me make explanations. They interrupted me on almost every word excepting that which I said about grounds of moral turpitude. I told them they certainly were prejudiced. The board had a copy of the act of parliament under which I was convicted and most of the questions seemed to me to me prepared or stereotyped. The members of the board did not seem able to define 'moral turpitude.' I did it for them.

"I was severely cross-examined in a manner that I believe was intended to make me fall into a trap. My deportation was ordered specifically on my conviction on an indictment found against me in England as the person who placed a bomb in Lloyd-George's home."

Untermyer to Aid Mrs. Pankhurst.

Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch and other suffragists who went to Ellis Island early this evening to talk to Mrs. Pankhurst on behalf of Samuel Untermyer, who had volunteered to plead Mrs. Pankhurst's case, they said, were informed that the island was officially closed for the day and that their interview would have to wait until tomorrow.

Herbert Reeves, Mrs. Pankhurst's counsel, spent the latter part of the day consulting authorities, to cite to the government officials in arguing Mrs. Pankhurst's cause and taking a copy of the minutes of the inquiry board, left tonight for Washington, where he expects to consult with Commissioner General Caminetti tomorrow. He apparently had not learned when he left that there was no probability of a formal hearing in the case at Washington tomorrow. The argument is expected to be that Mrs. Pankhurst's alleged offenses are political and that the government has no warrant in law for excluding her because of them.

Mrs. Pankhurst's coming has stirred up woman suffrage circles here as few incidents in the history of the suffrage movement have done. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who it has been understood, was ready to supply a bond for the English militant, should one be allowed, did not appear actively in the case today. Among other suffrage leaders the note of sympathy, while sometimes sounded, was frequently lacking.

Not In Sympathy With Mrs. Pankhurst.

Mrs. Mary C. Hay, president of the women's suffrage party in this city, declared the organization was not interested in Mrs. Pankhurst's visit.

"We are in no sense militants and not in sympathy with Mrs. Pankhurst's ideas," she said. "She, moreover, came to this country entirely on her own initiative and without any invitation from the women's suffrage party in America. We deplore the action of the United States representatives, however, because it gives Mrs. Pankhurst a lot of undue notirity and advertising without benefiting the real work of our society in the least."

So far as the personality of Mrs. Pankhurst is concerned, many preconceived notions of her were upset by her appearance and her general attitude as she was taken to Ellis Island and appeared before the inquiry board.

There was no suggestion of the hardy woman who could face self-starvation to gain freedom. The immigration inspectors watching her as she sat in the "well" in the board room, saw a delicate, pale woman of motherly appearance. Her voice as she responded to the forumi questions was that of a woman of good breeding. Tonight, weak after her experience of the day, she retired early, to all appearances composed for a good night's rest and without worry as to the outcome of her case.

PANKHURST PAPERS REACH WASHINGTON

Washington, October 18.—Commissioner General of Immigration Caminetti tonight received the papers in the record of the hearing today of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst by the board of special inquiry at Ellis Island.

Tomorrow the commissioner and Acting Secretary of Labor Post will take up the record for consideration, but the commissioner said tonight he had no intention of holding a formal hearing of the case Sunday.

"Such a proceeding would involve the holding open not only of the bureau of immigration, but also of the immigration station at Ellis Island and would be quite unprecedented," he said. It appears scarcely likely that final decision of the case will be announced before Monday. Then it will be determined by Commissioner Caminetti and Acting Secretary Post whether Mrs. Pankhurst shall be permitted to land in the United States, or, as the Ellis Island board decreed, shall be deported to France, whence she came, for her acts committed "for the cause" in England.

Protests and appeals on both sides of the celebrated case, couched in terms ranging from legal to extravagantly sentimental, continued late today to pour in on the immigration bureau and began to reach the white house. Those addressed to President Wilson were referred to immigration authorities. White house officials pointed out the section of the law which vests the secretary of labor with final authority in deportation cases.

Suffragists at headquarters of the National Association of Woman Suffrage, aroused at Mrs. Pankhurst's detention, engaged two attorneys to act with those coming from New York to plead for the British leader. One of the local lawyers is Miss Emma C. Gillette, a suffragist and dean of a local law college.

Commissioner Caminetti, while taking pains to make clear that Mrs. Pankhurst's case was being treated exactly as that of any other immigrant, pointed out that she was in ill health and that considerations due to a woman in such condition would be accorded her.

Commissioner Caminetti will go over the records tomorrow, consider her answers to questions propounded by the immigration inspectors and the special board at New York, with a view to determining whether any crime Mrs. Pankhurst admits having committed or for which she has been convicted involves "moral turpitude." His opinion will go to Acting Secretary Post, who, in the absence of Secretary Wilson, may sustain or reverse the immigration commissioner.

If the deportation order of the Ellis Island board is sustained Mrs. Pankhurst may be placed aboard the first ship sailing for France to the port from which she sailed. Such an order might be delayed by habeas corpus proceedings in the federal courts, as was recently done in the case of General Cipriano Castro, the Venezuelan exile, and which resulted in his liberation. In the Castro case court action was held in abeyance until the immigration authorities had finished with the question entirely.

With all officials agreed upon a speedy decision on Mrs. Pankhurst's appeal, it probably will be decided late tomorrow or early Monday.

Today there has been communication between the state department and the British embassy over the incident. Diplomatists pointed out that the suffrage leader might avail herself of a protest in her capacity as a British subject.

PROTEST TO WILSON BY INDIANA WOMEN

Indianapolis, Ind., October 18.—The Woman's Franchise league, of Indiana, at a meeting here this afternoon passed a resolution protesting against the government's action in refusing to allow Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the English militant suffragist leader, to enter the United States. A copy of the protest was telegraphed to President Wilson. It declares that "whatever Mrs. Pankhurst may be to the English government, she is manifestly a political offender and should be admitted to this country, as male offenders have been admitted at all times. To exclude her will be an example of sex discrimination against which the suffrage movement is a living protest in all countries."

STRONG PROTEST SENT TO PRESIDENT WILSON

Immediately upon hearing of the order of deportation issued against Mrs. Pankhurst, Grace Wilbur Trout, president of the Illinois Equal Suffrage association, sent a telegram of protest to President Wilson.

Mrs. Trout's telegram to the president follows:

"We deeply deplore the action of the authorities in ordering the deportation of Mrs. Pankhurst, which is not in accordance with the bigness of our American institutions. We have always allowed political exiles of other countries to visit the United States Men have never been excluded, and why exclude women?

"It makes no difference how we feel in regard to militant methods in England. No one who knows the facts can doubt for one instant Mrs. Pankhurst's honesty and sincerity. Shall America show a smaller spirit than France? Mrs. Pankhurst's daughter, Christobel, who is even more militant than her mother, fled to France recently, and was given the protection of the French government.

"Men, as well as women, are protesting against this action of the immigration authorities, and we trust that a kinder spirit will prevail, and Mrs. Pankhurst will be allowed to enter 'The Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave.'"

ILLINOIS SUFFRAGISTS MAKE STRONG PROTEST

Chicago, October 18.—Chicago suffragettes of all factions forgot their differences and at a hurriedly called mass meeting, united in a protest against denying Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst admission to the United States.

Some of them were in tears as they expressed their disapproval of the action of the immigration authorities and, after a number of strong speeches had been made, a resolution of protest was adopted and telegraphed to President Wilson. A message of sympathy was sent to Mrs. Pankhurst at Ellis Island. It was announced that a temporary bureau would be established to keep moving to Washington the objections to the treatment of the English suffragist.

"Mrs. Pankhurst should have an adequate and dignified hearing in this country," asserted Miss Jane Addams, chairman of the meeting.

"I am convinced that the admission of Mrs. Pankhurst cannot involve the suffrage movement," said Mrs. Ella Flagg Young, superintendent of schools. "I cannot conceive of any legitimate reason for any difficulty between her and the government over her entrance to this country."

ENGLISH MILITANTS GREATLY SURPRISED

London, October 18.—The order for the deportation from the United States of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, coming on top of the publicly announced defection of Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence from all forms of militancy, has caused consternation among the militant suffragettes here. The headquarters of the Women's Social and Political Union were open tonight, but only members of the rank and file reported. In the absence of officials few of them cared to talk for publication. They did not attempt to conceal their anxiety, however.

The famous war cabinet of the militant organization has been scattered by illness and prison bars. "General" Mrs. Flora Drummond is seriously ill. Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, Miss Annie Kenney, Miss Kerr and Mrs. Saunders are in jail, while others are absent in the country. Not an official could be found tonight to take charge and the cohorts gathered to learn if they could assist in any way their leader now in the United States.

Miss Amy Maud Hicks, who has served several terms in jail for window breaking and "obstruction," said:

"I am greatly surprised that the American immigration authorities should take action which would tend to make the United States, equally with England, the laughing stock of the civilized world as regards the treatment of militants, but I confidently expect that the American suffragettes will make such a protest as will lead to the rescinding of the deportation order."

At a meeting tonight presided over by the bishop of Kensington and attended by leaders of all shades of opinion, except adherents of the Women's Social and Political Union, Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence spoke, advocating the calling off of old scores in an effort to organize all branches of suffragists. The new campaign will be on entirely new lines without a hint of the violent methods which were formerly favored. Mr. and Mrs. Pethick Lawrence were forced out of the Women's Social and Political Union by Mrs. Pankhurst and her daughters several months ago, but continued their advocacy of militancy until today. The bishop of Kensington hinted that the church was now ready to become a positive force and would back up the women's movement conducted on the new lines.

Miss Mae Scott-Troy, of San Francisco, said:

"I know positively that the British government sent an intimation to Washington that it desired Mrs. Pankhurst kept out. To be imprisoned in England does not necessarily involve disgrace or prove moral turpitude. Parnell was imprisoned here, but afterward quite properly was warmly welcomed in America.

"To deport Mrs. Pankhurst would be illogical and absurd."

MRS. PANKHURST.

Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the famous militant suffragette of England, has been ordered deported by the United States immigration authorities at New York.

GOOD TURN FOR ENGLAND DECLARES MRS. CHANT

Boston, October 18.—Mrs. Armiston Chant, a leader of the peaceful suffragists of England, told members of the Twentieth Century club today that she heard of the order to deport Mrs. Pankhurst "with an overwhelming sense of gratitude." She called it a "good turn for England."

"We have suffered there acutely," she said, "in fighting for the rights of women. To be right is a thing to be striven for, and the methods used in striving are not to do evil that good may come, however enticing and expedient the end may be seem."

Mrs. Chant, who arrived in this country from England last Thuraday, heads a company of British delegates to the Woman's Christian Temperance union convention to be held in Brooklyn, October 23.

Standard Freight Cars.

The New Haven wreck, in which an obsolete signal system and antiquated wooden sleeping cars furnished the reason for such fearful loss of life, cannot fail to shorten the time when those railroads which do not voluntarily remove these risks to human life will be forced by law to provide greater safeguards. Only a few days later, on another road, a passenger train traveling at even faster speed left the track and overturned. Though some of the passengers were injured, no one was killed. The steel cars withstood the shock.

While the wreck of freight trains involves a much smaller loss of life and usually money, the losses from this source run into millions of dollars yearly. President Ripley, of the Santa Fe, in a recent article discusses a condition which has not occurred to the layman. As we all know, under the system of interchange of cars in this country, one almost never sees a feight train composed entirely, or even largely, of cars belonging to the road over which it is running. On the contrary, a long passing freight is a kaleidoscope of names and initials of railroads located in almost every state, with cars built by numerous builders; a confusing collection of cars of various sizes, types and age. Under our system of through shipments this is inevitable, and, no matter how careful any one road may be to maintain its own rolling stock in a condition of efficiency and safety, there is the constant danger of a decrepit car from some other line breaking down and causing a wreck. Under the interstate commerce regulations this has been safeguarded to some extent by heavy-penalty regulations which require each road to inspect every car received from another before accepting it. If in bad order in certain parts, it must be repaired before proceeding.

This helps some, but, as Mr. Ripley states, there are essentials which no eye can measure. Who can see into a wheel or car axle, for instance, and discern the crystallization which means a break at the first unusual strain or shock? Some roads, short of both money and cars, when in the market for new equipment, naturally get the largest number of cars they can for the funds available. It is self-evident that $1,200 will build a better car than $800, yet each is expected to carry the same load. The railroads have been having an anxious time of late years, and it is impossible to throw away the hundreds of thousands of cars which must fall below a certain desirable standard. The traffic of the country would be blocked. It does seem possible, however, to decide on a certain standard for each type of freight car, and thereafter to require all new cars to be built in accordance. At present each car builder has certain features of his own which differ from the other builders. This largely and unnecessarily increases the cost of repairs, on account of the great variety of parts which must be kept on hand.

Mr. Ripley says: "I suggest a standard car uniform in all essential details, to be arrived at by agreement, if possible—arbitration, if necessary. If in addition we could establish a freight-car pool, or an equipment company, the stock of which should all be owned by the railroads, so much the better."—H. H. Windsor, in the November Popular Mechanics Magazine.

British Metaphor.

Pegoud, the French aviator, who loops the loop upside down, has inspired the sport writers of Great Britain to attacks upon metaphor unknown before in that solemn land. William Shakespeare speaking through Hotspur says: "I tell you, my lord fool, out of this nettle danger, we pluck this flower safety," but they speak of the air-man in his lofty tumbling as "plucking the whiskers of catastrophe," which is several sizzles beyond Master William.

BAGGING AND TIES IN TRUST'S GRIP

Secretary Redfield Says Combine Is Gouging the Cotton Planters—Atlanta Concern One of Few Independents.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, October 18.—(Special.) Secretary of Commerce Redfield, in a report submitted to the senate today, virtually charges the Canegie Steel company, of Pittsburg, with responsibility for the advance in the cost of cotton ties, which has put a burden upon the cotton industry of several hundred thousand dollars per season.

The Carnegie company makes 1,500,000 bundles of cotton ties annually and the Pittsburg Steep company 300,000 bundles.

Atlanta Concern Independent.

The only independent competitors of this combination are the Atlanta Steel Hoop company, with an output of 300,000 bundles, and Connors, Weyman & Co., of Helena, Ala., who produce 150,000 bundles, and the Sharon Steel Hoop company, of Sharon, Pa., whose output is 100,000 bundles.

The yearly sales of ties by the Atlanta Steel Hoop company range from 249,000 bundles in 1909 to 440,944 bundles in 1912, and the price per bundle ranges from 71 cents in 1909 to $1.03 in 1912.

The trust has also established virtual control over cotton bagging, according to the official government report. The American Manufacturing company absolutely controls the price of cotton bagging in this country. That price determines what is demanded by importers, re-weavers of old bagging, dealers in second-hand sugar bags and other covering for cotton.

Sugar Bags Used.

In the Montgomery, Ala., district old sugar bags are used almost exclusively for covering cotton, the report showing that no new bags have been purchased in several seasons.

The report emphasizes criticisms long made against the method of preparing cotton for market, saying: "Probably no crop is prepared for market in so careless a manner, or so poorly covered as American cotton."

The report was prepared by D. M. Barclay, assisted by W. A. Graham Clark, cotton experts of the department of commerce. Their conclusions are that the advance in the cost of bagging and ties is due to the following causes: Control of the price by the trusts, advance in the price of raw material, scarcity of ties, large cotton crop, bagging held in warehouses and small imports.

Landing Field Guns From a Battleship.

That the landing of field guns and munitions of war on shores which vessels cannot approach closely is one of the exciting tasks for the men on the warships of the world's great navies is thrillingly demonstrated in the handsome cover design of the November Popular Mechanics Magazine. The maneuver is especially necessary in the navies of the colonial powers which must be in readiness to land fighting forces on any of the unapproachable shores of their colonies. British, German and French sailors have long been trained in making such landings and since the United States has become a colonial power the crews of American battleships are likely to be called upon for similar service.

The battleship or transport carrying the guns anchors as near the shore as possible and a cable is stretched from the vessel's deck to a tripod derrick on shore. A two-wheeled trolley from which are suspended the various parts of the guns is drawn along the cable by a rope running to the men on shore. The guns are dismounted and several trips are necessary to land all the parts of one gun. The most thrilling part of the work is carried on by the men who ride on the load to keep it from swaying or becoming unfastened from the trolley.

Self-Supporting Manual Training School.

Vocational training took a step in a new direction in Wisconsin last summer through the initiative of the manual training students in the Waukesha High school, says the November Popular Mechanics Magazine. Sixteen of the students organized themselves into a co-operative company and turned the manual training rooms of the high school into a manufacturing plant during the summer vacation. The plan was originated and carried out by the students under the advisory supervision of the city superintendent of schools. They furnished their own materials and paid rent for the use of the manual training quarters. Their training thus became not only self-supporting, but yielded a small profit for the students. The work carried on consisted in building furniture along mission lines, doing odd jobs as carpenters and taking contracts to build sheds, chicken coops, farm gates and other small structures.

The Lovers' Resolution.

Shall I, wasting in despair
Die because a woman's fair?
Or my cheeks make pale with care
'Cause another's rosy are?
Be she fairer than the day
Or the flowery meads in May—
If she be not so to me
What care I how fair she be?

Shall my foolish heart be pined
'Cause I see a woman kind;
Or a well disposed nature
Joined with a lovely feature?
Be she meeker, kinder, than
Turtle-dove or pelican,
If she be not so to me
What care I how kind she be?

Shall a woman's virtue move
Me to perish for her love?
Or her merit's value known
Make me quite forget mine own?
Be she with that goodness blest
Which may gain her name of Best,
If she seem not such to me
What care I how good she be?

'Cause her fortune seems too high,
Shall I play the fool and die?
Those that bear a noble mind
Where they want of riches find.
Think what with them they would do
Who without them dare to woo;
And unless that maid I see,
What care I how great she be?

Great or good, or kind or fair,
I will ne'er the more despair;
If she love me this believe,
I will doc ere she shall grieve;
If she slight me when I woo,
I can scorn and let her go;
For if she be not for me,
What care I for whom she be?

Watch Carefully the Child's Diet

Start Them Off Right With a Good Laxative and Then Watch Their Food

Mothers are often unconsciously very careless about the diet of their children, forcing all to eat the same foods. The fact is that all foods do not agree alike with different persons. Hence avoid what seems to constipate the child or to give it indigestion, and urge it to take more of what is quickly digested.

If the child shows a tendency to constipation, it should immediately be given a mild laxative to help the bowels. By this is not meant a physic or purgative, for these should never be given to children, nor anything like salts, pills, etc. What the child requires is simply a small dose of the gentlest of medicines, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, in the opinion of thousands of watchful mothers, is the ideal remedy for any child showing a tendency to constipation. So many things can happen to a constipated child that care is necessary. Colds, piles, headaches, sleeplessness and many other annoyances that children should not have can usually be traced to constipation.

Many of America's foremost families are never without Syrup Pepsin, because one can never tell when some member of the family may need it, and all can use it. Thousands indorse it, among them Mrs. M. E. Patten, Valley Junction, Iowa, who is never without it in the house. Mrs. Patten says that Syrup Pepsin has done wonders for her boy, Ralph, who was constipated from birth, but is now doing fine. Naturally, she is enthusiastic about it and wants other mothers to use it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being bought by those who already know its value and it contains proportionately more.

Everyone likes Syrup Pepsin, as it is very pleasant to the taste. It is also mild and non-griping and free from injurious ingredients.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington street, Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

Go Pimples--Come Beauty

This Is What Happens When Stuart's Calcium Wafers Are Used to Cleanse the Blood of All Impurities and the Skin of Eruptions.

If you want a beautiful complexion, stop using cosmetics, salves, lotions, etc. They simply plaster the pores and prevent them from doing their natural and normal duties. If you stopped up all the pores, you would actually die in a few days.

"Not a Pimple or Other Skin Eruption Left—I Used Stuart's Calcium Wafers."

There is no sense in being longer humiliated by having to appear in public with a pimple-covered, blotched face—a face that makes strangers stare and your friends ashamed. Stuart's Calcium Wafers will drive all blemishes away and make your face a welcome instead of an unwelcome sight. You'll no longer be a slave to pimples, acne, blackheads, liver spots, boils, eczema, tetter or any skin eruption.

Nowadays, when you see a real beauty, the chances are Stuart's Calcium Wafers wrought that wonderful change. It takes only a short time, even with very bad complexions—the kind that are disfigured with rash, eczema, boils, blotches and liver spots.

Stuart's Calcium Wafers cause the skin pores to breathe out impurities. The lungs burn up a great amount, but Nature imposes upon the skin the larger burden. Every tick of the clock means work, work for these wonderful Wafers. And every instant new skin is forming, impurities become less and less, the pores are reinvigorated, and soon such a thing as a pimple, blackhead or any other eruption is impossible. You marvel at the change.

The soft, rosy tint love-taps the cheeks; the neck, shoulders and arms show the health of youthful skin—in fact, you just can't help having a beautiful complexion if you use Stuart's Calcium Wafers.

They are put up in convenient form to carry with you, are very palatable, and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents a box.

Postmaster Jones' Bible Class Guests of Teacher

MEMBERS OF BIBLE CLASS AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH.

Nearly 200 young men, who a year ago had given up attending Sunday school, imagining that they were becoming too old for that sort of thing, but who after meeting Bolling H. Jones, recently named postmaster of Atlanta, were made to think differently and promptly became members of his Bible class at the First Baptist church, were the guests of honor at a dinner served at the Hotel Ansley last Friday night, their teacher, Bolling H. Jones, being host. When Mr. Jones took over the class last January it had but five members. Mr. Jones at once started out to get pupils. The present enrollment is 165 young men. The postmaster recently declared that he would rather resign his office than give up the class, for he declared, "they are all my boys."

Mail Distributing Cabinet Invented by Atlanta Man

That it has remained for an Atlantan to solve the economic problem of handling the ever-increasing mail and to make room in postoffices for the parcel post business is the belief of many who have examined a mail distributing cabinet invented by W. W. Lotspeich and now placed in the Atlanta postoffice for demonstration purposes.

W. W. LOTSPEICH.

With the addition of the parcel post, which is being regularly increased, it has been estimated that under the present system of handling the separation of letters and post cards $100,000,000 would be needed to enlarge postoffices throughout the country.

Through the mechanical compactness of the new cabinet, which the inventor believes will take the place of the larger pigeonhole cabinets, it is believed that half the floor space will be conserved, and that very few additions will be needed to the mailing rooms.

System Now in Use.

Under the system now in use, a clerk stands before a cabinet some ten feet long and places letters in pigeonholes in front and to both sides of him. His hands are forced to travel an average of five feet in distributing the mail. The new cabinet is so arranged that he drops the letters through slits directly in front of him, and the surface of each cabinet is only two feet long by three and a half feet wide. The letters are taken out from the rear of the cabinet.

Through the scientific saving of hand and body motion which the new cabinet will make possible, it is estimated that from 20 to 40 per cent of time will be saved, and that the clerk will not tire as easily as when compelled to reach a long distance to place letters.

In a way the new cabinet is arranged so much like the old ones that clerks familiar with the present system may operate the new one easily and without being given special training for it.

Saw Need of Cabinets.

The inventor, who is a mechanical and electrical engineer, now employed by the public school system, installed much of the electrical apparatus in the Atlanta postoffice, and while there saw the need of cabinets that would not take up so much floor space and would not require so much effort on the part of the clerks.

His patent was secured through Attorney Frank A. Doughman, and at once Mr. Lotspeich took the matter up with the postal authorities at Washington and secured the right to place the machine in the Atlanta office for demonstration. Many clerks have already tried it, and an official demonstration will be given in the near future.

To Borrow $1,500,000.

New Orleans, La., October 18.—By a decree of the United States district court signed in Atlanta by Judge Rufus E. Foster and recorded in this city today, J. D. O'Keefe, receiver of the New Orleans, Texas and Mexico railroad, a part of the Frisco system, is authorized to borrow $1,500,000, or in no event to exceed $2,000,000 for the year ending September 14, 1914. The receiver is authorized to issue $850,000 certificates at once. Of this amount Frank Andrews, receiver of the Frisco properties in Texas, is to receive $375,000.

Radium in a Spring.

Williamstown, Mass., October 18.—Professor J. H. Schrader, of the department of physics at Williams college, announced today that he had found traces of radium in a spring near this town. According to the experiments, the presence of the rare element seems to be manifested in the form of gas, and so far all efforts on the part of Professor Schrader to reduce it to salts of radium have proved unsuccessful.

LAW HURT BY DIVE FROM FLYING BOAT

New York, October 18.—Rodman Law, who frequently has been hurt while performing unique feats of aviation, was injured again today when he dived from a flying boat into Staten Island waters. He was taken to a hospital with a strained back, after a headforemost plunge from the air machine while it was traveling 70 miles an hour.

Law was in the flying boat with William Thaw, of Pittsburg, and Stephen MacCordon. There were seats for two in the machine, but a place was rigged up for Law on one of the wings and from this Law made his dive from a height of 50 feet. He struck the water on his back. Men in row boats rescued him.

"Spanish Inquisition" Methods Laid to Police By Miss Alief Benton

Policeman John D. Wood will on Tuesday night be tried on charges preferred by Miss Alief Benton, William E. Southard and his wife, Elizabeth Southard, alleging intimidation of witnesses, police persecution and conduct unbecoming an officer.

A special session of the police commissioners has been called for that date and over 35 witnesses have been subpoenaed by the prosecution.

"I am charging that the Spanish inquisition is being re-enacted right here in Atlanta," declared Miss Benton last night. "I have come to Atlanta from Macon to personally see to it that justice is given my sister, Mrs. Southard."

According to Miss Benton her sister has been forced to move from her home on several occasions by Policeman Wood, who has also brought cases against Mrs. Southard, which have later been dismissed in police court by Judge Broyles. The plaintiffs are represented by Attorneys Tom Lewis and Leonard Grossman.

WEST AFRICAN TEACHER TELLS NEEDS OF NEGRO

Emily C. Kinch, who was a teacher in West Africa for years, but now lives in Philadelphia, spoke to the teachers and students of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute at their devotional exercises Friday morning. The condition of the negro school youth of America was contrasted with that of the heathen without clothes or opportunity in Africa.

The missionary instructor commended the principles for which the school stands. The students were urged to make much of the chances afforded them. She laid stress on the fact that school books were hardly half of the essentials the mass of the race were actually in need of. She told the teachers that the real problem of the negro boy and girl of today were largely in their hands. She said good manners, combed heads, washed faces and hands clean, common sense clothes, a good trade well learned were the essential elements in starting a boy or girl in life to do well.

"IGNORANCE OF LAW" CHARGED TO PRESTON

Judicial Coercion and Unfair Tactics Alleged in Petition for Habeas Corpus.

In a writ of habeas corpus filed by Attorney William Smith Saturday afternoon with the superior court to secure the release of Andrew Morton and Sam Holder, two negroes charged with blind tigering, Recorder Pro Tem. Preston is charged with "judicial coercion, unfair tactics and gross ignorance of the law."

Several days ago the negroes were arrested under a section of the city code charging "traveling blind tigering." After a part of the evidence had been submitted at their hearing in the recorder's court Saturday afternoon, Judge Preston ruled, it is alleged, that they could not be convicted of the charge as brought against them, and stated that he would change the charge to another section of the code, making the charge "keeping liquors on hand for sale."

To this Attorney Smith objected on the ground that they could not legally be charged with a second crime before the trial of the first had resulted in an acquittal or a conviction.

Judge Preston, however, could not see it that way, and, overruling the objection, ordered that the negroes be taken back to their cell in the station house to await trial on the second charge, which he set for Tuesday morning.

Judge Bell will hear the habeas corpus proceedings argued Monday at 12 o'clock.

ANOTHER BRIEF FILED IN BEHALF OF THAW

Concord, N. H., October 18.—In a supplementary brief on behalf of Harry K. Thaw, filed today by his counsel with Governor Felker, it is declared that Thaw has been detained under arrest nearly six weeks on a defective requisition petition supported by the allegation of an indictment which never existed and during all that time no indictment has been obtained.

The brief questions whether the requisition for Thaw's extradition is made in good faith and whether the state of New York demands Thaw's return for the purpose of trying him for conspiracy or for the purpose of reincarcerating him in the Matteawan hospital for the insane.

"If it is the latter purpose which actuates New York," the brief says, "it is illegitimate; and for the governor of New Hampshire to honor the requisition would be illegal."

The brief then gives what it declares to be the facts as to the attempt to indict Thaw. In conclusion the brief says:

"It is open to the governor of New Hampshire to make due inquiry whether Thaw was indicted in New York; and when the facts are ascertained due weight should be given in considering the vital question of the good faith of New York, to the fact that up to the present time there never had been an indictment for conspiracy for Thaw in New York."

BILL HID IN MATTRESS TAKEN BY CLEVER THIEF

When Mrs. Elizabeth Cay, 215 Courtland street, returned home from a shopping trip Saturday afternoon she found that a ten-dollar bill which she had secreted in a pocket of her mattress, the hiding place of which she thought known only to herself, had disappeared.

Upon making an investigation she discovered that a rear window of the house had been jimmied. She immediately notified the police, and officers were detailed on the case. It is the theory of the police that the robber was hiding in the house and saw Mrs. Cay hide the money, as the latter is positive that it could not have been found by one who was not aware of the secret pocket in the mattress. This is the third robbery to occur in this block within the past ten days.

OLD SOUTHERN VETERAN NOW IN NEED OF HELP

H. L. Atwater, a confederate veteran, and until recent years one of the best known business men of Atlanta, is reduced to the point where he has to call on some of his more prosperous friends for a helping hand.

Mr. Atwater served throughout the course of the great struggle between the states locating in Atlanta at the close of the war. He was for many years the southern representative of the Milburn Wagon company, until the concern was sold out to a competitor. Some months ago he was compelled, by breaking health, to give up active business altogether, and since that time he has been receiving aid from the Masonic lodge, of which he has been a member for many years.

Mr. Atwater owns three valuable diamond rings and other jewelry which he has turned over to one of his lifelong friends, C. D. Montgomery, who has been commissioned to dispose of them for his benefit.

WORKING WITH PISTOL, HE KILLED HIS MOTHER

Norfolk, Va., October 18.—Mrs. Jenning Williams, 66 years old, was accidentally shot and killed at her home, 814 Southampton avenue, tonight by Walter H. Williams, her 19-year-old son. Walter was cleaning a revolver and had taken four of the five cartridges from the weapon and placed them in his mother's lap. The fifth cartridge was difficult to extract and the boy was trying to pry it out with a pair of scissors when it exploded. The bullet entered Mrs. Williams' left temple. She died almost instantly.

JACKSONVILLE HONORS LATE J. R. PARROTT

Jacksonville, Fla., October 18.—With his widow racing homeward on a trans-Atlantic steamer from Europe to be present at his funeral in this city, October 23, Jacksonville, Fla., tonight paid its respects to Joseph R. Parrott, the dead president of the Florida East Coast railway system, with a throng present at the Union depot here. The end came to the well-known railway man at Oxford, Maine, the place of his birth, and where he usually summered.

That he be buried in Florida, the state of his great activity in railroad-building and development, was a request of his and this is being complied with. He was a graduate of Yale, a member of its boat crew, a lawyer when he entered professional life and for many years the right-hand of the late Henry M. Flagler in matters of railway enterprise. He succeeded Mr. Flager as president of the Florida East Coast system, on the death of the latter.

Cotton at Athens.

Athens, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—The receipts of the Athens cotton market are already twice what they were this time last season and would be four times as great if there were not now existing the greatest car shortage known in the history of the five lines of road entering Athens.

Musical Editor and Authority Has Broad Mission Purpose

A citizen of the world John C. Freund has been called. The United States holds his patriotism, but his devotion to the cause of art, especially music, is imbued with the world spirit.

He will be heard at the Capital City club Tuesday night, his appearance being under the auspices of the Atlanta Musical association, and his address will prove a position broader than national or patriotic. For instance, it is part of his mission work to lift from music in America the reproach which comes from the traditional music centers abroad that America has no art standards, no creditable achievement, and certainly not America alone, but the universal cause of music will be the beneficiary when this mission succeeds in putting one of the most significant elements in modern musical progress—namely, what America is doing—in its right relation to the universal cause.

Among Mr. Freund's leading efforts to this end are a broader publicity for statistics as to music and musicians in America, and encouragement of a musical culture among musicians broader than their own particular line. His revelations in the first respect have been sensational, and they have been quoted by the leading and most conservative newspapers in the east. They will probably form the theme of his discourse Tuesday night.

Editor Musical America, and prominent in musical interests, who will deliver a lecture on Tuesday evening, October 21, at the Capital City club under the auspices of the Atlanta Musical association.

JOHN, C. FREUND,

Undesirables Turned Back.

New York, October 18.—An unusual number of aliens were deported from the Ellis Island immigration station today when 175 persons excluded as undesirables, were placed on board ten out-going steamships bound for Europe. Many of the cases were those of diseased persons and several were women with families of young children.

Warner's Safe Remedies

The Remedy for Rheumatism

Acute rheumatism is an inflammation of various parts of the body, characterized by general fever, by pain, heat, redness, and swelling of the joints affected, and by a tendency to leave one joint suddenly and fasten upon another. It is primarily the result of the failure of the kidneys to take uric acid out of the blood.

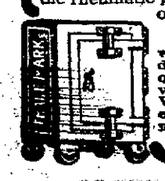
Warner's Safe Rheumatic Remedy is one of the most effective remedies known to medicine in expelling uric acid from the system, and it thereby removes the rheumatic pains and eliminates all traces of the disease.



"I had rheumatism so badly that I was unable to walk except with great difficulty, and I had taken a large quantity of doctor's medicine with very little relief. Four bottles of Warner's Safe Rheumatic Remedy entirely cleared my system of rheumatism."—Mrs. B. M. Crehore, Nashville, Tenn.

Sam H. Venable's Druid Hills Home Fulfills Dream of Twenty-Five Years

Here is an architect's wash drawing of the impo sing Tudor mansion which Sam H. Venable is building in Druid Hills. Mr. Venable, who is an extensive operator of the Stone Mountain quarries, has been selecting the material for this house for twenty-five years. The building was designed by Edward E. Dougherty.

Where is the man who has not said in his heart, "Some day—some day I am going to build me a home—a house beautiful—planned and constructed entirely according to my heart's desire?"

And how few men ever reach the realization of this happy dream! For most a bungalow, designed according to the ideas of some one else maybe, usually—thanks to man's ability to adapt himself to the present fact in lieu of the ideal future—answering every purpose quite as well as a country home set in the midst of Elysian fields themselves.

But here is a man who has dreamed his dream of his house ideal for a quarter of a century, for twenty-five years has been selecting just such material as he wanted to put into the construction of the house, and is now about to see his dream come true.

This man is Sam H. Venable, of Venable brothers, one of the largest operators of the stone quarries of Stone Mountain.

And his dream is the handsome $75,000 stone residence which is now nearing completion in Druid Hills.

Mr. Venable's house is truly the realization of a dream—and no narrow, selfish dream, at that. For "hospitality and good-living for all my friends" is the key-note that one sees running through the entire scheme of the building.

Realization of Dream Of Many Years Ago.

For twenty-five years Mr. Venable has been dreaming this magnificent home and has been carefully selecting the most desirable specimens of granite from his Stone Mountain quarries for the construction of this house.

And so at length Mr. Venable has gone to Edward E. Dougherty, the architect, and told him what manner of house he wanted.

For the better part of six months Mr. Dougherty has worked over the plans for this house ideal.

Today it is nearly complete.

A massive structure of sober, restful gray, with no freakish streak of color or whimsical architectural distortion to offend the most fastidious taste, it sits back from Oakdale drive and is admired by hundreds of people every day.

Across a clear perspective of green sward without obstruction of tree or foliage, it impresses one with a stateliness that is compelling.

Built after the Tudor style of architecture, it appears an old castle transplanted from the middle ages into modern times and one is tempted in gazing upon it to conjure up fancies of romances and adventures of the old feudal days.

Interior and Exterior Both Pleasing.

The exterior of the building is not more pleasing than the interior.

Upon entering one is ushered into a great hall with high oak wainscoting, whose ceiling rises to a majestic height of two stories. In this hall is one of Mr. Dougherty's master strokes of architectural genius, being a massive hooded Gothic fireplace and mantel. The detail of this mantel is wonderfully and delicately worked out. In the plane above the hood of the mantel is the magnificent Venable coat of arms in bas-relief.

Around the walls of the hall runs a balcony over the rail of which one half-way expects himself to lean and by some miracle of Time listen to the wandering minstrel who has just been admitted. A great stairway leads up to this balcony and the second-floor apartments.

In the basement of the building Mr. Dougherty has designed for Mr. Venable what he is pleased to style as a "summer living room." This is a unique departure from any feature of an Atlanta residence. It is a spacious room designed after the manner of a rathskeller.

Adjoining this is a wine cellar of generous proportions.

The dining room on the first floor is more than thirty feet in length and is amply large to accommodate a good sized banquet. Adjoining the dining room is an exquisite breakfast room.

The kitchen arrangements are ideal in every particular. The bed rooms are divided into a number of suites. The house has five sleeping porches.

Many columns might easily be devoted to the luxurious and convenient details of this wonderful home.

Decorators are now designing the interior decorations of this home.

The editor of Farm and Fireside writes as follows in the current issue of that publication

The tendency of this generation is toward the corporate ownership of farm lands—the intense industrial spirit is back of that tendency But with the advent of the large farm the farm home disappears farm life is sniffed out and we have in its place a big system which for the time being may be able to show satisfactory financial results, but whiche will ultimately mean both financial dissatisfaction and social unrest The small farm well tilled leads to a contented community the large farm, even if well cared for, cannot receive the care it should it results in a complete loss of community

PEEVISH, CONSTIPATED CHILDREN LOVE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS."

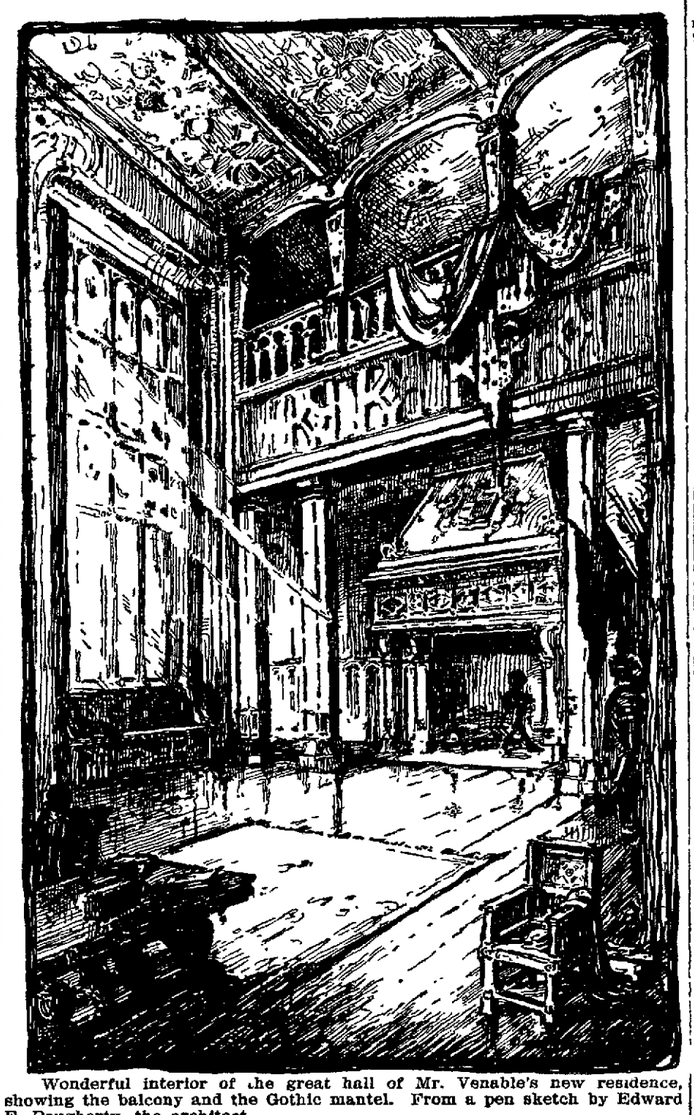
Harmless "Fruit Laxative" Cleanses Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in just a few hours all the foul, constipated waste undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels and you have a well, playful child again

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless fruit laxative, they love its delicious taste and it always makes them feel splendid

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle Beware of counterfeits sold here Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company" Refuse any other kind with contempt



Wonderful interior of the great hall of Mr. Venable's new residence, showing the balcony and the Gothic mantel. From a pen sketch by Edward E. Dougherty, the architect.

THE WAY OF TRUE LOVE

By Walter Gregory.

It was a full half hour after the curtain rose when Travis saw her. Even then he was doubtful In the maze of pretty girls who weaved through the intricate and bewildering combinations of dances and marches on the stage, he could not be certain that the slight, girlish figure was Cecile Raymond.

Now the chorus formed in a billowy line of white and surged forward like a foam-crested wave to the footlights. The girl he watched was third from the end in the second line and the young man could not distinguish her features.

"A very commonplace chorus," Miss Davis commented to her escort, as the curtain fell.

"I thought that little brunette near the end in the second row was, well—quite pretty," he ventured.

Miss Lorene Davis glanced at him sharply. "It's all a matter of opinion, of course," she replied, acridly. "As for myself; I haven't seen even a passable good-looking woman on the stage tonight"

But Ralph Travis was paying scant attention to her remarks. For the moment memory held him. Was it Cecile Raymond? Could it be she?

"Why not?" he asked himself bitterly "Who knows where she went or how far she may have fallen since she slipped away from Lancaster two years ago? Then Cecile wished to be a grand opera star. They so often end up in the chorus—it may be after all," he concluded.

"If she—" then his honesty of thought drove back the reproaches he started to heap upon Cecile.

"No, it was my fault, just mine," he admitted. "I was too ambitious, I didn't dare to ask when I had little to offer Cecile, on her part, was impatient and went away to make a name for herself. It was all my fault," he repeated, unconscious that he spoke aloud.

"What's your fault?" Miss Davis asked, turning a wondering glance upon him.

Ralph came out of his reverie suddenly "That I didn't bring a box of candy for you," he replied with quick self-possession. He hailed a boy and bought an expensive package.

For an instant Travis' eyes rested on the woman at his side. Miss Davis possessed a regular if somewhat colorless beauty. Her good breeding showed itself in every line of her face, and if there was a certain hardness in her features, too much of a steely glitter in the pale blue eyes, the amount of her father's fortune atoned for any deficiencies.

Certainly, Travis, two years before a nobody, and now only a rising young man, perhaps undeservedly credited with two engineering triumphs, should thank his stars of fortune that it was he who was favored to sit at Miss Davis' side.

Travis knew well that in the next box was Edgerton Green, contender for the hand of the girl who that evening favored Ralph with her smiles To be in his place the young man doubted not that Green would have given all he possessed. "Certainly," Travis reflected, "I should consider myself lucky."

But strangely enough he was dissatisfied. The girl was probably not Cecile. Even if she were, what was she to him?

Yet, when the curtain rose, he forgot the woman beside him and, with an unconscious eagerness, leaned forward in his seat, his eyes strained to catch the first sight of the diminutive figure, third from the end—second row.

The pretty conceit of the second act was the appearance of the "Tiger-Lilies!" The ballet, a few minutes before gowned in dainty white, now appeared in flaming crimson, their heads crowned with scarlet and yellow caps, fashioned in the shape of a lily.

Then it was that Travis knew the one whom his eyes sought was indeed Cecile Raymond. The gorgeousness of her costume only accentuated the pallor of her cheeks, the feverish luster of her large, brown eyes, the dead blackness of her massed hair

Cecile knew him. He read that in the first glance. Despite stage decorum, her eyes continually wandered toward his box. She executed the lively, rollicking dance mechanically, keeping time and step with the skill of long habit.

But the man leaning forward in his seat, unconscious of the stately girl at his side, of the multitude of men and women about him, knew intuitively that Cecile's thoughts were with him, as his were with her.

In this reverie fancy took him back once more on a peaceful river in the faraway country of his home—Cecile's home They were together, hardly more than boy and girl, in a canoe drifting slowly down the stream.

And there, at the edge of the bushes, tall tiger-lilies grew, their crimson coloring resplendent against the background of green. Together they had picked the lilies—together that summer afternoon the long ago. He wondered idly if the girl on the stage remembered.

In the instant something happened. the ballet had swung far to the left, almost below his box. Suddenly Cecile's white face grew even whiter, she swayed and fell in a little heap.

The line of dancers swung around and passed her, away to the center of the stage. Too well-trained were they to allow even for an instant anything to break the flawless mechanism of their execution. Somebody from the wings would drag out the girl who had fallen; the play must go on.

But before a stage hand could reach her. Travis had climbed the railing of the box and leaped over the unconscious girl, he quickly raised the slender form and bore her in his arms, away from the glare of lights and the blatant music to the quiet of a dressing room—any dressing room, it did not matter to the commanding young man, whose face so set and stern made men obey him.

"Cecile, Cecile," he whispered, "my dear little tiger-lily."

And the girl opening her eyes, smiling wistfully, understood that he referred not to the tawdry splendor of her garb, but to the days, so many weary weeks and months and years before when they had drifted together on the quiet river and gathered the gorgeous lilies on its banks.

"I was so tired," she murmured. "And now you've come, Ralph, and it's all right."

"Starved herself, the poor little thing," the motherly wardrobe woman explained in a low voice. "The chick hasn't had a square meal in a month. No wonder she fainted dead away."

"It was all a mistake, just a misunderstanding," Travis said in a low voice and the woman nodded with comprehension. "But it will be all right now, just as she said."

Meanwhile in the theater Edgerton Green had taken Travis' place at Miss Davis' side When Ralph thought of the woman he had left alone in the box, he regretted his unavoidable rudeness She was welcome to think of him as a cad or however else she pleased.

For he had Cecile, he had found again his little girl of the tiger-lilies, and amid his happiness nothing else of this world mattered.

AUTO ACCIDENT VICTIM DIED SATURDAY NIGHT

Jimmie Ward, the 18-year-old boy who was run down at the corner of Forsyth and Marietta streets Friday afternoon by an automobile driven by W. L. McCalley, died at Grady hospital Saturday night at 11 o'clock.

Young Ward, according to witnesses, was standing on the curb with his mother and another woman, when he darted out into the street directly in the path of the large touring car Mr McCalley states that he was so taken by surprise when he saw Ward run in front of his machine that he was unable to stop in time to avoid an accident. He is corroborated by a number of witnesses in his statement that the accident was unavoidable

McCalley was arrested and charged with reckless driving, but was released under $500 bond, which was signed by Marion M. Jackson, of the executive committee of the Men and Religion Forward Movement. His hearing was set for Saturday afternoon, but, owing to Ward's condition, was indefinitely postponed. He will probably appear in the recorder's court Monday.

The Stone Rejected.

For years it had been trampled in the street
Of Florence by the drift of heedless feet—
The stone that Buonarroti made contemptuous
That shape you know, that marble loveliness.

You mind the tale—how he was passing by
When the rude marble caught his Jovian eye,
That stone men had dishonored and had thrust
Out to the insult of the wayside dust
He stoopt to lift it from its mean estate
And bore it on his shoulder to the gate,
Where all day long a hundred hammers rang;
And soon his chisels round the marble sang,
Till suddenly the hidden angel shone
That had been waiting, prisoned in the stone.

Thus came the cherub, with the laughing face
That long has lighted up an altar place

Says Working Girl Conditions In Atlanta Should Be Better

New Head of Y. W. C. A. Work in Atlanta Will Push Investigation of Women's Wages and Conditions Surrounding Work.

Working girl conditions in Atlanta are to undergo a close investigation within the next few weeks by Miss Alice Logan Wingo, the recently elected general secretary of the Young Women's Christian association of this city. Miss Wingo declared yesterday that there are many things that need remedy in the conditions surrounding working girls here, as well as need for a searching investigation of women's wages with relation to the question, recently so much agitated, of "a living wage."

Miss Wingo, who came to Atlanta only a few weeks ago to assume charge of the Y. W. C. A. work and has already accomplished a great deal, has been for the past six years professor of literature at Drury college, Springfield, Mo. She is at present on a year's leave of absence from the college, which gave her the opportunity of accepting the offer to come to Atlanta. She has thoroughly reorganized the Y. W. C. A. work here, and the new quarters of the association, at the corner of Ellis and Carnegie way, are fast becoming a beehive of usefulness. There are now over 500 regular members of the Y. W. C. A. in the city and the membership is rapidly being extended. There are also a number of sustaining members, who pay $5 a year. Mrs. A. C. Rhodes was elected a life member a few days ago, subscribing $100 to the work.

The subject of working girl conditions is one of particular interest to Miss Wingo, as she has made a study of the problem for many years. She believes that the Y. W. C. A. is the best means of protection for a large element of the girls.

"A middle-aged man, without funds himself, came to us a few days ago," said Miss Wingo in discussing the question, "and begged that we help him find a boarding place for a young girl, who was the daughter of an old friend of his and who was working at $3.50 a week. He said he had tramped the city in search of a boarding house where they would take her for what she could pay. We agreed to take her into the Y. W. C. A. temporarily, and kept her from being homeless. Such a problem is repeated over and over again in the lives of working girls. The scale of wages is not what it ought to be, and the better people of the world are beginning to realize it and to demand justice for the hard-working women."

MISS ALICE LOGAN WINGO.

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

The Jungle Days. By Dr. Arley Munson. The author of this volume is a graduate of a popular New York medical college and upon completing her course in surgery she left New York for India with the determination to spend a part of her life in practicing not only medicine and surgery in that far away land, but through this she might be able to reach the mind and heart of the natives and lead them out of the darkness of ignorance that surrounded them.

For five years she practiced and worked in India, visited the little villages almost lost in the jungles, where she received a very warm welcome as their "Dr. Mem Sahib," who pitied and loved them in their half-starved condition. She established hospitals and during all her travels she was fighting plague and pestilence. Very few women have experienced the trials and sufferings of Dr. Munson, and the story of those jungle days is told in a very interesting manner, expressing warm sympathy and impressing you with the love of a pure womanly heart for the inhabitants of the far-away pagan land.

In The Foreword Dr. Munson says: "Though at times the thunder of defeat and tragedy almost deafened me, rang always high above the tumult the clear, sweet note of the happiness promised in Rudyard Kipling's vision of the future, when '. . . no one shall work for money, and no one shall work for fame, but each for the joy of the working . . .'" (D. Appleton & Co., publishers, New York.)

MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS.

King Edward as I Knew Him. Reminiscences of five years' personal attendance upon his late majesty, King Edward VII. By C. W. Stamper. With frontispiece. A very interesting story of the day to day life of a king by one who thought the king such a hero and so human in his love and friendships that he made daily notes of his everyday sayings, experiences, etc. (Dodd, Mead, Etc., New York.)

History as Literature and Other Essays. By Theodore Roosevelt. There has been a discussion in the literary world for some time as to whether literature should be classed as a branch of science instead of literature. There have been a number of propositions advanced by each side which as yet have proven nothing more than arguments without touching the real basis for the question and Colonel Roosevelt says that at the present time science claims exclusive possession of the field and tells why in this interesting volume. (Charles Scribner's Sons, New York.)

Hunting the Elephant in Africa. By Captain C. H. Stigand. With a foreword by Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. Fully illustrated with other recollections of thirteen years' wanderings. "Captain Stigand is one of the most noted of recent African big game hunters and explorers, and he is also a field naturalist of unusual powers. In short, he has written a book which ought to appeal to every believer in vigor and hardihood, to every lover of wilderness adventure and to every man who values at their proper worth the observations of an excellnt field naturalist." From the foreword of Theodore Roosevelt. (MacMillan Company, New York city.)

Politician, Party and People. By Henry Crosby Emery, of Yale university. The chapters are, first, the voter and the facts; second, the voter and the party; third, the voter and his representative; fourth, the representative and his constituency; fifth, the representative and his party. Professor Emery deals primarily with problems of national government, and the ethical problems which arise under party organization, and he very earnestly outlines why he considers the duty of the voter as well as the representative. (Yale University Press, New Haven.)

Two On a Tour of South America. By Anna Wentworth Sears. A very interesting experience of two New Yorkers, husband and wife, who mad a trip to the Panama canal, down the west coast of South America, stopping at various places of note, crossed the Andes, thence to Buenos Ayres and along the coast of Brazil and finally across to Madvira. It is a bright and breezy story, full of humorous experiences of the wife, who enjoyed every minute of the trip and is now giving her readers, who are becoming interested in South America since the opening of the Panama canal, valuable information. (D. Appleton & Co., New York.)

Popular Government, Its Essence, Its Permanence and Its Perils. By William Howard Taft, now professor of law at Yale university. Professor Taft discusses very interestingly popular government and the federal constitution. He lays particular stress on the subject of "The small proportion of the people constituting the voting and governing part of our nation," "Proposed primary election laws," "The Pure Food Act," "The Child Labor Law," etc. It also contains two addresses delivered by Professor Taft before the American Bar association. (Yale University Press, New Haven.)

Confidence or National Suicide? By Arthur E. Stilwell. This volume has been dedicated "to George Westinghouse, whom I consider one of the greatest Americans, and to whom the world owes a debt of gratitude for the airbrake and other inventions." Mr. Stilwell, who is a railroad man, says that he has collected these notes at the request of friends with the hope of interesting the world in the serious problems which are now confronting them and which are threatening peril to American railroads.

BOOK FOR GIRLS.

The Girl From Arizona. By Nina Rhoades. Author of "Dorothy Brown." Illustrated by Elizabeth Withington. Miss Rhoades has written an excellent story about Marjorie Graham, "the girl" who lived on a ranch until she was 14 years old, when her uncle carried her to New York for a winter in school and also the companiship of her cousin of the same age—she makes good friends, but has the usual experiences of a real, sincere country girl in the artificial life of the metropolis. (Lathrop, Lee & Shepard Co., Boston.)

Harmony Wins. By Millicent Olmstead. Illustrated by Elizabeth Otis. Harmony, who is a girl with the pure American grit, and a relative of that brave patriot-spy, Nathan Hale, and blessed with a personality suggestive of her name, makes good through hard experiences which finally led her to the road of happiness. (Lathrop, Lee & Shepard Co., Boston.)

Dorothy Dainty's Vacation. By Amy Brooks. Illustrated by the author. The Dorothy Dainty series have been among the most popular sellers. This little story is all about Dorothy, whom all the little folks know as being sweet and loving, and her dear little friend, Nancy, who is her guest. One of the most exciting parts of the book is when Nancy, whom her selfish relatives have tried to secure on account of her wonderful skill in dancing, fails to return from an errand. Where was little Nancy, and when did she return? (Lathrop, Lee & Shepard, Boston.)

Country Cousins. By Ellen Douglas Deland. Illustrated. Harriet Posdick, a young girl, whose home is in New York, and who has been attending a very fashionable boarding school, spent a year with some cousins in Marshfield, while her parents are traveling abroad. The story simply tells how a selfish little girl becomes a fine character through proper development. (D. Appleton & Co., New York.)

BOOKS FOR BOYS.

On the Plains With Custer. By Edwin L. Sabin. Illustrated by Charles H. Stephens. Ned, the hero, was a boy bugler under General Custer during the Indian campaigns of 1866 and 1876. Ned is a very interesting character for boys. (J. B. Lippencotte company, Philadelphia.)

Camping on the Great Lakes. By Raymond S. Spears. An interesting story of two boys who enjoyed life among the great lakes and had many rich experiences during the vacation. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

Around the End. By Ralph Henry Barbour. The definition of this subject is, as every boy will guess, football. Mr. Barbour seems very fond of Yardley Hall, for that is where we are, and the hero whom we meet is Kendall Burtis, the boy who last year kicked a goal at the very last minute, but he has now found out how to get in the game at the beginning, and every boy will enjoy how he learned how. (D. Appleton & Co., New York.)

Apache Gold. By Joseph A. Altsheler. A thrilling romance of the far southwest.

Five Yards to Go. By Hawley Williams. A very interesting story which took place at Lansing Academy among the football squad, the principal character is Rudolph Kraft, a young German, who really wants to help make the team, but prefers sausage and buckwheat cakes to the plain food of the training table. A football story from start to finish.

Strike Three. By William Heyliger. A story of school life and baseball by a popular writer of boys' books who always makes his characters manly and courageous, therefore they are worth while.

The Texan Triumph. Another interesting story about Ned Fulton.

The above books have just been received from Appleton's and are a splendid selection for boys.

Camping on Western Trails. Elmer Russell Gregor. These are the same two boys that had such a good time "camping in the winter woods," and in this story is related their adventures in the Rocky Mountains. Illustrated. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

The Handy Boy. A modern handy book of practical and profitable pastimes. By A. Neely Hall. With nearly 600 illustrations and working drawings by the author and Norman P. Hall. This book tells how to do things handily. (Lathrop, Lee & Shepard Co., Boston.)

Messmates. By William O. Stevens. Illustrated by William T. Thomson. The author is a professor of the United States Naval Academy, and writes of naval life from first-hand experience; England, France, Germany, and other lands are visited, and in all of them the hero and his chums manage to get into a great deal of trouble quite innocently. The story is not only exciting, but brimful of fun, and as you remember "Peewee" you will enjoy every page of it. (J. B. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia.)

Mark Tidd. Humor and adventure abound in this story of the doings of four live country boys, led by the courageous and resourceful fat boy. By Clarence B. Kelland. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

Uncle David's Boys. By Edna A. Brown. Illustrated by John Goss. Miss Brown wrote some time ago the "Four Gordons," which the readers said had a real Alcott flavor, and this story, too, has a well-bred atmosphere and the young people who spent their vacation in a little mountain village had just lots of good times and a few mysterious occurrences which is very interesting. (Lathrop, Lee & Shepard Co., Boston.)

MAGAZINE CLIPPINGS.

The Pulitzer's Magazine will prove very attractive to Atlanta readers, in fact, to all southern readers, for it is well known that it was formerly Uncle Remus' Home Magazine. The Pulitzer company have decided to carry on the work so ably begun by Joel Chandler Harris in adding a national breadth and scope to the southern policy of editorials which is consistent with the national ideals of the south. To carry out this, they will preserve as much as possible the ideals of Joel Chandler Harris, and will add such features as will prove a stimulus to the south and her people who are interested in this policy as well as subscribers elsewhere.

There is promise that Uncle Remus' Magazine re-christened and transplanted to a great city will not lose its popularity in the south.

A very interesting article in the October number is "The Awakening of the South," by Joel Chandler Harris, second.

Women's Stories—A twice-a-month publication by Street & Smith, of New York. The November magazine is full of interesting stories by popular author—Mary Roberts Rinehart, Alfred Noves. Mary Cholmondeley's serial story, "After All," is worth reading—The New Sort of a Man, by Jane Stone—a story of both reality and ideals, will be enjoyed. "The Thing No Fellow Can Do." By Margarita Spalding Gerry. How one woman's "code" worked. Simple as clockwork but did she have it right?

A thrilling story in Scribner's November issue, tells how the Archdeacon conquered Denali (Mount McKinley), which has baffled the efforts of so many experienced mountain climbers, but the flag has been set beyond all question upon the very highest summit and a Te Deum was said in thanks for the victory of Archdeacon Hudson Stuck and his party.

Crisp brilliant fiction makes up the November numbe: of Ainslie's. A very clever little story, which is one of a series by Leonard Merrick, which this magazine will print from time to time, is called "Why Billy Went Back."

John Kendrick Bangs and Reginald Wright Kauffman have contributed two very humorous stories to this issue.

The Popular Magazine—twice-a-month, has a number of splendid stories in the November numbers—the first a long complete novelette which is fine, a story of the Egyptian desert, etc. A story of the California oil fields, by Frederick R. Bechdolt, author of many western novels, is one of the most graphic serials of the oil business ever written.

George Bronson-Howard, who is being hailed by some as the best short story writer in America, contributes to the November Smart Set a very striking story called "The Purple Phantasm." Dedication, by Willard Huntington Wright, is worth mentioning, as well as many other contributions by the most popular writers of the day.

The Southern Woman's Magazine, published at Nashville, presents each month a delightfully varied table of contents that will appeal to the good taste as well as the fancies of the readers. There is to be found the very best fiction and verse, quite a number of articles on fashion, cooking and various household matters besides studies and stories that concern themselves with the social, literary, artistic and benevolent progress of the day.

Germany Adds Protest.

Washington, October 18.—Germany today added her protest to those of the other powers against any discrimination adverse to commerce under the 5 per cent differential section of the tariff act. Although Solicitor Folk, of the state department, has expressed the opinion that the differential couldn't be claimed by any of the German states outside of Prussia, Mecklenburg-Schwerin and the Hanseatic states, the German government will resist any such limitation.

ONLY ONE SEVENTH IS NOW RETURNED

Judge Hart Declares Law, by Catching Tax Dodgers, May Cut Rate in Two—Growing Popular.

As a result of investigations made by him since he assumed the office of state tax commissioner, Judge John C. Hart declared yesterday that not more than one-seventh of the taxable property of Georgia was on the tax digests and that if the property taxable under the laws of Georgia were fairly returned, the state could catch up with her deficit of nearly one million dollars next year and also reduce the tax rate from 5 to 3 1-2 mills.

Judge Hart has recently been traveling over the state making speeches to educate the people to the importance of tax equalization and to explain to them the details of the new law. He has everywhere found audiences eager to listen and generally open to conviction, despite the efforts that have been made by the enemies of tax reform to prejudice the people against the law.

Law Growing More Popular.

It is Judge Hart's opinion, gathered from his observation of the temper of the people in the course of his trips, that any attempt to make the repeal of the tax equalization law an issue next year will be doomed to failure. As the people are coming to learn more about the law, they are recognizing the necessity and the far-sighted justice of it, and no appeal to class prejudice or array of country against city will have any weight with them. In a statement issued for the press yesterday, Judge Hart says:

"The past week I traveled extensively in the state, passing through the counties of Clayton, Henry, Spalding, Pike, Meriwether, Harris, Muscogee, Chattahoochee, Marion, Schley, Sumter, Coweta, Carroll and Campbell. I made several speeches on this tour and was delighted with the reception given me and the interest manifested by the people generally on the subjct of tax equalization. I found the people greatly interested in the new law, which interest no doubt has been aroused through the agency of the press.

Will Not Increase Tax Burden.

"I have been very carefully investigating the question of taxable values in Georgia. At present Georgia's taxable values is around eight hundred and forty million dollars, and it is assessed by the state to the fullest constitutional limit, viz., 5 mills. The tax raised is insufficient to meet the appropriations of the legislature, and Georgia finds herself in debt for current accounts in the neighborhood of one million dollars. If all the property in Georgia which is taxable under the laws of Georgia was fairly returned the state could pay her debt next year and cut the tax rate from 5 mills to two and one-half mills. I means by that to say, astounding as it may seem, that there is not on the tax digest of this state exceeding one-seventh of the property of the state.

True Cause of Deficit.

"There is no more land being created, but daily property in the form of invisible securities is being created by the million. This invisible property is so easy of concealment, and the purpose of the new tax law is to place this property on the digest, so that it, too, may bear its burden of taxation. To illustrate, the inequality in our tax laws as heretofore practiced. There has recently come under my observation the case of a taxpayer who returned his entire property at less than $1,000. He was known to be a trader, a shaver of notes and a money lender, and the return provoked an inquiry and investigation as to his property. There was found on the records of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which he lived notes and mortgages given by the farmers of that county amounting to $90,000. He was known also to trade in an adjoining county, and an investigation of the records of that county disclosed that he had to his credit over $60,000 in notes and mortgages. This man, worth $150,000, paid taxes to the state on less than $1,000. The new law is designed to reach just that class of tax dodgers.

"The only other idea in the new law is to equalize the burden of taxation between the taxpayers of the county; that is to say, where A returns his property as of a certain value, and B, owner of like property, returns it only at half or a third of what his neighbor returned it, to require that B shall bear the burden equally with A. These two provisions constitute the whole aim and object of the new law, to tax all property, and to divide the burden equally according to the ability of the taxpayer to pay, which ability is to be measured by the property he owns, is the essence of justice. No valid reason occurs to me as an objection to the law.

Local Assessors Important Feature.

"I realize that the success of the law depends largely, if not entirely, upon the character of men who are appointed on the board of local assessors. This I have endeavored to stress whenever opportunity afforded. The county commissioners, who appoint them, and when no county commissioners the ordinary, are also impressed with this important feature. I am getting reports daily from counties of the appointment of assessors, and in every case the information comes that they are men of highest character. I know some men personally who have been appointed, and I know that it is a great sacrifice for them to accept, and I am pleased beyond expression at the evidence of patriotism displayed in their acceptance of the office.

Will Continue to Address the People.

"I shall continue to go from place to place in the state, meeting the people, especially during sessions of court, and address them on the subject of taxation, its importance to the public, its necessity if we are to remain a progressive state. At these gatherings I show to the people the amount of taxes which they paid and the way the money is expended, and try to make the situation as plain to them as if each man were dealing with his own private business. I think this is the proper way to deal with this important question. Let the people understand and realize that they constitute the state, and that the state's honor is their honor and the state's dishonor is their dishonor. In using the word dishonor I don't mean to be offensive, but it is hardly short of that when the state lets her obligations go unpaid, and makes promises she doesn't keep. The state's good name is her best asset and it is the duty of every good citizen to see that it remains untarnished."

CHURCH MUST DESTROY COMMERCIALIZED VICE

New York, October 18.—"Segregation does not segregate. Regulation does not regulate, but rather gives a false security. Absolute annihilation is the ideal," Rev. Dr. W. T. Sumner, dean of the Cathedral of St. Peter and St. Paul, of Chicago, declared of commercialized vice, in an address at a social service mass meeting here tonight. Not commercial organizations, nor city clubs nor social settlements are to lead the movement to suppress vice, but the church must undertake the work, he said.

"Too long we have approached this business from the supply side," he said. "It is time to discuss it from the demand side, because so long as there is a demand there is going to be a form of supply. And the change is not coming with vice commissions; with legislation or with prosecution; it is coming only with the change of the hearts of men."

Dr. Sumner said his cathedral was located "in the most vicious, poverty-stricken and immoral district" in Chicago.

"Turn away from that district for a moment," he said, "and I'll take you to the part of Chicago where live people of wealth and assumably of culture and refinement, and what do I see?

"I find in their drawing rooms the same licentiousness, immoral, fantastically named dances that I have just left in the immoral resorts of my district. The police check these dances in the dance halls of the poor. What but a social regeneration can check them in the halls of the rich?"

Pickpockets Get Busy While Negroes Battle In Center of Atlanta

While a crowd of more than 300 persons gathered at the corner of Forsyth and Marietta streets last night at 8 o'clock to witness a fight in progress between two negroes, what the police allege to be one of the smoothest bands of pickpockets in the country got busy and "frisked" J. B. Johnson, a farmer living near Buckhead, of a wallet containing $43.

Johnson felt the hand stealing stealthily into his pocket, and turning about grasped an alleged pickpocket by the arm, at the same time shouting an alarm at the top of his voice.

In spite of the efforts made by a number of young men, who the police allege are confederates of the two men later arrested, to induce Johnson to release his captive, the aged farmer hung on with all his strength until an officer arrived and placed the man under arrest. The money taken from Johnson was not found on the man.

When taken to the station house the arrested man gave his name and address as Frank J. Wicks, 117 South Pryor street.

Patrolman Shaw later arrested Frank Marshall, of Buffalo, New York, on suspicion of having been connected with the robbery. Both men stoutly deny any connection with the robbery. They will be given a hearing Monday afternoon.

Theater Audience Sees Duel With Heavy Knives On Streets After Show

Slashing at each other's necks with heavy knives, C. O. Lampkin and H. I. Farris, two painters, held the audience, just dismissed from the Bijou theater, in terror last night.

When the last act of the Bijou show had closed and the packed house was pouring into the streets, Lampkin, who lives at 33 Simpson street, and Farris, who rooms in Oliver street, became engaged in a heated conversation just at the entrance of the show house. Before bystanders could interfere the men started hacking at each other with pocket knives.

For fully five minutes the men lunged and struggled until the arrival of Captain Poole, of the police force, accompanied by two blue coats. Rushing between the infuriated knife-wielders the officers soon subdued them.

Meanwhile frantic women and excited men milled about on the sidewalk, adding screams and cries of "murder" to the excitement.

The Grady hospital ambulance was called and both men were taken there. The wounds were dressed and the men put in cots under police guard. Neither would say what their quarrel was about.

TARGET PRACTICE SEEN BY SECRETARY DANIELS

Norfolk, Va., October 18.—After smashing half a dozen targets and treating Secretary Daniels and a number of other department officials to a sample of American marksmanship the Atlantic fleet is riding peacefully at anchor tonight, some on the southern drill grounds, others in Hampton Roads.

Secretary Daniels and party arrived this morning on the president's yacht Mayflower. They were met by the battleships Arkansas, Utah and Wyoming and escorted to sea, where the target practice was held. In the Washington party were Secretary and Mrs Daniels Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Roosevelt Secretary of Commerce Redfield, Secretary of War Garrison and a number of ladies and department officials.

It was cloudy and hazy at sea and targets were with difficulty distinguished at long distances, but despite this the gunners smashed several of the targets. The visitors witnessed the practice from the deck of the battleship Rhode Island.

Tonight there was torpedo practice.

Secretary Daniels expressed himself as being greatly pleased with the showing made by the gunners.

"MY FATE WILL KILL CORRUPT BOSSES"

17, 1913." Mrs. Sulzer was presented with a bouquet.

Sulzer, in a speech, reiterated his assertion that his removal was due to his displeasing Tammany Hall.

"Had I obeyed the boss instead of my oath of office, I would still be the governor and the 'organization' would be patting me on the back and telling the people that I was second to Andrew Jackson," he said. "My condemnation by the boss is intended to serve as a warning and a precedent to all who may follow me, or what will happen to them if they do not 'obey' orders, but I believe my fate will have a good effect in the end, and do more than any other single thing I could do to forever destroy the terrors of corrupt 'bossism' in the state of New York."

Roosevelt Letter to Sulzer.

A letter which Colonel Roosevelt wrote October 5 last was given out by Platt. It was in response to one from Sulzer telling Roosevelt that on advice of counsel, Sulzer could not permit a letter he wrote the former president regarding the impeachment case to be made public. The letter follows:

"I thank you for your letter, and I am sorry that I have to leave before your defense is made public. I wish it had been possible for you to write to me the letter of which you wrote, giving as definite facts as to the effort of Mr. Murphy and his associates to bend you to their interests against the cause of honesty, decency, popular government, and the promise of immunity to you from impeachment if you would cease your attacks on the men who have been guilty of misconduct in connection with public office, and if you would cease demand for direct primaries. Such a letter, giving me in detail the facts, would, of course, have enabled me to speak much more strongly than I have spoken."

Big Money Offered Sulzer.

Platt also gave out copies of several telegrams Sulzer had received offering him lecture dates. Kansas City man bid $10,000 for one lecture; a New Yorker $20,000 for ten lectures; another New Yorker $50,000 for fifty, and a Chicago promoter topped the list with $100,000 for a season. As yet the former governor has closed no contracts for public addresses.

This was the last night Sulzer occupied the executive mansion. He will leave tomorrow morning for Cooperstown, where he will spend three or four days in a summer hotel owned by a friend. He will be accompanied only by Mrs. Sulzer. From Cooperstown Sulzer will go to the mountains for a few days probably and then return to New York.

GENERAL HUERTA WILL NOT RESIGN

teen to eighteen hours daily, sleeping at odd times when fatigue overtakes him. He adopts various ruses to escape the scores striving to reach him with personal affairs. He slips out of unused entrances and takes round-about routes to hide his whereabouts. Colonel Carlos Aguila, his son-in-law, who is with him almost continuously, sought him today in half a dozen haunts, before locating him in the palace.

Rumors Caused Sensation.

The rumors of President Huerta's resignation and flight caused a sensation in the capital. Many believed them, finding circumstances to bolster up the story such as the departure of Colonel Vidaurrazaga, who was Minister Blanquet's private secretary, for Vera Cruz, and difficulty in finding any cabinet ministers. Few remembered having seen General Huerta for a day or two.

There is no truth in the report that Americans have been ordered out of Mexico. A number of American residents here have received in the last few days cablegrams from relatives in the United States importuning them to leave. One business man has been instructed by his firm in the United States to close out his business and quit the country. This has given rise to various disquieting rumors.

MANY MEXICAN RUMORS HEARD BY WASHINGTON

Washington, October 18.—Throughout the day officials heard various reports and rumors that Provisional President Huerta, of Mexico, had resigned or intended to do so, that he had secretly left the capital and that General Blanquet would succeed him. The state department received so many inquiries that it cabled Charge O'Shaughnessy for information.

The receipts this afternoon of the positive statement from Mexico City that Huerta did not intend to resign somewhat clarified the situation, though administration officials were in the hopes the elimination of Huerta eventually might materialize. There had been little disposition at any time, however, to credit the report that Huerta actually had submitted his resignation to his cabinet and that it was refused because no successor able to cope with the situation could be found.

Officials here declared it inconceivable that Huerta should submit his resignation to a cabinet of his own choosing with any sincere intention of having it accepted. Among constitutionalists here the report was construed as meaning merely that Huerta had taken occasion to point out that he alone was able to deal with the critical state of affairs. They believe he may even use that argument as a basis for becoming a candidate next week in the election set for October 26.

Dispatches from Charge O'Shaughnessy today were on routine subjects. State department advices from elsewhere reported that the governor of the state of Colima had resigned and that the state congress had designated in his place a military governor, General Juan A. Hernandez.

Comparatively few Americans are left in Torreon, Asarco and Velardena, according to information received from Monterey, and the difficulty of getting foreigners out of danger in places where they were completely cut off from communication appears to have passed. It probably will be several days before rail and telegraph connection between Monterey and Laredo is resumed.

74 OF 110 DEPUTIES FORMALLY ARRAIGNED

Mexico City, October 18.—Seventy-four of the 110 members of the Mexican chamber of deputies arrested by Huerta's order of October 10 were today formally arraigned. The period in which, according to the law, charges had to be filed against the deputies or their liberty given to them expired today.

The charges entered against the deputies today were all of political offenses, designated by the law as rebellion, sedition and "insults" to important public functionaries.

Ten of the deputies, against whom there was said to be insufficient evidence, were released today. The others had been previously set at liberty.

It was said today that Rodolfo Reyes, formerly provisional minister of justice, and Jorge Vera Estandl, formerly provisional minister of public instruction, would be released, but they were among those kept in custody.

The sensational arrest of the deputies on October 10 was a sequel to their signatures of resolutions demanding an investigation into the disappearance of Senator Dominguez and warning the provisional president that if he did not guarantee their immunity from arrest they would hold their sessions somewhere else.

HENRY LANE WILSON DEFENDS GEN. HUERTA

Spokane, Wash., October 18.—The government of Provisional President Huerta, of Mexico, is just as legal as the government of Theodore Roosevelt when he succeeded to the presidency after the assassination of President McKinley, declared Henry Lane Wilson, former United States ambassador to Mexico, in an address on the Mexican situation at a banquet given him here last night.

"President Wilson could recognize Huerta and still save his face, as he has been trying to do ever since," Mr. Wilson continued. "If President Wilson does not get behind the Huerta government chaos is going to come, and we will have to go down and take care of the country. We would have to supervise the election and then the new president would be labelled 'the gringo president.' As soon as our soldiers had left the country the Mexicans would get out their knives and we should have to go back again. That would mean controlling the country and all the countries to the Panama canal. Intervention would be all right if we stayed there all the time, but it would be bad for our morals and pocketbooks."

Discussing the regime of Francisco I. Madero, Mr. Wilson said that eighty-four Americans had been killed in Mexico and not one murderer had been punished, and that six months prior to the overthrow of Madero the entire country wanted it, yet "the death of the two Maderos seems to have agitated the United States government more than the murder of the Americans."

Regarding the part he took in bringing about the making Huerta provisional president, Mr. Wilson said that Huerta and Diaz factions were in the capital ready to renew the bombardment, and that "while I was not so instructed I took immediate action to prevent it. No act of mine rendered such valuable services to Americans and foreigners in my entire career and yet the administration at Washington called my act an intrusion into the policies of the country."

FELIX DIAZ IS BENT ON GOING TO MEXICO

Havana, October 18.—General Felix Diaz arrived here today from Europe. He was greeted on his steamer by Senor De La Garza, recently appointed Mexican consul general at Paris. Garza tried to persuade Diaz to discontinue his journey to Mexico. General Diaz refused to listen.

He told the Associated Press that he would proceed immediately to Mexico and had no intention of abandoning his presidential aspirations.

He said he was fully convinced that the election would take place October 26.

The general declined to express any opinion on other aspects of Mexican affairs.

General Diaz, who apparently was in excellent health, was met also by a delegation of his personal friends from Mexico.

Because of rumors that an attempt would be made by Mexican conspirators to assissinate General Diaz in Havana a strong force of police was sent aboard the Cercovado immediately on her arrival. The general said he would remain in vessel till the afternoon and then go to a hotel where he would remain until the steamer continues her journey tomorrow.

HEAD OF HUERTA MAN DISPLAYED ON POLE

Douglas, Ariz., October 18.—The ancient custom of heralding victory by making public demonstrations with the heads of the conquered was revived at Fuerto, Sinaloa, at the time of its occupation by the rebels two weeks ago, according to stories told here today by travelers.

After the invasion of Fuerto, the story runs, Yaqui Indians pursued the retreating federal army and captured among others Prefecto Torres, a federal commander. The Indians put him to death and returned with his head, parading it about the streets on a pole. Torres, it is reported, had threatened to execute any constitutionalist who fell into his hands.

HUERTA CIRCULARS SPREAD OVER MEXICO

Vera Cruz, Mexico, October 18.—Circulars urging the people to vote for General Huerta for president have been received by John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative, from various parts of the republic. Some came from as far south as Campecho, while others were sent from the west coast. The wording of the circulars is identical and they are signed "committee."

Thought He Was Dead, But Man on Stairway Was Drunk; That's All

Mrs. Vellie Franklin, of 74½ Houston street, returned from her marketing about 8:30 o'clock last night. As she ascended the steps to her apartments she believed she discerned the figure of a man lying prostrate at the top of her stairway.

Shrieking at the top of her voice she ran for a telephone. She called the coroner, the police station, Grady hospital and last but not least an undertaker's shop. All responded.

The police arrived first. They found a man dead drunk on the top of the stairs. He was taken to the police station and docketed as John Doe. He could not give his name, owing to certain thickness of his tongue.

The hospital ambulance and the undertaker wended their way back home.

Crews is general manager of the road and the sole crew of the mixed trains is Conductor Robson and Engineer Perry.

SEARCHING FOR PENNY, LITTLE BOY IS KILLED

Jacksonville, Fla., October 18.—While trying to find a penny which he had dropped on a street car track at 6 o'clock tonight, little Charles Doyle, a 4-year-old white child, was crushed to death under a trolley car, which dashed down upon the tiny form before the motorman was aware of his presence.

Colds Are Caught in October That Last All Winter

In most parts of the United States October is the pleasantest month of the whole year. And yet October has especial liabilities for those who are subject to catching cold.

September is liable to be warm, and thin clothes are worn almost universally. When October begins the nights get colder, and the days also. Yet people will cling to their thin clothes. The negligee shirt, without vest, is so comfortable that the men do not like to give it up. Sleeveless underwear and peek-a-boo waists have given so much comfort during the hot months that the women lay them aside with great reluctance. So it is that thin clothes are carried over into the month of October, and a great many millions of people carry them a little too long. Frequently catching cold is the result.

A cold acquired in October may last several months and do great damage. In spite, then, of the fact that October is a pleasant month, it is a month that presents especial liabilities for catching cold. Of course, the best way to fortify one's self against cold is to avoid exposure, but people will not always do this, hence colds are the result.

To have a remedy handy to break up a cold is almost a household necessity. It has been at least thirty-five or forty years that Peruna has been a standard household remedy for coughs and colds.

It is generally sufficient to take a few doses at the first appearance of a cold. The experience of the people has been, if taken in the early stages of a cold, Peruna is prompt in its action. The cold disappears very quickly.

Those who object to liquid medicines can now procure Peruna Tablets.

High-Class Business Men Recommend NUXCARA as a High-Class Remedy for Indigestion and Dyspepsia, That Never Fails

J. E. GREENE

Atlanta, Ga., June 6, 1913.

Dr. Kelly, Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir:

Some months ago I had what I thought was heart trouble. My heart would skip for an hour or more, and often every third beat. This was especially noticeable after eating. I consulted several physicians, but got no permanent relief. I chanced to pick up one of Dr. Kelly's books on "Nuxcara," and soon found I had been treating the wrong complaint. I bought a bottle of Nuxcara and got some better, and after taking about half dozen bottles I was entirely relieved of all heart troubles, as well as indigestion. I have not had a return of this since, and I consider Nuxcara one of the greatest achievements in medicine for the troubles it is recommended to cure.

Yours very truly,
J. E. GREENE.

A. J. DAVIS.

Mr. A. J. Davis, with the Atlanta Gas Co., says: "I feel that it is my duty to my fellowman to tell everybody in every way I can that Nuxcara will positively cure indigestion and dyspepsia, when by experience, I know what it is to suffer for years and years with dyspepsia, making life a burden; I want every one who suffers as I did to know about this remedy. I have bought it for others in a number of instances, knowing that it was the only cure known, and it has cured in all cases. I have no interest whatever in advertising this medicine, only to do my Christian duty to suffering humanity. I, like every one else, suffering with dyspepsia, tried everything, and am fully convinced that Nuxcara is the only cure known."

R. M. HARWELL

Dr. L. B. Kelly, City.

Dear Sir:

I consider Nuxcara the greatest accomplishment in medical science; it produces harmony of action between the organs of digestion, and nervous system and metabolism, or the conversion of food into living tissue.

I sincerely recommend Nuxcara to be the ideal remedy for depression after eating, nervousness caused by fermentation of food forming gases and preventing the regular action of the stomach and bowels. Nuxcara acts directly upon the membranes of the digestive system and restores them to a healthy condition. I weighed 130 pounds when I began to take Nuxcara, I now weight 135 pounds.

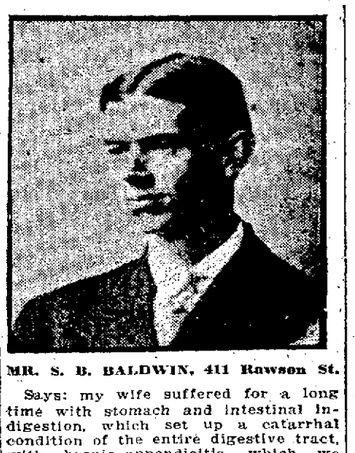
I speak from experience; break your bondage to tea and coffee, acquire the water drinking habit, breathe God's fresh air and take Nuxcara, your palace car to "Wellville."

Wishing you much success, I am
Very truly yours,
THE WORLD MFG. CO.,
R. M. HARWELL,
General Manager.

Ex-member City Council; Ex-member Park Board; General Manager World's Mfg. Co., President of Smoke and Gas Commission.



MR. S. B. BALDWIN, 411 Rawson St.

Says: my wife suffered for a long time with stomach and intestinal indigestion, which set up a catarrhal condition of the entire digestive tract, with chronic appendicitis, which we thought would be relieved only by an operation, but through the advice of friends I put her on Nuxcara, the wonderful stomach remedy. The first bottle of Nuxcara removed all the distressing symptoms, and after taking four more bottles she has entirely recovered, and is now enjoying perfect health.

My wife's mother was so pleased that Nuxcara had cured my wife, that she decided to try it. She had submitted to an operation without getting any relief, but began to improve at once under the Nuxcara treatment, and today is in better health than for years. I regard Nuxcara as the finest medicine on earth for any form of stomach and intestinal trouble and heartily recommend it as a certain and positive cure.

Mr. Baldwin is a prominent business man, who can be seen at any time. He, like every one else who indorse Nuxcara, has no motive but to help some one suffering with indigestion, dyspepsia and catarrh.

STATE FAIR OPENS TUESDAY MORNING

Eleven Counties and Two Railroads Will Have Exhibits — Total of $15,000 Offered in Prizes.

Macon, Ga., October 17.—(Special.)—Though tomorrow is Sunday, Central City Park, the home of the Georgia state fair, will be anything but peaceful and quiet. The day will be marked by the arrival of amusement companies, exhibits of live stock and poultry, race horses and other things which will go to make up the state's biggest fair this year, for with only two days left in which to prepare for the opening of the agricultural exposition, there is no time to be lost.

The state fair will be thrown open to the public Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, and contrary to the usual custom, everything will be ready for the first visitor who steps inside the gates. President J. H. Otto has impressed it upon the exhibitors that they must be ready and the fact that many were on the grounds yesterday and today working like beavers getting things in shape makes it appear that his words have not gone unheeded.

Short Opening Program.

Only a short program will mark the opening of the fair this year. There will be an address by Mayor John T. Moore, on behalf of the city of Macon, and President J. H. Otto, on behalf of the state fair association, followed by a concert by one of the five bands which have been engaged to play during the fair. Then for ten days Macon will be the host to thousands of visitors from Georgia and other states who will come to see what Georgia is accomplishing in the raising of agricultural products and live stock and to spend a few hours looking on the lighter side of life on the midway.

The fair is offering a total of $15,000 in prizes this year, the largest sum ever given by a fair in Georgia; $10,000 of this will be for exhibits and $5,000 is in purses to be given during the six days of the program of horse racing. This is done without one dollar of aid from the state of Georgia in the way of an appropriation, and could not be accomplished except for the generosity of the mayor and council of Macon, which has given the fair association just about everything it has asked for.

Five of the eleven county exhibits were in place today and the others will be up by Monday. Most all of them are in the city, but had not reached the grounds from the railroad yards today. Those counties which are already represented are Bibb, Milton, Cobb, Worth and Houston. The other counties which will have exhibits this year are Rabun, Twiggs, Bulloch, Hall and Irwin. In addition to these the Southern railway and the Central of Georgia railway will have large exhibits of agricultural products gathered along their respective lines. Both of these roads have spent a considerable sum of money in preparing their exhibits and they are expected to be the means of inducing many settlers to come to Georgia. After the fair these exhibits will be taken, north, where they will be used to further the movement of the tide of immigration to the south.

Mrs. Monk to Show.

Mrs. Monk, of Worth county, the only woman farmer who has an annual exhibit at the Georgia state fair, is back again this year, with a small army of assistants from her native county. Mrs. Monk declares she does not believe in woman's suffrage, but she does believe in a woman pitching in and doing a man's work when the occasion demands it, as it did with her. Left with a large family on her hands at her husband's death, Mrs. Monk proceeded to step right in and her success has demonstrated that there is just as much chance for a woman to do things on the farm as there is for a man.

It is not only in this department that women are striving for supremacy at the fair this year. Reports from those in charge of the poultry show this year are that two-thirds of the exhibitors in that department are women. Last year there were over 1,000 birds on exhibition at the fair and this year the number is expected to go considerably above that figure.

Mrs. A. E. Porter, who is in charge of the woman's building, has been swamped with exhibits for several days, and her greatest trial is in finding a place for everything that has been entrusted to her care. In this department are exhibits of the cookery art and woman's handicraft of all kinds, in addition to an extensive art exhibit. To stimulate interest in the art department this year no premium will be awarded any picture which has previously been exhibited at any Georgia fair.

In the live stock department this year special stress is being laid on hogs, beef cattle and brood mares. One of the most interesting features will be a large exhibit of Percheron mares, claimed to be especially suitable for use on Georgia farms.

Dr. Nighbert to Attend.

Dr. E. M. Nighbert, of the United States department of agriculture, is to attend the fair and will devote his time to explaining the methods of fighting tuberculosis in cattle and the eradication of the cattle tick. A dipping vat has been constructed and will be in use during the fair for the enlightenment of visitors.

One of the most novel sights will be a silo in course of construction. This is a modern feeding device for dairy cattle and makes it possible to provide them with the proper kind of food during the winter. The silo is being constructed under the direction of Professor J. William Hart, of the State College of Agriculture, and next year he will be able to give demonstrations of just how the silo is used.

A number of farmers in middle and south Georgia have already constructed silos of their own, probably the largest and most modern of these being on the large plantation of Dr. W. J. Little, of Macon, located in Houston county.

The first real big day of the fair this year will be Thursday, October 23. That is the day Governor Slaton and his staff and their ladies will be the guests of the fair association. Arrangements are being made to show them a good time and there will not be a dull moment during the stay of the party here.

When the governor's party arrive they will be met at the station by a committee from the fair association, the mayor and council and the chamber of commerce. Plenty of automobiles will be in waiting and a band and three local military companies will act as an escort. From the time of arrival at 10:30 o'clock, the governor will spend in inspecting the exhibits, after which he will make a short address to the fair visitors. These talks given by the governors in the past have done much to stimulate the farmers of Georgia to greater interest in their work.

At noon a luncheon will be served for the party, and the afternoon will be spent in an automobile tour of the city. The ladies of the party will be tendered a reception during the afternoon.

Friday, immediately following governor's day, will probably be the biggest day of the entire fair. Barnum & Bailey's circus will be at the fair on that day, and it is expected a new attendance record will be set if weather conditions are favorable. All of the white schools of Bibb county will have a holiday on that day.

Negro Fatally Stabbed Before Police Station Early Saturday Night

While a crowd numbering more than 100 persons looked on an uknown negro was assaulted and stabbed Saturday night about 8 o'clock, on Decatur street, almost directly in front of police headquarters, sustaining such severe wounds that the authorities at Grady hospital, where he was taken, hold out little hope for his recovery. "Bub" Wesley, another negro, is lodged in a cell at the stationhouse, charged with the crime, having been arrested shortly after the assault took place.

According to witnesses the two men were standing near the curb, quietly talking, when suddenly and without warning, Wesley whipped out a long knife and cut the other negro several times across the throat and face. Wesley made his escape during the confusion, but a few minutes later boldly walked by the stationhouse, when he was identified by several witnesses of the assault, and placed under arrest. Wesley denies any knowledge of the affair.

SUFFRAGE WORKERS TO HOLD BIG RALLY ON FRIDAY NIGHT

Under the auspices of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, a rally for the exploitation of the suffrage cause will be held in the convention hall of the Ansley hotel on the evening of October 24, at 8 o'clock.

Addresses will be made by a number of prominent ministers of Atlanta, among whom will be Rev. Hugh K. Walker, who will tell of the good results of woman's suffrage in California. Dr. Fred A. Line will discuss municipal suffrage in Kansas. Dr. J. Wade Conkling will speak on "Equal Suffrage." Jerome Jones will treat of the relation of woman's suffrage to the industrial world. A series of short talks will be made during the evening by representative business men.

At the meeting of the association Monday an interesting program was rendered. Mrs. H. C. Buchholz made an interesting talk of the organization of Sunbeam societies. Dr. Fred E. Line, pastor of the Universalist church, told of the scope and duties of good citizenship. Dr. R. R. Daly brought before the association the benefits derived from fresh air schools. In indorsement of Dr. Daly's views and by way of seeking to relieve the congested condition of the city schools, the following resolutions were introduced and adopted:

"Realizing the great value of pure air to the growing child, we heartily indorse the plan of open air schools, so ably outlined by Dr. Daly, and pledge ourselves to use our every influence for the extension of this excellent work. We are also greatly aroused over the crowded condition of the city schools, and take this method of indorsing every sane movement which will remedy this great evil.

"Therefore be it resolved, That the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association will heartily co-operate in any movement looking to ultimate relief along this line."

The membership list was augmented by the addtion of many leading citizens of Atlanta, among them being George Muse, V. H. Kriegshaber, Philip Weitner, R. J. MacDonald, Jerome Jones, J. C. Logan, Dr. George Beattie, Frank Wilby, Dr. M. C. Hardin, Rev. J. Wade Conkling, Dr. Fred A. Line, C. M. Hitch, Rev. H. C. Buchholz, Lucien Harris, G. B. Stewart, J. L. Gillett, Milton Kline, S. B. Castleton, Dr. Frank H. Peck.

CANNING CLUB EXHIBIT IN THOMAS COURTHOUSE

Thomasville, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—The Girls' Canning club and the Boys' Corn club held interesting exhibits at the courthouse here yesterday, the former being in charge of Miss Lilla Forrest, of Boston, district supervisor, and the latter of District Demonstrator J. D. Oliver.

The exhibits were unusually fine and reflected much credit upon both clubs. The room where these exhibits were made had the appearance of a department at a fair and there were a number of interested visitors present. There were vegetables and fruits of all kind that had been put up by the girls. There was a long list of vegetables, from corn down to squash, and the jars of canned fruits, preserves, jams, etc., were very inviting. Among the unusual fruits displayed were the fruit of the tupelo paw-paws, maypops, the pulp of the watermelon, etc., showing that besides the regulation fruits always seen, the girls had with success been trying their apprentice hand on other and rare things.

Ouimet Loses.

Brookline, Mass., October 18.—Poor iron work cost Francis Ouimet, the open golf champion, his match in the semi-finals in the Country club's fall tournament today. The champion was defeated by F. H. Hoyt, of Woodland, 2 up and 1 to play.

Benefit Performance for the Uncle Remus Memorial Association

On the evening of October 31, Miss Louise A. Williams, under the auspices of the Uncle Remus Memorial association, will present "An Evening With the Old South." Miss Williams is herself a Georgia girl, born near Augusta, on an old plantation, and from the old family servants, of whom very few remain, she has gathered the songs and stories of the period "befo' de wah," and so attractive is the program which she offers that her entertainments are in demand from Maine to San Francisco. Recently Miss Williams appeared at the white house and both Mrs. Woodrod Wilson and Mrs. Taft have given her letters of the highest commendation. At another performance, given in Washington, Thomas Nelson Page, Jack London and other notables were present and they, too, indorsed Miss Williams in the highest terms. The performance is replete with stories which for generations have made famous the old-time darky. Miss Williams wears the old-time costumes and will be assisted by a bevy of Atlanta's most attractive young women, as there will be tableaux vivant, songs of the old south and twenty of the dearest little boys and girls from 6 to 8 years of age will sing and dance "Mammy's Little Shufflin' Dance." These little tots will themselves draw quite an audience by their charming and unique performance. The entertainment will be given in the ballroom of the Ansley hotel and will partake of the nature of a hallowe'en party, as many of the ladies, especially the patronesses, will make up small parties of four to six and have supper in the cafe after the performance.

The Uncle Remus Memorial association has always endeavored to present to Atlanta audiences only the best in any form of entertainment which they undertake, and the evening which Miss Williams will give will prove no exception, as a rare treat is in store for all who hear her.

GERMAN AIR HORROR SHOCKS THE BRITONS

London, October 18.—The explosion of the great Zeppelin airship near Berlin has called forth from practically all the London newspapers sympathetic comment together with the prediction that the disaster may terminate aerostatic experiments with craft of this type.

The Times pays a tribute to the Germans by saying:

"Nothing reveals more admirably the stuff of which the Germans are made than the manner in which they have borne the long series of accidents which have attended their efforts to conquer the air."

The Daily Chronicle says that evidently the future belongs to the aeroplane—not to the airship, and The Standard makes similar observation.

The Daily Telegraph thinks, however, that the evolution of the perfect airship may still be pursued, not only in Germany, but in England also.

Moore Heads Chemists.

The Georgia section of the American Chemical society met last night for the annual election of officers at the Carnegie library. The following were elected: H. C. Moore, president; Ray C. Werner, vice president; J. S. Brogdon, secretary, and F. M. Smalley, of Savannah, counsellor. About thirty members of the society were in attendance.

LIMITATION ON MONEY IN POLITICAL FIGHTS

Senate Passes Measure to Bar Sending of Funds From One State to Another.

Washington, October 18.—The first direct results of the congressional investigation of campaign expenditures came today when the senate passed Senator Clapp's bill prohibiting the sending of campaign funds from one state to another.

If the house approves the measure it will put a rigid limitation, not only upon the activities of general political interests, but also upon the work of such organizations as the National Association of Manufacturers, the American Federation of Labor and the National Association for Woman's Suffrage.

The bill prohibits the carrying or sending of funds from one state to another to be used in the election of president, vice president, presidential electors, or congressmen. The senate passed the bill today without debate. In previous discussions it was made clear that its purpose was to prevent the financing of campaigns in a secret manner by organizations or individuals who did not come directly under the campaign publicity laws.

The proposed new law would not prohibit the present work of national political committees so long as they make public reports of all contributions received and expended. Practically all the national committees send contributions to the state committees of their parties during a national election.

It is believed the measure would curtail soliciting of campaign funds in money centers, and greatly curb general campaign activities on the part of persons or organization that might be indirectly interested in the outcome of elections.

A further amendment of campaign contribution laws was proposed today by Senator Sterling in a bill to prevent all corporations from contributing to campaigns for nominations, as they are now prohibited from contributing to election campaigns.

FINAL ACT IN CONTEST OVER THE EDDY WILL

Concord, N. H., October 18.—The final act in the prolonged litigation over the will of the late Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy was the appointment in the Merrimack county court of probate today of trustees to administer the three million-dollar fund which Mrs. Eddy left for the promotion and extension of the doctrines of Christian Science as taught by her.

The trustees appointed are: Archibald MacLellan, Allison V. Stewart, John V. Dittemore, Adam H. Dickey and James A. Neal, who constitute the board of directors of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and Josiah E. Ferenald, of this city, a banker, who has been the practical custodian of Mrs. Eddy's estate since the establishment of this trust in 1907; the court thus choosing as trustees men in whom Mrs. Eddy, during her lifetime, reposed confidence.

Use O-Cedar Polish
The O-Cedar Polish Way

Wet a Piece of Cloth— in water — cheese cloth is the best.

Wring It Dry— or until it is just slightly more than damp

Pour on O-Cedar Polish until the cloth contains as much polish as it does water.

Go Over the Surface to be cleaned. Varnish absorbs O-Cedar but not water—the friction removes the dirt and dust —and the surface is cleaned.

Polish with a Dry Cloth Slight rubbing will quickly produce the desired lustre and finish.

Home Education Division Of the National Congress

The National Congress of Mothers may well feel that in the establishment of the home education division of the United States bureau of education it has seen the achievement of a purpose for which the leaders of the congress have worked faithfully for many years.

Parents and the home have a place now and are regarded as on as important an educational basis as schools. Farmers have been generously helped by the government. Parents now may count on as much consideration as farmers.

The home education division is open for the service of parents or others desiring to have the latest and best thought on home-making and child-nurture.

Long study of the experineces of others and the results of different methods show conclusively that instinct is not a true guide, that to do the best for babies, for little children and for youth, one must understand their needs at the different periods of development.

Not only parents, but teachers, judges, law-makers, can raise the standards of citizenship of the entire nation through a deeper insight into the all-around needs of childhood.

Those who desire guidance in reading which relates to child-nurture will be advised of reading courses which are of real value. Those who wish to interest their children in good books will also be advised. Educational bulletins will be issued by this division.

Nothing indicates the growth of the Mothers' Congress work more than the fact that nine states are holding annual conventions in October. From Massachusetts to Oregon, from New York to Alabama, the parents of the nation are taking up in earnest the better care of the children, and through organized effort are accomplishing what would be impossible otherwise.

The national congress guides, suggests and directs attention to the needs in states and to promoting better care of child life in the entire nation.

The mother's viewpoint of children's care in home, church, school and state is bringing about gradually but surely new modes of treatment, more purposeful and reasonable methods of discipline and instruction.

With the best intention to help children one must view the effect of any plan from many sides to know whether what is designed to help may not fall short of its object by creating other conditions that are prejudicial.

The mother who is busy with her own home work and the care of little children has no time for the work outside the home which will make conditions better for her children. The state branch of the congress in the work for departments of child hygiene in every board of health, for mothers' pensions to prevent breaking up homes, for juvenile courts and educational standards for probation work, for schools properly ventilated, lighted and heated, is doing what helps every mother—because it makes all the children have a better chance.

Inspiration for Georgia Branch Came From Child Study Club

Only those most closely associated with the Georgia branch of the Mothers' congress know that the inspiration for the organization of the state association—the acorn, as it were, from which this tall oak may be said to have grown—was the Child Study club of Atlanta.

This was a little gathering of about sixteen women who met together regularly during the winter of 1905 for the purpose of studying child life, that they might be helped in bringing up their own children. They used the list of books suggested by the National Congress of Mothers, and most of the meetings were held at the home of their president, Mrs. Hugh Richardson.

The members held delightful meetings all during that winter and disbanded for the summer, with the exception of getting together the following year to continue their studies. But Mrs. Richardson was in ill health and was out of Atlanta for medical care, and the Child Study club passed out of existence.

That fall, Mrs. Theodore Birney, founder of the National Mothers' congress, who knew of the organization and numbered many of the members among her friends, came to Atlanta for the purpose of forming the Georgia branch of the Mothers' congress.

What a busy organization the Georgia branch has since been is well known history. It had its birth at the First Methodist church of this city, and the work at first was small and much of it local. However, it has made wonderful strides, until a year ago it was found necessary to put a state organizer—Miss Mary Collins—in the field to systematize and push the work.

It is rather a significant fact that the first person to make a contribution to the extension work of the Georgia branch, was Mrs. Hugh Richardson, the president of Atlanta's first mothers' club, who gave $100 last spring.

The members of that original club were some of the most prominent women of the city, including the following: Mesdames Hugh Richardson, John Grant, Robert Maddox, Charles Conklin, Thomas B. Paine, R. F. Shedden, Vaughn Nixon, William H. Kiser, J. D. Robinson, Henry S. Jackson, Robert Foreman, W. D. Ellis, Jr., Edward Inman, Frank Inman, F. C. Block, Wilmer Moore and James McKeldin.

In the seven years of its existence, the Georgia branch has had three presidents. Mrs. Robert Zahner was the first presiding officer and served for two years. She was succeeed by Miss Celeste Parrish, who held the office for two years, and the third president is Mrs. James R. Little, who has held the office for three years.

Logan Waller Page Tells Why Women Should Work for Improved Roads

By Logan Waller Page.

The good roads movement affects the women as vitally as it affects the men. Heretofore, the problem has been left entirely to the men, but there are as many women and girls as there are men and boys, as many living in the country in isolated neighborhoods, and these are affected by bad roads to a greater extent than are the men and boys. As a general rue, women are more interested in educational, social and religious work than the men, and all of these are dependent to a large extent upon the condition of the roads. To get to church, to school, or to any social function, it is often necessary for the farmer's wife or daughter to travel over miles of road and, unless the roads are in a fairly passable condition they must stay at home.

No matter how isolated the farm may be, or how bad the roads may become, a man will, in spite of all these difficulties, get out and go to the cross-roads store, or on an errand to the neighbor's, where he will enjoy a bit of social gossip. He will strap a saddle to an old mule, or go horseback, or even walk miles through the mud on a hunting trip. He manages to get out in someway, but the wife and daughter are often compelled to stay at home. This situation is only relieved by the approach of spring, when the liquid morasses, which we call public roads, dry up and become passable for whelled vehicles.

Insanity Caused by Monotony.

Experts on the diseases of the mind claim that a considerable percentage of the inmates of asylums are women, who are the wives or servants of farmers, and who have been driven to despair by the unbroken monotony of their lives. That these conditions are largely attributable to bad roads there can be no question.

The lack of comforts and even the necessities of life in many country homes may also le traced to bad roads. The farmer is unable to market his products to advantage when he has to haul them through miles of muddy roads; it frequently costs him more in time and effort than he is able to obtain in dollars and cents. He, therefore, contents himself with raising only enough for his own use, and the wife or daughter must suffer in the end for lack of comforts which he is unable to purchase.

Owing to the bad condition of the roads at certain seasons of the year, communication between the country districts and the rest of the world is to a great extent cut off. A large number of our people are, therefore, isolated from the outside world during these seasons, and, living apart from one another as they do, a mud embargo is placed upon social and business intercourse.

Deprivation Brings Discontent.

They are thus deprived of many of the advantages which our present state of civilization and advancement should afford them. A continued deprivation of these priviliges has brought about discontent and has resulted in the abandonment of many farms throughout the country. This is especially true of the young people. Growing weary of the isolation and dreariness of farm life, they are enticed away by the attractions of the city. That to a considerable extent this condition would be alleviated by better roads is unquestioned.

It will be seen from these facts that the question of road improvement vitally affects the women as well as the men. Every woman's organization in the country should, therefore, study this subject and co-operate with the men in the great campaign of education now in progress, which has for its object the abolition of muddy roads.

The Political Rights of Women

MRS. MARY L. McLENDON, Editor

President Georgia Woman's Suffrage Association

THE EVOLUTION of WOMAN.

Whoever imagined seventy years ago that women would be enfranchised in any part of these United States of America in 1913? The thirteen original states stood on their dignity and hurled anathemas at the pioneer women suffragists who "got up that abominable bill of rights" and exploited it at the first woman's rights convention ever held in the world, at Seneca Falls, N. Y., July, 1848.

That was sixty-five years ago. Now see what great things have grown from such a small beginning. Everybody who is anybody reads the newspapers these days, and it is therefore not necessary for me to use time and space in The Atlanta Constitution in trying to enumerate all the good things that have come to women since those much maligned women suffragists started the organizing ball to rolling at that convention. Suffice it to say that there are more than eight million women in the United States who are out of the home. They are working in gainful occupations and their numbers are increasing every day. It is stated on good authority that one-fifth of all women in the world are out of the home and forced to maintain themslves and often those dependent on them for the actual necessities of life. From the census of 1900 we find that women are in all of the 131 occupations classified as gainful except two. There is a great hue and cry going up all over the land to the women to "go back to the home!"

Not a "Gainful" Occupation.

Housekeeping is not counted as one of the "gainful occupations." A woman can work all the days of her life and get nothing but her "wittles and cloes," and not enough of either, as very often happens. If all the women stayed at home they would starve in the home if the sheriff or some other "minion of the law" has not levied on it and forced them to leave its shelter. Women are not anxious to work outside home, for conditions are not so inviting outside, but their work has passed out of the home into the factory and they must work out to live. They cannot starve and men do not love them so well that they are willing to work themselves to death to support them.

No, indeed! The men of today are not willing to "keep their noses to the grindstone" that women should "sit on a tussick and sew a fine seam and feed upon strawberries with sugar and cream," etc. The women of today do not want that. The spirit of independence is as strong in them as it was in their forefathers in 1775, when they defied King George and his Hessians. Molile Pitcher and Nancy Hart were never more brave and courageous than are many women of today, who are fighting the wolf from the door by going out to work to secure a home for themselves and loved ones, while the man, who should be the protector and helper, hangs around saloons and pool-rooms and other places of vice and ruin.

Deeds of Heroism.

In India, as early as 200 B. C., the Hindu women fought on the battlefield against the enemies of their country, and ever since that time deeds of heroism have been recorded of women. Atalanta of Greece, Queen Labgris, Queen Boadicea, adame de Retz, Renau Hasselaae, Mademoiselle Lix and then Deborah Samson, of American revolutionary fame, who was no doubt named for the Deborah who led the forces of Israel to battle and to victory. Then was Frances Hook and Mrs. Frances L. Clayton, who fought in the confederate army in the sixties, and about four hundred women who enlisted in the union army.

So it is seen that women can fight in time of war and they do work in time of peace, therefore they are worthy of full citizenship in this government. Hence, the rapid pace that women are coming up to the highest standard. Fifty years ago there had never been a woman elected to any office, in church or in state; today women are voting and holding office in ten states and one territory.

Senator Helen Ring Robinson.

In November, 1912, Mrs. Helen Ring Robinson received the highest honor ever bestowed upon a Colorado woman, being elected to a four-year term in the state senate, party lines in her election being practically obliterated. During her first session she was made chairman of the committee on education and educational institutions, and a member of the judiciary and other important committees. She took a prominent part in securing the passage of the Minimum Wage for Women law, which bears her name. She is now chairman of the only hold-over committee of the Colorado senate, that on state institutions.

Mrs. Robinson is said to be one of the finest housekeepers in the country. She is a New Englander by birth but has lived for so many years in Colorado that she is thoroughly identified with the people of that lovely "free" state. She first entered actively into politics about four years ago as the head of a movement of Denver housewives against the renewal of the franchise of the local water company. Declaring that "the question concerned both household economy and public morality," the league formed neighborhood chains to pass information from house to house, established ballot-marking schools with teachers in every precinct, and after a hard fight won—a victory which has recently been reaffirmed by the supreme court of the United States.

Senator Helen Ring Robinson is said to be a very fine woman and is called "the most cultured woman in Colorado." She has studied in the colleges and universities of America and Europe, has been a teacher, a literary critic, an editorial and magazine writer. For years she has been identified with all that is best in the social, literary and public life of Denver, her voice and pen being always ready to advance the cause of social and industrial justice.

When will Georgia have a woman state senator?

Iceland Gives Ballot to Women.

The bill had to pass two parliaments. It was first passed in 1911, and has just been passed again and almost without opposition. It must be signed by the King of Denmark and it is believed that he will sign it. The women of Iceland were granted municipal suffrage in 1882—that is the self-supporting widows and spinsters, and in 1909 this right was also extended to all taxpaying women. Now all women have full parliamentary suffrage without regard to property. Two women delegates were sent from Iceland to the International Woman Suffrage congress at Budapest last June. Mrs. Amundsson, of Reykjavik, and her daughter were sent by the government, and to meet the expense it was arranged that the island should have one less mail delivery for a year. That is one way to send delegates to a convention.

Marriages in California.

One of the standard arguments against woman suffrage is that the women will not get married when they vote. There were 31,278 marriages in California during the past year.

Mass W. C. T. U. for Suffrage.

At the state convention held last week, Mrs. W. E. Birdsall, superintendent of the franchise department of the Massachusetts Woman's Christian Temperance union, gave a glowing report of the increased interest in suffrage, claiming that Massachusetts was doing her share in helping to accomplish the success of the principle.

A vote for women flag was fastened around the columns of the hall and many posters and leaflets regarding suffrage were displayed. Every state W. C. T. U., except six southern states unions, have indorsed woman suffrage and carry the franchise department in the plan of work.

Miss Jessie Ackerman, Miss Bell Kearney and Mrs. Ada Unbugh are actively engaged in lecturing for woman suffrage. They are all W. C. T. U. lecturers and organizers.

Suffrage States.

Free States—Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Idaho, Washington, California, Oregon, Kansas, Arizona, Illinois and Alaska.

States where amendment is now before voters:

	House.	Senate.	Goes to Voters.
Montana	75—2	15—3	1914
Nevada	29—2	19—3	1914
North Dakota			1914
South Dakota	70—30	41—2	1914

States where amendment has passed one legislature; must pass another:

	House.	Senate.	Goes to Voters.
Iowa	84—26	31—15	1916
New Jersey	46— 5	14— 5	1914
New York	125— 5	40— 9	1915
Pennsylvania	131—70	26—22	1915

States where initiative petitions are under way:

	Goes to Voters.
Missouri	1914
Nebraska	1914
Ohio	1914

This seems hopeful. If twenty-two states give equal rights to the women, there can be no doubt of the amendment to the United States constitution passing both senate and house of representatives.

Congress Should Submit Amendments.

The Hon. Wesley L. Jones of Washington, in urging the United States senate to act on the suffrage resolution which was favorably reported on June 13, said:

"No one can say there is no demand for its passage. Millions of voters from the Pacific and Rocky mountain states, where the broad expanse of territory and almost boudless horizon create a breadth of vision and desire for political liberty that take in the entire continent, have asked for its passage. The states of the east and the middle west are agitated over it and thousands of their citizens ask us to pass it. Political parties representing millions of male voters have declared in favor of it, and farmer and labor organizations with millions of members have indorsed it. There can be no reason for not acting upon this resolution except the inertness which characterizes a body like this when it does not desire to see any radical change made, and yet is afraid to oppose it, and therefore compromises by doing nothing. There is much complaint because of the difficulty of amending the constitution, and a demand is growing that an easier method should be devised. We ourselves are largely responsible for this. We should be more responsive to the wishes of the people. When the provision was inserted in the constitution providing for the submission of amendments upon the vote of two-thirds of the members of each house of congress it was not contemplated that we would disregard the desires of the people by refusing to submit such resolutions. It was not supposed that we would need to be practically forced to submit them. Propositions for which there is a widespread demand should be considered and discussed in congress and then submitted to the people, who can be fully trusted to pass upon them wisely and well."

Suffragist an Efficient Housekeeper.

Mrs. Christine Frederick, well known as a writer on scientific housekeeping, has a model kitchen at Greenlawn, L. I. She is a disciple of Taylor and Brandeis, having adapted to housekeeping the principles which they have applied to business. Mrs. Frederick is a college woman, with a Phi Beta Kappa key, and a good suffragist as well. She recently gave a demonstration of efficiency housekeeping at the suffrage fair in Huntington, in order to prove that good suffragists may be good housekeepers.

On the evening of the 24th of October the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, which is auxiliary to the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association, will have an open meeting in the convention hall of the Hotel Ansley, and a cordial invitation to every one is extended to hear the splendid speaches in favor of woman suffrage from both men and women. No admission fee is required.

When Your Appetite Comes Back to You

It Is a Sure Sign Your Stomach Is Able to Work. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Give You a Rousing Appetite.

It is the greatest joy in the world to be able to eat what one wants and no misery can compare with that which comes when an appetite fails. When the stomach cannot digest food, the system revolts at the very idea of eating, but when the digestive apparatus is restored to its normal condition, every quality of mind seems to make a man cheerful.

"That's the Way I Used to Look. What'a you think of me now?"

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets mix with the food you eat. The stomach, by its peristaltic action, churns and moves the food around the stomach walls, the powerful ingredients in these tablets instantly begin digesting the food as they are forced through it and around it.

These tablets regulate the strength of gastric juices. If there is too much acid or alkali, then Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets reduce or diffuse these evil conditions and prevent the irritating and raw stomachs which always come with dyspepsia, indigestion, etc.

It is the very essence of pleasure to a stomach sufferer to know that he can digest any meal if he will only take a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet after eating.

The use of one of these tablets after meals will in a very short time restore your appetite to its normal condition, and you will be able to enjoy your food with an old-time relish.

Every drug store carries Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Price, 50 cents.

JACKETS Sting Mercer GEORGIA Shows Heels To Alabama SEWANEE Surprises Tennessee

MERCER BAPTISTS FIGHT FIERCELY, BUT ARE BEATEN

Yellow Jackets, Minus Three of Their Stars, Roll Up 33 to 0 Count on Mercer at Grant Field Saturday.

COCHRAN, OF MERCER, STAR OF BOTH ELEVENS

Jackets Work Forward Pass Successfully—Line Fails to Show Strength With Regulars Missing.

By Dick Jemison.

Fighting gamely and fiercely from the first whistle until the last, the Mercer Baptists went down in defeat before the heavier Tech Yellow Jackets at Grant field Saturday afternoon by a 33 to 0 count.

The Baptists fought bitterly. They showed to a good crowd of Atlanta football fans that they have the spirit and the fight that advance reports from Macon said that they possessed. They are just about as scrappy a little team as the Tech bunch was last season.

But they were outclassed in weight, speed and knowledge of the game, so much so that the Yellow Jackets made no attempt to start three of their star players, and three others only played a brief period during the game.

The size of the score does not denote truly the fierce fighting that was indulged in. Mercer contested every inch of ground that the Jackets made, and on their showing Saturday they have nothing to be sorry for.

Baptists Were Game.

Their work was a credit to themselves, their coach and their college. It was just a question of meeting a better team. Everyone loves a game loser, and the Baptists were certainly all of that, and they lost cleanly with it all.

The Jackets showed a marked improvement in their offensive game, their interference on end runs being the best that a Tech team has shown in years. They got off their plays quickly, and the entire team protected the runner.

But there was a noticeable weakness in the defense in the line, a glaring hole on the right side of the line being responsible for most of the gains that the Baptists made, and for all of their first downs.

But the absence of Nance from that side of the line explains that. The big fellow was not feeling his best, and did not get into the game except for a brief interval, just long enough to plug up the hole effectually and show the Baptists that he could stop anything coming that way.

The Jackets started the game with two sub ends, a sub quarter, a sub tackle and a sub center in the game, yet the subs played great ball, and showed that the Jackets will be little, if any, weakened when their stars are laid up with injuries.

Cochran the Star.

The individual star of the game was Cochran, the speedy halfback of the Mercer team. No better back, for his weight, has ever been seen in the south. Not only is he a star offensively, but he is a wonderfully strong defensive player, and as an interferer gives the runner plenty of help.

Cochran made the majority of the gains for the Baptists, and repeatedly tore off gains from 8 to 15 yards, and in the main by hard running, slamming through the center of the Tech defense, twisting and turning for gains after apparently stopped.

For his weight, Cochran runs harder and lower than any back it has been our pleasure to witness in years, and, once loose on a broken field, he is one of the hardest men to stop we have ever seen, regardless of weight.

Cochran was ably assisted by Forrester, the big tackle of the Baptists. Between the two, Mercer made eight first downs during the game. When Cochran was not smashing just off tackle or circling the ends, Forrester was hammering at the line, and he was plunging unaided for 2, 3 and 4-yard gains time after time.

Forrester's defense work was some of the best that it has been the pleasure of an Atlanta football crowd to witness. The Tech backfield would get in motion, apparently set for a long gain, when, lo and behold, a gray jacketed catapult would come hurtling through the center of the line and nail the runner for a loss. That was Forrester.

Forrester outplayed every man that was sent in to play against him. He easily pushed his heaviest opponent away from him and went on after the man with the ball.

Cochran and Forrester are a very good football team by themselves. If they had just a little more support, they would make the best of them sit up and take notice. As it is, on their showing Saturday they are worth at least honorable mention on All-Southern and may get a choice from some.

Tech Stars.

For Tech, the best defensive player was big Ed Means, the old steady reliable guard, who is in there all the time plugging along, playing a game, that, while not spectacular, brings the results and when a play is spilled, Ed Means is usually the Tech man that is nearest the runner with the ball.

On the offensive, one could pick out practically every man on the Tech team as having something to do with the victory, but to Fielder, Cushman, McDonald, Montague and Hayes, we are willing to give the lion's share of the praise, without any discredit to the other members.

Fielder and Montague tore off long gains around the end on several occasions. Cushman scored two touchdowns, one as the result of being wide awake on a fumble and the other by catching a forward pass.

In regards to this pass. It was one of the prettiest that has ever been pulled locally, McDonald hurling the ball 40 yards and Cushman making a great catch of it as it was going over his head over the goal line, letting the ball settle in his arms and then falling prone on the ground.

The Jackets tried five forward passes during the afternoon, four of them being worked successfully, three for touchdowns, but one of the three did not count by reason of a penalty being inflicted against the Jackets.

Preas Missed.

The Jackets missed Preas' kicking somewhat, but as their booting did not

Sewanee Tigers Outrush Tennessee and Win 17 to 6

BY W. G. FOSTER.

Chattanooga, Tenn., October 18.—(Special.)—Steadily outrushing Tennessee in a plain, old-fashioned football game this afternoon, Sewanee was returned winner by a score of 17 to 6. The game was without sensational features, neither team being able to use open play, and was won strictly by the superior power of Sewanee's line and a slight line plunging supremacy in the backfield.

Tennessee scored first, Bayer getting the ball on a fumble, and with Carroll interfering for him, ran 85 yards to a touchdown. Sewanee scored on line and tackle rushes near the close of the first half, Tolley sneaking through the center for the counter.

In the second half, the same policy brought a second touchdown for the Tigers, and the latter made their final score on a drop kick by Hammond from the 10-yard line. Neither team showed much class in its backfield, both of the quarters being light, with the exception of Parker, of Tennessee.

Quarters Star.

Tolley and Reiney, the two little quarterbacks, had a great duel in open field work and line sneakings, Reiney had the edge in the open and Tolley was able to go through the line by means of better men in front of him.

Sewanee sprang a dark horse in Ward, who did some good playing, though badly out of condition. Captain "Heavy" McCollum was the big noise in the Sewanee line. The 200-pound guard tore through when Tennessee had the ball and made regular abysses for the Sewanee backs on offense. Dobbins also shone at tackle, stopping many Tennessee plays. The Tiger forwards showed their boasted class all the way.

For Tennessee the magnificent work of Reiney, the midget auburn-haired quarter, was the stellar feature. Sewanee attempted a punting game at times and Reiney rarely failed to bring the boots back to within 10 yards from where they were started. Several times Reiney was almost "loose" for a touchdown and lost one by running out of bounds.

Captain Hayley played a star game at tackle and with some good work by Carroll at left end, made the left side of the Tennessee defense strong, though the center and right were porous.

Fumbles Hurt.

Sewanee received the kick-off and steadily carried the ball up field, only to lose it on a fumble. Tennessee could not gain and kicked. Palmer almost got away for a touchdown, Thomasson tackling him from behind after a long run. A second fumble and the ball was grabbed by Bayer and the 85-yard sprint for a counter resulted. Carroll missed the goal. The ball seesawed for the rest of the first period, Reiney, Harmon and Tolley returning bunts well.

Sewanee used the low, quick, close-in kick repeatedly and in the second period one of them by Tolley rolled down the field 60 yards.

Tennessee was unable to gain. Carroll's punt was short and line plunges soon carried the ball over. Tolley made the touchdown on a 15-yard drill through the center and kicked the goals.

After kicking off, Sewanee forced a punt in the second half and advanced the ball down the field by short dashes, Tolley making the second touchdown and kicking another goal. A long forward pass to Thomasson put the ball in scoring distance for Tennessee, and Vol rooters felt their hopes rise, but Sewanee held.

A forward pass, intercepted by Parker for a 40-yard run, put Sewanee well up field again, and when Tennessee held on her 10-yard line Hammond drop-kicked the last score.

TENNIS AT EMORY.

Students Organize Association. Tourney Next Spring.

Emory College, Oxford, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—The tennis players of the Emory student body have organized a tennis association, electing Professor I. E. McKellar, president; Haskell, Bass, of Griffin, vice president, and Lewis King, of Griffin, secretary and treasurer.

Their purpose is to stimulate an interest in tennis at Emory, and already the association is conducting a tournament, independent of the tournament conducted by the athletic department of the student body, which occurs next spring.

The students are endeavoring to secure a donation for a cup in tennis singles. The singles cup was carried away by Hatton Towson last spring, he having won the honors three years in succession. Towson is now at Oxford, England, being the choice for the Rhodes scholarship from Georgia.

VARDON AND RAY WIN EASY TEXAS MATCH

Huston, Texas, October 18.—Harry Vardon, of South Herto, and Edward Ray, of Oxhoy, England, defeated Professional W. McGuire and Amateur Bryan Heard, of the Houston Country club, today, 7 up and 6 to play, in a 36 hole, 4-ball match.

On the eighteenth hole of the morning round Ray missed a 2-foot putt which would have tied the course record.

Campi v. Chaves.

Los Angeles, October 17.—Negotiations for a 20-round boxing bout between Eddie Campi, of San Francisco, and Benny Chaves, the Denver bantamweight, at Vernon on November 4, were virtually completed today when Campi accepted the terms offered by an athletic club here.

An effort will be made to match the winner with Champion Johnny Coulon for the bantamweight title.

SOLDIER ELEVEN TRIMS DAHLONEGA

Coach Devore's Men Run Up 32 to 0 Count—Forward Pass Used Successfully Several Times.

By Hal Reynolds.

By bucking the line for good gains the army eleven defeated the team from Dahlonega yesterday afternoon at Fort McPherson before a large crowd by the score of 32 to 0.

After the first few minutes of play the result of the game was never in doubt, as the soldiers were full of pep and the men were following their interference in great fashion.

The soldiers proved themselves experts in the use of the forward pass, several being worked for good gains, and two being made over the goal line for touchdowns.

Swartz a Star.

Much of the credit for the success of the passes should be given to Swartz, the soldiers' snappy quarter, as his passing in every instance was very accurate, the receiver merely having to reach up to get the ball.

The soldiers kicked off to the mountaineers to start the game, who, after making a couple of attempts to ram the line, tried a forward pass which found a resting-place in Flynn's arms on Dahlonega's 20-yard line. The soldiers quickly carried the ball toward the goal line, Flynn finally being sent over for the first score. Swartz missed the goal.

The soldiers again kicked off to the Dahlonega, who lost the ball after three unsuccessful attempts to skirt the opposition's ends. After working the ball up to the 20-yard line, the soldiers added another touch-down, Bradberry receiving a pass behind the goal line from Swartz, who had gotten into position for a kick from placement.

Forward Passes Work.

The soldiers rapidly made two more touchdowns from several end runs for nice gains, and several forward passes, one of which Moore caught behind the goal line for a touchdown. The score at the end of the first half was Army 26, Dahlonega 0.

The Dahlonega boys played a much better game in the second half than in the first, receiving the kick-off and marching down to the soldiers' 10-yard line with a touchdown in sight, when the opposite line took a brace and held them for downs.

The soldiers added three points to their score in the fourth quarter when Herrington attempted to come from behind the goal with the ball.

The shining light for the soldier eleven was Swartz, playing at quarter. His work on the offensive was especially brilliant, getting away a number of times for good gains around the ends. He caused the opposition much trouble by his fierce tackling. Swartz also ran the team in nice shape, being quick to observe his opponents' weaknesses.

Mahoney also played good ball, his dumping of interference being especially strong.

For the Dahlonega bunch, Gaston put up the best article of ball. Had it not been for this boy, the soldiers would have run up a much larger score, as it was only his fiery manner of playing which inspired his teammates to work harder.

Clemson Tigers Surprise Auburn With Good Defense

Clemson College, S. C., October 18.—(Special.)—In a fiercely fought game the Tigers surprised both their friends and the Auburn Braves by holding the big eleven from Alabama to a 20 to 0 score.

The defense of the Clemson team was creditable, indeed. Time after time Auburn was held and was sometimes pushed back for a loss. The Auburn line-up outweighed the Tiger line twenty pounds to the man.

The lightness of Clemson's line led Auburn to the hammering tactics, which were fairly successful. Taylor, Newell, Harris, Sparkman and Christopher made good gains through the line, Sparkman getting away with 25 yards.

On the other hand, the Tigers could do little against the Auburn line, and had to resort to kicking rather frequently. James, Logan and Webb were called on to carry the ball.

Gee and Schilletter made many fine tackles. Caughman, too, did fine work in stopping runners. In fact, every Clemson player did unusually fine work. Logan and Major attempted goals from the 30-yard line, but failed.

The touchdowns were made in the first, second and fourth quarters by Arnold, Harris and Newell.

STONE MOUNTAIN BEATEN 52 TO 0

By Carl Taylor.

Running up 52 points to their opponents' none, Boys' High school defeated the Stone Mountain team yesterday afternoon, 52-0, on Georgia Military academy's campus in College Park.

A large crowd was out to witness this struggle, and a good crowd of students from both schools were present to cheer their teams on to victory.

For some years in the past, Stone Mountain has had a team that has very easily won over the best local talent, but when "Sandy" Beavers left the school and went to Riverside, the majority of last year's team went with him. Thus the team this year, while it shows the making of a good team, is green at the game, and with a little more seasoning will retain their place in football ranks.

From the beginning of the struggle, High school played an offensive game, and for the most part the ball was in possession of High school and in Stone Mountain territory.

Stone Mountain gained five first downs and at no time did they show any signs of scoring on the eleven that represented High school.

The line that Boys' High played the game with was practically impregnable by the Stone Mountain bunch, and the gains they made were mostly around end. The team has been under the tutelage of Coach Wood for the entire season, and he has developed a team that will give the other prep teams a hard struggle for the supremacy.

For Stone Mountain the playing of Chester, Flanders and Niblack was good. The former is a great football player, and his tackling and end running were sensational.

The Knox brothers were the feature of the game. Inman Knox, at quarter, was the shining light of the game, his ability to run the team being great, and his end running was excellent. Johnson and Cook also played well on the defense for High school. These two players are deadly tacklers, and good at breaking up interference. The kicking of Gann was also very good.

The line-up:

B. H. S.	Position.	STONE MT.
Cain	L. E.	Barrett
Starr	L. T.	Harvard
Fraser	L. G.	French
Mayo	C.	Oglebee
Jones	R. G.	Killingsworth
Laley and Niall	R. T.	Morris
Gann	R. E.	Sheppard
I. Knox and Courts	Q. B.	Chester
O. Knox	R. H. B.	Lewis
Johnson	L. H.	Flanders
Cook and I. Knox	F. B.	Niblack

Summary: Touchdowns, Cook 1, Johnson 2, I. Knox 3, O. Knox 2; goals from touchdowns, Gann 3, Starr 1. Referee, Stephenson (Peacock). Umpire, Sheffer (G. M. A.). Timekeepers, Spain (B. H. S.), Griffin (U. S. B.). Head linesman, Ashby McCord (B. H. S.) Time of quarters, 10 minutes.

MISS RAVENSCROFT WINS GOLF TITLE

Wilmington, Del., October 18.—For the third time in five years the women's national golf championship has been won by a player from the British Isles. On the course of the Wilmington Country club today, Miss Gladys Ravenscroft, of the Bromborough club, England, former champion of Great Britain, defeated Miss Marion Hollins, Westbrook, L. I., this year's Metropolitan title holder, 2 up, after a sharp contest.

Both players were nervous at different periods, but Miss Ravenscroft was the steadier. Miss Hollins, feeling the responsibility of trying to keep the American championship at home, played a plucky game. She got into frequent trouble by making bad drives, but would come back strongly with shots that won applause.

Both Miss Hollins and Miss Ravenscroft were good in their long game, but were uncertain and at times weak in their approaching and putting. Notwithstanding Miss Ravenscroft at several periods was off her game, she covered the 18 hols at 86, the best score of the tournament. Miss Hollins' total was 91.

The American player had the first hole practically won, as Miss Ravenscroft got into a bunker and lost a stroke. Miss Hollins, on her third stroke, overshot the cup and had to halve the hole.

Miss Ravenscroft won the second, 3 to 4, and Miss Hollins squared the match on the third, 6 to 8. The next three holes were halved and on the seventh Miss Ravenscroft was one up. The eighth and ninth were halved. Coming in, Miss Hollins squared the match on the tenth, only to go one down again in the succeeding hole. The twelfth and thirteenth holes were halved and Miss Ravenscroft took the fourteenth, which made her two up. Miss Hollins took the fifteenth, 3 to 4, making her one down, and the next two were halved.

With one chance left, Miss Hollins drove into the ditch on her eighteenth and took two to get out. On her fourth she was on the green and as her case appeared hopeless she did not play out the hole.

After Miss Ravenscroft had been felicitated by Miss Hollins, the gallery rushed forward to congratulate the British player.

The prize, which now goes to England, was held by Miss Margaret Curtis, of Boston, who won the national title in 1911 and 1912. Miss Curtis entered the 1913 championship, but was defeated in the first round Tuesday by Miss Caroline Painter, of Chicago. Prior to Miss Curtis' possession, the American championship was held by Miss Dorothy Campbell, the former British champion, who won it in 1909 and 1910.

M'WHORTER POUNDS THE THIN RED LINE FOR LARGE GAINS

Georgia Captain Is the Whole Show at Birmingham When Red and Black Defeated Red and White 20 to 0.

ALABAMA CAPTAIN WAS CLASS OF VANQUISHED

Powell Scored Final Touchdown by a Long Sprint. Alabama Helpless on the Offensive.

By Hugh W. Roberts.

Birmingham, Ala., October 18.—(Special.)—The "Thin Red Line" of the University of Alabama met its fourth straight defeat at the hands of Georgia this afternoon, when the Red and Black eleven piled up a total of 20 points, while the Crimson team was helpless to score.

The powerful onslaught of Bob McWhorter proved the undoing of the Alabama warriors. The great Georgia halfback played true to form. From the starter's whistle, which sent the two elevens crashing together, until time was called at the last moment of play his magnificent work dominated the entire game.

Time after time he plunged through the Crimson line for substantial gains. Tackler after tackler was shoken from his stalwart shoulders in broken field and twice he carried the oval across the opposing line for touchdowns.

Opposed to the Georgia captain, Hargrove Vandergraf, the husky leader of the Alabamians, was the distinct star of the Crimson machine.

Offensively, Alabama was helpless before the impregnable line of the Red and Black. But once during the entire contest was the Crimson able to threaten the Georgia goal.

With the score 20 to 0 against them in the fourth quarter, Alabama tightened and, for a time, rushed their heavier opponents to Georgia's 10-yard line. Vandegraffe, plunging into an impregnable line, fumbled, Georgia recovered, and never thereafter had the Crimson a chance.

Two of Georgia's touchdowns were scored by McWhorter on straight football, and the third came when Powell intercepted a forward pass and raced 40 yards for a score.

The line-up:

ALA.	Position.	GA.
Love	L. E.	Conklin
W. Vandergraf	L. T.	Henderson
Joneas	L. G.	Thrash
Riddle	C.	Delaparriere
Hicks, Smith, Riddle	R. G.	Malone
Burks	R. T.	Turner
Morton Stickney	R. E.	Smith
Hagan	Q. B.	Paddock
Thrash	R. H. B.	McWhorter
Long	F. B.	Powell, Sidberry
H. Vandegraf	L. H. B.	Thompson, Logan

Summary—Touchdowns, McWhorter 2, Powell. Goals from touchdowns, Henderson 2. Referee, Streit (Auburn). Umpire, Blake (Vanderbilt). Headlinesman, Crawford (Tennessee). Timekeeper, Pratt (Alabama). Time of quarters, 15 minutes.

NEGRO MOTORCYCLE MEET ON THURSDAY

There is a great deal of interest being taken in the approaching negro motorcycle race meet which will be held at the local motordrome Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

There is much speculation as to the ability of the riders to stay on the track and maintain the tremendous clip that is necessary for them to safely circle the track.

The men who will ride are all experienced and have ridden motorcycles on board tracks before. Loyd Lemont Brown, Bill Jones and the Wilson brothers are going after some records.

The admission fee will be 25 and 35 cents.

SOCCER PRACTICE.

Four Teams Work Out at Piedmont—Good Games Soon.

The first practice game of the soccer football season took place at Piedmont park Saturday afternoon.

Members of the four teams of the newly formed Georgia Soccer league, which comprise the Atlanta, Foote & Davies, Western Union and Lithonia clubs, were on hand and some hard practice was indulged in.

The outlook for the coming soccer season is a fine one, a new state league having been formed.

The prospects of the Atlanta club are good, several of the old members being on hand, while a lot of new recruits have come into the fold.

The Foote & Davies team is a new one, having been formed under the auspices of the brothers, Harland, who have developed a fine crowd of youngsters who show excellent promise of rounding out into a good organization. The team is young and enthusiastic, which factor will carry them along with the best of them.

The Western Union team is fast rounding into shape under the experienced eye of Coach Boocheyer, who learned his football at Cornell. The squad is composed of some husky youngsters who are learning the game fast, and before long will spring a big surprise upon the other teams.

The Lithonia team is full of veterans of the game, and are hard at work getting the kinks ground out of them. They are a fast, hustling crowd, and put up a splendid game of football every time they are out.

The league will open on November 22, when the Atlanta eleven go to Lithonia. Some big games are looked for this season between the league representatives and Birmingham, Auburn and Marion Institute.

From the enthusiasm already shown there is no doubt as to the popularity of soccer football in the south.

CARL MORRIS IS BETTER MAN NOW

Jim Corbett Says the Giant White Hope Has Improved Enough to Give Them All a Battle.

BY JAMES J. CORBETT.
(Former Heavyweight Champion of the World. Written for The Constitution.)

New York, October 18.—(Special.)—Who's white champion now?

We all know the Athletics are champions of the baseball world, but now about the boxers?

Around town here fight fans had come to regard "Gunboat" Smith as the class of all the white fellows, and his record looked pretty good at that. Until last week, anyhow, when the huge battleship Carl Morris was warped alongside—Smith didn't look quite so good then as we had him figured.

Ever since experts and newspaper critics have been divided over what happened in the fifth round of that match—when the gigantic Morris was disqualified by Referee Billy Joh for fouling his lighter but harder-hitting opponent. Some contend the "Gunboat" was a beaten man at the time, and, realizing that he was up against it, decided the easiest way to escape a beating was to claim a foul—which the referee allowed.

Still others argue the "Gunboat" had the original white hope licked to a frazzle and that Morris deliberately fouled to escape the ignominy of a knock-out.

Unfortunately I did not see the bout. Being a baseball fan I was in Philadelphia to watch the Giants and Athletics play and am therefore not in position to speak, except from hearsay. However, my representative was on the ground, and I consider him as good a judge of a boxing match as anyone I know. From what he tells me the "Gunboat" was struck a foul blow in the fourth round, but that it was unintentional on Morris' part and, anyway, it did no damage and did not warrant punishment.

Not Foul Blow.

In the fifth round—when the claim went in and was allowed—my representative states the blow was not foul at all and furthermore it looked as if it had been blocked by the "Gunboat's" arm. Nevertheless the latter immediately put in his claim and the referee allowed it. It looked to those who sat in the neighborhood of Carl's corner, where the men were engaged at the time, as if Smith quit "cold turkey."

Now, I am not going to attempt to judge any fight I have not seen, although I have talked with at least a dozen well-posted men since the bout took place and they have confirmed my representative's story—that Carl was given the worst of it and that it looked like he had the "Gunboat" going. None of these men is prejudiced one way or the other, either, and even so, I believe would tell me the truth.

Instead of helping clear up the heavy-weight situation, the fight just sort of tangled things up more. There is only one way out of the difficulty that I can see, and that is to have them fight it over again. Morris is willing, I understand, but Smith's manager says the "Gunboat" is booked for a trip abroad and that he will do no more fighting until he returns.

Meanwhile Carl is willing to take on any heavy-weight in the business.

Morris is no longer the big, green boy of two years ago, when he came east to conquer the pugilistic world. At that time he knew absolutely nothing about the game of fighting at all. He was just a big target for everything in the shape of a punch that was aimed at him. He was the best wallop assimilator that had happened along in many a year, and when it ticked over the wires not so very long ago that he had been knocked out by Luther McCarty, the fight public was greatly surprised.

He had seemed a bit more than human when it came to taking punishment, and, knowing McCarty was no demon walloper, local fans who had seen both in action could hardly believe the report. Later Carl said he had been "jobbed," and after looking the big fellow over again one is inclined to believe that there is something in his story.

Morris Is Coming.

Morris will give any heavy-weight a battle from now on, white or black. His enormous bulk and weight drive him a great advantage over his rivals, with the possible exception of Jess Willard, who has him tied or perhaps beaten in size. But Willard is not the type of fighter Morris is, or at least was not the last time he showed here, about a year ago. Jess is too easy-going in his methods to accomplish much.

On the other hand, Morris is all business in the ring and never loafs a minute. Naturally, with his weight and size, he is on the aggressive from the tap of the bell. Furthermore, he has learned considerable about boxing, and, for such a huge piece of humanity, moves around fairly well.

There is nothing flashy about the Oklahoman. He is a steady plodder, but his style is effective just the same. Give him another year and I think he will whip any heavy now before the public. A little more skill at hitting and it will take a tough man to stand up before him any great length of time. He has the strength, and he has the wallop, too, but he don't know how to use either to the best advantage as yet.

But for a man who was whipped to a standstill two years ago by roly-poly Jim Flynn, fifty pounds lighter than he, Morris has done remarkably well. One thing to his credit is that he did not permit the setback by Flynn to discourage him in his ambition to become champion. In spite of all the unkind and thoughtless things said about him, Morris kept steadily on the job, until today he would enter the ring favorite over any other white heavy-weight in the business, not excepting the "Gunboat," who has just been awarded a victory on a foul.

A word or two about the "Gunboat." He put up a wonderful battle while it lasted, according to all accounts. He may have been fouled, as he says, and he amy not, as others say. He knows better than anyone else. But he must be given credit for putting up such a grand contest against such great physical odds. It must be remembered that he was outweighed about 50 pounds, and if he was really hit low by Morris he should not be accused of "dogging" it. His record has been so splendid and he has shown such determination and courage in all his previous starts that he should be given the benefit of the doubt.

Still if he does not grant Morris a return match it will give his enemies the chance to say he is afraid of the outcome of a second engagement.

Heavies Go Abroad.

Evidently it is the proper thing in heavyweight society to go abroad at this time of the year. "Gunboat" Smith threatens to leave any day. Frank Moran, accompanied by Joe Jeannette, left for France last week. Sam Langford is another who may pack up and leave us any day.

I can't understand what Manager Danny McKettrick expects to do for Morgan on the other side. The Pittsburg boy would be a much better card right here in New York now than any place else. Since beating Palzer Moran has done nothing, but on the strength of that clean-cut victory he has been in big demand by promoters from all parts of the country. He should have got big money to box Smith or Morris at one of the local clubs.

McKettrick says Moran has been promised a match with Jack Johnson by a French promoter. That's what all fighters and their managers say. If Johnson had made as many matches as he has been accused of he would have to fight every day for two months to keep the engagements. There is hardly a heavyweight of any color who has not been reported as matched with the champion.

While stories drifting over here have Johnson as fat as the prize porker at a county fair, there is little doubt that he would relish a bout with anyone of the "white hope" crop if his exchequer is as low as reported. While I doubt that Jack would consider a match with Langford or Jeannette under stress of anything less than starvation staring him in the face, I believe he would jump at the chance to box a white heavyweight for a fat purse. On the dope, of course, he would have an easy time with Moran or any of the others, but then the dope doesn't always work out.

While it would sound foolish to predict a victory for Moran if he should clash with the champion, stranger things have happened in the prize ring. Johnson, we know, is not in condition. He is said to weigh in the neighborhood of 280 pounds, and at his age—35—it is not an easy matter to take fat off and retain strength and stamina. If Johnson tries to train again, that is, if the stories of his condition at present are true, he will find that while he may succeed in taking off a great deal of the weight, much of his vitality will also disappear during the process. Johnson could put up a better fight with the fat on than with it off if his condition is as reported.

Moran is probably going over to take a long chance to cop the title. If beaten by Johnson it will not hurt his reputation in the least and if he should happen to put up a good fight, even though a losing one, it would really be a big boost for him. And if by any means he should happen to beat Johnson, his fortune is made. You can't blame him. Those long shots win every now and then, and Moran may be one of the lucky fellows.

FOOTBALL GAMES

South..

Vanderbilt 33, Henderson-Brown 0.

Nashville, Tenn., October 18.—Vanderbilt was forced to extend itself to the limit to defeat Henderson-Brown college, of Arkansas, by a score of 33 to 0 this afternoon. The game was played on a slippery field. Vanderbilt was able to make but one touchdown during the first half, but added two in the third period and another in the fourth. Boensch kicked two field goals from difficult angles. The visitors' offense was weak, but they played fiercely upon the defense and Vanderbilt was forced to fight for every point gained. Boensch's work at quarter was a feature. T. Brown and E. Brown, for Vanderbilt, also played in good style. Vanderbilt used many substitutes during the second half, saving their regulars for the game with Michigan university next Saturday.

Waycross 41, Brunswick 0.

Waycross, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—In a game featured by the playing of Dutch Hoogeveld and Cockwell, Waycross High school defeated Brunswick High school, 41 to 0. At no time during the game were the visitors dangerous. Waycross scored one touchdown on two forward passes. Monday the Eleventh District Aggies, of Douglas play Bunn Bell in Waycross.

North Carolina 13, South Carolina 3.

Columbia, S. C., October 18.—The University of North Carolina today defeated the University of South Carolina, 13 to 3. The North Carolina teams made most of its gains by line plays from a wingshift formation, well executed. South Carolina's one score was the result of a pretty place kick by Von Kolnitz from the 20-yard line in the last quarter. North Carolina scored a touchdown in the first quarter and one in the third quarter.

Fuller and Taylor, in the backfield, and Husk and Homewood, at ends, did good work for North Carolina, while Hayword and Von Kolnitz were South Carolina's best.

Mississippi College 13, Tulane 3.

New Orleans, La., October 18.—Hickman, Mississippi college fullback, alone practically defeated Tulane this afternoon by a score of 13 to 3, in a featureless game, with the local eleven showing little or no form. Hickman's playing, however, was better than that of any other two men on either team. His first touchdown came after a 50-yard run and his second a minute before the final whistle. Except for Woodward's kick from placement, the oval was in Tulane's territory most of the time.

W. & L. 34, Johns Hopkins 3.

Baltimore, Md., October 18.—(Special.)—Resorting to straight tactics, Washington and Lee overwhelmed Johns Hopkins, 34 to 3. Johns Hopkins appeared strong at the outset, but weakened in the following periods. Slipping the line, Young sprinted 42 yards and virtually scored the first touchdown. Donahue, Young and Friend scored touchdowns. Young's playing featured.

Florida 39, Maryville 0.

Gainesville, Fla., October 18.—Florida overwhelmed Maryville, 39 to 0, here today in a game featured by many pretty forward pass plays on the part of the locals. The visitors also made repeated attempts to use the forward pass, but were uniformly unsuccessful. Five touchdowns were scored by the locals. Price, Florida's center, kicked two goals from field, one of them starting at the 40-yard line.

Georgetown 21, V. M. I. 0.

Washington, October 18.—Three touchdowns and three goals from touchdowns for an aggregate of 21 points was all that Georgetown university could do against Virginia Medical college here this afternoon. The Virginians failed to score, and, except in the third quarter, were clearly outclassed.

East.

Princeton 13, Syracuse 0.

Princeton, N. J., October 18.—Syracuse proved to be a good defensive eleven against Princeton today, but poor on the aggressive, and Princeton won a 13 to 0 victory. The visitors showed a healthy mixture of trick play, but the team failed to put most of them into action against the Tigers for consecutive gains. Castle, halfback, in punting for Syracuse averaged five to ten yards better than H. Baker, half back for Princeton. The Princeton attack was based upon Fullback Streit's line plunging, which was above his standard today. H. Baker's open-field running and a few forward passes, most of which failed. Lamberton and Brown, at ends for Princeton, covered on the punts perfectly. Streit scored both touchdowns.

Frequent penalties, in which Princeton was the offender more often than Syracuse, robbed Princeton of two touchdowns. The ball was brought back on the field for play after the Tigers had carried it across in two instances, because of illegal work by the Princeton players.

Harvard 47, Holy Cross 7.

Cambridge, Mass., October 18.—For the first time this year a football foe crossed the Harvard goal line today, but, while the Holy Cross team accomplished this feat, through a muffed punt, they were overwhelmed by a score of 47 to 7.

The game was scarcely a minute old when Freedley let a Holy Cross punt go through his fingers. Donovan, the Holy Cross fullback, gathered up the ball and dashed across the line. Brawley, center, kicked an easy goal. For the remainder of the game the visiting line was ripped open, circled and overpowered by the Harvard backs.

Mahan, halfback, kicked two goals from the field—one from the 15-yard line and the other from the 35-yard line. Toward the last of the game, Hardwick, halfback, made two runs of 45 and 35 yards each, and Coolidge, end, followed by taking a well-thrown forward pass for a touchdown.

The Harvard team showed more dash and football knowledge than in any other previous game this season, and, while Freedley, quarterback, proved an uncertain factor in the back field, he seemed to instill plenty of life in the play.

Both teams made frequent changes in the line-up.

Army 7, Colgate 6.

West Point, N. Y., October 18.—The Army defeated Colgate here today, after a hard fight, by a score of 7 to 6. The visitors were strong both on the offense and defense, and scored early in the second quarter when Robinson, halfback, got through the line for a 60-yard run to a touchdown. The goal was missed.

The Army was played to a standstill until the last five minutes, when Quarterback Prichard started a series of clever forward passes and soon had the ball on Colgate's 10-yard line. The cadets lost it there when a forward pass went wrong and Abel punted to Prichard on the Army's 45-yard line. Prichard ran 55 yards for the touchdown and Woodruff kicked goal. Wynne, left tackle; Jones, right guard; Prichard, quarterback, and Hobbs, at fullback, played star football for the Army.

Yale 37, Lehigh 0.

New Haven, Conn., October 18.—Yale defeated Lehigh here today, 37 to 0. Lehigh started strong when Quarterback Chenowith ran back the kick-off 25 yards. The Yale line was invincible after that, however, and the Blue ends broke up frequently attempting forward passing. Both sides resorted to punting, with the exchanges mostly in Yale's favor. Lehigh's achievement today was holding Yale for downs on the 1-yard line.

Brann, a new man at end, and Wilson, at fullback, played the best game for Yale. Captain Flick, of Lehigh, sustained a broken collar bone in the first period, and Kuhn took his place at left half.

Navy 29, Dickinson 0.

Annapolis, Md., October 18.—Navy continued its winning streak this afternoon, defeating Dickinson 29 to 0. The visitors put up a stiff defense during the first half, but in the two final periods the fearful hammering of the heavy Navy line and back field wore them completely out.

Penn 28, Brown 0.

Philadelphia, October 18.—Reversing results of two previous contests, Pennsylvania defeated the Brown football team here today, 28 to 0. The home eleven outclassed the Providence team in all departments of the game. Pennsylvania's goal was never in danger, and throughout the contest the Brown team was able to take but one first down.

The Red and Blue showed a strong defense, and seldom seemed to have much trouble in advancing the ball. Pennsylvania's kicking was superior to Brown's, and in this department alone the Quakers gained many yards. Pennsylvania often tried the forward pass, but it seldom was a success. Brown tried it twice, without gain.

Dartmouth 48, Williams 6.

Hanover, N. H., October 18.—Dartmouth's terrific play overwhelmed Williams today, 48 to 6. Williams played clean, hard football, and, after receiving the ball on the first kick-off, dashed through the Green line for a few minutes in a manner to worry Dartmouth's supporters. Dartmouth tightened up, however, and, with forward passes, line bucks and end runs, began their scoring. Williams scored a touchdown in the last period by a brilliant series of forward passes. Dartmouth's showing with the Princeton game, only a week ago, was encouraging to its supporters.

West.

Missouri 20, Oklahoma 17.

Columbia, Mo., October 18.—Missouri downed Oklahoma in a hard gridiron contest, 20 to 17, today. Missouri scored its first touchdown after 7 minutes of play on a series of end runs by Moore. Capshaw made Oklahoma's first touchdown. In the second period Sheppard went over for six more points. In the last period Missouri scored a touchdown when Kemper ran 30 yards. On the next play after the kickoff, Lowry added another touchdown to the Oklahoma total, receiving a 40-yard forward pass behind the goal posts. Each team kicked two goals.

Wisconsin 7, Purdue 7.

Lafayette, Ind., October 18.—Purdue's football team tied the score with Wisconsin in the last period of the game here today when Halfback Oliphant made a sensational 70-yard run for a touchdown and kicked the goal that ended the game, with the final result of 7 to 7. Wisconsin scored in the second quarter on straight-line bucking, sending Captain Eandberg over for a touchdown, and Bellows kicked goal.

Chicago 23, Ohio 6.

Chicago, October 18.—Chicago beat Iowa in their annual game 23 to 6, here this afternoon. Iowa showed unexpected strength, and after the first half held Chicago on even terms. Chicago relied upon straight football, using forward passes only three times, while Iowa used their entire reserve of tricks.

Cornell 10, Bucknell 7.

Ithaca, N. Y., October 18.—Long bewildering forward passes enabled Bucknell to cross Cornell's goal today, although the red and white triumphed by a score of 10 to 7. Cornell scored in the first period when Halfback Fritz took the ball around Bucknell's right wing for 35 yards and a touchdown. In the second period Bucknell tied the score when with the ball on Cornell's 35-yard line Quarterback Cruikshank made a beautiful forward pass to Toppam, who carried it across. In the third period, standing on Bucknell's 35-yard line, Barrett sent a clean drop over the cross bar.

"Jack" O'Hearn saved the game for Cornell in the final period when Cornell's 10-yard line he intercepted a pass and ran the ball back to midfield.

Fritz was carried off the field in the last period. His injuries are not considered serious.

Michigan Aggies 12, Michigan 7.

Ann Arbor, Mich., October 18.—Outplaying their rivals in nearly every department the Michigan Agricultural College football team defeated the University of Michigan 12 to 7, here this afternoon. It was a gruelling struggle that gave the Agricultural college its first victory over Michigan. Punting and line plunging had much to do with the victory of the Aggies, in both departments they excelled.

Illinois 37, Northwestern 0.

Champaign, Ill., October 18.—The University of Illinois easily won from Northwestern today 37 to 0. The visitors seemed in poor physical condition and their efforts were fruitless to menace the Illinois goal.

Nebraska 7, Minnesota 0.

Lincoln, Neb., October 18.—Nebraska today defeated Minnesota football team 7 to 0, the result of three forward passes executed. Forward passes by Nebraska players, beginning on the Minnesota 40-yard line.

Ohio State 0, Oberlin 0.

Oberlin, Ohio, October 18.—Ohio State and Oberlin played a scoreless tie here today. This complicates the state championship situation, which, despite the earliness of the season, it had been expected to decide.

Chip v. Brown.

Racine, Wis., October 18.—George Chip, of Pittsburg, who defeated Frank Klauss today, was matched to fight George ("Knockout") Brown, of Chicago. The match probably will take place in Pittsburg. The men have met in two draws.

Palzer Knocked Out.

Pittsburg, Pa., October 18.—Al Palzer, of New York, heavyweight pugilist, was knocked out in the second round of a six-round boxing contest here tonight by Dan Dailey, of Newcastle, Pa., with a left and right to the jaw. Previously Palzer had been knocked down with a left hook to the jaw. Palzer had to be carried from the ring.

GORDON TO PLAY G. M. C. ON MONDAY

Milledgeville, Ga., October 17.—(Special.)—A game of football that is interesting preparatory colleges in Georgia very much will be played at Barnesville Monday, when Coach Maddox's G. M. C. cadets will tackle the strong Gordon eleven.

This is the first contest between the teams that are heralded as the strongest in prep circles this year and Riverside, Dahlonega, Locust Grove, G. M. A. and Stone Mountain will watch the outcome very closely, as later each team will meet these elevens.

There isn't much known to indicate how the result will be, except the comparative scores made by these teams against the Tenth District Aggies.

Gordon some weeks ago rolled up a score of 72 to 0 against the Sparta boys, while G. M. C. last Monday defeated the same team by total score of 102 to 0. This was later in the season though, and does not indicate much.

There is a keen rivalry existing between Gordon institute and the Georgia Military academy that has been on in athletics for several years. Gordon in years gone by in football always had the edge on G. M. A., but last year's game resulted in a tie, 7 to 7, so, therefore, there is great speculation over the outcome of the game Monday.

Coach Maddox, while confident of putting up a good game against these almost invincible Gordon boys, is not too sure how his cadets will come out in Monday's contest.

MERCER BAPTISTS FIGHT FIERCELY

have to be particularly strong in this game the handicap of having Preas out of the line-up was no hardship.

McDonald's kicking was good on the whole, his punting excellent, but on his two attempts at field goals he missed fire. But Mack does not profess to be a field goal kicker. He must be given credit for trying.

The Tech line did not charge as low as it should on many plays and the Baptists sifted through both on the offense and the defense, but when the Mercer team started too much ground gaining it usually tightened and stopped things.

Trawick, the tubby center of the Jackets is deserving of praise. This lad is showing a remarkable improvement in every succeeding game. He is passing more accurately and the Jacket fumbling was at a minimum Saturday. Too, he is getting under the play better in the center of the line.

Game in Detail.

Mercer won the toss and elected to receive at the south end of the gridiron McDonald kicked off to the 10-yard line and the ball was returned 10 yards by Sams.

Mercer failed to gain on three plays and kicked. Tech was also forced to kick. Cochran made 3 around end. Wills added 3 and Cochran made it first down with an off tackle run. Wills got 3 and then Tech held. On a fake kick Sams was thrown for a loss and the ball went over.

Thomason made 4 through the line, McDonald tore around left end for 20. Thomason got 3, Cook 5 and the ball was within 1 yard of Mercer's goal line. On two attempts the Jackets failed to put it over, but Johnson bucked the line for the first touchdown in six minutes of play and McDonald missed goal.

Tech 6, Mercer 0.

McDonald kicked off to Sams and Montague nailed him in his tracks. Cochran got 3, Forrester bucked tackle for 8. Cochran got 2, but was thrown for a loss on his next try. Forrester made 3 and then 2. Sams then kicked and Cochran nailed McDonald in his tracks.

Hayes spun around right end on a dodging run for a 30-yard gain before being thrown out of bounds. But Tech was off side on the play and was penalized 5 yards. Thomason got 5 through the line and Montague added 7 around end. Alexander got 5 and Johnson 5, the quarter ending with the ball in Tech's possession on Mercer's 40-yard line.

At the start of the second quarter Montague went around end for 25 yards. McDonald got 5 yards, putting the ball on Mercer's 10-yard line. He dropped back 10 yards and tried for a field goal, but failed.

Mercer brought the ball out and scrimmaged from the 20-yard line. Cochran got 5 around end, Forrester rammed the line for 3. Sams then punted and McDonald came back 10 yards.

Thomason got 3 on a quarterback buck. McDonald got 3 around end. Mercer then held and the ball went over. On the first play Forrester fumbled and Lang fell on the ball for the Jackets.

Tech gained 8 yards on three tries. McDonald trying another goal from placement, this time from the 20-yard line. But he also failed on this.

Mercer scrimmaged from the 20-yard line. Cochran tore around right end for 11 yards. Sams added 6 around the other end. The half ended with the ball in midair, after Mercer had punted the ball out of bounds.

Tech kicked off at the start of the third quarter. Sams returned the ball 10 yards. On the first play Cochran fumbled. Cushman pounded on the ball on Mercer's 15-yard line, picked it up and ran for a touchdown. McDonald this time kicked goal.

Tech 13, Mercer 0.

McDonald kicked off and Wills returned the ball 15 yards. Wills then made 12 yards on an end run. Cochran got 7 and came back for 2 more. Forrester hit the line twice for the first down. Forrester hit the line again. A forward pass failed and Sams kicked out of bounds.

McDonald got 2 yards on an end run and 1 yard on his next try. Tech was forced to kick and Sammons was down in his tracks by Tyler Montague. In three tries Mercer failed to gain and Sams kicked, Fielder returning 10 yards.

Thomason got 3 yards through center. Fielder sped around right end for a nice 30-yard gain, being thrown out of bounds.

Mercer bucked up here and held the Jackets on three trials. Then came one of the prettiest plays of the game. McDonald dropped back as if to kick and, hurling a high forward pass 40 yards, it settled safely in Cushman's arms over the goal line for a touchdown. McDonald kicked goal again.

Tech 20, Mercer 0.

McDonald kicked off. Cochran, with a beautiful dodging, stiff arming, side stepping run, brought the ball back 25 yards before he was brought to earth.

Mercer was penalized 15 yards on the first play. Sams then hurled a beautiful forward pass to Huguley for a 15-yard gain. But they were forced to kick after that, Lucas coming back 10 yards.

Fielder tore around end for 18 yards. Montague got 3 yards and Cushman 4. McDonald 3. Fielder then pulled off a 20-yard run around the other end, putting the ball within 30 yards of the goal. The third quarter ended here.

Hayes tore around end for 20 yards. Montague then sprinted around the other end for a touchdown, but ran out of bounds en route and was called back. Tech was then penalized 15 yards for holding. Fielder got 10 of it back.

A forward pass was then tried, which the officials ruled as an incompleted one, but to the casual observer it was as palpable a case of interference as was ever pulled on a gridiron. The ball ought to have been given to Tech within the shadow of Mercer's goal posts and another touchdown would have been the result, but it was ruled as a touchback and Mercer scrimmaged from the 20 yard line.

Sammons fumbled on the first play and Hayes fell on the ball. Cook bowled around right end for a 16-yard gain. On the next two plays, the Jackets were thrown for losses, but a forward pass from Cook to Montague over the goal line resulted in a touchdown. Montague kicked goal.

Tech 27, Mercer 0.

Montague kicked off for Tech and Sams returned the kick-off 15 yards. Mercer was forced to punt. Thomason returned 10 yards.

Cook tore off 15 yards around end. Fielder got 1, Montague added 5, Johnson ploughed into center for 3 and Hayes circled end for 9.

Cook then uncorked another beautiful forward pass over the goal line for about 25 yards, Hayes receiving it and making a touchdown. But Alexander was caught holding and the Jackets were penalized 15 yards.

Cook made the penalty back with a nice end run. A forward pass was tried again, a Mercer man catching it. Montague tackled him so fiercely that he dropped the ball over the side lines and Montague recovered within 3 yards of Mercer's goal.

On the first play Cook sailed around right end for a touchdown. McDonald missed the goal.

Tech 33, Mercer 0.

Tech kicked off and Cochran returned the ball 15 yards. He piled through tackle for 9, came right back for 6, then for 5. After one more play, the whistle sounded and the game was over, with the ball in Mercer's possession, on their own 35-yard line.

Halfback Miller Hurt.

Ann Arbor, Mich., October 18.—Blake Miller, the crack halfback of the M. A. C. eleven, was injured in today's game and taken to a hospital. Late tonight he became delirious. It is believed a blow on the head was responsible for his condition, which, it was said, is serious.

Tech High Upsets Dope by Winning From Riverside

Local Prep Eleven First to Score a Victory Over Riverside at Gainesville—Meyers Star of the Game.

Gainesville, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Tech High school 7, Riverside Military academy 6. Such was the way that one of the classiest prep team football games ever staged ended.

The game was close throughout, and both teams had several chances to score, but the other would invariably brace up when their goal line was threatened.

A great crowd was out to see the struggle, among them a large party of Brenau students.

This is the first time Riverside has been defeated on her grounds, and is the first time that any prep team from Atlanta has succeeded in turning the trick.

Tech High's score came in the second quarter. After the ball had been switching back and forth on the field, Myers got away for a 30-yard run for the initial touchdown. Weston then kicked goal and made what proved to be the winning point of the game.

In the last two minutes of play, with the ball on Riverside's 20-yard line, Tech High fumbled, and Riverside recovered. After carrying the ball down the field to Tech High's 30-yard line, Strupper made a pretty forward pass to Reed, who ran it past the goal line. With the score 7 to 6, Townsend missed goal, and the whistle blew for the end of the game.

The individual stars of the game for Tech High were Myers, J. Parks, Bedell and Weston. The playing of Myers was great. He made three runs for 30 yards and would have scored another touchdown in the third quarter had it not been for the interference of Strupper.

Strupper, Townsend and Reed played good ball for Riverside. Strupper's tackling was great, and his line bucking was sensational.

G. W. HANSON RETURNS TO FORMER AUTO HOME

George W. Hanson, the well-known automobile man, along with his associates of several years past, have returned to their first automobile home, 45-47 Auburn avenue. This home was built to house Mr. Hanson and his interests several years ago and his return to the old home with his own company, which will have the distribution of the Oakland in the southern states, makes his organization feel mighty happy.

Mr. Hanson has also installed a service station, which will be in charge of Mr. Hixon, who guarantees the same efficient and courteous treatment of which all owners of automobiles are familiar.

Morris Brown Loses.

The first football game of the season by the colored schools was played on Morris Brown's campus Saturday, October 18, at 3 p. m. The game was witness by a large crowd of eager spectators.

During the first quarter it seemed as if Morris Brown would cross Morehouse's goal in spite of her strong line and swift ends. Morris Brown was once on the 5-yard line, but was unable to reach the goal. Most of the quarter was spent in Morehouse territory, but Morehouse managed to make one touchdown and kicked a goal.

In the second quarter the Morehouse boys seemed to have caught their old stride, and by skillful playing, made three touchdowns and kicked one goal.

The third quarter was played without a touchdown; the teams seemed to be of equal strength.

In the last quarter Morehouse Tigers rallied again, making two touchdowns and kicking goal. The game ended, 38 to 0, in favor of Morehouse.

Trion Defeats Buster Brown.

Lyerly, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) The fast Trion baseball aggregation defeated the "Buster Brown" team from Chattanooga on the former's diamond in a heated game a few days ago, the score being 3 to 0 in Trion's favor. The batteries were, for Trion, Hawkins and Fincher; "Buster Browns," Gross and Sherill. The two teams are playing a series of games.

Rome Golfers Win.

Rome, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—In a match game of golf of 36 holes this afternoon the team from the Rome Country club defeated the team from the Anniston Country club by 45 holes with seven men to the side.

(From The Progressive Farmer.)

After all, the great trouble with us here in the south is that we have been mere croppers instead of real farmers. We have thought only of what we could get out of the land this year, and have failed to look ahead to next year, or to the year after, or ten or twenty years from now. It is scarcely too much to say that the man who works a farm for twenty years, looking only to each year's crop asks he raises it, will at the end of that time have a poor farm; and that the man who farms the same land for twenty years, keeping the future welfare of this land always in view, will at the end of the period have a rich farm and a good home.

We must get this forward-looking spirit, and we must get over our old foolish notion that farming is merely a matter of buying fertilizers in the spring and selling crops in the fall. The demand today is for men who will set to work, in a small way, if necessary, but with a fixed purpose, to make their farming lands steadily more fertile and their homes and home surroundings more attractive and cheerful. If all the farmers who read The Progressive Farmer could be quickened by such a purpose, their work and their example would literally remake the rural south in the next twenty years. Under their care the gullied hillsides would become green pastures; the unsightly and unhealthy swamps would be transformed by drainage into the country's most fertile fields; the old rickety buildings and the untidy farmyards would give place to painted houses, whitewashed fences, and smiling lawns framed and bordered with trees and flowers and climbing vines. The cultivated lands would add to their fatness year by year, and larger crops and larger profits would make the farmer's work and life increasingly more pleasant and more useful to the world.

Allow Pigs to Harvest Corn.

A contributor to the current issue of Farm and Fireside says that a good way to fatten pigs in the fall is to fence off a piece of the corn-field, or to grow a few acres of corn near the hog-yard for this purpose. As soon as the corn is ready to feed it is time to turn the pigs in and they will do the rest. He goes on to say:

"Last year a neighbor of mine fenced off two acres of his corn-field and turned his pigs in. He had twenty-one pigs, and it was a surprise to see them grow. Whenever the pigs wanted corn they would break down the stalk some way, but there was never any corn wasted. If one could have the hog-pasture near the corn-field so the pigs could run in both, so much the better, unless one wants to fatten them in a hurry. This neighbor will fence off four acres of his corn-field next year and put in more pigs. He says it is the easiest hog money he can get."

Cracker Backstop Has Splendid Hunting Trip

HARRY E. CHAPMAN,

The Crackers' peppery backstop, snapped at the conclusion of a day's hunt near his home in Thomas, Okla.

Harry E. Chapman's the Crackers' peppery receiver, has returned to his home in Thomas, Okla., after spending several weeks visiting friends in Cincinnati.

Two days after his return home he and a party of friends took an automobile trip ninety-two miles through the country west of Thomas to a big plantation of one of the party. Here they spent several days hunting.

The above photo, sent to the sporting editor by Chapman, gives an idea of the great shooting that Chapman has every winter and gives the fans an idea of the backstop as a shot. He seems to be just as true with a rifle as he is in pegging that pellet to second base in a tight game.

Chapman, who caught the last part of the season under the terrific strain that all the Crackers were laboring under, caught many a game when he was sick enough to be in bed. He had worn himself down to a shadow. Since he has been resting and hunting he says he has put on about twenty pounds.

News Wise and Otherwise Of Boys Who Put 'Em Over

Wylie West, manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company, returned today from St. Louis, where he attended the National Carriage Makers' association.

J. H. Simms, for the past four years associated with the Alco Motor company as Savannah representative, with headquarters in Atlanta, has accepted a similar position with the National Motor Car company, of Indianapolis, with headquarters in Atlanta. Mr. Simms has had wide experience not only as an automobile engineer, but as a civil, mechanical and transportation engineer as well. Mr. Simms' friends congratulate him upon his recent move, and are glad that his new position will not remove him from Atlanta.

C. L. DuPuy is boosting the Paige-Detroit in Georgia, North and South Carolina.

J. C. Wheeler, Lozier Motor company, Detroit, is looking for local agent for his company.

Denver, Colo., October 18.—After a narrow escape from a dash to death, while halfway up the ascent, W. H. (Wild Bill) Turner, of New York, a noted automobile driver, covered the 3½ mile Mt. Falcon hill climb course yesterday, with a 25-h. p. Maxwell machine in 11 minutes and 32 and 2-5 seconds, winning first prize in the contest and practically cutting in half the best time previously recorded for the Mt. Falcon course, 22 minutes.

The climbing contest was held by the Denver Motor club under the sanction of the American Automobile association, and was witnessed by 600 people from the club house, which was the starting point. The course is one of the most difficult to negotiate that can be found in the United States, the grade from the base to the summit of Mt. Falcon reaching at some points as high as 20 per cent.

The near-accident which startled the many observers at the club house, occurred at a sharp right-hand turn about halfway to the summit of the mountains.

Auto Hangs Over Precipice.

At this point Turner put on such a burst of speed that the hind wheels of his auto skidded off the road, one wheel dropping over the edge of the declivity, the bottom of which was more than 1,500 feet below.

Instinctively, E. W. Swanbrough, of Denver, the professional driver, who rode with Turner, threw his weight toward the hill, thus balancing the machine for the fraction of a second, and the momentum of the car took it far enough around to regain the road, the car not stopping an instant. It was an exciting moment for the onlookers, as well as for the occupants of the automobile. Turner himself said that it was the nearest approach to a violent finish that he had ever encountered in the course of his racing career.

The second best time was made by a Chevrolet car, driven by William Thorney, a professional driver of Denver, in 14 minutes, 33 2-5 seconds.

A Ford machine, driven by Bert Clark, came in third, making the climb in 14 minutes 46 2-5 seconds. This was Mr. Clark's first time over the course.

The fourth to reach the summit was Frank Nelson, driving a Metz friction drive. His time was 15 minutes 2 1-5 seconds.

Women of the Democracy.

This atmosphere of real gayety in the middle of the summer forecasts a brilliant winter and within the next few weeks official hostesses who are enjoying the finale of the summer season either a ttheir own homes or at some of the popular resorts will join those who were courageous enough to brave the usmmer heat in Washington. The Congressional club has maintained its reputation for hospitality during the summer, although the formal season closed several months ago, but plans have already been arranged for the new year. There has been a continual and increasing interest among the women of official society in enterprises which tend to be of real benefit to humanity, mentally and physically, and these have in the past few years been exploited in a most entertaining and instructive way by a series of lectures, some of which were given in the club rooms. Mrs. Wilson's interest in the woman's welfare department of the National Civic federation and in several other movements for industrial development has drawn many other women into active service with the committees which have these various enterprises in charge.

South Carolina University Won.

Columbia, S. C., October 18.—The finals in the South Carolina inter collegiate tennis tournament, reached today, found the University of South Carolina the winner in both singles and doubles. In the latter, the two university teams alone were left for the finals. Brooker and Crawford defeated Carey and Waring 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-4. In the singles event Brooker and Warring, both of Carolina, began the finals, Waring winning the first set 10 to 8. The match will be finished Monday.

Buick Parade Attracts Much Attention

Captain Louis Sorcho, king of the deep seadivers, along with his famous calliope attached to a Buick car, attracted no end of attention Friday when, at the head of a large delegation of Buick cars, he "tooted" his way up and down Atlanta's thoroughfares.

It was a great publicity stunt for the local Buick company. Mr. Hazard, local sales manager, and Mr. McCutchen, southern district manager of the Buick company, invited Captain Sorcho, who was on his way to Macon, where he will do the deep seadiving stunt during the state fair, to stop in Atlanta for a day or two with his famous "auto calliope," which has attracted a great deal of attention all over the world.

The calloupe is rather a unique affair and is run by compressed air, instead of the well-known steam calliope, so familiar to us all. The calliope is drawn by a 1911 Buick "25," the smallest model that the company manufactures. This little car has been in constant service for three long years, has traveled 31,000 miles on parade duty and has trailed more than 500 tons of show material during its short life.

The Old Time Fan Reviews The World's Series Games

By Charles A. Lanier.

As that grand old swatsman of the winter league, Jack Frost by name, will soon resume his sway and proceed to win pennants—on paper—in all the leagues in Christendom, let us analyze briefly the result of the world's series.

And also the militant forces that placed the laurel wreaths on the brows of Cornelius McGillicuddy and his loyal and brilliant players.

It is a most significant fact that even the rabid fans and biased and partisan baseball writers of New York have adopted the course of Davy Crockett's coon and crawled down the tree.

It was the only course open to them, because when Baker, Collins, Barry, Oldring and all the rest got their bearings and shelled the woods, the Giants were ready to climb a telegraph pole, or jump in the river.

They had been doped to win with tons of sickening rot, but at the crucial test absolutely didn't have a chance. That's the whole story in a nut-shell.

Giants Outclassed.

As a matter of fact, the Athletics outclassed the Muggsy heroes just as decisively in all departments of the game in 1911—but McGraw and his unfair claqueurs refused to admit it. They preferred to "bite granite" and look wise. It is not known how much comfort they derived from the impact. But it's a cinch riveted through and through with ice picks that no serious damage was done to the granite. And let it go at that.

Now come the New York baseball writers and admit without equivocation that the Athletics won because they are a better baseball machine and outclass the Giants—barring Matty always—man to man.

Now, boys and gents, if you can beat that for grand and lofty tumbling and double-jointed flopping, you'll have to hurry. But what's the use? You couldn't even tie it. And remember, those same writers had punished the baseball public with hysterical and emotional dope going to show exactly the opposite for weeks before the season had ended.

One Dopester Upset.

One of the distinguished player-dopester is not so magnanimous as the New York baseball writers. Before the series opened he printed columns of tiresome platitudes and padded reiterations, telling the bucolic and benighted fans how the Giants couldn't be stopped by the Athletics, or even a red lantern. He himself was an American league player.

Now, he says that if McGraw had resorted to the meek and lowly bunt he might not have won, but he would have done much better. And if he had instructed his pitchers to feed Baker and Oldring with slow balls they would have been handcuffed and backed in a tunnel and so on and so forth.

And that if Mack had jerked Plank in the tenth inning of the Philadelphia game, everything would have been calm and serene and more claptrap of the same stripe.

Now, listen: McGraw's theory is that the "hit and run" system is superior to the sacrifice and Mack does not and there you are. And it may be added that Frank Chance is the only other great manager who agrees with McGraw. And you can go your limit without a chance to lose that they do not agree on anything else, whatever.

As for myself, I don't know which system is best. But it seems to me that a player-dopester with the monumental nerve to suggest to John McGraw and Connie Mack how to conduct a baseball team ought to be taught wisdom with a bastinado for quite a spell, and day and night at that.

Outclassed Them, That's All.

The Athletics defeated the Giants because they outclassed them in every way, shape and form. They possessed more brains, nerve and skill. And again they were not burdened with the fierce handicap of having another man do the thinking for them. Without McGraw, the Giants wouldn't be worth their weight in scrapiron. That's the answer to it all.

Believe me, fellow citizens, that young Schang is a wonder. He is a great catcher even now, because he can catch, hit, throw and run the bases and, above all, brainy and game as a sparrow hawk. He made a play in Philadelphia that would warm the cockles of Buck Ewing's heart, if he could have seen it. In my opinion, it was far and away the most sensational play of the entire series.

With Jack Murray on third with a good lead, Cooper set sail from first for second. Schang smothered the ball, took two steps toward third, scared the life out of Murray and snapped a lightning throw to Collins, which winged Cooper a mile from the barn.

Archer and Kling could do it when in top form, but the others have not yet been discovered. It was an exhibition of the acme of skill in a catcher. It made Murray and Cooper look foolish.

The Player-Writers.

It now is very plain that the player-dopesters grafted on the baseball writers not so much for the money in it as from an inordinate desire to air their unspeakable vanity by basking in the limelight. If it is continued further it will kill the world's series and increase the suicidal mania to such a degree as to startle the whole country.

For example, Mr. De Wolf Hopper, a purveyor of ancient humor and moth-eaten jokes from the pre-historic age—at so much per head—and a yodler of "Casey at the Bat," climbed over the ropes and locked horns with the player-historians for fair. What hearts for flamboyant four-flushing and heaving the bull must heat in the breasts of the player and the actor literateurs!

They seem to think it to be the paramount thing in baseball to deal in silly sentimentalism and clap-trap and Mr. Hopper is the hugest paramounter of them all. His wheeze would curl the hair on a zebra.

He started his wheeze referring to the game in Philadelphia, in which Bender defeated Demaree and Marquard, as follows:

"I am not a squealer, nor am I a kicker against fate," and so forth. Then follows the most outrageous line of cheap flings at the Athletics themselves, the city of Philadelphia and even the Philadelphia newspaper men, it was ever my misfortune to read.

Which proved beyond the question of doubt that he is not only a "squealer," but a "quitter" from every point of view. His name should head the list in box-car letters.

More Than Confidence.

Mr. Demaree trotted to the mound and faced the Athletics' sharpshooters with the confidence of a bulldog up against a mongrel. But it requires a lot more than confidence to put the morgue sign on that gang. Fate switched the signals from the kick-off, and Mr. Demaree's confidence oozed out of his system like a fog rising in the Okefenokee swamp.

The Athletics routed him horse, foot and dragoon, and at the end of the fourth inning he was all in and dead on his feet.

McGraw sent a hurry call for the ambulance, and that was Mr. Demaree's finish.

The Athletics' sharpshooters punished his delivery fiercely, and the Philadelphia fans overwhelmed him with sarcastic taunts. One went thusly: "Say, you can't even get started. If you can't throw a drop, drop us a picture. That's your long suit."

And another: "How did Mugsy catch you? Must have been in a swamp with a lasso."

That's the stuff that put a crimp in Mr. Demaree's cerebral spread of sail that couldn't be straightened out with a block and tackle.

Too bad! But let us hope Mr. Demaree may grow wiser by reflecting on the past.

But it remained for Big Chief Meyers to whirl in and belittle the great game of baseball with the most puerile and nauseating sentiment that ever before jolted a long-suffering public.

He whined: "Just think that I must be idle with a bum paw, while my fellow players are struggling for fame." Say, doctor, call the undertaker and tell him to bring his embalming fluid. I'm absolutely through.

Virginia Gets Revenge; V. M. I. Is Beaten 38 to 7

By E. W. R. Pate.

Charlottesville, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Virginia made up for last year's defeat by gaining a 38 to 7 victory over Virginia Military institute.

Virginia Military institute made her only touchdown in the third minute of play. Gooch attempted to punt, but it was blocked, Burress picking up the ball and going 40 yards for a touchdown. The game figured with beautiful runs by Mayer, Gooch and Landes.

In the first minute of play, Mayer went 55 yards around the end for a touchdown. Mayer's other touchdowns were made after a 37-yard and a 35-yard run. Landes, in the third quarter, went through the lines for 25 yards for a touchdown, and again intercepted a forward pass and went 75 yards for a touchdown with good interference.

The stars for the cadets were Cammer, Youell, Gallagher. The score was kept down by Youell's fine punting and the Virginia Military academy ends following up punts. Gillette, at end, starred for Virginia.

Both teams attempted many forward passes; each made one successful one. Virginia's was Maiden to Woolfolk, netting 25 yards and a touchdown. Virginia Military institute made one in the third quarter, Gallagher to Hawkins, netting 25 yards. All touchdowns were made after long runs.

Virginia was penalized 75 yards for holding. Virginia made two touchdowns that did not count, being brought back and penalized, one after a 60-yard run by Mayer.

Three Splendid Games Booked For Eastern Gridirons This Week

Princeton-Dartmouth, Pennsylvania-Carlisle and Harvard-Penn State Games Should Furnish Considerable Dope on Strength of Three of the "Big Six" Elevens.

By Edward R. Bushnell.

Philadelphia, Pa., October 18.—(Special.)—Intercollegiate football of the "Big Six" variety will begin next Saturday, when Princeton plays Dartmouth on the Tigers' gridiron. This will be the one big game of the day, and the first contest in what is virtually a round robin tournament for supreme honors on the gridiron. In the absence of an intercollegiate schedule by which all of the big teams would play each other, this is the only method to determine the ranking of each eleven. The other members of the Big Six play each other in sufficient combination to enable one to determine what team deserves the championship.

Next to the Dartmouth-Princeton game, the two big contests of the day will be those between Pennsylvania and the Indians and Harvard and Pennsylvania State college. The Quakers are playing the Redmen nearly a month earlier than usual, a change made necessary by the addition of Dartmouth to the Quakers' schedule. Pennsylvania State college is playing Harvard for the first time, an opportunity which was offered when Norwich college, which was to have played the Crimson on this date, was obliged to cancel the engagement because the team had disbanded.

It is almost impossible to form any comparison of Dartmouth and Princeton. The two elevens have not met a common opponent this year, but both seem to have been developing at about the same speed. There is likely to be much similarity to those two teams this year. Both are made up to a large extent of new men. Both likewise have fairly light lines and are placing all their dependence upon speed. In the number of veterans Dartmouth has the advantage and possibly a little better line. In the backfield Princeton is thought to have a little more speed and to excel in the end running and forward passing game. But the contest itself will have to settle this issue.

Princeton and Dartmouth have been meeting off and on since 1897. Nine games have been played, of which Princeton has won six. Dartmouth has been victorious twice, and one game, that of 1909, resulted in a tie. The results of the series follow:

1897—Princeton, 30; Dartmouth, 0.
1903—Princeton, 17; Dartmouth, 0.
1905—Dartmouth, 6; Princeton, 0.
1906—Princeton, 42; Dartmouth, 0.
1908—Dartmouth, 10; Princeton, 6.
1909—Princeton, 6; Dartmouth, 6.
1910—Princeton, 5; Dartmouth, 0.
1911—Princeton, 3; Dartmouth, 0.
1912—Princeton, 22; Dartmouth, 7.

Pennsylvania v. Indians.

The game between Pennsylvania and the Carlisle Indians is likely to be of the spectacular type and just as close as usual. It will not be as sensational as that of last year, when Pennsylvania won by the score of 34 to 26. No game could be quite as spectacular and full of thrills as that one was, because from the first period until the last the lead alternated between the two teams, and it was always a spectacular play that caused the balance to shift from one to the other. That game brought together two of the greatest open field runners the game ever produced in Jim Thorpe, of the Indian school, and ex-Captain Mercer, of Pennsylvania. Both of these men have gone now, and no one has appeared at either school in the same class with them.

The Indians have an unusual incentive to win this time in addition to securing revenge for last year's defeat. The Redmen have been gradually losing their place on the schedules of the big teams, and now have no games with Princeton, Yale or Harvard. The only members of the Big Six with which they were able to get games for 1913 were Cornell, Pennsylvania and Dartmouth. The results of these games, however, may still give them a chance for their proper rating with Harvard, Yale and Princeton. They have already played Cornell and won by the score of 7 to 0. After their game with Pennsylvania next week they still have a game with Dartmouth, which is to be played in New York city on November 15.

Previous to yesterday's games every member of the "Big Six" has been scored upon and one member defeated. Yale was the only college able to reach the middle of October without being scored upon, but the Elis felt more humiliated by the 0-0 score against Maine than they would have felt had one of their opponents actually scored upon them. Cornell alone of the Big Six has been defeated, the Ithacans losing to the Carlisle Indians in the first game played between these two institutions in more than a dozen years.

Prospects Bright at Harvard.

Those who have seen all the big teams in action this year are quite unanimous in the opinion that, barring accidents and the enervating effects of overconfidence, Harvard promises to have the strongest eleven in the country. The writer saw the Harvard-Williams game last week, and is frank to confess that he never saw anything like it, not excepting the 1912 Harvard eleven, which showed such tremendous power in the rush line and in the backfield. All year we have been hearing about the marvelous speed and line plunging ability of the Crimson backfield, but the critics have been overlooking an equally wonderful line.

From end to end there is hardly a weak spot in this line of forwards. The men are of the tall, heavily built type, and they work together in unity. Williams opposed Harvard with a pretty strong line, but when the ball was snapped the Crimson forwards, working in perfect unison, lifted the Williams line up and backward as though they were children. The peculiar feature of the charge was that from end to end the line worked like a single man, and it was very, rare that a Williams man was able to break through. Time after time the Harvard forwards rushed the Williams line back a distance of two yards before the Harvard backs carrying the ball caught up with them. It was no wonder that, with all opposition swept aside and the path cut through the opposition, the Harvard backfield could run wild with the ball. Most any ordinary kind of halfback would become a star behind such a line.

After having had the privilege of watching the Yale team work out in two secret practices, the writer feels convinced that at present Harvard outclasses Yale in the line just as much as in the backfield. This, of course, is not a prediction that such conditions will prevail when Harvard and Yale meet on November 22, because Yale has a miraculous way of getting together, and more than once has an Ell eleven, supposed to be out of the running, been pulled together by some mysterious force and humbled a physically stronger Harvard eleven.

Assuming that the Harvard line can actually outplay the Yale forwards, the Crimson backfield ought to turn the tide in Harvard's favor. There is no ground for further worry concerning the condition of Charles Brickley, who was about the most useful man in any backfield last year. Brickley is a better player today than he ever was. His cleverness in drop and place kicking is greater than ever. In addition to which he is a better individual ground gainer in line plunging than he was last year. He follows interference better and needs less of it to make his distance. The Harvard backfield quartet is also strengthened by the improved playing of Hardwick, who is just about as good a line plunger as former Captain Wendell himself. That is enough praise for Hardwick.

Mahan a Star.

Harvard's backfield is also greatly strengthened by Mahan, who is faster than Brickley, and who can drop and place kick as well as Sam Felton. In addition, Mahan is a quick kicker, whereas Felton always had to be brought back for a punt. The real fight for positions in the backfield is at quarterback, where two men, Bradley and Logan, are putting up a nip and tuck fight. Head Coach Haughton had not yet decided which is the better man. Bradley started the Williams game and seemed to have more individual ginger than Logan, but he has a most peculiar arm motion which a wide-awake team would instantly take advantage of because it is always possible to tell when the play is to start. The Crimson coaches seem to have more confidence in Logan, but the final decision will not be made for a few weeks yet.

Yale has completely abandoned the shift plays which Tom Shevlin brought on from Minneapolis, and which the Elis used with such disastrous effects upon themselves in the Maine game. Not only have they returned to the old-fashioned style of football, but Howard Jones is once more the supreme dictator. Some Yale men thought they saw in the presence of Shevlin encroachment upon the authority of Jones. Jones made no complaint and probably was satisfied to give Shevlin's ideas a thorough test. Yale has been working behind locked gates for nearly two weeks, but the plays which the writer saw practiced were not of a revolutionary character.

The fight for quarterback at Yale has been settled in favor of Cornish, who was a 1912 regular, but not good enough to hold the position permanently. Cornish, by the splendid work which he did in the Lafayette game last week, has outdistanced Wilson, who is now being used at fullback. Cornish is not a brilliant individual player, and probably never will be, but he inspires confidence in the Yale team, which is the principal thing. He has a strong personality and makes his players fight. Weisner is one of the new backfield candidates who has taken the fancy of Coach Jones. He is a splendid defensive player, by far the best in the backfield. In addition, he can run with the ball, and is a placement kicker of considerable skill.

The Yale coaches are working hard to develop two sets of backs. Two men who were picked at the start of the season as almost certain to make the first backfield are now on the second quartet. They are Guernsey and Cornell. Both have been beaten out by men who were considered mediocre at the start of the season.

Penn's New Place Kicker.

The Swarthmore game, which Pennsylvania won by the score of 20 to 0, brought to light the fact that the Quakers possessed another field goal kicker in the person of Carter, the big tackle. Carter scored a goal from placement from the 40-yard mark. Pennsylvania could have scored a touchdown on this occasion just as well, but one of the theories of Coach Brooke is that the way to develop a place kicker who can score in important games is to give him practice in the minor contests. Carter has scored repeatedly in this manner in the practice games against the scrubs, and the chances are that he will rival Marshall in scoring field goals. Marshall is an unusually accurate drop kicker at any distance inside the 30-yard line. George Brooke has been trying to make him kick from greater distances, but he cannot be depended upon, and for that reason he has been working with Carter, who can score from almost any place inside the 45-yard mark.

Pennsylvania now leads all the big colleges in the matter of goals from field. In three games Quarterback Marshall has scored with four drop kicks and Carter with one place kick. Harvard has scored three this season, two drop kicks by Brickley and one by Mahan.

In spite of the fact that most persons expected the Indians to beat Cornell last week, the Ithacans are considerably disappointed over the result. As a matter of fact, Cornell displayed much more strength than the writer expected. The Indians won, not because they possessed the better eleven, but because they had been coached to strike quickly and to play efficient football from the very moment the game started. They concentrated all their strength on the first few plays and scored the only touchdown of the game in the first five minutes.

For the last three periods Cornell undoubtedly outplayed the Redmen, and the fact that the Ithacans had the ball inside Carlisle's 5-yard line three times, only to lose it on fumbles and other misplays, speaks volumes for the strength of the attack. Undoubtedly Cornell should have scored at least once and possibly twice. That the team failed to do so was not because of the coaching. It was merely the failure of the team to realize its own strength and the necessity of clean handling of the ball, and that every individual must contribute his part to make the team play successful. The return to the game of Guyer and the shifts that Dr. Sharpe has made have worked wonders with Cornell. If the men have the right spirit and do not let the defeat by the Indians affect them, this Cornell team is bound to be one of which the Ithacans will yet be proud. Their chances for their championship games in November are distinctly better now than they were when the season opened.

Examples in Economy.

(From The Boston Globe.)

The Panama canal is a notable example of economy in public work as well as a triumph of engineering skill.

Originally estimated to cost $375,000,000, only $314,370,977 has been expended to date and it is now nearing completion.

Furthermore, almost $10,000,000 has been received from the sale of old materials, water rentals and work done for various concerns, which sum may rightfully be subtracted from the amount paid out.

The canal will be finished within the estimate (slides and all) because the men who have directed the construction have not wasted a single penny.

They have neither grafted themselves nor permitted their subordinates to buy snow shovels for use on the tropical isthmus.

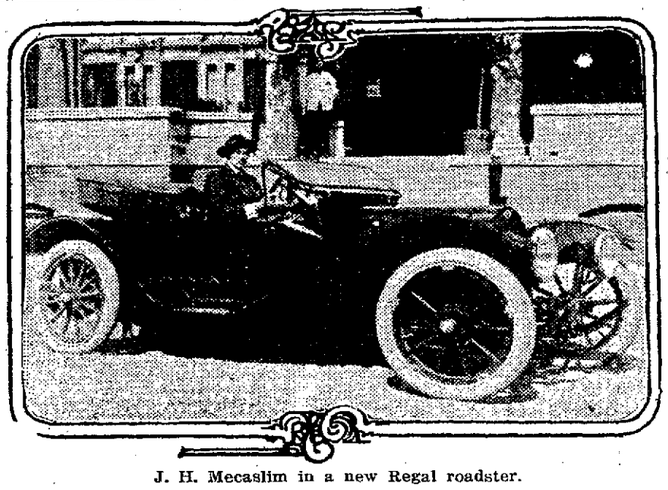
Buys New Regal Roadster



J. H. Mecaslim in a new Regal roadster.

J. H. Mecaslin, 1041 Peachtree, is just out in a new Regal roadster. This is Mr. Mecaslim's second Regal. His first one was bought in the spring of 1911.

In choosing his second car, he not only chose the same make, but the same model.

Mr. Mecaslin is unusually versed in mechanics and mechanical equipment and made this selection after very careful investigation among the various automobiles represented in the city and based his second purchase strictly upon the basic qualifications of the car, the sterling service that it gave, the low cost of up-keep compared to other experiments he had made. Of course the looks of his car and its general stylish equipment, played a large part, as it would in the case of a selection by any young man who plays a prominent part in the social life of the city. Mr. Mecaslin is a constant used of his car. He has driven his former model over 30,000 miles and had become familiar with every qualification of merit, and had there been any mechanical fault or engineering discrepancy in the Regal, he would have detected it long since, and the fact that he has purchased a second car of the same kind is a very high compliment to the car in question.

The Regal Motor Sales company, 242 and 244 Peachtree, under the management of Messrs. Burns & Houser, has entered an agressive sales policy in the city of Atlanta.

They keep on hand a complete stock of cars, exhibiting all Regal models and they have adopted the slogan "Immediate Delivery." In view of the fact that they have sold two carloads within the first week, it is possible that this question of immediate delivery may later on become acute, but they have provided for this contingency by a large contract with the factory.

Greek King's Income.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

Monsieur Poincare, president of the French republic, has gently recalled to King Constantine what Greece owes to France. In doing this he has had the delicacy not to mention to the king what he himself owes to France, for he is one of a number of little kings and potentates that receive the bounty of the republic. When the Greeks offered the crown to King George in 1863 their finances were in a deplorable state. Trues, the Greeks promised a civil list to the young sovereign, but he ran small chance of receiving any of it. But the cabinets of London and Paris insisted that he take possession of th eproffered throne as soon as possible, and they guaranteed, under a fixed amount, that he should not lack his daily bread. France and England engaged to pay him 100,000 francs ($20,000 a year. Not a large amount to sustain royalty. This sum was regularly paid to King George for fifty years; that is, until his death, and his successor will not be too nice to decline its continuance, though his father, so frugal and thrifty person, had during his occupancy of the Greek throne laid by a considerable fortune for a rainy day.

Back to the Hermitage.

(From The Chicago Record-Herald.)

The Boston artist who has been playing the primitive man in the Maine woods for the past two months has emerged from his retreat and claims that his experiment has been a success. He began without clothing, food or equipment. He returns well-fed, well-clothed in deer skins, and he left a sufficiently good shelter behind. During his exile he did not encounter a single human being, and he considers he has proved that the modern man is just as able to do without the adjuncts of "civilization" as was his primitive ancestor.

Yet the notion will persist that the man of today, when thrown out of the groove which today's scheme of living makes for each of us, is particularly lacking in resources and adaptability. The city man transplanted to the country is a helpless might indeed. Mr. Knowles, one cannot but believe, "got up" his part in advance, with all available printed and oral help. He thought that he had reduced himself to the simplest elements, but, in fact, he was the "heir of all the ages." Was it not this unacknowledged accumulation of racial experiences that pulled him through!

The fact that only one in every 50,000 families owns a parrot is another prop under the theory that the supply is regulated by the demand for it.

Moose McCormick, of Giants, Champion Funny Man of Game

EDITOR'S NOTE—These incidents in the life of Moose McCormick, the pinch hitter of the Giants, may be timely in view of the fact that he will be manager of the Chattanooga team in the Southern league in 1914.

By Irving Vaughan.

Harry McCormick, of the Giants, is the funniest man in baseball. He is better known as "Bull" and "Mush the Moose," the somewhat homely appendage of Harry not being adapted to his variety of disposition. "Bull" is also known for his remarkable ability to hit in the pinches, a thing that has kept him glued to the New York club pay roll for several years. That's another story.

McCormick never did give a serious thought to baseball. He just happened into it and happened to stay because he never happened to get out. That's his case in brief. The only things for which he ever showed a fondness were football, whistling and saying or doing funny things of the "dry" variety. He never went out of his way to draw a laugh, which makes it better. Incidentally he was quite a gridiron star in his college days, but at baseball—well as a fielder and runner he is a good hitter.

Billy Murray, who formerly managed the Phillies, discovered "Mush the Moose" somewhat accidentally. He afterwards had a lot of dealings with the same player, and Murray will laugh himself sick today if any one asks for a few funny incidents in the career of McCormick.

How He Landed.

McCormick was located in Atlantic City. How he ever got there has never been explained. Murray went there when manager of an Eastern league club. He was after a pitcher who was doing good work. Murray landed the pitcher, gave him money for transportation to Providence, where the club was playing, and the pitcher has never been seen since. It was because this gent slipped through his fingers that Murray made up his mind not to go back home without at least one man in tow.

After the elusive pitcher disappeared McCormick was the first man Murray met. He was offered a fairly good salary and said he might as well go. He did. The day he appeared at Providence another gent by the name of Armbruster showed up for work. Both were placed in the outfield. The game had gone about half way and the two newcomers had a half dozen errors between them. Murray was crazy and finally howled:

"Say, when a fly ball comes out there why don't one of you yell and take it?"

Armbruster said nothing, but McCormick replied very seriously, "What's the use of yelling, both of us will muff 'em?" Murray couldn't come back at him.

Not long afterwards in a game at Toronto the score was 1 to 1 in about the fourteenth inning. Murray was sweating blood on the bench. Suddenly he heard "The Good Old Summer Time" being whistled. He turned and there was "Moose" spread out on the bench, his eyes turned dreamily toward the sky, whistling for all his worth with the ball game as far from his thoughts as the Pyramids. Murray was speechless.

His "Bone."

In his career McCormick has seen service under Fred Clarke at Pittsburg. He was playing left field in a close game one day and runners were on second and third when a fly ball was hit in his direction. McCormick actually caught it. Presumably celebrating the catch, he tossed the ball high in the air in the direction of center field. He thought it was the third out and was amazed when he saw both runners start for the home on the catch. They scored, and McCormick knew he was in for it.

When the side was retired he didn't proceed directly to the bench to receive his medicine. He was too wise for that, but was so diplomatic in his avoidance that Clarke had to give chase. His method was as follows: After the third out he started to walk slowly around the field, hugging the fence all the way. Arriving at the foot of the right field line he proceeded in the general direction of the bench. When in the vicinity of first base, McCormick saw that the side had been put out, so he hastily cut toward his left field berth. When he came in again Clarke had let the incident slip from his mind.

Production of Mica.

(From The Geological Survey Bulletin.)

For many years North Carolina has been the largest producer of mica in the United States, according to the United States geological survey. Prior to 1895 the output came chiefly from the larger mines and consisted of big sheets of fine quality. At that time large quantities of small sheet mica that would cut plates less than three inches square were thrown on the dumps as waste. After the small sheet and scrap mica became valuable, the dumps at the large mines were worked over and the quantity of mica produced was thereby greatly increased. Now that most of the dumps have been worked over and only a few large mines are in operation, the output is barely maintained by a large number of small mines and prospects, probably as many as a hundred. Many of these are worked by the mountaineer farmer and miner at times when crops are laid-by, and occasionally one of the prospects develops into a large deposit.

Cartercar Better Service Makes the Cartercar a Better Value!

When you pay out your money you are not merely buying a motor car—you are buying motor car service. And it is very obvious that the car that will give the best service is the best value.

This is why the Cartercar satisfies its owners so well. It gives perfect service—over all roads—and for all drivers.

And the Cartercar gives better service than the ordinary car simply because it is made differently—strong where the gear car is weak—efficient where the gear car is inefficient. The gearless transmission makes the Cartercar reliable under all possible conditions. There is nothing to break—quite a contrast to the numerous complicated gears of the ordinary car.

A Cartercar will climb hills and go through mud and sand in a surprising manner. The tremendous leverage at low speed makes it almost impossible to stall the motor.

Modern in every way—equipped with all conveniences—and with this extra efficiency and reliability—surely you must consider the Cartercar if you would invest your money wisely. Ask for demonstration.

We have a most excellent proposition for dealers. Let us figure with you for the coming season.

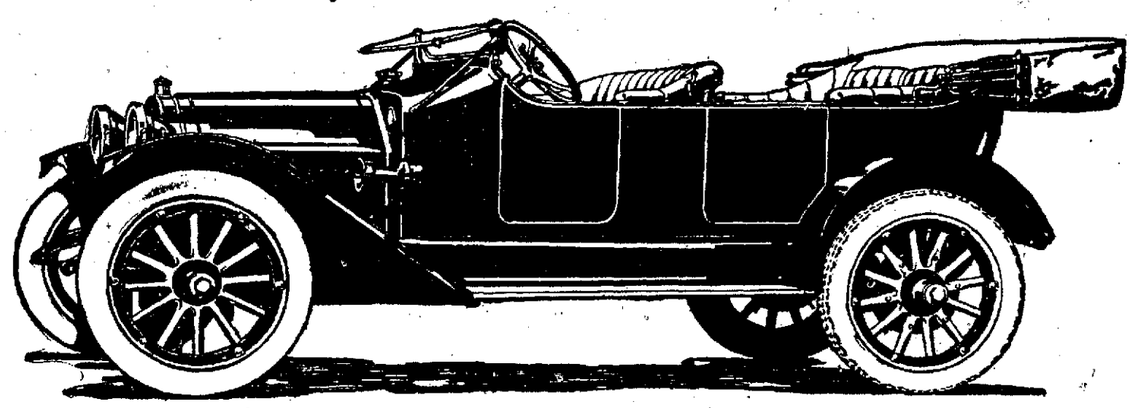
From 800 Cars Three Years Ago to 13,500 Cars This Year



The Paige Car began to attract attention three years ago. The company sold 800 cars. They were extra-good for the price.

Two years ago the public and dealers in general recognized the Paige "25" as great value at a thousand dollars. Sales jumped to about 3000 cars.

Last year—the 1913 season—the Paige was hailed everywhere as a sensational value. The factory could not fill one-third the orders. Thousands of purchasers had to be disappointed.

A letter just received from the factory brings good news for Paige purchasers. It says: "We hope to fill all orders during the 1914 season. With the new factory we will build 13,500 cars for the season."

OUR allotment out of this production is liberal, but it is NOT FLEXIBLE. We cannot deliver more cars than we GET. An order placed now, either for early or future deliveries, will assure you of YOUR Paige.

The demand for Paige cars is perfectly logical.

Anyone who knows anything about automobiles can see that the Paige is full of extra value. That's why a lot of leading men and publications in the industry declared last spring that the prices would have to be raised.

What they said sounded all right, but it wasn't right, simply because they did not appreciate the economically advantageous conditions under which Paige cars are manufactured. They overlooked the fact that the Paige Company is carrying no load of bonds, no load of preferred stock, no expensive branches, no multiplicity of high-salaried officials. They overlooked the fact that the same executive organization, identically, which directed the manufacture and sale of 800 cars is now directing the manufacture and sale of many thousands of cars. They overlooked the costs advantage of buying with cash.

There are a lot of important manufacturing facts that they overlooked.

And, meanwhile, the public has not overlooked the obvious better value of the Paige.

Paige cars really do give all the excellence of construction, completeness of equipment, size, power, style, and finish—all these qualities—that you find elsewhere only in cars costing several hundred dollars more.

When you come to see the Paige bring an automobile expert with you, if you aren't an expert yourself, and let him verify this statement.

∴ THE FAIRY ∴

By Will Seat.

Gena looked wistfully after the limousine that was carrying her aunt and cousins to the house party at Southbridge.

"I feel like Cinderella," sighed Gena with a whimsical smile at her charming reflection in the hall mirror. "Only there will be nothing so delightful as a benevolent fairy godmother and a handsome prince to rescue me."

"Well, poor relations—must be poor relations. I know I should be thankful that Uncle Silas has employed me as his secretary Ah, there is his bell—I had quite forgotten him."

She hastened to the somber brown library where Silas Bond's dome-shaped head was bent over his treasured volumes of genealogical reference. He glanced up as his niece took her seat on the opposite side of the long table

"I missed you, Gena," he said reproachfully.

"I am sorry, uncle—I was saying goodby to the girls and I forgot to come back."

"Ha! Where are they off to now?" queried Mr. Bond, just as if his daughters had not dinned their plans into his ears every day at table

"They have gone to Southbridge—the Dellains have a country place there. There is to be a ball tomorrow night." Gena could not keep the eagerness out of her voice

If Silas Bond noticed it he made no sign He picked up a penciled memorandum and compared it with the printed page of his book

"I've found it, Gena," he cried excitedly

"Found what, Uncle Silas—not the missing link in the Freemer line?" asked the girl with excitement almost equal to his own.

"The very thing, my dear. Now, listen carefully. We have always argued that Abel Freemer died a bachelor, which his brother Adam married Susanna Rice, of Bolton, and their—"

Mr. Bond's voice droned on while he explained the matter of Gena Together they poied over note books and ponderous volumes until the waning light brought their labors to a close

When a servant entered the room with a telegram for Mr. Bond, Gena switched on the lights

"My dear, a most unexpected thing has happened Here is a message from Ralph—he has been called to San Francisco and wants me to meet him in Chicago to talk over the Colgan matter. I cannot lose the opportunity of seeing him and yet," he smiled anxiously at her, "and yet I do not like to leave you alone here with the servants."

"It can't be helped, Uncle Silas," said Gena cheerfully though her heart sank at the very thought of the loneliness.

"Why were you not invited to the Wellams' party?" inquired Mr Bond, suddenly voicing his latest curiosity. "I am sure you are much prettier than Edith or Sadie"

"Thank you, uncle, dear," and Gena swept him a laughing bow She had never seen Uncle Silas in the role of flatterer and it was very sweet in one so unbending and grave

"I shall take a royal holiday," she went on gaily as she tucked the valuable documents into the great steel safe. "I shall not even touch one of these tedious books—I shall read novels all day long."

Silas Bond smiled indulgently. He had grown very fond of this orphan niece who so faithfully and efficiently assisted him in his researches. He regretted the careless, good natured indifference to Genea's welfare that marked the attitude of his wife and daughters.

When Gena had superintended the packing of his bag and had ordered the car that he might leisurely catch the evening train for town, he bent and gave her an unexpected kiss.

"You are a good girl, Gean. Good-by, little Cinderella."

"Goodby," cried Gena cheerily, and when the motor had disappeared down the long drive she went in to eat a lonely dinner.

"A Cinderella without a fairy godmother or a princely suitor," she smiled the next morning when she looked out at the steadily falling rain

It was a gray lonely day. Gena sat by the pleasant wood fire and alternately dreamed over a book and over her future.

She wondered if all the coming year would bring sadness and loneliness such as she had felt since the sudden death of both her parents.

As the afternoon closed in it seemed that the quiet old house was shut from the world by a wall of silver rain

After dinner she sat by the glowing fire, a charming sight in her pale gray gown with soft lace ruffles at throat and dimpled elbows. Her pale gold hair was smoothly tucked behind her little pink ears and the curve of her rosy cheek was most alluring.

So absorbed was she in her book that she did not hear the sound of wheels on the muddy drive nor the slight confusion of an arrival.

"Good evening, my dear," said a quiet voice from the doorway.

Gena jumped up and looked around. Standing before her was a very quaint little old lady gowned in a long black velvet cloak. A tall feather in her hair gave the impression of a fairy godmother's pointed hat. She leaned on a gold-headed cane.

"O," cried Gena, "you startled me at first—I really thought you were a fairy godmother! Won't you sit down?"

She drew forward a deep chair and the little old lady sank into its depths and unfastened the diamond clasp of her velvet cloak.

She was a magnificent fairy godmother. There was a black velvet evening gown embellished with fine old lace, there was the glittering sparkle of many gems at throat and corsage and on her ungloved fingers.

Instead of a magic wand she wielded a gold lorgnon. But her dear, sweet face outshone the value of lace and velvet Gena loved her at once.

"You will be so disappointed," she cried when she caught her breath, "but Aunt Ella and the girls are not at home; and Uncle Silas has been called away to Chicago."

The fairy godmother laughed comfortably. "I know all about that, my dear," she chuckled. "I came to see you, Gena."

Gena's blue eyes grew round with wonderment, then she clapper her hands and broke into a rippling laugh. "Then you must be a fairy godmother," she declared.

"A really and truly one, my dear," agreed her visitor smilingly. "I've come to take you to the Dellains' ball —and I hope you will find the prince there."

"O, dear—I hate to wake up," sighed Gena ,pinching her round white arm.

Fairy Godmother laughed. "You will understand when I tell you that I am Mrs. Keelson—and I really am your godmother, my dear. I have been abroad for many years and lost trace of your dear parents.

"I met your Uncle Silas last night at the Wingfield, in town, and he gave me a strong hint that a Cinderella was waiting here for a fairy godmother—so here I am in spite of the muddy roads

"After the ball is over and you have given Mr. Bond due notice—why you can come to Fairyland and be my dear daughter if you want to—so there." She leaned over and kissed Gena's happy, bewildered face.

"How did you get here?" asked the girl.

"Come from town in my own car and the roads are simply frightful. Now give me a cup of tea and then you must get ready for the ball."

"O, I am sorry, godmother, but I haven't a decent thing to wear," faltered Gena. "Nothing except an old white Cina silk and—"

"Hannah!" called Mrs. Keelson, and in response there entered a capable looking woman bearing several large boxes.

"Please unpack the ball gown I brought for Miss Bond," and then to Gena, Mrs Keelson explained, "Here are all the pretty things for Cinderella—Hannah will fit the gown if it is too large. This is the nearest I could find to glass slippers," she smiled mischievously as Hannah laid a pair of jeweled white satin slippers in Gena's lap.

Gena laughed and cried over the beautiful peach satin gown and its accessories, then they went upstairs where supper was served to Mrs. Keelson in Gena's own room.

When at last they started for the ball the servants crowded into the hall to marvel at the sudden magnificence of sweet Miss Gena.

The moon came out and turned the hanging rain drops to diamonds, for it was a magical night and nothing was ever the same afterward. Life became beautiful and bright and full of love and happiness for Gena.

Mrs. Bond and her daughters were surprised to see such a splendidly arrayed Gena, but they were kind at heart and exerted their utmost to give her a good time.

There came a moment when the prince appeared and was presented and he turned out to be Mrs. Keelson's handsome son. It is needless to say that he fell in love with Cinderella, and before June came around the prince and Cinderella were married and Mrs. Keelson had a real daughter and Gena a devoted mother.

The Cattle Tick Has to Go.

(From The Progressive Farmer.)

The fight for tick eradication is just about won. We don't mean that the work is done, but that enough has been done to convince all thinging farmers that the ticks can be eradicated and that it pays to do it. Steadily and with increasing rapidity the doubters and the objectors are being convinced and silenced.

It is true that only about one-fourth the total infested area has been freed, but the work is going on faster than it used to, and farmers are more interested in it. September 1 there were released from quarantine 9,191 square miles of territory in five states, and an active campaign is in progress in every infested state. Farmers everywhere should redouble their efforts and see that still greater impetus is given the work; for present progress, gratifying as it is to those of us who have been in the fight for years, is still too slow.

It has been shown that the ticks can be eradicated at a cost of 50 cents per head for the cattle in an infested district, and also that they damage the hides of cattle in infested territory $1 25 each on an average This one loss—which is a very small loss compared to the reduction in the price of the cattle themselves and danger of introducing new blood—alone should put every cattle raiser in infested territory to work in dead earnest.

If We Knew.

(From Tid Bits.)

Could we but draw back the curtains
That surround each other's lives,
See their naked heart and spirit,
Know what spur the action gives;
Often we should find it better,
Purer than we judge we should—
We should love each other better,
If we only understood.

Could we judge all deeds by motives,
See the good and bad within,
Often we should love the sinner,
All the while we loathe the sin.
Could we know the powers working
To overthrow integrity
We should judge each other's errors
With more patient charity.

If we knew the care and trials,
Knew the effort all in vain,
And the bitter disappointment,
Understood the loss and gain;
Would the grim external roughness
Seem, I wonder, just the same?
Would we help where now we hinder?
Would we pity where we blame?

Ah! we judge each other harshly,
Knowing not lifes hidden force;
Knowing not the fount of action
Is less turbid at its source;
Seeing not amid the evil
All the golden grains of good,
Oh! we'd love each other better.

NEW HOPE.

By Elsie Endicott.

The air of the officers' mess veranda was heavy with smoke. Major Weatherby had just stopped taking.

"I can't understand it at all," said Captain Nevill, in continuation of the major's las tremark. The new man leaned forward in his deck chair and listened to what was being said with a vicious interest. Captain Nevill's tone was puzzled and reflective.

"Two years ago, when summers joined us, he was the merest boy. I used to hear the older fellows call him backboneless, though it always seemed to me that there was more in him than most people imagined. Then that affair of old Houseley's murder by a fanatical Hindoo cropped up, and a week later little Miss Houseley disappears, off the earth without leaving a trace behind. Goodness only knows—"

"Wasn't there some talk of a very curious will?" asked the new man, in a tone which he scarcely concealed from being insinuating.

"Yes, an old uncle of them both died some time ago, leaving his money to Miss Houseley and Summers, on condition that they married. It was to give his daughter a chance of meeting Summers again that old Houseley came out to India

"They met a good deal all through the cool season, and some women's gossip got about, that the girl was head-over heesl in love with him, though Summers didn't seem to altogether return her affection.

"Then the whole thing was brought to an unexpected end by poor old Houseley's brutal murder, and a week later Miss Houseley's disappearance. To all intents and purposes the girl simply evaporated in the height of a Bombay season, and with the eyes of the whole of India full on her. The mystery has not been cleared up in any way whatever.

"Summers came back off leave looking ten years older than when he went down, but though there was an uncanny air of reserve about him, the boy persisted on his honor that he couldn't tell us anything."

"And you believed him, I suppose?" The sneer was so pointed that Nevill turned sharply in the new man's direction.

"Summers is a gentleman all through," he said in a stiff voice "We didn't doubt his word. All the same," he went on slowly, "the fellows don't chum with him as they used to do, so he takes it out in pampering his company, and going off on long shooting expeditions by himself in the jungle.

"Every now and then an old native —strange-looking old chap—comes in, and when he appears Summers goes off on one of his long shikars. It's been going on like this for four months now. I wish—" A troubled expression crossed Captain Nevill's face as he got up and sat on the rail of the veranda.

"I wish the boy would confide in someone," he finished mentally. He thrust the uneasiness from his mind and added, "I wish the lad would take a few months' leave and go home for a bit. By George, I'll try to persuade him."

As the swift Indian summer started to draw in, the officers' mess veranda slowly emptied.

The new man, Smith, who had been left to himself, rose and threw his cigar end over the veranda rail, with an unpleasant laugh.

Two years ago little Jessie Houseley had refused the offer of his hand and debts because, she playfully informed him, she was going to marry a "boy in India," and live in the jungle all her life,

And evidently Summers had been in no hurry to claim her for his wife, after all. But how Smith had hated that "boy in India"—the rival for whom Miss Houseley had coolly thrown him over, just when he had let the whole mess see that he was quite confident of winning her!

As Smith stood there the weird little figure of an old man suddenly flitted past the mess compound in the fading daylight, and disappeared in the direction of Summers' bungalow.

It was a native, and Smith decided that it was the individual Captain Nevill had mentioned as the "strange looking old native" who always appeared in the cantonment to give Summers warning that it was time to go off on one of his jungle expeditions.

The shadows had gathered so quickly that before he reached the compound gate it was almost out of sight. Behind, on the polo field, a race was evidently just beginning, for a hum of excitement sounded across the station.

Having seen that Summers was not in his bungalow the old native swerved off in the direction of the polo field, and Smith followed.

"Three times round. Go it, F company! Go it F—by George what on earth is Summers up to now?"

The last exclamation came from Captain Nevill, who stood near the winning post, anxiously watching the work of getting the horses off. A subaltern was riding for the honor of each company, and Summers had been pressed into the race quite against his will.

His horse was well in front, and going at a mad pace. For the first round he had to exert all his strength to hold the brute in.

Then a queer limpness crept down his arms, and the animal took what head he wanted

"Hold up, Summers!" Captain Nevill shouted sharply as the post was passed for the first time. "You're riding for your company, lad!"

The boy straightened in his saddle, but it was only for a moment. The next moment a weird little native rushed out on the polo field, and before any one could stop him was in the middle of the course waving his arms to attract Summers' attention

The red sunset was over and it was almost dark; some one had playfully lighted a candle near the winning post. The little old native, flying excitedly down the course, looked like a grotesque shadow in the quickening dusk.

"Before there was time to do anything more than shout out a warning the horses rushed round again—swerved, and two of them came down in a heap.

"Stand back; for heaven's sake, keep back, you fellows!" shouted Nevill, who was one of the first to arrive on the spot. "Pardon, I don't think you're much worse. Get up and feel yourself. I'm afraid Summers is done for. What on earth possessed that crazy old native to rush on the scene like that—"

"He evidently had something important to say to Summers. Perhaps—" Smith's lips drew together in a thin ugly line. "Perhaps it had something to do with Miss Houseley. Who knows? Jesse! Good God!"

No one had seen her approach; no one knew where she came from; but the lost Miss Houseley suddenly stood there like a white wraith, and knelt in their midst at the side of Reginald Summers.

The men, who had been pressing round, drew back unconsciously. The girl, kneeling on the ground, seemed to have no knowledge of the presence of anyone.

"Reggie, Jess' own boy," she was murmuring childishly, as she swayed to and fro on her knees. "I've been waiting for you ever so long, dearie, for weeks and weeks. I wanted to tell you that my head is much better now, ever so much better. Only sometimes it aches still"—she pressed her little hands to her forehead—"but I never have nasty dreams now about you getting tired of me, boy. I am always happy, like the day we got married down in Bombay."

Unreal pleasures are the most expensive.

Taking things philosophically is easy if they don't concern you.

And the heiress who marries a title seldom gets her money's worth.

After hearing both sides of a story you are in a position to pass it up.

THE WIDOW'S "MIGHT"

By Janie Jameson.

When the widow Skinner sold her farm on the High Hill road and bought another in the Red Bridge neighborhood she became the nearest neighbor of farmer Roberts, widower.

Why they took an aversion to each other at first sight neither of them could explain, but an aversion there was where there should have been neighborly friendliness.

Farmer Roberts made up his mind in a day, almost, that he should neither borrow nor lend any tools or implements of any sort. The widow made up her mind just as quickly that she wouldn't be friends with a man who threw stones at her geese the very first day she moved in.

There was the widower who needed a wife, and there was the widow who would have been much better off with a husband to manage things, and instead of taking the sensible way they avoided it.

"What I want her to understand," said the farmer to a friend, "is that if any of them hogs got into my crater and I sha'ant spare her 'cause she is a woman."

Of course the widow heard of the threat, and she wouldn't have been a free-born American woman if she hadn't answered back.

"The old skeesicks, but he hadn't better pick no fuss with me! The first time I find that jumping old cow of his in my corn he'll see that I'm not a helpless woman"

It was not long before one of the widow's hogs came squealing home with a bleeding ear He had rooted under the line fence and feasted on the widower's potatoes. A week later the jumping cow came home minus a horn. The widow could throw a rock or handle a club as well as a man.

There was a creek flowing through both farms. One day the widow's ducks took a voyage of discovery upstream. Farmer Roberts waited until they reached his line and he wrung the neck of the old drake who was acting as pilot The body was tossed back on the widow's land with a grin of satisfaction.

She discovered it, and a day or two later the widower's biggest and favorite rooster lost his life while exploring in a strange barnyard.

Things like these do not pass in the country without being commented on. A minister in the village three miles away heard of them and drlove out to talk of peace on earth and good will to men, but he rather muddled instead of helped things.

"Am I going to take his sass just because I'm a woman'" demanded the widow. "No, sir! He begun this 'ere fuss, and he's got to come to me and say he's sorry before I'll stop'"

"You see," said the widower when it came his turn to talk, "she never asked me a question when she came to buy that farm. Just went right ahead as if she's bought a farm every week in the year If she'd been the right kind of a woman she'd have come to me for advice. I never knuckled down to any woman yet, and I'm going to begin now"

Of course, things could not go on long without legal trouble.

While the law was delaying the case to let it get ice-cold, the widow helped herself to pears from a tree clearly the property of the widower He was on the watch for overt acts and called her a robber The epithet was not overheard by a third party, but she insisted on bringing suit just the same, asserting that the man made many gestures with his hands as he talked.

The minister drove out from the village again. This time he took another tack. He began on the widow with:

"Mrs. Skinner, you are a lone woman."

"But nobody can scare me'" was her prompt reply.

"No, of course not, but how much better not to have cares and worries and troubles. You being a widow, and Mr. Roberts being a widower, it would seem to me that—"

"Hold right on, Mr. Taylor!" she interrupted. "I know how it would seem to you, but you can save your breath. A widow don't have to marry some old poke of a man to keep her rights."

"The farms adjoin, and you could be so happy."

"Yes, the farms adjoin, but the widow and widower don't speak and never will!"

"If you and Mr. Roberts would sit down together and—"

"But we won't! He's the sort of a man who thinks he can boss the earth and I'm the sort of a woman who can be coaxed but not be driv"

"Maybe Providence will come to the rescue," sighed the good man as he turned away.

"Mebbe she will, parson. If she don't, there'll be about 16 more lawsuits before things are over with"

Mr. Roberts proved just as stubborn.

"Parson, it hain't that I'm mean or set in my ways," he explained, "but it's that folks have tried to walk over me roughshod."

"Meaning the widow?"

"Just so. It won't do no good to go on and talk. She's got to be brung to time, and I'm going to do it if it takes my farm."

One day farmer Roberts was legally deputized to call on the widow Skinner to notify her to cut down a tree which was a menace to his barn.

It was a warm June day. The widow had two hives of bees, one of which had already swarmed that day and been hived, and the other was getting ready to. The widow sat on her back steps, empty hive waiting, and a tin pan to drum on by her side.

The widower advanced, paper in hand and something like a grin on his face. He was about to be told to skate right off that farm when the bees began pouring out of the hive that had been waiting.

Before the paper could be presented or the widow beat her pan, the insects began alighin on the farmer's shoulders. He had kept bees in his day, and he knew that to rush at them or run away would bring about a painful calamity.

The woman retreated a few feet, and in ten minutes the hive was empty and every bee clining to the man He stood, not daring to more than wink an eye. Then the woman sat down on the doorsteps and began:

"Wring my drake's neck, will you! Steal my gooseberries will you! Try to rob me of two feet of land the whole length of my farm, would you! She me—because you hain't man enough to fight fair! You are in a nice fix, you are!"

"Widow, isn't there any way I can get these bees off me?" carefully asked the man.

"You can scrape 'em off!"

"I wish you would run for help."

"I'll do nothing of the sort!"

"But I can't stand the strain for long."

"Then sit down to it! I didn't ask you to come over here. What's that paper about?

"It's a notice that you must cut down that tree by my barn"

"O, it is! Making me more trouble, are you? Well, I'll cut it down after the bees get through with you. I'm going into the house now to read the newspaper for a spell."

She had been gone 20 minutes when she heard the widower calling. As she appeared in the door he said:

"I shall drop dead in five minits more!"

"I don't think so," she replied. "Mr. Roberts, I hain't mad at you—real mad."

"Nor I at you."

"It's jest that we kinder misunderstood."

"I think so."

"I'm a hard and willing worker, and you the same."

"I'm all alone in the world, and so are you."

"Jest so."

"And—and—"

The widower waited a long minute and then said:

"Scrape 'em off and hive 'em up and we'll be married next week!"

The Willys Utility

$1325

(Chassis Only)

The first truck of this power and capacity to be sold below $1500

Too much stress has been laid on the efficiency of the truck as an economic factor, and too little or no attention has been paid to the matter of initial costs. You have read a vast amount of comparative economic data in reference to the operation and application of trucks to your business—all of which was very fitting, proper and right. You have heard considerable about truck costs vs. horse costs. But so far, the simple subject of truck costs vs. truck costs has been ignored.

This is due to various reasons. The most prominent of which is the inability of most manufacturers to produce trucks on a large enough scale to effect any practical reduction in the retail selling price.

But this is exactly what we have done.

The Willys Utility truck is being manufactured in lots of ten thousand and this is what brings down the price. This is the largest production of trucks ever attempted.

It is the first really standardized truck the world has ever had.

It means that we have developed this truck to a point where it can be manufactured not only this year on a large scale, but year in and year out on a large scale.

The design, all of the individual parts, its methods of control, operation, etc., are staple. Every individual part is interchangeable. Standardizing a truck on this basis has made possible economies that have materially reduced the manufacturing costs, and in turn, reduced the retail selling price to you.

This truck has a powerful thirty-five horse-power motor, which is controlled by our patented governor. It is impossible for the truck to be driven over eighteen miles an hour. It has a heavily reinforced pressed steel frame; both the front and rear axles are unusually rugged; it has a three-speed transmission—three forward and one reverse; it has 34x4 1-2 pneumatic tires on the front, and 36x 3 1-2 solid tires on the rear. The distribution of weight is correctly solved.

We can supply bodies adaptable to any line of business.

If you haul things you can use one or more of these Willys Utility trucks to advantage.

This is the lowest priced truck of this size, power and capacity that has ever been offered.

DEMAREST DISCUSSES FIRE APPARATUS TIRES

H. A. Price, of Goodrich Company, Calls Attention to Interesting Article

"A recent article by Charles S Demarest, chief of construction of the New York fire department," said Mr. H. A. Price, local manager of the B F Goodrich company, "is of more than usual interest to us. The great success of Goodrich Wireless Truck Tires for fire apparatus is being demonstrated every day, especially in New York, where our tires are almost exclusively used on the fire apparatus For this reason what Mr Demarest has to say in his article has great weight, being the word of an expert based upon his own experience"

Following is part of Mr Demarest's article, referred to by Mr Price

"The subject of tire equipment is also too broad to permit of full treatment here Delays, safety and cost are all items which must necessarily be considered In some departments pneumatic tires are employed and it has been claimed that they are necessary with the high speed at which the apparatus runs Because of the greater liability of accident when running at high speed, and also because fire apparatus is usually heavy, it appears unwise to exceed a speed of 25 to 30 miles an hour for fire service A blowout on a pneumatic tire while responding to an alarm usually means a serious accident

"We have obtained excellent results from resilient solid tires These insure freedom from the troubles of the pneumatic tire and we have experienced no difficulty with the apparatus because of any lack of cushion, although often operating at high speed A guarantee of 8,000 miles, same to be accomplished in three years, is given on tires we buy, this in consideration of the infrequent service of fire apparatus Under this guarantee and price at which these tires can be purchased a low cost for tires per vehicle mile is assured Comparatively no trouble has been experienced in obtaining traction with this type or with skidding The use of proper sizes to carry the various apparatus is one point which should not be overlooked

"Apparatus employing tractors will show a greater percentage of front weight, and this, as in the case of our engines, necessitates larger front tire equipment Our hose wagons are of two types, both propelled through the rear wheels, one with motor under the seat and another type with motor in front of the driver's seat. On the first mentioned type the distribution of weight will approximate 40 per cent on the front wheels and 60 per cent on the rear These cars will average 11,200 pounds with full equipment The second type mentioned will weigh approximately 9,600 pounds with equipment, and has a weight distribution of 20 per cent on front wheels and 80 per cent on the rear wheels Although the first of these wagons weigh more than the latter, we are enabled by the difference in weight distribution to employ the same size rear tires (30 by 36½ dual) on both vehicles, a larger front tire, of course, being necessary on the heavier wagon because of the greater proportion of front weight.

"From this it will be seen that different makes of apparatus, although used for the same kind of work, vary in total weight as well as in its distribution, and these points should be carefully considered if the best results are to be obtained from the tire equipment. For department service demands exceptional qualities in a tire because of the weights carried and the speed attained, which generates great heat and exerts powerful centrifugal force in the tires Looking at this subject of tires from its various angles, we are satisfied, from our experience, that the solid rubber tire is generally well adapted for use on fire-apparatus."

Don't Keep the Children Out of School to Pick Cotton.

(From The Progressive Farmer)

Any man can easily prepare and plant more land in cotton than he can pick; and without the women and children to help him pick it the acreage in that plant would necessarily have to be greatly reduced. But when we keep the children out of school to help save the cotton crop we are committing a double crime against them. Not only are we rendering the soil poorer, but at the same time we are depriving them of the opportunity of securing that education which will be doubly necessary to them in order that they may make a living from the soils that we have already exhausted. The fields of our beautiful southland are today filled with children, each one bending his little back and working his little hands and brains to help destroy and reduce his own chances of making the living that we should assure him when he grows to man's estate. Better have less cotton and let those little backs grow straight and strong in play and have those eyes and those brains employed in the schoolhouse that is now empty

We owe it to those children that we shall leave them strong bodies and hands and minds trained and fitted to the best of our ability to fight life's battle. With these things we can rest assured that they will win for themselves a good living; while if we deprive them of the opportunity of securing these things, we can rest assured that the home and the farm will only be their's for a very short time. Without the education of which we have deprived the, how will it be possible for them to make a living on the worn-out land that we will leave them?

Still Thinner.

(From Judge)

Persons of the male sex that think persons of the female sex went quite far enough lats summer in physical display are likely to draw their breath in fresh amazement another summer. Of course there are some persons of the male sex that don't care what may happen.

Logicians may laugh at a decree of fashion which prescribes tube skirts so small that their wearers can't walk in them, an dthen amends its decree by authorizing slits therein of various lengths, and some others may laugh at such apparent inconsistency. But there is a suspicion that fashion knows what some women want and is not pre-eminently foolish as to the real taste of men in the premises.

Everybody knows that the tubes and slits are but half of last summer's story, and perhaps not half of it. There was a diaphanous accompaniment that is still talked about, and it is probable that, with the beginning already made, preliminary blushes having passed off, another advance toward Eve's tiring will be made when another warm season rolls round It may not be so bad after the world gets used to it.

It is said that enterprising merchants, who work in advance on prophecy and analogy, are putting in stocks of pina cloth, a very sheer Filipino fabric made of silk and pineapple fiber, and that they expect to sell it for next summer's use. It has heretofore been regarded as too thin for use outside of the tropics, but, as everybody knows, there is a great deal of very warm weather in more civilized countries that will accommodate itself to the wish of women to dress comfortably and becomingly.

English Epigrams.

(From The London Sketch.)

A man never thinks a woman means what she says or knows what she means when she says it.

With a woman there is little difference between honestly and immodesty.

A man never talks about the woman he loves—while he is in love with her.

Be sure you are outside when you lock the door of the house of memory and throw away the key.

One can make time, but one cannot make opportunities.

THE DOGS IN THE CASE

By Will Seat.

One early spring morning Jeane Eldridge and her big bull dog, Jupiter, started out for their usual country walk.

Until outside the village limits Jupiter had to submit to the leash, as his fondness for fighting with other dogs made this precaution necessary, and when at last he was given freedom he raced about in high delight

They seldom met a dog in the sparsely settled outskirts of Laneville and it gave Jeane an unpleasant surprise when there suddenly appeared at the mouth of a lane ahead, a bull dog who might almost have been Jupiter's twin.

Her stern call was utterly disregarded Jupiter rushed straight to the fore The strange dog was quite ready for a row and flew to meet him growling savagely, but he received a surprise when Jupiter started the battle in his own original manner by leaping high up in the air and alighting on top of his adversary

Though taken at a disadvantage the under dog had plenty of pluck and made a brave effort to throw Jupiter off and get at him He failed however, and could do little but get in a stray bite at his opponent's legs

For a few seconds pandemonium reigned, then a man dashed out of the lane, reaching the combatants at the same instant as did Jeane

Jeane snapped the leash on Jupiter by the collar and began to haul with all her strength, while the man seized his own canine by the hind legs and pulled vigorously

Jean snapped the leash on Jupiter's collar and gave him a sound box on the ear. "You wicked dog she cried, I am ashamed of you—how dare you disobey me when I call you"

The man spoke wrathfully "Your dog has a mean way of fighting—what chance has anything against him when he drops from the air?"

"You say that because your dog was getting the worst of it," flared Jeane "If he had been smart enough to think think it something wonderful—didn't thing it something wonderful—didn't he have just as much chance to jump on Jupiter as Jupiter did on him?"

After which thrust she turned and made for the village, Jupiter meekly trailing behind her at the end of the leash

After this encounter Jeane and Jupiter took their daily outings in an opposite direction and a week passed peacefully

One glorious morning when they had wandered unusually far afield, great was Jeane's dismay to see trotting toward them the bulldog twin Fortunately, Jupiter was within reach and she snapped on the leash before he could escape

It was well that the dog's master was close behind him for past experience had not in the least lessened his desire for battle and he was disgusted when the voice he never disobeyed called him to a halt

Jeane cast an unfriendly glance at the man as she said "Come Jupiter it seems there is no place left for us to walk—we will go home and stay there"

But Jupiter did not see it in that light he wanted to finish the task of licking the other dog and to turn his back on the foe did not appeal to him He tugged savagely at the strap and Jeane could not budge him

The man regarded her with an aggravating smile 'Why not let them have it out?" he inquired. "I think Barty has caught on to the sky scraper act by this time—I have done my best to teach him When they have found which is boss they will be friends for life"

'I do not believe in fighting dogs just for amusement—men are worse than the brutes for suggesting such things in my opinion"

All right have it your own way—if you can't make your dog mind at least mine will do as he is told. Come Barty

This time it was the man who walked haughtily away, Barty following without a backward glance

Jeane felt decidedly out of sorts. "The idea of his taunting me with Jupiter's not minding"

For two weeks Jupiter was forced to take his exercises within the narrow limits of the back yard But finally Mrs Eldridge's despairing complaint at the havoc he was making in her border, digging after imaginary rabbits, forced Jeane to risk taking him abroad

They walked due south toward the big lake, and arrived on its shore in safety, Jeane was congratulating herself on the peaceful calm and Jupiter was digging away in the soft earth in frantic enjoyment, when an angry growl sounded behind them and Barty came dashing down

There was no chance to interfere Jupiter stopped digging instantly, gave one short bark of joy and the two swooped at each other

As they came together both dogs sprang high in the air the result being that they banged into each other and fell to earth with a crash The man's boast that he had taught his dog Jupiter's way of fighting was no idle one.

Somehow it did not work well when both dogs attempted it, and after repeating the rise and fall of their first rush with no result, as if by mutual consent the third time they met squarely on the solid earth

Jeane made no effort to part them Instead, when she saw Barty's master rushing to the rescue, she called:

"Let them alone—we can't move into another country just to escape your bloodthirsty dog. I know Jupiter can whip him."

"All right," was the instant response. "Let's see him do it, then; but I bet on Barty"

The battle was short and sharp and was ended in a most unexpected manner. The dogs in their twisting had worked themselves to the very edge of the lake, the bank of which rose sharply several feet above the water, and suddenly in a last wild grapple they dropped with a sounding splash into the water below.

Both dogs hated water, and nothing could have quenched their fury as did that tumble into this despised element. All lust for battle left them, and they scrambled ashore to stand shaking themselves in utter discomfort

Jeane and the man laughed in unison "Did you ever see anything more ridiculous?" she asked.

The dogs sneaked toward their respective owners without even exchanging a glance.

"Well, Barty was on top when they went over," said the man teasingly, "so I am sure he would have proved victor"

Jeane suddenly stiffened and remarked frigidly, "I beg your pardon for addressing an entire stranger, but Jupiter was plainly getting the best of it and I distinctly saw your dog strike the water first."

"Why not call it quits?" laughed the man "I truly think they are a very close match, and now I don't believe they will ever scrap again—won't you call honors even?"

Jeane smiled in spite of herself "I thinkit will have to rest there, as neither of us can prove this case," he admitted.

"Don't call me 'an entire stranger." Eugenie Eldridge—surely you remember Grace Craddack and her brother, John? I am John."

For a moment Jeane stared at him in amazement, then she began to find in this tall, fine-looking man a resemblance to the 15-year-old boy whom she had not met for 10 years.

"Why, it can't be possible—but I can see that it is," was her confused reply. "Where is Grace, and why have you come back to Laneville?"

"Grace is married and has a very happy home of her own, and I came back because I wanted to see you"

This plain statement caused Jeane to observe hastily. "I am glad that Grace is happy, and now I must take Jupiter home—mother will think we are lost"

She evidently would not pursue the second subject, but John Craddock intended to be heard.

"When you were 12 years old and I 15 you know I told you, Jeane, that I meant to marry you when I grew up and could support a wife Now that time has come—say that you haven't forgotten the old school days and that you will marry me"

Jeane took refuge in flight. "Come Jupiter, we must hurry" Then politely to impatient John Craddock, "We shall be pleased to have such an old friend come to see us Good by"

John found himself alone with Barty on the lake shore "Wouldn't that jar you" he said

That same evening he knocked at the Eldridge door with Barty at heel, and Jeane herself admitted them with Jupiter in close attendance The two bull dogs met like long lost friends

John met Jeane's look with a smile "Don't you think it a good omen? Jupiter is giving Barty such a friendly welcome that surely you cannot refuse to open your heart to his master"

"I think you have the most self-assurance of any person I ever met," was Peane's reply. But the omen proved auspicious. Jupiter and Barty now dwell in unity under one roof tree.

The Lost Day.

(From The National Magazine.)

Tonight I know that I have lost
Somewhere between the far sunrise
And this the dark, a jeweled day
That God had given me to prize,
I lost it, for I failed to note
The tender beauty of the dawn,
I failed to breathe the sun-drenched flower,
Before the sweet, wet dew was gone,
I failed to turn my cheek to catch
The cooling breeze I needed so,
I did not pause to note the while
How wondrously the new leave grow.

For all the day was full of cares,
I only looked me down to see
The briars that beset the way
To hold and fret and hinder me,
But now tonight, O Lord, I lie
And see with weary, world-tired eyes
The tranquil splendor of the night,
The wonder of Thy lighted skies,
And know some better thing is mine
Than this lost day—and I will go
Nor more forgetful of Thy way
Nor walk no more with eves cast low,
But looking—live and laugh and sing—
Knowing Thou would have it so.

The Evolution of Wealth.

(Charles C Crecelius in Leslie's.)

Originally the process of accumulation comes by the toiler who spends less than he receives; eventually he is what is called a capitalist. If all were either improvident, vicious or incompetent, civilization would speedily decline, therefore the real benefactors of the rest are those who accumulate Some of us have the capacity others have not that is an inexorable law of nature which cannot be altered

Sow Oats by Open-Furrow Method.

(From The Progressive Farmer)

In those sections where oats are apt to winter-kill, and especially if the seeding is done after October first, we believe the open-furrow method is the proper way to sow fall oats.

We are often asked, what is the "open-furrow" method of sowing oats? Formerly a drill was made and used that opened one furrow and put out one row of oats, but now drills are made that open the furrows and put out two or more rows of oats, 14 to 16 inches apart. A moderate-sized furrow is opened and the oats deposited at the bottom of the furrow, only being covered by a small amount of soil that rolls down from the sides of the furrow. As the rains and freezes come, the soil continues to fall down around the oats and heaving by frost is overcome. Moreover, the young oat plants being protected by the sides of the furrows, do not freeze so severely and are rarely winter killed. It is rare that oats sowed in the ordinary way, either broadcast or with the ordinary grain drill, are not injured more or less, and more severely than when sowed in the open furrow. Experiments indicate clearly that the open-furrow method is the best way to put in fall oats.

Excellent Attractions Offered Theater-goers This Week

The PLAYHOUSES

Top row, left to right: Annie Russell, coming to the Atlanta next week; a scene from "Quo Vadis," in pictures at the Grand. Middle row, Miss Josephine Arthur Burke, with "Mutt and Jeff in Panama," at the Atlanta Monday and Tuesday; Eugenie Blair in "Madame X," at the Lyric; Florence LeMoyne with the Florentine Singers, at the Forsyth; and in bottom picture, Madame Antoinette LeBrun, prima donna, in Mossenet's musical spectacle, "Salome," at the Atlanta Theater, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

"Mutt and Jeff in Panama."

(At the Atlanta.)

Gus Hill's third season's offering of the irrepressible cartoon character play, "Mutt and Jeff," called in Panama, has been framed up on a more elaborate and costly scale than the original production. It comes to the Atlanta Monday and Tuesday. Undoubtedly this is due to the confidence naturally inspired by the extraordinary success which has been his since the premier offering of the Bud Fisher conceit of like title "Mutt and Jeff in Panama" represents a new school of musical comedy production. Unlike less active and aggressive producing managers, Mr. Hill is continually on the trail of his attractions, studying the likes and dislikes of theatergoers, as well as the work of his actors and actresses as the work of his managers, agents, etc. Being constantly in touch with his interests, he is enabled to judge of what is best suited and acts accordingly. Fully one-half of the lines, situations and business of a Hill production is the fruits of his indefatigable brain and energy, therefore "Mutt and Jeff in Panama" contains the pure essence of real comedy entertainment, properly compounded from the "doctor's" prescription, and is given in large and pleasant doses for a small price of admission. The famous cartoon characters are better surrounded than in either of the previous offerings. The scenic production is an elaborate one with its numerous mechanical effects and thrilling climaxes, dramatic situations, etc., it reminds one of drama, the farce comedy extravaganza and the accepted "musical comedy vein, all rolled into one happy conglomeration of nonsense and hilarious frivolity, makes laughter incessant for two and one-half hours at each performance. "Mutt and Jeff" and their whole official family are scheduled to arrive in Atlanta on Monday, beginning an engagement of two nights and a Tuesday matinee at the Atlanta.

It will be well worth your while to secure seats early, as this remarkably play has more shattered records to its credit than any like play has ever known. It's the one real and only hit of the show world.

The Opera "Salome."

(At the Atlanta.)

The production of "Salome," which comes to the Atlanta Thursday, Friday and Saturday with a Saturday matinee, is without doubt a masterpiece of stagecraft. It combines every essential of interest, and it would be hard to imagine any person, no matter how jade their tastes may have become, who would not find it a glorious entertainment.

To begin with, the story dealing, as it does, with intrigues, scandals and love affairs of the court of King Herod, is one of absorbing interest. The beautiful music of Jules Massenette combines that rare gift of tunefulness and at the same time absolutely fits the motive of the story. One can almost shut their eyes and know what is going on on the stage, so vividly does the music portray the story.

From a standpoint of scenic investure, it is doubtful if anything more pretentious has ever been taken on tour. The seven scenes comprising the opera, as they do, every element from the magnificent interior of King Herod's chamber to the starlit view of Jerusalem—from the roof of the astrologer's studio, presents a picture as pleasing to the eye as the music is beautiful and the story fascinating. In fact, so elaborate are the stage settings that the company carries a sectional extension or apron, as it is called, that is set on to the front of the stage in places where the regular stage is not large enough to accommodate the settings.

When all is said and done, however, the most wonderful part of "Salome" is the unusual company engaged to present this masterpiece of Oriental splendor. The cast includes Joseph F. Sheehan, Madame Antoinette Le Brun, Mlle. Lydia Sturtevant, Charles Swickard, Harold Geis, Lawrence Wallace, Connie Glyn Cocklin, William Young and a half dozen others. There is a chorus of sixty singers and dancers, the dancers being headed by Mlle. Sophia Besnard, the most wonderful interpreter of the "Salome" dance this country has ever seen, and an orchestra of twenty-five musicians under the direction of Chevalier Theodore Stearns.

Annie Russell's Comedy Co.

(At the Atlanta.)

Few persons not familiar with theatrical affairs can appreciate the greatness of the task, and consequently the importance of the achievement signified in the undertaking and the successful issue of Annie Russell's Old English Comedy company, which comes to the Atlanta October 27, 28 and 29 in "She Stoops to Conquer" and "The Rivals."

Last season in New York three important plays were acted—"She Stoops to Conquer," "Much Ado About Nothing" and "The Rivals"—three ambitious productions which left a lasting impression of charm and beauty upon a large and intelligent public, that is not interested in the average theatrical offering of the day. The credit for this achievement belongs to Miss Annie Russell whom theatergoers in this country and in England have known in the past for a certain delicate and polished dramatic method and great personal charm that not for any managerial effort. Miss Russell has high ideals and the successful launching of her comedy company is their realization. It was her own capital that was used to finance her artistic pilgrimage which "practical managers had little hope for at the beginning. But the venture has resulted in practical success.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

A vaudeville bill of exquisite value will be the attraction at the Forsyth this week. There have been unusually clever shows in the busy theater, there have been just good shows, and there have been shows that may not have measured just to suit the fancy of some individuals, but it is a fact that the Forsyth can declare "always a good show often a great show."

This week's bill has been selected with great care. The seven acts that will make up the program have been selected from a long list that had to pass the test exacted by the Keith people. Some come from a great distance and others from the nearby eastern cities. They will be together for perhaps the first time on Monday and will say farewell to each other on Saturday, perhaps not to meet again during the entire season.

A special feature will be the appearance of the Florentine Singers, Marion Littlefield's company of vocal stars.

An octette of splendid voices and a wealth of the most charming grand opera selections make "The Florentine Singers," one of the most pretentious musical numbers of the season. Marion Littlefield, a glorious-voiced contralto and a very comely woman, is the star of the aggregation.

It is seldom that there is given to the average theatergoer an opportunity to witness such an interesting performance as is offered by Robert Fulgora, the renowned transfigurator. The work of the great Fulgora is so entirely different from that of the ordinary run of impersonators. First of all Fulgora appears before you in evening clothes, in a second he is an English soldier, then an Irish policeman, and before you know it you see before you General U. S. Grant, not only in costume and make-up, but in character poses and speech as well. This is followed by splendid impersonations of other notables.

That sterling young actor, Lynn Overman, who was last season featured in the leading role of "Who Is Brown?" is to be starred this season in a new comedy by Edgar Allan Woolf, who is one that vaudeville does not find every day and the new act has everywhere been greeted with the acclaim due such a triumverate. Mr. Lovenberg is known to vaudeville as the producer of such well-known successes as "The Six American Dancers," "Horton Churchill & Co.," "The Tuscany Troubadours," "The Neopolitans," "Who Is Brown?" "The Lady of the Green Veil," "College Life," "La Petite Revlew" and other successes. Mr. Woolf is the author of so many successful vaudeville acts that to name them all would take a column. Last season alone there were twenty-two of his acts before the public, and each was a genuine success.

As for Mr. Overman, this young man is considered one of the most promising actors of the day, dramatic critics calling him "the coming John Drew." He has a particularly unctous, natural style of comedy, and wherever he appeared last season in the production of "Who Is Brown?" the managers and public expressed the hope that Mr. Overman would return to vaudeville another season.

Don't go 'way! They are coming, "the champion ground tumblers of the world." Nothing much being said about "and lofty" tumblers. Welch, Mealy and Bell display their energies on the ground. They defy the world to beat them at this and no self-respecting acrobat would dirty his pretty silk tights in an effort to shorn them off their self-admitted title. This trio of comedians are offering a new act called "The Understudies," a satire on acrobatics, that is rife in fun and falls. There is not a chance overlooked to "take off" the acrobatic clan.

The Five Martelles, a wonderful combination of bicycle riders, Bert Wheeler and company in a pantomime in comedy and the old favorites, Barry and Wolford, in their splendid "At the Sing Booth" specialty, make up the bill.

"Madame X."

(At the Lyric.)

The Lyric theater will have as its attractions for this week Eugenie Blair, who will be seen in the role of Alexander Bisson's famous drama, "Madame X."

This same play has the great distinction of having been presented in no less than six countries at the same time, viz., America, England, France, Germany, Australia and South Africa, and has created more talk than any other drama of a decade.

Its gripping power is wonderful. Its story, one that could happen any time, and its unfolding, teaches a great moral without sermonizing.

There is no actress before the public today better fitted for the leading role in this great play than Eugenie Blair. Her intense emotion and sympathetic temperament, together with her broad experience, lend to the character a naturalness rarely witnessed.

"Zaza" and "The Kreutzer Sonata," both of which Miss Blair toured the country with, were fine specimens of their even work this lady could do in "Madame X," she has excelled all her previous efforts.

It is seldom, indeed, that one can't go in after her big scenes in the third and fourth act and find three-fourths of the audience in tears and many of them among the stronger sex.

Miss Blair is surrounded by a capable company of Metropolitan players, each of whom have been selected for their individuality, and a good, even performance is promised.

The engagement is for six nights, with usual matinees.

"Quo Vadis."

(At the Grand.)

"Quo Vadis" will be the attraction at the Grand all of this week—a return engagement at popular request. It is a pleasant fact that this greatest of all motion pictures was the attraction at the Grand for two weeks last summer, and that every local critic pronounced it to be all and more than the advance representations claimed. The great picture is being produced now in New York, running in one theater for more than a year, and is still a popular offering in Chicago and Philadelphia.

Fifty outfits have been on the road for six months and crowding theaters in the principal cities. Ministers of the gospel join with editors in sending people to the playhouse to see the wonderful reels and here in Atlanta a minister, after seeing the picture, used it as a subject for a special sermon.

The stupendous photo-drama was made from the famous novel by Henryk Sienkiewicz, by the Societa Italiana Cines in Rome, Italy. Some of the most distinguished Italian players were assigned the principal roles and nearly a year was used in completing the production. Actual scenes as described in the novel were visited and, to accomplish this, special trains and tours had to be taken by the tremendous company. When the Cines company undertook the production it was determined to complete it and it is believed that there will never be a motion picture to take the place of "Quo Vadis." A London authority writes: "This production is a gigantic triumph gigantically conceived and gigantically executed, which is likely to stand forever as a monumental achievement, in its own way unsurpassable."

Thousands of Atlanta people saw the picture at the Grand last summer and have been anxious for the opportunity to see it again. The Grand will be popular with a multitude all this week. There will be afternoon and evening exhibitions at popular prices.

The Knobs o' Tennessee.

(At the Bijou.)

The Bijou Stock company announces for its ninth week Hal Reed's great scenic melodrama, The Knobs o' Tennessee. This is beyond a doubt one of the most interesting plays from the pen of Hal Reed, who has also given the stage such splendid successes as "Human Hearts," "Roanoke," "The Night Before Christmas," "Hearts of the Blue Ridge" and other great successes. "Knobs o' Tennessee" is a play with the scenes laid in the mountains of Tennessee, and the characters are of the type known as the moonshiners who have made their living for generations out of the illicit distilling of whisky. Old Lige Preston has been a moonshiner all his life. He and Mary Preston have raised two boys, who have grown up believing that God gave them the right to make moonshine whisky and the law had no right to interfere with their work. On the other hand, the revenue officers, at the opening of this story, have been carefully watching to find the still of the Preston boys hid away in the mountain fastnesses, and the story runs that one day the still is discovered, Henry Preston is about to be captured and his brother, Joe, opens fire on the revenue officers and drives them away. Of course, this brings on trouble and the strong arm of the government reaches out for the Prestons and they are finally captured. Old Mary Preston kills her favorite son rather than see him taken away by the revenue officers. She is sent to jail and things go very badly for the Prestons until finally old Lige Preston and his son, Joe, go to Washington to appeal to President McKinley for a pardon for Mary Preston. "Knobs o' Tennessee" should make one of the most interesting plays that the stock company has offered during its engagement. From a scenic standpoint exceptional opportunities will be given for great effects and it is said that nothing will be overlooked in this line. Monday night will be ladies' free night, and each lady will be admitted free when accompanied by an escort holding a paid 30-cent ticket purchased before 6 o'clock Monday.

The Good Ship Nancy Hanks.

(At the Columbia.)

There is song and spice galore in the breezy burlesque, "The Good Ship Nancy Hanks," which will be the attraction at the Columbia theater this week, beginning with Monday matinee. Throughout the two acts there is an abundance of startling situations, each delightfully interspersed with song numbers and especially arranged music.

The management of the Columbia made several efforts to get the attraction for the opening bill, but it was not until late during the past week that negotiations were closed with the New York owners of the rights. It was produced recently in New York and served an admirable vehicle for the Columbia company. It also served to introduce the great Tango dance, which is one of the big dance numbers. The dance is produced with all its sensational features by the original New York company, and it can be truly stated that this week will offer Atlanta lovers of the sensuous dance a rare opportunity of seeing the tango as it is really danced in New York and the bohemian cities of Europe.

The Columbia is offering the best bill of special attractions this week. The Pollock sisters, in a delicious pot pouri of song, dance and comedy, and the great Schreck are several other attractions of equal merit. The Columbia company has been increased by the engagement of three new people, who will appear in the principal roles with Miss Bee Darling and Gene Davis.

There will be no advance in price, despite the unusually large bill.

Drama League Organizing a Nation To Uplift Standard of the Stage

Atlanta Center of Drama League, With Over 200 Members and Growing Fast, Plans Active Work for Coming Year.

By J. Walter LeCraw.

Is the stage on a decline? This is a question that has been asked hundreds of times during the recent months. Many a time it has been answered in the affirmative. People have pointed to the phenomenal growth of the moving picture business as an indication that the legitimate stage is doomed. Slumps in the theater audiences have given opportunity for the pessimists time and again to moan that the days of Jefferson and Booth are gone forever, and that the drama is fast dying out.

But if those who thus decry the stage could have been present last Tuesday afternoon when the palm-room of the Georgian Terrace hotel was crowded to its doors at the first fall meeting of the Drama league, they would have seen evidence of a different kind of influence at work upon the American theater. If they had watched that gathering of ladies sit for two hours and listen to the reading of Galsworthy's English play, "Justice," they would have seen that the drama yet holds a gripping interest in the public mind that is unequalled by the moving picture or any other competitor with the drama for national favor. And if they should follow the national organization of this Drama league, tracing its marvelous growth within the past two years and discerning the power it is exerting for the stimulation and uplift of the stage, they would see at once that there is a force at work in the national life of America that will never let the drama die or be superseded by the moving picture screen.

VARIED AUDIENCE HEARS DRAMA READ.

From all stages of the city's life came the audience which heard Dr. Memminger read "Justice." Dozens of ladies came from their polished drawing rooms and gave up an afternoon of bridge or social teas in order to attend the meeting. There were school teachers who came direct from their classrooms, where they had spent a hard morning in training the stubborn, youthful mind. A few were able to get off from other work in order to hear the reading. Washington seminary, as well as other institutions, furnished quite a number of young ladies who came to listen and learn.

There was one in the audience—a white-haired, earnest-faced woman—who came from an institution of a different kind. She was the matron of one of Atlanta's orphan homes and she had come to this unique gathering to gain inspiration of a genuine nature something that might aid her in encouraging and training the little brood of orphan children that were waiting for her at home. This audience was in itself a proof of the universal appeal of the drama in its higher form, and to have had such a splendid start augurs well for the future of the Drama league in this city. And the fact that the league intends to follow up the prestige already gained is shown in the program of lectrues for the next month as announced by the educational committee.

"Rutherford and Son," by the well-known English woman playwright, Githa Sowerby, will be read by Mrs. William Claes Spiker, president of the Atlanta branch of the league, next Tuesday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at the Georgian Terrace.

"The Voysey Inheritance," by Granville Barker, will be the third play of the series and will be read by Mrs. John King Ottley, October 28.

"The Tragedy of Nan," by John Masefield, will be read by Mrs. Linton Hopkins on the first Tuesday in November.

"Hindle Wakes," by Stanley Houghton, will be read November 11. Mrs. Spiker again acting as interpreter.

TEACHING PEOPLE TO CHOOSE GOOD PLAYS.

Through readings, lectures, study courses and play censorship, the Drama League of America has set for itself the high and noble purpose of creating a taste for better drama throughout the country. By directing itself toward the discovery of plays that are really worth while among the countless offerings of the theaters, and then giving these plays organized support throughout the United States, the league hopes to stimulate the production of worthy plays and to crowd out vicious or worthless plays.

It aims to create in every city to which its work is extended a substantial and dependable clientele of playgoers, who will be guided by the league's advice in the plays they go to see. This is accomplished by a system of bulletins prepared immediately after the first performance of a praiseworthy play and mailed to the members of the league, besides being published and announced in many public places.

The league also plans to aid the small communities of the nation in getting good plays by organizing the play-going element in these communities and cultivating their dramatic tastes, and with the assurance that this will bring a good audience, first-class plays can then be induced to come to the towns for performances. Thus will the highest form of drama be carried out to the community masses of the people, as well as to the metropolitan audiences.

SPREADS OVER NATION IN THREE YEARS.

Having only been organized in 1910, the Drama League of America has experienced a growth that has few parallels in the history of the country. It sprang from a "drama club" of Evanston, a large suburb of Chicago, Ill., where for several years a little group of women met informally to study drama and who attended the theater periodically in a group in the support of the best plays. This idea gradually crystallized in a larger club, which took in first all of Evanston and then spread to Chicago, where in 1910 a national organization was effected.

Without endowment and practically without funds, the league began to spread over the country simply through the co-operation of drama students and lovers of art. It has created an appeal that has brought thousands of workers to its standard, who ask no pay, but contribute their time and labor for love of the work.

In Chicago there are now 10,000 members of the parent branch of the league. So uniformly does this organization respond to the call of the bulletins that theater managers have time and again testified to the appreciable influence and more than one manager has admitted that within 48 hours of the time the bulletins are in the mails the effect can be noticed at the box office.

That the Drama league is a power to be reckoned with in the development of the theater has now been proved. It has, in fact, been termed the salvation of the theater. "If we can train the coming generation to appreciate and support good drama," said one eminent critic, "if we can teach them to refuse to accept or attend worthless or unworthy plays—then the problem of the theater will have been solved."

ATLANTA CENTER PLANS EXTENSIVE WORK.

The Atlanta center of the Drama league, under the leadership of Mrs. Spiker, plans a rapid extension of its scope within the coming year. Besides the course of readings above outlined, lectures by famous actors will be made from time to time. William Faversham has already accepted an invitation to address the league here. Bulletins on the plays to be produced in Atlanta will also be announced.

Officers of the Atlanta organization are Mrs. W. C. Spiker, president; Dr. W. W. Memminger, first vice president, Mrs. Linton Hopkins, second vice president, Mrs. Roby Robinson, third vice president, Dudley Cowles, secretary, and Lindsey Hopkins, treasurer. The directors are Mrs. T. B. Felder, Mrs. Albert Howell, Jr., Mrs. Emma Garrett Boyd, Mrs. J. Wade Conkling, Miss Carolyn Cobb, Mrs. Burton Smith, Mrs. H. L. Stearns, Walter Rich, Robert L. Foreman and Thomas Egleston.

With these officers and over 200 members already enrolled in its ranks, each of whom pay only a dollar a year as dues, the league will develop dramatic art in many directions. Under Mrs. Conkling a junior department of the league has been developed and she will soon announce her program. The work of the league may also extend to the production of a Greek play in the open within the coming year. The appeal just at present is being directed to the people of all Atlanta to lend their support to this worthy movement.

Growth of Refrigeration.

H. H. Windsor in the November Popular Mechanics Magazine.)

The world-wide importance of refrigeration and its manifold utilities were presented to public attention when the triennial meeting of the International Association of Refrigeration held its convention in Chicago recently. Every well-known nation was represented, the delegates who passed through Washington were shown marked attention at both the white house and department of state. From a limited use in a single industry only a comparatively few years ago, mechanical refrigeration has expanded and developed until it has become one of the great modern necessities. Fruits and food products are carried across oceans and reach their destination in perfect condition, poultry, fish, game and meats are stored during the season of the year when their best and kept for months and even years, which otherwise could be had during a few weeks only. Our theaters and public dining rooms are cooled even to a degree of discomfort in the hottest weather; towns of moderate size, in places where water never freezes out of doors, now have their dependable daily supply of ice, with the regularity of sunrise and at a price no higher than charged for natural ice in long winter lands. In modern offices ice water flows from a pipe in every room of tallest skyscrapers, while far below the beds of rivers engineers bore great tunnels through treacherous quicksands, made safe and solid by artificial freezing.

This great engine of beneficence and utility is not in the public eye and mind like the telephone and the electric light, but its loss of city life would be almost as great a disaster as to be deprived of both. One feature suggesting the tremendous potentiality of the industry was the banquet with which the congress closed its labors. Two thousand plates were spread, 500 waiters served—as many as the entire number regularly employed in cities as large as Cleveland or Minneapolis—and the menu was printed in three languages. Under each dish was given the cold storage history of the food products used in its preparation, length of time in storage, etc., for practically everything came out of cold storage. The banquet cost $2,000.

Surely a long step in progress since the day when mother hung the butter in the well.

WILSON CLEARS WAY FOR MONEY REFORM

President Opens Conferences With Republican Leaders. No Party Lines to Be Drawn on the Measure.

Washington, October 18.—President Wilson has further cleared the path for currency reform in the senate through conferences opened today with the republicans on the senate committee now in charge of the bill. As a result of a conference with Senator Nelson, which, it is believed, will be followed by talks with other republicans, the president has received assurances that the republicans are not holding up legislation nor trying to impede action on the currency bill in the senate.

Democratic Leaders Confident.

Democratic leaders expressed confidence today that the senate committee would be able to come to such an agreement upon the currency reform measures as would insure its unanimous support by both republicans and democrats. This assurance was based on the knowledge that no effort is to be made to draw party lines on the bill, but that the republicans are to be fully consulted in amending and redrafting the measure.

The opening of direct negotiations with republican senators, it is understood, was decided on by the president because of suggestions from outside sources that they were endeavoring to delay action in committee. While no effort has been made to fix a date for the reporting of the bill, it is understood the president has been assured that progress in the committee will be as rapid as possible.

Efforts to bring about a recess of congress appear to have abated somewhat, and house leaders apparently have given up any hope of getting away from Washington for any stated period.

Little Chance for Compact.

While the president would consent to a definite recess of congress if the senate committee would agree to a date for completing the currency bill, members of the senate admitted today there was little chance for such a compact being made.

It is expected the committee will spend at least three weeks after October 25 in discussion and amendment of the bill.

An informal conference between members of the senate committee and a delegation of bankers from several cities in Virginia was held today. The bankers expressed their views of the administration bill and of amendments they would like incorporated.

An amendment to allow the proposed federal reserve banks to issue all travelers' checks, such as are now issued by private banks, was suggested to the senate today by John Overmire, of Indianapolis, in a petition presented by Senator Kern.

MISS CROCKER KILLED UNDER HEELS OF PONY

New York, October 18.—Faith Crocker, only daughter of Frank L. Crocker, a leading member of the Meadowbrook and Piping Rock clubs, met death today beneath the heels of her favorite pony, which she recently had ridden to blue ribbon honors in Long Island horse shows. The 8-year-old girl had taken the animal out for its usual morning canter in the meadow and her father sat at a window watching her when she became unseated and fell to the ground with her foot caught in the stirrup. Her skull was fractured.

RHEUMATIC PAINS PROMPTLY DISAPPEAR

Relief Comes After Taking Few Doses of Croxone

It is needless to suffer with rheumatism, and be all crippled up and bent out of shape with its heart-wrenching pains, when you can avoid it.

Rheumatism comes from weak, inactive kidneys that fail to filter from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, and the only way to overcome it is to remove the cause.

Croxone does this because it neutralizes and dissolves the poisonous substances and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles, to scratch and irritate and cause rheumatism, and cleans out and strengthens the stopped-up, inactive kidneys so they can filter the poison from the blood and drive it on and out of the system.

Croxone is a truly remarkable medicine for rheumatism, kidney troubles and bladder disorders. You will find it differs from other remedies. There is nothing else just like it. It matters not how old you are, or how long you have suffered, it is practically impossible to take it without results. Relief follows the first few doses, and you will be surprised how quickly all misery and suffering will end.

An original package of Croxone costs but a trifle, and all druggists are authorized to sell it on a positive money-back guarantee. Three doses a day, for a few days is often all that is ever needed to overcome the worst backache or urinary disorders.—(Adv.)

Atlanta People to Attend Big Knoxville Exposition

Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry leave this afternoon for Knoxville, where they go to visit the exposition. They will take with them a party of friends, among them Governor and Mrs. Slaton, Judge and Mrs. Newman, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Paine, Mr. E. T. Lamb, Major John S. Cohen.

On Monday they will be entertained at luncheon by Mr. and Mrs. William Ross. The same evening a dinner will be given in their honor by Mr. and Mrs. David Chapman. Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. George Baxter entertain them at luncheon, and the same evening they will be the honor guests at a dinner to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sanford. The party will return to Atlanta Wednesday morning.

HAVE CONFIDENCE IN WARDEN MOYER

McReynolds Brands Some of Charges Made by Julian Hawthorne and Dr. W. J. Morton as Absurd.

Washington, October 18.—(Special.)—Attorney General McReynolds today expressed every confidence that the charges against the administration of the Atlanta penitentiary by Julian Hawthorne and Dr. W. J. Morton would be proven to have no foundation.

The attorney general in commenting upon the statements of the ex-convicts, Hawthorne and Morton, said some of their complaints were obviously absurd. One referred to a dungeon in the prison and said it was a "hell hole." There is no such room, according to Mr. McReynolds.

The department today received a letter from an inmate of the prison gratuitously defending Warden Moyer and officials of the Atlanta pen.

While an investigation will be made in a short time, it is a routine investigation such as is made each year of every penal institution supported by the government. It will be conducted by a citizen not connected with the department of justice.

RED FLED RESERVATION TO SEE WHITE WORLD

Washington, October 18.—Just as thousands of adventurous white youths have run away from home to "fight Indians," so did Stancel Jumper, a full-blooded member of the Qualla Indian tribe, in North Carolina, run away from the reservation to see the wonders of the white man's world. He will be shipped back to his reservation today in charge of an Indian office custodian.

Having attained the ripe age of 13 years, the oung brave, together with another lad of the same ripe years crept from the ancestral tepee and started north. In Baltimore they became separated and Jumper decided to come to Washington to view the wigwam of the Great White Father. His native sagacity apparently failed him, for he was viewing the exterior of the police court when Deputy Marshal Reade came down the steps.

"Ugh!" said the copper-colored youthful warrior, admiringly, "Heap big chief!"

The official promptly rounded up the young aborginee, who was almost famished. Back to the reservation he goes at the white man's expense.

WORLD SUFFRAGE CLUB WILL BE ORGANIZED

Washington, October 18.—Women of many nations are to be included in an international suffrage club to be organized here within the immediate future. Plans for the new organization were laid today, and it is to be patterned after similar clubs now successfully founded in London, Paris, Berlin and other important capitals of the world. Men who are favorably disposed toward assisting their sisters to capture the right of franchise may be admitted to membership.

The success of the venture, its promoters declare, is assured, for there is a considerable element here in the diplomatic set who are zealous advocates of universal suffrage. These women are being invited to join and the responses are said to be encouraging.

Leaders in the national woman suffrage headquarters are preparing for the arrival here next month of the Delaware and New Jersey delegations of suffragists who will call on their senators and representatives in congress in the cause of suffrage. A local theater has been engaged for a mass meeting, and other events are being planned to signalize the visit of the easterners.

Old Woman Is Convicted.

Nashville, Tenn., October 18.—One woman at least among the number who have used the pistol here during the past year will go to prison. Dolly Parker, a young girl, who came here from Louisville and entered a disorderly house, took no appeal today when a new trial was denied on the charge of killing Herman Canditt, a prominent young business man. The verdict was voluntary manslaughter, the penalty two to ten years.

EVIDENCE OF JEALOUSY AGAINST ACCUSED WIFE

Two Girls Testify About Mrs. Eaton's Attitude to Husband. Doctor Gives Evidence.

Plymouth, Mass., October 18.—Medical testimony intended to establish that Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton was murdered by poisoning and evidence of his wife's jealousy were introduced by the state in the trial of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton today. At 12:30 o'clock an adjournment until Monday was taken.

Dr. Joseph G. Frame, the family physician, told of attending the admiral the day before he died. Miss Grace Byram Howard and Miss Bessie R. Collamore testified that Mrs. Eaton had asken them to accuse the admiral of having tried to flirt with them. Neither had been annoyed by attentions from the admiral, they said Mrs. Eaton appeared much amused at the testimony of the young women and at times laughed aloud.

Said Husband Was Insane.

Dr. Frame testified that Mrs. Eaton frequently had told him that her husband was insane and addicted to drugs. He, however, had never observed any symptoms of insanity or the drug habit.

Dr. Frame said he was summoned to the Eaton home on March 7 and found the admiral suffering "excruciating pains" supposedly from eating too freely of fresh pork the night before. At 5:50 o'clock the following morning Mrs. Eaton telephoned him that her husband was dead. She seemed uncertain about the time of death, but finally placed it at 5 a. m.

"I at once turned the case over to Medical Examiner Osgood," said Dr. Frame, "because I could not understand why the admiral should die. I did not think he would die when I saw him the day before."

Couldn't Give Medicine.

Later Mrs. Eaton told the witness that she had been unable to give her husband any medicine because his stomach would not retain it. The witness described his autopsy. When it was completed Mrs. Eaton asked him whether the admiral's brain had been found "all right."

Miss Grace Byram Howard and Miss Bessie R. Collamore testified that Mrs. SEaton had asked them to accuse the admiral of having tried to flirt with them. Neither had been annoyed by attentions from the admiral, the said Mrs. Eaton appeared much amused at the testimony of the young women and at times laughed aloud.

BUREAU OF PUBLICITY FOR EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Deputies Favor Such Bureau No Change in the Method of Judging Heresy Charges.

New York, October 18.—The Protestant Episcopal church will make no change for at least three years in its method of judging heresy charges. The house of deputies at the general convention refused today by a close vote to accept a recommendation that a final court of appeals be established to determine questions of doctrine, faith and worship affecting the clergy.

The principal objection to the report came from deputies who declared that laymen should be represented in the proposed tribunal.

The house of deputies this afternoon adopted a resolution introduced by Charles M. Clement, lay delegate from the diocese of Harrisburg, Pa., providing for the establishment of a publicity bureau for the Episcopal church. The resolution was sent to the house of bishops for approval.

At an executive session of the house of bishops two prelates reconsidered their resignations. Bishop J. M. Francis, of Indianapolis, agreed to continue at his post the people of his diocese having offered him a residence in the outskirts of the city. Bishop Edward William Osborne, of Springfield, Ill., decided to remain at the request of the episcopate. He had desired to resign because of age and infirmity.

UNCLE SAM OFFICIALS INDICTED IN OKLAHOMA

Muskogee, Okla., October 18.—Indictments were returned today by the federal grand jury at Lawton, Okla., against H. H. Tucker, president of the Uncle Sam Oil company, former Chief Bacompaind of the Osage Indians, and eight others, charging that they engaged in a conspiracy to balk the officials of the department of the interior in the administration of Indian affairs in connection with the Osage nation.

The others indicted are A. L. Wilson, William LaHay, E. M. Dyer, E. F. Scull, John Palmer, A. W. Comstock, Edward Brown and William Plumb.

The indictments are based upon the same charges as those returned at Enid against some of the same parties. They grow out of the government disapproval of four big leases in the Osage nation. The efforts of the Uncle Sam Oil company to have the leases approved caused the removal of the entire Osage council and the election of another council favorable to the government's policy.

LAST OF ZULU KINGS PASSES FROM EARTH

Cape Town, October 18.—Dinizulu, last of the warrior kings of the former Zulu nation of South Africa, died today. He was a son of Cetywayo, the king who led the Zulu nation against the British troops in the war of 1879. Cetywayo was eventually defeated after he had inflicted a crushing blow on the British army at the battle of Isandhlwana when practically the entire twenty-fourth infantry regiment was massacred. It was during this war that the French prince imperial, Louis Napoleon, was killed while reconnoitering with the British troops.

Dinizulu did not become king when his father died, but was proclaimed later by the Boers and led two or three rebellions against the British power. On one occasion, when captured, he was exiled to the island of St. Helena. When permitted to return to his native land, he took part in another rebellion, after which he was tried and sentenced to four years' imprisonment. He was given his liberty and a pension when the union of South Africa was established in 1910.

Named by President.

Washington, October 18.—President Wilson today made these nominations:

Governor of Porto Rico, Arthur Yager, of Kentucky.

Solicitor of internal revenue, Ellis C. Johnson, of Washington.

The Dix Guarantee on Diamonds

Is based upon the soundest business principles, and the fact that there is no such thing as a second-hand diamond, and that diamonds are recognized collateral anywhere in the civilized world.

Our large purchases permit our buying diamonds direct from the larger cutters of the world in original lots, thereby saving the wholesaler's and jobber's profits.

We are diamond specialists, and our diamonds are graded and classed with exacting care until each one has its actual value, and so marked in plain figures.

Every solitaire diamond we sell is with the understanding that we will exchange it whenever desired and allow full purchase price, together with any meantime advance in value, as part payment on larger diamonds.

We will cheerfully buy back any solitaire diamond at its full cash price, less 10 per cent, if returned within one year of purchase.

Our liberal methods of business sometimes force others to consent to similar terms and to adopt our methods, but have you ever tried to cash a piece of goods?

Our reputation for fair and progressive dealing is excelled by no other diamond house. We live up to our reputation, not upon it, and stand firmly back of our values.

Request our Diamond Books, Set No. 7, that explain themselves.

NAVAL HOLIDAY FOR THE NATIONS

First Lord of British Admiralty Makes Proposition to Germany—Cost of Armament Becoming Too Great.

London, October 18.—The invitation to Germany to indulge in a "naval holiday" was repeated today by Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the British admiralty, who, in the name of the British government, made a specific offer to delay the fulfillment of Great Britain's naval construction program next year if Germany would consent to do the same.

The first lord was addressing a great liberal meeting at Manchester when, in the midst of lamentations over "the serious misdirection of human energies" involved in the enormous expenditure on armaments, he remarked that the only way of effecting retrenchment was along the lines of an international agreement. He added:

"The proposal I put forward in the name of the British government for a naval holiday is quite simple. Next year, apart from the Canadian ships or their equivalent and apart from anything that may be required by any development in the Mediterranean, we shall lay down four great ships to Germany's two. Now we say to Germany, 'If you will put off beginning to build your two ships for twelve months, we will put off in absolute good faith the building of our four ships for exactly the same period.'"

Other Countries Will Follow.

"If Great Britain and Germany take the lead, all the other great countries will follow suit, and they will all be just as great and sound as if they had built the ships at present projected. If Austria and Italy don't build, the obligation would be removed from France and Great Britain, and the fact that the triple alliance (Germany, Austria and Italy) was building no ships would make the proposal possible without the slightest danger of risk.

"Isn't it likely that so great and memorable an event would produce an effect on the naval construction of the United States and Japan? Scores of millions of money would be rescued for the progress of mankind.

"That is the proposal I make for the year 1914, or if that year is thought to be too near, for 1915."

Mr. Churchill declared himself impervious to the objections which would be raised by armament firms here and in other countries. "They must be our servants, and not our masters," he said.

He Warns Hearers.

He warned his hearers that apart from such an agreement, "the naval expenditure of next year will be substantially greater than that of this year. Whatever may be necessary for the safety of our country and the maintenance of our influence all over the world will have to be done.

"The fact that the situation in Europe is much easier now than it has been for some time, the strong evidences of a desire for peace and the greatly improved relations between Great Britain and Germany render the moment favorable for the resumption of the consideration of the suggestion of a naval holiday to which friendly reference was made in a speech by the German imperial chancellor."

ANIMAL DANCES SPLIT WOMEN PRESS WRITERS

Washington, October 18.—Discussion of the tango and the other modern dances has divided delegates to the Women's National Press association in session here, and today some of them barely speak. The association apparently is torn into two camps—those who can see artistry in the new dances, and those who believe them a menace to the morals and manners of the young. No truce is in sight.

Mrs. B. Frank Brown, of Chicago, prominent in the women's clubs of that city, held that the regulation of modern dancing was one of the most important duties confronting the mothers of today.

"As a general rule," she said, 'women seem helpless to prevent the dances, as mothers not only watch their children indulging in the modern dances, but in many instances they participate in them themselves."

Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood, a founder and one time regent of the local D. A. R., took up the cudgels in defense of the tango, which she declared, in her opinion, "is one of the most beautiful dances she has ever seen."

Then the controversial storm broke. There is small prospect of clearing weather, according to members of the association, who have kept out of the argument.

Branch Library Is Formally Dedicated at "The Sign of Wren's Nest;" Mayor Woodward and Many Prominent Citizens Present at Exercises

Mrs. Edwin Camp, daughter of the late Joel Chandler Harris, and Mildred Harris Camp, granddaughter of the late author, reading an Uncle Remus story on the steps of the "Sign of the Wren's Nest," just before the branch city library was dedicated there Saturday.

Miss Katherine Wooten, librarian of the city, telling an Uncle Remus story to two little children, Eloise Allen, of 65 Lucile avenue, and Emily McPhail, 305 Courtland street, on the steps of the "Sign of the Wren's Nest," home of the late Joel Chandler Harris, where a new branch library was dedicated.

The library of "The Sign of the Wren's Nest," Joel Chandler Harris' late home, was formally dedicated Saturday to the use of the children of West End. A branch of the Carnegie library has been established in the spacious study of the Harris home in charge of Miss Mary Browne, who has been connected with the central library for several years past.

The dedication exercises were extraordinarily well carried out, despite the crush of people who occupied every available inch of seating space and hall room.

Prominent West End residents, officials in city life, trustees of the library and members of the Uncle Remus' Library association thronged the grounds, surrounding the "Wren's Nest," all during the afternoon inspecting the "Ole Crooked Tree," and the no wfamous well, "whar de buckets run up an' down."

Exercises Begin.

Shortly after 3 o'clock those who could comfortably crowd into the drawing room of the house were called together by Father Connelly's invocation in which Divine blessing was asked upon the library project just started.

Mayor James G. Woodward made a brief address in which he recalled his personal observations of Uncle Remus and declared that the dedication of the library of the home to the children of the community was most fitting.

Colonel Fred J. Paxon, as a trustee of the Carnegie Library association, made fitting response to Mayor Woodward's official declarations.

Following Colonel Paxon, Miss Mary Browne, the newly selected librarian of the branch, told a "Brer Rabbit" story which captivated her auditors. Miss Browne's stories of Uncle Remus will be continued each Saturday for the benefit of the children living in the vicinity of the library.

Tea was served on the porch of the Wren's Nest following the exercises.

Miss Wooten Delighted.

Miss Katherine Wooten, librarian of the city, expressed herself as delighted at the opportunity given to the library to establish a branch in the old Harris home.

Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris, Mrs. Edwin T. Camp and Miss Mildred Harris Camp, wife, daughter and granddaughter of the noted author of the Uncle Remus stories, were present at the dedication exercises.

The Wren's Nest was beautifully decorated for the occasion, goldenrod and fall blooms being used in all the rooms in an effective manner.

Of interest to book lovers who inspected the library, where Uncle Remus did a large portion of his literary work, was the exhibition of the interesting Harris bookmark. This mark by a combination of the initials "J. C. H.," forming a perfect rabbit. This book-mark will be used in all of the books issued from the newest library branch in the city.

Mrs. A. McD. Wilson, who founded the Uncle Remus Library association, was in charge of the afternoon's activities.

IMPROVEMENT BONDS CARRY IN COLUMBUS

Issuance of $450,000 Bonds Is Voted for Construction of Municipal Waterworks.

Columbus, Ga., October 18.—(Special) The election here today for the issuance of $450,000 of bonds for the purpose of constructing and operating a municipal waterworks system resulted in an overwhelming victory for bonds. The total vote cast was 1,225, for bonds, 1,248, against bonds, 80 necessary to authorize the issue 1,111, majority over necessary number to authorize issue, 134.

The present waterworks of Columbus is a private concern, owned by three Birmingham men. Bond advocates celebrated their victory tonight by a great parade through the principal streets, hundreds participating notwithstanding a downpour of rain.

There was no disorder or confusion around the polls, everything going smoothly, notwithstanding the fact that it has been one of the most hotly contested campaigns in the history of the city.

MRS. JOHN C. OLMSTEAD DIED SATURDAY MORNING

News of the death after a short illness of Mrs. John C. Olmstead, wife of the well-known physician, has come as a decided shock to the friends of the husband and to those who knew and loved Mrs. Olmstead for her many fine qualities.

Mrs. Olmstead died Saturday morning at her residence, 620 Piedmont avenue. She was widely known in social and in charitable circles in Atlanta. Before her marriage she was Miss Sally Edwards.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but will be announced later. The members of the Atlanta chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy have been requested to attend the services.

OLD DOCTOR RUSSELL PLACED UNDER ARREST

Columbus, Ohio, October 18.—With the arrest here today of "Old Doctor Russell" and his wife, Louise, clairvoyants, said to be wanted in Chicago upon indictments in connection with the so-called "clairvoyants trust," Chicago detectives declared that wholesale frauds would be charged against the pair.

The clairvoyants' trust is alleged to have taken a toll of a half million dollars in Cook county, before its members scattered to various parts of the country.

BROOMSTICK WEDDING DOESN'T SATISFY THEM

Paterson, N. J., October 18.—William H. Walton and Margaret Miller, married forty years ago, with the informal ceremony of jumping over a broomstick, are to be re-married today with a legal ceremony. The husband is on his death bed and he expressed as his last wish that he be legally married.

Narrow Escape for Hill.

Winona, Minn., October 18.—James J. Hill, Northwestern railroad magnate, escaped serious injury today when the train to which his special car was attached ran into a local passenger train at Nelson, Wis., on the Burlington road. The fireman of the local was killed and several persons were hurt.

SAYS CURRENCY BILL WILL SURELY PASS

Senator Hoke Smith, Home for Week's Rest, Talks Hopefully of the Measure.

United States Senator Hoke Smith arrived in the city yesterday from Washington to take a week's rest before resuming his duties at the capitol. He was accompanied by Mrs. Smith, and they went to their home on West Peachtree street.

Senator Smith declared that he had no doubt that the administration currency and banking bill now pending before the senate, would be enacted into law. He hopes that it will be reported back to the senate by the middle of November, so as to give that body two or three weeks in which to consider it before the regular session of congress opens on the first Monday in December.

The senate calendar is being kept open for it, he said, and it will have a right of way when it is reported. The principal differences on the currency bill, said Senator Smith, concern the composition of the board which is to administer the new law. These differences, he thinks, can be reconciled without a prolonged and indefinite debate.

KIRKWOOD WOMEN GIVE FISH FRY FOR SCHOOL

At a fish fry and social gathering given Friday evening at Kirkwood by the Woman's Civic league, Congressman William Schley Howard complimented the work of the women's club and also that of the Kirkwood Chamber of Commerce, and promised aid to the town in whatever way he could.

The gathering was arranged for the benefit of the Kirkwood schools, and after the fry, games were played by many of those present.

Professor B. M. Zettler introduced the congressman. Among the members and officers of the league present were Mesdames A. I. Branham, K. G. Hess, U. K. Aram, J. D. Dunwody, M. S. Ransom and Hal Reviere.

"TACKLE ME AND SEE," SAID WOODROW WILSON

Washington, October 18.—President Wilson played golf in wind and rain today and came back to the white house aglow with color. He smiled at stories that he had been in ill health.

Representative Murray, of Massachusetts, who dropped in on the president, greeted him with the remark:

"I am sorry to hear that you are sick, Mr. President."

"Well, just tackle me and see," laughed the president as he assumed a pugilistic pose.

The president had a slight attack of indigestion last night, but has entirely recovered from it.

UNFAITHFUL HUSBAND SHOT BY HIS MISTRESS

San Francisco, October 18.—J. D. VanBaalen, an advertising agent, was shot this afternoon while in the hallway of the Chronicle building by a woman who gave her name as Mrs. Leah Anderson. VanBaalen was hit in the stomach, lungs and shoulder, and the surgeons who operated on him said his recovery was doubtful.

Mrs. Anderson, after being taken to the city prison, told detectives that VanBaalen had promised to divorce his wife, who is in the east, and marry her. She said she had traveled with VanBaalen as his wife and when she learned today that he had no intention of marrying her, she shot him.

SERIOUS CAR SHORTAGE FACED BY RAILROADS

Washington, October 18.—Imminence of a serious car shortage on American railroads induced the interstate commerce commission to issue today a vigorous appeal directed to both railways and shippers to give "close attention to methods of loading, unloading, moving and promptly returning to use the cars now available."

Complaints received from all parts of the country indicate the danger of a car shortage. The commission believes that "the present supply of cars is sufficient for all purposes," but that it will prove adequate for the movement of all traffic offered only in the event of its being employed fully and promptly.

Lumber Company Wins.

Jackson, Miss., October 18.—The case of the state of Mississippi against the Edward Hines Lumber company, of Chicago, of many months standing, was decided today in favor of the lumber company. The suit was brought under the state law that no foreign corporation shall own more than $2,000,000 worth of property in the state. The attorney general alleged that the Hines company owned $6,000,000 worth of property in Mississippi, and notice of appeal was given. The court held the law unconstitutional as applying to foreign corporations.

COMMITTEE NAMED ON PUBLIC MARKET

Meeting Will Be Held on Monday and Arrangements Made for Thorough Investigation in Other Cities.

Municipal representatives and a committee from the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce have been named and will at once begin a systematic investigation of the public markets of the leading cities of the United States, for the purpose of determining the feasibility of establishing a model city market in Atlanta. It is estimated by the men who will make the investigation thatat the lowest figure a saving of approximately 15 per cent will be effected in the purchase of edibles through such a market.

Mayor Woodward last night appointed Councilman C. W. Smith, Alderman J. H. Harwell and Councilman C. D. Knight as the men to conduct the investigation on behalf of the city. Representatives of the chamber of commerce who will co-operate with them are J. K. Orr, A. J. Orme and Francis E. Kamper.

Stressing the urgent need for a public market, Mayor Woodward declared that the people of Atlanta are actually crying for it, and that it would become an important factor in relieving the present high cost of living in the city. He urged the men to organize at once, and asserted that the sooner they got down to business the better.

The committee will meet Monday and arrange an itinerary. It is expected that a report will be forthcoming in a short time.

JAMES HAMILTON VISITS YORKSHIRE DEPARTMENT

James Hamilton, general manager of the Yorkshire Insurance company, Ltd., of York, England, is in Atlanta after making a tour of the United States and Canada with E. B. Boyd, underwriting manager for the United States.

Mr. Hamilton's tour included the Pacific coast, where the company has established a department. He expressed himself as well pleased with the prospects for his company in this new field. Mr. Boyd also spoke optimistically of the future.

Dargan & Hopkins are the managers for the southeastern department of the company, with headquarters in Atlanta.

From this city Messrs. Hamilton and Boyd will go to Greensboro, N. C., and from there to New York city. Mr. Hamilton sails for England on the Mauretania on October 22.

VALDOSTA OWLS GIVE UP LOCKER CLUB FEATURE

Valdosta, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) The injunction to prevent the Owls from operating a club in this city was made permanent today by Judge W. E. Thomas, the case having come before him today by consent, though the hearing was set for next Saturday. There was no evidence before the court except the affidavits which accompanied the petition for injunction, and no serious fight was made against the injunction.

Many members of the Owls' club were anxious that the locker feature be discontinued, as they thought the privilege had been abused, and they so stated to the court. The action means that the buffet will be closed and that the lockers will be empty in the future. The Owls have a large membership and a majority of them are opposed to even a technical violation of the law.

Lincoln McConnell Starts Employment Bureau at Church

On the idea that there is always work for those who care to work, Dr. Lincoln McConnell, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, has inaugurated a free employment agency in conjunction with his church.

It has been in operation for less than a week. Already a large number of homes have been given workers, and jobs have been obtained for a fair-sized army of applicants. Every class of worker, from stenographer to day laborer, has been given employment.

A little want ad in The Constitution goes as far toward telling the story as almost anything else could do. It is:

"TO EMPLOYERS—I have a great many people coming to me seeking positions. If you need any kind of help, from expert stenographer to laborer, call me at the Tabernacle church, and I may have the very person you want on my list. Lincoln McConnell. Ivy 8074."

The agency was started less than a week ago. Already the list of work-seekers has swollen to fifty, and the number of help-hunters is even higher. Almost that many places have been filled within that short space of time, and the agency promises to become Atlanta's busiest little institution.

No Charge Is Made.

It is Dr. McConnell's scheme. It is being conducted by him and his secretary. No charge is made for obtaining help or finding work for applicants. On the one hand it is a work of charity to the jobless applicant. On the other, it is a work of assistance to the home or employer which is in need of help.

There is every class of worker on the agency's list—cook, housekeeper, servant, hired man, steamfitter, furnacekeeper, bookkeeper, stenographer, laborer, maid, man-about-the-house and so on all along down the line.

"No one need go without work in this day and time" said the minister. "There is work a-plenty for everybody. Since the insertion of my want ad I have had persons ring me up from all parts of the city seeking help of all kinds. There were also many from the suburbs and the country.

"I can find places for almost any class of worker. I can find workers for almost any place. There is absolutely no need whatever of people going without jobs. There is no need of jobs going without applicants. Atlanta has needed just such an agency as this for considerable while. I believe it will accomplish much good. It already has accomplished much."

To Establish Loan Fund.

No toll is levied upon either the applicant for help or the work-hunter in fact, Dr. McConnell is hoping to establish a loan fund so that the penniless applicant for labor might be tided over with funds until he is financially able to regain his footing. This idea depends entirely upon the co-operation of persons in accord with the movement.

The agency was founded upon the pathetic experience of a poor wife and mother, who, some time ago, was forced to surrender her jewelry—possessions that had been in her family for decades—to pay for her husband's operation.

The story, as told by those connected with Dr. McConnell's work, is that the husband and father, already out of work, was taken aped with a disease that necessitated an immediate operation. He had no funds, and the family was sorely in need of food and household necessities. He was prepared for the operation, and, while under anaesthetic, the wife was told of the amount of money needed for the surgeon's work.

It was $30! She wasn't that many pennies in her home. Telling the surgeon this, she received the reply that the operation could not proceed without money, and that, as a result, the husband would undoubtedly perish. The desperate woman, realizing her husband's peril, stripped her fingers and throat of her valuables, giving them to the surgeon, who, pocketing them, continued the operation.

She was forced to appeal to Dr. McConnell. She was given help, and a place was obtained where she might work until the recovery of the husband. Her case impelled the minister to investigate conditions in Atlanta among the unemployed. His findings resulted in his free employment agency, which is destined to become one of the city's most effective works of charity.

OFFERS $200 REWARD FOR WOMAN'S SLAYER

Governor Acts on Request of Solicitor—Gilmer Stirred Over Aged Woman's Murder.

Governor Slaton yesterday afternoon offered a reward of $200 for the arrest with evidence to convict of the murderer of Miss Elizabeth Moore, an aged woman of Gilmer county, who was found dead in her cabbage patch a few days ago.

It is believed that robbery was the motive of the crime. The old woman lived alone in a sparsely settled community and was known to carry $100 in gold, the savings of a lifetime, in a belt buckled about her waist. She was a fortune teller and was well known in her section. When she was found, the money was gone.

Herbert Clay, of Marietta, solicitor general of the circuit, came to Atlanta Saturday at the request of the grand jury of Gilmer county to ask the governor to offer a reward. Mr. Clay said that there were two suspects in the case, but no arrests could be made until further evidence is found. There is much indignation in the community over the killing of the woman, who was 75 years old.

FLOYD COUNTY WANTS GOVERNMENT HIGHWAY

Rome, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—An effort is being made by the county commissioners and citizens of Floyd county to secure a change of the route of the Johnston-Sherman highway, to be built with government aid, so that it will pass through Floyd county, instead of through Gordon and Chattooga counties.

Citizens of Gordon enjoined that county from a special tax levy for the purpose of building the road, and citizens of Catoosa have taken similar action, which is now pending in the courts. Floyd has the money in hand to erect the highway and an organized chaingang to assist in the work.

The project of a post road connecting Fort Oglethorpe, at Chattanooga, with Fort McPherson, at Atlanta, is one on which Congressman Gordon Lee has expended much endeavor and it is believed that the route originaly mapped out will be changed on account of the opposition of the counties named. Citizens and organizations of this county are bombarding Mr. Lee with telegrams in an endeavor to have the route changed so as to include Floyd.

JUDGE BELL TO SETTLE WHITEHALL MATTER

It Is Believed That Temporary Injunction Cannot Put Stop to Regrading.

The Whitehall regrading proposition, which has been held up for half a week by a temporary injunction, will be finally disposed of Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

The complaints were to have been heard by Judge Bell Saturday morning, but Attorney McClelland asked for more time, since he had not had time to prepare his depositions.

The hearing was postponed to Monday morning, at which time Judge Bell has said that he will either hear the case or dissolve it.

The men who are advocating the regrading of the street have no great fears for the success of the injunction. They are confident that there is no possible legal hitch by which the injunction may be made permanent, and that the work of regrading will be ready to proceed again Monday afternoon.

COOLER WEATHER IS EXPECTED FOR TODAY

Cloudy weather and probably rain is billed for Atlanta today, and the air should also be cooler.

On Saturday the thermometer reached only 70 degrees by noon when the weather bureau closed for a half holiday in accordance with governmental provisions. This was several degrees cooler than on the days previous and during the day the air was damp and chilly.

A heavy shower fell early Saturday morning, and served to settle the dust which had gathered since the last rain over a week ago, and it is probable that if rain comes Sunday it will be in the form of showers.

The rain has already brought cooler weather with it, and it is probable that if the skies clear off today that the air will be much cooler by night.

CHATHAM TO TRY OUT MODEL CONCRETE ROAD

Savannah, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) Chatham county is to have a model concrete road, one mile in length, to demonstrate the advisability of adopting concrete as a permanent road building material.

It is planned to build the model road right away, and as soon as its success has been established a large bond issue is to be put to a vote of the people for the purpose of providing a new system of roads in the county. Harvey Granger, chairman of the road committee of the county commissioners, has just returned from Detroit, where he studied the concrete roads in that section.

Concrete roads can be built for less than $7,000 a mile, and the county commissioners have decided that they cheaper at that than gravel roads, which have to be repaired every few months.

Names Waterway Delegates.

LaGrange, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Secretary Clarke of the LaGrange Georgia chamber of commerce, by authority of the executive committee of the Mississippi to Atlantic Inland Waterway association, has appointed the following delegates from LaGrange to attend the sixth annual meeting of the association at Palatka, Fla., on November 17 and 18, namely: Hon. W. A. Reeves, Hon. C. V. Truitt, Hon. J. E. Dunson, Hon. E. B. Clarke and Mr J. A. Perry.

Great Interest Is Being Shown In Atlanta Automobile Show

The automobile show this year, which will be held in the Auditorium, November 8 to 11, will undoubtedly oustrip anything of the sort that has been held in the south, judging from the manner in which exhibitors are crowding each other for space in the Auditorium and Taft hall.

Practically every automobile and auto accessory concern in the city is having exhibits forwarded from its factory for this big show. So rapidly are reservations being made that already the space and arrangement question is becoming a serious one.

Not only will this be the largest automobile show yet to be held here, but it will also include more variety than any other exhibition of its kind. Everything connected with the automobile business, from the biggest truck to the smallest oil cup, will be shown in its latest design and improved form.

The 1914 models of nearly every make of car that can be found on the streets of Atlanta will be exhibited at this show. This will include the newest touring cars, roadsters, runabouts, limoushes, electrics and trucks.

In addition to this will be the big feature furnished by Sousa's band, which will play every day of the show, giving concerts in the afternoons and evenings.

Already automobile dealers and owners from all over the southern states are writing to Atlanta automobile, hotel and railroad men letters of inquiry as to the railroad rates, hotel accommidations and other details incident to attending the show.

This show bids fair to break all records for attendance.

22,763 COTTON BALES SHIPPED TO LIVERPOOL

Brunswick, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—The steamship Indian, which is the next to the largest steamer that has ever entered the port of Brunswick, sailed last night for Liverpool, carrying a cargo of 22,763 bales of cotton the value of the cargo being $1,493,567, probably the most expensive cargo ever carried from the port.

There has been a large increase in the movement of cotton this season over the corresponding time last year. So far 7,840 bales have been shipped from here, while there are now two or three large vessels loading in port.

Killed by a Negro.

Wilmington, N. C., October 18.—Seated beside his little nephew in a buggy in which they were driving to market at Wilson, N. C., late today, Ross Flowers, a well-to-do-farmer of Wilson county, was shot to death by Tom Dobren a negro, whom he met in the road and with whom he quarreled. Dobren escaped to the swamp and a posse is in pursuit tonight.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Receipt that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out of date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," you will get this famous old recipe, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known down-town druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant.

HE GROWS POTATOES ABOVE THE GROUND

Athens, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—W. J. Snellings, farming between this city and Elberton, has developed a new variety of Irish potato. This sort grows the potato on the vine at the joints of the plant instead of on the root under ground as a tuber. The fruit is not as large as some potatoes, but is large enough to handle well and is at first of green color on the outside. The new kind is a decided novelty to farmers and gardeners in this part of the country.

RULE BY COMMISSION LOSES OUT IN ATHENS

Athens, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Commission form of government for Athens, under a special bill passed by the legislature and referred to the people, was defeated today by 93 votes out of more than 1,359 polled. The result ends a bitter local fight.

SALTS IF KIDNEYS OR BLADDER BOTHER

Harmless to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast; continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

Opening of New Wholesale Commission Building Will Change Entire Character of Broad Street

One year from now and the old Broad street—the Broad street of the commission merchant squawking geese and chickens, cabbage and carrots and barnyard smells—will have passed into history and a new Broad street—a Broad street of remodeled stores and new and different businesses—will have supplanted it.

For years Broad street has been the stronghold of the commission merchant and the greater part of Atlanta and many neighboring cities have been fed from this center.

This, to be sure, applies only to South Broad street. But all the way from Marietta street to Mitchell especially on the west side of the street the great majority of the stores have been and are now the places of business of Atlanta's commission mercantile trade.

But a new wholesale commission mercantile center on a new wholesale commission mercantile street is being built now. And practically every commission merchant on South Broad street has leased quarters there.

"Produce Row."

This new street is Produce Row, which is being cut through from Central avenue to the Washington street viaduct in the block between Hunter street and the L. & N. railroad.

On this new street a reinforced concrete wholesale building is now in course of construction. It will be four stories in height and will extend the entire distance from Central avenue to the Washington street viaduct.

This new building will accommodate sixteen concerns, and all the space in it has already been leased. Nearly all of the lessees are now doing business on South Broad street, and as soon as the building is completed they will move.

'Produce Row' is a 40-foot street extending along the south side of the new building. It is on a level with Central avenue while at the Washington street end it is approached by an incline to the viaduct.

On the north side of the building spur tracks have already been put in to accommodate the cars for shipping the produce to and from Atlanta. Along the north side of the sidings runs a truckway so that cargoes may be loaded and unloaded directly to and from trucks if desirable.

This arrangement is practically ideal from the standpoint of the commission men, and is a great improvement over the inconvenient location and shipping arrangements of the Broad street section.

The building itself is equipped with modern elevators, refrigerating plants, storage spaces, all ideally arranged.

This much for the new commission center.

But what of Broad street?

Auxiliary Retail District.

There is much speculation as to just what will happen on Broad street when the commission men move out. It is predicted by some that Broad street will become an auxiliary retail district to Whitehall street, which seems highly probable.

Already changes in the character of the street may be seen.

In the neighborhood of Broad and Alabama streets at least five buildings have been or are now being remodeled for accommodating high-class retail establishments.

The buildings at the northwest and southwest corners of these streets were remodeled nearly a year ago and are now occupied by establishments much more cleanly in their nature than commission houses could possibly be.

The building at the northeast corner which was recently sold, is now being torn away to make room for a new and up-to-date building.

In the middle of the east side of the block between Alabama and Hunter streets a Broad street entrance has been opened to a new moving picture theatre. In this entrance, it is understood, a soda fountain and cigar stand will soon be placed.

Two doors from this place the rear of the Kress 10-cent store is being remodeled into more commodious and attractive form.

At the northeast corner of Broad and Hunter streets a rear entrance has been provided in the handsome new building of the Davison-Paxon-Stokes building.

These improvements may be taken as straws to show which way the winds of the future Broad street are blowing.

SPRING ST. EXTENSION NOW IN DEFINITE FORM

Practically All of the Right-of-Way for Boulevard Has Been Donated

Definite steps were taken last week for the extension of Spring street from Fourteenth street to Peachtree road at Brookwood, when a committee to get funds to purchase a right of way for the extension raised one-fourth of the money necessary for this purpose.

Practically all of the right of way for a 60-foot boulevard extension has been promised or donated by property owners. There remains, however, a small part of the needed land which is not available without a cash consideration to the amount of $11,000. A fourth of this has been raised by the committee, and the committee will be divided into three divisions this week to raise the remainder by a whirlwind campaign among the property owners interested in the project.

It was also announced on Saturday that practically all the property owners between Simpson and Thirteenth streets have agreed to give enough of land to widen Spring street between these points to a width of 60 feet. Except at this point all of the present Spring street is believed to be wide enough.

The details of the Walker street activities will be found elsewhere on The Constitution's Sunday real estate page.

W. P. Cole, who has been promoting the sale of Atoloma, will formally place on sale, beginning Monday, October 20, about 100 lots joining Atoloma on the Stone Mountain electric car line and the Georgia railroad. These lots are unusually large, many of them being 200 by 100, which makes them especially adapted to chicken raising and truck gardening. Mr. Cole states that teams are now busy making the streets, and plats of the property will be out Monday.

Present Succoth Play.

The Jewish Educational alliance announces that on Sunday evening the children of the alliance Sabbath school will present a Succoth play in celebration of the feast of tabernacles (Succoth) in which the ceremonials of the holidays will be explained by the children in song and recitation. A musical program will follow the play. All are welcome to attend.

WIDER WALKER STREET NOW SEEMS CERTAINTY

Erection of at Least Two New Buildings Expected in the Near Future.

Announcements showing considerable stirring in the Walker street wholesale section now in the course of development, were made on Saturday. The main features of the Walker street activity are plans to widen Walker street and to erect at least two new buildings.

The property owners comprised mainly of the syndicate which about a year ago bought up the Walker street frontage from the Nelson street junction for several blocks southward, have agreed to give 6 feet on either side of the street practically the entire distance from the Nelson street junction to the Peters street junction, for the widening of the street. This is a distance of about half a dozen blocks.

The street is at present very narrow, it being almost impossible for a vehicle to pass between the curb and a street car. This widening will convert Walker street into a 50-foot thoroughfare. It is also probable that the widening plans will be made to include a regrading and smooth pavement proposition.

In addition to this general improvement comes the announcement that a large packing house is negotiating for the erection of a large building on the Walker Street Methodist church property at the junction of Walker and Nelson street. This property is owned by the developing syndicate. The Walker street developers who gave out this information, stated that they could not disclose the name of the concern which wants the building just yet, but that the building will be four or five stories in height and will cost over $100,000.

In the same section a candy and cracker manufacturing concern is considering two sites, on one of which it is regarded as highly probable that it will build.

Real Estate Men Show Interest in Movement For a Public Market

Real estate men, who for the last several years have evinced a good deal of interest in the proposition of the establishment of a public market, will find the present activities of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce in this direction interesting.

The public market commission, composed of a committee from the chamber and a committee from council, will meet this week to consider the advisability of the establishment of a single central market or the establishment of several smaller markets, located in different parts of the city.

Austria Bars Canada Road.

Vienna, October 18.—The police today closed the office of the Canadian Pacific railway company throughout Austria after impounding all the books and correspondence. This action was taken as a sequel to thee arrest of Samuel Altmann, the company's agent here, in connection with a charge that he had assisted Austrians to evade military service by emigrating to Canada without passports.

REAL ESTATE AND RENTING.

REAL ESTATE ROW. 10 AUBURN AVENUE.

THE PROOF OF THE PUDDING.

WHEN other real estate has been slow, Peachtree Street has holds its own and values kept climbing. We offer today 63x230 feet on a corner this side of Pine street, located in a business center at the intersection of four streets, where there will always be a trading center. We believe that you can make $20,000 here within twelve months; certainly it is the cheapest piece of frontage on the street at $55,000. Terms, $6,000 cash, assume $19,000 loan and pay the balance $5,000 per year. If it is too big for you, advise two or three of your friends to go in with you. They will thank you for it in twelve months.

$20,000.00 PROFIT—102x100.

WITHIN 100 FEET of the new Ansley Hotel and about 300 feet off Peachtree Street and the Candler building, we have a 3-story and basement building 102x100 feet. It looks as though it would be cheap at $100,000. We can deliver it at $80,000 on very easy terms, and would consider $15,000 to $20,000 in small property as part payment. It will pay you to investigate this.

A BUSINESS HOME.

MR. BUSINESS MAN, we can sell you 73x100 feet on Peters Street, 100 feet from Forsyth, about 200 feet from the new Southern Depot, and right up in town. It is improved with one 2-story and basement building and one 3-story and basement building with alley side and rear. We are offering this property cheap enough for you to speculate on, but don't you think you had better buy it for a home? Price, $45,000—just a little over $600 per foot for central improved property. $5,000 cash, balance to be paid $5,000 yearly. It will be a mighty nice asset when the last note is paid.

$50,000 CENTRAL BUILDING $50,000

ON ALABAMA STREET, running to Railroad side track, 50x90 feet, in the one-eighth mile circle and in the midst of big things. At the price you can afford to buy and put it away for the rainy days that are sure to come. $5,000 cash and $5,000 yearly.

$1,000.00 CASH, PEACHTREE LOT.

IN THE GEORGIAN TERRACE BLOCK, 25 feet front on Peachtree: A bargain at $750 per foot on terms of $1,000 cash, balance yearly for five years. You can pick up a nice profit here within twelve months. Would consider residence $5,000 to $8,000 as part payment.

$40,000 PROFIT IN FIVE YEARS $40,000

100x210 ON PROMINENT CORNER on Peachtree Street, with $35,000 house on it. One of the show places on the street. Price, $60,000 on attractive terms, or would consider $20,000 to $25,000 in other property as part payment. We predict that it will sell for $100,000 within five years.

100x240—PEACHTREE STREET.

BETWEEN Seventeeth Street and the intersection of West Peachtree, we offer 100 feet fronting east. An ideal apartment house located on just the place to build your home. Price, $20,000, $2,500 cash, assume loan of $10,000 due five years and pay balance $2,500 yearly. It is certain to make you a profit.

$1,400 PER FOOT, PEACHTREE STREET.

PROPERTY between Baker and Porter Place has been selling at $1,500 and $1,600 per foot. Adjoining the Pope-Hartford building we offer 20x100 feet to alley at $1,400, on easy terms. Some of the wise ones are predicting that property in this block will go to $2,000 per front foot within twelve months. Better take a chance. You can't get hurt.

$100,000—PEACHTREE STREET.

If you are in the market for a Peachtree street home we can show you quite a number of very desirable ones at the right price.

EAST FOURTEENTH ST.

Between Peachtree street and Piedmont avenue on lot 75x185 feet to an alley, we offer one of the most up-to-date homes in the city.

This home will have to be seen to be really appreciated.

From the dignified outside appearance to the inside detail work and conveniences that are only found in the high-class homes, there is an air of refinement and individuality that is only found in the homes built to keep people whose taste is just a little different from the average home-builder.

This lot is just a little larger than the average city lot. Is elevated, lies well and has an alley in the rear. Taken all in all the lot, the location, the home and the price, which is very reasonable, would make this home appeal to you if you are in the market for a high-class home.

MYRTLE STREET BUNGALOW

Myrtle street is one of Atlanta's best bungalow streets. It is built up principally of bungalows that are individual and that have been built for homes that are not for sale. When one of these places is put on the market they usually sell right away.

We offer one of the prettiest, up-to-date, 9-room houses on the street. The lot lies well and has plenty of shade trees.

Size, 60x150 feet to an alley. Price, $8,500; reasonable terms.

CAPITOL AVENUE BARGAINS

We offer a home bargain at No. 395 Capitol avenue.

This is a modern 10-room home on lot 50x200 feet and is on one of the most prominent south side streets. This place should meet all of the requirements that could be possibly wanted by any one in location, accessibility and price. The price is one that should appeal to the home-seeker of moderate means who has a desire for a large, up-to-date home on a prominent street.

Price, $6,000, assume $3,000 loan, $500 cash, and balance to suit purchaser.

WEST END PARK HOMES

One of the most desirable streets in West End Park, a little over a block from the car line, on lot 55x185 feet, we offer an unusually nice stone front, 7-room bungalow.

This home is in an ideal residence section. All homes in this park are protected by certain building restrictions, which assures you always of desirable homes and neighbors. The surrounding homes are individual and add to the attractiveness of this beautiful residence park.

We have a price of $7,000 on No. 26 South Gordon street; reasonable terms.

INMAN PARK HOME

On the corner of Morcland and Alta avenues, on lot 50x180 feet to a 10-foot alley, we offer a modern 7-room home. This place was built for a home and has all of the up-to-date ideas worked out that would naturally go with the modern individual home.

This place has servant's room, garage, hardwood floors, furnace heat and is absolutely complete in every detail. Price, $6,000, assume $2,500 loan, $1,000 cash and balance to suit purchaser.

NO. 219 EAST AVENUE $3,500

On East avenue we offer a brand-new 6-room cottage on lot 54x154 feet. This home is modern in all respects and is located one block from the Highland avenue car line and within two blocks of the new city school. Lot is elevated, giving a pretty view of the surrounding country, which will always be permanent.

A very small cash payment is all that is required to get this up-to-date home, and balance can be arranged just like rent, or any way that will suit the purchaser.

EAST LAKE HOME

On corner lot 100x200 feet overlooking the club ground we offer a new 8-room, two-story home. The owner built for a home and expected to occupy it permanently, but for business reasons desires to sell at once, and wants an offer.

Make us an offer, regardless of what it is and we will submit it. An opportunity is offered here to get a nice home on car line at your own price.

NO. 209 LAWTON ST.

On one of West End's most desirable streets, we offer a modern, 7-room bungalow on lot 53x160 feet.

This bungalow is a well-built 6-room home, has all conveniences, including steam heat.

Price, $4,500; reasonable terms.

NO. 268 LAWTON ST.

Just off of Gordon street on the prettiest part of Lawton street we offer a modern 6-room home on lot 50x150 feet. This home has all modern conveniences, is very desirable, and is a bargain at $5,000; reasonable terms.

STORE AND HOME In Good Retail Section

We offer three good stores in section where retail trade is good, each store having its own independent business.

In connection with these stores is a well-built 5-room home. These places can be had at reasonable prices and at reasonable terms. We offer an opportunity to get a good home and place of business with a good trade already worked.

If you are interested in this sort of proposition we will be glad to show you the following:

Broyles street, store and home on corner lot 48x150 feet.

Fraser street, store and home on lot 38x140 feet.

Woodward avenue, store and home, on corner lot 39x92 feet.

THERE WILL BE AN UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND FOR CAREY PARK LOTS TOMORROW

CAREY PARK LOTS go on sale tomorrow (Monday) morning at 9 o'clock, at the Germania Savings Bank, No. 2 Whitehall street.

The price of the first fifty lots—any choice from the plat—only $200 each. The terms, only one dollar cash on each lot, and one dollar a week, until paid for, without interest or taxes.

The second fifty lots will be sold for $225 each, the third fifty at $250 each, and so on until the four hundred lots have been sold. We shall sell the last fifty lots in the plat for $400 each, or just a 100 per cent advance over the opening price Monday morning.

Never before in the history of Atlanta has such interest been created by any real estate offering. Never before has such an opportunity been given investors of surplus savings to create, on never-feel-it-terms, an Atlanta real estate investment that promises so much profit.

Take the River Car line today and see Carey Park. You can walk to any point in Carey Park in five to eight minutes from the electric car line.

REMEMBER—The sale begins Monday morning at 9 o'clock at the Germania Savings Bank. You come to the bank, first door on the Whitehall street side of the Peachtree Viaduct, No. 2 Whitehall street.

Be one of the first fifty and get in at the opening price of $200. Every white person should take advantage of this opportunity. Breadwinners will find it Atlanta's greatest opportunity to put surplus savings to work; home-builders will find Carey Park the ideal location, up where the sun shines in winter and the cool breezes blow in summer; parents should buy for their children—it will be an investment acquired without sacrifice that will be worth double the cost price in a reasonably short time—perhaps a great deal more. Young men and young women should invest in one or more of Carey Park lots. They will double every dollar invested. It is an opportunity that appeals to every person who desires to make money in Atlanta suburban real estate.

WHY CAREY PARK IS THE INVESTORS' OPPORTUNITY

It is the center of Atlanta's greatest suburban street car and road developments, with a 5 cents car fare.

It is high, commanding, and one of the most beautiful spots around Atlanta.

It is owned in fee simple by Mr. John Carey and his son, Hon. Dan Carey, Park Commissioner, who are determined to make it one of Atlanta's most popular suburbs.

The main avenue through the property is to be cherted, another street car line is to approach it on the south, and two roads in the East Side are to be graded for chert.

It is just West, and almost adjoining the magnificent property known as "Fortified Hills," on which nearly a million dollars have been spent for development work. And as much more will be spent.

There are a number of handsome cottages already built in Carey Park, and we will let you have the money to build to suit you. You can pay it back like rent.

CAREY PARK, at the opening prices and terms, is the real estate sensation of Atlanta. Don't neglect the opportunity.

Better Credit System for Farmers.

(John Lee Coulter in The Progressive Farmer.)

One reason why farmers in the south do not borrow more money at the present time is because of the difficulty in securing satisfactory abstracts of title. Another is because the farmers in the south have demanded in the past a very small amount of money or credit per farm. Still another reason is that only a small percentage of the farmers are at the present time in the market to secure loans. Let us assume that there are one hundred farmers under consideration in a given community. Forty-three of these are tenants or managers and therefore are not in the market; of the fifty-seven remaining, only ten are in the market for loans of this kind and the average amount of money or credit desired is only a little more than $500. People who have money to loan do not flock to such communities. If a larger percentage of farmers were in the market looking for money, it would be very easy to secure it.

The first demand is for an improved land mortgage system. If farmers could secure smaller amounts of money for shorter terms at lower interest rates with land as security, they would more rapidly drain the wet places, remove the stumps, carry away the stones, clear away the brush and bring into bearing many acres of land now in farms but unimproved. This is the first and most pressing problem. But lower rates of interest cannot be expected until land titles have been perfected and land surveys have definitely established absolute boundaries.

It will be necessary first to thoroughly establish present titles and boundaries; this can best be done by passing laws for all the states providing for a modern or twentieth century method of land title registration. I suggest a system modeled after the Torrens system which has been tried and tested for many decades in the various Australian and Canadian provinces and different European countries, and to some extent by American states and which has been accepted by the national government for the Philippine islands.

But it is even more important that the farmers be placed in a position so that they may borrow smaller amounts of money for more convenient periods of time with land as security. The present mortgage system is used almost entirely by established farmers who desire to buy more land or by young farmers who wish to buy their first piece of land and have only a small amount with which to make first payment. In order to secure smaller amounts of money for shorter periods, it would be advantageous for farmers to form land mortgage associations. Mortgage companies composed of people who had money to lend would immediately be formed to supply the new demand.

There are in the United States more than two million farms operated by tenants. Tenant farmers shift from farm to farm and are the poorest farmers in the land. They are the land robbers par excellence. Legislation is necessary in order that a system of land loans may be evolved by which tenants may buy the farms and by a process of amortization gradually pay for them. Many model laws can be pointed to. The postal savings funds might be brought into use at this point.

Now Is the Time to Prevent or Get Rid of Cotton Anthracnose.

(H. R. Fulton, in The Progressive Farmer.)

There has been an increased number of complaints this season about cotton anthracnose. This is partly because frequent showers have favored in many places the development of the disease, and partly because recurring season for infected seed to be planted in new places. These complaints are practically all from people who have the trouble for the first time; and in cotton planted from seed sown elsewhere.

Scores of such cases furnish strong circumstantial evidence that cotton seeds carry the infection and are the means of introducing this destructive disease into new territory each year, as well as of perpetuating it where already introduced. This is backed up by the absolute proof of laboratory and field experiments. It has also been thoroughly proven that seed entirely safe for planting may be obtained from a moderately infected field, if picked from selected stalks that have no infected bolls on them and stand a few feet away from other affected plants. As an extra precaution such seed should be ginned with well-cleaned machinery. It should be planted on land where cotton has not been grown the previous year, or otherwise where the stalks have been plowed under in the fall.

Of course, seasonal conditions influence the amount of the disease, and with slight seed infection there may be little damage in drier seasons. But to plant infected cotton seed is taking an unwarranted risk always. No one should buy seed for planting without being reliably assured of its freedom from this disease. No one should allow the disease to persist on his place when the seed selection method opens the way for eliminating it. In many places growers are just beginning to have trouble with this disease. Now is the time to get rid of it.

Rat-Proof Corn Crib.

(W. F. Massey, in The Progressive Farmer.)

A reader asks: "How shall I make a corn crib that will be rat-proof?"

Set it on concrete pillars three feet or more high, and all around level with the floor put a flashing of roofing tin, projecting ten inches. Sheathe under the floor joists, and fill in between the joists with small water-washed gravel, and floor above that. Rats cannot cut through round gravel. The steps must be hinged at top and have a pulley to hoist them out of the way when not in use. Make the crib away from other buildings.

I noticed several years ago that I had smut in my oats which increased annually. Last fall, before sowing, I got a large tub and made a strong solution of bluestone water, using about pound to 15 bushels of oats, and as soon as I got them thoroughly wet I took them out and sowed them by hand, and made a fine crop free from smut, weighing 38 pounds to the bushel. One of my neighbor's oats were in the same condition. I advised him to treat his before sowing, but he got in a hurry and sowed them and the result was that almost one-fourth was smut.—J. Jordan Mason, in The Progressive Farmer.

Cotton seed hulls may prove as cheap a feed for cattle as any of the hays, if available at from $5 to $7 a ton; but they are little, if any, better than corn stover, and certainly no better than shredded stover, which any farmer can have at less cost than hulls are sold for.—The Progressive Farmer.

New Fast Mail Exchange.

An automatic mail exchange system, to take the place of the old catcher arm used on mail cars to pick up mail sacks while going through stations at high speed, has recently been invented and tested in various parts of the country. It not only picks up any number of the largest mail sacks without damaging their contents, but deposits other bags gently in a trough beside the track. The entire operation is automatic and requires no attention from the mail clerks in the car. With this mail exchange system a train could run from New York to San Francisco without a stop except for coal and water and the postal cars could be loaded and unloaded at every station without the mail clerks going near the doors. Pictures of the apparatus appear in the November Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Largest Searchlight in Europe.

The French army has as a part of its latest equipment the most powerful searchlight in Europe, designed particularly for military work. It is carried on an especially built military automobile and receives its current from a dynamo run by the car's engine. To make possible the use of the searchlight in places where the automobile cannot go, the huge projector is mounted on a four-wheel truck, with a portable skid and winches and a long cable to carry current from the dynamo. All its controlling devices are electrical so that the operator can manipulate it from his seat in the car. Pictures of the searchlight appear in the November Popular Mechanics Magazine.

LOTS! LOTS! LOTS!

REMEMBER that the wise buyer purchases where improvements have been made and the property is reached by street car. The unwise buyer listens to any Tom, Dick and Harry who comes along (who knows nothing of what is actually going to be done in the way of permanent improvements), and the result is they get "stuck" with an undesirable or unsalable lot. Moral: Buy from those who have "the goods" and know where improvements are to be made. A word to the wise should be sufficient. Bear in mind that we have as beautiful, desirable and money making lots—ranging in price from $350 up—as can be found anywhere about Atlanta.

DRUID HILLS

WE OFFER the best bargain in Druid Hills—it's a beautiful lot close to street car lines and 33 1-3 per cent below its value. It has 145 feet frontage. Ask us about it.

ACREAGE

90 ACRES on north side, right where "great doings" are going on.

175 ACRES right in the path of progress and advancement. This is a "hummer." The price is only $75 per acre and the tract is beautifully wooded. There is 100 per cent profit at least in this for some one.

100 ACRES directly on the Stone Mountain car line. Price only $125 per acre. This is a "cinch" as a money maker.

HOMES

WE HAVE as desirable homes for sale as can be found in or about Atlanta. It does not make any difference how humble or how grand a home you want—a cottage or a palace—we will be pleased to confer with you. HIS HOBBY

By Elsie Endicott.

Mrs. Madison looked forlornly at her sister as Barbara entered the room.

"What is the matter, Alice?" asked Barbara quickly.

"Barker hasn't sent the roses for the table tonight."

"Well, it is only 5 o'clock—perhaps if you call him on the telephone—"

"My dear," Mrs. Madison spoke rather petulantly, "I've called and called and the only reply I can get is, 'They do not answer.'"

"There is only one thing to do, then," said Barbara with her customary decision: "I will go up and dress, and if the roses are not here by that time I will go after them myself."

"You will get so mussy," sighed Mrs. Madison. "But it seems the only way. I will have Clark get the runabout around. I would send him only he is so stupid—doesn't know the country around here."

"He has been in Westlawn two days," excused Barbara, "I've only been here a day and a half myself, but I believe I have covered every square inch of ground in the county."

"Well, hurry along—and if you bring my roses on time I promise to send you in with Forbes Baker, although I was saving him for myself."

"Don't bother about any reward, Allie. Let me see, when was your order?"

"Two dozen American Beauties He has plenty for he told me so yesterday when I ordered them."

The runabout slid noiselessly down the incline to the smooth road that wandered here and there among the beautiful summer homes perched on the green hills of Westlawn.

"Turn to the left," murmured Barbara when she reached the foot of the hill.

The left-hand road wound around a wooden knoll dropping down to the river On one side was the sloping descent to Ripple river, and the other was a blank stone wall inclosing acres of field and meadow and woodland.

"First gate on the left," Barbara reminded herself of her sister's last instructions, and presently she turned in between two rustic pillars draped in Virginia creepers

A laborer trudging his homeward way stepped out of the path of the car.

"Is this Barker's?" asked Barbara pleasantly.

"Yah," nodded the man carelessly, and went on.

"Barker has taste," commented Barbara as she whirled up the driveway under drooping elms.

One arm of the drive swept around to the front entrance of a long gray-shingled, old-fashioned house, half hidden under Virginia creepers and honeysuckles.

Near the path that bordered the garden was a huge wooden tub which held a magnificent American Beauty rosebush. Barbara paused before it with a little cry of delight Perfection of form, color and texture of leaf, together with its crown of twenty beautiful roses, made it worthy of a prize exhibition.

Time was flying and Alice was waiting for her roses. Barbara hammered at the green house door, but the door was locked. She sped over the quiet old gray house and knocked at the closed kitchen door. There came no response.

Back she flew to the rose garden, picking up a pair of shears from a bench in passing.

A search of the garden showed that the tub contained the only American Beauty rose bush. A hurried peep into the different hothouses merely disclosed long rows of empty benches.

"Well, here goes," said Barbara, recklessly, and she carefully snipped the twenty roses from the big tree, feeling a pang of remorse as she looked at its denuded branches.

"I wish people wouldn't cut flowers," she murmured, conscience-stricken as she entered the car with her fragrant burden. "Now, if Alice had only ordered the whole tree transported to the dining room and let us gaze upon it—well—it's too late now!"

As she turned out of the avenue into the road Barbara heard a shout behind. She turned and saw a man running from the veranda of the house.

"Stop!" he called authoritatively.

"You are too late, Mr. Barker," smiled Barbara saucily to herself, and the little car darted forward and was soon out of sight around the bend of the road.

Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Madison embraced her sister and the huge bunch of roses in an ecstatic hug.

"You are just in time—all here except Mr. Baker. He is always late, but he is such a dear we don't mind.

Flushed and lovely, Barbara entered the drawing room just as Haksuo announced that dinner was served. At the same moment a cool-looking dark-eyed young man was introduced as Forbes Baker.

It was not until they sat at table that Barbara stole a glance at the man who had taken her in. His eyes, blazing with wrath, were fixed on the great cut glass vase of roses. His face was white and Barbara noted with an odd tremor of her pulses that his hand was shaking as he raised his napkin to his lips.

A man addressed him across the table in gay reproof.

"Don't glare at Mrs. Madison's roses that way, Forbes, of course we all know you are eaten up with jealousy because they are bigger and handsomer thany anything you can produce on your place."

Forbes Baker smiled grimly.

"How about your wonderful tree, Forbes?" asked Mrs. Madison, "It is ready for the exhibit? We are all dying to see it with its twenty magnificent blooms—Forbes has talked of nothing else for weeks—roses are his hobby," smiled Alice at her sister.

But Barbara sat in a frozen silence. A great fear had come over her. The meal seemed hours long.

Forbes Baker uttered a few commonplaces but it was evident that his mind was on other matters. Barbara was glad that she did not have to talk.

She knew Mrs. Madison would scold her afterwards for her stupidity—but she didn't care—nothing mattered any more. She had committed a crime—a theft. She had stolen Mr. Baker's prize roses from his bush. It was her own fault—to take it for granted that that lovely old place was Barker's. She knew that Barker was a "gentleman-florist," and she had not been surprised at the surroundings.

Forbes Baker found her in the garden, wandering drearily among the paths. They came face to face and Baker tossed away his cigar and turned to walk beside her

Before his lips could form a sentence regarding the beauty of the dusky, moonlit garden, Barbara had turned to him with outstretched hands and beautiful pleading face

"I'm so sorry—O, so sorry," she said shakily.

"Sorry?" he asked a little vaguely.

"About your roses—you—you—recognized them?"

"Yes. Then it was you—I saw someone in a motor car leaving my place—then you took them?"

There was carefully suppressed anger in his tone, but there was wonderment in the blue eyes fixed on Barbara's tearful face.

"Why did you take them?" he asked gently.

Barbara told him frankly; related the plight of her sister over the delinquency of the faithless Barker—told of her own hurried search for the "gentleman-florist"—of the stolid laborer who had undoubtedly misunderstood her inquiry—and in a sudden flood of shamed tears she told how she had cut the twenty beautiful blooms from the tree.

"You should have turned to the right at the foot of the hill and Barker's place is the first place on the left. It is not worth one tear from your eyes, Miss Ware. I'm afraid I've acted like a bear over the whole thing. That's the worst of having a hobby—one becomes such a fool over it. Please—please—there, that's better," he smiled down at her with tender eyes.

Barbara smiled wanly.

"But you will be so disappointed at not exhibiting the tree," she said forlornly. "You can never grow just such another splendid bush."

"Never mind—I'm rather thinking of cultivating another variety of roses," said Forbes gravely, and something in his eyes brought wave after wave of lovely color to Barbara's cheeks until she looked like a fragrant pink rose herself.

Day of Illicit Distiller Who Once Flourished in Georgia Passing; John Ingram, Typical "Blockader," Tells of "Revenuers'" Coming

JOHN INGRAM, EX-MOONSHINER.

'I can't see why it ain't just as right for a man to make his meal into whisky as it is for him to have it baked into pones."

"Things are looking up in the mountains and the best thing of it is the passing of old blockaders just like me."

"For awhile Uncle Sam forgot to provide us with schools, decent roads and the common things of life, so we figured we didn't owe him much."

By Maxwell Harvey Swain.

The day of the illicit distiller is passing. Where once thrived this hazardous yet profitable business, there is now scarce a trace.

The north section of Georgia, bordering the Carolina line, has in the past been a most prolific producer of "corn licker." Today, following the systematic work of the federal revenue officers an illicit still is all but a curiosity. The process of eliminating the "blockader" in his Georgia lair has been slow but sure. The records of the United States court for this district show fewer and fewer cases each year brought against the mountain men who in former years believed that they had all but Divine right to make their corn into whisky the same as the valley man made his corn into meal.

The philosophy of the mountain distiller touching upon his vested rights in the manufacture of his corn into drinkables or eatables is not hard to digest. In fact it has sometimes been recognized as logic in the Georgia courts.

Made Necessary by Law.

One prominent revenue officer who has been in the internal secret service in this state for years is authority for the declaration that half the cases made against "moonshiners"—so-called—were made necessary by federal law not by the law of common sense. This authority declares that in days past many a man has been sent to prison for an act which in his heart he could not brand as wrong when the act was that of distilling his own whisky.

Take for example the life history of John Ingram, typical mountaineer, typical "blockader," typical American—if you please.

This simple, Godly soul, filled with the lure of life as handed down through generation after generation of fighting men who hail from the time when King Arthur's knights rode bold, paints the passing of the moonshiner in the dark tones of one putting on life's canvas the picture of dead but glorious history of his race. Without the slurring overtones of his high pitched voice without the peculiar phrasing of his sentences—given to him from his mother who in turn learned the queer words of her mother—old John Ingram's epigrammatic farewell to the "blockader" is told here as best it can be translated.

"My folk were all blockaders ever since I can remember. My paw had two brothers. Both dead now, but they were in a 'still' with paw for so many years that time don't taken no reckoning of it, I guess.

"Paw and my two uncles held that they was in legal trade. They never were bothered by revenuers nor no one come prying into their affairs at all. They went right on year in and year out attending to their 'still,' running off good enough whisky regularly and selling it to valley men who came through in wagons and took the stuff off in the railroad.

"Summers, Paw and my two uncles made a little crop of corn—just enough to keep the 'still" in meal. The mill down at the road forks just below Blairsville, where I came from, ground meal for all of our neighbors and the old miller knew what the meal was for. It was general knowledge amongst us mountain folks made ou. living out of blockading.

"When I was a right peart spit of a lad, I first saw the revenuers at work as I can remember. One night I was just going from our cabin to the well to draw some water. I remember maw told me to bring it in the big, old wooden bucket we had instead of the smaller one she used to keep the spring water in. The moon was high that night and as I got near the well which was about fifty yards from the house on a bee-line, I saw two fellows standing near the worm fence which surrounded our place.

"I hollered, which is mountain fashion of welcoming folks at night, but they didn't answer. Instead both of them took to their hegls and made out. Now, that ain't the way folks act in the hills and I went back into th house and told maw.

Two Men With Derringers.

"Paw got back from the settlement about moon down and I told him what I had seen. He couldn't make head or tail of it. Long about 4 o'clock in the morning—first candlelight time—I was awakened by a knock on the door of our cabin and there stood two men, with short derringer pistols in their hands.

"One of them yanked me outside and asked if my paw was at home. Before I could answer there was paw. He asked the men who and what they were and they displayed badges of some sort and said they were federal officers. They told paw he was under arrest for making and selling contraband whisky against the statute provided by the federal laws of the United States.

"Paw said he guessed it was all right and then went back into the cabin saying he wanted to get his coat before he started down the mountain with them. Mind you that was the first time in probably fifteen years that anyone had ever molested my paw and my uncles, much less sought their arrest.

"Well, paw took a long time in putting on his coat. In fact, when the revenuers got tired waiting they went inside the cabin to hustle paw up, but paw was gone. The back door showed the way he had gone and how.

Revenuers Were Sore.

"Them revenuers was pretty sore in spots for awhile and wanted to hold me as a witness, but maw she begged off for me but I was told to be ready to go down the mountain at any time as a witness—if paw was caught.

"I remember that next fortnight well. Paw had to 'hide out'—as we call it in the mountains. We carried him supplies along the little used trails and kept him in touch with things until the revenuers left the hills. Then paw and my uncles both knowing they were sort of marked men, kept right on with the 'still' work, but they never again tried to do much more than make enough for their own and their neighbors' use.

"I started moonshining when I was about sixteen years old, helping paw and Uncle Ben and Uncle Bill. They used to make me 'watch pot,' as they call it, and keep the worm-water cool. I'd have to carry water from the spring and pour it over the coils of the copper worm about every fifteen minutes. It was hot and tiresome work but I learned the craft well and got my schooling from practical sources.

"I blockaded for years. Last winter I gave it up for good and all when the revenuers got me. I used to make $15 a day at it, while I was working. But having to hide out that way made the work just sort of 'off and on,' so that my earnings were kind of like a gambler's. When I worked I made good money, but my sort of work was scarce.

More Money at 75 Cents.

"You can believe it or not, but I have mare more money at 75 cents a day this last summer than I made in two whole years before trying to beat out the federal officers.

"My trial is coming up here on October 15. I'm going to plead guilty to making, as I have quit it for good and all. I've got a little crop in up there at Blairsville, which is 25 miles from a railroad, and I'm going to harvest that crop and next winter keep my children in school like they ought to be.

"Summing it up—by and large—they ain't no use in blockading these days. I can't yet see why it ain't just as right for a man to make his corn meal into whisky as it is for him to have it baked into pones, but that ain't here or there. What is most surprising is to see mountain folks, raised, generation after generation, to the trade of blockading, giving up to the law as laid down by the revenuers.

"I ugess its best that way, especially since these later days when the state and the government is commencing to know we are alive. For so long they forgot to provide us with schools, decent roads and the common things of life that we didn't figure we owed Uncle Samuel much. However, things are looking up in the mountains and the best sign of that is the passing of old blockaders, just like me."

Horse Gives for Own Shoes.

Gilbert A. Penney, of Quogue, turned his favorite horse, Big Ben, out to pasture last summer, went off cruising in his power boat and forgot until a few days ago that he had pulled his horse's shoes off before turning him out to graze, and that it was time to have him reshod for the winter. So he was surprised when Timothy Skidmore, the village blacksmith at Good Ground, L. I., several miles away, called him up on the telephone.

"Your horse's shod and s all ready for you," said Skidmore.

"What are you talking about?" demanded Penney.

Why, Ben, your horse, walked in here today and got in line with the other horses being shod. I thought it was funny that nobody was with him, but I've got him all shod."

Then it developed, according to official affidavits, that Big Ben escaped from his pasture and, deciding it was time for his new winter shoes, trudged to Good Ground and walked into the blacksmith shop.

Need of Publicity.

(From Electrical Railway Journal)

Publicity is a matter which has been woefully neglected by the railway men in the past. Most of them now, we believe, realize the necessity for it, although all do not understand the best methods by which it may be secured. Nevertheless, it is quite essential to make people understand one's position on a public question if the arguments are to receive any attention.

At the present time we believe that both the authorities and the public realize that there is much to be said on the railroad side of the case. They are willing to listen. They want to know what the railroads have to say in defense of their general position and what the companies offer as a practical solution for the difficulties of which they complain. Neglect of this opportunity will be interrupted as a confession of weakness or an absence of any definite program.

Tariff and Currency.

(Editorial in The October National Monthly.)

It is indeed a splendid demonstration of the harmony and the energetic co-operation of all branches of the co-operatic government at Washington, that the same day which saw the senate, with tariff bill adopted by the senate, with tariff bill adopted by the currency nessed the reporting of the tariff bill to the house. Reform of the tariff and the currency represent the most profound questions before the country. Each of these bills is in fact many measures under a single classification, for every schedule of the tariff, and every clause of the currency bill, stands for a separate question, requiring to be examined and passed upon by the house and also in its relations to other parts of the legislation.

Expectation that the senate would pass the democratic tariff revision bill early in September, was fulfilled on the 9th of that month, when the Underwood-Simmons measure was ratified by the senate by a vote of 44 to 37. Now sanctioned by both houses of congress, the tariff legislation is going through the necessary proceeding prior to its submission to the president for his signature, namely action of the house and senate conferences, which will adjust such differences as appear between the schedules as they left the house and as modified by the senate. This will not be a difficult task. It is believed it can be completed in a few days at the outside.

REVIEWS OF THE WEEK IN AMERICAN MARKETS

Cotton.

New Orleans, October 18.—This week the cotton market saw what appeared to be the finish of the wide reaction after the long continued advance of the early fall and the beginning of a new bull movement. At the end of the week it was rumored that prominent local traders had left for New York and this was taken to be significant in connection with developments concerning the spot position in the future market.

The net results of the week were an advance of 21 to 25 points. The high prices were made on Friday and the low prices on Wednesday. At the highest the trading months were 33 to 37 points over last week's close; at the lowest they were 24 to 27 points under. The range was 58 to 63 points.

Up to the middle of the week the reaction downward was still on, but a change for the worse in weather conditions gave the bulls the upper hand. Buying of a strong character made its appearance and was supplemented by rather general short covering. Those who took the long side were quick to realize profits, and these selling for this purpose checked upward movements. The close of the week, however, was with a very good tone in spite of the unfavorable attitude of the English market.

After the middle of the week considerable rain was reported over the belt and the precipitation was considered to have done much damage. Bears said no great weather damage resulted because of the comparatively high temperatures prevailing. Different sections of the belt, however, sent in pessimistic telegrams, the worst reports coming from Texas, and they led to a further sharp pairing down of the estimates of the yield in that state.

Spot men claimed further damage to grade and reports to spot people made it evident that grade damage has been so great this fall as to become a serious feature of the situation The presence of many Texas buyers in Georgia territory was said to be solely due to grade damage in Texas and not to any real scarcity of cotton in that state. Bears are of the opinion that this damage is not a factor that will make for higher prices, but bulls argue that the course of prices in the end will be based on the supply of spinnable cotton available and nothing else.

In the spot department, prices made no net change, middling closing at 13 9-16, against 13 9-16 last week and 13 3-4 this week last year. Sales on the spot amounted to 5,352 bales, against 1,799 last week and 4,015 this week last year. Sales to arrive amounted to 8,430, bales against 7,645 and 10,240.

Financial.

New York, October 18.—It was only after a further recession of prices that the stock market this week showed signs of sufficient absorptive power to resist effectively the force of depression. The contraction of loans shown in the bank statement indicated that a release of credits had accompanied the stock market liquidation. This was in spite of the fact that a considerable portion of the liquidation was from foreign sources.

The necessity of securing resources to meet new commitments in foreign markets apparently was the cause of this liquidation. The field of these new commitments abroad was indicated by the news of the practical failure of a number of colonial loans in London, the violent slump in the new Brazilian issue, and by the preparations for a coming government loan in Paris, where also the pressure of financing the Balkan indebtedness is yet to be met. The troubles in Mexico added to the depression on foreign markets.

That new financing in the New York market must also some time be provided for was intimated by one or two actual new bond issues and by reports of comprehensive plans for several railroad systems.

The discouraging views of the outlook usual in a period of declining prices were prevalent and the reasons assigned for these views did not differ materially from those heard for some time past. Rumor based on no tangible developments had it that the administration at Washington was planning extensive legislation on anti-trust lines. Attention was directed to this topic by the appearance of railroad annual reports containing references to the effects on earnings of radical laws passed by state legislatures. There was active discussion of the government's suit to divorce the Central Pacific from the Southern Pacific.

Assertions made in some of the public criticisms of the Glass-Owen currency bill had an unsettling influence on the sentiments of operators in securities, though the operators derived some comfort from unofficial reports that the senate committee now considering the bill would make important changes in it.

Industrials were hurt by reports of falling off in demand for steel products, concessions in prices and some reduction of working forces. Diminishing prospects for the cotton crop were a factor in shaping opinions over the business prospect, though the mercantile agencies reported greater activity in business than a year ago.

Cotton Goods.

New York, October 18.—More confidence in the higher values of cotton goods was shown at the end of the week, following the recovery of cotton prices on the exchanges. Buyers who were hesitating are resuming their inquiries and purchases. The fundamental influence in the market for the time being is the scant supply of goods for quick distribution, in mill warehouses and in jobbers' hands. Some of the largest producing concerns are carrying the lightest stocks in years at this period of the fall, and production is greatly hampered by labor conditions and shorter hours. Napped cottons, which were opened a short time ago for the manufacturing trades at prices ranging from 1 cent to 2 cents a yard higher than last year, are selling steadily, and some of the best-known southern lines of 36-inch goods have been sold up and withdrawn. Bleached cottons continue very firm. Brown cottons and gray goods had eased somewhat when cotton declined, but recovery has nearly been complete. Staple duck is quoted at 25 1-2 cents per pound, an advance having been made during the week. Fancy cottons are in steady request on duplicate small orders for spring. Jobbers are still finding it difficult to secure satisfactory deliveries of sheets and pillow cases, towelings and other staples. Underwear and hosiery are firm. Yarns were quiet a week ago, but the inquiry at the end of the week was more general. Prices on cotton goods range as follows:

Print cloths, 28-inch, 64x64s, 4c; 64x60s, 3 7-8c; 38 1-2-inch, 64x68s, 5 5-8c and 5 3-4c; standard southern sheetings, 8 1-4c; denims, 9-ounce, 14 1-2c; tickings, 8-ounce, 14c; staple standard prints, 5 1-4c; staple ginghams, 6 1-2c; dress ginghams, 9 3-4c.

Iron and Steel.

New York, October 18.—The steel mills further reduced output this week. The United States Steel corporation is producing steel ingots at 89 per cent of capacity and has about 83 per cent of its blast furnace capacity in commission. Keener competition for new orders among the smaller mills is responsible for further declines in steel products, plates and shapes and even bars are less well sustained. Store prices of bars, plates and shapes at Chicago have been reduced on the heels of the decline of $1 to $2 per ton at New York ten days ago.

Small returns made by the Steel Corporation show that business booked in September averaged 33,750 tons per day. The probability is that the next two weeks will be more satisfactory, as the railroads are releasing larger orders for equipment and in turn the car builders and locomotive works are placing larger orders for plates and shapes with the mills.

The Great Northern has placed some additional rail orders with independent manufacturers. The New York, Chicago and St. Paul had ordered 5,000 tons. Export orders included 3,000 for Havana, 3,500 for Tokio and 2,000 for Buenos Aires.

Car orders increased 2,000 for the Chicago and Northwestern, 500 for the Burlington and 100 for the Missouri Pacific.

Steel building and bridge work was more active. Orders for only 18,000 tons were closed and bids were submitted on 45,000 additional. The American Bridge company is to build 20 more steel barges for the American Steel and Wire company, calling for 3,000 tons steel plates and sheets.

It is well to remember winter's approach, and before cold weather there is usually the fall rains. The wise poultryman will not be contented with the house just large enough for roosting and nesting. At all seasons, but especially when it rains, there should be a scratching shed—just an extension of the house—same size or a little longer—and the floor of this well covered with straw, hay, leaves, any thoroughly dry litter, 4 to 6 inches deep, and the grain feed for morning can be scattered in this at night, and rains won't affect it.—The Progressive Farmer.

Money Rates Are Lower This Fall Than Last Year

New York, October 18.—The stock market showed signs of weakness during the early part of the week just closing, but later there was a small recovery, with short covering supplying most of the support. At the low point of the week, which was reached early Wednesday, before the recovery that day, prices were close to a $2 a share average below the low point of the previous week. Public interest has been at a minimum, even with the better sentiment shown among professional traders. The principal cause of their holding off is said to be fear that the government was going to bring a large number of adverse actions against corporations, while new legislation proposed or rumored is greatly feared.

The weakness of securities abroad and the sudden strain that has been thrown on the English financial markets has not been without influence here, especially as a number of English firms and one American one barely weathered the mid-October settlements in London. The firmer copper metal market resulted in a recovery of some of the losses of copper company stocks, while the extreme declines in Steel common and other steel stocks created a short interest which was readily driven to cover when better steel news was spread. It was stated by traders that if there had been a reasonable amount of outside support, a good rally should have been seen during the last few days, but professional traders alone cannot make a bull market. Southern and Union Pacific stocks have been the weakest features of the market recently, but both shared the recovery.

As a whole, the market has been a great puzzle to a number of its observers, principally because its weakness was absolutely unexplained from many points of view and in the face of many favorable factors. Many shares were weak which ought to have been strong, while many were fairly steady regarding which there have been unfavorable developments. The short covering, too, came at a time when there was absolutely no bull trading trying to force such a turn. The shorts could still be in control for all the pressure that was brought on them.

Money rates are higher as a result of continued withdrawals of funds for crop-moving purposes, but last year's rates at this time were considerably above what they are now. One reason for the lower rates this fall is that the demand was not as great, owing to the smaller crops than a year ago, while the loans of $50,000,000 to the country banks by the treasury, of which a large part has already been placed, relieved part of the strain. Call money went to around 4 per cent, although easing from that point later. Long-term rates are relatively lower than for call, but this is because of lack of demand. Foreign exchange rates still are nearly low enough to allow importations of gold, but foreign banks and bankers have taken steps to prevent the withdrawal of the yellow metal for this country. The banks here are in fair shape to weather ordinary demands for funds without being forced to call on Europe for gold. As compared with a year ago, loans, deposits and cash reserves of New York banks are about unchanged, but the surplus reserve at the present time is several million dollars below the total shown at this approximate date in 1912.

Railroads to Buy More Cars.

The report of the idle car surplus for October 15, which will be published in a week or so by the American Railway association, is expected to reveal a shrinkage to a figure under 1,000 cars, with the possibility that there will be a deficiency of cars rather than a surplus shown. The great rush for cars which started in September resulted in a falling off in the surplus from 40,159 on September 15 to only 10,374 surplus on October 1. While it is not expected that there will be as great a net shortage as last year, with 51,169 deficiency on November 1, it is expected that an alarming net shortage is probable, as the movement of grain and cotton crops to market has been unusually heavy, and is apparently increasing, while many cars now in use will not be available for re-use for a week or two at least, and frequently for a longer period, despite efforts of railroads to have them returned as promptly as possible. After last fall's car famine and the prospects of a serious shortage next month, railroads are expected to buy a large number of new cars this year.

The general tendency of railroad reports to show increases in gross earnings, but decreases in net which has been observed in a large majority of the leading reports of earnings in recent months, is due to increasing labor and operating costs, and to the results of various improvements and additions which have been found necessary in recent years with the great expansion in traffic, and which did not figure prominently in operating costs a few years ago. Higher taxes are reported by a large number of roads each year. The reports of 146 railroads operating in this country, as published by the Interstate commerce commission for August, show a gain of $3,000,000 aggregate in gross and a loss of $9,000,000 in net as compared with August, 1912. This means an increase in operating costs of $12,000,000 for the month this year over a year ago. The mileage included in the 146 railroads was 199,039 this year and 196,938 last year, meaning that there was an increase of $2 a mile in gross and a loss of $50 a mile in net for August this year against that for August, 1912. The actual gross of the 146 roads in August, 1913, was $242,028,005, against $239,031,934 last year, or $1,216 per mile against $1,214 per mile. The operating costs this August were $164,292,854, or $823 per mile, against $152,236,325, or $773 per mile, against August, 1912. In net profit and loss the total was $77,736,151, or $391 a mile, against $86,796,609, or $441 a mile. The July figures were about the same. For the two months starting the 1913-14 fiscal year the total gross of these roads for the year was $473,351,719, an increase of $15,420,253, a decrease of $11,000,000, meaning over $25,000,000 higher operating costs than last year for the two months.

Decline in Southern Pacific.

The decline in Southern Pacific stock to new low records for recent years is due to the activities of Attorney General McReynolds in preparing to sue the road to force it to give up its control of the Central Pacific system. Another cause for weakness was the liquidation of large blocks of the stock purchased by Union Pacific shareholders under the recent dissolution. At the low price reached early in the last week, a net loss of several dollars a share from the price at which the shares were given to subscribers under the dissolution was shown, but as bears failed to shake out larger offerings, they covered, and there was a fair recovery.

One of the peculiar things seen in the stock market recently has been the weakness of copper mining company shares. Copper metal prices are high, while the statistical position of the metal is the strongest ever seen. Dividends many of them increased rates above last year, are being earned and maintained, and yet several leading copper issues have been just as weak as the general list, though with these conditions existing such shares should have been at least stationary, if not strong. The most notable weak spot has been in Amalgamated Copper, which has declined heavily. This stock dropped over 10 points in less than a month through a time when a 20-point advance might have been expected, judging by underlying conditions. No reasonable explanation found at present, unless there be something known to insiders and not to the public, is that large holders are liquidating their shares to buy other securities, which are now cheap, yielding larger dividends.

The present year has been the best that mining companies have ever had, as a whole, with the largest dividends ever paid out. In the nine months to September 30 there were dividends of $78,772,652 paid out by 146 mining companies engaged in gold, silver, copper, lead, nickel and other metal mining and refining. This is the largest total ever shown for these companies, and it is an increase of nearly $13,000,000 over the dividends paid by the same in the first nine months of 1912. While many of these companies have been in existence for many years, a few for several score years, in the nine-month period they have paid about 8 per cent of all they have ever disbursed. The total dividends paid by the 146 companies engaged in mining, as shown by records of a mining and engineering publication, are $896,232,195.

To Urge Freight Increase.

The fifty-two eastern railroads which have petitioned the interstate commerce commission for permission to advance their freight rates 5 per cent have appointed legal and accounting committees to prepare their case for the hearings which start in November. Figures covering the whole field of railroad receipts, expenditures and accounts of profits, financing and needs are being prepared showing the railroad status over a period of ten years.

The annual report of the Great Northern railway for the year to June 30 last showed gross income of $78,692,767, the best total ever shown by the system, with an increase of $12,500,000 over the year before. Net, however, was only $3,000,000 larger than the year before, though one of the best totals was shown in the road's history. The net available for dividends was $24,568,314, equal to 11.69 per cent on the $209,990,750 stock as compared with 10.31 per cent the year before. After dividends, appropriations of $5,600,000, there was a surplus of $4,282,168. The balance sheet of the road showed $643,497,852 total assets, reserve funds of $64,323,000, and a profit and loss surplus of $45,143,106.

The Central of Georgia railway reported $13,854,872 gross for the fiscal year to June 30, a decrease of $67,000. There was $1,223,164 available for dividends, with $900,000 preferred dividends paid, while no preferred dividends were paid the year before. There was a surplus after preferred dividends of $323,464, equal to 6.46 per cent on the $5,000,000 common stock. The balance sheet showed $71,846,258 assets and an appropriated surplus of $3,886,511, besides $2,007,427 profit and loss surplus.

The statistical position of copper metal continues unchanged, with sellers having everything their own way, apparently, and with buyers also, on the face of things, at their mercy, and yet prices continue low—that is, below the 17-cent level by a small margin—while that price was realized when conditions were not nearly as strong as now. A further shrinkage in surplus stocks is expected for the current month, for while sales have been small recently, a large part of the October production was sold last month.

The outlook for steel is for better business this month than last. It is expected that unfilled tonnages will cease to move downward, and that there will be small change for this month as compared with last. The principal features of the steel market at the present time is the large volume of rail orders which is being placed. Price shading on leading steel products is reported from all districts.

The large movements of wheat, with the favorable weather, the large increase in visible supply, and the prospects that the crop will be the largest on record when all spring wheat is harvested, have been against values, and during the past week wheat has declined further. Fall seeding operations indicate that the acreage under winter wheat will be about as heavy as last year. One factor in favor of the bull side of wheat has been the large export demand, with exports so far in the fiscal year, started July 1, over 25,000,000 bushels heavier than for the corresponding period last year. The fine weather conditions have been favorable for the movements of corn, and prices for that and oats have worked a little lower recently.

Shrinkage of 100,000 Bales.

While early in the week cotton went further downward than at the close of last week, with all futures but October going under 13 cents, there was a recovery following the government report showing that consumption of cotton was very heavy. This report showed that there had been a shrinkage of 108,000 bales of cotton in the hands of manufacturers during September, but that consumption of 469,873 bales during September was a small increase over August.

As it is known that an increase in consumption is very probable for October, with stocks held by manufacturers so small, it is conceded that there will have to be large purchases by manufacturers. The smaller visible supply than last year and the larger world's takings of American cotton to date have been factors sustaining the market.

The annual report of the Pullman company showed an increase of $2,641,143 gross over the year before for the fiscal year to July 31. The gross was $49,690,891. Surplus after dividends was $1,541,602.

The most important event in the financial world in the past week has been the formal approval of the $61,000,000 New Haven debenture bond issue by the Massachusetts public service commission. A circular has been sent to subscribers calling for the first payment on November 15 of 15 per cent of the total, and of the 65 per cent of the total, on January 15, remaining 35 per cent on January 15.

The Great Western road's annual report showed $14,000,000 gross for its last fiscal year, an increase of $1,200,000, but the surplus available for dividends on the preferred stock was $1,245,938, an increase of $1,060,000 over the previous year. The road's assets total $133,408,236.

The annual report of the Southern railway showed record gross earnings of $68,529,490, an increase of nearly $5,000,000 over the previous year. The balance available for dividends, $4,029,964, was about the same as last year. It was equal to a little over 1 3-3 per cent on the $120,000,000 common stock. The assets of the road total $484,384,306, with a profit and loss surplus of $17,374,558.

COTTON NERVOUS, VERY UNSETTLED

Rumors of Large Private Ginning Returns Chief Cause of Market Being Depressed. Close Was Unchanged.

New York, October 19.—The cotton market was nervous and unsettled today owing to the conflicting influences of an unfavorable weather outlook and rumors of large private ginning returns, closing prices were steady, net unchanged to 3 points lower.

Lower Liverpool cables, reports of larger offerings of actual in the English market and the failure of the early may to show any sign of the predicted frosts in the southwest were considered responsible for an opening decrease of 8 to 9 points. There were a good many overnight selling orders around the ring, but they were executed readily at the initial figures and the market quickly rallied on covering and apprehensions that a high barometer reported in the Pacific northwest would bring threatening temperatures into the belt by the beginning of next week.

Houses with Wall street connections were active buyers on the advance, which carried prices about 1 to 4 points net higher during the middle of the morning. There was also a considerable demand from trade sources and local bulls, but after the requirements of recent sellers had been supplied the market eased off under realizing, rumors of a bearish National Ginners' report and a moderate renewal of local pressure. An easier turn in New Orleans contributed to the reactionary tendency here, but after breaking 7 or 8 points the market steadied slightly on continued covering, last prices being within 5 or 5 points of the best.

A local spot house estimates the ginnig to October 15 at 6,801,699 bales, comparing with its figures of 3,017,297 bales to September 25.

This indicated a ginning of 3,784,000 bales for the period added to the last government report would amount to a total ginning of about 7,000,000 bales so far this season.

New Orleans Cotton.

New Orleans, October 18.—The cotton market had a steady enough undertone today, but fluctuations were nervous within rather narrow limits, owing to conflicting influences. Weather news was with the market, but every bulge brought out heavy realizing sales from the long side just as every break caused fresh buying from long account. Shorts were not much in evidence, although the gossip of the market was that a considerable short interest still existed. While the weather news was unfavorable, it was not bad enough to run shorts to cover.

The opening was steady, 1 point down to 2 points up, compared with the close of yesterday. Liverpool was much lower than expected and called for a decline of several points on this side. December lost 3 points on the call, which was the lowest level reached during the morning. Fresh buying appeared after the call and prices worked upward until they were 3 to 12 points over yesterday's last quotations. This was followed by a break of 10 points on realizing. Another recovery and another break occurred late in the session. The close was steady at a net gain for the day of 3 to 6 points.

The weather map showed considerable rain in the central and eastern sections of the belt and the outlook appeared to be for considerably colder weather and perhaps frost in the western belt over Sunday. Weather conditions were the main bullish influence of the morning, although considerable comment was caused by the rumor that two leading local cotton men had left for New York in connection with bullish operations now under way.

CONDITION OF COTTON REVIEWED BY BULLETIN

The Farmers' Bulletin, issued by the government, has the following about the cotton crop:

"The condition of the cotton crop, September 25, viz., 64.1 per cent of normal, was the lowest condition estimate for that date with one exception (1909) in the past ten years. It is 6.1 points, that is, from 74.7 per cent of normal August 25 (1903-12) to 68.6 per cent of normal September 25 (1903-12). Thus the condition, which was 91.3 per cent of the ten-year average condition on August 25, was 93.4 per cent of average condition on September 25.

"During the August drouth which was so disastrous to conditions previously was completely broken. Rains have covered the entire cotton belt, but too late in many sections to be of much, if any, benefit to the crop; indeed, various comments indicated some damage resulting from the storms, the rainfall being excessive in some places. Particularly the grade of the staple has been adversely affected in the eastern part of the belt more than usual. Complaint of damage from anthracnose was made.

"The condition on September 25 was such as to indicate smaller total production than in 1911 and 1912, but, owing to the large acreage, larger prowding to the large acreage, larger prodduction than in any year preceding thesetwo years, with the probable exception of the crop years of 1904, 1906 and 1908."

WHEAT RECEDED AFTER GOING UP

Market Rallied Early in Day, But the Demand Fell Off and the Close Was a Shade Lower to a Shade Higher.

Chicago, October 18.—Much improved support rallied wheat today from a decline that had reached 11c a bushel, but the demand did not last and values again receded. The market closed weak at a shade lower to a shade higher than last night. Corn finished ⅛ to ¼@⅜ down and oats unchanged to ⅛c up. In provisions the outcome was a shade to 10c decline.

Firmer Liverpool quotations and lessening of receipts northwest gave the wheat market a strong start. What street advices, too, were more reassuring and it was said millers showed signs of taking wheat on a larger scale. As a result shorts were forced to cover in a lively manner, but investment demand proved comparatively small. When it began to appear that the upturn would go only a moderate distance, many of the early buyers jumped back to the selling side. Chances of a further gain in the visible supply Monday, on top of a known increase of 30,000,000 bushels compared with last year, discouraged the bulls. Pressure returned to such an extent that all the advance was lost and closing prices were at the lowest of the day.

Lightness of offerings carried the corn market upgrade for awhile and there were hustling returns that interested bargain hunters. Predictions of fine weather for several days, however, tended to bring about a drop in values. In the end prices were decidently weak under bear attacks.

Oats reacted with other grain after an early bulge due mainly to shorts covering. It developed that commission houses had plenty of orders to unload on all upturns.

Selling which was laid to packers acted as a weight on provisions. The market yielded after strength had gone out of grain.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.

New York, October 18.—The appearance of a high barometer on the Pacific coast led the weather prophets to predict a very cold wave over the cotton belt before Tuesday, so that while the frost foreshadowed last evening did not materialize the market about held the closing prices of Friday, although the decline in Liverpool called for a 12 or 15 point lower market here today. It was a small market with the trade bearish and looking for a decline until the study of the weather map brought the predictions mentioned.

New York, October 18.—The market was rather narrow today, neither side was rather narrow today, neither side making any fight. There is much gossip as to what the next ginning report will show, and if the other years are to be taken as a guide the amount ginned up to October 18 will be just about half the crop. The general disposition is to look for a report around 7,000,000 and unless the temper of the market changes before the report is issued, over 7,000,000 will be considered bearish and under 7,000,000 bullish.

The close today was steady at a decline of 1 to 3 points

BANKERS SENTENCED TO ATLANTA PRISON

Memphis, Tenn., October 18.—E. L. Hendry, of Lonoke, Ark., and J. M. McDonald, of La Kemp, Okla., convicted of conspiring to use the mails in an attempt to defraud, today in federal court each was sentenced to serve three years in the federal prison at Atlanta and to pay fines of $1,000. Notice of an appeal to the United States court of appeals was given. Hendry's bond was fixed at $5,000 and McDonald's at $7,000. Both were furnished.

Hendry was a director and McDonald president of the American Trust company, a Memphis institution which closed its doors about a year ago. Its capital was $500,000, two hundred thousans of which, the prosecution alleged, had been issued to promoters, but that none of the money had been paid in.

The trust company was allied with a chain of "night and day" banks located in Memphis, Oklahoma City and other places which have been subject to scrutiny by the federal authorities in connection with stock selling and other operations connected with banking which the government alleged were fraudulently carried on through the use of the mails.

MURPHY "SHADOWED" AND HE DOESN'T OBJECT

New York, October 18.—Charles F. Murphy, Tammany hall leader, is being shadowed, and he enjoys it. He said so today.

"About three weeks ago," said Mr. Murphy, "I noticed for the first time that I was being followed by two young men in an automobile." The Tammany leader went on to say that he did some sleuthing on his own account and learned that the car which had been following him was leased to a detective agency.

"If I knew the persons who are spending the money to keep such a close watch on me," he said, "I'd save them the expense. I would have them call at my home every evening and I would tell them where I was going and whom I was going to see."

The General Account of all Monies and Effects received and expended by the Trustees for establishing the Colony of Georgia in America for carrying on the good Purposes of their Trust. For one whole Year from the ninth day of June in the Year of Our Lord 1733 to the ninth day of June in the Year of Our Lord 1734

Title page of a later period in the book, when Verelst had wearied of the labor of printing out his work, like an engraving, and was writing in script.

By T. B. Conner.

Stowed away among other records of colonial and revolutionary times in the office of the secretary of state, there has recently been found a ragged old ledger bound in vellum, which is in many respects the most interesting and remarkable book that there is in the state.

This record was made in England and how it ever found its way to Georgia and to the place which it now occupies on the shelves of the secretary of state is a historical mystery that will probably never be solved. It is conjectured that the book was brought over here by one of the colonial governors, appointed by the king, after the trustees had surrendered their trust and Georgia had become a crown colony, and that it was never returned.

The title of the old volume is "The General Account of All Monies and Effects Received and Expended by the Trustees for Establishing the Colony of Georgia in America." It is the oldest book in existence relating to the history of Georgia, covering as it does the entire period from 1732 to 1754 during which the infant colony was under the rule of the trustees, and it is of surpassing interest to the historian and antiquarian.

Would Be Preserved In a Glass Case.

If the book had remained in England, it would now in all probability of the British Museum. A book of as much importance to the history of England as this is to the history of Georgia would be preserved in a glass case and displayed as one of the nation's most precious treasures.

This record was kept by Harman Verelst, accountant of the trustees. There is no evidence that Verelst ever visited Georgia or any part of America. Judging by the way in which the book was kept there probably never was a more accurate or painstaking bookkeeper than this man. He must have spent hours of patient labor on each page, carefully printing every entry with his pen, one of the old-fashioned goose quill variety.

The record of each year is prefaced with a title page similar to the one which is herewith produced, the artistic merits of which readers can judge for themselves. Such work is almost unthinkable in this age of hurry and of the typewriter. The man who did it seems to have had a keen prescience of the historic value of his task.

The labor of printing out every entry, however, grew too great in time even for the patience of Verelst. It is continued down to the year 1740 or about two-thirds of the book. From that time on to the close the writing is in a beautiful flowing script, a sample of which is also reproduced on this page.

The entries begin with the contributions made for the establishment of the colony, even before the first emigrants were sent out. Among the contributors are found lords and baronets and noble ladies, people of the highest distinction in the England of that time. A noteworthy fact is that a large number of the contributors are anonymous, many of the entries reading, "from a noblewoman, who does not wish her name to appear," or "from a gentleman in the country who desires at this time to remain unknown," or some similar phrase.

Many of the largest sums were contributed in this way and thus the earliest benefactors of Georgia were destined to remain nameless. Such modesty is almost inconceivable in this age when donations to charitable causes are so often made in the hope or perpetuating their donors' names.

Wesley's Connection With Early Georgia History.

The connection of the founder of Methodism, John Wesley, with the early history of Georgia is pretty well known, as the great evangelist spent three years of his early manhood in missionary work in and around Savannah. It is not known that his father, the Rev. Samuel Wesley, also took a keen interest in the founding of the colony. Several of the earliest entries in Verelst's book are of contributions from him or from unknown parties by his hands. It would seem therefore that he not only gave himself but was much interested in collecting money from others to promote the founding of the colony.

Here is set down in minutest detail every item of contribution or expense connected with the early life of the state. The entries range from hundreds of pounds down to a few pence. There are also many items of merchandise entered, particularly of books of a devotional character to be distributed among the colonists.

Here we find just how much it cost to send out the "Anne" with the first shipload of colonists destined for Savannah, made up, as an entry in this book shows, of "152 persons, viz. 60 men, 39 women, 32 boys and 21 girls."

Some of the entries are almost of an amusing character, so trifling do they seem in the light of the nearly two centuries that have elapsed since they were made. Here is one of 2 pounds, 2 schillings, to buy the Rev. Joshua Ridgewell a surplice. There are others for the refreshment of the colonists on their way out. As the trustees of the colony of Georgia were the earliest prohibitionists known to history, forbidding as long as the temper of the colonists would permit of it, the importation of spirituous drinks, it would be interesting to know just what sort of refreshments were served. They could not have been soda pop or Coca-Cola, for that was long before their time.

Promotion of Religion And Spread of Gospel.

One thing that particularly impresses itself upon the reader of these entries is the intense religious purpose that characterized the founders of the colony of Georgia. The promotion of religion and the spreading of the gospel among the Indians seemed to have been their main object in establishing the new commonwealth. There are hundreds of items paid to ministers and to missionaries to the Indians. There is one reproduced here of 50 pounds paid for the use of missionaries and schoolmaster for the Saltzburgers.

Among the books contributed are hundreds of copies of the Bible, the New Testament, prayer books, and the popular works of devotion most in use at that time, such as Law's "Call," Baxter's "Saints' Everlasting Rest," etc. There is one entry of two hundred copies of a work called "A Friendly Admonition to the Drinkers of Brandy."

The book also shows the strong interest displayed by thetrustees in promoting the agricultural development of the colony. One of the earliest items is for "agriculture and the study of botany in Georgia." It is true that the efforts of the promoters of the colony in this direction were generally misdirected. Considerable sums were expended to encourage the culture of silk worms, an industry which never succeeded in gaining much of a foothold in the state. But the disinterestedness of the trustees and their earnest desire to do all in their power to advance the material welfare of their proteges is none the less evident.

The last entry is dated June 4, 1754, and contains the final report of the trustees of the moneys which had passed through their hands and their discharge from their trust, when they turned over the colony to the crown of England.

The Book Is Now In Dilapidated Condition.

As was indicated in the outset, this priceless old book is now in a dilapidated condition. The character of the binding would indicate that it once presented an external appearance as pleasing to the eye as the magnificent penmanship inside. But the binding is ragged now and many of the leaves are torn and loose. In its place on a shelf in the secretary of state's office, there is nothing to protect it against dust and the ravages of moths. On the same shelf with it are about twenty other volumes relating to the colonial and revolutionary history of the state, all exposed to the same perils of decay. Some of them are in even worse condition than Verelst's book, having been made of cheaper material. Some of them will scarcely bear handling at all, the leaves being so rotten that they fall to pieces at the touch.

Of course, no blame attaches to Secretary of State Phil Cook or his predecessors in office for this state of affairs. They have taken as much care of these historical relics as they could with no appropriation from the state for their safekeeping.

Compiler of Records Lucien L. Knight, who first brought Verelst's book to light and called attention to its historical importance as the oldest document in existence bearing on the founding of the state, is very much interested in preserving these old records, so necessary to the future historian. He suggests that a department of history and archives be established in connection with his office with proper facilities made for guarding against the ravages of time the old books which are now scattered without system in various plunder rooms of the state house officials.

CONVICT IS SHOT ATTACKING WARDEN; TWO OTHERS ESCAPE

Rome, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—While Arthur Young, a negro serving a sentence of twenty years for burglary, was being flogged at the Floyd convict camp, he broke from the guards who were holding him and made at Warden J. C. Penn with a razor. One of the guards shot him in the hip as he was about to slit the wardens' throat.

During the attendant excitement, two other negroes made their escape and are being hunted with bloodhounds. Thy are Burney Jones, serving a seven-year senence for burglary from Atlanta, and Ernest Harris, given three years for burglary from Floyd.

DRIVER OF 16 PONIES IS THROWN AND KILLED

Augusta, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) Eddie Carp, known as "Pony Boy Eddie," driver of a team of sixteen ponies in Barnum & Bailey's circus, was instantly killed here tonight. Just after he drove the ponies out of the ring after the performance, having got outside the "big top," one of the wheels of the chariot ran into a pole in the dark. Carp was thrown heavily to the ground, landing on his head. His neck was broken.

Two negroes dragged the dead body out of the way of an automobile, which would have run over it. The circus register had already been shipped and none in the circus aggregation knows where Carp hails from.

MISS SARAH RENDER DIES IN LAGRANGE

LaGrange, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Miss Sarah Render, sister of Mrs. W. V. Gray, of LaGrange, Mrs. S. J. Crowder, of Greenville, and Lewis J. Render, of LaGrange, died today at the home of her sister, Mrs. W. V. Gray. Miss Render was 79 years old and had lived for the past twenty years in LaGrange at the home of her sister. She was born in Meriwether county and lived there up to twenty years ago, at which time her mother died and she moved to LaGrange.

In days gone by Miss Render has been a very prominent figure in Southern Baptist church circles, attending all of the Georgia Baptist and Southern Baptist conventions, at which places she always attracted attention because of her piety and mental attainments.

The funeral will occur Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the home of Mrs. W. V. Gray. The services will be conducted by Dr. A. B. Vaughan, pastor of the LaGrange Baptist church.

BATTLE OF NATIONS FOUGHT CENTURY AGO

Leipsic, Saxony, October 18.—Thousands of people from all parts of Germany, Austria, Russia and Sweden gathered here today for the dedication of the memorial of the "Battle of the Nations"—which ended just 100 years ago in a victory for the allies over the French and resulted in Germany's emancipation.

One of the features of the exercises was the arrival of the last runners in a series of relays bearing banners and greetings from every quarter of the German empire, and also from Washington and from Rio Janeiro. The banner from the United States passed through the hands of many thousand athletes before it reached the king of Saxony. In all the relays a total of 43,000 runners were engaged.

Long-Tailed Roosters of Japan.

(From the November Popular Mechanics Magazine.)

The breeding of roosters with long tail feathers has long been the pastime of the natives of Shinewara, on the island of Shikoku, Japan. By patient selection of a breed of fowls, continued through 100 years, the tail feathers of the ordinary barnyard cock have been lengthened until some of teh roosters on the island now have tail feathers measuring 18 feet.

Convict-Built Roads.

The very practical and successful demonstration made by Warden Tynan, of Colorado, of using his better class of convicts for road building, under an honor system in which the men work without guards is beginning to bear fruit. Illinois is trying the plan in a small way, with about 40 convicts, who are improving a road near Dixon. Here also the men are placed upon their honor, and a liberal reduction in their term has been promised by the governor to those who make good. The men fully appreciate the outdoor life and would gladly accept the work if for no other reason. It will be interesting to watch the result of this experiment, because it is being conducted near a city. Warden Tynan purposely took his men—a much larger number—far away from the temptations of town or city.

So far the scheme is working satisfactorily, although a condition that the Colorado warden feared arose. Naturally considerable interest was aroused, and numerous visitors came out from town to watch the men at work. Some sentimental citizens thereupon planned automobile rides and a theater party for the convicts. Governor Dunne immediately and very properly issued orders that nothing of the sort be permitted. There is a decided difference between allowing a convict to indulge in outdoor work under conditions calculated to make a man of him again and silly sentiment that would set him on a pedestal. A proper sentence should not be revengeful; it should be reformative, but reform will not be secured by pink teas. The very object which is aimed at may easily be defeated by what is intended for sympathy. The dignity of the law and the respect for it which the prison sentence contemplates cannot be best attained by rapid steps. It is right and proper that the convicts have reasonable recreation, but the entertainment be brought to them and not they taken to it. Governor Dunne's prompt and firm orders in this matter are for the good of the men themselves, for a too generous letting down of the bars is likely to deter other states from giving the plan a trial, and every state should use as many convicts as possible in road working. But to make light of a prison sentence would be a very grave mistake.—H. H. Windsor, in the November Popular Mechanics Magazine.

INTER COUNTY HIGHWAY THRO' SOUTH GEORGIA

Proposed Road Would Connect Albany, Sylvester, Tifton, Ocilla, Douglas, Waycross

Tifton, Ga October 18—(Special)—An intercounty graded highway connecting the county sites of six of the most progressive and wealthy counties in south Georgia is one of the recent plans for the development of this section

The highway will begin at Albany and will run due east practically on a land line to Sylvester Tifton Ocilla Douglas and Waycross At Albany it will connect with the Atlanta to the Gulf highway known as the Jacksonville route at Tifton with the National highway from New York to Jacksonville, and an extension is contemplated from Waycross to connect with the proposed Savannah to Jacksonville highway This will give all of this section of the state a direct route into Savannah Its purpose is to promote social relations between the smaller cities along the route to foster closer business relations between the cities and towns, as well as for the convenience of the people of this entire section and to give this part of the county its first graded highway east and west

There is already a fine graded road from Albany to Sylvester The county commissioners of Worth now propose to build from Sylvester due east on a land line to the county line of Tift The county commissioners of Tift will then be asked to extend the road to Tifton or to build east and west along a land line through the county to the line of Irwin Then the plan is for the commissioners of Irwin to continue the road on a land line east and west through that county and for the county commissioners of Coffee to do the same The commissioners of Ware will then be asked to extend the road from the Coffee line to Waycross and from there an extention is to be arranged to the Savannah Jacksonville highway when it is built

The proposed highway will run about three miles north of Tifton, and 4 or 5 miles south of Ocilla but the general plan contemplates an air line land line route until the eastern line of Coffee is reached when it will be necessary to turn southeast in Ware county to Waycross

As soon as the details of the proposed matter will be laid before the boards of trade and chambers of commerce of the several towns en route With the appointment of a state road supervisor with the new year he will be asked to take charge of the construction work The government will also be asked to send one of its experts to construct a portion of the road for each county

MARRIED FOR MONTH, YOUNG COUPLE GIVE FRIENDS A SURPRISE

Athens Ga October 18—(Special)—There have been marriages and marriages in Athens the past week and the social pages of the papers have teemed with the details of pretty ceremonies and decorated churches and homes but there was one which was made known to friends only this evening that occurred on the 10th of last month and has been kept a profound secret though persons in the confidence of the couple in no fewer than six Georgia towns knew of the ceremony

The culmination of a pretty romance was the quiet marriage of Miss Lillian Blanchard, of Athens to Mr L O Teasley, of Alpharetta in Macon on September 10, the ceremony being performed by the pastor of the First Methodist church there in the parsonage Miss Blanchard was in Macon visiting a friend of hers for a day—the groom found out she was there and met her urging an immediate union to which she assented They decided to keep the matter a secret and it was only made known this evening on the eve of their departure tomorrow for the Pacific coast

Miss Blanchard is the daughter of Mr and Mrs G F Blanchard of this city, is talented in music and is one of the prettiest piquant, petite girls of the city The groom is a son of Mr and Mrs John Teasley, of Alpharetta, one of the leading citizens of his section and the wealthiest man of his county The younger Mr Teasley is vice president of the bank at Alpharetta is a prominent fraternity man a Shriner an officer in the grand encampment of Odd Fellows which met here two months ago, and is an automobile enthusiast

Mr and Mrs Teasley leave Athens tomorrow for an extended bridal tour of the northwest going by way of Chicago to the Pacific coast where they will spend a month or more the bride having lived in girlhood in that part of the country They will be accompanied by Mrs Blanchard the mother of the bride, who will probably spend the winter at her former home in Seattle

A & W. P. ENLARGING THE LAGRANGE DEPOT

LaGrange Ga October 17—(Special)—Though the depot of the Atlanta and West Point railroad at LaGrange has been erected less than two years and was at the time considered large enough for several years to come, the growth of LaGrange has made it necessary to practically double the capacity of the depot and workmen commenced work Wednesday tearing away the sustaining walls looking to the doubling of the capacity of the present depot

Nothing more than this action of the Atlanta and West Point in remodeling and enlarging what is practically a new station is more striking or convincing evidence of the remarkable growth of LaGrange in the past year A conservative estimate by one of the town contractors puts the number of new houses completed in LaGrange this year at more than one hundred and fifty, with about thirty now under construction

IMPORTANCE OF SCHOOL AS A SOCIAL CENTER

Spread of This Idea Means Restoration of School to Place It Formerly Held.

On social center development President Woodrow Wilson said: "The movement is a revolt from the constructive and creative genius of the American people."

The use of the school house as a social center is a revival of the old idea that there is the social and civic center of the neighborhood. This movement means today the use of the school house in the evenings and on holidays as a place of meeting for all sorts of interests.

We are restoring the school house to the place it held when revival meetings, singing schools and town gatherings were held there.

Many cities, as Los Angeles, Milwaukee, Denver, Grand Rapids and Worcester, have demonstrated that the school house as a polling place is educationally desirable, as it gives the future citizens an actual starting point for understanding the processes of democratic government.

Clubs Should Use School House.

Neighborhood civic clubs should use the school house as a center of common council where men and women may meet in the discussion of the problems of the neighborhood, the city, the state and the nation.

Public officials welcome this social center idea. An alderman in a certain city said before a civic meeting in a neighborhood school house: "If every member of the common council and every other public official had frequently such opportunities as this to come before the people whom he is supposed to represent, and to discuss with them the things in which he is supposed to represent them, it would mean that we would have a more intelligent government."

A Live Question.

The school house is a social center has come before the public as an immediate live question by the indorsement of Presidents Roosevelt and Wilson, the National Educational association, the National Municipal league and the National Federation of Women's Clubs.

The movement is well expressed in these words: "We have spent hundred years in devising machinery by which things should work together for good. The next job is to coordinate machinery by which folks may work together for good."

School Situation Is Taken Up By Club Women of Atlanta

At the called meeting by the city federation of the representative club women of Atlanta, the needs of the public school situation were discussed and plans outlined for meeting these needs.

The public is inefficiently informed with regard to the problems confronting the public schools. Getting things done for the schools depends very largely upon a better understanding of conditions. There are deficiencies that must be met and corrected by strong and vital public interest.

If we women see clearly the highest welfare of our children, we shall obtain, by persistent effort, the highest standards in our schools and rally to the support of the agencies at work for improvement.

The school is the most important phase of the great constructive welfare movement. When women understand the obstructions in the way of the proper development and environment of school children, they will not stand helpless, confused by conditions that seem hard to meet.

Woman's Right to Respond.

Nobody will challenge woman's right to respond to the needs of the present public school conditions in Atlanta any more than they will challenge the child's right to the benefits so much desired.

All who have studied and understood present conditions have been inspired with a desire to co-operate in any comprehensive plan for betterment. And the enthusiasm that has been aroused must not dry up in disappointment.

The meeting represented those who sought facts about school needs and school moneys.

Those who knew told dispassionately what was the matter with our schools, and the many phases that confront those who would help. It taught what should have already been known but we've known about our public schools what we ought to have known. This school of inquiry will do a great deal for this city's schools.

Enthusiastically Indorsed.

This urgent cause was indorsed by a splendid body of club women, and the interest must continue if results are to be obtained.

A task confronts the board of education in solving the problems of the public schools. Each condition to be deplored must be worked over and translated into action.

The lady board of visitors for the schools is the only municipal organization of women, and, stimulated by the knowledge of what it has accomplished, stands ready to work for further good.

MEN OF CUTHBERT TO WELCOME DELEGATES

Dr. Patterson Declares Interest Is General in Forthcoming Convention.

In an interview with Dr. C. N. Patterson, of Cuthbert, it was pleasing to hear that a hearty welcome from the men as well as from the women awaited the delegates and visitors to the annual meeting of the State Federation of Women's clubs on October 28 to 30.

Dr. Patterson is a member of the state board of medical examiners and of the board of health of Randolph county and is very much interested in the civic developments that are being aided by women's organizations.

He says the club women, the teachers and the physicians must join hands in bringing to pass greatly needed reforms. Women, through organization, have become a most powerful ally and must now be appreciated in all lines of progress.

The doctor thinks the program for the Cuthbert meeting splendid and expects great good to come to the home club and the clubs throughout the state as a result of the deliberations.

He is most cordial in his anticipation of the visitors and a good representative of the town that has invited us so enthusiastically.

The prospects are fine for an unusually good meeting.

MISS CREWS GETS $4,500 VERDICT FOR INJURY

She Alleges That J. J. Woodside, Jr., Ran Into Her With Automobile.

Miss Lonie D. Crews, of 52 Williams street, who, according to the claim of John J. Woodside, Jr., of 19 West Eleventh street, ran into his automobile, sat on the running board and then fell off, was awarded a verdict of $4,500 yesterday in superior court against Mr. Woodside.

According to the suit filed by Miss Crews, she alighted from a street car on the evening of June 30, 1912, at Peachtree and Harris streets, and was run into by the machine driven by young Woodside. She declared that the machine was running at a rate of 20 to 25 miles an hour, instead of the 6-mile limit, as required by law.

Miss Crews claimed she was struck and thrown heavily to the pavement, and her back, shoulders and knee injured. She sued for $15,000. The defendant claimed that she was carrying an umbrella, which prevented her from seeing where she was going, and that she ran into the machine as it slowed down. A fence erected in the street at that time while a building was being constructed was also given as one cause of the accident.

In answer to Miss Crews' claim that he "willfully, negligently and maliciously ran into her," young Woodside set out that his father, John J. Woodside, the renting agent, and Miss Crews' father were members of the First Presbyterian church, and that he had always respect and consideration for the young lady and had always shown it by respectfully tipping his hat to her whenever he saw her.

The case was fought for Miss Crews by Attorneys Shepard Bryan and Grover Middlebrooks. Attorney Charles W. Smith represented the defendant. An appeal is expected to follow the verdict.

Forts Near Augusta on Savannah River During the Early Days

Fort Cornwallis, in colonial times, Fort, Augusta, was a large fort defending the lower portion of the city.

It was captured by the Americans during the revolutionary war from the British after a stubborn resistance. Colonel Brown commanded the garrison at the time of the assault. The fort usually had several hundred troops; when captured it had 400 white soldiers and 200 black soldiers. It had large cannon and high parapets built of stone and brick, strengthened by logs within the walls.

This fort was in the churchyard of St. Paul's Episcopal church—upon the site the Colonial Dames have erected a large stone cross.

Fort Grierson, the next in size, was named for Colonel Grierson, its British commander. It defended the upper portion of the city; the force in the fort was small, not more than a hundred men, and it had but two cannon.

The Americans captured Fort Grierson the 23d of May, 1781.

Colonel Jones said that the Riverside mills were built upon the site of Grierson, but Sherwood, Stephens and other historians appear to think it was near the negro church that bore the name of Springfield, that is said to be the oldest negro place of worship in the United States.

The "White House."

The building called the "white house," near Hawkes' gully, which some have confused with Fort Grierson, was a trading house, at one time belonging to a person by the name of McKay.

When Colonel Thomas Brown was hard pressed by the Americans, he used the building as a blockhouse, having cannon hailed from Fort Cornwallis and Grierson.

To make it stronger, he had some earth works thrown up around the house—the windows were planked up and the troops fired through loop holes.

It is doubted by many that the house of today is really the blockhouse of revolutionary times. Twelve American prisoners were hanged from the staircase by Colonel Brown's orders. He lay in bed, having been wounded, and witnessed the execution.

Fort Galphan.

Fort Galphan, some 12 miles down the Savannah river, like some of the other forts, antedates the American revolution. It was important on account of several tribes of Indians being in the vicinity. It had been used as a depot of supplies and annual presents from the crown to the Indians. McCall said that it was a blockade around the house of a person by the name of Galphin.

When it was captured by the Americans in the revolutionary war, it was garrisoned by two companies of infantry.

The Americans captured two small boats lying near the fort containing rum, salt and supplies. The soldiers in the fort were taken by surprise; they did not know of the approach of the Americans until aroused from their security by a small force that appeared that did not seem very formidable. The small force was only a feint, the main force attacked in another direction, and captured the fort.

This was a valuable capture, as the fort had a quantity of ammunition and food. Not a soldier was killed in this attack—one died of fatigue.

Fort James.

Fort James, up the Savannah river from Augusta, about 40 miles, in 1771 was used in the protection of the settlement.

It was captured by the Americans in the war of the revolution.

Near the fort a town was built by the name of Dartmouth, afterwards Petersburg, that was at one time a flourishing place, but when the planters cultivated cotton instead of tobacco, Augusta was found to be convenient for the transportation of cotton to Savannah, so Petersburg became one of the dead towns of Georgia.

ATLANTA WOMAN'S CLUB GIVES TALLULAH $250

The Atlanta Woman's club has as education chairman Mrs. Spencer Atkinson. About forty members of her committee met to discuss plans for work for the ensuing year on October 15. $250 was pledged for Tallulah.

A committee was appointed to visit the girls' night school and co-operate with the lady board of visitors in relieving the present distressing conditions.

The Hell Gate Bridge.

Hell Gate bridge, which is now being constructed across East river, New York, as a link to connect New England with the west and south, will contain the longest steel arch span ever built. The bridge is a part of the New York Connecting railroad, built by the New Haven and the Pennsylvania systems to carry traffic from north of Harlem river to Long Island and to relieve the Grand Central station. The road will have four tracks, will be ten miles long and will cost $30,000,000. About 15,800 feet of it will be carried on bridges and viaducts from 20 to 135 feet above the ground. A magnificent view of the Hell Gate bridge is a feature of the November Popular Mechanics' Magazine.

PUBLIC AWAKENING TO THE IMPORTANCE OF MILK QUESTION

The public is becoming thoroughly aroused to the importance of the investigations being made in the milk supply of the state. Dr. Visansky, chairman of the milk committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, says that six thousand women have indorsed the movement for pure milk and before another week ten thousand will co-operate in bringing about statewide milk reform.

So much interest was manifested in the recent address given on the milk question by Dr. Atkins that another opportunity will soon be given the public of finding out what is being done and what needs to be done along the lines of milk betterment.

This educational benefit and practical lecture by Visansky and Dr. Atkins will arrange at an early date.

Lectures and stereopticon pictures will be given and the women must inspire everybody to appreciate this privilege. The chamber of commerce wants the City Federation of Women's clubs to form milk committees to work with those in authority.

The first step must be for the state federation to form milk committees in every county.

Coming just before the Cuthbert annual meeting, this agitation is most opportune. Let the club women of Atlanta carefully inform themselves so as to be able to present this vital subject intelligently to the convention.

Automobile Climbs Bridge.

Perched on the end of one leaf of a Chicago bascule bridge after a dash up the steep incline as the bridge opened, a heavy automobile not long ago hung by its front wheels until the bridge could be lowered. One of its occupants was thrown from his seat by the sudden stop high in the air and was drowned in the river. The driver had not noticed the warning bell and red lights as he approached the bridge at a high rate of speed late at night, and did not realize that the bridge was opening until his machine had started to climb the rising incline. The accident is graphically portrayed by a picture in the November Popular Mechanics' Magazine.

Deporting the Chinese.

San Francisco, October 18.—One hundred and fifty-three Chinese, the largest consignment ever brought to this port for deportation were started back to China today. They entered Mexico some time ago, expecting to find employment as laborers. Because of unsettled conditions there they could obtain no work and crossed the border into California.

Primitive Baptists Move To College Park on Being "Burned Out" in Atlanta

The members of Union Primitive Baptist church, having had their meeting house in Atlanta burned, have decided to build in College Park. For this purpose they have purchased a beautiful lot in an oak grove on the corner of Lyle avenue and Lowe street, in College Park, near the line between College Park and East Point. They expect to build a neat churchhouse.

For the present they will hold their meetings in the Christian meeting house in College Park, near the end of the car line.

There will be preaching on the fourth Sunday of every month at 11 a. m. by Elder T. J. Bazemore, pastor.

As Twilight Shadows Fall Chorus and Quartet Sing At Vespers in All Saints'

Each Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock as the twilight shadows gently fall the vested choir of All Saints' Episcopal church present a service composed almost entirely of music for the pleasurable edification of the general public.

Many of Atlanta's music lovers bring their Sunday's outing to a close by stopping at this church for an hour of tonal refreshment. The service is simple and it is incumbent upon no one to do else than give respectful silence during the rendition of beautiful music. There is no sermon at these services; the only appeal to the congregation being made through the music itself.

This Sunday afternoon the program will include a mixed quartet by solo voices, short incidental solos and several numbers for full chorus with organ accompaniment. Visitors are always welcome irrespective of denomination or creed.

Vogue of the Newspaper.

(From Leslie's.)

More and more class and sectarian papers are shrinking in number and in influence. The work which they did is being done by the big secular papers, and, with their larger resources and their greater frequency of publication, they do the work in a more satisfactory way. Like the strictly religious press, the sporting papers, too, have given way under the competition.

BENEFIT PERFORMANCE BY M'INTOSH CHAPTER

The benefit performance staged at the Theater Vendome Friday afternoon and evening of last week by William McIntosh chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, proved an unqualified success from every viewpoint.

The receipts from the afternoon and evening performances amounted to $53.50, and after defraying all expenses a neat sum was deposited to the credit of the chapter. The proceeds will go toward the support of worthy educational institutions, a work in which the Daughters of the American Revolution take a leading and patriotic part.

A program that was thoroughly enjoyed was rendered at the afternoon and evening hours. By far the largest crowd attended the night show, and the building was taxed to its capacity to accommodate those who turned out.

The pictures were particularly good, having been ordered especially for that occasion. Home talent played a prominent and enjoyable part in the program, each number being heartily applauded. A quartet, composed of Messrs. A. P. Wittich, R. P. Sasnett, W. O. Ham and T. B. McMichael, sang several selections that were warmly greeted, while Mrs. W. L. Etheridge and Mr. W. O. Ham favored the audience with solos that were pleasing features of the program. Music was delightfully rendered throughout the afternoon and evening by Miss Annie G. Thompson and Miss Ruth Turner, of McDonough.

FLAG PRESENTED TO BERRY SCHOOL GIRLS

After "America" was sung and Lord's prayer and scripture lesson, Mrs. Will Child sey, regent, gave an interesting paper on the flag, its significance, etc., after which Miss Brewster accepted the flag with well chosen words. Mrs. Jennie Ward, chairman of the flag committee, presented each girl with a minature flag. We then gathered on the campus, near the flag staff, the regent read "The Flag, Its Use and its Forbidden Abuse" As Old Glory was raised and as ot floated, fanned by the September breezes, the chorus of over one hundred girls sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

It was requested that any girl who knew she was a descendant of a Revolutionary soldier come forward. There were about thiry. This was a day longed to be remembered by those attending the exercises.

The fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades are having lots of fun with basketball this year.

Our window boxes are beginning to look beautiful because all the children take so much pride in bringing the plant to school and taking care of them.

Myrth Harrison and Joe Acree of the eighth grades wear the medals for elocution this month.

The seventh grade has won the attendance and spelling banners for the week.

Miss Walker, the fifth grade teacher, was complimented with a fruit and flower shower. Her table was most beautifully decorated and the children of her room took much pleasure in doing this for her. Mattie Sue Pittman, of this grade is wearing the spelling medal. All are working hard for the picture which Mr. Green has promised to award each fifth grade in the third ward, in which fifty pupils are promoted.

INEZ HICKS.

Hill Street School.

The Parent Teacher club held its first meeting Friday, October 10. The attendance, composed mostly of mothers of the children, was very large.

We appreciate the bulbs given as a gift by Mrs. Gallaher, a patron of the school.

Our basketball court is finished. The girls are learning the game rapidly under the guidance of two coaches who work them each day at recess.

In a closely run contest, Ben Welborn and Lucian Williams earned the honor to declaim for the medal. Thelma Dickens and Ethel Ledbetter will contest for the girls' medal.

The debate and declamation contest will be held Wednesday, October 22. The subject of the debate is, "Resolved that inventions have done more to advance civilization than discoveries." The affirmative side is held by John Peacock and the negative by J. C. Shelverton. The debate promises to be very close.

The boys and teachers of the fourth and seventh grades have been very busy getting the ground ready for the planting of more flowers.

Miss Graves visited our school last week. Her report from the different grades were very good. Miss Osgood and Miss Smith, the drawing teachers, visit us recently. They make drawing very interesting. We expect a visit from Miss Hartalson next week.

The attendance banner was won by second grade B. The school attendance was 97.9. The sixth and seventh grades have at last relinquished their hold on the spelling banner, fourth A and second B succeeding them.

Last week the sixth grade boys and the seventh grade girls easily led in stars for good times. At the end of next week the winners will attend the eighth grade Literary and Debating society.

Miss Smith and Mrs. Osgood were pleased with all the grades and Mrs. Osgood especially with the seventh and eighth grades.

The third B and the second A made a hundred in attendance all last week.

Virginia Maude stood up last in the fourth grade B spelling match.

The seventh grade boys have organized a very strong football team.

Elizabeth Peeples, Alice Cain and Eleanor Gay, of the fifth grade have not missed in oral spelling this year.

The eighth grade has bade a volley-ball court in the yard and teams have been selected. The eighth grade expects to have many good times on it during the year. COMER HOWELL.

Ashby Street School.

The deaf class got a hundred in attendance. We have a new deaf teacher this year and a few new deaf scholars. We are going to have a mothers meeting on October 15 at 3 o'clock. We hope there will be many mothers present. There have not been any directors at our school this year.

As soon as frost comes we are going to work on our yards and plant shrubs, roses and flowers that will stay all the winter. We have very pretty grass in our yard.

BENNIE THOMASON.

Edgewood School.

Hurrah for Edgewood ball team! Last Saturday a game was played with Peeples and Edgewood won. We are going to have an excellent team this term and we are going to have many games with other schools. We are hoping to win every game.

Charlotte Bagham of the eighth grade, has been ill for the last few days, but we are glad to hear that she is better and we are expecting her back soon.

We have welcomed two new pupils into the fifth grade A and B. They are Ethel Bryan and Ellen Osgood. We hope they will do as good work as the other pupils.

Miss Lowe's fifth grade B received 100 in attendance last week.

Miss Albert's fifth grade A are doing good work on sand maps of South America. About eighteen have been made and most of them are very good.

Mr. Brandrum paid us his first visit last week. We were all so glad to have him with us.

Miss Lida Moore has lost her twenty-four little folks, so we larger ones will do our best to please her.

Both first A and B grade pupils have taken up color work in drawing and they are doing fine. Miss Milledge has already been to see them, and for their first lesson they received a star. They learned more songs than they were required to.

MARIST GETS NEW GOVERNMENT OUTFIT

Cadet Officers Soon to Be Announced—Athletics on Boom.

By Eugene Oberdorfer, Jr.

The cadet officers are expected to be announced for the term this week. The commandant has expressed his intentions of making the appointments early this year in order to insure a permanent formation for the year. Nearly all the non commissioned officers have returned from last term and this is a valuable asset to the military department. Of the seven commissioned officers of 1912-13 only three have returned as the others, Captain Allen, First Lieutenants Ralph Sims and Rhoden Haverty, and Second Lieutenant Gilbert Cheves have all graduated. The returning officers are: Captain Howard H. McCall, Jr., the senior cadet officer of 1912-13; First Lieutenant Eugene Oberdorfer, Jr., the battalion adjutant; First Lieutenants Ralph Sims and Hershel Baker of company A.

The commandant with his complement of officers and non commissioned men has rounded up the cadets into two formations, which are now properly uniformed in the cotton olive drab service uniforms.

The new government equipment which Uncle Sam has just recently issued to the college has not been distributed to the corps but Major E. R. J. Schmidt stated last week that it would be given out at an early date.

The cadets are looking forward with pleasure to the time when they will be allowed to shoulder an army regulation rifle, for then indeed will the college be a government institution.

Compliance With Regulations.

The commandant insists upon the corps' compliance with every army regulation. An example of this rigid discipline can readily be seen in the fact that an order was recently issued by the war department establishing the rule that tan shoes were to be used with all uniforms. Accordingly an order was issued obliging the cadets also to comply with this regulation.

The cadet band of twenty pieces is continuing its good work and it is expected that before the term is over the battalion will be put through the exercises of Butt's manual with the band music accompanying. The commandant has stated that battalion parade and other ceremonies will soon be allowed and it is hoped that one day in the week the public will be allowed to enjoy the sight of a good cadet dress parade which with the exception of Marist can be properly executed by no school in the vicinity.

To Start Rifle Practice.

Rifle work is soon to be started and already great interest has been manifested on the part of the student body in which there are several excellent marksmen.

The athletic spirit is rapidly picking up, as the basketball season draws near, for gradually the number of men who come out on the campus for practice increases. The corps was addressed by the major last week on the subject of athletics and he requested every man who intended coming out at all for work to come out now. That afternoon there were nearly fifty cadets on the field.

The president not permitting Marist to have a representative football team does not hinder the cadets from being great football fans and it is rumored that a team [illegible] of Marist men (although not flying Marist colors) is to challenge several prep schools to games at this time. Without doubt these boys will do credit to the school which debars them from playing under her name.

State Street School.

The schools have been in the public eye for weeks past and columns have been written about their lack of seating capacity when the real trouble as has been suggested by one in authority is in having too much seating capacity.

Miss Pitts went to Stockholm last summer, that beautiful capital city of Sweden. While there she visited a public school with an enrollment of 1,600 pupils. No primary room had more than fifteen seats. How many have we? Four times fifteen. If each child recites but a minute during a recitation it takes one hour. Imagine listening to sixty children read—good, bad, and middling. And still our teachers wonder why we sometimes have spells of fidgets.

State Street school rises to say that forty children are enough for any teacher, and it is poor economy on the part of our great city to curtail expenses by dwarfing the usefulness of the schools in giving a teacher more work than she can possibly do properly.

Mr. T. M. Pierce was recently elected on the board of education. We congratulate ourselves in securing such service as he will give, as the member from our ward. His little daughter is a class leader in our school, and has always been a favorite of both teachers and pupils.

The average attendance last week was 98.3, the sixth and 1-B grades leading with 100 per cent.

We are going to have a candy-pulling October 24. Everybody who comes is promised a fine time, to say nothing of plenty of candy.

RECEPTION IS HELD BY G. H. S. ALUMNAE SOCIETY

Business Program Is Followed by Delightful Musical Program and Refreshments.

The reception held last Friday afternoon at the Girls High school was of great interest to all the members of the Alumnae society. Mrs. Hartwell Spain, formerly Miss Jenny Armstrong, who is the president of the society, began the program with a short business meeting. A delightful musical program was followed by refreshments. The Alumnae society of the Girls High school is almost as old as the school itself. It was organized by Mrs. Wirt Cox, who became the first president, and at that time the dues were 50 cents a year from each member but they have since been raised to $1. With this money they gave a scholarship each year to a graduating girl who could not afford the expenses of college. The scholarship was for the Peabody Normal institute, giving the girl a normal course.

After the addition of a normal department at the high school however, this scholarship was changed to Brisendine Business college. Nearly all the girls to whom scholarships were given have been successful in their chosen work and many of them have returned the money.

Society Joins Federation.

The society was federated not long ago and now is the largest body of women banded together in Atlanta as it consists of from 500 to 600 members. Agnes Scott college has lately offered a yearly scholarship to the school. Miss Jeannette Viglen won this scholarship last year.

A fellowship of $400 a gift of the Alumnae has been offered to deserving graduates of the school who have become teachers in order that they may take a summer course at some good college.

Seventy Girls Helped.

In all, the Alumnae have helped about seventy girls to get a good start in life by the aid of a college education. Its work has been done so unostentatiously and quietly that few know even of its existence.

Edward Howard Griggs has lectured many times for the society in the past, and this year Mr. Neuring will give a series of interesting lectures on sociology for it.

The officers are: Mrs. Hartwell Spain, president; Mrs. S. W. McCalhe, vice president and Miss Mattie Slaton, treasurer.

The reception was held in the auditorium of the high school building, decorated by tall vases filled with large beautiful bunches of goldenrod.

FOOTBALL IN FULL SWING AT PEACOCK'S

Many New Men Out—The Team Has More Weight Than Formerly.

Football is now the center of interest at Peacock's.

At the beginning of the season only a few men reported for practice and the prospects did not look very encessful as the game with the High fully however and the team was able to defeat the High school scrubs in the first game of the season.

The game with Tech High scrubs went against us. However, since this game many new men who heretofore had taken no interest in the game, appeared at practice and the team has more weight and is a much better team by the addition of these men.

We hope that the game with the G. M. A. subs will prove as successful as the game with the High school scrubs, in which we were victorious.

Fraser Street School.

We greatly appreciate the untiring efforts on the part of Mr. D. W. Green in securing money to be used for the improvement of the school grounds.

We have determined to improve the yard and beautify it as much as we can. Saturday, many of our boys devoted their time in hauling fertilizer for the flower beds.

Mrs. L. L. Knight, the son of Mrs. C. C. Knight, who is now deceased and a former principal of our school, has contributed three books to our school library in memory of his beloved mother, for whom our society is named. The books are as follows: 'Georgia's Landmarks, Memorials and Legends," "Reminiscences of Famous Georgians," Volume 1, and 'Reminiscences of Famous Georgians," Volume two.

We have been receiving visits from some of the directors all of whom appeared to be pleased with our work.

We are delighted to have in our midst once more, our beloved second grade teacher, Miss Lucile Movers, who has recovered after an illness of three weeks.

The officers of the C. C. Knight Literary and Debating Society were elected at a call meeting September 26. The officers are as follows: Mallon Sheffield, president; Albert Vogt, vice-president; Mary Weiner, secretary; Bessie Walker, treasurer.

The attendance has been good all through the school. The highest percent in attendance last week was made by the first grade A.

HELEN E. PULZMAN.

Highland School.

At last we have settled down and now we are at work in earnest. Five weeks of crowding around on church pews was rather strenuous for both children and teachers and we were glad when the Moreland school was ready for the children that we were unable to seat. Yet we were sorry, too. Some of the children had been coming here ever since they started to school and we felt that we were losing some of our dearest little friends. And then visits from aldermen, councilmen and last but not least, the mayor, certainly makes school life more interesting.

Our new piano has come and it is beautiful. We haven't finished paying for it yet, but expect to do so this year.

We are going to give a candy pulling Friday, October 24, and if we have our usual success why Highland school will soon be out of debt. Last year we had a garden club and now at all our troubles are over we are going to reorganize. We will meet every Wednesday afternoon armed with rakes, picks and lawn mowers. If you've never belonged to a garden club, why join one. It's lots of fun.

Mrs. McClure, one of our patrons, sent her gardener over to cut the grass last month. The patrons of our school are always doing nice things for us.

We have electric fixtures at last. For three years we have had dreams of a night entertainment but couldn't have one because we had no lights or chairs. Now our dream is almost realized. We have a beautiful green curtain, footlights and a piano and we are hoping that our chairs are on the way. When they do come, Highland school will give its first night entertainment and we invite you all every one, to come.

Fiancee—How did you guess there were a lot of nice young men where I spent my vacation?

Fiance—You've learned to kiss so nicely.

Peeples Street School.

The Junior Civic club selected the chairmen for their different committees last week. Warren Armistead is chairman of the school improvement committee, Robert Bell of the athletic committee and Mary Arnold of the entertainment committee.

The sixth grade rejoices very much over the speedy recovery of their class mate, Prescott Price. They hope that he will soon be able to take up his studies with them.

Miss Hartalson visited us last week. All of the grammar grades received 'excellent' in music except one, and they were given "very good plus."

The seventh grade had a very exciting history match last Thursday. After a hard struggle the second section of girls were victorious. On Tuesday they had a grammar match and there were seven who stood up.

A spelling match in the fifth grade B was a hot contest between the boys and girls, the latter finally winning. There has been only one boy in the fifth grade who has been absent during this year.

Fifth grade A had a geography match last Friday. Walter Cooper stood up to the end.

Lucile North, of third grade B was awarded a pretty picture for staying head in spelling last week. Georgia Chamberlain received a picture week before last.

A very interesting spelling match was enjoyed by the third grade A. The following children were the ones to remain standing: Mary White, Katharine Rodehaver, Edna Baulknight Mildred Smith, Elsie Doval, L. S. Baulknight, Vernice Whaley, Velmer Carlton and Philip Stewart.

The sixth, seventh and eighth grades have the privilege of reading the small papers called 'Current Events.' These papers are both interesting and instructive therefore we greatly enjoy them.

We are greatly interested in the opening of the new branch of the Carnegie library. The opening exercises will be held Saturday afternoon. The new library will be on Gordon street in the Wren's Nest" at the old home of Uncle Remus. Although we have a very nice school library, the new library will be a great advantage to us and the other West End schools.

MARY PRESSLY.

Pryor Street School.

Our attendance last week was very good. The whole school averaged 98.8. The first grade made 100.

The seventh grade won in spelling last week, with an average of 82½ per cent.

Our girls seem to be smarter than the boys, for the sixth, seventh and eighth grades they have won the highest number in stars. The eighth girls received their reward Monday, which was fifteen minutes in the gymnasium, and it was much enjoyed.

The fifth grade has bought a large American flag for their classroom. The best pupil has the privilege of holding it during music period, when they sing their national songs. They had 100 in geography Monday.

Our fourth grade teacher, Miss Griffin, is ill and unable to be at school. Miss Sarah Holmes is teaching in her absence.

The first grade A drew paper fish with words on each side and nearly all the pupils knew the words. Then they were given toothpicks, with which they string their fish to take home.

The Improvement club had its first meeting last Friday and elected officers who are: Warren Davis, president; Alvin Butler, vice president; Louise Davis, secretary; Lavada Grainger, treasurer. The talks by Miss Roddy and Miss Haygood on the trees of Europe and California were much enjoyed. The club has decided to have a short program on nature work, besides discussing improvements. The girls who were on the program were: Lavada Grainger, Marion Maxwell, Louise Dean and Matty Boston.

The school sends their deepest sympathy to Emma Meriess, Walter and Catherine Fischer in the loss of their father.

LOUISE DEAN.

Inman Park School.

We have been very popular lately, having been honored with visits from the mayor, three councilmen and an alderman. Mr. Landrum also came to see us Friday.

The Inman Park Parent-Teachers' association met Tuesday. While there was not a large attendance, it was an enthusiastic meeting. The teachers of the third and fourth grades made interesting talks about the work being done in their classes, and Mrs. Bartlett, president of the organization read an interesting article from The Helper.

We have been busy as bees this week with our examinations. Fortunately there will soon be an end to these.

ALCIPHRONIAN MEETING TO BE HELD MONDAY

Track Team Practicing for a Cross-Country Run Next December.

By Robert Foreman.

It has been decided recently by Professor W. F. Dykes to make many changes in the society work of the Boys' High school. For many years the society work has been held on Friday. The different classes were divided into four divisions—namely, first, second, third and fourth. On the first Friday of the month the first division declaims and the second debates, on the second Friday the third declaims and the fourth debates on the third Friday the first debates and the second declaims and on the fourth Friday the third debates and the fourth declaims. In this way it enables every boy to both debate and declaim every month, while he performs the duties only every other week.

Once a month the Aliphronian Literary and Debating society meets in the hall on the top floor and has two declaimers and a debate.

Each room contributes four members to the subject committee. This committee meets the first of every month to select the subjects for the debates during the succeeding month. For many years this plan has been enforced with but few disadvantages.

When the technology department was put under the head of the Tech Highschool the, too, adopted a somewhat similar plan, but held their exercises on Mondays and divided their classes into three divisions, instead of four. They had a similar method of selecting debate subjects. As the boys from both schools have different subjects each week and are constant visitors of the Carnegie library, it makes the work exceedingly hard for the librarian who very kindly collects references for the boys.

Boys' High Changes.

In order to lessen the work of the librarian and to run the schools on somewhat the same plan, Professor Dykes has consented to make several changes in the literary work of the Boys' High school. The classes will be divided into three divisions and hold sessions on the first three Mondays of the month—the fourth being given to the hall.

There will be no subject committee, but the two heads of the English departments one from each school will meet the first of every month and select the same subject for both schools.

The plan will be put into action on October 27 and is sure to meet with the approval of all students, as well as the faculty.

First Tatler Issue Distributed Wednesday.

The first issue of the B. H. S. Tatler was distributed Wednesday. This was the first issue of the term, and was a very good one. It is hoped that the Tatler will keep improving, and make a large success this year.

B. H. S. will play U. S. B. on Saturday. This game is being watched with interest, as it will give some idea of the relative strength of B. H. S. and T. H. S. Tech Hi defeated Stone Mountain recently by a large score. The game will be played on the G. M. A. grounds at College Park.

The cross-country run will be held in December this year and every afternoon one sees a small bunch of boys in track suits practicing for it. Each school will have ten entries. The course will be from Baker street to Fourteenth street and back. Marist college has won the cross-country run for several years, but this year's race will be very close, as High school will be represented by some good runners.

Don't Let a Cold Settle on Your Lungs

Many cases of Lung Trouble can be traced directly to a neglected cold which has been neglected and which, as a result, has affected the lungs. If you have a persistent cough or cold, take warning before it is too late. Eckman's Alterative is most beneficial in such cases and has been the means of complete restoration to health many persons who had serious lung trouble. Read of this case:

Pleasantville, N. J.

"Gentlemen—During the winter of 1911 I contracted a severe cold which settled on my lungs. The doctor pronounced it lung trouble. I tried nearly every preparation without any result and kept getting worse. Eckman Alterative was recommended to me and I commenced using it as a last resort. The first bottle seemed to give me relief. In fact, I seemed to feel worse, but I kept on using the medicine and found out the first bottle had really started me on the road to recovery by loosening the mucus and making me a moderate sputum. After using the medicine for some time my cough ceased. I gained flesh and today I am a well man." (Signed) GEO. M. BATES.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious for severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in unbuilding the system. Contains no narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. Sold by all Jacobs drug stores and leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

A SPECIFIC---NOT A SALVE!

The public school system of Atlanta needs a specific and not a salve.

That principle must be applied if the agitation created by The Constitution's exposure is to be lasting and not merely temporary in its effects.

The system has long been sick. It will not be cured by treating only a few more glaring symptoms. Such quackery will simply avail to perpetuate dangerous conditions and make more costly in life, scholarship and money the certain day of reckoning.

The Constitution took off the lid by revealing intolerable conditions in the Highland and Inman Park schools. It showed that in the one very young children were huddled in such narrow space as to menace life and health. That in the other they were being taught in basements in immediate proximity to toilets. It was shown, also, that approximate conditions existed in other schools.

Since then statements from Superintendent Slaton, from members of the board of education, from the organized women of the city and from patrons have shown that the scholarship of the system is and long has been threatened because of the miserliness of the municipality in compensating teachers. Many of them are paid less than day laborers, and nearly all of them less than teachers in smaller towns and cities in Georgia, not to mention other states.

The air teems with suggested remedies. Many pin their faith wholly to a bond issue. Others appear to think that a special school tax will provide sufficient relief.

Whatever the route, The Constitution is in favor of putting the schools on a permanently standard foundation.

There has been enough piddling and compromise.

The conditions existing now at Highland and Inman Park and elsewhere are simply the inevitable outgrowths of the wretched and cowardly financial policy of the city. They would never have developed had the city used science and efficiency instead of delay and temporizing in financing her schools.

If it takes a bond issue to undo the mistakes of the past and guard against their recurrence, The Constitution is in favor of the bond issue. It wants first to be assured of that fact.

On the question of a special school tax, we have no doubt whatever. Every city of progressive tendencies in the country sets aside a definite maximum percentage of its tax rate for educational purposes. That is what Atlanta must come to. After that the board of education must be given unquestioned authority in expenditure of this money, providing for due checks. There must be absolutely no political meddling with the board or the schools. They have suffered enough from such sources. The board must be allowed to compensate teachers in sufficient amount to uphold the standards of the system.

Dan Green, chairman of the finance committee of the board, declares that the schools were this year fatally handicapped because council cut down its budget about 30 per cent. The same thing happened with the recommendations of the school subcommittee of the bond commission. This execrable business policy would be impossible if the schools were given their special tax.

The Constitution expects a great deal from the pending investigation and recommendations to be made by the organized women of Atlanta. They are going to the bottom of things and return a constructive report. They invite all the women of the city to co-operate. They were largely instrumental in the passage of the $3,000,000 bond issue. They will be equally effectual in the educational crisis. Their report needs only to tell the truth to prod the most apathetic apologist for present conditions into action.

WHEN PARTIES CHANGE FLAGS

When several years ago the fight against Cannonism begun and insurgency in both parties generally showed its head, The Constitution hailed the events as the infallible symptoms of a realignment of political forces in this country. Since then the situation has become further confused by the projection of the Roosevelt wing of the republican party, but in the more fundamental aspects the prophecy is yet to be fulfilled. In a recent issue of Collier's Mark Sullivan, the political expert, insists that realignment is steadily on the way.

It is when congress, in regular session, attacks the problem of the trusts that Mr. Sullivan thinks the old parties will fall to pieces. The democratic caucus will lose its solidarity, he believes, and "as soon as this happens there may very well come that break-up of parties which is the necessary preliminary to a new line-up in the United States, a normal division between men whose minds and interests are conservative and those whose minds and interests are liberal."

Other political authorities are echoing this reasoning. The Constitution believes it is yet too early to say whether the question of the trusts will bring a parting of the ways. It is, indeed, yet too early to say that the division is coming during the Wilson administration. Had Mr. Wilson failed in leadership there is every probability that a foundation for party realignment would even now have been laid. He has, consistently, shown a fine command of his party and an extraordinary ability to enforce discipline. Another fact worth considering is that the divergencies in the caucus and upon the floor have been more explosive than serious. They have been only such outbreaks as might be expected within any healthy party in power. With the blowing off of steam all hands settled down to their regular allegiance.

We are commenting in this vein, not to deny the impendency of a new party line-up, but as showing when it comes, and we believe it to be inevitable, that the democratic party will be clearly the majority party and as such will remain in power. Consider the old line republican party and the bull moose contingent. Both are broken and warring within themselves. Neither will follow leaders in or out of congress. It is even becoming doubtful if the name of Roosevelt be one with which to conjure inspiration or misgiving. The fragments of the once invincible G. O. P. do not, almost literally, know where they are at. Against this chaos place democratic solidarity. The answer is self-evident. It may be that the problem of the trusts, or some other issue, will be the signal for the readjustment. If it should so prove, and if present appearances count, the democrats will gain two recruits for each one they lose. And if it should be nominated the liberal party, and here again we hazard merely a speculation, it will be a sound and constructive liberality, characterized by no weird vagaries or menacing experiments.

AN "AD" ON WHEELS.

The products and possibilities of Georgia will be shown the northwestern portion of the country next spring, when the Macon Chamber of Commerce puts a train on the road for that specific purpose. It is the plan of the chamber to start the train some time between the months of April and June. The objective point of the tour will be Minneapolis, where the Georgians will attend the Minnesota state fair, one of the best of its kind in the country. En route to Minneapolis and return all strategic points will be visited.

It is expected that forty cities in Georgia will have exhibits on display, all the more important chambers of commerce to be represented, and the state chamber of commerce having indorsed the plan. The train itself will be one of the handsomest of the kind ever sent out, and will be, in effect, a traveling exposition of what this section has to offer the home-seeker and the capitalist.

One of the happiest features of the Macon idea is that the train is destined to penetrate exactly that section of America that is now losing a large annual percentage of population to Canada, composed of people of the very class that could most easily and profitably be assimilated into the southern structure.

There is ample room in Georgia for many of the thousands that are now leaving the northwest in quest of a more genial climate, or, as in the case of Canada, cheaper and more fertile land. We have here the climatic requirements, and land is cheap enough and plentiful enough to suit the most exacting. In addition, our civilization and institutions are all established. There are no new trails to blaze, no uncongenial environment to subdue.

All these facts are being told the nation in various forms of publicity, by the southern railroads, by the commercial bodies and through other channels. There is nothing so convincing, however, as ocular demonstration, and it is ocular demonstration that the Macon Chamber of Commerce is about to employ. We respectfully suggest to the state chamber of commerce the advisability of co-operating to the end of sending the train over an itinerary even broader than that now contemplated.

THE JAG OR THE JOB.

Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, has strongly hinted to naval officers the incompatibility between the jag and the job, to use the vernacular. Recently a naval officer stood charged with public drunkenness. The secretary took the opportunity to lay down the policy of the department, under his administration, with regard to John Barleycorn. Employers could, he said, retain employees who drank to excess if they pleased. But the naval officer was a public servant. Indiscretion on his part was a public scandal. He intimated there would be harsh discouragement of alcoholism henceforward in the naval establishment.

The principle laid down by Secretary Daniels is becoming gradually prevalent in America. We do not say that employers incline to teetotalism or, to monkish severity. But they long ago found out that whisky and efficiency were incompatible, and the man who tries to mix elbow exercise with his work is finding the feat steadily more difficult.

The tendency to hold the drinker under suspicion, and a possible ban, begun with the railroads and other occupations suffering acutely from the unsteady hand and the dull eye. It has spread until now there are few vocations exempt from the rule that the man with the best chance to get ahead is the man who makes it a tolerably long time between drinks. Even the leniency that used to excuse night drinking, so long as the transgressor reported the next day, is passing. Observant and candid men know that this business of secret tippling is about the most destructive to judgment and the mental faculties generally.

The economic interdict against whisky is today the most forceful factor for temperance in the land. There is nothing fanatical or sentimental about it. Its enforcement is automatic. Once you give a man the alternative between his job and his drink it is not going to take any pledge to hold him to the straight and narrow path. The tendency here noted is one of the most significant in our day and the meaning of its steady advance cannot be misinterpreted.

THE YOUNG ATLANTAN.

The chamber of commerce is going to inoculate the schoolboys of Atlanta with the "Atlanta spirit." That will be the effect of the movement, recently launched, to establish a junior order of the chamber of commerce. Harrison Jones is in charge of the committee and at a recent luncheon tendered by Wilmer L. Moore educators and citizens having most to do with the life of young Atlanta took enthusiastically to the idea.

There is every reason why a training for life or for a vocation should be supplemented also by a training in civic pride and enterprise. We owe the Atlanta of today to the energy and foresight, first, of the pioneers, later, to the same qualities exhibited in their sons. If we are to perpetuate the Atlanta of tomorrow upon an even broader scale, the intelligent co-operation of the boys now rising to manhood will be indispensable.

These ends will be gained not simply by the teaching of civil government and of political economy. Such studies are well enough in their way, but they are too abstract to leave an abiding impression on the mind of the average student. They may serve admirably with the youth who is to become a lawyer, a politician or a teacher, but to the future business man they are likely to make only the casual appeal of any study on the general curriculum.

To vitalize the civic ideal and make it a concrete one is the way to reach the boy's conscience and plant a definite germ of citizenship in his opening mind. This may best be accomplished by showing him the meaning of the things going on all around him, illustrating the significance of poor streets and sanitation, the necessity for good government, the penalty of neglecting to exercise the right of the ballot, the privilege of its proper application.

The man who fears that such a course may implant politics too early in the immature mind does not analyze very deeply. Lessons in practical patriotism are as important and should be as easily absorbed as lessons in grammar, in algebra or the dead languages. Indeed, show the boy how to become and remain a good citizen and he is apt to pursue the matter of personal equipment of his own volition.

The chamber of commerce is to be congratulated for its activity in instilling patriotism in young Atlantans. The respect for good government and for law and order consequent thereto will well repay the expense and effort.

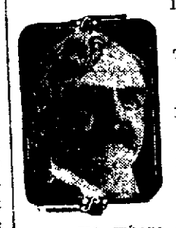
A Millionaire of Home.

The government is doin' well; the tariff's bringin' down
The goods that were a-risin' far out o' sight o' town;


I've figured on it night an' day, but, gittin' down to facts,
They cannot git along, they say, without my income tax.

Let's see: 'Bout all my income on earth—or up above,
Is in the wealth I'm claimin' in a little woman's love;
Now, if for that they taxed me, where, then, would I be at She's lovin' me a million. Could I pay the tax on that?

An' come to think it over the little ones just three,—
Their love's more than a million each to the glad heart o' me,
So, take the mother an' the brood—their love, by day an' year,
No matter how I figure it, foots up four million—clear!

There's where I give myself away who long so poor have seemed;
I'm richer in the world today than governments ever dreamed!
An income that's the biggest where highest incomes roam;
A calm, contented citizen—a Millionaire of Home!

Briefs From Billville.

There's so much life in the old land we have to hustle to keep time to the music; but thank the Lord, we have the cash to pay the fiddler.

The citizen who advertised for a wife has got us into trouble. Every woman who has answered the ad wants to know if we'll guarantee the husband

We return thanks for invitations to six Prosperity dances, at Hallelula Town gatherings, but if we work our feet to death we'll never have time to give Prosperity a chance to soak into our soul

We are now wearing the Income Tax look, and what little time we can spare is devoted to pelting old Poverty with golden nuggets. It's easy to steal a march on him, since he is blinded by the gold dust.

The Soul of the Song.

When he started on "Amazin' Grace" he raised the roof," they say,
An' with old "Jordan's Stormy Banks" he scaled the storms away.
Through such a high, uplifting voice we read our titles clear
We lose from being it to height until the Zion gates were near

Now that's what I call singin'—to lift a mortal high
From the sorrows of the valley to the hilltops of the sky,
To make the saints an' sinners forgit this lowly place,
To glimpse the other country an' meet heaven face to face

No doubt you've all heard singin' that carried you along—
The kind that's called "the liftin'—hallelujah-reachin' song"
When the soul o' you got restless an', flutterin' about,
Went on the upward journey an' reached heaven with a shout

That was the kind he gave 'em—that made it all rejoice
With the sweet, immortal feelin' of the soul that's in the voice,
There's never no misdoubtin it, you git the feelin' when They break into the music with "Glory! an' "Amen!"

Singin' time'll soon be done here, where the homeless roam,
But we'll recognize that music across the hills of Home
With angels for the audience we'll hear the same notes rise,— Twill be sweeter music singin' 'round the everlastin' skies

The Mystery of the Poet.

In a sketch entitled "The Friendly Road," in the American Magazine, David Grayson says of the poet:

"The poet sings his song and goes his way. If we sought him out, how horribly disappointed we might be! We might find him shaving, or eating sausage, or drinking a bottle of beer. We might find him shaggy and unkempt where we imagined him beautiful, weak where we thought him strong, dull where we thought him brilliant. Take then the vintage of his heart and let him go. As for me, I'm glad some mystery is left in this world."

The World's Mysteries

THE FATE OF AUGUSTA OF BRUNS.

Nearly a century and a half ago a wedding party assembled in the chapel of the ducal palace at Brunswick. It was a royal wedding—a scene of much splendor and still more rejoicing, with no lack of outward show and true hearty feeling.

There was much to interest the spectators in the bride and bridegroom. They were both young, handsome, accomplished, the world lay before them with a fair promise of honor and prosperity, with no cloud to dim their horizon, no evil omen to shadow their future. But if the evil which mercifully concealed that future had been for one moment uplifted, it would have revealed a dark and terrible fate in store for the young girl whose life had hitherto seemed so bright and untroubled. Before many years had elapsed, that beautiful bride was destined to perish in a foreign land, far from her husband, her children and her family, under circumstances of peculiar horror. The mystery that shrouds the fate of Augusta of Brunswick has never been explained, and her very name is now almost forgotten.

The first-born child of the gallant warrior, the Duke of Brunswick, had wooed and won the hand of an English princess, Augusta, daughter of Frederick, Prince of Wales, and sister of George III. The Princess was only in her sixteenth year at the time of her marriage to Frederick William, Prince of Wurtemberg. She was beautiful, accomplished, gifted with warm affections, a generous heart, and peculiarly graceful and winning manners.

In 1784 Frederick of Wurtemburg entered the Russian military service, and quitting Germany, took up his residence at St. Petersburg. He was accompanied by his wife and children. This ill-advised step, which brought about the most fatal results, was undertaken against the wish of the Duke of Brunswick, who naturally dreaded and disliked the idea of his daughter being placed in so trying and dangerous a position. The Russian court was notorious, even in those very easy-going days, for its inherent and unblushing licentiousness, and the favor and friendship which Catherine II extended to the princess was fraught with peril to a young, handsome and inexperienced woman.

At this distance of time it is impossible to decide as to the guilt or innocence of this unfortunate princess; the more so as scarcely any reliable information can be obtained on this point. It is said by some writers that she occasioned the deepest shame and disgrace to her husband and her family, whilst others declare that, though imprudent and thoughtless, she remained innocent at heart. However this may be, it is certain that the Prince treated his wife at this time with indifference, if not neglect, and that serious differences had arisen between them. At length the Duke of Brunswick wrote to his son-in-law advising him to leave Russia without delay, and to rescue his consort from an atmosphere of so much danger. Frederick at once acted on this advice, and, relinquishing his appointment, prepared to quit Russia; but the Princess refused peremptorily to accompany him. She declared her intention of remaining at St. Petersburg under the protection of the Empress; and finding all remonstrance unavailing, Frederick was compelled to leave, followed only by his children.

A year elapsed, and then the news reached the Duke of Brunswick that his daughter had died suddenly. No details or dates were given; nothing but the dry, curt, official announcement. Heartbroken by the tidings, the Duke wrote at once to Catherine, desiring to have some further information on the subject, and also requesting that the body of the ill-fated Princess might be given up to him; but no answer was ever vouchsafed to this letter. The imperial autocrat of all the Russias could afford to turn a deaf ear to the threats an dentreaties or a petty prince

It appears that for a short time, the Princess of Wurtemberg shone at court as one of Catherine's chief favorites, flattered, admired, and triumphant; but she was suddenly arrested one night, separated from her German attendants, and transported to the castle of Lhode, situated about two hundred miles from St. Petersburg. From that time Augusta of Brunswick was never seen alive, but the manner of her death remains a profound mystery. A few months later it was announced that the Princess of Wurtemberg had died from the breaking of a blood vessel, but no further details were given, and no inconvenient questions asked.

It has been said that jealousy of the Princess' superior beauty and youth aroused the enmity of Catherine II, and that she adopted this plan to rid herself of a dangerous rival. But the motive of this dark tragedy remains a matter for speculation, and no clew to the real fate of Augusta of Brunswick has ever been obtained. The Princess was only in her twenty-fourth year at the time of her mysterious death.

THE NEW CITY COURT.

Editor Constitution: Throughout the United States there is a prevalent feeling that our courts are inefficient. While this feeling has not crystallized into any wide and co-ordinated movement, it has resulted in a very general lack of respect for the methods in existence to determine the questions that are submitted to our judicial tribunals.

It is recognized that the administration of justice, especially in the cities, presents difficulties unknown to sparsely settled communities.

The Chicago Municipal court was organized to mee the special needs of cities and that court has been so successful that it is known and talked of throughout the world.

The bar of Atlanta, recognizing the need for a more efficient system, especially for cases involving small amounts, appointed a committee which has spent months in the preparation of a municipal court law for Atlanta. That this law is not perfect is only what could have been expected. Aside from the imperfections of the men who drew it, the law had to meet conditions over which the committee had no control.

If, however, this court recently established in Atlanta shall be properly officered, it is but a question of time when through the steady application of its officers as a result of its experience we will have in Atlanta a court that will itself be a model, at least for Georgia, and in which litigated rights may be determined not ably properly, but speedily and with an efficient administration.

The success of the court depends upon the judges who may be appointed under the law creating it. It is quite probable that the importance of the court and the importance of the position of judge thereof is not fully appreciated. It is not a justice court. It is true, it deals with amounts of five hundred dollars and less, but frequently these small amounts involve rights and results of deep interest to society.

The judges of the court should not be mere justice court lawyers, or even merely efficient practitioners, they should be men of learning, with a broad view of the political economy involved in the administration of justice. Such men exist in Atlanta, and in drawing the law creating the court provision was made for the superior court judges to nominate the judges of the municipal court, the purpose of the provision being to obtain the expert advice of the able judges presiding in Fulton county superior court.

These superior court judges, in the performance of this duty, have the opportunity of serving their county and their state by the selection of men who will make the municipal court of Atlanta a model and a guide.

Freed as is the appointment from any suggestion of politics, the superior court judges can study the eligible members of the Atlanta bar as they study and decide a law suit, the sole object being to arrive at a correct and just conclusion.

If this be done, we will have cause to rejoice in the creation of our municipal court; unless this will not only endanger the success of the court, but will make our last state worse than our first.

EDGAR WATKINS.

Tobacco as a Drug.

(From The Indianapolis News.)

"Is tobacco a drug, a necessity or a luxury," is the three-pronged question that has arisen in Ireland in connection with the administrationof the national insurance act. The superintending medical officer of the Dublin district recommended that a consumptive patient coming under the provisions of the act, should have tobacco for smoking as a solace and a comfort to him in his last days. He offered to pay for the weed himself, but the insurance committee, deciding that the tobacco was necessary to the patient's treatment, sent the bill therefor to the insurance commissioners. Two weeks later the local authorities wrote demanding an explanation for charging the government with a shilling's worth of tobacco. The answer received was that tobacco is recognized as a drug in the British Codex (which answers to the American dispensatory) under the title "nicotiana tobaccum" and that it had been presented by a registered practioner. Meanwhile the patient is dead, the tobacco has been smoked and the question of payment is grinding through the circumlocution office

Advantage of Good Roads.

(From DeKalb New Era.)

It is said that a four-mule team pulled 14 bales of cotton to Newnan the other day over one of Coweta's roads. We have seen some roads over which fourteen mules could not draw four bales, but we are getting better all over Georgia in that particular.

THE COOK STOVE.

By GEORGE FITCH,
Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

The cook stove is the boon companion of the housewife.

The cook stove sticketh closer to the housewife than a brother, and twice as close as a husband. The husband sits across the table from his wife and reads the paper, but the cookstove snuggles up close to her and glows in her face, and burns her apron and her forearm, and spatters hot lard in her eye.

The cook stove has a temperature of 145 in its oven and 212 in its immediate vicinity. This is unfortunate, because if its oven were larger the housewife might sit therein and be more comfortable while the meat was roasting on a chair in the kitchen.

The cook stove consumes coal and wood with visible reluctance. It is harder to start than an automobile. Man thinks he is abused because his wife sits in the tonneau and rests while he toils at the crank in front and melts his collar and the surrounding iron work with his rage. But man has just begun to get his in the last ten years, whereas women have been starting cook stoves, in one form or another since the world began.

The cook stove is mild and dejected in the winter, and often declines to start at all. When the thermometer is 30 below nothing but kerosene will start a cook stove, and many a bereaved husband points with pride to the patch in the roof, which covers the hole made by his wife when she went aloft by the kerosene route. But in the good old summer time the cook stove does not hesitate to burn. It will start on anything, and will acquire a healthy red color on two lumps of coal and a shingle. When the weary husband comes home at 6 o'clock and throws himself into his arm chair, he has to shut the kitchen door to keep from being broiled alive by the faithful and energetic cook stove over which his wife is at that moment bending, trying to restrain it from burning $1.75 worth of beef-steak to a cinder.

Women may not be mentally capable of wiping their tired hands and hurrying down to the polls twice a year, but they can do wonderful things on the cook stove. The cook

"The housewife might sit therein and be more comfortable while the meat was roasting on a chair in the kitchen."

stove, under woman's guiding genius, has made millions of men contented and fat. It has also made the women of the world the principal supporters of religion. Somehow after a woman has come to know a cook stove inside and out, and summer and winter, she has a fear of the extreme saltiness of future punishment, which cannot be obtained by a mere man.

Massenet's Hobby Helped Bookbinder.

In the recently published recollections of Massenet a story is told, says the Hamburger Nachrichten, illustrating the composer's passionate admiration for beautiful bindings. Not a week passed without a visit from him to his bookbinder, when he brought a new book or a new edition to be bound. In the course of time he and his bookbinder became the best of friends, and when Massenet arrived the talk was at first of everything on earth except the real object of his visit.

"Look here!" Massenet would say eventually, giving the man the volume to be bound.

"Splendid!" replied the bookbinder, and then for his customer and friend he would devise some fresh wonder in the art of binding.

One morning Massenet suddenly learned that his friend was giving up business. He hurried to his shop. "Heavens! Is it true you are leaving Paris?" he asked.

"Why, certainly; I have bought a charming little country house near Nantes."

"What! A country house! And in the provinces!" And he added sadly: "Ah! my poor friend, I am partly responsible for that."

ARKWRIGHT DENIES HE PROMISED A RATE

Says Company Used No Deceit in Getting a Franchise to Stone Mountain

"I want to deny the charges that this company deceived its prospective patrons into the belief that the fare on the new interurban would be 15 cents between Atlanta and Stone Mountain said Preston S Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Electric company, discussing the recent rate hearing before the railroad commission

There was not a scintilla of evidence brought out at the hearing to substantiate the accusation that such a promise had been made, or that the company or any of its officers practiced deceit in securing the right of way I produced the letter which I wrote just after the delegation of Stone Mountain citizens appeared before me with the suggestion that we run a line to that place In the letter I reiterated the various discussions we had and no effort was made to bring out testimony to show that we made false representations

The rate is the lowest of any street railway interurban line in Georgia notwithstanding the fact that the Georgia Railway and Electric company paid the highest price for the right of way in the state Our right of way to Marietta which is longer than that to Stone Mountain, cost a little more than $70 000, whereas we paid $42,000 for the right of way to Stone Mountain

President Arkwright stated that in sofar as the merits of the controversy are concerned he believes the railroad commission will see the justice of the rates proposed and that the patrons of the new road will also see that they have been fairly treated

HOWELL'S MILL ROAD WORK TO BEGIN SOON

Tracks for Extension of the Car Line to Be Laid in a Few Days

President Preston S Arkwright of the Georgia Railway and Electric company stated yesterday that the tracks for the extension of the Marietta street lines out Howells Mill road, will be laid just as soon as the county completes the grading of the street

I have no idea what the status of the work is, President Arkwright replied saturday when asked what progress had been made I was informed that the county has installed some machinery on the ground and is ready to start work immediately

The line will be extended along Howells Mill road for a distance of more than a mile The company has made all preliminary arrangements to make the extension but can do nothing until the grading is finished If there are any cuts to be filled in the work will be retarded a little during the time the earth is settling

President Arkwright stated that the company is anxious to get to work on the extension in order to facilitate the patrons living beyond the present terminus also that the construction department might get to work on other projects which are of vast importance to the company and to the city

ATKINSON HOPES TO WIDEN W. PEACHTREE

Asks That Regrading of the Street Now in Progress Be Held Up

A delegation of West Peachtree property owners, headed by Judge Spencer Atkinson appeared before the street committee of council yesterday and urged that further work on the regrading and paving of that thoroughfare be held in abeyance for a few days at least

Judge Atkinson briefly outlined a new scheme for further improving the street explaining that the property owners are now anxious to give the street an additional width of five feet on each side from Hunnicutt south. It is understood that a majority of the owners have agreed to give the city the right-of-way necessary

The work has advanced to such a point that a majority of the members of the committee do not believe that the scheme is feasible at this time The retaining walls made necessary by reason of the regrading have been erected, and the city and county forces are getting ready to start with the actual work of regrading and paving While the committee has not been fully informed of the details of the new project, it is the consensus of opinion that it the widening will necessitate the removal of the retaining walls, the city will not agree to the work unless the property owners stand the expense of tearing the walls down and rebuilding them

Even under these conditions the widening of the street will have to be agreed to by the county which means a delay which the city is not anxious to encourage

Marriage at the Age of 126

A STORY WITHOUT A PARALLEL | By REV JAS W LEE

(The following story was written a few days ago by Rev. James W. Lee, former pastor of Trinity Methodist and Park Street Methodist churches in Atlanta, for publication today in a St Louis newspaper, he being now pastor of St. John's M. E. church, of that city Containing a reminiscence of such remarkable interest to Georgians, a copy of the article was upon request furnished by Dr. Lee to The Constitution and is reproduced herewith.)

About twenty three years ago I was spending a day with a friend in McDonough Ga out twenty miles from Atlanta Reference was made to an old man in the poorhouse of Henry county two miles in the country, by the name of Hiram Lester who was 126 years old I was assured that there was not the slightest doubt about his age I proposed a pilgrimage to the poorhouse to see the man It occurred to me that a person born in 1764 just 65 years after Washington was born and who had lived on the planet with Washington 33 years and who had managed to live 97 years after Washington had passed to his long home was an exceedingly interesting human fact

Across the fields we walked to the group of cottages which together make up the Henry county poorhouse We found Uncle Hiram Lester sitting under the shade of a tree He'd there been doubt as to his age before the sight of him would have removed the last vestige of it His face is a mult up of a net work of wrinkles that even Time could never have woven in a shorter period than 126 years To stand in the presence of a man born in the first part of the reign of George III, was sufficient to excite not only the admiration but the awe and reverence of one endowed with even a slight degree of imagination But the sublimity and wonder of the situation of which Uncle Hiram Lester was the center was multiplied by the remarkable fact that he had a suit for the poorhouse with him—that is Uncle Hiram Lester's body was born just one year after the death of Washington Any one can see that here was an opportunity for a rare interview

Never Used Tobacco

How have you managed to live so long said I to Uncle Hiram

I don't know, he replied

What do you eat said I

Meat and greens and bread he responded

Do you ever drink any liquor was asked

Occasionally I take a dram he said

Do you use tobacco was the next question fired at this contemporary of Washington

I have never used tobacco in any form except for hen bites horses for the colic

I was very sorry to have this answer made to my question because up to that time I had sometimes smoked now and then and it occurred to me that it would be assuring to learn that a man 126 years old had used tobacco

I learned upon further inquiry that he was a member of the Hardshell Baptist church He believed in the laws of God ordained from before the foundation of the world In his esteem the secret of living a long time was to fall into line with the laws ordained by the Almighty If by the sort of poetic license we could think of the divine decrees as a shooting star Uncle Hiram had in the early part of his life secured for himself a through ticket on this train and quietly domesticating himself in a good comfortable seat, had come all the way from 1764 to 1890 without much or no concern in his esteem the Lord was running things and as far as he was concerned he had early made up his mind to let the Lord transport him through life

Admittance at 15 Cents Per.

I was so much impressed with the life of this old man and his son that upon my return to Atlanta I asked a photographer in the city to go down to McDonough and take a photograph of Uncle Hiram Lester With pictures to illustrate my interview I wrote the story of Hiram Lester and his son for the newspapers This excited a great deal of attention all over Georgia Hiram Lester had been a carpenter and had lived a quiet sort of life in the country and perhaps his name had never appeared in a newspaper before But the second view of the old man and him known at once to the people Georgians always proud of their commonwealth were of course gratified to find such a human specimen as Henry had been produced in their section of the country

The story was to be left in the hall of that year in Atlanta Some months afterward McDonough carried the idea of capitalizing the advertising Uncle Hiram Lester has received as at the opening of the fair they brought the old man and his son up to the city Grant had a tent erected them in the grounds of the exposition and were charging fifteen cents for every person who entered the tent to see this remarkable pair of human beings

Bride 85, Groom 126.

There was an old Hardshell Baptist preachers wife living in Griffin about 30 years old who had known Uncle Hiram Lester in the days when he was a carpenter at his trade at carpenter and during that he was making money in Atlanta she came up to the city and renewed her acquaintance with him and doubtless indicated to him that she would not be altogether immoral to refuse a proposition of matrimony on his part Anyhow they were soon engaged A young man came to my house early one morning it was then pastor at Park street church in Atlanta and asked me if I would perform a marriage ceremony Not knowing who it was I said yes He said that Uncle Hiram Lester and Mrs Moseley were going to get married and would come to the parlor for the ceremony I told him that I could not see my way clear to do it He wanted to know why I told him I drew the line at 100 and would marry no man over 100 years old A justice of the peace was secured and they were married in the front grounds They lived together about three months and then separated Uncle Hiram Lester and his son going back to the poorhouse and Mrs Moseley going back to Griffin Uncle Hiram lived six years after that and died 132 years old I was living in St Louis when he passed away and read an Associated Press dispatch in the Globe Democrat of nearly half a column, giving the particulars of his age and remarkable life I do not believe that this story has any parallel in the history of the United States

ARE YOU READY FOR THE BIG GEORGIA STATE FAIR?

Every Building and Exhibit Is Ready for You. Best and Biggest Agricultural Exhibit Ever Seen Before. More Live Stock and Better Live Stock, More Blue Ribbon Winners, More Fine Horses Than Other Years.

Grand Opening Tuesday Oct. 21st

The "MIDWAY" at the State Fair this year will be the strongest lot of amusements that could possibly be brought together. There will be seen Captain Sorcho's Great Deep Sea Divers, a show that never goes only to largest events. This show is a power of amusement within itself.

Then, there is the "Trip to Mars," Buckskin Ben's Wild West Show, Mazeppa, Pekin-Pekin, Dreamland Circus Side Show, Motordrome, Oriental Show, Ostrich Farm, Five in One, Dig-Bro Electus, Dixie Girls, Vaudeville Show, Diving Girls, and many More.

The entrance to the Midway is a thing of beauty, and represents a royal arch stretching from two immense columns, leaving the grand entrance beneath the arch. The top is enlivened with an electrical fountain with the words "MIDWAY, 1913," in electric letters. This entrance was designed at great expense by "Putzel," the Live Wire Man of Macon.

You can have a barrel of fun on the Midway. Go there often and stay late, and you will have the time of your life.

AUTO POLO is a new thing for Georgia. It is the new game of POLO played with real steaming automobiles weighing 2,500 lbs. It is the most exciting and blood-curdling performance that you have ever witnessed. If you are looking for something out of the ordinary as a hair-splitting, dare-devil stunt, then this act will suit you. Seen daily afternoons and night in the big hippodrome.

Rememer that the good old-time races of other days are coming back. We will have the real thing covered by the rules of the National Racing Association. The very best horses of this country will ocmpete for the big cash purses. Over 500 horses will take part in the big trotting and pacing races. Remember that the races start SATURDAY, OCTOBER 25.

Watch out for the man taking the Moving Pictures of the State Fair Grounds. These pictures will be shown on the grounds each day. Be sure to watch for the Movie Man and get into the pictures. See how you look. All the buildings and the exhibits of live stock and machinery may be seen in moving pictures.

The buildings are full to overflowing with the best exhibits that have ever been upon the grounds. Especially is this true of the Agricultural Building. More counties are making exhibits than ever before, showing that they are beginning to learn that advertising pays. The Manufacturing Building will also have its big share of exhibits, and many handsome souvenirs will be given away in this building. The Woman's Building is also full of the very choicest of woman's handicraft, and here one may see elegant cakes and other goodies, as well as the very daintiest hand embroidery and other needlework.

Arrangements have been made with one of the largest Fireworks Companies in the United States for the gaudiest display of Fireworks each night at the Big Hippodrome. Set pieces and ornamental sprays, intermingled with sky-dropping bombs that transfuse a million varicolored stars, will be seen each night.

IN MEMORIAM.

In the death of Joe Davidson, the ranks of the salesmen who work out of Atlanta have suffered a loss which can never be fully filled Mr. Davidson was one of the best representatives of that splendid class of men who today form the backbone of business the salesmen He represented the Frank E Block company of this city for many years and his territory comprised the Southern road to Macon and the Georgia road from Crawfordsville south

Mr Davidson's death took place last Tuesday night and he was buried at Bairdstown, Ga on Thursday morning Paul S Pause represented his firm at the burial

He was a member of U C T, Atlanta Council 18, and is sincerely mourned by his fellow members While not a strictly religious man in the narrow sense of the term, Mr Davidson was one of the best men it has ever been the writer's pleasure to meet, and if all those who came in daily contact with him, will take his life as an example of how to live and keep it ever before them, he will have left a mark on his community which will work for good as long as mankind retains a memory

Mr Davidson is survived by his wife and two young children.

A TALE WITH A MORAL.

Georgia Has to Send to California for Peas.

Have you ever met 'Sport' Ramseur of Fain & Stamps? If you have you will realize that it is rather hard to think of the hustling, cheerful, "good fellow" 'Sport' in a preaching role Nevertheless, he preached a sermon yesterday morning that should be heard by every man in Georgia It wasn't long It was forceful. It had a punch and lots of point

His text was 'Black-Eyed Peas" He said

'Where do you think black-eyed peas are grown' Georgia" Of course, you do Everybody does They belong to Georgia like melons peaches and such like, don't they" Well, don't runaway with the idea that when you eat black eyed peas you are always helping to boost the Georgia farmer Georgia doesn't raise enough of them to supply her homefolks, let alone ship them out of the state We have sold 3 000 bags of these peas this year Known, where do you think" California Sure Three thousand bags Two hundred tons Two hundred tons of produce which Georgia eats and which she ought to grow for herself, and she sends to California for them'

That is 'Sport' Ramseur's sermon. Good one, isn't it?

Bill Tellam, the popular 'Beech Nut man states that his sales of Beech Nut chewing gum are increasing daily Mr Tellam has worked hard to advertise this line and the quality of his goods has backed up his efforts in a business winning way.

L B Robinson, of the A M Robinson company, has been laid up at his home for the past week suffering from chills and fever He hopes to be out again this week, however

Owing to a slight misconception which has arisen in the wholesale grocery line in the city, caused by an erroneous statement made elsewhere last week, it may be noted that James F Reeves is still with the Oglesby Grocery company and is not liable to leave them for some considerable time to come

R L Smith, on the southeast Georgia territory for the A M Robinson company, came in Saturday for his advance spring samples Walter Jones, from the central south Georgia territory will sart out with his line tomorrow.

An "Atlanta-Made" Banquet

The banquet which is shown above was given in the offices of the Atlanta Retail Grocers and Butchers' association. Every dish on the table is made of exclusively "Atlanta-Made" goods. The occasion was the presentation of a gold watch to O. T. Camp, president of the association, in recognition of his splendid work in securing the Wednesday half holiday for the grocers and butchers of the city during the summer months. Mr. Camp is seen holding the watch in his hand.

The J K. Orr Shoe company report business as good all over the territory for the past week J K Orr, Jr, said 'The way in which the orders have come in from all over the territory proves that this past week is the best we have had for a long time While no particular section has stood out above the others, the average has been so high that the total almost makes a record

Bill Quarles, city salesman with Fain & Stamps reports that they have sold over 400 boxes of prunes on the north side of the city alone during the past week He states that while there is a little scarcity of prunes this year, still these are exceptionally good quality and are in big demand

Percy Harris, who travels South Carolina for the A M Robinson company, was in during the past week and is now gone again with his samples for the advance spring line

The Capital City Tobacco company is sporting some extra attractive new signs for the Paola and Francesca cigars this week.

The Dixie Pickle and Preserving company report that they have sold a carload of pickles in the city this week and the goods are going out as fast as they can ship them, generally.

Mack Hirshberg, of the Hirshberg company, wishes his friends to know that the reason he is not out on the road again is because he has so much to look after in the shipping department in the house that it is simply impossible for him to get away for a few days He hopes to be out with samples again by the first of November, however.

President E L. Adams, of the E L Adams company, was in Jacksonville, Fla this week attending the executive board meeting of the Southern Wholesale Grocers' association

Charlie Babb, who travels on the Georgia road for the Gramling-Spalding company, was in the city last week and underwent a doctor's examination The result will probably be that he will have to be operated on for appendicitis. While he is off his territory, W G Baskin, house salesman, will cover it for him.

Ed S Hudson, with the S P. Richards company, who has been under the weather for the past few months, has finally decided that he must not go out again for a little while Consequently he will temporarily work the city trade, while the city salesman, George E Lunsford, covers his territory for him.

Just Thoughts

Isn't it hard to tell exactly which man can be classed as good and which one as bad? It was said once of a man whose rascalities were famous over two continents that he had committed every conceivable crime except the few that led to jail or gallows.' It is true that it is impossible to draw the line between convicts and the rest of the world. The warden of a big penitentiary told the writer that it was his belief that there were just two classs of men who were generally to be found inside his walls. The exceptionally bad and the exceptionally good.

There is a certain character who is so exceptionally good, according to the usually accepted standards, that he could be held up as a model by every teacher in the country. He doesn't smoke, drink, chew, swear, go out at nights, go to theaters (not even pictur eshows), saves his money, is a reliable employee (he is a bookkeeper) and in other ways appears to be a perfect little tin god on wheels, with a string attached.

But that same man can't equal another fellow who does pretty nearly every one of the tabooed things that No. 1 leaves severely alone. The reason is because No. 2 is one of the biggest hearted fellows in Atlanta today. No person who was in distress or trouble ever came to him for help in vain, if it was in his power to help them. While No. 1 hasn't any heart at all according to the evidence so far evident. He never helped anybody yet unless it was to his own advantage. He is suffering under that delusion that "money" is the thing which commands most respect in the world, which is a common delusion in these United States. He doesn't do all the sinful things because they are expensive, not because they are sinful. But the fact remains that they are sinful and No. 2 does do them while No. 1 doesn't—so which is the better of the two?

Picking characters is a puzzle which just about caps the climax in this big puzzle we all are living in.

The proper way to finish this inconsequential effort would be by quoting R. L. Stvenson, Bobby Burns, Omar Khayyam or any one of half a dozen others. Pick out your own quotation and finish the thing to suit yourself.

C A Smith, with the A. M Robinson company, is recovering rapidly from his attack of appendicitis He has been in the city all week, but will probably be back on his territory this coming week.

The All Star Manufacturing company reports that collections shipments and sales are all excellent Shipments for November so far show an increase of 25 per cent over the entire month in 1912.

"Something for Nothing."

I wish someone would rise and explain the almost universal human failing of expecting to get without giving an equivalent. I'll take off my hat, bow my head, and admit frocly, that it passes my comprehension.

"You can't get something for nothing," is one of the most common of all current expressions. You hear it on the lips of people of all classes. And bless their hearts, they believe it too.

You believe it.

I believe it.

And yet for some reason I cannot fathom, we are all of us all the time trying in one way or another, to beat the immutable laws of nature at their own game.

The man who resorts to stimulants is trying to get energy without paying the price of nourishment and use by means of which alone energy can be purchased.

The man who overeats is trying to get gustatory gratification without paying the price of muscular activity sufficient to give him real, earned hunger.

The man who overworks is trying to get two life-times of effort for the price of one.

The man who cheats or overcharges or underpays his fellow man is so obviously foolish that he is becoming obsolete in up to date business.

It is easy enough to say all this—and to believe it.

But for some reason or other it is about as hard a task as man has ever attempted to know what is the fair deal to give it to one's self and to practice it toward others.

And the reason it is so hard I suppose is that it takes thought.—The Business Philosopher.

Farmers Getting Electricity Through Windmills

In the current issued of Farm and Fireside F S Culver, a practical and scientific electrician, writes an article entitled "The Convenience of Electricity on the Farm" showing how it is possible for the farmer to supply his own power and light. He brings out the fact that power for electricity can be obtained through windmills. He says that there are very few localities in the United States that do not have sufficient wind to operate one of these plants. Another notable feature is that the days of least wind occur in the summer months when the days are the longest and the least artificial light is required. These windmill plants are used to obtain in addition to the power for lights, power for small motors for the operation of some of the small machines about a farm, such as a cream separator, washing machine, churn and vacuum cleaner.

When to Sow Alfalfa.

(From The Progressive Farmer.)

Some of our readers who also read northern agricultural papers ask us about sowing alfalfa in the spring, and also about sowing it with nurse crops like oats, barley or wheat.

All things considered there is little doubt that the fall—September 1 to October 15—is the best period for sowing alfalfa in the south. Good results may be sometimes secured from spring seeding, but it is generally to be discouraged and should only be practiced when fall seeding is impracticable. It should never be sowed with nurse crops in the south.

OH, YOU CIDER!

Dixie Pickle and Preserving Co. Puts New Cider on Market.

Last week, when this scribe wandered into the offices of the Dixie Pickle and Preserving company, on Marietta street, Sales Manager Holt immediately hustled out to the factory on some mysterious errand. After guessing at fire, burglary, sudden death, acute indigestion and various other forms of come quick excuses reassurance came in the reappearance of Mr Holt, bearing a gallon pitcher in one hand and a glass tumbler in the other. Then the suspicious mind turned to illicit stills and thought of prying revenue officers and other things which are associated with unaccounted for liquids in mysterious pitchers. True enough, a tempting looking liquor did gurgle out of the pitcher into the glass and Old Man Holt held forth the glass with an inviting smile which would have suited either the temptations of the wily one himself or the friendly invitation of a ministering angel. (Imagine Brother Holt as an angel!)

A tentative sip a longer gulp a tasting of the lips and the smile that speaks of perfect gladness crept over the face of the sipper. Then the glass was extended for more and drained and extended—and drained—and—oh what's the use! It was new cider. Twenty four hours from the presses. Made from the pick of Georgia apples cold as ice, tempting as sin and delicious as a fairy's finger tips.

When you get a chance ask for some at the soda fount. They put it in twenty odd places the first day and are supplying as many as they can as fast as they can. But not as fast as the demand calls for. Because there is a limit to the supply of apples. But it is—well, mighty good.

What Is Your One Desire?

The thing you want—what is it?
No matter what it is—pay the price
And you may have it.
But will you be happy with it when you get it?

You have seen men seek wealth, fame, honor, position, achievement, attainment. You have seen them pay high prices for these things—and make the purchase.

But you have seen men who had attained, achieved and acquired much—men with gaunt cheeks, gray heads, trembling hands and great hollow eyes that ached with weariness and disillusionment.

When finally you have paid over the price—that for which you have labored a lifetime—and received the object of your souls longing, will you too look out upon a world without sunshine?

It is your most serious problem.
Why pour out your best for bitter fruit?

There is no permanent satisfaction or happiness in anything—material or otherwise—outside of yourself.
Wealth is good.
Fame is good.
Honor is good.
Attainment and achievement are good.

But all of these—and all other external things seen and unseen are only incidental to the One Great Ideal of Human Life which is

A spirit—within—having the power to enjoy all these things—or to be happy without them.

—Arthur W Newcomb, in The Business Philosopher.

NEVER GIVE UP

Never give up! It is wise and better
Always to hope than once to despair
Fling off the load to doubt's cankering fetter
And break the dark spell of pessimi-tical care
Never give up! or the burden may sink you
Providence kindly has mingled the cup
And, in all trial or troubles bethink you
The watchword of life must be—never give up!

Never give up! There are chances and changes
Helping the hopeful a hundred to one
And through the chaos High Wisdom arranges
Ever success—if you'll only hope on
Never give up! for the wisest is boldest
Knowing that Providence mingles the cup
And of all maxims the best, as the oldest,
Is the true watchword of—never give up!

Never give up! Though the grape-shot may rattle
Or the full thunder cloud over you burst
Stand like a rock—and the storm or the battle
Little shall harm you, though doing their worst
Never give up! if adversity presses,
Providence wisely has mingled the cup,
And the best counsel, in all your distresses,
Is the stout watchword of—never give up!

Diluted Christianity Destined to Conquer the World

Austrian Theological Writers Are Debating Whether or Not Christianity Will Become A n Universal Religion, and If So, How—Some See Hope In An Adaptable Christianity Which Will Attract the Nat ives of Asia and Africa.

Vienna, October 18.—Is the world becoming a world of Christians? Austrian theologians and statisticians are busy with this old problem. The thesis that it is, and also that it is not, has been propounded often since Christopher Frederick V. Ammon wrote his formidable, four-volumne essay on "The Development of Christianity into a World Religion." Things have changed radically since then, for every measure and reform suggested by Ammon as a means of making Christianity universal has since been condemned and rejected.

Ammon's theory was that the world is slowly growing Christian, and that the Christian religion is being modified and adapted in the necessary direction so that it will find favor with the heathen, but he admitted that the final form of Christianity and the full Christianization of the world were both far off.

Now, after eighty years of preaching Christianity without, and increasing its receptibility and plasticity within, only a third of mankind is Christian; and missionary records show that at the present rate of conversion millenniums must pass before—in the words of a Magyar poet, "the last heathen dies obdurate in unbelief, while his children pray for his soul to the Christian Redeemer."

Less Black Than It Seems.

This is a tiresome prospect for everyone except for paid officials of missionary leagues. But the prospect is less black than it seems. At least that may be judged from the present Austrian discussion, set going by lectures of Herr Arthur Pagacnik, and by a remarkable book recently published by Professor Karl Beth, of Vienna. The book is "Die Entwicklung des Christentums zur Universal Religion," a title almost the same as that of Ammon's big work. Dr. Beth is the leading Austrian theological writer in the law world, and, though a comparatively young man, he has written numerous books, dealing with the theology of Schlelermacher, with Oriental Christianity, with the philosophy of Giordano Bruno, against Drews' famous "Christian Myth," and on other such subjects, which are all dealt with in liberal but apologetical mood. And in his new work he sets himself to deal with the factors which are making Christianity essentially a world-religion which has potentialities of conscious free development as apart from mere evolution along predetermined laws. It is in this conscious development to meet the exigencies of the age and of geography and race that he sees a radiant hope that in a not far distant future Christianity will possess the earth.

In his lectures Herr Pagacnik began with a fierce attack on what is called the fruitlessness of missionary enterprise; and yet ended with optimistic predictions of universal Christianization. It will be a diluted Christianization. The position of the world as Herr Pagacnik puts it, is that in 1909, the last year for which there is a reliable estimate, there lived 550,000,000 Christians and about 967,000,000 non-Christians. The relative proportion of Christians has in the last century rapidly increased, although there has been a large absolute increase in the number of non-Christians.

Not Due to Missionaries.

Christianity owns a much larger percentage of the world than it did in 1800. But this is not due to missionary conversion, for there has not been a single case of a whole nation going over to Christianity, as nations did in the first millennium A. D. The relative increase in the number of Christians is due to the economic development of Europe which has enabled five persons to live comfortably on an area which formerly supported with trouble one; to the improved world-communications and commerce, which have made Christian mankind (with the sole exception of Russia) proof against famine; and finally to emigration over the Atlantic which has prevented economic pressure and starvation whenever population-pressure in Europe proved too strong. "It is an inscrutably mystery," says Pagacnik, "that Christ, who denied wealth, has had His religion spread by wealth. Were it not for the abnormal growth of riches in England and America since 1800, it is certain that the number of Christians would be far below the number of Mohammedans, which is probably now less than 250,000,000."

Pagacnik says that the intense crowding reached already a century ago in India and China, being combined with low economical development, has prevented anything like an equal increase for the religions of Mohammed, Brahma and Buddha. So these religions when compared with Christianity have all lost ground. But this stage of relative Christian increase has now reached an end. Christianity will not much longer be able to rely on economic superiority. The industrial and commercial developments which formerly made Europe and America able to increase their population with the greatest speed are now spreading to Asia, and will later spread to Africa. Machinery and organized industrial methods will rapidly raise the economic efficiency of these continents; and if the standard of production rises while the standard of consumption remains as modest as it is the non-Christian population of Japan, China, India and Africa will be able to increase at as great a rate as the Christians increased at during the nineteenth century. In this way Christianity which now embraces a third of the world threatens, even if it still increases, to see its relative strength decaying, owing to a sudden spurt in population increase among the awakened colored world.

Must Rely on Propagandism.

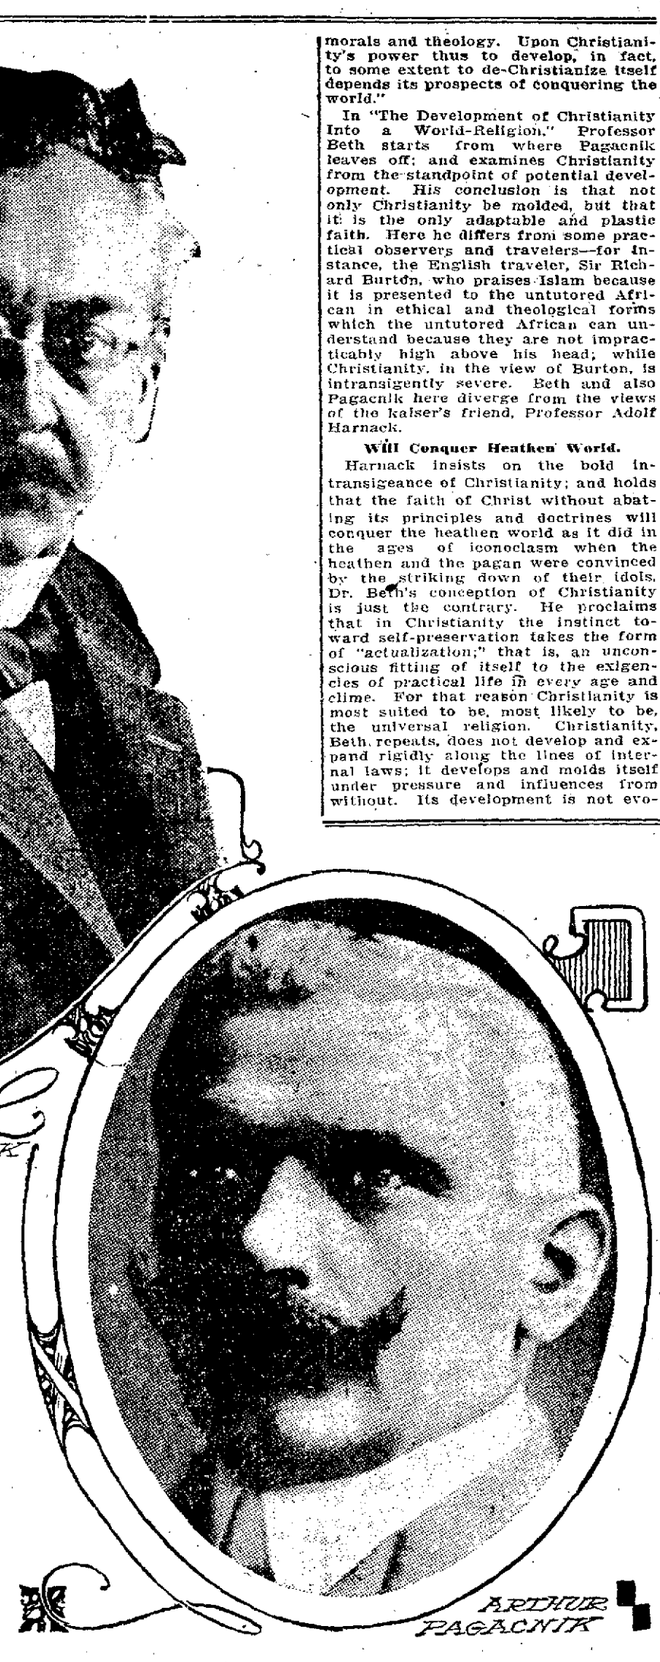
Pagacnik concludes from this that if it relies merely upon increase of its own population, Christendom will become relatively weaker, or at least, will remain in the present position. In order to increase its share it must rely on propagandism and not upon birth rate. Is there, he asks, any prospect of success? Judged by the past, no. Compared with the mass conversions of Europe in the centuries after Christ, the achievements of missionary work in Asia, Africa, Oceana and South America are very small. The total number of "native Christians" claimed by Protestant and Catholic missions is 16,200,000. That is only 1.4 per cent of the 1,174,000,000 populations of these continents, or, leaving out America as a primarily Christian continent and American "native Christians," it is 0.6 per cent. Asia has 822,000,000 inhabitants, but at most 5,000,000 Christians, the majority of whom are shaky enough in their faith. Africa, with a population of 140,000,000, has, excluding the whites of the South African union, barely 1,300,000. That implies very small missionary progress, because many of the "native Christians" in all continents are not converts of the last few years, but descendants of men and women who were converted a generation back or more, and it is observed that these Christian families as a result of foreign protection, better hygiene and greater average wealth, have tended to increase more rapidly than does the local heaten population.

Pagacnik declares that the cause of this relative failure is to be found in the words which the king of Wurttemberg addressed in 1897 to the African missionary, Kolberg. The king and queen are great friends of missions and firm believers in the approaching Christianization of the world. The king's observation was that "Christianity must not merely summon; it must also come."

If Christianity Is to Win.

Christianity, if it is to win, the globe must not content itself with beckoning the uncomprehending native to its standard; it must provide a standard of a color which will suit his peculiar taste. "The fault of missions," says Pagacnik, "is that they will not do this. They ascribe far too much importance to formal acceptance of doctrines and precepts; they rejoice when the native accepts these, and then being able to count him as saved, they too often leave him alone. Christianity would be better served by relaxing its dogmas and precepts to the level of the native's understanding, and by seeing that the natives live fairly well up to this easier, relaxed standard. The native will flock to the Christian flag when it means something he understands; something in sympathy with his own crude ideals of morals and theology. Upon Christianity's power thus to develop, in fact, to some extent to de-Christianize itself depends its prospects of conquering the world."

PROF. ADOLPH HARNACK



ARTHUR PAGACNIK

In "The Development of Christianity Into a World-Religion," Professor Beth starts from where Pagacnik leaves off; and examines Christianity from the standpoint of potential development. His conclusion is that not only Christianity be molded, but that it is the only adaptable and plastic faith. Here he differs from some practical observers and travelers—for instance, the English traveler, Sir Richard Burton, who praises Islam because it is presented to the untutored African in ethical and theological forms which the untutored African can understand because they are not impracticably high above his head; while Christianity, in the view of Burton, is intransigently severe. Beth and also Pagacnik here diverge from the views of the kaiser's friend, Professor Adolf Harnack.

Will Conquer Heathen World.

Harnack insists on the bold intransigeance of Christianity; and holds that the faith of Christ without abating its principles and doctrines will conquer the heathen world as it did in the ages of iconoclasm when the heathen and the pagan were convinced by the striking down of their idols. Dr. Beth's conception of Christianity is just the contrary. He proclaims that in Christianity the instinct toward self-preservation takes the form of "actualization;" that is, an unconscious fitting of itself to the exigencies of practical life in every age and clime. For that reason Christianity is most suited to be, most likely to be, the universal religion. Christianity, Beth repeats, does not develop and expand rigidly along the lines of internal laws; it develops and molds itself under pressure and influences from without. Its development is not evolution, but epigenesis. As each new influence comes from without, whether in the shape of changing conditions in countries already Christian, or of entirely new conditions in heathen lands, Christianity can always adapt itself, and thus prove its fitness to be equally the religion of all. That is its past history; and will be its future. It was the intent of its Founders. "Never did the actions of Christ indicate a desire to create a mere book religion."

Beth rejoices that Christianity is not national, and may, therefore, fit all nations. The Kingdom of Zion, he says, was not designed to be a national Jewish state, but a state within Israel ruled by God according to divine law. "There is neither Greek nor Jew, bond nor free," is the universalist motto of Christianity. Also the simplification of religion, which was one achievement of Christ, made Christianity suited to all races and times. "Christianity in its very origin," is Beth's conclusion, "is free from particularist limitations and is suited for universality."

Little Christianity in Asia.

If this is true how explain the 0.6 per cent of Christians in Asia after three centuries of missionary work? The view of Pagacnik is that "the natural plasticity of the Christian faith has not been properly turned to advantage." A Vienna newspaper says the meaning of this is that "the world is to become Christian but Christianity is to cease." What would happen is what has happened with German's socialists. The socialists voters have multiplied since 1871 from 102,000 to 4,590,000 today. But socialism has decayed. Doctrinal purity has been sacrificed in order to catch vast numbers; and at present a third of the 4,590,000 socialists reject the essential dogmas of their socialist prophet, Karl Marx. Pagacnik predicts that if Christianity is to become a world religion it must repeat this political history. "The masses of Asia and Africa will be enrolled, few or no questions being put, and as Paganism did in later Roman history, so local Christianity will assimilate, or at least tolerate, a dose of heathenism. The world will be Christian, but its religion will not any longer be a pure orthodox Christianity."

Pagacnik regards this as no misfortune. In Europe Christian piety and morals may suffer, and in Asia and Africa the masses may become only a little Christianized. "But the name counts for much." The nominal Christianization of the world will mean a gain in tolerance, a breaking down of race barriers, and the coming of universal peace. In that way, though the cost of many dogmas, the Christian ideal of a world kingdom which will be independent of geographical and political frontiers, may be realized.

SOCIETY OPENS DOORS TO DIVORCED WOMEN

Ban of King George and Queen Mary Is Not Regarded in England.

London, October 18.—Although the king and queen taboo as much as ever the divorced woman, she is feeling her way back to society. A notable example of this is furnished in the case of Lady Hamilton of Dalzell, who has quite re-established herself. Mrs. Laycock, the first wife of the present Marquis of Downshire, is also being received. The venerable Prince Christian has always been a great friend of the Laycocks and at first when she was very much taboo he helped them along. Now they are going everywhere except to court.

Some years ago she had a most appalling motor accident, Major Laycock himself, quite the finest amateur driver in society, being at the wheel. She lost a leg and the shock and subsequent illness left her a wreck for years.

A few young recently married prospective peeresses are talking about separations. One of these confided to me that she had to sell her dresses to wardrobe dealers instead of giving them as prequisites to her maid. "I get for a hundred guinea gown about ten pounds," she said, "and you don't know, my dear, what an absolute life saver it often is to me. The only thing to do with a husband like mine is to divorce him or get a separation and then one may be able to get a little money out of him.

LLOYD-GEORGE'S WIFE CARES LITTLE FOR DRESS

She Objects to Freak Clothes. Likes Them Old-Fashioned and Comfortable.

London, October 18.—Mrs. David Lloyd-George cares less about dress than any other woman in the cabinet. I was in a shop, a short time ago, when she was purchasing a motoring coat. "I want something old-fashioned and comfortable," she said, "with plenty of width."

"Madame," replied the assistant, "we keep nothing old-fashioned. Our coats are quite narrow and 'grip' at the knees. Ladies don't ask for the kind of garment you describe."

"Perhaps 'ladies' don't," replied Mrs. Lloyd-George, "but I am just a woman, and I like comfort. I won't wear freak clothes. The chancellor of the exchequer would not like me to." You should have seen the youg woman's face. "Make me a coat for £5; that is all I ever pay for a wrap."

She is quite fond of some of the other wives of cabinet ministers, "but they are much too swagger" for her, she says. Everybody knows who meets them that the Lloyd-Georges are democrats to the backbone. It is a boast of the chancellor that his wife won't let him give her a penny more than £100 a year for her clothes. She likes American women when they are brainy, but the typical fashionable, ambitious social climber she regards as a caricature on womanhood. She met the Pages and has discussed social problems with them all. "I may yet open a school to teach women good sense and show them the real value of money and its uses," Mrs. Lloyd-George told them.

The Changes in Geography.

(From The London Chronicle.)

Should the scheme proposed by Isle of Wight councellors for a tunnel to the mainland go through the island will merely be reverting to its ancient bond of union. For there is the evidence, not only of geology—convincing enough—but of a Sicilian writer, who speaks of Ictis as a market for tin, the theory being that Ictis is the Isle of Wight, and that an overland route existed just before the beginning of the Christian era, by which the tin was brought from Cornwall. At low water the carts were able to cross the Solent to the Phoenician, gallerys lying at anchor in Rickaster Cove. One must not forget that in the sixth century the Island of Jersey, now reparated from the mainland by a gulf of waters, was linked to France by a plank bridge.

FOUR CROP REPORTS ISSUED EACH YEAR BY CENSUS BUREAU

According to advice received in Atlanta by members of the Cotton Seed Crushers' association, of Georgia, from Director W. J. Harris, of the census bureau, there will soon be inaugurated a series of crop reports with special reference to cotton seed. Up to the present time the census bureau has gotten out only two of these reports a year, which has been found inadequate to supply the information desired with reference to this crop, which now means so much to the south.

In future four reports will be issued a year, approximately the first of December, the first of January, the first of February and perhaps one at the first of November, or perhaps the first of March.

The demand for these reports is based on the increasing traffic throughout the world in the products of cotton seed, i.e., cotton seed oil, cotton seed meal, cotton seed hulls and more particularly cotton seed linters, which are now so generally used for mattresses, comforts, etc.

The New Boston Customhouse.

Unique among public buildings in America is the new customhouse which is being erected in Boston. It is to be a tower, 505 feet high, and in design is virtually a monument to crown the pyramidal sky line of the city. The old pyramidal shape of the city with the golden dome of the statehouse at its apex has been destroyed by the building of skyscrapers. Boston's building laws now forbids the erection of private structures more than 125 feet high, and the new customhouse is designed to rise above its surroundings and form the dominating feature in any view of the city. A view of the building appears in the November oPpular Mechanics Magazine.

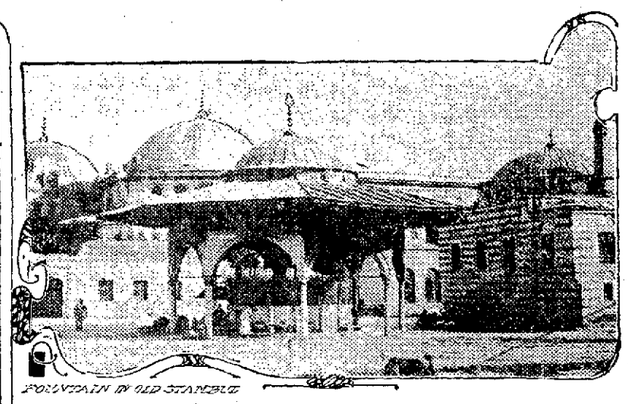
Eleven Turkish Women Run This Newspaper

First Woman's Daily Paper Produced In Constantinople and Is Called "Woman's World"—No Man Has Part In Its Production.

It Is Edited By Mme. Murieth Ulvieth Hanum, 30-Year-Old Wife of Famous Turkish Publicist—She Is Uncommonly Pretty.

STREET IN OLD STAMBUL



FOUNTAIN IN OLD STAMBUL

Constantinople, October 18.—Two days after Adrianople was recaptured, Monsieur Muchbil Bey, a black-eyed, dashing cavalier of the ministry of the interior, and nephew of the late Governor Hussein Bey, galloped up on a fiery steed to windy Bimbir Derek, and asked to see the editress of Kadinlar Dunjasse, the Woman's World. Madame Nurieh Ulvieh Hanum said, "No." Trouble, it seemed, was in store. Kadinlar Dunjasse is the great, the first ladies' daily newspaper concessioned by the young Turk government; and it got the concession only on the solemn condition that it keeps off high politics. Usually it keeps the rule. And now two days after Adrianople's recapture, Kadinlar Dunjasse came out with a brave, exalted article on the revived glory of Islam. And this displeased the young Turks, who are afraid of too much enthusiasm over Adrianople, and, therefore, sent down good-looking Muchbil on his fiery steed.

Monsieur Muchbil not only did not see Madame Nurieh (Ulvieh Hanum, but he did not even see the rose-pink veil which (forswearing the customary viel of black) she wears over her uncommonly pretty face. Not that any man knows it is pretty. And no man will ever know. For the miracles of Kadinlar Dunjasse and of all its coeditresses, leader-whiteresses, and secretaresses, is that they are running this first woman's daily paper on sound old-Turkish, anti-feminist lines, and they have as much horror as any odalisque of Abdul Hamid for bare faces, hats, split-skirts, the orgy of undress and votes for women. They also abjure the corrupting French language, and French novels, and Pierre Loti; and aim simply at regenerating Turkey's women on sound Turkey-red lines.

She's His Only Wife.

Nurieh-Ulvieh is the thirty-year-old wife, and only wife, of the journalist Mevla Na Sadi Rifaat Bey. Rifaat is a distinguished publicist, and he owns the Serbesti, which at present is suspended, and also owns a printing establishment where Kadinlar Dunjasse is printed. Bimbir Derek, where he hangs out, is unlike any other center of innovation, either in Franklin Pera, in Greco-American Galata, or in Turkish Stambul itself, and it is one of the oldest, least touched, most Moslem parts of Stambul. It is a tangle of ancient, dilapidated houses, covered with vines: there is a turbaned gravestone lying in the middle of the square; and on the roofs, from which you can see incomparable Marmora, there lounge-all day immemorial, wrinkled Turks, and beautiful (but nobody has ever seen them) odalisques. When you go to Bimbir Derek, you feel yourself back in the reign of Mahmud the First, when Turkey was really Turkey, and not a tedious compost of Asia and Europe.

It is here Madame Rifaat, or as she says, Nurieh Hanum, lives; and here in the same vast dilapidated house is the editorial and publishing office of Kadinlar Dunjasse. The staff of Kadinlar Dunjasse no man knows. But women who have penetrated thither say that Nurieh Hanum receives them in a tasteful dark blue dress, and that when she takes off her veil there appears an amazingly fresh complexion, two clear blue eyes, and the look of a bright North-German girl. And this is all the more surprising because Turkey's women are mostly sallow and pale; and also because Madame Rifaat keeps to the good Turkish habit of staying always at home. When she is asked if she has been to the moving picture show (which invades even eighteen century Bimbir Derek) her answer is: "No. I'm a great sitter and worker. Would you believe that I have not once been out of doors since the end of September last?"

Nurieh Hanum's only male assistant is her husband, Monsieur Rifaat. Rifaat usually acts as censor, and keeps the politics out. Otherwise the woman's daily is run entirely by women. On the editorial staff are seven delightful (but no one has ever seen them) Turkish women of the old, old school, and three still more delightful maids, one of whom (with the historic name Roxana) has actually been seen, for she studied at the German school in Pera. Most Kadinlar Dunjasse contributions come from outside.

Arab Women Interested.

"It is amazing," says Nurieh Hanum (to lady callers), "what interest our newspaper excites in all parts of the Empire. We get contributions from Arab women in Bagdad, from a Kurdish chief's daughter who has been schooled at Tiflis and from the wife of an administrative official in Yemen." And these articles deal with burning questions of the day, with the care of babies; the scandalous treatment of female orphans by the office of Vakoufs; and the infantile mortality due to the lack of a properly regulated milk supply. Over forty such articles are offered each day, and the seven delightful Turkish women (whom nobody has ever seen) are kept eternally busy in sending them back.

Nurieh Hanum says she started Kadinlar Dunjasse because she has no children to look after. Formerly she wrote articles on the woman's question for the Serbesti, the Tanin and for a monthly woman's magazine which is now dead.

On her husband's suggestion she started a paper of her own, with the intent herself to write every day the first leading article. The enterprise flourished. In three months' time Kadinlar Dunjasse had a circulation of 5,800 copies; and this is a very big thing, for Constantinople has no man's daily paper that circulates more than 20,000.

"Turkey for Turkish Women" is the motto of Kadinlar Dunjasse. Nurieh Hanum proudly proclaims herself Turk. She is content to stay in Turkey. Her husband, Rifaat, is a great traveler who has been all over Europe and even in America; he speaks five languages. But Nurieh has never accompanied him; she is horrified at the notion; and all the languages she knows is "Merci bien." Her newspaper exalts and holds up for imitation the activity of European women and the European love of work, but it expresses detestation of some of Europe's ways. "Women," says Nurieh, "must be taught how to bring up their children. That they do best in Europe. But to go to a theater; to wear a hat; to show the nape o' my neck—fie. I should die of shame!"

Almost Died of Shame.

Kadinlar Dunjasse shortly after its first appearance published articles in this spirit, by Madame Selim Bey (Zuleika Banum), who is a great-niece of the Crimean hero, Omar Pasha. Zuleika Hanum had been all over Europe. She described with shame how she appeared in a hat on Auteuil racecoarse, and afterwards how she went to the Ottoman Embassy, and played auction bridge with uncovered face with two Spanish gentlemen." When she thinks of that degradation she almost dies of shame! After losing bets at Auteuil, and winning Spanish treasure at auction bridge, Zuleika returned to homely Stambul, and became an honest Turkish woma, who will wear henceforth no hat; and as for showing the world the nape of her neck, fie, she would die of shame.

Nurieh Hanum has at her disposal one of the best purely Turkish libraries in Stambul; and thus—without going out of doors since the end of September—she is able to fill Kadinlar Dunjasse with clever articles on "The Role of Greek Women in History;" "Influence of Harem Life on Political Stagnation in the Region of Selim III;" "The Trial of Little Bediah," and "The Last Kick of Polygamy." This last article is based on the great decline in Turkish divorce cases, which results from the circumstance that nowadays practically no Turk has a second wife. However, there are exceptions; and one of Nurieh's best supporters is Madame Halil, who is "Boeyuek Hanum" or head wife of several, to a rich landowner of Broussa. Madame Halil herself writes articles on religious education. The rule against writing politics was broken because Nurieh Hanum was ill on the day Adrianople was recaptured, and the day's leading article was written by her cousin, the poetess, Madame Said Hamid Bey. This was Madame Said Hamid's first try at editing, and she indicated a fiery Philiple against Europe, declaring that Adrianople must never be surrendered, and appealing to all maids, wives and widows of Islam to die in the Maritza rather than hand over the temples and tombs of conquerors to bloodstained Christian hands.

Scared the Grand Vizier.

And this article highly frightened the Grand Vizier and his ministers, who are afraid that if they had to give up Adrianople their position will be made uncomfortable by Islam's maids, widows and wives; and still more uncomfortable by the fathers and husbands of the maids and wives. That was the cause of the mission of Monsieur Muchbil Bey on his fiery steed, and the consternation caused by good-looking Muchbil in vine-clad Bibbir Derek. But though Muchbil Bey did not see Nurieh Hanum the Kadinlar Dunjasse has since kept clear of politics.

Nurieh Hanum says she is going farther than mere preaching. She will follow precept with example by opening in Stambul a big department store, the purpose of which will be to teach to Turkish maids the dignity and profit of work. Only Turkish maids will be employed. This for Stambul is a novelty as at present the only women that serve in stores are Greeks or Armenians. Nurieh Hanum says she will herself run the store. She does not explain how she'll manage it if she keeps to her old-Turkish practice of staying at home for sixty weeks on end.

However, civilized Stambul now has telephones; and Nurieh Hanum will be able to give her orders about the sale of boots, and halva, and Turkish delight without exposing the nape of her neck.

Patrician Shoes for Women

: Conservation

"The Greatest Good to the Greatest Number"

We hear much nowadays about conservation, efficiency, intensive farming—and so on. But we do not hear much about what all this leads to—

Intensive Living

—waking up all the millions of our brain cells, instead of thinking narrowly along one line.

Just think money, or any one thing, and only certain fibers of your mind are brought into play.

Diversify your thinking—and do more of it—and that magnificent brain of yours will respond as does a flower to culture.

We heard of a family two years in Paris, who said they did not visit the Louvre—but understood there were a lot of pictures there.

If one only does easy streaky thinking—following the line of least resistance, the brain is dwarfed, just as one can kill half one's lungs by lazy breathing.

So a store dwarfs its opportunity that does not continually work for the furthering of its usefulness in the community. Even though started as a personal utility, a store that grows has responsibility thrust upon it. There must be different gauges to measure the responsibility of a little store and a big one.

Judge this store by the use of its powers to serve.

Green and Scarlet the Cry in Sport Coats

If you were abroad this summer you saw, of course, the blaze of color along the European esplanades and beaches. Here a woman in a little coat of vivid orange, there a rich purple, while of greens, rose, blues and gold shades there were plenty. It was the same way on the steamer returning home. Smart women slipped the gaily colored coats over their pretty frocks.

The fad has reached America and the coats are here. Young women are buying them for tennis, for school, for golf, for motoring, and they will be much in evidence at the football games. They are made of astrakhan cloth, smart, belted style. Priced $12.50 to $20.

IN ATLANTA'S SOCIAL REALM
NEWS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Conducted By ISMA DOOLY

Engagements

WINSHIP—SCOTT.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robert Winship announce the engagement of their daughter, Emily, to Mr. Hugh McDaniel Scott, the marriage to take place December 9 at home.

Miss Winship, whose family is one of the most prominent and highly esteemed in Atlanta, is a lovely member of the very attractive group of debutantes of three years ago, several of whom are to be fall brides. Her education completed at Mrs. Sommers' school at Mt. Vernon, she enjoyed afterwards the advantage of travel abroad, and in the social life her gentle, flower-like beauty and rare charm have held her in affection and admiration. Her family is one of the most prominent and highly esteemed in Atlanta.

Mr. Scott is the second son of Dr. and Mrs. H. F. Scott, and his family on both sides is one of the most prominent and representative in Georgia, including the large McDaniel and Felker connection, while his grandfather, Henry M. Scott, was a pioneer and successful citizen of this section. Mr. Scott graduated at the University of Georgia and completed the law course at Ann Arbor. He is one of the most successful young lawyers at the Atlanta bar, a member of the firm of Brown, Randolph, Parker and Scott, and he is a popular member of the clubs.

RIGNEY—CHANCELLOR.

Mrs. Emory Thomas Rigney, of Jacksonville, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Evelyn, to Mr. James Edgar Chancellor, of Columbus, Ga. Miss Rigney is a pretty brunette and since making her debut two years ago she has been one of the most popular girls in society. Mr. Chancellor is a prominent young business man of Columbus, and has a host of friends who will extend his bride a cordial welcome.

HOWELL—KENLY.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Howell, of Valdosta, announce the engagement of their daughter, Esther, to Mr. Wilkins Glenn Kenly, of Jacksonville, formerly of Baltimore, the marriage to take place December 4. Mr. Kenly is well known and popular in the railroad world.

Miss Sarah Power, formerly of Elberton now of this city, was married to Mr. Thomas E. Dillard, whose former home was in Clinton, S. C., but who has been living in Atlanta for some time past, in the parlors of the Piedmont hotel at high noon on Saturday, October 18.

The wedding, which was attended by only a few friends, was most beautifully conducted by Dr. S. R. Belk, pastor of the Park Street Methodist Episcopal church. The bride was perfectly charming in her handsome coat-suit of taupe charmeuse with hat, shoes and gloves to match, while a beautiful bouquet of violets added their charm to her attractiveness.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom, together with those who attended the wedding, including her sister, Miss Sue Clare Power, Mrs. J. A. Mullane, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Atkinson and Mr. C. A. Beauchamp, were taken in the latter's large touring car for a short ride out the beautiful north side drive, returning just in time for the newly wedded couple to take the train for Clinton, S. C., where they will spend a few hours with Mr. Dillard's parents, before going to New York on their honeymoon trip. Their trip east will be necessarily short for the reason that Mr. Dillard cannot be absent from this business very long just at this time.

He produced successfully Gounod's masterpiece, "Faust," last season in Washington, under the patronage of Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, and many other prominent society people.

The local chorus, it is planned, will appear with prominent professional singers to be engaged from grand opera companies in New York city, to create the leading roles.

Elaborate scenery and orchestra will complete the performances.

Mr. Wolffungen will also give a song recital at an early date.

MRS. MARION HARPER.
A beauty of the young married set. Mrs. Harper was Miss Anne Lyle.

To Mrs. Harrison Jones.

A beautiful entertainment yesterday was the luncheon given by Mrs. Bolling Jones in compliment to her niece, Mrs. Harrison Jones, who has just returned from her wedding trip. Invited to meet her were a bright little company, most of them recent brides or brides-to-be.

Mrs. Jones' beautiful home on Peachtree street had tasteful decoration in chrysanthemums, the first of the big fall blooms finding congenial setting in the rich brown and gold and mahogany tones of the spacious reception rooms. In the dining room sweets were served from a table having for its centerpiece a crystal vase of yellow chrysanthemums, which met the yellow-shaded hanging lights of the chandelier, and in the charming sun parlor adjoining punch was served from a table gayly decked with smilax and red fruits and salvia, their bright hues in keeping with the Oriental variety of color in the decoration of the pretty little outdoor apartment. An orchestra provided appropriate music.

Mrs. Jones was lovely in white embroidered crepe and lace, with a finish in purple velvet, and she held a "bride's bouquet" in a quaint lace paper holder, a gift from the Nineteenth Century History class Thursday on the occasion of her wedding anniversary. The bride's picturesque beauty was at its height, her gown of French blue chiffon combined with a darker shade of velvet brocade chiffon showing a Dresden design.

Mrs. Sam D. Jones, assisting in entertaining, wore a black lace gown, and Miss Lula Dean Jones wore a smart velvet gown of dark blue trimmed with skunk.

Miss Laura Ansley was a charming figure in blue crepe with a Roman striped sash, and her black hat was trimmed with an aigret. Miss Sarah Rawson wore a becoming costume in black and white. Mrs. W. F. Shallenberger wore a coral-colored crepe gown with a finish in black, and a black hat trimmed with paradise. Mrs. William Candler wore a gray gown with a finish in cerise, and a black picture hat. Miss Tehault, of Cuthbert, her sister, wore a brown brocade gown, with a hat to match. Mrs. Frampton Ellis wore a biscuit-colored crepe gown of pale blue, and a black hat. Miss Jessie McKee wore a mahogany-colored crepe gown, the corsage draped with flowered chiffon, and her black hat was trimmed with paradise. Miss Margaret Grant wore a white crepe gown, with a small black hat trimmed with roses. Miss Adgate Ellis wore a tomato-colored crepe trimmed with shadow lace, and a black hat. Miss Passie May Ottley wore a silk gown in dahlia color, with a picture hat in dahlia shades. Mrs. Philip Weltner wore wistaria crepe, with a black picture hat. Mrs. Charles Remsen wore a black satin gown, with a black hat trimmed with a black plume and pink roses. Mrs. Hughes Spalding wore blue charmeuse, the corsage of lace veiled with blue chiffon, and a black hat. Mrs. George K. Varden wore wistaria charmeuse, with a black picture hat. Miss Lucy Hoke Smith wore a white satin gown with a finish in black, and an all-black hat. Mrs. James Wells wore a rose-colored crepe, with a black hat.

To Mrs. Hatch.

Captain and Mrs. John D. Burnett will entertain at supper at the Driving club tonight in compliment to their guest, Mrs. William Hatch, of San Antonio, and other affairs are planned.

Among the out-of-town guests who will be in the city to attend the wedding of Miss Martha Duncan and Mr. T. B. Johnson will be Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Duncan, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Johnson, Mrs. A. M. Mills, of Griffin; Mrs. Nathan Napier, of LaFayette; Miss Ellen Rowry, of Rome; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McKenzie, of Montezuma; Mrs. Merritt Murphy, of Little Rock.

To Miss Cochran.

Miss Irene Wellborn entertained at a linen shower the past week for Miss Ona Cochran, a bride-elect. The house was attractively decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. The game of old maid was played and Miss Irene Bennett won the prize, a silver picture frame. The guest of honor was given a pair of hand-embroidered pillow cases.

Miss Wellborn wore a gown of blue charmeuse satin and Miss Cochran wore green crepe de chine with hat of black velvet trimmed in white plumes.

The guests included Misses Nell Ballard, Ruth Mobley, Jane Boroughs, Annie Bell Atkins, Eunice Cochran, Florrie Steffer, Irene Bennett, Janie Zachry, Georgia Windsor, Louise Burroughs, Lucy Windsor, Winnie Wilson, Emma Wallace, Edith Hays, Margan Hogan, Ellie Lyons, Mary Lee Sloan, Ursula Workman, Mrs. Glenn Marshall, Mrs. Robert Bridges, Mrs. M. The wedding of Miss Lena Bell Newman and Mr. Walton Owen will take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Newman, Rose Hill, Columbus, Ga., Tuesday, October 21. Mrs. Lawson P. Weathers, of Atlanta, will be matron of honor and Miss Lois Newman will be maid of honor.

Corsage Bouquets And Cut Flowers

From Dahl's are more popular than ever this season for Forsyth Monday Nights. They are invariably worn by the belles and debutantes whose chic costumes are most admired.

They are equally appropriate for more formal theater parties or social functions, and on any of these occasions are a graceful and welcome attention from the escort.

The Corsage Bouquet that comes from Dahl's is for many reasons superior. The flowers are absolutely fresh; they are cut daily from our own Atlanta greenhouses and reach you with the dew still on their petals.

The arrangement of the bouquets is in the hands of skilled artists and combines beauty with perfect taste.

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2 50—can easily be made at home You will find nothing that takes hold of the ordinary cough more quickly usually conquering it in side of 24 hours Excellent too for spasmodic croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and bronchitis

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle then add the Sugar Syrup It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours

This is just laxative enough to help relieve a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated but the old successful mixture has never been equaled. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Miss Berry's Students Give Dramatic Program at Club

The two hundred guests invited to a reception at the Piedmont Driving club Friday afternoon to meet Miss Martha Berry, that distinguished philanthropist, the founder and director of the Martha Berry school, near Rome, Ga., not only had that pleasure, but were highly entertained in a program which demonstrated in a dramatic way the real meaning of the school which now has a national reputation in the history of educational development.

Mrs. Frank Inman, the president of the Atlanta Martha Berry circle, and the officers of that organization, received the guests and presented Miss Berry. In the ballroom the program was presented. Miss Berry spoke briefly outlining the history and purpose of the school, her story one of thrilling interest and familiar to all friends of education. Governor John Marshall Slaton spoke indorsing not only the school and its value to the boy and girl of the commonwealth, but its importance from the educational standpoint, following the new thought in rational education, which is to relate the training of the boy and girl to the life around them.

Then followed the feature, when students of the school told the story of their life there. A youth, a graduate of the Berry school, now enjoying the privileges of a scholarship of the Georgia School of Technology, gave a most interesting account of his life in the mountains before going to school; his arrival at the school and his experiences there, and finally his appreciation at the present moment of the advantages of the education he has had.

A young woman who has received her training at the school related her experiences in a mountain home, where poverty and isolation threatened to obstruct progress. She told of her viewpoint when she went to the school and the false ideals she had; then how the ideal changed, and she realized the meaning of what responsibility meant, and what her responsibility was, and what finally the school meant to her and every girl who went there.

Practical Training.

Another earnest student of the school demonstrated the practical training given girls, in the actual making of bread, domestic science and all the departments of housekeeping being taught the girls of the school.

The appearance of these young people to testify to the splendid work accomplished through the school they attend was unusual and impressive, attend was unusual of the individual woman, the spirit of the institution which bears her name, completed the beauty and significance of the occasion.

The Martha Berry school has a world-wide reputation. Men and women of all sections of this country, realizing its values, have contributed generously to it, supplementing the private fortune of the woman founder, whose life is consecrated to the success of the school.

For years she has labored and brought men and women to see the values of the school, and then assist in its development and maintenance, never discouraged, never wavering in her energy. A reward came, when within the last two years she has succeeded in establishing for the school, an endowment of $100,000. Of this amount Mrs. Russell Sage contributed $25,000. The late Robert C. Ogden was a substantial friend of the school, and many Georgians have contributed to its success, Atlanta expressing her interest through the Martha Berry circle, of which Mrs. Frank Inman was the inspiration and is now the leader.

Within the past few years the noted men of the nation who have visited this section have visited the Martha Berry school and carried away the favorable impression which has been expressed through nearly every magazine and newspaper in the country.

Needs of the School.

But with the success of the school comes the necessity for enlargement, for an increased number of teachers, for greater facilities and the work of Miss Berry must go on. There never was a time when every boy and girl in the state was more needed to carry on the work for the state, in developing its resources, and in home-making, while to meet the demands for a greater national efficiency, the obligation of all schools become the broader. It is only through the richer kind of schools that these obligations of efficiency, state and national, can be acquired. Miss Berry's schools stands tried and proven, as the right kind of school.

To Mrs. John Ingram.

A delightful event of Friday was the luncheon given by Mrs. John Rolf Sims, of East Point, in honor of Mrs. John Ingram, of Madison, who is the guest of Mrs. J. J. Hemperly. The luncheon table was prettily decorated in Killarney roses. Those invited were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Hemperley, Mrs. J. H. Williams, Mr. J. R. Sims, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Hemperley, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hemperley

How to Make Better Cough Syrup than You Can Buy

A Family Supply, Saving $2 and Fully Guaranteed.

A full pint of cough syrup—as much as you could buy for $2 50—can easily be made at home You will find nothing that takes hold of the ordinary cough more quickly usually conquering it inside of 24 hours Excellent too for spasmodic croup, whooping cough, bronchial asthma and bronchitis

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents' worth) in a pint bottle then add the Sugar Syrup It keeps perfectly. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours

This is just laxative enough to help relieve a cough. Also stimulates the appetite, which is usually upset by a cough. The taste is pleasant.

The effect of pine and sugar syrup on the inflamed membranes is well known Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norway white pine extract, rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated but the old successful mixture has never been equaled. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guaranty of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Beautiful Girls Who Debut This Winter in Chattanooga

WILL MAKE APPROACHING SEASON IN CHATTANOOGA AN UNUSUALLY GAY ONE

Not in many years have the debutantes in Chattanooga society been of so much interest. They are all of the first families and all of exceptional beauty or talents. Moreover the unusual number makes them of special interest and the fact that they are known almost as well in several southern cities—Nashville, Knoxville, Atlanta and Birmingham—adds to their interest. Miss Virginia Pound, who is winsome and sweet and already a great belle will be in Atlanta much of the social season. Miss Sholar, Miss Payne, Miss Wright, Miss Annie May Jones, Miss Caldwell and Miss Maude Whiteside are all expected visitors to Atlanta friends during the winter, while Miss Helen Johnson spends a great portion of her time in Savannah and Mobile.

Chattanooga will probably enjoy its gayest winter with all these pretty girls making bows to society.

Miss Elizabeth Lupton of Virginia will spend the winter with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Lupton, and will be one of the most feted of the debuantes. She is a bright, winsome girl with a host of friends already in Chattanooga. The handsome Lupton residence, Lyndhurst, will be the scene of many gay events for this charming young debutante and visitor.

Miss Charlotte Patten is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Patten, and one of the beloved young members of society. Her formal debut will be of interest to a large connection and doubtless many affairs will be announced within a short time in her honor. She possesses a delicate, pure type of beauty and has much of her mother's charm of manner.

Miss Helen Watkins, who is noted as one of the prettiest girls in the state will be honored also with innumerable parties. She is tall and very graceful and is already a belle. Miss Watkins was sponsor for the division of Tennessee Sons of Confederate Veterans, during the confederate veterans reunion and made many friends at that time.

Miss Virginia Pound is the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome B. Pound. She is a beauty and will enjoy a winter of unusual pleasure as she will practically be a debutante in Chattanooga, Louisville and Atlanta. Her sister, Miss Kathleen Pound, has been a belle since her debut, and the two young girls will be with Mr. and Mrs. Pound in the three cities during the winter.

Miss Margaret Estes is another unusually pretty girl in the debutante set. She is of a dark, vivid type, and has been much admired.

Literature Class Organizes.

Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock a class in English literature will be organized in the rooms of the Young Women's Christian association at 16 Ellis street. It will be taught at its weekly meetings by Miss Alice Logan Wingo, and will have no other connection with the Young Women's Christian association than meeting in its rooms. A cordial invitation is extended to young ladies from all parts of the city to join in the class and work toward a higher education along literary lines. There will be no tuition charged. It is probable that "The Drama" will be the subject of the first course of study taken up by the class.

The Vesper Club Dance.

The Vesper club will give a dance at their clubrooms, in West End, Friday evening, October 24. Plans are being made for a very enjoyable affair. All members are cordialy invited to attend.

Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Nelson, Dr. and Mrs. LeRoy Calida, Mr. T. P. Gamble, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Peel and Mr. J. O. Harris.

PREMATURE GRAYNESS CAN BE AVERTED

THE hair turns gray because it has lost vitality, due to sickness, nervous strain, deficient nutrition and sometimes hereditted causes. To pull out the hairs when they begin to turn white is simply to enlarge the cells, coarsen the hair and cause it to whiten more quickly than if left alone.

The best and only satisfactory treatment for premature grayness is a pure, reliable hair restorative, such as Robinnaire Hair Dye. This restorative is prepared in our own laboratory, a scientific formula, and we guarantee it to be non-injurious. It is not to bleach or change the original color, but is to restore faded or gray hair to its natural color and lost vitality. Its tonic effect makes the hair soft, lustrous and beautiful, and keeps it in a healthy condition. Does not stain the scalp and its use cannot be detected.

Don't let gray hair stand in your way either in the social or business world for thousands of others are using this splendid restorative with best results. We have sold it for over a quarter of a century without even one complaint against it. It is a pure, beneficial restorative and cannot harm you. For light, medium and dark brown and black hair. At druggists and toilet goods departments, 75c; by parcel post, 85c.

Send us the name of your druggist if he cannot supply you, and we will send you FREE samples of Robinnaire Face Powder and Cold Cream of Roses. Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta, Ga.

Second Week Cooking School.

The ladies at Park Street Methodist church have enjoyed a very successful week, Mrs. S. R. Dull having conducted the cooking school in her usual efficient manner.

Tickets for the last week will be sold for 50 cents for the series of lessons.

On Monday Mrs. Dull will teach the following menu: Chicken a la King and white and brown nut bread.

These tickets may be secured from Mrs. St. Elmo Massengale or Mrs. Frank Baker.

In Honor of Miss Mims.

One of the prettiest affairs of the past week was the 500 party which was given by Mr. and Mrs. Hal C. Fauman at their home on Eighth street in honor of Miss Eva Merl Mims whose marriage to Mr. Roy Almand is to be an interesting event of this month.

The house was beautifully decorated throughout with palms and ferns and quantities of pink and white roses, the color scheme being carried out in the ices and mints. The first prize, a hand painted powder box, was won by Miss Pauline Adams and Mr. J. H. Rudisel made top score winning the gentleman's prize, which was a brass smoking set. Mrs. Hal Morrison won the consolation. The guest of honor was presented with a silver serving tray.

Mrs. Fauman received her guests wearing white embroidered crepe, and was assisted in receiving by Miss Ruth Angier who was gowned in white charmeuse. The honor guest Miss Mims, was lovely in black crepe de chine, trimmed with bands of lynx fur.

Late in the evening Miss Pauline Adams delighted the guests with a reading, "Going to the Circus," after which a delicious salad course was served.

About twenty-five guests were entertained.

Hall-Phillips.

Among the pretty fall weddings was that of Miss Elizabeth Gertrude Hall and Mr. Aristes Jackson Phillips, which occurred at Payne Memorial church on the evening of October 11. The church was beautifully decorated with palms and ferns. Rev. M. A. Phillips, father of the groom, and Rev. George Stone were the officiating ministers. Miss Creighton Felkner, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and she wore a dainty gown of pink chiffon, and carried pink roses.

Mr. Lucien W. Phillips was his brother's best man, and the bride's father gave her away.

The ushers were Messrs. Creighton Felkner and Whitehead, and Mrs. Lucien W. Phillips played the wedding march.

The bride was lovely in her wedding gown of white charmeuse satin, trimmed in princess lace and seed pearls. Her tulle veil was caught with a chaplet of orange blossoms, and she carried bride roses and valley lilies.

Forty guests were entertained at a reception at the home of the groom's parents, Rev. and Mrs. M. A. Phillips, following the ceremony. Assisting Mrs. Phillips in entertaining were Mrs. Lucien Phillips, Mrs. R. H. Calvert and Miss Loma Calvert.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillips are at home at 319 Luckie street.

Beauty and Grace to Mark Gowns During Approaching Winter Season

Despite all that has been said by those who know not about the season's fashion, it is many a year, say those who know, since the fashions have been prettier and more graceful.

The softness and elegance this year of materials, the glitter of trimming and adornment, and above all the art which plays through the modish toilet, makes it a thing of beauty.

The modiste herself must do most of the draping, which insures the success of the toilet. Several of these I saw this week prove my statements

Standing out in attractiveness are two velvet gowns—one taupe brown, the other almost a royal blue.

The brown velvet gown has one of the draped skirts which are cut with that in view, this meaning that nowhere the drapery appears is there a pull from anywhere else. The artist alone can accomplish this. The corsage in its combination of brown with rose color, introduces chiffon and net, the net embroidered richly, while opening over it is the smartest of little velvet coats, trimmed in fur

Beautiful Evening Gown.

For the same stylish woman is an evening gown of American beauty colored chiffon made over white charmeuse, the whole showing the beauty of drapery both in the skirt and corsage. A ball gown of exquisite coloring is of orchid colored lisse brocaded in flowers in delicate tints and gold threaded lisse. It is built over flesh-colored satin, and the corsage is of filmy lace and crystals

The blue velvet gown with corduroy finish is draped, the coat opening over a corsage showing a trimming in canary-colored silk embroidered in the shades of blue and canary color

A dainty blonde beauty has selected for her afternoon calling gown, one of brocade velvet, the brocade figures in blue on a background of apricot color. The corsage introduces apricot-colored chiffon and lace in its finish, and drapery marks the finish of the gown

An evening gown for a young matron showed a striking combination of black and white, the lower part of the skirt of black chiffon satin draped high, and met by a black net upper drapery embroidered in jet sequins. The corsage introduces with lace and the jet embroidered neck a trimming of crystals

Ideal Gown for School Girls.

For a rosebud girl still in the schoolgirl set an ideal gown is fashioned of pink satin and white tulle, the tulle forming a tunic with ruchings, while the corsage is of the same diaphanous material.

In biscuit-colored charmeuse satin a handsome toilet with a draped skirt has a corsage of the palest blue chiffon, and the satin embroidery in the biscuit color and shades of blue give finish

To be worn at one of the fall weddings is a brocade satin of heavy quality, the color turquoise blue brocaded in gold leaves. The upper part of the gown of satin is veiled in a gold embroidered net, and the toilet is one beautiful and elaborate

APPLEBY-TAYLOR.

Commerce, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—On last evening at the Methodist parsonage in Jefferson occurred the marriage of Miss Meda Appleby to Mr E Howell Taylor, Rev George W Yarborough, D D, officiating. The marriage ceremony was performed in the parlor of the parsonage and the bridal couple were placed on the same spot where Rev George W Yarborough and his wife stood when they celebrated the golden anniversary of their wedding a few weeks ago.

Dr Yarborough used the ring in performing the ceremony and the sweetly solemn words spoken by this eminent divine which united this young couple were most impressive and will always be pleasantly remembered by all present.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr and Mrs Taylor came to Commerce, where they will reside in the future.

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs A C Appleby, of Jefferson, and is in all respects a most charming and accomplished young woman. The groom holds a very responsible position with the Standard Oil company and stands high in the business and also in the social world at Commerce.

WHY ARE Nemo Corsets TRIPLE-STRIP A BOON TO WOMANKIND?

THEY GUARD YOUR FIGURE, HEALTH & PURSE

The Unseen Nemo "Bridge" That Carries Women to Safety

The Nemo "bridge" is one of the features that have made the Nemo Corset famous; yet few know what it is, and no one can SEE it. This diagram gives an idea of what it does:

The dotted line (B) indicates the natural outline of the uncorseted figure. (A) shows a Nemo front steel, slightly curved inward at the lower end, then going straight to the bust-line. The abdomen (C) is repressed and supported. The region of the diaphragm is "bridged," keeping all pressure from the stomach region (B).

No woman wearing a Nemo Corset, no matter how tightly it is laced, ever feels that dreadful crushing pain over the stomach which makes her rush home to get her corset off.

Undue pressure upon the stomach region is a very common corset-fault; also, one of the greatest dangers of corset-wearing, as it causes digestive troubles, headaches, and a host of other ills.

Millions of Nemo wearers know by experience that the Nemo is the most comfortable corset in the world, but few know why. The "bridge" is one of the reasons.

Improved "Auto-Massage" Model

Steady pressure discourages the formation of fat. Massage or "kneading," as given by these corsets, drives it away.

No. 356—with low bust..... $3.50
No. 357—medium bust.....

Inside the corset are two broad bands of semi-elastic Lastikops Webbing that run diagonally across the groin section. These, in connection with the new incurved front steels, give excellent abdominal support.

The gentle and imperceptible friction of these bands, working against the Reducing Straps (which run vertically), with each movement of the body produce an effect exactly like hand-massage. This softens the fat, which is gradually absorbed and removed by natural processes. You're actually smaller! This strong claim is fully proved by the experience of thousands of women who have worn Nemo Auto-Massage Corsets.

Other Nemos—$3, $4 and $5. In Good Stores Everywhere

Wearing Nemo Corsets is a good habit, and one that never leaves any woman who is once properly fitted in the right NEMO.

Not wearing Nemo Corsets is a very bad habit, which is quickly overcome when the right Nemo, correctly adjusted, makes the wearer forever dissatisfied with all other corsets.

We know of only three classes of women who don't wear the Nemo:

1. Those who know nothing about the Nemo.
2. Those who have tried to wear the wrong Nemo.
3. Those who have been talked out of Nemo comfort by dealers who are interested in "something just as good"—which doesn't exist.

Mob Law---That and Nothing Else Governs Women, Here---Everywhere

WE'RE SLAVES TO CONVENTIONALITIES--ALL OF US

By Isma Dooly.

"Last night when I was sitting all alone, sewing—sewing on buttons, I longed for Alice, the enchantress—'Alice Challice,'" said a man of ideals, as he gave me a book I had suggested he read.

I had to stop to remember who "Alice was," then I recalled that great feminine creation of Arnold Bennett. In his book called "Buried Alive," he has put so many real live people, so many live incidents, and awakened so many live questions, that I am willing to put it on the shelf with the greatest reluctance.

"Alice Challice" is the heroine of the book. She arose to the requirement of heroine on many occasions, but withal Alice, though a British maid, then matron, was not conventional. She was what the world of the conventional would call defiantly unconventional. She unhesitatingly and deliberately struck a blow at the foundation of the so-called social system.

But the man in love with Alice, whom he had found in the book, continued to extol her virtues. I interrupted him to remonstrate with him that he must not exploit, even hint at Alice as a commendable type. "You are considered an idealist," I said, "and your opinion might prove demoralizing, in that young women, clamoring to be ideals, might attempt to imitate Bennet's daring creation of a woman."

I continued:

"All society then would be thrown in a chaotic state!

"Women are free enough as it is, and making for more liberty every day," talking in the way most men like for a woman to talk, and believing as I do, that it is but womanly for a woman to adapt herself as far as possible to the ideals of the man to whom she is talking, changing her politics even, according to the gentleman who sits next to her at dinner.

"Freedom! Liberty!" repeated the lover of a new-found love. "Why, no two words in the language less apply to the woman of today. Why, every dear, delightful, deceitful one of you—to quote from a quotation in one of Lord Byron—is a slave to a kind of invisible, but omnipresent, far-reaching system of mob law that governs your every action and hampers your happiness—your life.

"It permeates every condition in your so-called society; begins in the drawing room, goes right through to the kitchen; confronts you in your controversies with domestics, annihilates you in your relation with the green grocer and the butcher. This same mob law accompanies you into the secrecy of your bed chamber, and directs the hand that massages your little face every night with cold cream. Yes, with its tyrannical power it takes hold of you and forces you to go out every night, whether you want to or not; it requires that you go out, not with those you prefer, but others decreed by this great law, and, worse than all, it forces you into matrimony against you will.

NOTHING BUT MOB LAW.

"It is mob law that makes belles and unmakes them: but my Alice, with banners flying, not clamoring for the vote, nor the rostrum, but just for what she wanted personally, broke right through the mob law of ages, and got what she wanted for herself and another.

"Slaves, all of you," he said in taunting tones—and later I heard him humming about that other Alice of book-life—the one about whom DuMaurier had nightmare, when he wrote "Trilby."

"What nonsense," I thought at first when he departed, and then, when I began to think, the serious meaning of what he said began to impress me, and gradually the meaning of it all came over me.

I am not going to write the vindication of Alice, nor am I going to emerge one inch from the mob law influence which hangs over me, as does the proverbial sword of Damocles. I wonder if women could not some day, without mob law knowing it, just escape a little from some of its influence? We might just deceive mob law, and out in the open appear to be acquiescent, and just some day make a big break about the twilight hour, when mob law would be supping.

I can't see what on earth we could do with that little vote—that little politically right some of us have ventured to say we wanted—if mob law is going to creep in and dictate what is to be done with the vote?

I began to look around in my mind among my neighbors—we will go among our neighbors when we want to analyze some frailty or weakness,—and I recalled the last time I saw my friend, the little wife, in the cottage with the vines!

She lives in a nice neighborhood, where there are many little cottages, or bungalows, I believe they call them now, and she keeps one servant.

The latter she stold me was most inefficient, that she had been trying to get her to pull up the weeds in the yard for a week, and rake out the falling leaves, but that she obstinately refrained from doing it.

"It is a charming little garden," I commented, and then I told her how so many women I knew worked in their own gardens, because the report had gone aboard in some neighborhoods that gardening was good for the complexion.

"I would like it, too," she said, "but you know the women in the neighborhood would think I did not keep a servant; they would see me doing manual labor."

ALL HAD SAME NEGLECTED AIR.

As I looked back when I left her she had seated herself in a rocking chair, her hands idle, and she looked longingly at the garden, which, with a touch from her, would have been all she desired.

And then I noticed that every garden in the neighborhood had the same neglected air. Evidently they all held the same views my little friend did. Now, I know there was the awful influence of a sort of mob law—the same law which has planted in the minds of some that there is some indignity in work with the hands. We called it ignorance in the mountaineer who sent word to the industrial school in the mountains the other day, that he sent his son there to "learn out of books," not to learn "to farm."

And it was this same mob law, nothing else, that kept the women in a certain neighborhood the other day from organizing to protect themselves against the cooks who had organized, demanded more pay, better hours and two days a week off.

"What shall we do?" the housekeepers asked the newspapers. "What shall we do?" they asked the servant agency.

"Organize and make your terms and try it out," some one suggested.

"But men do not believe in club women," one of the women told me. "They think organizations are unwomanly. They like women who have tastes for the home, who are womanly."

"No, I can't cook," she confessed—and what was the result? She met the exactions of her servant who belonged to "an organization," and bored her friends with her stories of the servant problem. She, I recognized as an eloquent expression of the power of mob law.

I can't believe any man would object to his wife belonging to a club or an organization if it would mean an adjustment of the servant question, better biscuits, and some one there to answer the telephone, the door bell and the other things he has to do when his office hours are over. There is a huge mob law that prevails and towers down on the subject of what men think about women who belong to organizations.

But, sadder even than this condition which we all must recognize, is the victim mob law claims in the girl who after her third or fourth season bows her head, walks chained in front of the mob, and marries, not because she wants to, not because she loves the man, but because mob law dictates: "You have had several seasons out now; new flowers will bloom this year, and you may not have beaux to all the dinney dances. You may not have invitations to go to the moving picture shows every night, and it may be you will miss a Monday night at the F——."

NOTHING BUT FATE AND MOB LAW.

She realizes the fate of it. She forgets the great world outside the few streets that bound the social clubs; she has never thought of life in the sense of the joy and fullness of it, the things that she has not had time in her still young life to see or know. She has never drawn the deep breath that must have expanded her little spirit and bouyed it on a little longer in single blessedness. She swallows hard, chokes a time or two, and then tells him—"yes." Maybe it will go on all right, but mob law has done this—mob law that won't do a thing toward soothing an aching heart, if it comes, or modify the criticisms the world chooses to express when "incompatibility" is given as the cause, in the case of Jones versus Jones called in the divorce court.

The more one becomes analytical about this mob law which the man who idealizes "Alice Callice" has defined the more it becomes apparent that it is a greater than the word "convention" would convey, and women are really just playing at the game they would call freedom or emancipation. I don't really believe they want it as much as they think they do, or they would experiment more with it in their little every-day trials and tribulations. "Callice" the more I read about "Alice Callice" the more I wonder which would play the worse with society as we see it, "mob law" as we have it or "Alice Callice" still safely housed in a book.

Let us contemplate her in all her charms as she gladdens the heart of the man who has to do his own sewing.

What she did—I have not told it before—she did the courting—she attracted the object of her affections through a matrimonial agency. The author, who is going to make trouble with Alice, in pitting her against the unwritten ethics of mob law, thus describes her:

HOW AUTHOR DESCRIBES HER.

"She had a large mind, that was sure. She understood things and human nature in particular. She was not one of those creatures that a man meets with sometimes—creatures who are ready to pounce and who are incapable of making allowances for any mild frailty. She had a mouth as wide as her ideas and a full underlip. She was a woman who, as it were, ran out to meet you when you started across the dangerous roadway which separates the sexes. She comprehended because she wanted to comprehend. And when she could not comprehend, she would deceive herself that she did, which amounts to the equivalent!

"She was a living example that in her sex social distinctions do not effectively count. Nothing where she was concerned, except a distinction far more profound tha any social distinction—the historic distinction between Adam and Eve. She was balm to Priam Pardl. She might have been equally balm to King David, Uriah the Hittite, Socrates, Lord Byron, Heine or Charlie Peace. She would have understood them all. They would have all been ready to cushion themselves on her comfortableness. Was she a lady? Pish! She was a woman!"

Further the author says of her: "To wander about freely in that roomy sympathy of hers, seemed to him to be the supreme reward of experience. It seemed like the good inn after the bleak high road, the oasis after the sand storm, shade after glare, the dressing after the wound, sleep after insomnia, surcease from unspeakable torture. He wanted in a word, to tell her everything, because she would not demand any difficult explanations. She had given him an opening in her mention of savings."

The following are some of the delicate, subtle things Alice said, when she went "a-courtin'":

"It seems to me," she observed, "that we might go farther and fare worse—both of us."

"Oh," she proceeded, benevolently and reassuringly, "I mean it. I am not galivanting about. I mean that if you want my opinion, I fancy we could make a match of it."

Further on she delicately continues: "Of course, it is a very awkward situation with a man (toying with her muffin); I can quite understand how you feel. And with most folks, you'd be right. There's very few women that can judge character, and if you started to cry and settle something at once, they'd just set you down as a wrong 'un. But I'm not like that; I don't expect any fiddle-faddle. What I like, is plain sense and plain dealing. We both want to get married, so it would be silly to pretend we do not, wouldn't it? And it would be ridiculous of me to look for courting, and a proposal, and that sort of thing, just as if I had never seen a man in his shirt sleeves! The only question is, shall we suit each other? I have told you what I think. What do you think?

"Of course, you have got no home," she said reflectively, with some compassion. "Suppose you come down and just have a little peep at mine?"

In the book, which my friend returned to me, after declaring his passion for Alice, I find he has marked such passages as these:

"Sometimes, like a simple woman who has come into a set of pearls, she would, as it were, take him out of his drawer and look at him, and put him back."

Again: "She gazed at her husband, as a wife ought to gaze at her husband in a crisis."

TALBOTTON, GA.

One of the interesting fall marriages of Talbotton was the quiet marriage of Miss Ruth Arnold and Dr. Grady Lumsden Carter, Saturday evening at 9 o'clock. Miss Arnold is the second daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Arnold, and is a strong character, and has a strong personality of rare beauty, tact and grace. Effective, Economical Complexion Beautifier

(Julia Orff, in The Clubwoman.)

One reason I so strongly recommend mercolized wax is that it really takes the place of several different cosmetics, saving time, patience and expense. It is better than any cleansing cream, better than any massage cream, and better than any rouge for accomplishing the results for which such articles are used. As the wax actually absorbs an old, faded or discolored cuticle, a little each day, the underlying skin which gradually appears is clearer, softer, healthier-hued and more youthful than any cosmetic-made complexion. Spreading on a thin coat of this wax at night, washing it off mornings, in a week or so produces a marvelous transformation. Just one ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, will do the work. There's nothing better to remove freckles, moth patches, liver spots, sallowness, blotches, pimples or blackheads.

For wrinkles and loose, saggy skin I invariably recommend a face bath made by dissolving one oz. powdered saxolite in one-half pint witch hazel. This has remarkable astringent and tonic properties.—(Adv.)

SOCIAL LIFE IN MACON

Macon, Ga., October 18.—(Special Correspondence.)—All eyes turn to a fair young bride and in a week crowded with social affairs, the wedding of Miss Josephine Jones and Mr. William C. Miller naturally takes precedence in point of interest. The ceremony took place Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Benjamin L. Jones. Down the center of the double parlors an aisle had been formed of broad white satin ribbons resting at intervals on clusters of gorgeous white chrysanthemums held in tall floor vases tied with bows of white tulle. At the end of this vista was a floral altar made of ferns, chrysanthemums and lilies of the valley. Preceding the bride were the two matrons of honor, Mrs. Henry Jones and Mrs. Andrew Lyndon, Mrs. Jones was queenly in cream chiffon embroidered in crystal, draped over shimmering satin. Mrs. Lyndon, who is a petite brunette, wore white charmeuse with tunic of princess lace; both carried white roses. The bride came in with her brother, Mr. W. H. Jones, who gave her in marriage. She was never so lovely as in her wedding gown of soft white satin, the long court train embroidered in silver; exquisite lace as a trimming and a soft tulle bridal veil accentuated the charm of her delicate features and rippling auburn hair. Mr. Hansell Hillyer, of New York, was the groom's best man; Rev. Charles H. Lee, of St. Paul's church, performed the ceremony. Gossip of Georgians in the Metropolis

By R. S. Carrawny—The Constitution's New York Bureau.

New York, October 18.—(Special.)—Rev. Dr. Robert Stuart MacArthur, president of the Baptist World alliance, formerly pastor of the Baptist tabernacle in Atlanta, and who several weeks ago resigned from the pastorate of the Greenwood Baptist church in Brooklyn borough, accepted a call to the First Baptist church in Baltimore last Sunday. He will not actively begin his duties, however, until February, when he will return from Burma, where he will attend the Judson centennial. Dr. MacArthur qualified his acceptance by declaring that he will be only acting pastor, and that he could not promise to enter upon a prolonged period of service with the Baltimore church, although he will make Baltimore his home and will devote his time to pastoral duties there, except when on journeys in connection with his position as head of the Baptists of the world.

Dr. MacArthur is one of the foremost religious leaders of this country, and is widely known for his eloquence as a lecturer and preacher. For forty-two years he was pastor of Calvary church in New York, resigning this pastorate to become head of the world alliance. He has been traveling nearly all the time since then, and has visited all parts of the world where Baptists could be found. Dr. MacArthur is now 72 years old, but in the pulpit his age is not apparent. He served as pastor of the Baptist tabernacle in Atlanta for several years, and during this time gained a wide circle of friends and followers.

New York chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, Mrs. James Henry Parker, president, held its first meeting of the season Tuesday morning at the Astor. Among the other things transacted was the election of twenty women as delegates to the convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy which will be held in November.

The wedding of Miss Myrtle Margaret Guggenheim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon F. Guggenheim, and William Rosenberg, Jr., of this city, took place Wednesday night at the Hotel Gotham, the Rev. Dr. John Ellis officiating. Only the immediate families witnessed the ceremony. Mrs. William J. Lindsay, of Savannah, was the bride's only attendant. S. H. Koenig was best man.

James B. Duke, the Carolina tobacco king, and his beautiful Georgia wife and baby, who have spent the summer in London, returned to New York this week on board the Cunard liner Lusitania. Mr. and Mrs. Duke have occupied the James Henry Smith mansion in the English capital this summer, and have figured largely in the social life of London during the season. They entertained extravagantly in the immense Smith house, which is in the center of the American colony in London.

Immediately after landing the Dukes went to their country place in New Jersey, where they will remain for several weeks prior to opening their Fifth avenue home for the winter.

The millionaire tobacco man was somewhat pessimistic when asked his opinion concerning the new democratic tariff legislation. He said the tariff will work havoc with American industries.

"We are not ready for a lower tariff just now," said Mr. Duke. "What we need is reciprocity."

Members of the Southern Society of New York will join with the members of the Northwestern Society in giving a dinner, at which Justice Edward E. McCall, democratic candidate for mayor of New York, will be the principal speaker, on October 27, at the Plaza hotel. Hon. This will be Mrs. Heath's third expedition south in the interest of the Housekeepers' league, and she hopes to make this trip as highly successful as her two former ones. The Housekeepers' league has done a great deal of good in northern cities, and Mrs. Heath, its founder and president, hopes to accomplish as beneficial results with branches throughout the south. Already the league has waged a campaign in South Carolina, Tennessee, West Virginia, Virginia, Kentucky and North Carolina, and the league now proposes to extend its activities beyond these states.

The chief purpose of the league is to teach housekeeping women how to fight the high cost of living, and to organize the women of each town so that they may demand pure foods, clean shops and the sanitary handling of food products.

I am willing to take the blame for all the trouble, but I really know I can't feel toward her as I should. We are all liable to make mistakes, and I realize I have made one. Mazie is a fine girl and will make someone a good wife, but she is not the kind that can get along with me."

So "Mazie" M. Tullis, wife of the writer, went back to Atlanta to her parents. Now she has begun a supreme court action for separation, and offered this letter as an evidence of her husband's coldness. WILL TEST LEGALITY OF WHEELER COUNTY

On Case Set for Hearing in the Supreme Court Monday Its Future Existence Depends.

There is set for argument in the supreme court tomorrow a case of general interest throughout the state, involving as it does the future existence of Wheeler county as a county. If the petitioners should win, the act creating the new county would be declared a nullity and the territory would revert to the county of Montgomery, from which it was severed when the new county was created.

Able counsel have been engaged on both sides and a strong battle will be made both for and against the legality of the creation of the new county. Those who will present the case against Wheeler are former State Senator Marcus Calhoun, of Mt. Vernon, and Warren Grice, of Hawkinsville. On the other side are W. A. Wooten, of Eastman, Eschol Graham and W. S. Mann, of McRae, and C. P. Thompson, of Alamo.

It is said that the new county of Wheeler has been in great financial difficulties ever since its creation and has never really been able to take on a regular form of county government. It has no public buildings and is said to be heavily in debt. Loan companies have refused to make loans and large firms, in view of the pending suit, are having their deeds and mortgages recorded in the old county, Montgomery, as well as in Wheeler. The condition has proved generally discouraging to the people and many of them, it is reported, are anxious to have the territory revert to the mother county.

How Test Case Is Brought.

The test case is a habeas corpus proceeding brought in the superior court of Baldwin county to release a negro convict, sent up from Wheeler, on the ground that there is no legally constituted superior court of said county and that the procedure under which he was tried and convicted is void. The case is brought in the name of Ben Moore, plaintiff, father of a minor son, Marshall Moore, convicted of murder at the March term of Wheeler superior court, this being the first trial and conviction for the offense under the new county. The convicted negro began his service in the state penitentiary March 15, hence the case is directed against J. E. Smith, the warden in charge.

Say Ratification Irregular

Attorneys representing the plaintiff claim irregularity in the ratification—that the national election in November cannot be construed the "next general election" named by the constitution of Georgia as being the legal time for amendments to be voted upon, and as given in Art. 13, Sec. 1, Par. 1 of the constitution of the state. Claims of illegality are also advanced by petitioner that the act creating Wheeler county is in conflict with Art. 11, Sec. 1, Par. 2 of the constitution of Georgia which states that "There shall not be more than one hundred and forty-five counties in this state"—that the constitutional limit had been reached at the time of the passage of the act, and that no provision was made by the legislative body for increasing the number of Georgia counties at that time or since, and that the general assembly exceeded its authority in submitting to a vote of the people an act creating new counties without having first provided for the creation of an additional number above the stated limit of one hundred and forty-five, under authority of an act passed in 1905.

In endeavoring to produce a ruling on the term "next general election," attorneys for the plaintiff refer to an amendment proposed by the general assembly in 1897 and ratified by the people in 1898, in which the constitution was made to read, referring to the election of solicitors-general, as follows: "The successors of present and subsequent incumbents shall be elected by the electors of the whole state, qualified to vote for members of the general assembly, at the general election held next preceding the expiration of their respective terms," citing the fact that if the words "general election" quoted in this section refer to any election general throughout the state, that solicitors-general should be elected at the national elections held in November, that election being held "next preceding" the expiration of their respective terms. These officers are elected in October at the regular state election, although the national election in November is general throughout the state.

Attention is also called to marginal reading of the code and other works accepted as authority that reference is made to the vote on the amendment creating the county of Ben Hill and altering the jurisdiction of the supreme court, creating the court of appeals, etc., as having been taken in November. All three amendments were ratified at regular state elections held in October, as shown by records of the executive office.

Courthouse Question Unsettled.

The courthouse question in the new county has never been settled, and Alamo and Glenwood are now parleying over the matter, the vote on the bond issue having been postponed until the hearing by the supreme court Monday and the subsequent decision as to the validity of the new county of Wheeler.

While the case has been set down for Monday, it is not unlikely that it will be the middle of the week before it is reached.

20 MULES AND HORSES CREMATED AT CORDELE

Firemen Fight Flames for Over Hour and Prevent Spread to Residence District.

Cordele, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) Twenty head of mules and horses were cremated and a loss of $50,000 entailed when the livery and sale stables of Pless & Williams, located in the immediate business section, was destroyed by fire this afternoon at 5 o'clock. Five thousand dollar damage was sustained to the building and contents of G. L. Dekle and Brother, undertakers, and farm supplies, adjoining the Pless & Williams building, and $6,000 damage was done to adjacent residence property.

For over an hour the fire department fought vigorously before getting the flames under control, preventing the fire spreading to the residence section on Twelfth avenue.

The fire originated in a large quantity of hay and feed stuff in the second story of the Pless & Williams building, spreading over the entire building and to adjacent property in a few minutes.

A touring car belonging to E. M. Pless, worth several hundred dollars, together with buggies and wagons, valued at $2,000, were also destroyed with the stables.

Most of the live stock belonged to farmers, as well as the buggies and wagons.

The building destroyed was worth $20,000 with $2,000 insurance.

GEORGIA-FLORIDA FAIR WILL OPEN NOVEMBER 4

Valdosta, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) The Georgia state sanitarium, at Milledgeville, will make an interesting and unique exhibit at the Georgia-Florida fair, which opens here for five days on November 4. It will consist of needlework, paintings, basketry and other artistic hand work by patients at the institution. There will be a special display by the pupils in the girls' training school, and from the kindergarten department and will, no doubt, be one of the most interesting exhibits ever shown in southern Georgia. At the closing exercises of the nurses' school at the institution this week, a display of art work by the pupils was made, and it was such a handsome and unusual one that the trustees of the sanitarium decided to let the display be carried to the fair here and to the state fair at Macon. The exhibit is one that will attract much attention.

CORDELE TRADE BOARD ADOPTS CONSTITUTION

Cordele, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) A meeting of the newly organized chamber of commerce of Cordele was held last night for the purpose of adopting a constitution and by-laws and appointing a committee to draw up a charter for the new organization. Several projects for the industrial advancement of Cordele and Crisp county were put under way at this meeting.

An urgent invitation will be extended from the Cordele chamber to induce the Chicago party proposing to visit some of the leading cities of the state to come to this city, and, in event of their acceptance, royal entertainment will be planned for them.

The mayor and city council and the board of county commissioners are all members of the chamber of commerce, and excellent co-operation is expected between the official and commercial bodies. Already the chamber has taken in hand the matter of inducing the commissioners to work certain public highways in the county.

VALDOSTANS ESTABLISH DAY NURSERY AND HOME

Valdosta, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) The initial steps were taken here this week for the establishment of an emergency home, day nursery and charity hospital, under the direction of the officers of the United Charities association. Captain W. T. Waller, of the Volunteers of America, appeared at the meeting, which was held at the Presbyterian church, and explained the work as carried on in other cities.

The institution will be called the Day Nursery and Emergency Home of the United Charities. Mrs. W. S. West was elected president; Mrs. Lida Pullen, secretary and treasurer; Captain W. T. Waller, solicitor and collector.

FAIR IN CHATTOOGA OPENS NEXT THURSDAY

Lyerly, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Next week will mark the ninth annual county fair for this county, the days being Thursday and Friday, the 23d and 24th. The fair will be the best one ever held in the county, it is believed. Much interest is being manifested in the different departments, and some fine exhibits of farm products are expected.

Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture, will deliver an address on the second day of the fair. Hon. Gordon Lee will deliver the welcome address Thursday morning, and Judge Moses Wright is booked for an address Friday morning.

Newman, judge of the United States courts for the northern district of Georgia, will leave Atlanta this morning for Knoxville, Tenn., his old home, where he will remain tomorrow and the next day, returning to Atlanta Wednesday morning in time to open the session of the federal district court.

FOURTH WARD WANTS SEWER WORK FINISHED

Will Fight Move to Put Some of Convicts on Ponce de Leon Sewer Work.

Council is in for a stormy session on Monday, according to Councilman Claude L. Ashley, of the fourth ward.

Councilman Ashley and the entire fourth ward delegation is aroused over that there will be an attempt in council to have a part of the county convicts taken from work on the Butler and Highland avenue sewers and put on the Ponce de Leon avenue sewer.

The resolution recommending the move has been passed up by the sewer committee. It was introduced on behalf of the local Shriners, it is said, with a view of relieving conditions in the vicinity of the Ponce de Leon amusement grounds, where thousands of visiting Shriners will be camped during the conclave which will be held in Atlanta during the fall.

"I am in favor of having the Ponce de Leon sewer worked, but I don't think it is fair to take the men from the other sewer work," Councilman Ashley said. "The improvement of the sewer will benefit the people in my neighborhood more than the improvement of the Butler or Highland sewers, and, individually, I would get relief, but the city and county have started work on this project, and it should be completed before the men are taken off."

Members of council who are in favor of the project take the position that the city cannot afford to offend the visitors when they are in the city. Ponce de Leon park will be a camp ground, and thousands of people will be attracted there to witness the drills and other stunts which will be pulled off.

PRESIDENT OF CHINA TO PRESIDENT WILSON

Washington, October 18.—Acknowledgment of President Wilson's message of congratulation upon his election as first permanent president of the Chinese republic has been received from Yuan Shi-Kai at the state department. His answer reads:

"Pekin, October 13, 1913.—His Excellency Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, Washington, D. C.: Intensely appreciative of your excellency's congratulation and compliment extended to me on the occasion of my inauguration as president of the Chinese republic, I offer to your excellency my most sincere thanks for them. The high trust and confidence which the people of China through the national assembly have seen fit to place in me, makes me fully conscious of the great responsibilities that go with them. Happy in the performance of my duties, I always have the luminous example of the United States to guide and help me. It also affords me much delight to observe that your excellency's hope and expectation for the advancement of China and the promotion of the peace and happiness and prosperity of her people under the republican system of government coincide precisely with my resolute aim and firm object in carrying on the new administration. With this renewed indication of sympathy and interest from your excellency, my hope to draw the bonds of friendship and good understanding that unite the two sister republics has grown stronger than ever and it will be an unfailing pleasure to me to co-operate with your excellency to attain this end.

"YUAN SHI KAI."

The letter was forwarded immediately to President Wilson.

AMERICAN BEEF DROPS FROM WORLD COMMERCE

Washington, October 18.—Exit the American cattle and beef as a factor in the world commerce. This virtually is the declaration of the United States bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, which announced today that such exports had dropped in less than a decade to a startling extent. In 1904, the bureau's statisticians found this country sent cattle and beef abroad to the value of more than $40,000,000 during the eight months ending with August. In the corresponding eight months this year a scant million dollars in such products have gone to the larders of the peoples of other lands.

As an aggravating fact accompanying the falling off in exports, the United States has been forced to draw more and more on other countries for beef and beef animals, says the bureau. This demand for food from outside has been met mostly by Mexico which, in spite of its internal troubles, has been able to send approximately 292,000 head of cattle in the United States.

Despite the seeming scarcity of cattle, the bureau declares the prices of beef animals have fallen steadily. The experts are said to acknowledge that the average housewife, after scanning her butcher bill, may question the declaration. They fall back on the old adage, however, that figures cannot lie."

AMERICUS IS AHEAD IN COTTON RECEIPTS

Americus, Ga., October 18.—(Special.) Eight hundred bales of wagon cotton were received today in Americus. The warehouses increased total receipts considerably more than 20,000 bales. Americus warehouse receipts are ahead of those of any other interior market in southwest Georgia.

Farmers continue to sell cotton as rapidly as marketed, and the value of the 20,300 bales marketed here already has vastly improved financial conditions. Sumter's crop this season will considerably exceed 35,000 baels, it is estimated.

SENATOR VOLUNTEERS TO DEFEND TWO BOYS

Washington, October 18.—Two grimy youngsters, who sell papers at the senate office building, will have a senator for their attorney when they appear in juvenile court next Tuesday charged with jumping on street cars.

Senator Clapp, of Minnesota, learned today that the two boys had been arrested and chastened to appear for them.

"I used to do a lot worse things than that when I was a boy," he said, "but no one arrested me."

SAVANNAH MAGISTRATE TRIED TO "FIX" JURORS

Such Is Basis of Probe Which the Solicitor Will Conduct Against Van Geisen.

Savannah, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—That efforts were made by Magistrate Frank S. Van Geisen and his friends to "fix" the grand jury which investigated the charges of misconduct against him, is the basis of a probe which was begun today by Solicitor General W. C. Hartridge.

The solicitor is in possession of the names of men who are charged with trying to influence members of the grand jury in favor of lenient action in the case against Van Geisen and is holding these names and evidence on the subject to bring before the October term grand jury at its first meeting.

Special indictments may be returned against these men. When the members of the grand jury met it was brought out that many of the jurors had been approached by persons who tried to influence their official actions toward the accused magistrate.

Judge Walter G. Charlton was notified of this and had the roll of grand jurors called. As each answered his name he told whether or not he had been approached by any one in Van Geisen's interest. After twelve members of the grand jury had testified that they had been approached and eleven of these by Van Geisen himself, Judge Charlton said the matter appeared to be more serious than a contempt of court and that it would be looked into by the next grand jury. Van Geisen has been indicted on eleven counts charging malfeasance and usury.

"MEN WHO ARE MEN"

Will Be Subject of Sermon by Rev. George L. Hanscom.

Sunday morning at the Central Congregational church the minister, Rev. George L. Hanscom, will speak on the subject, "Men Who Are Men." At the evening service, which will be devoted largely to music by a special chorus, the subject of the sermon will be, "Friend, Go Up Higher."

A special invitation is given to strangers and transients in the city to attend all services of this church, which is located in the heart of town at Carnegie Way and Ellis street.

AFTER STRENUOUS WEEK HOUSTON COURT CLOSES

Perry, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Houston superior court, which had been in session since Monday morning, adjourned yesterday afternoon. This week has been devoted to trial of criminal cases. There have been tried and otherwise disposed of forty-five cases.

There were four cases for murder, three of which were tried, two resulting in verdicts of guilty with recommendation to mercy. Sentences of life imprisonment were imposed upon Mose Armstrong and Tom Desern. Solicitor General Ross has had a strenuous week of it and there have been only four acquittals among the large number of cases disposed of.

CHANCELLOR AND WIFE CELEBRATE BIRTHDAYS

Athens, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—Chancellor D. C. Barrow, of the University of Georgia, celebrated his 61st birthday today in quiet work in his office—except when he was smiling at the signatures of the hundreds of postcards and notes of congratulation which he received. His progress through the streets this morning was like an impromptu reception.

Co-incidentally, today is also the birthday of Mrs. Barrow, as well as her husband—though several years apart, husband and wife were born on the same day of the same month and about the same hour, and their ideally happy life has refuted the astrologers' system which arranged happy marriages only between persons born in different months.

FOOT CRUSHED BY TRAIN, HE DIES FROM LOCKJAW

Waycross, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—From lockjaw which developed after a foot was crushed by an Atlantic Coast Line freight train at Seville, Fla., October 5, Andrew Arnett, of San Diego, Cal., died here today.

He was 33 years old and at the time of the accident was going to Sanford for a position. He was not employed by the railroad but was sent here for attention when it was found that he had no way of looking after himself. Papers found in his clothing indicated that his father was living in California. His body will be shipped to his old home.

Statesboro Sewerage.

Statesboro, Ga., October 18.—(Special.)—The contract for building the sewerage system for Statesboro was awarded last night to the Georgia Engineering and Contracting company, of Clayton, Ga., for $36,000. There were eleven concerns bidding on the work, but there being such a variance in the price only five bids were considered. The bids ranged from $36,000 to $59,000. Concerns from Indiana, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Texas, Georgia and other states, north, east, west and south were represented. The Georgia concern was the lowest bidder and, after an investigation, its bid was accepted by council.

Information About Atlanta Is Sought From Many Cities

Emphasizing the fact that Atlanta as a city is growing in popularity and is rapidly becoming known as one of the ideal business centers are the number of communications received from all parts of the United States daily demanding information concerning various matters and facilities possessed by Atlanta, of which the writers have heard, but which sound almost too good to be truece. They, therefore, write to the chamber of commerce demanding information concerning this and that with the result that each time they are informed by the return mail that their original information regarding the wonderful advantages Atlanta possesses over other cities is correct.

A carpenter in Kansas City writes to know if the great building activity of which he has heard is in progress in Atlanta. A large stone contractor of Joplin, Mo., wishes to know if there is such a place as Stone Mountain, where a whole mountain of the best building stone can be had for the mere blasting. A farmer in Illinois writes for prices obtained for provisions in the local market, and a thousand other similar queries.

Then there are many letters received daily from the main offices of large manufacturing concerns demanding information regarding building sites and the excellent railroad facilities. All these letters are answered in detail, and W. H. Leahy, secretary of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, says that he could use several more stenographers to advantage.

"Just now," declared Mr. Leahy, "we have a number of large manufacturing plants interested, and I predict that before the first of the year we shall have landed them all. One concern has sent one of its representatives here to investigate, and he, after careful investigation, reported that Atlanta was one of the best possible locations for any kind of an industry. I would make the names of these concerns public if it were not for the fact that other cities would hear of it and would trouble these concerns which we have practically landed, causing them much annoyance in an effort to interest them in their towns. Even at that I don't believe that these other towns could land them, for none of them offers one-half as many inducements.

"The chamber of commerce will do all in its power toward gaining free factory sites for industries which intend to locate in Atlanta. We want them, and will take care of them, for we are capable of doing it. Manufacturers will locate here because they know that it is to their advantage to do so. They know that they can't do better any place in the country."

Old Guard Will Dedicate Tablets to Stephens Today

Clad in their brilliant full dress uniforms and accompanied by an escort of honor from the state militia, the Old Guard of the Gate City Guard is off today for Crawfordville to dedicate the granite tablet that will mark the grave of the late Alex H. Stephens, governor of Georgia and vice president of the Confederacy.

The militia escort consisted of the younger company of the Gate City Guard, now a part of the regular National Guard of Georgia. A drum and bugle corps also accompanied them.

The distinguished party left on a special train over the Georgia railroad, following immediately after the regular 7 a. m. train. A number of the wives and daughters of the members of the Old Guard accompanied them on the trip.

The presentation and dedication of this monument will add another important item to the list of historic public services which have been performed by the Old Guard since the civil war. The idea of presenting the magnificent granite tablet as a tribute from the Old Guard was conceived by Colonel J. F. Burke, the commander, and was enthusiastically received by the membership.

The party will arrive in Crawfordville shortly after 11 o'clock and will be met at the train by the Crawfordville Daughters of the Confederacy, under whose auspices the dedication ceremonies will take place. The militia will parade through the streets; a luncheon will be served; and the exercises at the cemetery will be about 2:30 o'clock.

The principal speakers will be State School Commissioner M. L. Brittain, J. R. Smith, Rev. Lucien Knight, W. Woods White, General A. J. West, Colonel F. J. Paxon and Colonel J. F. Burke.

After the dedication ceremonies the younger company of the Gate City Guard will fire three volleys over the grave while the older organization stands at present arms. The bugler will sound taps.

The inscription on the granite tablet is surmounted by the coat of arms of the old guard battalion, and reads as follows:

H. M. ATKINSON QUITS AS A., B. & A. RECEIVER

E. T. Lamb Will Now Have Full Control of Valuable Railroad Properties.

H. M. Atkinson, builder of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railway and one of its receivers since that railway corporation became financially involved, has resigned from the receivership because, as he says in his letter of resignation addressed to Don A Pardee, judge of the federal court of appeals for the fifth judicial circuit

"It is necessary for me to give a large part, if not all my time to the Georgia Railway and Power company and other business interest which I have."

The Atkinson resignation dated October 12, 1913, reached Judge Pardee the next day and Saturday the judge advised Mr. Atkinson of its acceptance, at the same time sending to the clerk of the federal court for record the letter of resignation and the judge's order occasioned by that resignation.

Expressing his appreciation "of the confidence the court had invariably shown him in his work and an anxiousness to be relieved of the duties and responsibilities of the receivership and asserting that he regretted the termination of his official association, Mr. Atkinson added that "as the construction of the road was completed some months ago, and that its entire mileage has been in operation for several years, its future is now dependent largely upon efficient operation."

According Mr. Atkinson's resignation, Judge Pardee ordered that it become effective October 31 instant and directed E. T. Lamb, Mr. Atkinson's co-receiver, to operate the railroad properties as sole receiver until further orders. Judge Pardee directed that copies of his order be filed with the clerks of the federal courts of the southern district of Georgia and the middle and northern districts of Alabama.

ENTIRE LAW CLASS WORKING OWN WAY THROUGH COLLEGE

At a banquet of the junior class of the Atlanta Law school, held Friday evening at the Kimball house, an investigation brought forth the interesting fact that every member of the class, without exception, was working his own way through the law course in order to obtain the education necessary to the practice of law.

All but five, out of the thirty-one members of the class, are doing work at the present time to bear their expenses, many of them holding all-day or all-night jobs. Eight of them are clerks or stenographers in law offices, six are pharmacists or drug clerks, five are teaching school, while the others hold widely varied position including the real estate, insurance and newspaper business. The average age of the class is 24, several of them being over 30.

The young men enjoyed a thorough good evening together and, from the contribution of each others' ideas, gained tremendous enthusiasm for the year's work.

BUSINESS MEN PLAN SPECIAL STEAMER FOR PANAMA VISIT

Chartering a special steamer and leaving for Panama in a body at least 100 strong, a party of Atlanta people, composed mainly of business men, will take an 18-day trip in December for the purpose of inspecting the gigantic work on the canal that is now nearing completion.

The party will leave Atlanta on Tuesday afternoon, December 2, sailing from New Orleans the following day and arriving at Panama the next Monday morning. From then until the following Sunday they will be in Panama and Central America, going over the entire canal zone by railroad and taking side trips to Port Limon, Bocas del Toro, and San Jose. The latter city, one of the most remarkable cities of Central America, is said to possess the finest theater in the world, costing over $1,000,000.

The trip will be under the charge of John T. North, 121 Peachtree street, who has already made quite a number of reservations for places in the party.

A. B. & A. Equipment Authorized

Judge Pardee, of the federal circuit court of appeals, responding to a petition filed some weeks ago by H. M. Atkinson and E. T. Lamb, receivers for the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad, yesterday authorized the petitioning receivers to purchase four standard eight-wheel caboose cars at the price of $4,000 upon terms indicated in the contract submitted for approval. Also Judge Pardee issued, at the same time, an order directing the receivers, H. M. Atkinson and E. T. Lamb, to buy from the Baldwin Locomotive works five locomotives of the Mikado type for $24,500 each cash. The order also directed the receivers to use receivers' certificates now outstanding in making the purchase, the certificates, it used, rather than full cash payment, to be at 98½ cents.

At the evening hour, 7:30 o'clock, the confederate veterans' memorial service will be held in this church, at which the veterans will also attend in a body.

You Can't Be Well When Constipated

"Keep Your Bowels Open"—Doctors Estimate 75 Per Cent of Sickness Due to Torpid Liver.

Some undigested food is left in the stomach daily, which the liver should clear away. A heavy or unusual diet, or a change in water, may cause the liver to leave a few particles to press and clog, and the next day more are left over. So this waste accumulates, clogging stomach and intestines, and causing constipation.

That is not all. If the waste is not eliminated it ferments and generates uric acid, a poison which gets into the blood and through the system.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT immediately flushes the stomach and intestinal tract and washes away every particle of waste and fermentation; it purifies the blood by dissolving what uric acid has accumulated and passing it off in the urine.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is much better than calomel; no danger of salivation, no need of an after-cleansing dose of oil. It acts quickly and mildly; never forces, gripes or nauseates. It effervesces agreeably. Take it before breakfast and in an hour you'll feel splendid.

Don't take an inferior substitute; some closely imitate the name, but none produces the same result. All druggists should have the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT, 25c. If yours cannot supply you, full size jar mailed upon receipt of price, postage free. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy Co., Atlanta.—(advt.)

WALKER IS RESTRAINED FROM MOLESTING WIFE

Mrs. Rose Walker brought suit for divorce, alimony and the custody of her son, Adolph Walker, aged 18 months, yesterday in superior court, declaring that A. L. Walker, whom she married on February 28, 1911, had been guilty of various acts of cruelty, including flirting with a girl.

Mrs. Walker stated that her husband would take the girl to moving picture shows, and would then come home and tell her of it. She also declared that he was often intoxicated, and that he failed to provide for her and the child.

On motion of the plaintiff, Judge George L. Bell granted an order restraining Walker from molesting his wife or son pending a hearing on October 26.

FRANK JURORS TO OFFER CHARACTER AFFIDAVITS

Hearing Set for Wednesday—Affidavits to Be Submitted for Henslee and Johenning.

Affidavits attesting the good character and standing of A. H. Henslee and M. Johenning, the two jurors in the Leo M. Frank case accused of expressing personal animus before the trial, will be part of the defense which Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will submit at the hearing Wednesday morning before Judge L. S. Roan.

The date of hearing was definitely set as Wednesday when attorneys representing the state and the defense appeared Saturday before Judge Roan. Every indication is that the motion will be settled next week, at least as far as the superior court is concerned.

Solicitor Dorsey and Attorneys Frank A. Hooper and E. A. Stephens held a lengthy conference saturday afternoon with Jurors Henslee and Johenning and both the men swore to affidavits, denying the charges of bias. At that time they also made preparations for the affidavits from other citizens as to their character and reputation.

Dorsey Seeks Jurors' Affidavits.

The solicitor has been working for over a week to get affidavits from each of the jurors, denying that they were influenced by the cheering for the solicitor, which took place several times toward the close of the trial, and by which the defense claims the jurors must have been influenced.

Juror J. Y. L. Smith who recently was notified that he was heir to a small fortune, is now in New York in the interests of his claim and the solicitor secured his address and mailed him an affidavit for him to fill out and swear to before a notary or commissioner.

Both the state and the defense are anxious to end the case this week. Attorney Luther Z. Rosser declared in court Saturday that unless the motion was heard at once that it would have to be put off for a while, as he had other cases that were pressing him. The solicitor also is anxious to get down to work on the scores of other cases which are congesting the court docket.

New Evidence Coming.

Both sides agreed to submit to each other before the case is taken up various papers which they have prepared and which have not been made public. It is stated that both sides have additional evidence to be produced at the hearing and which has not been filed with the clerk of the court.

Judge Roan also urged haste in bringing up the motion, saying that he felt it necessary to take his place on the court of appeals bench and allow Judge Benjamin H. Hill to become a member of the Fulton superior court.

The fight, which is set for Wednesday, is expected to be a long and bitter one and the various technical errors which Judge Roan is alleged to have made on rulings which the defense protested, will call for a great deal of argument and also for the citing of many authorities and records of the decisions of the supreme courts.

The fight over the charges against the two jurors will also take up much time and may involve lengthy arguments before it is finished.

A bound volume three feet thick and representing all the evidence taken in the previous case in which Frank was convicted for the murder of Mary Phagan, was filed Saturday with Deputy Clerk John H. Jones. This was formally placed on the court records by the defense and was the typewritten transcript of the court stenographer's notes.

Illness of McClelland Postpones Hearing on Whitehall Injunction.

Because of the absence of John E. McClelland, attorney, representing W. L. Kelley in the suit for injunction against the city and county to prevent the improvement of Whitehall street, the arguments set for hearing before Judge George Bell, in the superior court, were postponed yesterday.

Judge Bell granted the continuance when it was represented to him that Attorney McClelland was too ill to enter into the case. He informed both sides, however, that the case will be heard at 10 o'clock Monday morning, regardless of any excuse.

The testimony was heard before Commissioner Sig. Tettlehaum Friday afternoon, and the case is ready to go before the court on its merits. Judge Bell intimated in his remarks from the bench that he will render a decision immediately after hearing the arguments.

County Commissioner Shelby Smith stated Saturday that in the event the court lifts the injunction, a force of 100 convicts will be placed on the street in addition to those who were at work when the injunction order halted operations.

EATONTON, GA.

Mrs. John Rees Hudson, a recent Eatonton bride, formerly Miss Lucille Burruss, of Madison, was the honoree of Mrs. Peter W. Walton, Jr.'s, party Wednesday afternoon. The affair was one of the most enjoyable events of the week, with a large crowd present. Mrs. Beck and Mrs. G. A. Tucker were the prize winners of the evening, both receiving lucky bluebird pins. A delicious salad course was served during the afternoon. Among those present were the following out-of-town visitors: Mrs. Mary Sue Lawrence, of Milledgeville; Mrs. George Strickland, of Concord; Miss Eloise Rozier, of Sparta; Miss Maud Long, of Comer, and Miss Josephine Bethune, of Milledgeville, and Miss Mary Rainey, of Willard.

Mrs. G. E. Scott visited Macon this week.

Miss Eloise Rozier spent the past week-end in Sparta.

Mrs. S. G. Collins was a recent visitor to Milledgeville and Macon.

An enjoyable dinner party of the week past was that of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dance at their home on Wayne street. Their guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Gardner and Miss Martha Gardner, Dr. and Mrs. S. A. Clark, Miss Virginia Johns and Mr. J. L. Johns.

Miss Carruth Weaver, of the G. N. and I. college, spent the past week-end with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. D. Weaver.

Francis Hearn, Howard and Johnnie Johns and John A. Phillips, who are representing Eatonton at Mercer this year, spent several days here this week.

Friday afternoon, at the lovely Jenkins home in the Avenue, Miss Carrie Jenkins entertained very delightfully with a heart lawn fete complimentary to Mrs. John Rees Hudson. Punch was served on the veranda by Misses Lella May Jenkins, Elizabeth Dennis, Ghetta May Scott and Marjorie Thomas. A color scheme of green and white was carried out in the favors and refreshments. What the Paris Milliners Have Sent Us

WORD has been flashed that black is to be the reigning color in millinery, relieved with touches of brilliant color.

The hat in the upper left sketch is of black velvet, with a curving brim, low on the right side, and curving up on the left, where it is lifted from the hair by a bandeau. To the upper edge of the brim at the back is fastened a long uncurled ostrich plume in cherry color.

The opposite sketch shows a quaint bonnet shape of shirred taffeta in hunter's green, and is trimmed with a smart bow of taffeta at the back.

The hat in the center has a crown of white silk, with the brim of black velvet, turned up sharply at the left side, where it is tipped with a tuft of black ostrich.

The little brimless hat in the lower left corner is of green and white striped velvet, banded by plain green velvet, and is given the necessary chic by the arrangement of the long green ostrich plume.

In the lower right sketch the band of black lynx is crowned with soft white fox, which puffs straight over the lynx band. A knot of black and white velvet stands straight up in the front.

Rabun Gap Industrial School Is Fine Example Of Present Educational Activity in This State

What I Saw Boys Doing at This Magnificent Institution—How Andrew J. Ritchie Has Brought Theory and Action Together, and Has Shown Mountain Boy and Girl How to Live and How to Work.

BY ISMA DOOLY.

The Rabun Gap Industrial school, in Rabun county, Ga., is one of the finest examples of educational activity in the state. There is to be seen in the every day action of this school the real meaning of education—the education which relates the training of the boy and girl in the school to the life around him and her, and which brings both of them into direct usefulness to the life of the commonwealth and the nation.

There may be those who will question the entire accuracy of this statement; who will question how in that particular county of the state, where 20 per cent of the white population are illiterate, there could be produced an educational plant which represents the last word in rational educational method.

I unhesitatingly make this sweeping statement about the school, for I can prove in the simple story of a visit there what it represents, what it is doing, and what it proposes to do. Besides the facts which I can record, I have gained an inspiration which helps me, in having seen young mountain people in the school. I have seen in them a dignity and fearlessness of attitude born, not of habitual bravado, but of an elemental racial force which yet will push through the handicap of their generations of isolation and win back for them the place once held in civilization by their Anglo-Saxon forebears.

I know the common indictment against these mountain people. They make moonshine whisky and sell it, they are lawless in that; they are feudists in spirit, they kill, but they never stoop to lie, and they are never afraid to acknowledge their crimes.

The Results of Isolation.

They face an enemy unflinchingly They stand before the court of justice with head erect and meet their doom Many of them are desperadoes They commit openly crimes which people in more civilized communities know how to hide Their spirit of adventure makes outlaws of many of them as surely as thrift and greed and corruption make tottered cowards of many men living in the heart of civilized communities They are feudistic—yes They will fight and kill each other over boundary lines in unplowed, unused lands They struggle for generations in the turmoil of little mountain politics with a physical vigor and wide-open integrity which makes the fight in local politics of the so-called "progressive municipality" appear shamefaced, weak and contemptible in the secret methods, alley oratory and underhanded acts frequently employed

The Social Incident.

And there is too, reprehensible social incident of mountaineer life For instance the story was told to me the other day of a young mountaineer meeting the girl he loved and noticing that to offset her simple homespun gown she wore a gay colored handkerchief around her neck

"Where did you get that?" he asked, pointing to the new adornment

"Bill' gave it to me," she confessed, giving a rival's name

"Stand still where you are," he commanded calmly She obeyed and aiming with his gun at the handkerchief he shot it from her neck and wounded her He carried her home in his arms, helped nurse her until she was well, then married her

This was a questionable type of chivalry but is there not a great deal of so-called chivalry which might be questioned in the more civilized centers'

Another Charge.

Another charge against the mountain people and that well founded, is their filthiness their shiftlessness and almost barbarous indifference to the comforts of life But is there not a something called hygiene in the big cities also in large measure there among many is to how to live a lack of cleanliness which keeps health boards and tuberculosis societies and sanitary inspectors tried and worked continually'

Analyzing the mountain people, with only superficial stroke it will be found that virtues and vices throughout the same inheritance the human family has everywhere the extent and form of expression governed by environment and opportunity or the lack of opportunity

A Theme for Writers.

The mountain people of north Georgia the Carolinas Tennessee Virginia and Kentucky in their isolation and its results their raw lines of character their stuff of adventure and their present uselessness as a class have proved a fatal theme for the writer reformer and teacher Their history has been essayed by many their crimes have been exploited their romance has lent itself charmingly to fiction—but what was to be done to work out what had resolved itself into the mountain problem'

The 'conservation' so dominant in the twentieth century dictum of civilization demanded that every man woman and child be trained to do his and her part in it So element of people could be spared or left unused and above all not those people of our highlands with their inheritance of pure blood their virility of character their fundamental integrity of spirit and their native surroundings in the most fertile valleys of the Blue Ridge mountains

We needed them They needed us

How to Reach the People.

But how were they to be reached and what were we to do to them when we reached them' The mission spirit no matter how extensive and the traditional school no matter how well built could accomplish it

It required the experience of one of them who knew the problem from the inside, and then who came to know it in its relations the great outside

There came to the aid of the Georgia highlands Andrew J Ritchie first the mountaineer then the scholar but still always the mountaineer A product of their very own born in a mountain cabin reared in the laboring in the fields where in mind at three grew him the spirit which proclaimed the ideal of Anglo-Saxon life and he worked out the experiment of the school which now so surely so vigorously has begun the solving of our highland problem

Ritchie's Work.

In the Rabun Gap Industrial school he has brought theory and action together he as much as the mountain boy and girl must live and how to work He is teaching them what to do when they leave the school He is putting before them the values of knowledge as it can be applied He is teaching them the honor of livelihood He is bringing them to know the part they have place in civilization He is teaching them the meaning of the home and the family life

He is inspiring them not to leave the mountains but to go back to them from the school trained to build the red home to build it for the unit of the family to push the family life into the community and to make the fertile valleys ever productive reservoirs in their varied natural resources

I will not attempt to put in this record the trials of Andrew Ritchie when he determined several years ago to consecrate his life to the help of his own people

He was 21 years old when he boarded the railroad train for the first time and went to Emory and worked his way through there And he went on working through until he completed the course of studies in the University of Georgia and then won his degree in Harvard He was then and now the typical mountaineer in appearance, with his clear pale blue eye his straight features and his well-set head He stands erect, he meets your every gaze, he can answer your every question

His own people were the first to obstruct his effort They had ignoble suspicions Why should he be working so hard for others? What was he going to get out of it?

And what sort of a school was it where children had to work? Didn't they go to school to learn? But he grew great through the struggle which tried often his body but strengthened his spirit, and his story once timidly told now commands, and no patriotic Georgian can be deaf to the eloquent truth of it

The State's Interest.

There are few business men in the state who have not met him face to face and heard the message which has brought the life to the school now crowning the summit of a hill nature terraces down to a valley of richest harvest and the mountains surrounded with unrivaled beauty

Fifty citizens of Georgia, giving a stipulated amount each year, the aid of the Georgia division United Daughters of the Confederacy the directorship of a noble citizen, Hon E. R. Hodgson, of Athens Ga., and the loyal support of mountaineer citizens, of whom Andrew Jackson Grist, of Rabun Gap, is a type have been among the forces which have combined to bring the heroic effort of Andrew Ritchie to its present fruition

But the school needs enlargement and better equipment, more land is needed for the training in actual farming and raising of cattle

Mountain boys and girls are knocking at the door, begging to enter A deaf ear cannot be turned to them, and still there is not room enough

I can come to the school a lady has offered to pay my way there but I dont want to go and not take my twin brother, too' was the appeal made by a boy the other day

I have a friend there at the school and I want to learn what he learns'

Can't you take my boy and teach him to work' I can't afford to send him My health is broken down my wife is dead I have a large family of children'

I want my boy to work and pay his way through school Give him a trial' was written in scarcely legible hand by a mountaineer father

A Visit to the School.

When I went to the Rabun Gap school the other day the atmosphere seemed to blend the balmiest of spring air with the radiant color scheme of autumn and as I drove up the road which circles around and through the school grounds I forgave the mountaineer people much of the idleness and dreaminess charged to them, for it seemed to me life would be ever full just in contemplating the beauties that were

The Blue Ridge mountains, in rugged richly forested heights arose and were deep blue in the light of the noonday sun They held in the valley below, on all sides and the harvesting going on there As I drove on and up and feasted my eyes everywhere on a scenery which nature has seemed to glorify, I thought how little so many of us know about the wonders of creation so near us and the riches that are ours'

More than ever the joy of it bore in upon me when Mr Hodgson of Athens, who was with the party, asked 'Are the mountains beautiful today' You know I cannot see them, but I know how they look with their autumn lights in the harvest time'

A Good Georgian.

The sight has gone from his eyes, but he carries in mind every acre of the ground around the school and he knows every angle of the big white building where the mountain boys and girls live His spirit has penetrated into the inner life and heart of the place where the human eye could not reach and when he came to the door of the school I have never seen so many hands reaching out to grasp the hand of a friend It was the hour of the afternoon recreation, and twenty-five or more of the boys and girls were gathered in groups outside

'I am John,' said one as he grasped Mr Hodgson's hand, 'and I am Rufus' said another, and then the girls came forward

'I'm Ella Let me take your arm, Mr Hodgson" "I knew that voice Lila, was the cheery reply, 'and this is Vera and Sarah,' and their names he called, asking each something which meant he knew them individually in their interests and was a part of the big school family

To one pretty maid of the mountain, whose cheeks were like red apples and her hair a crown of gold on her forehead, he asked 'Did you gain forty pounds this year?' She had come an emaciated little somebody, but interest and good living and work had made her over, and her pretty face broke into dimples at the fact of the forty pounds she had carelessly taken on her first year at school.

The Woman's Spirit.

Gretchen had much pride in telling that one of her special duties was to look after the nursery herd but at this moment there came into the group, with gracious greetings, that most wonderful of women Mrs Andrew Ritchie Small of stature, but prodigiously large in spirit, she is the co-leader of the school's activity She is the feminine spirit, representing the mother strength of the home, the guiding light of the school and the teacher of the household duties and art, raised to the highest standard

But of Mrs Ritchie and her embryo housewives I will write in another story The first day at the school I went into the harvest fields and watched the work of mountaineer boys as farmers

When the afternoon recess was over the young people went into their classrooms and the boys who had worked on the farm in the morning, had their classes in the afternoon, this being one of the admirable principles of the school Work and study are equally accomplished, and the theory of the boy actually putting into practice that which he studies was to be seen in all its practicability

Behind a stout mule team which seemed to need little direction from Mr. Ritchie who drove us, we went partly through the farm, which now covers an area of about 600 acres, all under cultivation of the school-boy farmers

In the Fields.

Three harvesting machines were busy and the boys from everywhere on the farm called cheerily as we passed

These were mountain homes with well-built chimneys and suggestions of the comforts within, apples were drying in the sun, and we saw sometimes industrious housewives in their gardens gathering potatoes. Too often we passed homes which did not have the air of prosperity I was struck by the giant trees which arose here and there on the more thickly forested base of the mountains, and was marvelling at the beauty of the goldenrod and other flowers, when we stopped at the summit of a hill to look down into the pasture below

There were more busy farmer boys herding the cattle, the head of this group of workers, Mettler Bollinger, who has proven himself the expert cattle raiser of the school This is his third year in the school, he loves the pasture, and since cattle raising has become one of the lucrative departments of the school work, he has taken entire charge of the herd, directing the boys under him, grouns of the students taking their turn in working in the pasture, and all deeply interested in it

The Cattle Industry.

The cattle industry was started, I was told, three years ago, by the purchase of a fine young herd by Mr. Hodgson There were about 75 head purchased in two lots one in the spring, the other in the fall. There were 50 steers, which were fattened on the school pastures, and sold in Richmond, Va at a good profit They were said to be the finest cattle of their age, that is in the best finish of flesh and shape and color handled by the John W Gordon Cattle company in Richmond during that season.

The 25 heifers of this herd formed the start of the milch cows and calf raising herd Nearly all of these cattle were of the Red Poll stock, some of them being registered in the American Red Poll Cattle club.

From this herd of young cows the school has raised 40 calves, and the heifers among these calves will be kept on the farm and added to the milch and calf raising herd The steers will be fattened and sold for beef the school owns the finest short horn Durham male in the county, and the calves being raised now are Red Poll and Durham cattle.

The second year, which was last year, the school bought 100 red steers in the surrounding mountain country and sold them last spring in Richmond at a good profit. The steers were fattened on the corn raised by the students on the school farm. The original cost of the stock was $30 apiece or $3,000, and they were sold for $65 or $6,500

About $2,000 worth of corn was fed the steers and about $1,000 worth of cotton seed meal. Thus, the school made a profit of $500 in cash, 500 tons of manure for the farm, which was, worth not less than $500 in cash.

With this large quantity of fertilizing material it is possible to build up the farm each year and increase the crops, and it is estimated this year that the corn crop alone will be about 6,000 bushels

A herd of 125 steers has been bought to fatten with this year's corn crop, and to it will be added 150 of the young steers of the school's own raising, thus starting their own cattle raising

They Are Business People.

Now there is not a boy or girl in the school that does not know every detail of every department of the farm, especially this of the new industry of cattle raising They are told the business side as well as the practical side of it, and their actual responsibility in the care of the herd gives them an experience and knowledge no book could teach, no lecturer demonstrate

On the farm is raised all the necessary vegetables for the consumption of the students—Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, tomatoes, butter beans, turnips, cabbage, collards. There is a small apple orchard, and there were strawberries enough to supply the table during the season and to make preserves for the winter months. Tomatoes have been canned for the winter months, and the apples are drying now for winter use.

The Academic Work.

While the work on the farm is so systematically pushed, no boy or girl is asked to sacrifice any of the time which should be given to the academic education which every boy and girl of the nation is entitled to One half the day is given to this, the other half to work, with the necessary rest and recreation.

In the school course the common and high school studies are carefully taught, reading, writing, arithmetic, grammar, geography, history, physiology and there are departments in agriculture, school gardening, carpentry blacksmithing.

During the afternoon a squad of boys under an expert carpenter were singing in the work of building a silo for the preserving of the farm products of the winter, the expert carpenter being a member of the school family The expert farmer is a member of the faculty, and Mr. Andrew Jackson Grist, a trustee of the school, and a successful cattle raiser, is assisting the boys in that industry.

Last year they assisted in building a barn which Mr. Hougson presented to the school, and in the library of the school building, where I met many of the boys and girls after supper, the book shelves had been made by the boys.

The entire plan of the school and its training follows that the boys will earn their living with the labor of their own hands. Their wealth must come from the soil and the products of their handicrafts. They must be, to a large extent, their own blacksmiths and carpenters, and be ready to meet the situation that their resources and industrial environment constitute a basis of wealth, which, if developed by industrial education, will make them less dependent than any other people upon the outside world for their living.

Their Power to Act.

One of the results of that practical education the boys and girls are getting was their marked power of initiative. I was impressed with facts they knew what to do without being told. The boys were so interested in what they were doing, so ready to talk of it, so direct in their narration of anything, so finely reserved in manner, yet meeting every demand of courtesy.

In appearance they are straight and lithe in body, alert in action, steady in their movement. They are cheerful and full of life, and typical young Americans in their antics.

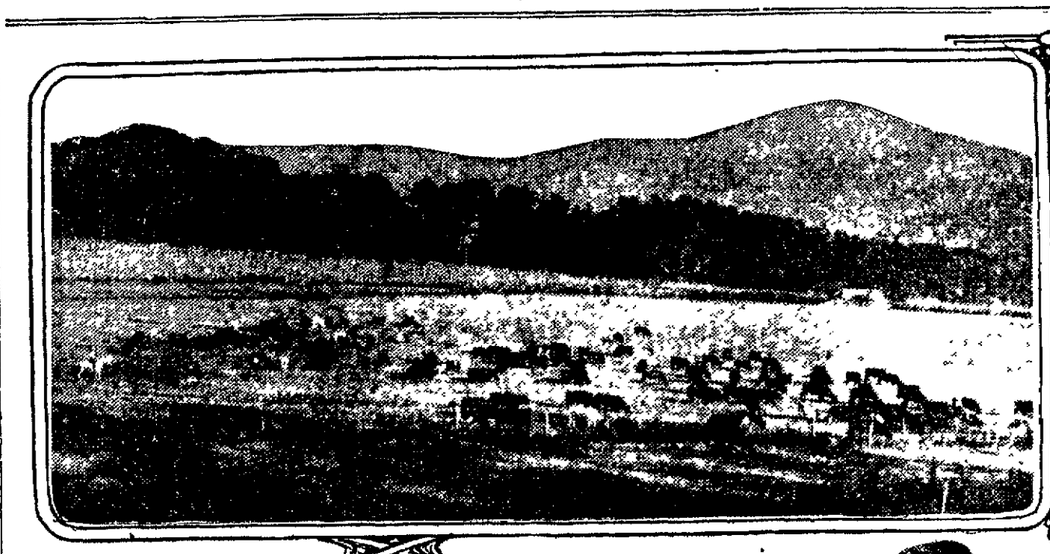
Good gracious! What is that?" asked Mr. Hodgson and Mr. Ritchie, as they walked out of the door directly after supper, and something fell at their feet It was a small black cat which had been dropped out of the second story window, and looking up they saw a whole row of laughing, bobbing faces

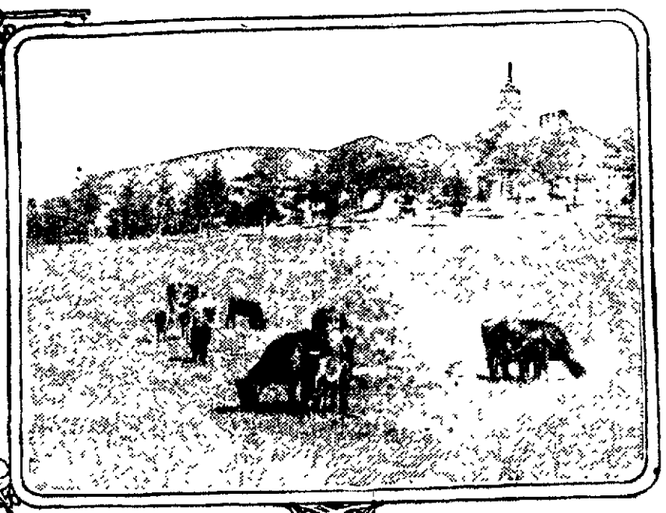
"Why, boys, you mustn't throw the cat out of the window. But Mr. Ritchie don't you know that a cat always lights on its feet?" they called back It don't hurt the cat

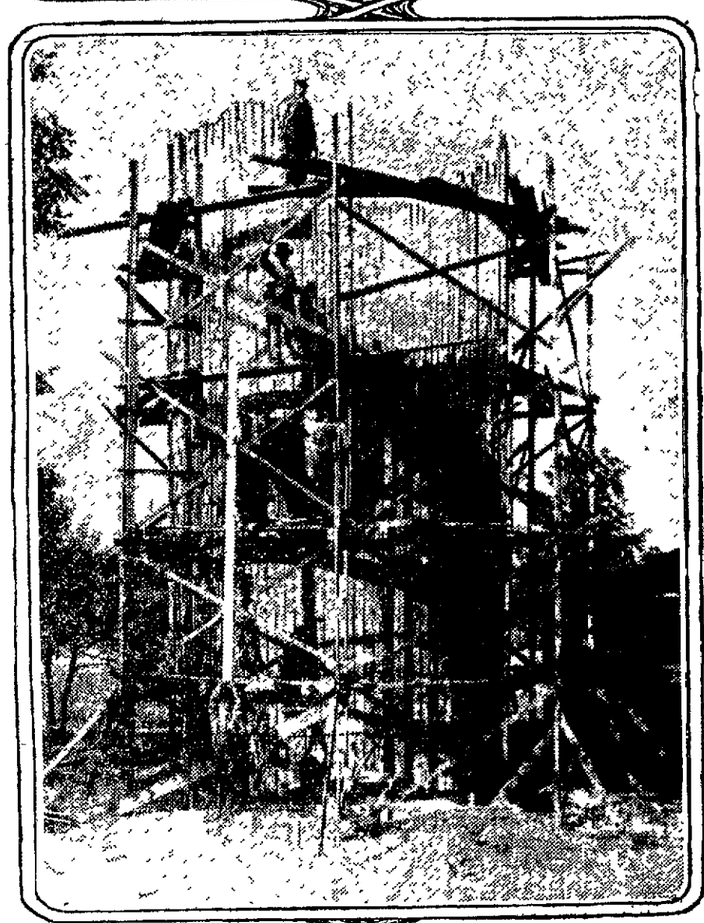
Little Ruth Ritchie the 6 year old daughter of Mr and Mrs. Ritchie, appeared for the rescue of her cat She had with her a mongrel white puppy of very active prehistoric ancestry who posed himself in every picture the photographer took, and whose bad conduct would have probably been explained by little Miss Ritchie in the fact that he had been picked up on the streets of Atlanta and brought to her by a cadet She preferred the Collie dog "Lassie," with which she frequently aided Mettler Bollinger in herding the cattle.

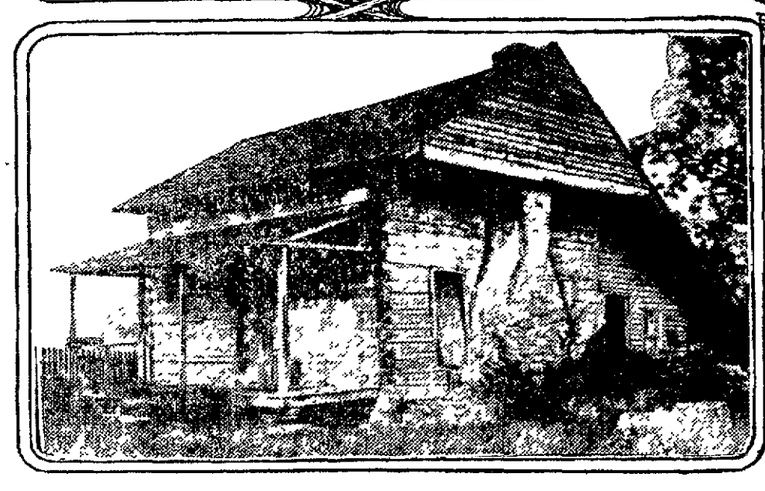
Early Hours.

The tradition of "early to bed and early to rise" is held to in the Rabun Gap school, and at a little after 9 o'clock every light was out, everybody was in bed. As I listened, and wondered at the beautiful silence, I could hear now and then only the tinkle of a cow bell far off in the pasture. The stars shone so brightly I could see the clear sky above the summits of the blue mountains, I could see the harvested fields below, and I went to sleep so thinking that this was one of the peaceful valleys I had read of—I had never known so much of peace and silence before.









Upper how shows valley in which the cattle raising is successfully carried on and the nursery herd.

Second row shows the silo being built by the boys of the school. Mr. Andrew Jackson Grist, a trustee of the school and a fine type of the mountaineer citizen. Two of the boys who are prize harvesters.

Third row, typical mountain home; Mettler Bollinger, who herds the school cattle and will make cattle raising his business when he leaves school. Andrew J. Ritchie, founder and president of the school.

What Thirty Bright, Ambitious Girls Are Doing At Rabun Gap School in the Georgia Highlands

They Have Their Own Dairy, Raise Their Own Poultry and Know How to Do Scientific Farming—They Study Gardening, Domestic Science, Needlework, Basketry and Music, in Addition to a Regular Academic Course.

BY ISMA DOOLY.

When the thirty girls of the Rabun Gap Industrial school posed for their pictures in the open they did not mind the glare of the sunlight; they had no fear of tan or freckles; they defied these dangers. They rarely worry about their hats, yet I never saw prettier, clearer complexions, brighter eyes and finer hair.

They wore the dark blue skirts, white muslin shirtwaists, which they had made themselves, for these clever girls are taught to sew. They make the boys' shirts for them, and more than that, they iron those shirts after they are laundered. A negro woman is employed to do the washing for the boys. The girls do their own laundry work, the laundry in the basement being comfortably fitted up for that purpose.

Entering the school room after breakfast, I was impressed with the excellent ventilation, the light coming from windows on two sides of the room which in dimensions was larger than the school rooms in Atlanta's graded schools There were only twenty-five pupils in each school room, for the energetic young teacher, Miss Thurmond, explained that no teacher could do justice to more than twenty-five pupils at a time.

Beside the academic course being taught the girls, the curriculum, that followed by the common and high school grades, supplementary branches are taught, including winter gardening, domestic science, and home administration, sewing, needle work and basketry, mountain settlement and mission work, and school music. Miss Shirley is the teacher in the department of domestic science which is a knowledge applied as it is taught.

The students of the morning classes have their study period before the hour that they become the workers of the day, while those who work in the morning have their classes in the afternoon There are recesses for all, three times a day, beside the hour at luncheon or the noon day meal, and during the recesses, recreation carries the boys and girls into many out of door games.

A bell at 11:30 and one at 5:30 call the boys from the field to give them time for refreshing themselves before the meal and when the school family assembles in the commodious dining room for meals, they are the happiest of young people.

TAKE TURN ABOUT.

A teacher presides at the several tables and Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie at the main tables. According to the good system inaugurated by Mrs. Ritchie, who especially directs the life of the girls, they take turn about waiting on the tables, "How," said one of them, a most cheerful and efficient person, "can we learn to direct work in our own homes when we get them, if we do not learn how ourselves?"

And this fine principle prevailed through every thing the girls did.

A young woman not yet eighteen, who two years ago when she came to the school knew nothing about domestic work, knew nothing about cooking, or any of the arts of making a home, was the head cook the week I visited the school She had four girls under her direction, and each month of the year there are the groups of girls who do the cooking for the entire school There are the helpers among the novices, and they vie with one another in becoming experts. They are taught the food values, and market values, and the meals prepared reflected this knowledge and a knowledge of good cooking I have never tasted better fried chicken, and corn fritters, better rolls, biscuits, and light bread The vegetables were all well cooked, and at each meal there were potatoes prepared in the various wholesome ways Sweet potatoes of delicious kind were on the dinner menu, and the tomatoes, great big juicy ones, made the salad course Apple pies of the finest kind were among the desserts, and the battercakes we had for breakfast were the good old-fashioned kind, a rarity now anywhere

There were preserves served at the evening meal, and withal a daintiness of table linen and appointment, a precision of service and general air of [illegible] which indicated that every girl there was trained, and that every one having there would not only be equipped to direct activities in a home, but herself do intelligently the work in that home.

SCHOOL DAIRY PRODUCTS.

The buttermilk and sweet milk and table butter is the product of the school dairy, and that department has its corps of "dairy maids," who in their beauty and freshness and efficiency would prompt poet and painter to claim them as subjects. Though in this department, as well as in the kitchen, all the girls in the school serve their time, as a rule the most talented in the domestic arts are made the directing influence. In the department of the dairy, a young woman, a student of the school for two years, is the head of the department under Mrs. Ritchie's direction. She has charge of everything pertaining to the cows used for the school dairy. From the hour of 5:30 in the morning when the cows are milked, the churning is done, the butter made, she keeps her eye on the dairy work, and is considered now a veritable little expert in this all important part of the farm home life.

And with the same system are the chickens looked after, a most business-like young woman giving me much valuable information about poultry and eggs. She had the care of two hundred hens, she told me, with always the assistance of several classmates. The chickens had been the best she had ever eaten, and I was prepared to believe it when I saw them. Her ambition she confided to me, was to be the head of a poultry farm some day, and she was going to make the start the moment she got back to her mountain home.

HAPPIEST GROUP IN THE SCHOOL.

After breakfast the second morning of my visit to the school, I heard such sweet voices and cheery singing, I wondered where the music room was. They were the voices of the housewives in the kitchen, I was told, and I went down to see them. There they were, four of them, the happiest group in the school. One had her hands buried deep in the dough for the dinner bread, and I saw the beans being made ready for dinner, the same beans five pretty girls were stringing the day before, when we arrived. And passing the dining room I saw the breakfast dishes being cleaned away, and preparation being made for dinner. A pretty girl had come in from the garden, her arms full of cosmos blooms and golden-rod with which she filled the vases ornamenting the center of each table.

Out in the yard, the presiding genius of the dairy was sunning her milk pans, and everywhere I turned I saw a pretty girl engaged in some form of household work

In the afternoon, I went to ride and to meet the mother of Andrew Ritchie, who though seventy-six years of age, still manages her own little farm and looks after the home in which she lives, with a widowed daughter.

Straight, alert, and majestic in her bearing, this wonderful mountain woman, the mother of four stalwart sons, was gathering Irish potatoes in her garden, when she heard her son's voice and came to greet us. She brushed her gray hair back from her almost seamless forehead, greeted her guests cheerily, and asked, "Now, Andy, can't you and your friends stay to dinner?"

The table was already laid, I could smell the chicken, and the delicious aroma of turnip greens, and as I looked about I realized that if there were many such homes as this clean little one, there would be no mountain problem.

Not until all the homes are modeled after this one will the solving of the problem have begun and the ideal of the home do its great part in the civilization of these people.

Ignorance of living, the discomfort of the home and the untrained women in the mountains are just as responsible for the conditions which are going to be remedied as is moonshine whisky and idle men.

It is for this reason that the Rabun Gap Industrial school raises domestic science to the highest standard, and gives the training in this to every girl who enters the school.

TAUGHT EVERY PURSUIT.

They are taught every pursuit that comes under the head of woman's work in the home, and any department relating thereto, and no work is more enjoyed by the girls than preparing their winter gardens.

I saw in the room of the sewing classes some very dainty handiwork, some embroidered towels, some very pretty serviettes with crochet edges, for the talents and tastes of the girls are encouraged and directed as far as possible. Basketry many of them like, and the students of literature are being encouraged in the recent additions to the library. The book shelves are filled, but there are room for many more, I was naively told by a group of girls and boys who were reading there after supper.

But there are many needs to make what it ought to be this great school with the wonderful spirits of Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie giving it life. The barn where the cows are, the especial care of the school girls, is a poor construction, inadequate in size, and hardly will it hold together during winter months

The nursery herd the girls have taken charge of. The good cows, upon which have been thrust the care of two calves instead of one, are herded here. And great was the pleasure of the girls when the nursery herd picture was to be taken; they went out and themselves summoned the four mother cows and the eight frisky calves.

They explained to me the relation of the nursery herd to cattle raising. There was not any part of the farm work with which they were not familiar.

SHE KNOWS ALL ABOUT FARMING.

"She knows all about farming," I was told of one of the girls, referring to another. "She cleared a five acre farm last year, herself. Her brothers helped her." "How could she cut down trees?" I asked

"Why, when she got to those she could not cut down, she just belted them."

I learned afterwards what "belting" meant and I was interested to be told, farther, that this mountain girl who had cleared the five acres wore a two and a half shoe, and her hand fits a number six glove

If I were asked what, next to good looks, their happiness and industry, most impressed me in these mountain girls, I would unhesitatingly say their dignified graceful bearing, their gentle voices and charming manners. They reflected in these qualities the constant care and direction of that loving mother spirit, Mrs. Ritchie.

I suppose their low gentle voices and their calmness may be accounted for by the fact that they don't have to raise their voices above the "tooting" of railroad trains, the rummaging awful noises of automobiles, and the high pitched voices that sound at afternoon teas.

"Tell me what you think about the girls having to do as much work as they do," I asked that wonderful product of the Rabun Gap school, Miss Ella Shirley. She was born in the mountains in a home which housed generations of her family, all fine vigorous people. She came to the Rabun Gap school soon after it was established. When she finished school there, she went to the normal school in Athens, and then returned to Rabun Gap to assist Mrs. Ritchie. She teaches the English branches, and domestic science, returning to the summer school each summer.

"Why, how could they learn to do anything if they did not work it out for themselves?" she asked me. "It is one thing to be told how to do a thing, and another thing to do it. Now, we might tell a girl every day how to milk a cow, how to cleanse the milk pans, how to look after the churn, how to make butter, but we would never know how much she knew, until we saw her apply her knowledge.

MUST BE DONE IN PRACTICAL WAY.

"Training for farm life must be done in a practical way. The girls who come here from the mountains logically must equip themselves for duty in the homes which they left. Theories explained to them would mean nothing. All the lectures on cooking would be wasted, if we did not show them how to cook, and let them cook to prove they know how.

"What would life be to the woman in the mountain home if she was idle? Why, work and trained work is her one chance for real life and happiness!"

"Do you not think work out of doors is hard for them; work in the garden, in the field?" "Well, it may seem hard to you," she replied, "but these girls many of them who have come here have worked in the field. They may have to go back to the field, unless they can do something else, fulfilling their part in making the home.

"The woman who can work intelligently is rarely the drudge, and the woman who can direct her household affairs can always find many other things to occupy her in her life in the mountains.

"And then you must remember the principle of the work we do here," said this dignified, earnest young woman. "Through work we pay for our tuition here.

"I would fear for the character of the mountain boy or girl who would not do his or her part toward paying for anything he received. Then, what we learn here we can take back and impart to others, for with but few exceptions the girls who have studied here have gone back to the homes they came from and bettered them.

MANY OF THEM ARE TEACHING

"Many of them are teaching, and helping in working out the mountain problem in that way. I can't imagine a school making for betterment that does not teach people what to do with their hands as well as their heads."

An interruption came; a bell was heard; it was bedtime, and as Miss Shirley passed out of the library in the darkness a light was lifted and the lantern showed the face of the young mountaineer who had herded the cattle a few hours ago. He had come to take his teacher over to the dormitory for the boys, which is a comfortable house across the terraced hill from the school building.

In another smaller building the smaller boys are quartered, with a teacher to look after them, and there is not an hour of the day or an hour of the night that the directors of the school, Mr and Mrs. Ritchie, cannot direct their wonderfully trained family of mountain boys and girls.

There is need for more land and buildings there. Mountain boys and girls are asking to join the family every day, but there is no room for more.

I can't believe that the door will be closed to them. Georgia's citizens must respond to the call from this great school in her highlands, where the life problem of a long neglected people is beginning to be solved.

The Guest Room Decorated in Cross Stitch

A NOVICE as well as an experienced needlewoman should be able to work the designs on these different articles. Cross stitch is so easily done and takes so little time that a most attractive bedroom set can be made with little cost of either time or labor.

These sketches are merely suggestions to show the variety of ways these designs may be used. The same color scheme should be used throughout, however, as there can be no beauty without harmony of line and color.

The colors used here are lavender as the key note with touches of green and yellow, though that is a matter of taste.

The side hangings of the windows may be of lavender silk in a plain tone, and the ones used next to the glass may be of scrim or other good cross stitch material.

The frame for the screens can be made by a good carpenter. The material should first be embroidered and then tacked in place.

The lamp and candle shades should be embroidered first, then sewed or glued to the frames.
