

THAW IS BEATEN AND IS HUSTLED BACK TO BORDER

Canadian Judge Sustains Writ of Habeas Corpus and Thaw Loses His Refuge in the Jail at Sherbrooke.

FIRST LEG OF JOURNEY BACK TO MATTEAWAN

Thaw Is Turned Over to Immigration Officials Who Hurry Him to Coaticook for Final Hearing.

Coastcook Quebec September 2.—
Harry Kendall Thaw pried out of the Sherbrooke jail on a writ of habeas corpus obtained by a coup of William Travers Jerome enjoyed three minutes of liberty this afternoon and then was seized by the dominion immigration authorities and hustled by automobile to this little town where tonight he paced the floor in the immigration detention room.

Tomorrow morning a special board of inquiry will sit in his case and by night he may be thrust across the Vermont border as an undesirable alien. It was generally predicted to night that before many hours Thaw would be back in Matteawan asylum from which he escaped Sunday August 17.

The beginning of the end of Thaw's refuge in Canada came with dramatic swiftness. A writ of habeas corpus sued out last Saturday at the direction of Jerome, with John Boudreau chief of police of this village, as petitioner was sustained at 2:40 o'clock this afternoon by Matthew Hutchinson superior judge of the district of St. Francis sitting in chambers at Sherbrooke.

Thaw stolid, pallid, numb. Stolid pallid numb Thaw sat now. Five feet from the judge as he read the decision. When in the very last paragraph of the case he read that a man Thaw seemed to crumple up on the lounge where he sat. A cigar stump fell from his left hand and from his right hand fluttered two gay bits of cotton. The judge gave him a look.

But he did not rise. W. K. McKeown of his counsel, leaned over and, patting him on the shoulder, whispered, "Thaw raised his big staring eyes and looked at the judge. The officers moved near him and then Thaw began slowly to move to the door the threshold Assistant Superintendent Robertson of the Immigration Bureau said simply "Come with me Mr. Thaw. And without a word except a hoarse goodbye to the reporters Thaw obeyed. Five minutes later a porter's roster struck a way from the south door. In the back seat of a car Thaw had not even been given time to pack his scanty belongings and voluminous correspondence in his cell. In an hour he was here in Connecticut, released from his cell by two stalwart dominion police. None but counsel was allowed to see him. The 2 mile trip over was without special incident. Thaw expressed no surprise at his arrest. Behind him trailed his defeated lawyers.

Thaw's Lawyers Discouraged.
W. L. Shurtieff the first of the Thaw lawyers to arrive issued this statement:

If they have doctors already to pronounce Thaw insane as I am informed they have there is almost no hope of preventing his immediate deportation. I believe if we could get the case into the courts we could prove this immigration act unconstitutional on the ground that it is inconsistent with the Ashburton treaty. But if the authorities at Ottawa are as determined to send Thaw back as they

FRANK TRIAL BILLS ARE ORDERED PAID

Lodging and Food for the Jury for 29 Days Cost
$975.06

Bills arising from the trial of Lee M. Frank, charged with the murder of Mary Phagan, the 13-year-old employee in the plant of the National Pencil company, of which the man convicted on August 25 was superintendent, are beginning to come into the county, and at the meeting of the board of commissioners Wednesday $975.06 was ordered paid for the expense of caring for the jury for twenty-nine days during which the trial lasted.

The amount ordered paid Wednesday was in two bills. One from the Kimball house where the jurors lodged was $685.56, and the other was from the German Cafe where the jurors ate $289.50 worth of food.

There are yet other bills to come to the county commissioners from the case, as they authorized Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey to expend a certain amount of money in getting up evidence and much of this has not yet been formally presented to the board for payment.

Another feature of the case arose at the Wednesday meeting when Attorneys Graham and Chappell, representing Newt Lee, the negro night watchman at the factory, who reported the finding of the body to the police on the morning of April 27, asked the board to reimburse Lee for the time he spent in jail.

It appeared to be the opinion of the commissioners that the negro who was held in jail from April 27 to August 26 should get some reimbursement from the county. Their attention was called to the custom of the United States in paying witnesses who are held in jail pending a trial in which they are regarded as material witnesses.

"It was certainly a hardship on the poor negro," remarked (Chapman) Shelby Smith, "and I think the citizens of the county were benefited by the evidence which was secured from him." The matter was referred to the county attorney for an opinion.

TINDALL MADE JUDGE OF CHILDREN'S COURT

New Children's Detention Home
Is Secured on Trinity Avenue.

At the meeting of the board of county commissioners Wednesday morning the three-year lease of a house at 96 Trinity avenue to be used as a juvenile detention home was approved, as well as the appointment by the three superior court judges of Probation Officer W. Tindall as judge of the children's court at a salary of $200 per month.

The new home on Trinity avenue will cost the county $100 per month, but is said to be amply fitted for its purpose and to have sufficient space in the rear for the addition of dormitories should it be decided to add them and to extend the lease to five instead of three years.

There was some discussion over the acceptance of the new place and at its close the commissioners decided that it would give much better results for the children placed there than his any other place which the county had provided before.

The appointment of Mr. Tindall was only approved after some discussion, when Commissioner C. L. Anderson made the point that as Mr. Tindall was so enthusiastic over the work that he feared that, as judge of the new court, he would send too many boys to the home and put too much expense on the county. The commissioner expressed the fear that Mr. Tindall in his zeal for the work might send some boys unnecessarily there. However, before he concluded he paid a high compliment to the work of the probation officer, and it was he who made the motion that the appointment be approved.

The question of the laundry work for the home was also taken up and it was decided that if possible this should be done at the jail laundry and thus save additional expense to the county.

One person who objected to his moving her eight children a day will remain many men that in some houses the police find a h extra-garage comes from the other side of the house.

In Boston a man has left a will in which he states a daughter of 30 summers must not have children in order to receive $300,000.00. Her father has noted for his joking disposition.

Little Girl, With Nine Living Grand Parents, Believed to Hold Record for State of Georgia

Little Josephine Flournoy, her mother and two of her grandmothers. Standing, Mrs. W. J. Dunn, maternal grandmother, and Mrs. George Flournoy, the mother; seated, Mrs. E. T. Allen, maternal great grandmother, and Miss Josephine.

Children who have heretofore prided themselves on having more living ancestors than any child in Atlanta or in the state of Georgia.

It is further presumed that if this unusually large number of grandparents pursue the usual course, pretty Josephine is destined to be spoiled even more than the usual run of petted descendants.

A delegation of Josephine's relatives held a family reunion at the home of Mrs. W. J. Dunn, 523 South Pryor street, Wednesday at which were present Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Flournoy, of Fitzgerald, Ga., Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Dunn of Atlanta, and Mrs. E. T. Allen, of Atlanta, not forgetting Miss Josephine, at which four generations were represented.

The reunion of Josephine's grandparents will be held in the near future at the home of Mrs. E. T. Allen, 605 Washington street. The following grandparents of Miss Josephine will participate: Mrs. E. T. Allen and Mrs. M. A. Dunn, maternal great-grandparents; Mrs. George Flournoy, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Golden, paternal great-grandparents; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Dunn, maternal grandparents; and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Flournoy, paternal grandparents.

after it will be possible to check up the returns for each state and county.

Atkinson had turned to Caminetti. "Would you?" he asked. "Yes." Caminetti had been allowed to ask his own questions of Lola Norris, Dean said, and these with the answers were taken down.

Did you ever hear me mention cruelty or getting a divorce on grounds of cruelty?" Caminetti asked. "Yes," said the girl, and then turning to Atkinson, added:

"Mr. Caminetti told me he had been much happier if conditions were different at his home, and he said that physical cruelty would be the ground for his divorce."

"What did Mr. Caminetti say about his family relationship, about his elder daughter?" Atkinson asked.

"He said that was the only regret he had at leaving his family, that he loved her and grieved at leaving her. He said if he got a divorce he might bring the child with him later."

The defense then made ready to present its case.

Lola Norris Not Resentful.

When Diggs was on trial, it was on the slight figure of the Warrington girl that his attorneys tried to place the burden. Caminetti, however, announced before his trial began that he would not pursue a similar course with Miss Norris; that he would make no effort to controvert her story of their relations.

Throughout Miss Norris' ordeal, on the witness stand yesterday, she gave no hint of resentment toward the man whom she said had accomplished her downfall. She denied that she still cared for him, but her testimony indicated no desire for any reprisal. She even admitted that she had made this statement to a friend.

"I do not see how any testimony I could give could hurt Diggs, for he never did anything I asked him not to do, or that I did not want to do."

But previously she had made what the prosecution regarded as a strong admission in the support of the government.

"Mr. Caminetti said 'All that Diggs has told is right. All four of us will have to go.'"

The defense today tried to emphasize Diggs' leadership in the escapade to make it appear that Caminetti was merely a pious, passive figure in the incidents and discussions that led up to the trip.

Pilgrimages to the summer cottages will soon be under way.

NORTON IS RELEASED BY NEW YORK POLICE

Savannah Man Will Not Be Tried for Raising Check
From $16 to $1,600.

Savannah, Ga., September 3.—(Special.)—Information was received in Savannah today to the effect that Robert D. Norton, who was arrested at the home of his fiancée in Brooklyn, where he had gone after obtaining $1,000 from the Peoples' Bank of Savannah on a raised check, had been released by the New York authorities. The cause of his release was the inability to secure requisition papers.

Under the New York law the police are requested to present anyone held in custody for a hearing, after a specified time has elapsed. It was at this hearing that Norton was released. Chief Detective J. J. Murphy went to New York several days ago, but he was unable to secure his prisoner until the requisition papers were made out.

As Governor Slaton is in the west and will not return for some time, Murphy is returning without Norton. Norton played a clever trick on the bank here. The check for $1,600, which was originally made out for $16, was presented to the teller, with the request that $500 be placed on deposit to Norton's credit and that he be given $100 in cash and $1,000 in New York exchange.

The request was honored without question. The check bore the signature of Norton's mother.

Woman Washing Dishes Formerly Worth Millions; Rejoins Second Husband

Savannah, Ga., September 3.—(Special.)—Working as a dishwasher in a restaurant, Mrs. Millie Gotthelf-Gunderland, former wife of a millionaire lace merchant of New York, was found by her second husband, Antonio Gundelap, of Augusta, in Savannah, Sunday night.

"I'll return with you if you'll be good to me," she was heard to tell Gundelap when he found her at work in the restaurant here. The husband's reply was in an undertone, but it evidently pleased the woman, for she immediately quit her position and left with him to take a train.

I'LL PULL HIS NOSE, SCREAMED MULHALL

Self-Confessed Lobbyist and His Employer, Kirby, in Bitter Wrangle.

Washington, September 3.—A nose-pulling contest between John Kirby, Jr., former president of the National Association of Manufacturers, and Martin M. Mulhall, one time lobbyist, was threatened today before the house lobby committee.

"I protest against that man sitting over there and making faces at me," roared Mulhall, pointing at Kirby.

"You will have to restrain yourself," admonished Chairman Garrett.

"I can't do it while he makes faces at me," shouted Mulhall. "If he is a gentleman and will meet me outside, squarely, I'll pull his nose."

Chairman Garrett ordered Kirby to change his seat.

APARTMENT OWNERS MAY MAKE FIGHT ON SMOKE LAW

The apartment owners of Atlanta will go before the smoke commission at next Tuesday's meeting and ask that the enforcement of the smoke law against them be suspended for a year. George T. Taylor, as chairman of a committee of the apartment house owners, appeared at the office of Smoke Inspector Foote on Wednesday and asked permission to make the plea next Tuesday.

The attitude of the apartment house owners is understood to be one of cooperation with the smoke commission, but they claim that they have not yet reached a decision as to just what methods to pursue in complying with the law.

Should the commission refuse this plea of enforcement, it is predicted that the apartment house owners will attack the constitutionality of the smoke ordinance.

Newsies Alarm Elderly Man; Thinks Them Bold Bad Bandits

Policeman Ernest C. Thornton on traffic duty in a whirlpool of trolleys and vehicles at Five Points early Tuesday night heard a frantic crying out over the noise of the crossing.

"Help! Robbers! Police!"

Over in the midst of the rush stood a trim little electric runabout containing a man of 50 years and a pretty young girl. The man was waving his hands wildly and was crying at the top of his voice. Thornton ran to his side, leaving the heavy traffic in confusion.

"I've been assaulted—sandbagged, robbed right here in the heart of town! Blow your whistle for help. Get an ambulance!"

Thornton, with the aid of the pretty girl in the machine, managed to quiet the man. His car stood in the center of the sea of traffic, blocking cars and vehicles on all sides.

"Now," said the policeman, "what's the trouble?"

"Trouble enough!" exclaimed the man. "Someone jumped up on the rear of my machine just now, reached for my pocket-book and struck me across the head. There were a half-dozen of them."

He rubbed his fingers across the back of his skull bringing them back to view to see if they had touched blood. No blood so he said:

"I feel like my head was caved in!" "Did they rob you?" asked Thornton.

"No, but if it hadn't been for my daughter, they would have. She drove them off my machine."

"Then," ordered the policeman, "move on. I'll investigate."

The car moved away. Upon investigation Thornton learned that a gang of four newsboys had climbed to the machine, and, when driven off by the young girl, each vengefully took a slap at the back of the elderly man's head.

No arrests were made as no one could identify either of the newsies.

Only Five More Days Before City Registration Books Close

Counting today and leaving out Sunday, there are five more days in which to register for the coming municipal elections, including the vote on the new charter. The registration books close on next Tuesday, the ninth.

While registration was rather light a week ago, it has picked up considerably in the last several days, and now there are roughly between 10,000 and 11,000 voters registered, according to the estimate at the tax collector's office on Wednesday.

If registration continues at the present rate it is expected that between 13,000 and 14,000 voters will register.

NEW SYSTEM ORDERED FOR GINNING STATISTICS

Census Director Introduces Method to Prevent Manipulation of Figures.

By John Corrigan, Jr.

Washington, September 3.—(Special.)—William J. Harris, director of the census, has introduced a new feature in the method of reporting cotton ginning statistics. Hereafter each county agent will give out to the county papers the number of bales ginned in his county, for publication on the same day as the consolidated figures are given out by the census bureau here and published in all the daily newspapers.

For instance, on September 8 the government agent in each cotton-growing county will furnish to the county papers the figures he has sent to the bureau showing the number of bales ginned up to September 1. The tentative figures for each gin will not be given, but only the totals.

The object of this change is to prevent any possibility of the manipulation of the figures. Once in the past this was done with the result that certain Wall street operators made a cash haul from having advance knowledge of the manipulated figures. Here-

OFFICIAL PIDDLING!

In the vernacular of the street, the county commissioners have squarely "put it up" to the city officials in the matter of clearing Peachtree creek of debris...

A few weeks ago Chairman of the Bond Commission Quillian, with Chief of Construction Clayton, appeared before the members of the board and sought to impress upon them the importance of clearing out the creek before the opening of the new $200,000 plant, which they solemnly declared was threatened by the stagnant water of the creek, which prevented the rapid movement of the water as required at the outflow.

The county commissioners have put the matter squarely up to the city and Mayor Woodward is not slow to accept the situation.

With characteristic force he declares that there has been "too much wind-jamming" on the subject already, and that either the city or the county could have done the work "while they have been talking about it."

The mayor takes the position that the city should at once hire whatever help is necessary to protect the disposal plant, and now that the county board has put the matter squarely up to the city it seems that this is the only alternative.

BUT SOMEBODY SHOULD GET BUSY AT ONCE!
Whatever is to be done should be done before the winter rains set in. At most it is a work of only a few days with only a few men, and The Constitution cannot conceive that a $200,000 investment will be put in jeopardy by official piddling.

HERE'S TO MISS WELLS!
Our most cordial greeting to Miss Susie Wells, of McDaniel street. Against tremendous odds she led and won the fight upon the movement to change the name of that thoroughfare to some higher-sounding but less significant title.

The detail of the story was told in yesterday's Constitution. Many of the property owners on McDaniel, including several ladies, wanted to substitute for McDaniel the high-sounding title of "Oxford Terrace." Miss Wells, who is one of the biggest property owners on the street, is not averse to progress. But she pointed out that since the street was named for Governor McDaniel, who had done signal service for Georgia, it would be a step backward to abandon the name.

She lost in her battle before the street committee. By the time the motion had come to council she was more skilled in the game of politics. And here she won, by a smashing majority.

The Constitution is in entire accord with the ideas of Miss Wells, regarding the old and well-known streets of Atlanta. Each one stands for some historic event, for some great personality or some pregnant association. Other cities hug close to their bosoms such distinctions. Atlanta should not be different. These streets and their names are as so many landmarks. To adorn them with gilded and often meaningless titles would be to sacrifice individuality and to forsake old friends.

Miss Wells deserves praise for her pluck. Council deserves praise for having once more sat down upon the perennial name-changing folly.

JUST ABOUT TIME!

Following the latest wreck on the New Haven railroad, in which twenty-six persons lost their lives and fifty were variously hurt or maimed for life, the interstate commerce commission has instituted an investigation.

It's about time! But it is not to be forgotten that both the interstate commerce commission and various New England commissions have probed and gridded this road, and that so far the only result has been the retirement of the redoubtable Mellen.

Where a railroad slaughters passengers, as does this one, so indiscriminately, there must be something fundamentally at fault. The Constitution has never been in sympathy with the indiscriminate bawling of corporations or business generally. Here is a case peculiar to itself.

Are the various state and federal commissions to confess themselves helpless in the premises?

NO OSTRICH HEAD POLICY.

Judge John T. Pendleton, a sturdy and conservative jurist, is forceful enough to recognize menace when he sees it, and sensible enough to know that it is suicidal folly to pursue an ostrich-head-in-the-sand policy.

These qualities spoke in his recent charge to the new grand jury. Pistol-toting and general lawlessness in Fulton county came in for one of the worst blisterings ever handed it from the bench in Georgia.

Judge Pendleton could have, conveniently, as have others, proclaimed "Peace! peace! when there is no peace!" He could have proclaimed Fulton and Atlanta the headquarters for virtue and enforcement of law.

But he rejected this easy compromise with conscience and denounced the pistol-toting habit responsible for so many murders, and the general trend toward violence that has characterized recent developments in this community.

Judge Pendleton's attitude is the one that must be adopted by the county authorities, by the police department and by the general citizenry of Atlanta. It would, indeed, be pleasant to deny that we are infested with slugs, with thugs and with second-story men. It would be soothing to agree that criminals are run down and punished with mathematical regularity.

The Constitution has confidence in the courts, the police and the authorities generally of the city and county. We repeat, however, that they must take a brace. If the last analysis the question is, which shall reign?

The law or the outlaw? We are near enough to an ugly answering of that question now. We need imperatively to forestall further progress, crab-wise, backward. Judge Pendleton has pointed the way.

THE STATE TRADE BOARD.

What will probably be the most important meeting yet held of the Georgia Chamber of Commerce will be held in Macon on September 16. It is planned by the executive committee, of which Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, is chairman, to hold then a general conference between representatives of the commercial, manufacturing and agricultural interests of the state.

The principle of coordination behind the state trade board is the principle that explains the phenomenal success of the western states in their many-sided expansion. Georgia has heretofore grown marvelously, it is true. But because of absence of co-operation, because of lack of a clearing house of intelligence and an organized entente, many opportunities have been overlooked or slurred.

The promoters of the movement believe the south stands at the crisis in its history, from a material standpoint. They believe Georgia should be prepared to play the game on a par with other southern states. They are convinced that a state board will be a practical step in that direction.

TECH'S NIGHT SCHOOL.

Boys and young and middle-aged men compelled to work for a living during the day, but with an ambition to enter the vocations for which the Georgia School of Technology provides equipment, are offered a convenient opportunity in the night school maintained by that institution. The tuition is practically free, the only charge being the contingent fee of $5 for matriculation.

Since 1908 this branch has been in operation. Its classes have been composed of men ranging from boys in their late teens to men in middle life. The average attendance has been 150 per year. The school is in charge of Professor J. N. C. Nesbit, among the best equipped instructors of the faculty. The students are given all the facilities enjoyed by the day classes, all the shops and machinery and teachers being at their disposal. There is, in addition, the "co-operative" feature, by which the pupil attending night school is aided in earning a livelihood during the day.

The sessions begin September 17, enrollment and registration extending from September 15 to 19, inclusive.

Fix the house up, Nellie—tell it to the town;

The Miracle of the Manuscript.
An interesting story is attached to a valuable Greek manuscript which came to the bishop of Ugento in a startling way. It was wrapped round a fish and brought into the bishop's presence. By the merest chance he examined it, and found it to be part of a treatise thought for many centuries to be lost. The bishop hastened to the stall of the salesman in the market where the fish had been bought just in time to save the remaining pages of this literary treasure.

ODDS AND ENDS OF GEORGIANA.
By Sam W. Small.
Up in Michigan the other day I was reading an account of the progress of the lumber industry in this country. Among the curious facts stated by the author was one to the effect that the industry really became a great productive factor when a Mr. Cox, of Georgia, invented the circular saw, which is so great and indispensable an instrument in fashioning the lumber of trade. That was a "new one" on me, and I presume will be to a great number of our readers. Cox invented and patented his saw in 1798, and it remains to this day practically as he originally designed it, after experimenting with a tin serrated disk operated with a string looped through two holes near the center, and after comparing his device with the shredding wheels in Eli Whitney's recently-constructed cotton gin. The value of the circular saw in all forms of the lumber trade of the world is immense, as we all know.

Speaking of things circular recalls another curious fact—that the first amusement wheel of the fashion now known as the "Ferris Wheel" was built and used in Atlanta years before the civil war. In those days there was an Italian, whose peculiar name I cannot recall, who dealt in confections and ice cream from the sweet-toothed Atlantes. In the summer time he set up a refreshment booth at the old Walton Springs, which then was the popular afternoon resort for the city and the scattered citizens of all degrees. This Italian constructed his wheel of wood and iron, with revolving seats, exactly as the modern Ferris affairs are made. His motive power, a big hand wheel, was worked by a stout negro man, sometimes by two men, and the machine was a great favorite with the young folks, who paid "a trip" for a ride. Incidentally the machine also turned the ice cream freezer and kept the good stuff frozen solid for all comers. With the coming of the war the son of Italy vanished, and the wheel fell into innocuous desuetude and soon vanished also—to reappear in its modern form at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893.

Then again, mentioning a world's fair brings to mind that the first American woman, so far as I know, who was regularly appointed as a government commissioner to a world's exposition, was a Georgia lady. She was the famous literary star, Madame Octavia Walton LeVert, granddaughter of George Walton, a signer for Georgia of the Declaration of Independence, and subsequently governor of the state and a United States senator for a brief term, and after whom Walton county was named. Madame LeVert was, in 1855, living with her mother in Mobile, Ala. The governor of that state had been invited to name a commissioner to the World's Industrial Exposition in Paris, set up by Napoleon III, who had become emperor in 1853, and thus designed to celebrate his accession to the throne of France. Not having an appropriation to pay such a commissioner, the governor gallantly tendered the honor to Madame LeVert, who was already well-known in European literary and diplomatic circles. She accepted the mission, and her report upon her observations at the exposition was graphic and illuminating.

In her letters home from Paris she mentions the courtesy services rendered her there by ex-President Fillmore, then visiting abroad, and especially the attentions accorded by the late General Henry B. Jackson, who was then our American minister to Austria. Those letters by Madame LeVert are well worth reading, even in this day.

MEXICO.
All like a cruise of spices sweet,
God made a land and set it high
Between the seas and tropic sky.
And said: "In beauty be complete,"
Behold it, where God's marvels meet;
Behold it—
Mexico!

Men found the land which God had made,
An Arcady of cloudland heights,
And cursed it with their pagan rites,
"For that large fruit called life," they said,
"In blood must grow, and in blood they paid;
And this was—
Mexico!"

Then Avarice came with sword and flame
And gave the land to rodder fate,
What boot when blindness yields to hate?
When bondage leaves its yokes to shame?
An ancient woe
The mystery of a far-brought name!
That name is—
Mexico!

O, Eagle of the South! Shake free
Thy talons from the Serpent's folds;
Above thy past, and what it holds,
Soar thou toward strifeless liberty!
See where they glow,
You Desert Stars! Be likewise free.
Whose name is—
Mexico!

The Stay-at-Home Man.

I.
He stayed in the shadows
And called the poor joke.
O things bright and happy
He nevermore spoke;
He daily grew grouchy
And said 'twas a shame
To have to live lonely—
But was he to blame
When his wife was away
For the summer?

II.
There is more of darkness,
He said, than of light;
He talked of life's burdens
From morning till night:
"Till every one called him
A growler at Fate,
With mind full of malice
And heart full of hate—
For his wife was away
For the summer!"

III.
But later, like sunshine
That comes from above,
His heart held the presence
Of goodness and love:
Like splendor of morning
When night-shadows break,
Was the rapture that filled him
For one woman's sake—
For his wife had come home
For the summer!

The World's Mysteries
THE FRENCH "MARSEILLAISE."

Who composed the popular French national hymn, "La Marseillaise"? Its composition is generally credited to Rouget de Lisle, a captain of engineers of the French army. Grove, in his "Dictionary of Music and Musicians," supposed to be an authority on music, states he was the author of both words and music, and that the hymn was written in a fit of enthusiasm during the night of April 24, 1792, and was given a private hearing the following day and was played at a review on the 25th.

This statement has been questioned by various persons who asserted they knew whereof they were writing. Karl Blind, in an article in the "Nineteenth Century" magazine of a dozen years ago, says that the music was made in Germany, being a part of a mass composed in 1776 by Halmann, the Kapellmeister of the Elector of the Palatinate.

Blind was called to account for this statement, but he defended himself by stating that there were a number of French writers who have shown that Rouget de Lisle can scarcely be called the composer of the tune, and besides that not all the words are original with him. He also brings to the support of his claim an Icelandic scholar, Gunder, at once a distinguished and a learned writer, who showed that corresponding words in French and Icelandic, "Esther" oratorio and Racine's "Athalie."

Vigfusson says: "It is to Grison's early composition that the tune of the 'Marseillaise' has been ascribed by various French writers. When Petie, the director of the Conservatoire of Brussels, who had written the oratorio, was threatened with a lawsuit by Rouget de Lisle, he made a retraction so as to avoid unpleasantness at his great age, being at the time a man of 80 and living as a foreigner at Paris. His son, Edouard Petie, declared that he took up the matter again, whereupon Amadee de Lisle forthwith withdrew from the lawsuit."

Following this threatened lawsuit further investigation was instituted, and it was discovered that a German Christmas cantata, written after the Grison oratorio, contained, in the main, the air of "La Marseillaise," and it was so recognized by the German soldiers when they first heard the French national hymn.

Was Rouget himself sure the music was original with him? The first Straussburg edition of "The Marseillaise," which was then called the "Battle Song of the Rhine Army," does not bear Rouget's name, as if he was not willing to claim something that did not belong to him. It is also pointed out as a case against him, that de Lisle remained strangely silent when many French writers pointed out that the "Marseillaise" tune was attributed to other origins.

Castil Blaise, who had entered seriously into the controversy, declared that he had received the testimony as to a German cantata with a chorus refrain which became the basis of "The Marseillaise" tune, as having been sung in 1782 in the salon of Madame de Montesson. This information came from two persons who were present—namely, from Desobry, editor of the opera of Chatterlain, and from Imbault, the violinist. Why should so many French writers contend against Rouget's authorship if they had no foundation for their contention?

During this controversy an effort was made to show that the "Marseillaise" was written in 1792 while Grison's oratorio did not appear until the following year and that the latter had stolen the music of the former. The oratorio of "Esther" is not dated, but it is asserted that the opera was written while the composer was musical director of the Cathedral of Saint-Omer, which position he resigned in 1792. One of the first articles written on the French national hymn appeared in the "Chronique de Paris" in August, 1792, in which only the words are credited to de Lisle. In the "Petites Affiches" of October, 1792, Gossec is mentioned as the arranger of the music.

The controversy as to the writing of "The Marseillaise," like the English national anthem, "God Save the King," and our own music to "The Star Spangled Banner," has never been and probably never will be settled.

FARM READERS FOR RURAL CHILDREN

Editor Constitution: Your interest in the subject of practical education has suggested to me that you might be interested in looking over Farm Life Readers, Books 4 and 5, and I am sending copies of these books to the office of The Constitution today. You will observe from the table of contents that each book contains more than 100 pages of original articles relating to the home and farm, and co-ordinate with each of these, articles, selections of literature, in poetry or prose, relating to the same subject.

A great deal has been said and written in these books about the importance of teaching children in school about the home and farm, in which they are interested when they leave school and go out to make their way in the world. It has been justly asked, why not give the child instruction and information in school about the occupation or business in which he will engage, or what is often more to the point, in which he is already engaged. That is the line of our editorial today contrasting Germany's system of vocational education with ours.

In these books, which have been adopted for use in the schools of Alabama, there are lessons on "How to Plow," "The Soil," "Selecting Seed Corn," "Live Stock on the Farm," "What Chickens to Raise," "The Home Vegetable Garden," "The Cane State," etc. There are also lessons on the fly and mosquito, which contain practical and helpful instruction on sanitation. Each of these practical lessons is preceded or followed by a selection of classical literature, in prose or poetry, relating to the same subject. The idea of preparing a series of books of this character was originally suggested to the authors by discussions at a round table on agriculture and related topics, held under the auspices of the United States department of agriculture, at a conference for education in the south at Little Rock, Ark. A number of distinguished men, including Gifford Pinchot, Harvie Jordan and others, participated in these discussions. As you will observe, Dr. E. F. Fairchild, former state superintendent of Kansas, and recently president of the National Education association, Mr. Fairchild has been one of the leaders for years in advocating more practical education, especially in the rural schools.

I hope you may be interested in these books and that you may be impressed favorably with our efforts.

Paris Realty Values.
(From The Indianapolis News.)
The enormous increase in the values of properties in the city of New York is being called in Paris, the Duke de Massé, grandson of Regnier, who was keeper of the seals under Napoleon I, died a short time ago at his residence in the Champs Elysees. He was a wealthy man, and this residence had been the property of Baron Roger, his father-in-law, who sixty years ago had bought it for 100,000 francs—about $50,000. A while ago a company of capitalists offered the Duke de Massé 18,000,000 francs for the property, nearly $4,000,000, which he refused.

Conan Doyle's Story, "The Poison Belt," Depicts the Doings of a Few Who Thought Their Time Had Come.

Suppose that you knew—or believed, which is practically the same—that the next hour would be the last of your life; not that you were going to die the ordinary death that comes with disease, or that you were going to be hung, or shot by an enemy, but that in the next hour you would see the end of all things—the crash and smash that attended the end of the world.

What would you do?
Would you crow like a rooster as did Professor Summerlee in Conan Doyle's great story, "The Poison Belt," or weep as did the journalist Malone? Or would you evolve some new fantastic idea? Or would you sit by your window and calmly wait the final end of things?

You may have a pretty good idea of what you would do, but the chances are that when the time came you would do quite the opposite. Even the renowned scientist, Professor Challenger, did some very peculiar things until he got command of himself, when he calmly and already ordered The Sunday Constitution to print the great story after the first installment appears in next Sunday's Constitution, and you should be posted.

Judge Walker's Example of Landlord and Tenant Relation Editor Constitution: In building up our system of tenant farming, there has been almost a total disregard for the first principles of a successful tenant farming, namely, that whatever is to be the best interest of the landlord is to the best interest of the tenant, and whatever is to the best interest of the tenant is to the best interest of the landlord; for the lack of proper regard and co-operation in this respect both landlord and tenant are suffering. But our farm lands are suffering still more than either the landlord or tenant.

The mistake that has proceeded upon the basis that an illiterate and unskilled farmer is good enough for agricultural purposes and that public money spent in trying to improve such labor is wasted. Hence, he has been satisfied to get his rent and a certain per cent upon the supplies advanced to the tenant. The idea of trying to teach and coach the tenant in growing his crops, educating his children and taking a general interest in building up the community has not had much attention.

On the other hand, the tenant has been trying to get the best of the soil he could without putting anything in it, and doing just as little as he possibly could in order to get by.

There are few southern landlords who are rendering valuable service in demonstrating what a permanent system of tenant farming can accomplish. The best example of the proper relation which should exist between the landlord and his tenant is exemplified in the case of Judge R. W. Walker and his tenant, Reuben Jordan. Judge Walker is on the bench of the Alabama court of appeals. Reuben Jordan has been farming from Judge Walker for seventeen years, and Judge Walker has actually improved each year, the farm, the tenant, the seven head of horses and mules used on the farm were raised there, fifteen acres of alfalfa are growing, twenty acres of corn and twenty acres in cotton which will average more than a bale to the acre, and a good system of rotation is being practiced.

When you study the conditions, you can at once see the tacit influence of Judge Walker upon that farm. Yet the relations are so confidential that you are reminded of a partner in business rather than a landlord and tenant. Reuben is one of the best farmers in Madison county. He won the first prize of $100 last year for the highest number of pounds of seed cotton on two acres. This year he is in the contest for the prizes offered upon twelve acres of cotton. His cotton shows that it has had the proper care and attention.

A few days ago I was on his farm, near Huntsville, Ala., and I chatted with the judge and Mrs. Walker there. In commenting upon the relation which existed between Reuben and the judge, Mrs. Walker, in her course of conversation said: "It is more the relation of landlord and friend, and I always think of it in that way." This statement has impressed me very deeply and it has actuated the writing of this article. I have thought often of this statement and wish its sentiment could be made to permeate the whole tenant system of the south.

The negro furnishes labor ideally adapted to the south, and in spite of the many say to the contrary, agricultural production in the last analysis must turn upon the negro farm hand. If the efficiency of the negro farm workers can be gradually raised, we will be working at the root of the grandest problem now confronting our state and country.

HULL-WELTNER WEDDING
EVENT OF WIDE INTEREST

The marriage of Miss Sallie Cobb Hull and Mr. Philip Weltner was a beautiful event of the night and the ceremony which took place at North Avenue Presbyterian church was witnessed by a large congregation of friends. Afterwards a reception was held at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Dr. and Mrs. Marion McHenry Hull. The guests including only relatives and the intimate friends of bride and bridegroom.

Miss Cattie Hull was maid of honor. Mr. William Brantley best man. Messrs. Thomas and Lela May Hull of Athens, were bridesmaids, and Messrs. C. T. Pottinger, Allison Thornwell, John J. Eagan, Roy Dorsey, Longstreet Hull of Oklahoma, ushers. The ceremony was performed by the groom's father, Dr. C. E. Weltner, assisted by Rev. Richard Orme, Flinn pastor of the church and appropriate music was played by Miss Ada Bartholomew at the organ.

Handsome decorations were of palms massed against the organ gallery and out of the foliage rose white candles in tall brass candlesticks.

The bride entered the church with her brother, was very lovely in her gown of white Canton crepe, hand embroidered in a design of valley hills and in need of a veil. Her bouquet was of valley hills. Her jewelry was her great-grandmother's pearls and her veil with the orange blossoms wreathing it, had been worn by her mother and her mother's. It had been her own and her mother's nurse.

The bridesmaids were dainty white gowns and their bouquets were of pink asters. The maid of honor carried a white ring of pink asters, showered with tulle and asters the ring hung over one arm.

Mrs. Hull was crowned in blue embroidered crepe and lace. Mrs. William Pope of Mexico, the bride's sister, wore white crepe embroidered.

At home an artistic decoration obtained in palms and smilax and the yellow bloom of September. The foliage plants were massed in effective a rangements throughout the room. On floor and jardiniere were filled with a rich profusion of yellow flowers. A buffet supper was served from the dining room, this pretty apartment finished in old blue having its decoration in gold and yellow. A basket of them formed the table centerpiece and all the color details were yellow. Punch was served on the spacious porch which was made into a picturesque palm garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Weltner left during the evening for a tour in New England and Canada and returning they will take possession of their home on Park Lane in Ansley Park.

Their marriage was an event of conspicuous interest and a hearty wish for the good wishes that the usual meed of good wishes from an acquaintance all over the state and beyond will follow them into their married life.

The bride possessed beneath a lovely charm and sweetness the business impulse and the economy force of her father, Mr. C. E. Weltner, a graduate of the University of Georgia and a man of distinguished scholarship and citizenship. He is a granddaughter of General T. R. R. Cobb and she bears the name of her aunt, Mrs. Harriet Jackson, who was Miss Sallie Cobb. She is a cousin of Mrs. Wilmer L. Moore, Mrs. A. J. Orme, Mrs. Shepard Bryn and Mr. Marion Jackson of Atlanta.

Mr. Weltner a graduate of the University of Georgia and of Columbia university is a popular and successful member of the Atlanta bar. He is secretary to the Georgia Prison association and his work along the line of prison reform has occasioned national interest. Among the wedding presents sent his bride none proved more touching or more beautiful than a cut glass bowl the gift of the Adamsville convict camp every member of which contributed in appreciation of Mr. Weltner's work for their relief, when he made himself for a week one of them.

Stewart Colley, Charles Beardsley, Hamilton, Cooper, Koller, Redding, South, Smith, Henry Woodard and John Hardin, Paul Barnes and Edwin Henderson.

To Mrs. Moore.

Miss Josephine Stone's bridge party yesterday was a pretty affair assembling sixteen young women to meet Mrs. Baxter Moore who has recently come from Charlotte to make her home in Atlanta.

Zinnia and cosmos decorated the house and a dainty luncheon was served.

In the party were Misses Carolyn King, Jessie O'Leary, Louise and Katherine Moore, Mildred Cabarrus, Eloise Stewart, Mrs. Lester Crane, Mrs. H. B. Russell, Mrs. A. D. Adair, Jr., Mrs. Fred Foster, Jr. of Madison, Mrs. George Martin, Mrs. C. H. Howard, Jr., Mrs. M. B. B. Watkins, Mrs. Trampton, Mrs. L. L. Wood, Benjamin and Mrs. DeSausure.

To Girls' Club.

Miss Lucile Dennis was hostess at afternoon tea yesterday, the occasion an enjoyable one in compliment to the Fair Park girls' club.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Lucy Stuckard, Miss Pauline Conter, Miss Dora Dennis, Miss Martha Smith, Miss Emma Jordan, Miss Lina Tipton, Miss J. E. Cobbs, Mrs. J. H. Dabney, Mrs. J. L. Dennis and little Miss Margaret Dabney.

Garden flowers in artistic arrangement decorated the reception room and the tea table, picturesque in pink, had as its centerpiece a plateau of pink roses and ferns.

Miss Dennis was crowned in white, charmingly draped with blue chiffon.

MEETINGS

The Atlanta Frances Willard Woman's Christian Temperance union will hold its annual election of officers Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Sunday school room of Trinity church. Attendance of the members is desired.

STATE SCHOOLS OPEN

Educational Institutions Showing Increase in Enrollment

Locust Grove Ga. September 3.—(Special)—Locust Grove institute began yesterday what promises to be the most successful year in its history. The opening exercises were largely attended and interesting addresses were made by citizens of the town members of the faculty and by Dr. C. H. B. Jackson president of Bessele Tift college.

Reinhardt College. Canton Ga. September 3.—(Special)—Reinhardt college at Waleska opened its fall term today with appropriate exercises. Addresses were made by Hon. W. S. Witham and Mr. Woods of Atlanta and an old fashioned dinner spread on the campus of the school was served to the large crowd present. A large number of students was enrolled and the school starts off with bright prospects for a most successful year.

Shady Dale High School. Shady Dale Ga. September 3.—(Special)—The Shady Dale High school is in session now. Professor H. G. Elington an honor graduate of Emory college is principal. A large number of pupils have been enrolled and prospects are bright for a successful term. The opening exercises were held in the auditorium Monday morning.

Fairburn High School. Fairburn Ga. September 3.—(Special)—Fairburn High school under the able management of Prof. Charles O. Stubbs principal for the past four years had a most auspicious opening today. The auditorium was crowded by pupils, parents and friends of the institution. TECH NIGHT SCHOOL
OPENS SEPT. 17TH

Splendid Opportunities Are Offered to Ambitious Young Boys for Education

Free night school at the Georgia School of Technology will open on September 17, according to the announcement made today by Professor J. N. G. Nesbit, who has charge of the department. Enrollment and registration will be from September 15 to 19 inclusive.

Through this night school which was established in 1905, and which is a regular department of Georgia Tech, the state of Georgia has opened up the door of opportunity to hundreds of working men and boys in all walks of life. There has been an average attendance of 150 per year, in which the majority are men who are working for a living in Atlanta during the day time and for whom the Technological night school is perhaps the greatest blessing that the state could offer. The only expense attendant on the course is the contingent fee of $3 per term.

Those who attend the night school are given the full benefit of the magnificent equipment of Georgia Tech. They have the same instructors as the day students and the faculty of the night school is made up entirely from members of the regular Tech faculty. In addition to the direct advantage of free technological education which this night course gives the men and boys of Atlanta and vicinity there is a special co-operative course arrangement by which the men who enter the night school may work toward a self-supporting college education. The opportunities offered by the night school include courses in architecture, mechanical drawing, electrical engineering, woodwork, carpentry and joinery, foundry, practice in fine arts, work, mechanical engineering, mathematics, chemistry and English. Prospective students who want to take advantage of the opportunities offered by the night school should apply direct to Professor Nesbit at the Tech between September 15 and 19.

RESINOL STOPS
SKIN TORMENTS

How This Wonderful Treatment Ends Itching and Heals Skin Eruptions

Brooklyn, N. Y.—At first little red spots were on my arms and body which I noticed were getting larger every day. They itched me so much that I scratched myself until I bled. There were times when I stood up all night and scratched. I was troubled about three weeks during which time I used — which seemed to do me no good whatever. The finally I bought of living Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. As soon as I applied Resinol Ointment I felt much relief. After using it a few times I noticed the sore spots slowly fading away and in about a month I was cured completely. (Signed) Adolph Schen 742 Shepherd Ave. Nov. 1, 1912.

Resinol is not an experiment. It is a doctor's prescription which was unusually successful for skin troubles that it has been used by other physicians for the country for fifteen years. No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of successful results as Resinol. Every drug store sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For free trial write to Dept. SCHEMING TO SEIZE MANUEL'S BRIDAL GIFT

London, September 3.—Republican extremists in Portugal are plotting to embarrass the deposed King Manuel by seizing the present which he is having made in Lisbon for Princess Augustina Victoria, of Hohenzollern who will become his bride tomorrow according to the Lisbon correspondent of The Daily Mail.

It has been announced that Manuel proposed to have all of the wedding presents engraved Manuel King of Portugal an act which has aroused resentment among the republicans. The deposed king's present to his bride, a diadem of platinum studded with 999 diamonds and emeralds. The royalists in Lisbon are having a number of presents made inscribed to their king.

According to The Daily Mail the car factories a republican secret society have been on watch at places where the presents are being manufactured and the jewelers have requested the police to protect them and to insure the removal of the presents to safety.

It is said that steps were taken to send the gifts through one of the foreign legations but the government objected.

CURRENCY REFORM UNDER DOUBLE FIRE

Administration Measure Attacked at Both Ends of Capitol — Bankers Cite Views to Senate Committee

Washington, September 3.—The administration currency bill was under fire at both ends of the capitol today. While representatives of the American Bankers' association continued their criticism of the bill before the senate currency committee, republican members of the house committee made an ineffectual effort to have new hearings opened there.

The administration forces of the no. 6 committee defeated the plan for new hearings by a vote of 18 to 8. All of the republicans supported a resolution. Referred by Representative Burke of Pennsylvania, republican which asked that the secretary of the treasury, the controller of the currency and representatives of the American Bankers' association be heard.

Views of Bankers Known

The Burke resolution was defeated, and the committee adopted one by Representative Wingo of Arkansas, Democrat, declaring the views of the American Bankers' association were fully known and that the amendments proposed by the republicans were rejected. At Chicago has been repeated, suggested to the proponents of the bill and every one of them seriously discussed and carefully considered by those responsible to the country for this legislation.

This action will result in the conclusion of consideration of the bill by the house committee late tomorrow and the reporting of the measure to the house Monday. Democratic leaders then will urge immediate consideration of the bill. In the committee meeting today, Representative Haggard of South Carolina was the only democrat who favored the opening of new hearings.

The senate hearings will continue throughout the week with members of the bankers' committee as chief witnesses. It is expected that republican members of the committee will seek to defer all currency legislation until December.

Banker Opposes Central Bank

Today a session of the senate committee was interrupted by a banker not a member of the Chicago conference committee who opposed many of the suggestions made by the bankers' committee. This witness, President Johnston of the National Reserve bank of Kansas City, said the central bank idea advocated by many bankers tended to centralization of power. He favored the administration plan also of decentralization of power.

Test to J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust company of St. Louis, chief representative of the bankers' conference committee declared the national banks of the country ought not to be compelled to surrender one tenth of their capital and one half of their reserves to the proposed governmental system if they were to be denied representation on the federal reserve board.

Mr. Wade charged that the administration bill was a force bill and would accomplish far less in bringing about a satisfactory reorganization of the banking system than would a plan that was more attractive to the banks. He said the plan would give national banks few advantages that they would receive under state bank charters, and that many of them would retire to the state bank field.

Throw Doors Open, He Urges.

The witness declared the banks did not care to own the stock of the regional reserve banks and would be willing that it should go into the hands of private subscribers, but he did not believe such a plan could be worked out without putting the government into the general banking business.

Through the doors open to anybody who wants to own the stock, he said emphatically. "We will take it if you don't force us to, and make the plan attractive enough."

The refusal of but 10 per cent of the national banks in the different sections of the country to join the proposed system would make it possible to secure the necessary $5,000,000 capital for regional reserve banks in the middle states and in the Pacific coast states said Mr. Wade. He added, however, that he had figured out the larger national banks as among the number that might withdraw from national bank charters.

It is my opinion, he said, that if the present bill were passed today it would be absolutely inoperative to its force provisions the men who have built national banking up to its present development. If you attempt to put this bill through calling for the organization of twelve reserve banks each with a minimum capital of $5,000,000 and confine the subscriptions to stock to national banks, it is our judgment that the plan will be unsuccessful.

Mr. Wade endorsed a suggestion made by Senator Weeks, republican, for the selection of a list of fifty or more men by the banks from which the president might appoint the four members he selects to serve on the federal reserve board.

What we want is banking experience, credit experience and financial wisdom on that board, he said.

Object to Asset Currency

The bankers declared they did not favor asset currency or notes secured by the general credit of individual banks because of the danger of "wild cat banking."

"We believe the notes should be issued by the federal reserve board to the banks and by them to the public and that all the federal reserve banks should be responsible for the whole issue of the notes," said Sol Wexler of New Orleans.

The chief evils of the present banking system Wexler said were the lack of a flexible circulating medium and the facts that banks have no place to go for rediscount when we have exhausted our own credit facilities.

We believe the reserves of the country should be in one big reservoir and he, where they are readily accessible rather than scattered in 20,000 or more little piles where they can be of little benefit to the country in general.

An increased issue of government bonds and an increase in the bond secured national bank currency would not meet the present needs of our currency reform Wexler thought.

The Prevention of Panics

Wexler was asked if a system giving greater elasticity and enabling bankers to convert their assets into cash through a rediscount bank would not prevent panics.

With such privileges there probably could be no panic arising from the same causes that produced the last two, said Wexler. Under any circumstances banks probably could go on paying out money for the ordinary needs of business. But there can be no fact panacea. A period of wild and extravagant living, great speculation on the part of the classes that usually save the investment of savings in wild cat mines—such conditions will produce a panic, no matter how carefully a national banking system may be devised.

Senator Reed asked if the banks were not responsible for the suspension of payments in the panic of 1907.

Mr. Wexler replied the banks with drew their deposits from New York and to that extent contributed to the stringency.

No Stock for the Public.

Suggestions that the stock of the proposed regional reserve banks be offered to the public were disapproved by the bankers who contended that the public then would have the right to demand privileges of deposits and red count and ultimately the government would monopolize the whole field of banking and the communities would lose the benefits of banking competition.

A plan of direct government control of red count privileges outlined by Senator Hitchcock proposing a gigantic federal gold reserve created by the sale of additional government bonds, was adversely criticized by members of the bankers' committee and some senators.

Mr. Wexler declared the banks wanted a system of notes issued by the banks themselves on a gold reserve. Proper safeguards would effectively prevent an inflation of the currency through such a system, he said.

John T. Johnston, president of the National Reserve bank of Kansas City, interrupted arguments of the other bankers to present his opposition to their views.

He declared the bankers' conference at Chicago looked at the currency reform question from a monarchical standpoint, believing in the centralization of power. He insisted that the government in revising the financial system should not centralize the entire control of the financial structure of the country in a single bank or a small group of closely related banks.

HE DROPPED 400 FEET, NO BROKEN BONES

Rutland, Vt., September 3.—Judge J. Dyer Spellman who was a passenger with aviator George Schmidt when the latter's airplane plunged to earth at the Rutland fair yesterday, killing the pilot, is practically assured of recovery physicians at the Rutland hospital said today. Although Judge Spellman was caught in the machine just as Schmidt was he miraculously escaped without a broken bone after the 400 foot drop. Burns which he received when his clothing caught fire were his principal injuries.

Schmidt who although only 28 years old had been flying five years had promised his mother that he would give up flying on September 4, his birthday. Both his mother and father saw him fall to his death.

BIG NAVAL DRY DOCK PLANNED FOR PENSACOLA

Washington, September 3.—Reopening of the Pensacola naval station with construction of a mammoth dry dock and repair facilities capable of caring for ships in the Caribbean and the Atlantic side of the Panama canal has been recommended to Secretary Daniels by a naval board.

The board says Pensacola is the best and only site on the Gulf of Mexico for a naval station of the first class and that such a station adequately protected, is most desirable in peace and absolutely necessary to the success of the fleet in time of war.

GOING TO THE BOTTOM OF RAILROAD HORROR

Government to Probe the New Haven Wreck at a Public Inquiry.

New Haven, Conn., September 3.—With twenty-one dead and five dying as the result of the wreck near New Haven yesterday morning of the Bar Harbor Express the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad faces tonight a public inquiry into the causes of the disaster by the interstate commerce commission. It will begin Friday and will be the most searching ever conducted by the commission into any railroad catastrophe.

This was announced tonight by H. W. Belnap, chief inspector of the commission who arrived here today. Commissioner McChord will preside. Mr. Belnap said the inquiry would get down to fundamentals and determine what causes in the general operation and management of the road were responsible for the series of fatal wrecks which have afflicted the New Haven for the last two or three years, culminating in yesterday's the most disastrous of all.

Until the interstate commerce commission's witnesses tell their story the official explanation given out by the company will be the only version of the causes of the wreck available.

Coroner Keeps Evidence Secret.

Coroner Mix persisted today in refusing to make public the testimony of Engineer Miller of the White Mountain Express which crashed into the Bar Harbor train or of Flagman Murray of the latter train both of whom he examined yesterday in a preliminary investigation. This attitude was also taken by C. C. Ellwell, chief engineer of the Connecticut Public Utilities commission who attended the hearing.

The coroner will begin tomorrow his formal inquiry to fix he said the criminal responsibility but this also will be a private affair.

Acting under telegraphic instructions from Commissioner McChord, Mr. Belnap today demanded that he be allowed to be present at the inquiry. To this the coroner acceded and promised him a copy of testimony already taken.

President Elliott tonight declared that as far as he was concerned he was perfectly willing for the testimony to become public but had refrained from giving it out in deference to the coroner.

He added any and all facts in possession of the company will be given promptly to the public authorities and at the hearing of the interstate commerce commission which is to begin Friday all such facts will become public property.

Engineer and Flagman Held.

Engineer Miller and Flagman Murray were still in jail tonight and the coroner has refused to accept bonds for their appearance at tomorrow's hearing.

Inspector Belnap lost no time today in preparing for the investigation. He visited President Elliott and obtained the time sheets of all the trains in operation on this division of the New Haven yesterday morning the records of the crews of the two express trains and other data needed. He refused to state what the time sheets disclosed but it was learned that of six trains that left Springfield within an hour of each other yesterday morning only one of them late. The White Mountain express was making faster time than any of them—somehow in excess of forty miles an hour.

There will be a complete disclosure of the running time of these trains at the investigation, said the inspector. We are going to the bottom thoroughly. All the data furnished by the railroad will be checked up by sworn testimony before it is accepted.

POLICY OF BRITAIN VOICED BY HALDANE

Philadelphia, September 3.—The address before the American Bar association at Montreal of Viscount Haldane, lord high chancellor of England, was an official announcement to the world of the declared policy of the British government according to an authorized statement made here tonight by Francis P. Law, chief of the city chairman of the committee that received the lord chancellor upon his arrival at New York from England last week.

The address in a large measure concerned itself with the unity of nations particularly those of Anglo-Saxon blood, working together for the good of the world its peace and betterment.

According to Mr. Rawles statement the lord chancellor said: "It is official and it is intended to be so. It is the declared policy of the British government announcement through my address to the world. It will be published in London before I get home and it will be published immediately in French, German, Russian and Chinese."

Sir Edward Grey the British foreign minister said he would send the address line for line stating its every word with his official approval.

According to Mr. Rawles the lord chancellor attributed to the foreign ministers ability and qualities the solution of the Balkan troubles.

Mr. Rawles said that the lord chancellor speaking of the United States, declared:

In fifty years you will undoubtedly be the leading nation in a material sense and I see no reason to doubt that you will be the leading nation in an intellectual sense."

REVIEW OF WEATHER IN THE COTTON BELT

Washington, September 3.—A review of the weather in the cotton belt for the week which ended Monday was issued today as follows:

Last of the Mississippi the favorable conditions of the past several weeks continued, but high temperatures and generally deficient rain fall have reduced the soil moisture below that necessary for the best crop development and more rain is now needed in many portions.

West of the Mississippi high dry temperatures continued and there was a nearly universal absence of any beneficial rainfall, save at a few points in Texas. The drought and heat continued especially severe in Oklahoma, southern Missouri and large portions of Texas, and the lack of rain fall is now being severely felt in Arkansas and probably in northern Louisiana.

Jackson, Miss., September 10.—The Mississippi railroad commission today has temporarily restrained federal tax collectors from collecting federal taxes on the Illinois Central and Yazoo and Mississippi valley railway properties through an order of Federal Judge Niles. The injunction case will be heard in the November term of court pending which the railroads defer to pay their taxes on a basis of the assessment of last year. The railroads charged that this year's assessments are excessive.

All the News of Real Estate and Building

Another handsome commercial building on Peachtree to cost approximately $50,000 is promised in the near future. This time it is to be a four-story building, with a frontage of 100 feet on Peachtree street. The present building, which was formerly occupied by the Peachtree dairy, is being torn down to make room for the new structure. The contractor is expected to start work on the new building within a few days. The building will be a fine example of modern commercial architecture and will add to the city's skyline. # COTTON CLIMBING TOWARD 14 CENTS

Another Day of Excitement on New York Exchange.
Some of Advance Lost in Late Trading.

New York September 3.—The cotton market showed continued activity and excitement during today's trading. The influence of a bullish crop report was plainly apparent, and appeared to be intensified by a bullish reading of the weekly weather review which was followed by an advance to 13 3/4 for December contracts. Fully 3 1/2 per cent of the closing figure of last Friday's Reactionary sentiment became more pronounced as buying slackened after this big advance and the market lost 20 or 25 points of its gain in the late trading under heavy selling. Southern and private reports of rain in the southwest. The closing tone was steady however and last prices still showed net gains of from 12 to 38 points for the day.

The opening was steady at an advance of 7 to 12 points in response to higher cables and a renewal of yesterday's buying movement. Offerings were very heavy from the start, and prices sagged off to a net loss of 2 or 3 points during the early trading. Cotton was readily taken at this comparatively slight setback and the market developed renewed strength toward midday on covering by early sellers. Buying by trade and longer looking for trade and speculative account. Active months sold 44 to 49 points not high before offerings became heavy enough to check the advance, and for a time it looked like nothing short of a runaway market.

There was heavy southern selling above 13 1/4 however and as soon as the general buying movement slackened realizing became more active on reports that the south was hedging freely against its coming crop and that spinners were buying only moderately on the advance.

At the high price of today the market showed a gain of 11 1/2 per cent from the low of August 14 and while local gossip reflected a decided scaling down of crop estimates during this period there was doubtless considerable selling on a theory that it would require a very active trade in the face of an increasing crop movement.

Spot cotton quiet middling uplands 13 3/4 Gulf 13 1/2 no sales.

RAINS INTERFERE WITH THRESHING

This Caused All Grain to Score Higher Marks—Corn Touched New High Prices for Deferred Deliveries.

Chicago, September 3.—Rains that interfered with threshing in the north west had a bullish effect today on the wheat market. Closing prices, which were steady at almost the top level showed an advance of 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 net. Corn scored a gain of 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 net. Oats finished 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 net. Visions with a rise of 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 net. Unsettled weather in the spring crop region was a handicap for some of the largest short sellers of wheat. Several bear leaders covered nearly a million bushels each in December and January. Strength of foreign markets counted decidedly in favor of higher prices and there also was considerable notice taken of the material falling off in primary receipts especially as the world's available supply exhibited liberal decrease. An important feature was the amount of investment buying on the theory that wheat is worth more on the basis of the relative value of corn and oats. Another circumstance which received comment was the evident tightening of the grasp of cash grain September contracts and on cash wheat holdings generally.

Corn touched new high prices for deferred deliveries and grazed the season's top record for September. Continued drought and heat over most of the corn belt acted powerfully in increasing quotations. In addition country sales were light and there were Argentine reports that the exportable surplus had been largely sold.

Oats were active in demand from speculators and investors. The outlook for shortage in feed gave a price incentive. Provisions climbed with hogs and corn. Receipts at the yards were less than expected semi-monthly statistics of warehouse supplies here were bullish and there was a notable decrease in the estimate of the world's supply of lard.

Following were the quotations on the Chicago articles today:

Effect of Weather on Wireless.

School Curriculum.

It is a well known fact that the night range of a long distance wireless station is often several times as long as the day range. It is also a matter of very common experience that the day range and the night range are both subject to wide variations from day to day or night to night. Tests have recently been made which seem to show that wireless messages can be transmitted over long distances in cloudy and damp weather owing to atmospheric absorption

It is the opinion of the Electrical World that there must be a vast quantity of data on hand bearing on this problem as every operator must have noticed some connection between transtransmissivity and weather conditions, but the data are scattered and not easily available. No serious attempt has been made to correlate the transmissivity over long distances with the weather conditions prevailing in the region.

With the collection and correlation of more data on radio-transmission and meteorological conditions doubtless some of the vagaries of wireless experimentation will be arranged for, and might even be put to practical use by weather bureaus.
