

German, preparing for a possible retreat, are constructing a line of defense across Belgium from the Scheidt along the Dendre river to Maubeuge, on the French frontier. This, if true, is considered only a measure of precaution.

MINES STREWN BY GERMAN RAIDERS.

The German cruisers which raided the east coast of England seized a large mine field. In addition to the three steamers previously reported as having been destroyed, a mine sweeper, clearing the seas, was blown up today, and it is reported two other vessels will be like fate. This occurred while the funerals of the victims of the bombardment at Scarborough and the Hartlepool were being held.

GAINS REPORTED FOR THE ALLIES.

Paris, December 19.—The following official communication was issued tonight by the French war office on Steenstraete, an attack by the enemy has been repulsed, and we have made progress in the neighborhood of the Koude.

The British troops have lost in the vicinity of Neufchateau, Belgium, last night. In the meantime the Indian corps has advanced a few hundred metres to the eastward.

The enemy has displayed activity in the direction of the German front. A detachment of the enemy was taken by surprise in marching column and literally mowed down.

From the Oise to the Vosges there has been no incident worth noting. The war office in London gave an official announcement as follows: "During the day of December 18 we captured in Belgium the territory west from the enemy before the evening before to the south of Dixmude, and we advanced our front to the south of the inn at Kortkerke."

Our advance to the south of Ypres has been continued over a very difficult and swampy territory. From the Lys to the Oise we have progressed in the region of Notre Dame de Consolation, to the south of La Bassée, by more than one kilometre. We also made progress in the direction of Carney, St. Laurent and Blangy.

In spite of very spirited counterattacks, the positions taken by us December 17 have been retained. The night of December 17-18 and during the day of the 18th we advanced under a very violent fire of the enemy, and we reached the heavily wooded entanglements of the second line of German trenches. The enemy, however, was obliged to abandon a trench occupied the night before and set on foot the enemy by means of hand grenades.

Several German trenches have been occupied in the region of Marquet in the vicinity of Liénon three violent counterattacks on the part of the Germans have been repulsed. In the region of the Aisne there have been artillery engagements, and in Champagne the activity has increased as compared to the 17th.

In the Argonne, in the forest of La Crucille, the German undermanned trench. Near St. Hubert the enemy, by a very spirited attack, succeeded in making slight progress. It has been confirmed that on the heights of the Meuse our fire directed by aviators, demolished two heavy batteries of the enemy and damaged a third battery.

From the Aisne to the Vosges there is nothing to report. In the Vosges there has been spirited German rifle firing, but no attack.

ALLIES ATTACKING, BERLIN ADMITS.

Berlin, December 19.—(By Wireless to London.)—An official statement was given this afternoon in this city as follows: "Yesterday there took place a series of hostile attacks in a western arena of the war. The fighting continues at Neuport, Nischatoe, and La Bassée. The repeated attacks on the west of the Lys, east of Albert and west of Oyon."

On the East Prussian frontier a Russian cavalry attack to the west of Filikallen was repulsed. The Russian pursuit of the enemy continues. Berlin continued in festive array today in celebrating the reported victory in Poland, but the people experienced a shade of disappointment from the gravity of the official war bulletin which failed to supply any further details of the Polish engagement. The present state of the war presents developments in the eastern arena of the war which require several days to be approximately set forth.

Meantime various rumors are in circulation. The Russian war office has a number of prisoners taken by the Germans. Colonel von Valentini, chief of Emperor William's civil cabinet, answering a telegram from the East Prussian front to the emperor wrote as follows: "His majesty confidently trusts that the answers he will to counter, with God's help, will lead the Fatherland through the present trying days to a happy and victorious end."

HEAVY GERMAN LOSSES ALONG THE YSER RIVER.

Berlin, December 19.—(Via Amsterdam and London.)—A total of 25,061 heavy wounded and 2,000 killed in casualty lists published here, No. 96 to 99. Warburg regiment, No. 247, lost 1,600 men; regiment No. 149 lost 1,000. A Saxon regiment stationed near Meuse suffered 2,000 casualties. Including the Belgian and German losses along the Yser thus far published are 30,000.

AMERICAN MUNITIONS ARE SHIPPED TO RUSSIA.

Seattle, Wash., December 19.—American-made heavy artillery will be tried out by the Russian army in Poland next week. The Russian fleet steamship Novgorod, bound from Vancouver to Vladivostok, is carrying 185 carloads of war supplies, mostly siege guns and projectiles. The guns, made in Pennsylvania, weighed 106 tons.

500,000 PLUM PUDDINGS FOR BRITISH FIGHTERS.

London, December 9.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Police surveillance of the wives of British soldiers and sailors receiving allowances—a measure deemed necessary by the authorities to prevent dissatisfaction—has caused such a stir that Sir Edward Henry, chief commissioner of the London police, has issued an order announcing that he will not send to police stations the names of wives receiving allowances as supplied by the war office. The order specifies how police shall handle cases of women arrested for being drunk and disorderly.

GERMAN AEROPLANE DROPS ON DANISH ISLE.

London, December 9.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—A Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company reports that a German aeroplane has been stranded on the Danish isle of Bornholm. The aviator, an officer and a soldier, will be interned in Denmark.

ASTOR GIVES $125,000 FOR WAR SUFFERERS.

London, December 19.—William Waldorf Astor has placed $125,000 at the relief of families of British officers killed or wounded at the front. The funds will be superintended by the distribution of the fund.

TWO FRENCH BIRDMEN ARE BURNED TO DEATH.

Paris, December 19.—Lieutenant Grugère and Major Destouche, military aviators, were burned to death today when their biplane was straggled, their biplane was struck by a gust of wind and dashed to earth and caught fire.

SOLDIERS GOING CRAZY FROM LIFE IN TRENCHES.

Hundreds of the Allies Have Also Suffered Nervous Collapse.

Southampton, December 9.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Insanity and nervous prostration are claiming many of the allies who have been surrounded and are living in trenches about Ypres. Insanity wards in government hospitals at Netley are crowded with the insane. In the hospitals in south England have many patients who suffered absolute nervous collapse.

Most of the cases show decided improvement as soon as the men get into surroundings and are afforded quiet. Many suffering with nervous affections, who declared, when they returned to their homes, that they would further service under the fire of the guns, clamor to return as soon as they get a truce on their nerves.

Shocked by Shells. An amazing number of invalided soldiers have never been wounded and show no physical signs of disability. Some of the most desperate cases are men terribly shocked by shells which exploded near them.

One sergeant, a boy of 18, who recently left Netley to visit his relatives, was killed by the force of an exploding shell, not a fragment of which touched him. He was unconscious several days and his brain was so affected that he was unable to see anything for weeks. If he became the least excited he fell into a faint. In his hospital he still walked somewhat unsteady and complained that dark spots frequently appeared before his eyes.

Soldiers are on rare occasions found shooting their arms and hands to the enemy's fire that they may get wounded which will relieve them from trench service. That, in many cases, is attributed to shattered nerves, although there are occasions when court-martials in cases where there is reason to believe cowardice inspired such action.

Bad Teeth Play Havoc. Bad teeth are troubling havoc with the English troops in the trenches. Many dentists have been sent to treat defective teeth which have caused a great deal of trouble. Recruiting officers were at first extremely particular about the teeth of applicants, but it soon became necessary to let down the bars.

As the middle and lower class people which are having a great deal of their mouths and seldom have their teeth treated, dental troubles have been numerous. If recruiting officers in England were to demand sound teeth as required for the English army, they would get few recruits. Public schools in London and other large cities are having a great deal of their pupils examined and encouraging proper care of the teeth.

COTTON FOR GERMANY NOT LIKED IN LONDON.

London, December 9.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—There is a strong feeling in the London market that underwriters should have nothing to do with cotton shipments which it is proposed to make from the United States to Germany in neutral ships.

Proposals are said to have been made that the underwriters give their agents in the United States authority to accept re-insurance but they consider such action would in effect amount to trading with the Germans. They also believe it might be difficult to limit the shipments of raw cotton and that vessels might not leave Germany empty.

ANTI-AUSTRIAN RIOTS ARE FEARED IN ITALY.

Chiasso, Switzerland, December 19.—(Via Paris.)—More than five hundred meetings throughout Italy have been arranged for tomorrow to commemorate the anniversary of the hanging of the soldier Overdank, who paid the death penalty on December 20, 1892, for attempting to assassinate Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria. The Italian government is taking extraordinary measures to suppress anti-Austrian demonstrations.

When the triple alliance was formed serious disturbances occurred in Italy on account of disapproval of the tie between that country and Austria. That feeling is being revived by the Italian territory, and culminated in the attempt on the life of Emperor Francis Joseph by the young Trieste Overdank, a deserter from the Austrian army, who was hanged in an Italian university. After his execution Overdank was proclaimed a martyr by the anti-Austrian feeling has found fresh expression in the form of meetings of the war and the outspoken determination of a certain element to force the government to suppress the Italian provinces still under Hapsburg rule, are giving authorities some concern.

BANKRUPT RAILROAD UNLOADED ON MORGAN.

Witness Tells How Great Financier Was Caught in Purchase of the C, H. & D.

Washington, December 19.—The tangled affairs of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad, now in the hands of a receiver for the second time since 1906, were related at length before Commissioner Hall, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, today by Frederick W. Stevens, long an official of either the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton or the Pere Marquette line, whose troubles are intertwined.

The inquiry was the second hearing in an investigation into the connection between J. P. Morgan & Co. with the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton transactions. Mr. Stevens appeared today as a Morgan representative.

Mr. Stevens produced many letters and original agreements to show that when the late J. P. Morgan purchased controlling interest of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton for the Erie system in 1906, he had no knowledge of the disastrous results of the preceding year in the road's financial situation.

During that year a syndicate controlled the road, and according to Mr. Stevens, plunged it into debt to the extent of $10,000,000. The syndicate, of which J. P. Morgan was a member, was in control of the Pere Marquette.

Immediately on the disclosure of the true condition of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton, Mr. Stevens said, J. P. Morgan took over its purchase from the Erie system at the price at which it was acquired. The first year following and a reorganization of the system, which included its separation from the Pere Marquette, immediately followed in the line's affairs, and Mr. Stevens asserted that the Ohio floods occurred, forcing the line again into a receiver's hands for the interim, however, it had passed to the Baltimore and Ohio, which still owns control.

The net result to Mr. Morgan of the entire transaction, the witness declared, was an expenditure of more than $12,000,000, for which the firm now had to show 10,000 shares of the Pere Marquette, of doubtful if any value, and a loss of $6,421,000 on a portion of a Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton bond issue purchased in 1906, against which was $28,000,000 commission on transactions totaling nearly $22,000,000 and a profit of $3,682 on another market transaction.

Augusta, Ga., December 19.—(Special.)—Two hundred of Augusta's leading women heard Mrs. Debra Breckenridge, of Kentucky, last night, make an hour's address in the interest of woman suffrage. Mrs. Breckenridge is the great-niece of Henry Clay, and is a brilliant woman and winning speaker.

Rev. G. Sherwood Whitney, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church, introduced the speaker, and paid a high compliment to the type of suffragists in Georgia and the south. A few prominent men were also in attendance. The suffrage cause has a strong following among the leading women of this city.

Annie Wright, charged with the death of her husband, and who is under a year's sentence, has been granted by Attorney David Lewis. Her husband died following a pistol wound inflicted December 2.

THE "TIRESOME" STORY OF ONE F. G. PRATHER.

Augusta, Ga., December 19.—(Special.)—F. G. Prather is spending a while with the city as the result of his peculiar financial methods, which the police did not seem to be able to appreciate properly. Prather, it is said, made a store a week ago and secured a $3.95 inner tube auto tire, asking to have it charged to a lady in Thomson, which the dealer obligingly did at another store he asserted that the tire did not fit his car, and offered to trade for a $2.00 inner tube. This dealer also was obliging. Visiting a third business house he said the tire was too small and offered to sell it for $1.50, and again he found an obliging dealer who traded with him. But here he hung around until the dealer's back was turned when he decamped with both cash and tire. The police arrested Prather yesterday, but the tire is still at large.

FAVOR FOR BELGIANS ASKED BY WILLIAMS.

Washington, December 19.—(Special.)—Motion for new trial in the case of the next five years Belgians seeking a home in the United States was introduced today by Senator Williams. No action was taken.

Senator Stone has spoken for making an exception in favor of those persecuted for race as well as for religion. Senator Smith, of South Carolina, opposed that on the ground that one who drew religious persecution showed possession of a high moral fiber, while the same could not be said of one persecuted for race. Senator Williams declared Senator Stone's proposal would admit a flood of ignorance. "There is only one exception I would make in excluding illiterates," continued Senator Williams. "I have in mind permitting the Belgian people to come to this country. I would provide that those should be excepted from this test whose country has been subjected to conquest, because it would not permit itself to be invaded."

ONE CROP SYSTEM SCORED IN REPORT

Importance of Diversification, and Need of Aid of Business Men, Urged by Commissioners.

J. D. Price, Georgia's commissioner of agriculture, elected president of the commissioners of agriculture of the southern states at their convention in Atlanta Friday, gave out Saturday an important statement to the commissioners to the people of the south.

In this statement the commissioners agree that the farmers and business men of the southern states can, if they will, turn the calamity caused by the cotton situation into lasting benefit.

Imported Foodstuffs.

The south in the past has not prospered as other agricultural sections of the country have, says the commissioner, because all of the states, with the exception of North Carolina and Tennessee, have imported yearly foodstuffs for man and beast equal in value to the cotton produced in these states.

Before leaving Atlanta Saturday each of the commissioners urged Commissioner Price to obtain for his department a market for the cotton crop.

Commissioner Price said he would take the matter under serious consideration, and said he would act as best he could under Georgia laws in regard to securing a "market man."

Commissioners' Statement.

The statement of the commissioners follows in full:

"A few months ago the farmers of the south were facing what seemed to be a prospect of a very bad year. The outbreak of the European war, which brought disaster to the cotton market, the principal crop of the south, had changed from what appeared prosperous conditions to a condition of calamity, so far as the present crop is concerned. But if the farmers and the business men of the south will cooperate much to turn this condition of calamity into a lasting benefit for the southern farmer and business interests, these in charge of the agricultural work have been urging the importance of diversification of crops and to no longer rely upon the one-crop system, but the policy had become so firmly established by those extending credit that it was hard for the farmer to get away from the system.

"The south has been buying its food products largely from other sections of the country—sending money away from the south to other sections. It has remained in active local circulation. Climate and soil conditions—in fact, everything is favorable for the production of the crops that the south has been depending upon other states supplying its people. It is apparent that we must change from the one-crop system to a diversified one. The statistics we can obtain, import each year foodstuffs for our people to the amount equal to the money received from the sale of cotton produced in these states, and this really is the reason why the south has not prospered as has most of the other agricultural sections.

"In addition to the home market we have for diversified farming products, we have a prospective market in the warring nations across the water, which will, for some time at least, be a market for the states for food, not only for its armies, but for its people home, ensuring the farmers of the south who can produce food products at an earlier date to supply this demand than any other section of the world has a fixed market. In changing from the one-crop system to a diversified one, the farmer should give attention to live stock, to the extent that his means and opportunities will permit.

"Need Aid of Business Men. "It is the business of the farmer to see to the production of his crops, but in marketing the same he needs the co-operation of the business men and bankers of the country, and we earnestly request their assistance and that the agricultural departments of the states give their attention to this point. We especially urge landlords to assist and encourage laborers in raising supplies for their farms and families, and that the government system be extended so as to cover the time necessary for a rotation.

"The commissioners wish to assure our fellow citizens that we will use to the utmost ability the means under his control in aiding in executing the ideas expressed in this address.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF ROBBING INDIANA

Indianapolis, Ind., December 19.—Lieutenant Governor W. P. O'Neill and twelve other officers and employees of the 1913 legislature indicted December 4, charged with signing and presenting illegal claims against the state, were acquitted in the criminal court here today.

The men were indicted under a statute of 1913 which limited the number of employees of the legislature and the salary they should be paid. The defense did not deny the claims had been signed and presented, but argued that the statute of 1913 was unconstitutional, which was sustained by Judge Markey.

WAYCROSS WILL TAX CHURCH PROPERTY

Mayor's Veto, However, Exempts Church House Proper From Taxation.

Waycross, Ga., December 19.—(Special.)—Basing his action on an opinion rendered by City Attorney John S. Walker, Mayor Scott T. Benton today filed with City Clerk A. C. Lowther his veto of a resolution adopted by city council Tuesday night exempting certain church properties in Waycross from payment of city taxes.

Only structures actually used for religious worship will be exempt under the action taken by the mayor. Council's resolution exempted the homes used by the churches.

Producing Property Owned by the Churches Must Pay Taxes.

Back cases, in one instance covering a period of seven years, will be collected by the city.

Ministers and other prominent citizens appealed for relief from the city taxes, claiming the churches were never before taxed and should receive every consideration at the hands of council.

The case cited is that of the wardens, etc., of St. Mark's church v. the Mayor, etc., of Brunswick, 78 Georgia Reporter, page 541.

The decision says: "The language of the constitution is that the legislature may exempt places of religious worship from taxation, but the legislature can not exempt a parsonage, it is not a place of public worship."

Just what will be the next move in the effort to escape taxation is not known. Council members favor aiding the churches, but in view of the very definite decision given by the city attorney it is not believed any effort will be made to pass an exemption resolution over the veto of the mayor.

$34,138,580 CARRIED BY WATERWAYS MEASURE

Washington, December 19.—Reporting the river and harbors bill carrying $34,138,580, to the house today, Chairman Spaffman, of the committee, said: "Leaving out new projects and reducing the amounts allotted in the bill so much below the estimates, the committee has not been unkindful of the rapidly growing commerce for the accommodation of which both the work under old and new is designed. In view, however, of the necessity for economy in government expenditures, a thing desirable at all times, but owing to the extraordinary conditions brought about by the present European war more imperative now perhaps than at any time during the past decade, it was thought advisable to omit new projects from the bill and to reduce the appropriation and authorizations to the lowest possible minimum, commensurate with efficiency and a reasonable degree of progress toward goal under way."

MANY ARE INVOLVED IN THE BAFF MURDER

New York, December 19.—Not only the murderers of Barnett Baff, enemy of the so-called poultry ring, shot down in November, but also the instigators of the crime probably will be indicted next week, according to a statement today by Assistant District Attorney Delahanty.

It is plainly a case of hired assassination, Delahanty said. "Those who hired the assassins are known to the district attorney's office, and will be hunted for murder."

When the grand jury considers the case Monday and Tuesday, it is said, it will hear testimony tending to involve twenty persons.

OFFICIALS DEFENDED BY JAMES L. MAYSON

City Attorney Denies Law Student's Charge That They Are "Bunch of Grafters."

City Attorney James L. Mayson vigorously defended the city of Atlanta last night in an address following a debate of the Civic Forum, in which a speaker declared the city officials to be "a bunch of grafters" and assailed the proposed bond issue of $2,000,000 for school and other improvements.

Mr. Mayson did not say in his speech whether he favored the proposed bond issue for schools or not, his talk being merely a general discussion of different kinds of bond issues. In his opinion, the serial fund system, by the former, is better than the sinking fund system. By the former, system some of the bonds are paid off each year, but by the latter the entire sum is not paid off until the end of the term.

The speaker who made the charges of graft was A. Chess, a student of the law school and campaign manager for the socialist candidate for mayor in the last election.

GRADY TRUSTEES CLASH OVER ECLECTIC DOCTORS

Would See Them in Hell Before Putting Them on Medical Board, Says Foster.

W. E. Foster, of the Grady hospital board of trustees, in a spirited meeting of the trustees, held Friday afternoon, declared that "he would see the eclectic doctors in hell" before he would vote to put them on the Grady hospital board of physicians.

The meeting was called by Chairman R. J. Lovry to consider a resolution introduced by Alderman I. N. Ragsdale in city council recently, requesting that the Grady board of trustees be asked to say what action they had taken on a proposal by council on May 6 that the eclectic doctors be added to the board of physicians.

The meeting was called as the result of a letter from City Clerk Taylor to Dr. Summerall, head of the Grady hospital, enclosing a copy of the proposed Ragsdale ordinance and also a copy of the resolution recently passed by council.

The board maintained that Mr. Taylor's letter was the first notification of the ordinance introduced in council by Alderman Ragsdale or of the recent resolution of council. A resolution was finally passed, after much discussion, advising council that the matter had been referred to the Grady medical board, which would report back to the trustees at the board's meeting the last part of this month.

WIDOW'S STORY HELPS WIN INSURANCE CASE

Mrs. Emile Briggs Dyer and Empire Life Company Settle Claim of $25,000.

A wife's testimony to the effect that her husband did not commit suicide, but died from heart disease, helped win a judgment for Mrs. Emile Briggs Dyer, formerly of Atlanta, against the Empire Life Insurance company, which she sued on insurance policies amounting to $25,000.

The case was tried before Judge W. C. Lankford, in Valdosta, Ga., and aroused great interest in that section as well as Atlanta, in which latter city both Mrs. Dyer and her late husband formerly resided.

A verdict and judgment were rendered in favor of Mrs. Dyer for the entire $25,000, besides the interest thereon. The Empire Life company moved for a new trial, but was overruled, whereupon they proceeded to prepare a bill of exceptions on which to carry the case into the supreme court.

A settlement was agreed upon, and it is understood that Mrs. Dyer received $22,500 in settlement of her claim. The case was one of much importance from an insurance and legal standpoint. It was alleged by the defendants that Mr. Dyer had committed suicide, but the jury accepted the testimony of his wife.

The Empire Life was represented by Frank A. Hooper and Denmark Griffin, the latter firm of Valdosta. Mrs. Dyer's counsel was composed of Bryan & Mitchell, of Atlanta, and K. W. Wilcox and Patterson & Coppeland.

Athens, Ga., December 19.—(Special.) Suffering for two years, Miss Luella Brand, daughter of Judge C. H. Brand, of this place, prominent in the social life of Athens, has learned that an auto accident in 1912 has been the cause.

At an Atlanta infirmary a delicate operation had been performed to replace bones which had been slightly dislocated and caused trouble. Till the diagnosis brought out the story of the accident, her father had not known that she was in an accident resulting in injury to several young people who went in a party to Atlanta by auto in 1912.

DANIEL BROS. CO.

ON THE FIRING LINE

What it means to most men.

There are many true heroes that have perished in the European war who "never smelled powder," but who succumbed to sickness after hard campaigning coupled with bad water and lack of food. The sick and debilitated man is as much out of place in his struggle for life and existence as he would be on the firing line. On the other hand, the strong, vigorous man, his veins filled with rich red blood, has an enormous advantage in whatever position he may be fated to occupy, in war or peace.

The prompt and certain action of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in driving all harmful germs and impurities from the blood, sets in motion the repair process which works actively on the diseased membrane where Catarrh flourishes unchecked or where the skin gives warning of the bad blood by showing pimples, blotches and boils, also the skin clears up and becomes wholesome and ruddy.

Thus by building up a new protective covering and carrying out of the system the Catarrh infested matter by way of the blood, liver and kidneys, Catarrh is overcome and permanently conquered.

There is not a drop of alcohol or any narcotic in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, but in this safe vegetable remedy there is a mighty altering force which by replacing the blood impurities with pure, rich blood, not only aids Catarrh conditions wherever located, but vitalizes the kidneys, stomach, liver, bowels and every organ of the body. People who suffer from debilitation and mental misery because of Pimples, Skin rash, Blotches, Eruptions, Boils, Carbuncles, are especially benefited. It is not a secret remedy; for its ingredients are printed on wrapper. Send for free book on the blood to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Joe Logan Describes Work Joint Agent of Churches Will Do for City's Poor get anywhere, unless you add the question of "worthy" or "unworthy" of what. For instance, a man who drinks is unworthy of money with which to buy whiskey, but maybe he can be made a man again with the right kind of medical treatment.

The arrangement which has been entered into between the ministers and the Associated Charities is an office for the joint agent of the evangelical churches of the city, who begins her work Monday morning.

Just today we refused to give food and fuel to a woman because she ought to take care of her mother, within a block of her, instead of trying to maintain an independent household with no income.

After fixing responsibility, the joint worker is to see that the treatment is carried out along lines that have been planned by her in conjunction with the paid force of the Associated Charities and her committee of ministers.

The churches are going to use the Associated Charities in whatever degree they deem wise in making investigations and plans, and then they are going to try to build up a personal and friendly relationship between their workers and those in need.

PROPERTY REPAIR CAMPAIGN OPENS

Chamber of Commerce Believes Plan Will Result in Expenditure of at Least $150,000 in Atlanta.

The Chamber of Commerce has begun a "Repair Now" campaign, which promises to be the means of putting a large number of men to work. Some days ago, at a real estate meeting called by Harris G. White, S. B. Turman made a talk saying that a good deal could be done by hastening repairs on property.

An inquiry made Saturday by Walter G. Cooper, secretary of the chamber of commerce, showed that the repairs possible at the time on residences which really needed the work, would mean at least $250,000.

Ed H. Hayes, city building inspector, stated that at least forty to fifty per cent of dwellings in Atlanta need repairs. Mr. Hayes thinks the repairs would average $25 a house.

S. B. Turman who does a large renting business and has had much experience with changing tenants, thinks that the average cost would be at least $50. Either statement would mean the expenditure of $250,000.

These repairs ordinarily would be done in the course of the next six or nine months, but in most cases the work might be done now to good advantage at a considerable saving of money.

This situation was explained to Mell T. Wilkinson, president of the chamber of commerce who has appointed an able committee with S. B. Turman as chairman to take up this matter and bring it directly to the attention of all home owners with a view to starting work on a large scale.

The committee is composed of the following gentlemen: S. B. Turman, chairman; Harris G. White, Thomas E. Day, W. A. Foster, Montefiore Seligman, etc.

Mr. Turman has accepted the chairmanship and has already begun work. He has called a meeting of the committee in the chamber of commerce Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock. With the object of the southwest campaign and the build-up campaign referring to new buildings, the chamber of commerce has taken the precaution of unemployment from three sides. In the meantime the city and county have taken it up from their standpoint and have put hundreds of men to work.

It is Mr. Turman's idea that the committee will send letters to every property owner in the city, urging him to make his repairs at once. He thinks at least two-thirds of the owners will comply with the plan. The $150,000 worth of work can be started within the next thirty to sixty days.

EJECTED FROM HOTEL.

Court Fails to Find Her Character Damaged.

Valdosta, Ga., December 19.—(Special.)—A verdict in favor of the defendant was rendered in the federal district court here today in the suit of Mrs. H. T. Cameron against Mrs. D. B. Fugate, a former hotel proprietor at Valdosta. The case was one of the most sensational tried at this term of court.

Mrs. Cameron was ejected from the hotel of the defendant and brought suit for damages for the loss of her reputation. Many witnesses were summoned on both sides and the courtroom was thronged throughout the trial by curious crowds anxious to hear the sensational testimony introduced. The case was first brought in the state courts. Mrs. Cameron afterwards moving to Canada and then instituting suit in the federal court.

BIG COTTON LOAN POOL EXPLAINED BY MADDOX

to put up 2 per cent of the loan is a guarantee fund and to cover expenses. However it must be remembered that this $100,000,000 which has been subscribed throughout the north and west is to be loaned in the form of cotton and if cotton should decline below 6 cents a pound the lending banks would have no authority to call for additional margin and in banking circles 20 per cent margin is not considered unreasonable. This is what the banks will have on the basis of cotton at 6 cents a pound if they lend 5 cents a pound.

It must also be remembered that 6 cents a pound is not the average of middling cotton which is a lower grade than the basis used for quotations in this section. The differences to be allowed in financing the value of cotton for grades above and below middling have not yet been determined but a sub-committee in New York has this matter in charge and will probably fix the differences to be allowed very soon. No cotton, however, will be admitted for collateral which grades below low middling. The differences between middling and low middling on the New York cotton exchange amount to 125 points, while the differences between the same grades on the New Orleans cotton exchange amount to 50 points.

The cotton exchange, the New York stock exchange and the federal reserve banks having all been opened since the plan for making this loan to the banks of the south on cotton was started, and the delay in getting subscriptions aggregating the minimum of $100,000,000, of course, materially affected the importance of the loan, and it remains to be seen whether the south is really in need of the loan at this time.

Here is the Plan.

Under the plan, the merchant or farming owner of 100 bales of middling cotton, weighing 500 pounds each, would have cotton to be valued at, say $5,000. The cotton would have to be properly stored in a good warehouse and properly insured. A note would then be signed by the owner of the cotton for $5,000; the note, together with the insurance policy and warehouse receipt, would have to be taken to a bank, which would agree to advance $250. The bank would also have to guarantee that the interest at 6 per cent would be promptly paid on February 1st and on every third month thereafter until February 1, 1915. The loan would have to be approved by the sub-committee of the territory in which the cotton was located, then would have to be approved by the sub-committee in Atlanta, and then forwarded to the general committee in New York. If approved there, the borrower would receive a check for $2,425, or 3 per cent of the face of the loan, being retained by the general committee as a guarantee fund and for expenses. The general committee would also forward to the bank a Class B certificate for $25, bearing interest at 6 per cent per annum, showing its participation in the general loan fund.

While the note would be payable February 1, 1916, the maker would have the option of paying it at any time by paying the interest up to the next succeeding quarterly period.

The question of prorating the loan among the various cotton areas was discussed by the general committee but no decision was reached, for the reason that it was generally agreed that the fund would be ample to take care of all the loans.

Subcommittees Named.

Our Georgia committee has already appointed several subcommittees throughout the state, and has forwarded the subcommittee the detailed instructions and full plan upon which loans can be made. No applications, however, will be received until the full amount of $100,000,000 subscribed has been received by the banks throughout the north. While it is generally believed that there will be no difficulty in getting these subscriptions actually signed up, a report left New York Friday only $8,000,000 had been received, and it will be the middle or last of next week before the full $100,000,000 subscriptions will be in hand and the funds will then be available.

The general feeling in financial circles in New York seemed to be that the country had passed through the most serious part of the depression caused by the European war. The cotton market seemed to be very steady, and comparatively little selling was in evidence. It was for these reasons which had been so much dreaded.

The rate decision of the interstate commerce commission granting the eastern lines 5 per cent in the rate believed to have a stimulating effect on railroad securities. It was especially encouraging to the holders of railroad securities throughout the United States for the reason that it indicated a more reasonable and fair attitude of the commission toward the most important factor in the development and prosperity of our country.

The cotton market is just now on a steady basis, owing to the fact that heavy exports have recently been made to Germany which indicates an increasing trade with that country. The exports for the month of October have passed the 2,000,000 mark, and it is generally believed will increase rapidly from now on.

Another factor which has had a steady influence upon the market was the recent report by the government of the increased amount of grain which had been sown in the southern states. The figures showed that Alabama had increased its acreage in grain 185 per cent, Mississippi 155 per cent, Georgia, 118 per cent and South Carolina 200 per cent. This was taken to be a very definite indication that the acreage in cotton another year would be materially increased.

While it was not expected that cotton would advance very much, owing to the fact that the south still held 7,000,000 bales of cotton, it was not thought that there was much likelihood of a severe decline from these prices. It is now selling at least 3 cents a pound below the cost of production, and is sold today than it has been in ten years.

It was also an interview in New York with the manager of the Polish polish syndicate who told me that Polish was now being shipped to this country in such quantities that it would be a sufficient amount of potash shipped from Germany in time to supply the needs of the south. It is believed to be in the spring.

I was glad to find that the south still held a great many friends in the financial district of New York who will have confidence in her integrity and faith in her future. It is believed that if, out of the temporary depression on account of low priced cotton, there comes a diversification of crops, this section of the country will soon make up its losses and be able to come to its growth and prosperity will be more substantial than ever before.

JUDGE DRAWS LOTS TO GET ATTORNEYS TO DEFEND NEGRO

Pellham, Ga., December 19.—(Special.)—Judge E. C. Cox has called a special term of Mitchell county court to be held in Camilla, December 22, at which time it is expected that "Flem" Jackson, a negro held for the killing of Deputy Sheriff Will Garner, will be placed on trial. If the grand jury find a true bill against him, the negro is without funds, so Judge Cox, in order that the negro might have adequate counsel, placed the names of all the attorneys in Mitchell county in a box and drew out two names, which were those of Colonel J. J. Hill, of Pellham, and Colonel Pomeroy Perkins, of Sale City, whom he appointed to defend the negro.

Mr. Bruffey is survived by his wife and one son, by one sister, Mrs. Laura Trent, of Lynchburg, Va., and by his brother in Atlanta.

While the last eighteen years of his life were spent in Washington, he had many friends in Atlanta and in Virginia and Kentucky, where members of his family lived. For two years his residence was in this city.

The funeral services will probably be held in Harrisonburg, Va., Mr. Bruffey will not be able to attend on account of the condition of his health.

MACON WILL PUT CITY TAX UPON LOCKER CLUBS

Macon, Ga., December 19.—(Special.)—Under a recent amendment to the charter of the city of Macon, passed by the legislature, locker clubs doing business in this city are placed under control of council, and can be subjected to a city tax as well as a state tax. The state requires a tax of $500, but the indications are that the city of Macon will hardly let them down so light, and there is now some talk of requiring a license fee of $1,500 from each club. Certain it is that the license will not be less than $500, while the majority of the aldermen are said to favor $1,000 as the minimum to be considered. Near beer saloons now pay the city a tax of $250, but next year they will have to pay $500. This is done because of the decrease in the number of saloons from fifty to forty.

WORK BEGINS SOON ON LAGRANGE MILLS

Company Now Fully Organized for Promotion of $500,000 Enterprise.

LaGrange, Ga., December 19.—(Special.)—The Hillside cotton mills, which will be LaGrange's eighth big mill, and add greatly to its industrial and commercial importance, was formally organized as a body corporate this week at a meeting of the subscribers.

Following the preliminaries of acceptance of charter, adoption of by-laws and other requirements under the corporation laws of Georgia, a resolution was adopted, fixing the capital stock at $500,000.

Following are the officers of the corporation: C. V. Pruitt, president; S. V. Austin, vice president and general manager; Fuller E. Callaway, treasurer; J. A. Perry, secretary. The above, with the following, were elected as directors: J. C. Pruitt, S. M. Pruitt, Roy Ellis, H. H. Childs, J. H. Edmondson, W. H. Holmes, Hutton Lovejoy, O. Barnard, F. C. Johnson, C. M. Pullman, J. W. Lane, Charles E. Perkins, J. Carroll Payne.

The construction work will be begun at the earliest possible time, and pushed to completion as rapidly as is consistent with the best standards of building work. Work on several tions of modern warehouses will be begun within the next two or three weeks, and it is planned to start work on the immense main buildings and the cottages as soon as winter breaks. Meanwhile, a great deal of the most thorough and painstaking preliminary work is being done by the management, and the engineers, who are Park A. Dallas company, of Atlanta. The new plant will form the sixth link in the chain of successful cotton mills under practically the same management, and this experience will do much to mean an equally brilliant success for the Hillside mills.

The building of a half million dollar manufacturing plant in LaGrange would be a most valuable service at any time, but particularly so fast in the present emergency. The general tendency toward the contraction of all enterprises and toward such an extent that workers in the building trade are beginning to suffer. With this important construction work assured for next year, it is certain that there will be a smaller proportion of unemployed in LaGrange. It is probable that other moneyed men of this city may follow the example and take advantage of the favorable conditions of low-priced materials and abundance of laborers anxious for work.

GOETHALS MISTAKEN ABOUT BRITISH COLLIER

Washington, December 19.—Colonel Goethals, governor of the canal zone, according to information to the British embassy today, which was communicated to the state department, has found that the British collier which was thought to have violated the neutrality of Panama zone waters by sending wireless messages, actually had no wireless equipment. It is understood the message was sent by another British ship, which, however, was outside the three-mile limit. At the embassy this statement was issued.

The British minister at Panama, a British ship employed as a collier on the Panama route, was reported to have violated the bill of health and was indicted for violation of quarantine regulations and was condemned by the court to the nominal fine of $50. At Balboa she received orders to leave at once, and being a government ship, she was to be treated with special neutrality rules or violation of custom laws, by leaving without clearance papers which she had not received. The clearance papers were ready but she had not time to wait for them.

"She was also accused of having used her wireless in canal zone limits. As she had no wireless installation, the governor of the zone, in a written communication, admitted that he had been misinformed."

ROCKEFELLER BOARD ON COLLEGE FUNDS

New York, December 19.—An efficient college should enjoy an income of sixty per cent. of its running expenses, in the opinion of the general education board, founded by John D. Rockefeller, expressed today in the second installment of a report outlining the plan for the board's work. Making gifts from the earnings of its $100,000,000 capital, the board says it has been guided by the following cardinal features:

"Preference for centers of wealth and population as they are the most systematic and helpful co-operation with religious denominations; concentration of gifts in the form of endowment. The board has by preference selected for assistance institutions situated within a field where students could be easily procured, where the fostering care of a prosperous community could be counted on, where an appeal for knowledge and culture could be readily stimulated and gratified. At the same time it has not overlooked other institutions, otherwise located."

BIG DEMAND EXPECTED BY THE COTTON MILLS

Lowell, Mass., December 19.—The machinery of the Tremont and Suffolk mills is being put in operation for the first time, according to an announcement today, issued by the Lowell mills. Anticipated demand for fabrics early in the coming year is given as the reason for the increase in production.

With Car Off Track, Train Runs Quarter Mile Without Wreck

Tampa, Fla., December 19.—(Special.)—The passenger car of the Florida Southern Georgia railroad, was partially wrecked last night about 9 o'clock, near Gary, 5 miles north of Tampa on the Tampa and Gulf Coast railroad. In the car at the time besides Mr. Ogleby, were Mr. Brown, president of the Tampa and Gulf Coast, Mr. Luke the general manager, E. Y. Clark, secretary of Brooks Country Industrial club, F. P. Towell, of Hamilton Springs, and the negro cook. Besides a very bad shaking up none of the occupants of the car was hurt. The car left the rails at Gary, where in the morning three box cars had been wrecked. The track had been repaired, but evidently was not in good condition. The engineer went about a quarter of a mile before discovering the car was off the track. When the train was finally stopped, the front end of Mr. Ogleby's car was on a trestle. Twenty feet more and the car would have been completely wrecked, with probable serious loss of life.

SAFETY AT SEA TREATY MAY BE RECONSIDERED

Washington, December 19.—Reconsideration by the senate of the resolution adopted last week, providing for a safety-at-sea convention will be sought early next week, it was learned tonight, because state and commerce department officials believe the resolution imposes higher standards on all shipping in American waters than those imposed by the international agreement. The subject was discussed today by Secretary Bryan, secretary of the commerce department, and Chairman Alexander, of the house merchant marine committee. Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee, talked with President Wilson and said that he had urged the resolution "practically nullifies the convention."

In urging the modifying resolution, Stone said that the pending bill contained that the treaty would interfere with that measure. Those supporting the resolution for the La Follette bill, however, were understood tonight to have concluded it would be in conflict with the convention. The substitute was framed by Representative Alexander, one of the American delegates to the London convention which drafted the treaty already accepted by most of other powers represented.

The convention and the senate resolution have been received at the white house and forwarded to the state department for transmission to London. Under the terms of the convention the ratification must be received in London by December 31. It was believed tonight this difficulty might be overcome by the adoption of the powers extending the time, in urging the ratification in his last message to congress, the president had called particular attention to this time limit. It is understood President Wilson believes the ratification is a matter of expediency and that he may take steps to inform the senate informally of his reasons.

It is possible for any senators voting for the resolution to move reconsideration of the resolution. Senator McKelvey said tonight he did not know what course would be followed.

ROCKEFELLER FIGHTS OHIO TAX ASSESSMENT

Cleveland, Ohio, December 19.—John D. Rockefeller, through counsel, today filed in federal court a petition for an injunction to restrain County Treasurer O'Brien from collecting taxes on $100,000,000 of his personal holdings by the Cuyahoga county tax commission. Mr. Rockefeller is a resident of New York state; that he maintains a residence there, and performs all the functions of citizenship in that state. Mr. Rockefeller says he ceased to be a resident of Ohio in 1885.

The petition alleges that on December 19, 1914, Mr. Rockefeller under the Treasurer O'Brien $29.64, his legal tax, and that it was refused. This amount is all Mr. Rockefeller owes Cuyahoga county in taxes, the petition states. Taxes on his personal holdings are paid regularly in New York according to the petition.

The tax on more than $100,000,000 Mr. Rockefeller is held to pay in Ohio was assessed on his Standard Oil holdings.

Tax officials contend that under the Ohio law by remaining here a greater part of a year, Mr. Rockefeller became a citizen for taxation purposes.

ARRANGEMENT SOUGHT ON COPPER SHIPMENTS

Washington, December 19.—Representatives of the western copper producing interests who called on Secretary Bryan today were informed that the British government, which has been between the United States and Great Britain, with every indication of success, whereby western copper would be allowed to be transported to Italy without detention.

Most American copper is shipped "to order" or consigned directly to belligerent countries. Consequently the British government, which has declared copper contraband, asserted the right to seize it. The nature of the understanding which has been reached between the British government and Italy which will permit the transportation of British copper to Italy by trade with Italy is not disclosed, but it is understood at the state department that the British government has guaranteed which the Italian government will extend that the copper will not reach Germany or Austria, if allowed to enter Italian ports.

PRINCETON CONSIDERS MILITARY INSTRUCTION

Princeton, N. J., December 19.—Princeton university may have a course of military instruction during the second term, if plans in order were taken definite shape. The movement started with a student petition to the faculty requesting that such a departure be made. A committee of the faculty announced that if a sufficient number of students were behind the movement, it would report favorably. Nearly 600 students have signed the paper, and it looks now as if the course would be begun in February.

If the plan goes through, the government will send an army officer here and supply rifles and ammunition. Students will buy their own uniforms. Membership in the student company will be voluntary, and will not entail compulsion in time of war. Outdoor work will be held in the spring, when extended maneuvers and other war-time conditions will be reproduced.

BEAVERS TO COMPLY WITH BOARD'S ORDER

Additional Protection to Be Afforded the City From Burglars, Beginning Monday.

Police Chief James L. Beavers, during Saturday, was making preparations to comply with the order of the seven police commissioners that the twelve members of his vice squad, and the twenty-three extra supernumerary policemen added to the force by recent action of the board, go on duty Monday night as a special patrol of the residential districts of the city to guard against burglars and robbers.

Chief Beavers would not discuss the order he received from the mayor's office Saturday at noon, but Commissioner Andy King, who instigated the special order affording special police protection to the residential sections, was present when Chief Beavers received the order, and is authority for the statement that Chief Beavers said he would comply with the order.

The special patrol is ordered to go on duty at 9 o'clock Monday night and patrol the residential districts of the north side and the south side of the city, continuously during the night until 4 o'clock the next morning.

The next special patrol is to be divided into two sections, one-half of it to work on the north side, and the other half the north side of the city. It is expected that Sergeant George Quinn, who has charge of the special patrol.

The order from the commissioners does not stipulate that Chief Beavers shall work the men in uniform or plain clothes. Commissioner King at first thought that by working the men in plain clothes more burglars and highwaymen could be captured.

This question has been left to the discretion of Chief Beavers, though he will make no statement on the question. The supernumeraries are equipping themselves with uniforms, though in which to go to work on Monday night.

BEN TAYLOR'S STORY GETS HIM 21 DAYS

Ben Taylor, negro, arrested Friday night by Officer Douglas on Decatur street, was given twenty-one days' sentence in the stockade by Recorder George E. Johnson Saturday afternoon. This is the severest sentence Recorder Johnson has imposed on a simple case of "plain drunk" without any disorderly conduct attached to it since he has been recorder.

Taylor informed Recorder Johnson that he was sent into a dive on Decatur street by three other negroes with a pint of blind tiger liquor with instructions to sell the liquor inside the dive.

"Honest to God," said Taylor to the recorder, explaining how it happened to get drunk, "my conscience wouldn't let me violate the law and sell no blind tiger liquor. When I got at de door of dat dive I just turned de pint bottle up to my mouth and drunk de whole thing."

"Twenty-one days, Ben," answered Judge Johnson, "I don't believe a word you are saying."

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Dooly

The week-end festivities have included the married and unmarried people and have recorded on the social program a series of delightful entertainments. Distinctly beautiful was the tea-dance given Friday afternoon by Mr. and Mrs. E. Murphy in the ballroom of their Peachtree home. It was a compliment to the debutante set. The honor guests were Miss Isolene Campbell, Miss Rosalie Davis and Miss Josephine Molyda. They stood with Mrs. Murphy in the rose drawing room to receive the guests and with the receiving party was Miss Gatus and Miss Julia Murphy the lovely young daughter of the household.

The ballroom was a veritable spring garden in the luxury of enchantress carnations used, baskets of pink roses, all in harmony with the mural decorations, which show garlands of roses against a pale pink background. The orchestra played inspiring dance music and the costumes of the guests were beautiful the general fashion the dress afternoon gown with hat to match.

Distinguished in her beauty was Miss Albert Howell wearing an afternoon toilet of black velvet with picture hat in black. Miss William Bailey Lemat wore a brown chiffon gown combined with cream-colored lace, finish given in a long coat of brown velvet and a velvet hat trimmed in shaded brown plumes.

Miss Isabel Robinson wore a Gobi blue crepe gown the bodice of gold brocade and shades of blue, and her black picture hat was trimmed with ermine. Miss Adrienne Ratte wore a brown velvet gown, the corsage of brown chiffon and cream lace. Miss Dorothy High wore a dancing gown of yellow crepe accordion plaited, the corsage of cream lace threaded in gold and her black hat was trimmed with yellow parade.

OTHER GOWNS. Miss Lucile Kullit wore an American Beauty, silver gown, the bodice of bronze and gold lace, with a black picture hat. Miss Jessie McKee was gowned in leather-colored crepe. Miss Margaret Grant's tea-dance gown combined white crepe with Dutch blue, the soft blouse combined at the waist with a white silk cord, and the only trimming was of rhinestone buttons. Her hat was of velvet and silver and gold lace.

HANDSOME MATRONS. Mrs. J. H. Nunnally wore a becoming gown, combining sand color with brown and her close-fitting hat was in the same shades. Mrs. Charles Danna was gowned in black velvet and silk and ribbon over champagne. Mrs. Thomas E. Hinman's gown was one of the prettiest of the season's models in dark brown, combining chiffon and ribbon over champagne.

Mrs. John M. Slaton wore taupe colored champagne, the corsage of lace and ribbon over mahogany-colored chiffon, and her black hat was trimmed with white plumes. Mrs. Robert Davis wore a sapphire blue velvet gown with a black picture hat. Mrs. Ben Lee Crew wore a dark blue velvet gown, its trimming of fur, and her black hat was trimmed with silver.

MISS BALLENGER'S PARTY. Miss Madeline Ballenger, one of the most popular in that gay set of the "future belles" and beauties was the hostess of a dancing party at the Georgian Terrace Friday evening. She was as fresh and charming as the first budding of blooms in the spring and wore a dancing gown of pale yellow. Her guests—the ladies—were in the most fashionable costumes of blue and blue and all the flower shades, and they danced with an abandon that would have delighted Terpsichora if that goddess could have been anywhere and looked on.

During the evening Miss Ethel Moulton and Mr. Robert Bell danced the Gavotte for Miss Ballenger and her guests, and their refreshments were served at the rose dining room. The chaperoning party included Mr. George Ballenger, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rhodes and Mrs. James Crawford. Mrs. Rhodes was handsome in a dancing gown of black and white tulle. Crawford wore a black tulle gown sparkling with sequins.

THE INFORMAL DANCE. The regular informal dance at the Terrace the same evening brought a bright party to the lounge, where dancing was enjoyed. Miss Moulton and Mr. Bell giving several feature dances.

A group of the debutantes present, wearing pretty demi-evening toilettes and smart hats, were Misses Isolene Campbell, Rosalie Davis, Helen McCarty, Mrs. Andrew Calhoun and Mrs. Harry English were very stylish figures in their smart gowns of black velvet. Miss Dudley Cowles wore black satin with picture hat in black. Mrs. J. C. Bonn wore with a stylish black velvet costume white fox fur, her hat of black trimmed in white paradise. Gentry wore a black satin gown with trimmings of lace. Mrs. Robert Wessels wore a pretty demi-evening toilet of black net with Russian bodice of black velvet.

Miss Sarah Bell was one of the beauties of the occasion, her costume a lisse gown in the buvette colors painted in design of flowers. Mrs. Kelly Evans wore a Parisian toilet in black champagne with tulle and ermine, and corsage of cream lace in antique design. Mrs. H. E. Harman wore a black satin gown. Miss Marian Atchison wore a smart toilet in tulle and ermine. Mrs. J. C. Hunter wore an afternoon toilet of taupe colored chiffon embroidered, her picture hat having touch of turquoise blue giving it finish.

A NOTABLE SOCIETY EVENT. A notable event in southern society was the marriage in Griffin, Thursday evening, of Miss Suzanne Grantland, only daughter of the Hon. Seaton Grantland, to Mr. Robert Wallace Tilney, of Orange, N. J.

The prominence of the bride's family, one of the oldest and most distinguished here, the south, coupled with her beauty and popularity, centered an affectionate social interest in the event, while the groom's family is one equally noted in the north. From New Jersey came his father and mother, his aunt, Miss Triney, and his sister, Mrs. Barnes.

The bride selected the conventional white satin for a wedding gown, which was softened with tulle draperies, the corsage trimmed with old lace which had been the trimming of her mother's wedding gown. The shower bouquet gave place to one colonial in design, made of lilies and gardenias, while the bouquets carried by the pretty bridesmaids were in pink roses and lilies, the gowns they wore reflecting the color of the roses, dancing party this week is quaint and lovely; the material of pale pink silk, sprinkled with bouquets of flowers in their natural colors. The skirt is plain-finished at the bottom and flurished with a cord, the bodice is defined at the waist, the little sleeves are about three inches long, and the whole is most picturesque effect. A light gray satin carries out the same fashion in a skirt, and the corsage has a flare and is defined at the lower finish. The daintiest of evening gowns for a brunette beauty to be worn during the holidays is of white charmeuse, with flounces applied in rictore fashion. The corsage has lace veiling it, and crystal sequins, and finish is given in a corsage of violets and butterfly knots of the violets catch the eye and color in a white and gold embroidery.

The popularity of sapphire blue as an afternoon color is seen in a white champagne gown, veiled in the blue chiffon, with a trimming of blue and gold embroidery.

Judge Nash Broyles Elected Head of Chi Phi Association

Nearly one hundred guests were present last night at the annual banquet of the Chi Phi Alumni association, which was held at the Georgian Terrace hotel. The occasion was voted one of the most enjoyable in the history of the association, for every effort had been made to make it a lively and entertaining event. The menu was all that could be desired, and practical jokes, fraternity songs and witty speeches made time pass away quickly. Especially beautiful were the decorations provided for the country beef-steak dinner, which was the form the annual banquet took this year. Morning glory vines hung from the ceiling and festooned the columns of the banquet room. Small shocks of corn were placed in every corner and some were on the table. Pumpkins and potatoes were also scattered here and there, and the softened glow of the shaded lights produced a most pleasing effect. After the balloting during the business session it was announced that Judge Nash R. Broyles, of the Georgia court of appeals, was elected president of the association; Dr. Joseph D. Osborne, chairman of the executive board, and T. W. Connally, chairman of the membership committee. The highest waterfall in the world is the Chocoma cascade, in the Yosemite, which is 2,364 feet high.

ATLANTA CREMATORY CALLED INCOMPLETE

Sanitary Committee Will Make This Report to Council on Monday.

That Atlanta's new $276,000 crematory is not fulfilling the contract obligations, is the substance of a report which the sanitary committee of the board of health will submit to the general council on Monday. This report indicates that the city will not take further cognizance of the New York Destructor company's demand that the city hereafter pay 53 cents a ton for all garbage destroyed in the plant. In a communication to the mayor and general council, which was read at the last meeting of council, the company called the attention of the city to the completeness of the plant and its ability to destroy garbage. The communication contained the demand "Now that our contract is clearly complete we notify you that if you wish to continue operation after December 19 you must pay us the actual cost of operation, 53 cents per ton."

No action taken yet. According to the communication, the ultimatum of the Destructor company expired on Saturday, but no action was taken by the Destructor company or its attorneys, Messrs. Davis, Spence & Moore, to close down the plant. Attorney Evans stated Saturday afternoon that the city had never replied to the communication which was addressed to the mayor and council and in which the demand was made on the city to hereafter pay the company 53 cents a ton for all garbage destroyed. He made the assurance, however, that the company will continue to operate the plant pending a decision by Judge Newman in the suit now before the federal court. Mayor Woodward and Councilman Aahles, chairman of the sanitary committee, declared Saturday that in the event the Destructor company shuts down the plant the city will immediately begin an action to force the company to remove the plant from the city's property, and proceed to collect the $125,000 already paid on the purchase price of the plant.

Won't Pay 53 Cents. Mayor Woodward says that he will never consent to pay the company 53 cents a ton for burning the garbage of the city. The company entered into a contract with the city in which it guaranteed to put up a plant capable of burning garbage at a minimum of 25 cents a ton, says the mayor. This includes the cost of labor and overhead charges. Now, since the company admits that it cannot burn garbage for less than 53 cents a ton, this is, in my opinion, an emphatic declaration that the plant is not as efficient as claimed. Attorney Evans says that the ordinary cost of operating the plant is 25 cents a ton, and explains that the reason the company is demanding 53 cents a ton from the city is because it is forced to keep a corps of expert engineers and other workmen on the job to prevent damage to the plant.

BIG CROP OF WHISKERS PREDICTED FOR GEORGIA

Out of 4,500 Barbers Only 300 Have So Far Applied for Licenses.

"From the present indications," says B. E. Limbaugh, chairman of the state board of barber examiners, "Georgia is going to grow the biggest crop of whiskers in her history next year, because her citizens will be a barberless race."

Mr. Limbaugh arrives at this prediction through the fact that out of some 4,500 barbers in Georgia, only about 300 have so far made application for license as facial front lawn mowers for the year 1915. The new "better barbers' law," passed by the last session of the legislature, will go into effect January 1. After that date any barber doing business without a license lays himself liable to prosecution as for a misdemeanor, which means he may be fined anywhere from $10 to $50 or may spend from five to thirty days behind the bars, where he may reflect at length upon the advantages of having a barber's license. "This law," says Mr. Limbaugh, "applies to barbers and proprietors alike. Both must have licenses, and any proprietor employing a barber who has not the proper license is liable to have his own license revoked by the board." Aside from the aforementioned inconveniences incident to attempting to ply the barber's trade without license after January 1, the securing of licenses before that date has some decided advantages. The price of a license before the first of the year is $2, and entails no examination. After that date the price will be $5, which will give a barber a 90-day permit until he can stand the necessary examination. Eagles and parrots are among the longest lived of the birds.

"THE SPOILERS" RETURN TO THE GRAND THEATER

"David Copperfield" and Rex Beach's Great Romance Announced for This Week.

Because of the sensation created recently during the initial showing in Atlanta of "The Spoilers," by Rex Beach, the management of the Grand theater, which put on the original production, has decided to heed the general demand for a return engagement of this remarkable film and will put on "The Spoilers" with the same holiday attraction at that popular playhouse. It will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday matinees and evenings this week at the Grand's standard prices—5 cents for matinees and 10 cents in the evening. This same production, in nine excitingly realistic scenes, has for two months past been playing to capacity houses in Philadelphia, where motion picture patrons are being charged as high as 50 cents each for seats.

Coincident with this announcement by the Grand theater comes another of importance to motion picture patrons and to lovers of the immortal Dickens. Tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday matinees and evenings will be shown, for the first time, the masterpiece of Charles Dickens—"David Copperfield." There is an opportunity to get an insight into the real character of young David, and the splendidly produced and acted scenes of this great novel have been immortalized in the film. The settings were all made in England, in the very neighborhoods of Yarmouth, and Salem and at "Cherry Tree" which Dickens immortalized. The costume is all true to life, and every phase of the great novel has been visualized in this truly remarkable film.

Rex Beach's great American romance, "The Spoilers," indicates that fiction may have a higher art than fact; for in addition to telling a gripping story, he has reflected certain phases of civilization's advance that will never come again. Without question this country has experienced the last of the great "gold rushes"—those picturesque and frenzied pilgrimages that commenced with the discovery of a vein and were continued with the voyage over the plains in 49 and the toilsome march to the Klondike and into Arctic-touched Nome, in Alaska. It may be recalled in the book that the miners, who had sought, under false pretenses, to obtain control of the famous Midas mine, in revenge destroyed by the great mine and its surrounding camp. Blast after blast of dynamite is put under the buildings and into the veins, and there follow explosions that have been recorded in the film with a motion picture. The book calls for a number of scenes taken in the driving rain. These, too, have been made true to life, the actors having been kept at the camp for three solid weeks before they came along a rain storm of sufficient force to meet the requirements of the producers.

The run-play in the streets of Nome, the resort to the police, the tense and feverish crowds that hang over the scene, all have been brought to life in this big drama of realities.

There isn't a moment in the entire play that is not a scene that has a stir and quicken the pulse and at the same time hold one in a clutch of excitement that makes you wish, when the last reel is put on, that you were going to see it all over again. One of these productions that leave an

"ZUDORA" TOMORROW AT THE STRAND

Those who have followed "Zudora" through the mystic mazes of the past four episodes in "Thanos's" great serial, will experience new thrill in the fifth episode, which will be shown at The Strand Monday.

A special KeyStone transformation begins that will equal that of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and will keep one guessing and mystified through the night, which is the grand climax of the great serial for the first part.

A special KeyStone comedy in two parts will be a feature Wednesday. It is "Fatty and Minnie He Haw," and it is absolutely irresistible when it comes to fun.

It will be the policy of The Strand in the future to present a varied program of at least five reels every day. This program will be taken from the Mutual Film series and given The Strand the first choice of the entire release. No experiments will be made with features and no picture will get farther than the first showing from the machine that is not fully up to the standard that The Strand has set for its patrons.

Hybar Company Grows.

Coincident with the celebration Saturday of its two weeks' birthday, the Hybar Film company announced that because of the enormous increase in its business, it had decided to lease the entire fifth floor of the Forsyth building. It starts Monday with forty-three of the biggest releases in the field of motion pictures. Nine international corporations are now represented through the Hybar office, which has the exclusive right to their output in seven southern states.

Arthur S. Hyman, president of the Hybar company, just returned from New York, where he completed arrangements for control of a syndicate of big theaters throughout the south. Through the enterprise of the Hybar company, Atlanta becomes the big distributing center for motion picture features in the south.

WILLIAM FARNUM IN "SIGN OF THE CROSS"

William Farnum, the prominent American star, and an exceptionally able supporting company, including hundreds of people, are presented in the famous Players Film company's mammoth five-part production of Wilson Barrett's sublime and famous drama, "The Sign of the Cross," the paramount feature at the Montgomery on Monday and Tuesday.

The film makes a most abiding impression in the pictures of the inspired martyrs going gladly to their death and the man, aton in faith and love, everything is so beautifully felt, so simply conceived, so classically treated, that the appeal of the subject is overpowering.

The noble theme, the masterly handling, the reverence for sacred things, the solemn pathos, the tender symbolism, the classic reserve of the subject, all have all been dealt upon with generous eulogy by writers of every school and divine of every faith. It is felt that, as a work of art, the true universality of Christian worship has been expressed with unimagined power.

The superb construction of the photoplay, the immense numbers that throw the scenes, the continuous appeal to the emotions, the sympathy with which the various characterizations have been delineated, distinguish the subject, and make it one that will never be forgotten.

William Farnum as Marcus Superbus, supplies the greatest characterization of his brilliant career. Rosina Henley as Marcia, the Christian maid, symbolizes all the firm faith and heroic courage with which that character is endowed. As Beronice, a patrician Roman woman, Ethel Gray Torry conducts herself commendably. Sheridan Block makes a cruel but truthful Nero, and Lila Barclay ably symbolizes all the selfishness and vainglorious attitude of Poppaea, his wife. Georgina Majeroni as Agrippina, and Klenna de Corvoza as Philomenus are artistic and effective in their roles, and Owen Child proves a powerful and sympathetic rendition of the tortured Christian boy. All the other characters are consistently able in their interpretations, and the cast may be said to be one of the most notable ever included in a film production.

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday the Montgomery announces Mary Pickford in "Cinderella."

Joseph Gollomb.

In the picture "Only a Miller's Daughter," they borrowed Joseph Gollomb's typewriter for the office scene. In the squabble which the story called for the typewriter was accidentally dropped to the floor, which resulted in its being returned to the scenario department rather than the worse for wear. He asserts that his feelings are slightly damaged.

The Master Key

Mr. Wilson, the author of "The Master Key," has surpassed himself in the dramatic construction of the Universal serial photo-play. His admirers who have read "The Land Claimers," "Across the Latitude," "The Man Who Came Back" and "Princess of Sorry Valley" are unanimous in their opinion that "The Master Key" for virtue, dramatic value far surpasses his previous works.

The Universal has given Mr. Wilson carte blanche in the construction of his drama. No matter what the locale required, no matter what feat the scenario calls for, the Universal is prepared to fulfill the demands of the author. True, the ingenuity of the company's Pacific coast directors and actors is being taxed to the utmost in the staging of sensational feats never tried before, but in the bright lexicon of the Universal there is no such phrase as "it can't be done."

With each succeeding reel this interesting serial gains in dramatic intensity. Climax piles upon climax with genuine Universal profusion, and the spectator is barely permitted to grasp one breath-stopping sensation before he is hurried into a still more thrilling adventure.

Cleo Madison.

Cleo Madison has just added another stunning creation to her extensive wardrobe, and she promises to wear it in her very next picture. It is of rose pink taffeta, trimmed with pale blue satin, venise lace and pink and gold rosebuds. We shall look forward to seeing Miss Madison, who has endeared herself to all movie fans by her remarkable work in "The Trolley of Hearts," in her new gown.

CHRISTMAS TOYS FOR "KIDS" AT ALPHA

An Innovation Planned by Manager Fowler for This Coming Week.

And now Al Fowler, manager of the Alpha, has caught the Christmas spirit. He started the ball a-rolling last night by acting as host to all his friends and fellow moving picture employers and employees at a little party given at the Alpha.

This week is going to be a great week for the "kiddies." Every boy or girl who attends the theater during the week will be presented free with a pretty souvenir Christmas toy. Away back in the str. room old Santa Claus has left hundreds and hundreds of novel little toys of all kinds which will be given out to make the little children happy.

This is certainly going to make the Alpha the most popular house in Atlanta with the boys and girls.

Marie Walcamp.

A leopard recently endangered the life of Marie Walcamp of the 1st Bison company, when it sprang at her and barely missed the movie actress' shoulder.

Tabernacle's New Pastor Is a Keen Lover of Sports

Dr. J. L. White Played Ball Himself, and Is the Father of Four Star Athletes.

DR. J. L. WHITE,
Pastor who is firm believer in athletic sports.

Macon, Ga., December 19.—(Special.) In gaining Dr. J. L. White, of Macon, as pastor of the Atlanta Baptist Tabernacle, Atlanta not only gets a first-class preacher, but a strong supporter of outdoor sports as well. Not only is Dr. White a good sport himself, but he has four sons, all of whom are taking a prominent part in southern sports.

Macon has long had a little group of ministers of the gospel, who would rather go without their dinners than miss a baseball game and so football has been their attendance on the Sally league games in the past that about a year ago it attracted the attention of Bishop Chandler and at the meeting of the South Georgia Methodist conference held here, he preached a sermon on "ministers neglecting their duties for baseball."

Being a member of the Baptist conference and not the Methodist conference, of course, this was not aimed at Dr. White. Dr. White used to be a baseball player himself, being a member of Wake Forest (North Carolina). Football was an unknown quantity in those days, at least as it is played now, but there were other forms of college sports and Dr. White took a prominent part in all of them.

His experience with athletics in college convinced him that it would be a good thing for his own boys to indulge in them and he has encouraged them in every way possible. During the season just closed all four of Dr. White's sons were members of football teams and their athletic inclinations followed their father's closely, never failing to call the newspaper officers after each game to find out the result.

Russell, the youngest son of the new Atlanta minister, is a student at the Lanier High school in Macon, and in addition to being one of the star football players of that institution during the past season, is also a star at baseball and basketball.

FIRESTONE TIRES WILL BE USED BY COOPER

Veteran of Many Motor Classics Pays Visit to the Factory.

Earl Cooper, veteran of many motor classics, visited Akron, Ohio, December 10 and 11 to purchase Firestone tires for his next season's races. His personal visit was also prompted by the desire to learn how the Firestone factory makes the tires which have, by their past performance, caused him to stake his faith in them for next season's races.

Cooper is one of the top-notchers among speed kings, having distinguished himself many times in the past two years. The Montana Road race at Tacoma on July 5, 1913, was one of Cooper's prize packages. On August 3, 1913, he also won the Santa Monica race, driving 445 miles at the rate of 75.5 miles per hour. Barney Oldfield won second place in this race. The annual Coronado race, on September 3, 1913, was another one of Cooper's triumphs, when he drove 250 miles on a high-crowned track at the rate of 74.5 miles per hour.

He entered the international speedway event at Indianapolis last decoration day, but an accident compelled him to drop out early in the race. Cooper has many other victories and near-victories to his credit.

Cooper is scheduled to engage Barney Oldfield in a 50-mile race at Presque Isle, Pa., on December 27, to settle a friendly rivalry between them. The prize will be a gold horseshoe. This unique trophy is the result of many months of good-natured repartee between the two. When Cooper beat Barney at Santa Monica, Barney accused him of stealing his good luck horseshoe. Since then, this imaginary horseshoe has been a friendly bone of contention between them until they finally decided to have it out. Barney also uses Firestone tires.

Cooper will race at San Diego on January 9. From San Diego he will go to San Francisco to compete in the Vanderbilt cup race on the Panama Pacific exposition grounds, February 22, also the grand prize race on the same track on February 27. He expects to again try his skill on the Indianapolis speedway race Decoration day, as well as the Sioux City race on July 4.

TRAINING CAMP GIVEN TO N. Y. NATIONALS

New York, December 19.—The New York National league club today became the first baseball club to own its own training camp, when it received a deed from the city of Marlinton, Texas, giving full title to Emerson park, in Marlinton, where the Giants have done their spring work since 1908. The property came as a gift, under an agreement between the late President John D. Brush and the Marlinton Commercial club, in which the city of Marlinton agreed to make the New York club a present of the ball park, provided they traded there without interruption for seven years.

Has Great Record

By Billy Evans.
1907.
Joining the Washington club late in the season, without ever having had any minor league experience, Walter Johnson made a remarkable showing in the American league. In point of effectiveness he led the pitchers so far as run-getting was concerned. In fourteen games he allowed only thirty-three runs and ninety-five hits, an average of less than seven hits and 2.36 runs per game. He won five and lost nine games with a club that was a rank tail-ender.

1908.
Johnson broke even on the season, winning fourteen and losing the same number, a percentage of .500; considerably better than that attained by his club. He established a shut-out record for successive days by blanking New York three times in a row. On September 4 he beat the Yankees 3 to 0, on September 6 he won 6 to 0, on September 7 he was victorious 4 to 0.

1909.
Despite a most wonderful season of pitching, he won only thirteen games and lost twenty-five. He allowed an average of less than three runs and seven hits per game, yet could win only thirteen contests. The reason is shown in the record of his club for the season, forty-two games won and 110 lost. The Washington club was a very weak aggregation.

1910.
Johnson hung up the remarkable strike-out record of 313 for the season, closely rivaling Babe Vaddell's feat of whiffing 343 in 1904. On July 3 Johnson struck out the first seven St. Louis batters to face him. In the first three innings he struck out eight men. On August 31 he struck out fourteen St. Louis players in a nine-inning game. With a club that finished under the 500 mark he won twenty-five and lost seventeen games, a great showing. He pitched two one-hit games, two two-hit games and two three-hit games.

1911.
Led the league in strike-outs with 255, and won twenty-three games and lost fifteen, for a mark of .605, while his club played only .416 baseball.

1912.
Led the league in strike-outs with 303. Won thirty-two games and lost twelve, for a percentage of .727, while his club attained only a .599 mark. Won the longest game of the season, 5 to 4, from the Athletics on September 27. He relieved Groom in this game with the score a tie, 4 to 4, and held the Athletics scoreless for ten innings, Washington winning out in the nineteenth inning. Equaled the American league record with sixteen straight victories.

Led the league in games won with thirty-six victories to his credit and only seven defeats, also led in shut-outs with twelve over his opponents. Went fifty-six innings without having a run scored against him, going from the opening of the season on April 19 to May 11. Had a fielding average of 1.000 in fifty-one games.

who handed Walter the roughest. In the seventh inning of the game on August 21 he tied up the game with a home run, and in the fourteenth sent Walter down to defeat with another wallop for the circuit. Perhaps the most unexpected defeat of the season happened on August 25. The game was played at Washington; Detroit was the opposing club. It was a very dark day and rain was falling lightly when the contest started. Washington needed the game badly to finish third in the race, and was figured Johnson would surely score a victory, with everything so strongly in his favor. The day was so dark the hitting of Johnson's speed appeared an impossibility, so Jennings used Reynolds. Reynolds came through in most impressive fashion and beat the Nationals 2 to 1.

Season's Record Against Rookies.
Following is a record of the defeats Johnson suffered at the hands of the different recruit pitchers. The list shows in seven games he was beaten by one run, in four games his teammates were sent out, while two were extra inning battles. The scores and the pitchers:

- April 28—Athletics 2, Washington 1; Wyckoff.
- May 1—Athletics 7, Washington 0; Ewing Bush.
- June 1—Boston 1, Washington 0; Rankin Johnson.
- June 11—Cleveland 4, Washington 0; Beyman.
- July 17—Cleveland 3; Washington 1; Collins.
- July 26—St. Louis 4; Washington 1; James.

(thirteen innings); Wolfgang. September 28—Philadelphia 3, Washington 2; Wyckoff. September 30—Philadelphia 3, Washington 2; Pennock. The record of victories over the youngsters shows seven games in which he had only a one-run margin, indicating some strenuous battles; in four games, he scored shut-outs, while in two he had to go extra innings to win. EVERY THIRD MACHINE USES GOODYEAR TIRES

Every third car manufactured in the United States for 1915 will be equipped with Goodyear tires. This announcement is made by the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, after careful analysis of the situation. More new cars will be equipped with Goodyears in 1915 than with any other make. "Manufacturers estimate that about 625,000 cars will be produced with the next year," says Sales Manager G. M. Stadelman. "This number includes gasoline and electric pleasure cars and light commercial cars equipped with pneumatic tires. Approximately 295,000 will start their careers on Goodyear tires, close to a million tires being required for this phase of the company's business alone. "More than half the number of cars will use 'No-Rim-Cuts' exclusively. Indeed, practically all of them will be equipped with rims that will permit the use of no other tire. Over 85,000 new cars will display the famous Goodyear All-Weather tread on rear wheels as regular equipment—an added refinement not only from the standpoint of appearance, but of utility as well. "Competition for this factory business is most severe. We regard it as a fine tribute to Goodyear quality and prestige that from so many different makes, one tire should be selected to equip so large a part of America's new cars. To us it indicates also the wide extent of Goodyear popularity among motorists, for in the last analysis the manufacturer of any line strives to supply in his product the features the public wants."

BETTER TO KEEP AUTO IN SERVICE IN WINTER

It is far better to keep the automobile in service throughout the entire winter than it is to put it in storage. The cars now built are constructed so as to be equally as serviceable during cold weather as during the warm summer months," states S. A. Pezani, of the Pezani Motor company, distributor in this territory for the Harness America's First Car. "When a storage battery is allowed to stand for any length of time it gradually becomes discharged, even when no current is being used. It is absolutely necessary to charge the battery every two or three weeks during the period of non-use if the battery is to come through the storage undamaged, and some arrangement must be provided for charging the battery. Either the engine in the car may be allowed to remain idle, or the battery may be taken to a charging station. As long as the car is kept in actual use, there should be no need of this extra attention, if the car is given the battery. "When an automobile is stored through the winter, the oil and grease has a tendency to gum up and become solid, especially at points where it is spread out in thin films. Corrosion takes place at many points and there is a general deterioration. It is not in the spring after it has been stored unless it is given a complete overhaul, and this is an expensive proposition. The same condition prevails in an automobile as in any finely adjusted machine. "The leading designers take into account the fact that an automobile should properly be an all-year car by providing suitable protection for winter use. The electric charging motor will start a cold engine that would refuse to start if cranked by hand. The engine is turned over more readily by hand when it is turned over by hand. Also, from the economical side, it is better to keep the machine in service where it is producing results, than it is to allow it to lose its service by allowing it to stand idle for several months."

KILBANE MAY QUIT FEATHERWEIGHTS

Champion Is Outgrowing the Division—Bout With Joe Mandot Was a Test Affair.

By JAMES J. CORBETT.
(Former Heavyweight Champion of the World.)

New York, December 19.—(Special.) Featherweight Champion Johnny Kilbane's first attempt to upset the popular theory that a good big man can always beat a good little man was more successful, according to the various viewpoints and prejudices of the spectators. While the decision was given a draw with his heavier opponent, several accounts of the battle intimated that the decision was hardly fair to Mandot. Then there are others, possibly influenced by friendship or local prejudice, who assert that it was Kilbane's fight all the way.

However, the question arises whether or not Kilbane has accomplished what he set out to do—to determine if he has a chance with the best of the 133-pound class. It was for that reason Kilbane did not select a soft target for his task of breaking in as a lightweight, for in Mandot's recent fight with the featherweight champion was unquestionably one of the best boys in that division.

Joe King, been boxing in better form the last year than at any time in his career. He has learned apparently the most of the game, and has discarded his former habit of mixing it with his fists and head hitting opponents. Mandot is a fast and a scientific boxer, and thus equipped ought to hold his own over any of the featherweight rounds with the best in the division.

Kilbane's Plans Doubtful. Whether Kilbane is satisfied with the showing he made against Mandot will be evident in his future matchmaking. For it is a well-known fact that Johnny has for some time entertained the intention of retiring from the ranks of the featherweights, as the task of making weight required him to undergo an exceedingly arduous and laborious if not an impossible one. Therefore, his future movements in the matchmaking line will be watched closely by his rivals among the featherweights as well as the fans throughout the country.

Should Kilbane go ahead with his plans for invading the lightweight class and endeavoring to become the champion of the division, he will have accomplished something none of his predecessors was successful at, although many of them have attempted the feat at different times in the past few decades. The only instance I can recall of a featherweight champion defeating decisively the recognized lightweight titleholder was Frank Erne at Madison Square Garden in 1900.

But in that battle Erne, while naturally a better fighter than any of the featherweights of that division, was compelled to make something like 125 pounds ringside, and was so weak from the effort that he was in no shape to attempt the run of "Terrible Terry." Several times during his career, McGovern took inordinate pains to get McGovern's notable among his achievements was the defeat of Joe Gans in two rounds at Chicago a few months after his success over Erne.

But as a great deal of nasty talk was going on about the fight, the glory arising from such a feat. Whether there was anything crooked about it or not I have not any idea, but I do know it stands on record that McGovern knocked Gans out in less than two rounds.

Attell a Sample. Abe Attell was another featherweight titleholder who frequently went into the ring with the best of his credit it must be said he generally made good. Abe and Bat Nelson fought a 15-round draw in San Francisco only a few months before Bat beat Gans for the lightweight title. So if no further evidence was displayed in his brilliant record it could be judged from this battle alone that Attell was a great little scrapper, and might, had he inspired to it, have won the highest honors in the lightweight class.

Kilbane's abdication as featherweight champion, if it should come about, may change the map of the smaller pugilistic divisions. With Johnny out of the ring, it is likely that Williams would hasten his decision to abandon the bantam class in favor of the division higher up and announce his candidacy for Kilbane's crown.

As for the predicament of Kilbane among the featherweights, it is with Williams in the bantam division. One hundred and twenty-two pounds ringside would suit the aggressive Baltimore Dane much better than 116, the recognized bantam limit. However, Kilbane's retirement from the featherweight class will result in many other claimants for the honors besides Williams.

It will be a similar scramble for the honors to that which has featured the middleweight division since the death of Stanley Ketchel, and might result in several years of wrangling before a satisfactory solution could be arrived at. Williams, of course, would draw the weight line closely at 122 pounds, while George Chenev and the other featherweights would, of course, want for a more liberal interpretation of the weight limit.

It is likely that Williams has met in the past, when both were in the bantam class, and in fact, were for a long time in the same stable. In the last year Chenev has taken on considerable poundage, and has also acquired at the same time one of the healthiest wallops known among the featherweights. A meeting between Chenev and the sturdy Williams at or near the 122-pound mark would be a scrap worth going miles to see.

Kilbane's decision to remain in the featherweight ranks or to shy his castor into the lightweight ring will be awaited with a great deal of interest.

Here Is a Black Cat Story From the Savannah Races

Do you believe in signs, witches, riding broomsticks in the shadows of the moon, black cats, or if a black cat crosses your path on a moonlight night, get lucky or unlucky?

Here's a black cat story from Savannah, which has started an argument who has gone across the continent and the question as to whether it was a sign of good luck or bad luck still remains unsettled.

Joe Walters, who ran second in the Savannah grand prize race, swears that a black cat is a jinx, and in a sure sign of bad luck. Alva Stratton, Harley-Davidson rider, who broke the lap record on the Savannah course, covering the last 11 miles at an average of 49 seconds to the mile, says black cats are lucky; that it is a sign of warning to be careful. However, the antics of a black cat in the Harley-Davidson camp were queer, as the following will prove.

When the mechanics arrived in Savannah ten days previous to the big race, they rented an empty storeroom to be used for uncrating and crating the racing machines, also for the storage of tools and equipment. The Harley-Davidson camp was on the inside and one of the outside. Near the window on the inside of the shop was a big box filled with excelsior, and on the outside was a big garbage box belonging to the city containing waste and scraps. On the day before the race early in the morning shortly after the watchman had gone home and Mr. Moore, the chief mechanic of the Harley-Davidson camp, was on the inside of the shop he glanced out and saw that the chief mechanic of the camp had caught fire, and was blazing fiercely.

Young Kelly was present and grabbed the fire extinguisher and put the fire out. The watchman who was on the outside came along shortly afterwards and stated that he had driven away the same black cat from that box several times during the night. Mud Gardner says that a black cat is a warning to be careful, consequently is an omen of good luck. Joe Walters says it is a jinx and bad luck. What do you think?

This was on Friday, November 13. The day before the race, the chief mechanic's awful fall; Mud Gardner was badly crippled and bruised, and the escape of both of them from that infernal deal was miraculous. Three days before the big Savannah race the same black cat one hour 39 minutes and 53 seconds, at an average of 81.1 miles per hour. The fastest lap of the two days run was the next to the last, the four hundred and eleventh, which was negotiated in 22.17 an average of sixty-three and eighty-three hundredths miles per hour.

The official figures on elapsed time, including all stops for the ten hundred and thirty miles, follow:

F. E. Edwards and Chester S. Ricker, with a number of prominent automobile engineers, formed the technical committee, which made a detailed examination of the car at the Technical Saturday morning. They report every mechanical detail in excellent condition and Mr. F. E. Edwards stated: "This car seems to have run several thousand miles more of record breaking."

CATCH CRIME CAR AFTER LONG CHASE

Where Police and Detectives Fail, Factory Service Plan Succeeds.

After a highly adventurous month during which it had left across 5 states, according to Little Rock, Ark., officers, a trail of grand and petty larceny, jumped board bills and cracked safes, a stolen Studebaker automobile has been returned to its owner, and the three men who wore its passengers are now in custody.

The car was stolen in Atlanta and recovered in Little Rock. Though police and private detectives had thoroughly combed the entire South Atlantic section for it, the recovery came about through the efficient method by which the Studebaker service department traces stolen automobiles, through the medium of its field organization.

As a touring exploit, the dash across the central south stands probably in the record books. Realizing that efforts were undoubtedly in progress to recover the car, its owner, the entire trip of nearly 800 miles by unfrequented routes, and largely by night, trunk highway, in that part of the south are, at the best, ordinary dirt roads. Deviation from them is seldom attempted.

Mr. Polk noted immediately that sandpaper had been used to obliterate someone's initials on the door panels. His suspicions aroused, he looked for the distinguishing marks and compared them with his Studebaker records. The identification was complete. He informed the police, the men were arrested and A. E. Sterne, owner of the car, was notified. He arrived the next day and identified his property, which, he noted, was in good condition, and carried considerable added equipment, which, he believes, had been fished along the way.

Mr. Sterne said he would never have gotten us through," he told Mr. Sterne.

Backed His Buick in the Office And Made It Print a Newspaper

Down in Marble Falls, Texas, they publish The Messenger every week to let the natives know all the gossip in town. If the subscribers do not get their papers Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock sharp the editor is very apt to come to grief.

About 2 o'clock on press day not long ago Editor Faubion was shaking in his boots. Electric power is used to print The Messenger, but on this particular day there was no "juice." Owing to high water in the river the city power plant was shut down.

Editor Faubion had tried to buy, rent or borrow an engine to run the press, but his efforts were in vain. The clock said 2:30; Faubion raved and tore his hair. But quick as a flash an idea came to him. Why not press into service his model '93 Buick? This he did, but let Editor Faubion tell how the Buick saved the day.

"We ran the auto into the office, backed it up to the press, jacked up one rear wheel, took the fire off, ran the belt from the motor direct to the car wheel, started the engine and began to grind off an edition of 'The Messenger.' In this way we ran for three hours and 400 copies in about forty minutes. Thus you see Buick automobiles can be made useful in more ways than one and save editors from the wrath of angry subscribers."

"THE OLD RELIABLE" PLANTEN'S C & C BLACK CAPSULES REMEDY FOR MEN

NEW RECORD IS MADE FOR 1,000-MILE TRIP

Marmon "41" Averages 55.8 Miles Per Hour Despite the Weather Conditions.

With clock-like regularity and running as sweetly as at the start, the Marmon "Forty-One" touring car flashed past the thousand-mile mark on the Indianapolis motor speedway, Friday evening, establishing a new and wonderful record of performance.

The actual running time for the thousand miles was 17 hours 45 minutes 4.3 seconds, an average of 55.8 miles per hour. The car sped past the thousand-mile mark at faster than 60 miles an hour it was given the signal to continue and records were made up to 1,030 miles. At this mark the average elapsed time, including all stops, for the entire distance was 22 hours 22 minutes, an average of 50.2 miles per hour.

Between the hundred and hundred and tenth mile on Thursday morning, over an hour was lost by the fuel lines freezing and the elapsed time average dropped to 33.4 miles per hour. After this the car was fitted in a constant battle against the elements for over nine hundred miles. At close to a sixty-mile-an-hour average it sped into the winter blast and the next hour, and hundred after hundred of miles, brought the elapsed time average up to 40 and 45 and finally above 50 miles per hour.

Temperature Below Freezing. The performance of this car with full equipment, carrying two passengers and with windshield raised, cannot be adequately pictured. At all times during the 500-mile run Thursday and the 500 miles on Friday, the temperature was 20 degrees below freezing.

Vere Barnes, Joe Dawson's mechanic, in the last 500 miles race, and Ted Collier, of the Marmon testing force, drove the car throughout and no tribute can be strong enough to these men who held the car to above a sixty-mile average during the Great Part of the thousand miles in the face of a freezing wind. The mechanics were C. C. Woods and Peter Patterson, of the Woods auto organization.

The car used was the same Marmon which established an hour record of 69 miles per hour with top and windshield up, carrying five passengers on the Speedway the week before. The same tires which went through the previous test and have been used on other occasions, the only wheels and but two tire changes were necessary. No special racing equipment was used on this equipment, the only being regular touring car stock equipment. There was absolutely no mechanical trouble of any kind, except the exception of a valve spring broken on the 377th lap. The entire test was timed by the special electrical timing device under the direction of John Cox, Theodore Myers, Fred Wellman and Henry Knippenberg, of the Woods and Chester S. Ricker, technical representatives of the A. A. A. and Indianapolis Speedway, had charge of the entire test.

46.35 Miles Average. The average for the five hundred miles on Thursday total elapsed time was 10 hours 45 minutes. For the five hundred miles on Friday, total elapsed time average, 44.19 miles per hour. The last one hundred miles was covered in

Francis Ouimet Is Ranked First of Amateur Golfers; Evans's Given Second Place

EDITOR'S NOTE.—The following story of the leading amateur golfers of America, printed in The New York Sunday Tribune last Sunday, should be of particular interest to Atlanta golfers in view of the fact that Francis Ouimet and Chick Evans were ranked one and two. They will be in Atlanta this week.

Who are the country's leading amateur golfers? After nearly a year of competitive activity, beginning in the south last week with an annual tournament at Lakewood, players have been continuously "showing their wares," so to speak, but while their efforts in minor or local contests naturally call for serious consideration, it is really the national championships to which the critic should turn his attention when seeking to get the class of the lot.

In the absence of an official list it has long been the writer's annual custom to rate the players, preferring to name those who, in his judgment, are the first sixteen. Judging by the way some rush to the national titles, their calculations are based solely on the championships. Frequently much of importance is lost in the shuffle of United States Golf association affairs, which is one reason why this list never appears in the national press.

There are those who only consider the players from year to year, a plan that is not to be commended, it is the opinion of the public eye he is, of course, handicapped with a handicap of the event of his absence extending over a long period, say for two or three years, the handicap is not to leave him out of one's calculations.

As a result of the opening of the national amateur and open championships, students of form find themselves confused by the way in which the players are ranked. In other words, Francis Ouimet won the amateur title, while Chick Evans won the open title. The association champion, came within an ace of capturing the open crown. Had Evans won the open title, the story to tell, and to be considered, is that he certainly deserves the distinction of again heading the list.

Francis Ouimet, the golfer who has a great record—last year winning the open and this year the amateur. Besides making a name for himself in the Massachusetts championship, to say nothing of a number of his brilliant victories, he approaches the ideal golfer nearer than any one yet developed in this country. He is a player who has all one to him. There is not a club in his bag that he cannot play in most appropriate style.

It has generally been admitted that in sizing up a golfer due consideration should be given to his record, and not to the number of his performances are made. More credit should go with a number of brilliant victories, and some layout abounding in a succession of loveliness holes. Ouimet scored most of his brilliant victories in the latter part of his career, and it is worthy of mention that during six months of competitive activity this year he averaged a score of 70.5, which is below 30 for all his records.

Chick Evans as good a match as he is a medal player, one would have to ponder long in seeking for a first choice. He has won the open title at Midlothian gained for him a host of new admirers, but it should not be forgotten that his efforts are always made on western courses. His short game, so apt to go to pieces when playing on eastern greens, is steady enough at home.

The strain of match play invariably fits the golfer, and Evans has shown his armor. Evans has only to point to his putting when asked to explain most of his brilliant victories. He has won the amateur championships. Possessed of a beautiful style and an accuracy with both hand and club, he is a player who is as to call for the highest praise from the critics abroad, it seems a pity that Evans is not a player who has a better match play temperament. Even so, Evans deserves second place on this year's list.

English Favored Travers. Jerome D. Travers is clearly entitled to next consideration. Like Ouimet, he went abroad in the spring in quest of foreign honors. All were unsuccessful, but he has proved himself a golfer of whom Travers lost in his first match it is worthy of recalling that the Englishman has never been defeated in making him the favorite among the visitors. In fact, the odds quoted favored that Travers would be defeated as one of the resident leaders.

Reference to his attempt on the other side of the Atlantic, it is seen how highly Travers' game is regarded over there besides suggesting that his reputation should not be allowed to suffer so severely because of his failure to do better at Sandwich by competing with the best of the world, both the Metropolitan and New Jersey titles, and upon his return home, to play in the few weeks of the summer, when he went to Schenectady for his first and only tournament in the United States Golf association meeting at Ekwanok.

After winning appreciatively over the links of the Mohawk club, Jerry prepared for Manchester. He got into the best of conditions and upon his wooden clubs were working satisfactorily. After defeating Eben M. Byers, who has proved himself a golfer of Evans, Travers worked his way to the final. The mechanical accuracy of his shots and the few weeks of the summer, when he went to Schenectady for his first and only tournament in the United States Golf association meeting at Ekwanok.

CADILLAC PLEASES INMAN

Edward H. Inman is shown in this picture entering his new 8-cylinder 1915 Cadillac coupe. Mr. Inman, who has had a great deal of experience in driving high-class cars of various makes, considers the new Cadillac "Eight" one of the smoothest running engines he has ever seen.

M'FARLAND BEST OF LIGHTWEIGHTS

By James J. Corbett.

New York, December 19.—(Special).—A "light fan" asks me to publish in this column my "rating" of the leading lightweights of the country. My correspondent possibly does not appreciate the amount of trouble I am liable to get into by attempting to make such a rating. I am personally acquainted with, and enjoy the friendship of, most of the little fellows, and would not like to do or say anything that might hurt their feelings or those of their managers.

Still, on second thought, one can hardly mention the name of a boxer's rival without doing him some injustice. I would begin with Eddie McFarland, who, I believe, outclasses the rest of the bunch. Next would come Willie Ritchie, and then Freddie Welsh in the order named.

In a bunch, and close on the quartet mentioned, come Y. White, Mandot and Young Saylor; all together, as lightweights would put it, they would follow Gilbert Gallant, Leach Cross and Joe Rivers.

Farland at the head of the class. That's where he figures. The only question that I would like to ask is, "What can he do, if he is so good?" Ritchie, despite the fact that Freddie Welsh has his title, is a very lucky happening for Welsh, and would be well to look out for any other encounter any time or any place.

Britton in Hard Luck. Jack Britton, one of the hardluck members of the brigade, has been up to Ritchie, although Willie has already scored a four-round victory over the champion. Next in order comes Freddie Welsh, the present world's light-weight champion by grace of Referee and the man who is prevailing in the leading boxing circles.

Sluggers in Hard Luck. Saylor all look like promising youngsters, and out of this bunch may come the next champion. Glover proved himself a dangerous man in bouts with Leach Cross, although my opinion, from close observation, is that he lacks the class to become champion. Leach Cross, always a but shy of top notch, has come back fast. His recent battles were away below par. Joe Rivers has not put up his best since Ritchie knocked him out. He seems to have completely lost form.

I have omitted from my list some boxers who may be worth while, and in answer to any charges of favoritism in my selections, I wish to say that I have only named the more prominent boxers, and those who are familiar. If I have overlooked any possible "coming champion," it is because they have not yet shown enough to rate them with the dozen lightweights mentioned above.

Paying for Vera Cruz. Washington, December 19.—Secretary Garrison today asked for an urgent appropriation of $554,371, for transportation of the army to Vera Cruz. The appropriation would be in addition to the current allowance for transportation of the army and its supplies, and would cover extraordinary expenditures in the charter and refitting of chartered transports.

Pathetic Plight of the Cotton Grower. (From American Review of Reviews.) Tangled and involved as are the affairs of the cotton people of the north through failure, default, and the customers' shrinking of assets and the suspension of business, the present and exchange their troubles are light in comparison with those of the south.

Surging Throng of Shoppers Getting Ready for Christmas Show Good Times Are Here

There was many a happy heart and many a troubled one in that surging throng of shoppers that poured downtown yesterday afternoon in a steady stream from noon until nightfall. For Christmas has its tragedies as well as joys.

There is the thin and shame-faced bankroll that is as small as the heart of its owner is big; the irresolute gift-buyer, who has a brand-new best girl—so new that he hasn't yet become acquainted with her tastes—and the excited actor, whose cheeks glow for the life of him, what sort of frame he would like to use when he sends her his picture.

But who speak of sorrows when Christmas is on the horizon? The Crowd at Test. Were you in that shopping crowd? Whether you bought anything or not, wasn't it a treat, indeed, to mix and mingle with that great throng of eager pursuers of the season's most joyous occupation, Christmas shopping. Even the window displays were rare pleasures. The balloon men, the corner Santa Clauses, the Salvation Army lassies and their tinkling bells, the street vendors, who dealt in dancing toys and jumping jacks—all entertaining you.

The very spirit of Christmas, itself, was exhilarating enough. Little children, with expectant faces, stood for hours and gazed at the plate glass at the wonderland of toys and swarmed around the man who sold the jiggers and dancing dolls on the curb. And how they crowded the Santa Clauses that stood on most every corner.

It looked like the woods were full of Santa Clauses. Once a little fellow asked his mother why it was they ran into a different Santa Claus every where they turned, and mother replied, with the one fabrication that the recording angel will never hold against you, that Santa Claus was a real personage, and would be with you any one.

Just the Same Santa. And she added: "It's the same Santa Claus every time. You see, anybody who can travel over a million chimneys with his sled and reindeer in a single night can go fast enough to meet us everywhere we walk."

Just like father and big brother monopolize baby brother's steam engine, the old folks in the sitting room, the older folks turned young again to marvel at the antics of some of the automatic street toys. The gyroscopes that were sold on the curb on Marietta street, where it twisted and contorted upon a string, mystified the mind of parents who had brought the tots along to see the show. It's a good bet that many a fond parent, after a head of tousled curls had been tucked in and put to sleep, stole into an adjoining room, produced from some secret spot a gyroscope or tangoing clown and proceeded to investigate the whys and wherefores of its marvelous antics.

And shopping early? Why, Atlanta never shopped earlier in its life. The hitherto overworked sales girl in all smiles and welcoming. For two weeks the cavalcade of shoppers has been growing in proportion each day, while, therefore, it has been the rule that the mass of shoppers never waited until the eleventh hour. Christmas Eve will this year find all but the remnants of Christmas wares sold and deposited in the matter of docking facilities at Mobile, Ala., from all points in the southeastern territory today were held by the interstate commerce commission to be reasonable. PARTIAL RATE RELIEF GRANTED TO MOBILE

Certain Discriminations as to Export Cotton Are Ordered Corrected.

Washington, December 19.—Freight rates on shipments of export cotton to Mobile, Ala., from all points in the southeastern territory today were held by the interstate commerce commission to be reasonable. INITIATIVE AND RECALL ARE OPPOSED BY TAFT

Scottland Neck, N. C., December 19.—One hundred and thirty thousand dollars was bequeathed to various Baptist institutions in North Carolina by the will of John B. Biggs, prominent business man of this place, who died on Monday. The will, which was probated yesterday, disposed of an estate valued at $250,000.

The church organization was to be used for aiding in church work and fostering education, according to the will. The bequest was divided as follows:

Thomasville Baptist orphanage, $95,000; Meredith college, Raleigh, $20,000; Wake Forest college, Wake Forest, N. C., $50,000; and Baptist state convention, $15,000.

Million Dollar Incomes. (From The St. Paul Pioneer-Press.) The report of the commissioner of internal revenue relative to the returns from the new income tax has caused many surprises. One was pointed out in these columns the other day, namely, that the number of those paying the tax was almost 150,000 fewer than had been anticipated. On the other end of the scale, astonishment was caused by the fact that only forty-four persons reported an income in excess of $1,000,000. The names of these multimillionaires have, of course, not been divulged, and it is not surprising that the names of the millionaires are to be found in the classified columns of the newspapers. When and financiers of the metropolises began estimating the number of those who reported incomes in excess of $1,000,000, they were unprepared to find the total to be contained in the forty-four, all of which bears out the dictum, as the New York Herald says, "big fortunes are usually overestimated."

In The Times list appear the names of thirty-seven millionaires, including Michiganers, nine Pennsylvanians and the same number of Illinoisans, five Delawareans, one each from Maryland, Delaware, Maryland, North Carolina, Wisconsin and Montana. Minnesota is unrepresented. The proportion of millionaires may be accounted for partly by the fact that Detroit is the center of the automobile industry, and that a few individuals. This is, of course, only a mythical list, but even if there are forty-four people in the United States with the tidy income of a million dollars a year or more—and some of the men and women in the list certainly do have a revenue much in excess of a million—it is worth remarking, if only to emphasize the colossal individual fortunes of this era.

In the battle of Gettysburg, in the civil war, 157,000 men were engaged, of whom 52,000 were killed or wounded.

BIGGS LEFT $135,000 TO BAPTIST CONCERNS

Detroit, Mich., December 19.—The initiative and recall are being opposed by a complete negation of the representative system established by the Pilgrims and Puritans," declared the Rev. J. B. Biggs, in an address tonight at the annual dinner of the New England Society of Detroit. The speaker, who is a prominent lawyer and a member of the society, called for a reversion to an early type of pure democracy that failed in Athens and Rome, and he urged that the voters and leave the government to the control of a small minority.

"The initiative gives to a small percentage of the electorate the right to compel the whole electorate to continue to vote on referendum, and increase the tax burden beyond the point where they are willing to perform them. The consequence is that instead of stimulating every effort to do better, it stimulates every effort to do worse and leave the government to the control of a small minority."

"The recall is an institution calculated to take all the courage and stiffening of public officials and to make the agents of the public jelly-fish in the most constructive work ever done by the people. It has the strongest tendency to limit the public servants to the lowest common denominator of their duties in order not to arouse the enmity of anyone."

Blessings in Disguise. (From The Memphis News-Semiter.) What people call pests are sometimes blessings in disguise. The rabbits over in Australia the rabbits multiplied so rapidly that they were about to devour the vegetation of the country. Great rabbit hunts were carried on, and the rabbits were exterminated. A very ingenious genius devised a method of dressing the meat and sending it ready for the table. The pest was now usually so saddened or disgusted that he drives back to his farm and stores his crop as best he can. What pathos there is in this picture! In a large victory, the armed forces of France or Germany has put into the field on the Marne or the Aisne, robbing the earth of a year of industry, returning to wife and children with the tale that the most useful product of the earth, next to foodstuffs, was not fetch enough money in the markets of trade to bring to its grower the price of bread.

Would a Triumph of the Allies Further Italy's Interests?

Finally, looking at the larger political and economic aspects of the problem, it is so certain that Italy's future is bound up with the success or failure of the allies? Whatever else the present war may signify, it means as much for Italy as it does for the rest of the world. The Italian people are concerned a struggle between the allied and disinterested powers; a grapple between the economic and political interests of the world, which come late into the world, but Italy has also come late into the world; she also desires outlets for her products and her teeming population. FOREIGN SELLING EASIER ABSORBED

Small Amount of Liquidation of Stocks Held in America Checked Declines—Lack of Speculation in Wall Street.

New York, December 19.—(Special.) Foreign selling in rather large blocks has developed during the few days since open trading in all shares has been permitted on the floor of the New York stock exchange, but there has been so little liquidation of American held stocks that the selling from abroad has been easily absorbed.

The principal reason why the United States has not secured more of the trade and money has been tight and conditions unsettled in many of the countries with whom trade relations of larger magnitude are sought.

Progress in building up new sources of trade, principally in South America, has not been very slow. It is believed that a foothold has been gained in several new markets.

WALL STREET AGENT'S ATTACK ON INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION UNDESERVED AND CONSIDERED VICIOUS.

New York, December 19.—(Special.) In a speech on the railroads and the public, which was carefully prepared and widely circulated among the newspapers this week, before it was read to the Economic club, of Indianapolis, W. C. Van Antwerp, the recognized and salaried press agent of the New York stock exchange, made a vigorous attack on the interstate commerce commission, naming the usual suspects, not one of those who denounce them.

His Indianapolis speech, the $25,000-a-year publicity man of the exchange said that the commission was made up of "four lawyers, one former officer of the Order of Railway Conductors, one school teacher and lecturer, and one professor of political economy, none of them really men."

NEW YORK STOCKS. (Corrected by the Fidelity Fruit and Produce Company.)

New York, December 19.—Trading in securities today was relatively lighter than at any other session since the recent resumption of business on the stock exchange. Some of the most important issues were not quoted at all and the speculative favorites changed hands in very small lots.

The decision of the interstate commerce commission regarding the partial increase to railroads in the eastern territory was again the main topic of discussion. With considerable diversity of opinion as to its real significance.

Few gifts are so luxurious and, at the same time, so extremely practical as furs. Every year the tendency to employ them as holiday gifts grows—which is not surprising when one learns what a very modest expenditure here will purchase Furs of assured worth and beauty.

This is a genuine opportunity to select a seal coat of the most approved mode and of a quality certain to give very satisfactory service. One of the most conspicuous features, second only to the fineness of the skins themselves, is the splendid workmanship and the beautiful lines of each coat in this sale.

The decorations throughout the house were of holly and red bells, and in the dining room the table decoration combined effectively Christmas with wedding suggestions. American Guild of Organists Forms State Chapter

At the instigation and under the direction of Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, organist of the City Auditorium, the Georgia chapter of the American Guild of Organists has been organized in Atlanta. It has enrolled among its members the foremost organists of this city as well as prominent organists of Macon and Athens, and numbers as honorary members some of Atlanta's leading clergymen and patrons of music.

Active membership under the American Guild of Organists, either as fellows or associates of the guild, certifies that certain severe examinations have been passed, which prove the successful applicants to be competent organists and directors, as well as scholarly musicians of high theoretical and practical attainment.

The local chapter is made up of colleagues organists whose names have been proposed by two active members of good standing and who have been elected by the consent of the guild, no examinations being required in this case.

The Atlanta chapter has been founded for the purpose of promoting a greater spirit of fellowship among Georgia organists, of raising the standard of their work and arousing a greater interest in the calling among the members themselves as well as the public-at-large. It has evolved as its program for the season of 1914-15 a series of organ recitals to be given in the various churches of the city by its members.

The first recital was held at St. Mark's Methodist church on Tuesday evening, December 16. Miss Eda B. Bartholomew presiding at the organ. The chapter was received and entertained at supper by the ladies and members of St. Mark's 20 p. m. and at 8:15 the recital was held in the main auditorium.

Brilliant Dinner-Dance At the Driving Club

The dinner-dance at the Driving Club last night was gay with the holiday spirit and one hundred guests or more enjoyed the occasion.

Miss Isoline Campbell entertained a bright party of young people in compliment to Miss Mary Brown, who is home from school for the holidays.

Her guests were Misses Mary Brown, Corrie Hoyt, Kathleen McCard, Basal Davis, Katherine Lillie, Messrs Fred McGonagall, Lewis Gregg, Paulmour Johnson, Rensen King, Wimberly Peters, Fred Hoyt, Tom Lyon, Lynn

Werner, Lamar Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Ed C. Peters.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ellis, Jr., entertained a congenial party of ten young people in compliment to Miss Virginia Lipscomb.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Andrews entertained ten guests and others in small parties were Mr. and Mrs. Preston E. Arkwright, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dargan, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Mikel, Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Adair, Jr., Mr. Curry Moon, Mr. and Mrs. Gus Dodd, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Small, Mr. E. H. Barnett and others.

The most beautiful numbers is the male chorus, "The Caravan Across the Desert." Buck's noted contralto solo, "The Virgin's Lullaby," is also from this cantata, and this number will be sung by Mrs. A. W. Braselton, male chorus and all who enjoy a fine mixed chorus are cordially invited to attend this evening.

Also plans will be completed for the annual banquet the club will give for their husbands and friends on the night of December 21 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Brunsted, 475 Duclat avenue.

For Miss Walthal.
Miss Ethel Brinson Smith will have as her guest during the holidays Miss Ethel Walthal, of Brookneal, Va. Miss Walthal is an accomplished pianist and a popular member of the younger set. A number of entertainments are being arranged in her honor.

Church Music.
The service this evening at the North avenue Presbyterian church will be one of music, when the choir will sing a Christmas cantata, "The Coming of the King," by Dudley Buck. A number of good singers will assist the North avenue choir. In the service it is invited to attend and the balcony will be reserved for them.

It was a brilliant and auspicious opening. Miss Bartholomew made no introduction to the Atlanta public. Her splendid musicianship and high artistic attainment have won for her an enviable reputation throughout the south. Her program was comprehensive and beautifully balanced, exploiting works of the highest order by the best composers of the classical and modern German schools, with all their stern reserve and dignity, in the contrast to the lighter and more brilliant selections from the modern French school, one American number and several charming transcriptions by noted composers, which so greatly enrich organ literature of the present time. They were rendered with Miss Bartholomew's characteristic facility of execution, fine artistic taste and a thorough knowledge of the possibilities of her instrument. Her playing combines that virile, masterful force attributed usually only to the concert of the species, with a delicacy and grace that is characteristically feminine.

Deserving special mention were "Introduction" and "Pascaglia," by "Roger" Toccato, by d'Evry, "Rosa Angelica" by Rubinstein, and "Ballade" by Debussy, the latter most brilliant and charming, suggesting the quaint forms of the carols.

The chapter announces the subsequent recitals of the series as follows: Mr. Walter Peck Stanley, on January 19, 1915 at the Ponce de Leon Avenue Baptist church; Mr. Charles A. Sheldon February 2, at the Park Street Methodist church; Miss Marguerite Bartholomew, on March 16, at the Harris Street Presbyterian church; Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Barnett, on April 20, at the Park Street Methodist church; and Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, on May 13, at the Auditorium.

The Atlanta chapter has been founded for the purpose of promoting a greater spirit of fellowship among Georgia organists, of raising the standard of their work and arousing a greater interest in the calling among the members themselves as well as the public-at-large. It has evolved as its program for the season of 1914-15 a series of organ recitals to be given in the various churches of the city by its members.

MAKE THIS A PIANO CHRISTMAS or an Inner-Player Christmas

Consider well this fact. The amount—just a small part of the amount you otherwise spend on unremembered trifles—will put a Christmas Piano in your home—and then a little each month and it's soon yours—your children's.

Moderate Priced Uprights, $175 and Upwards

We believe we are well within the truth when we say that no other piano house in the south, with the possible exception of New Orleans, can show you so great an assortment of standard pianos ranging in price from $175 to $325.

You must remember that this is The Cable Company's factory branch for the state of Georgia—a fact which means much to you who are careful buyers.

Our freedom from all buying expense, our economies on freight, (our shipments coming to us in carload lots), a reduced selling expense, fairly doubles the dollars of those who make their purchases here.

Atlanta Player Headquarters

Of course, if you are going to buy a player, you would naturally come to our store and examine the quality of our instruments before making a decision.

The four famous makes of pianos which contain the Carola Inner-Player mechanism are only to be found on our floors. This mechanism not only contains the Solo Aid Device and the Transposing Device and ten other exclusive patented features, but it is the only one which contains the Miniature Keyboard on which the stroke is downward and in front of the piano action, giving the player that delightfully flexible touch of the trained musician.

Mason & Hamlin Pianos

There are always a few who insist upon having the best. For homes of wealth, or the homes or studios of finished musicians who desire the same piano that Melba uses, Harold Bauer, Gabriowitz and other artists of international reputation unqualifiedly recommend the Mason & Hamlin, the piano de luxe of the musical world.

For Big Hearts With Thin Purses Christmas Specials in Good Used Pianos

We have a number of instruments taken in exchange on Carola Inner-Player, Mason & Hamlin and Conover Pianos, and hence coming from homes of refinement where they had good care.

These pianos we have carefully refinished and conditioned, and offer at unusual values.

Table with piano models and prices: Estey Upright $125.00, Conover Upright 225.00, Hazelton Grand 225.00, Kingsbury Upright, nearly new 315.00, Shultz Baby Grand less than two years old $325.00, Euphonia Player Piano $365.00, Fischer Upright 130.00, Schulenberg Upright 265.00, Chickering Upright 165.00, Stultz & Bauer Upright 225.00, Kingsbury Upright 235.00

LUDDEN & BATES

80 North Pryor Street

The Exclusive Home of the Chickering in Georgia

Young America or Young Georgia, either.

He stood some six feet and nearly another half foot high. The ruddy glow of the mountaineer was on his face; his eyes ever seeing right clear into the joy of life when he meets it, sparkled with humor as the situation he found himself in.

"He was dressed just right," so declared the Beau Brummel of his business associates called in to pass upon Lothario, but he did wonder at the consistency of his taking out on the 5-cent car the pretty girl who wears expensive furs and gowns, who has her own income, and maybe her own car.

HOLD ON TO YOUR BANK ACCOUNT.

"Just do all you can to get the girl, but no matter what happens, hold on to your bank account, small as it is. It may be hard to get her and hold on to the bank account, but believe me, the bank account is the best friend before and after you get the girl."

"But it is kind of a cold deal—a cold night to take the girl on the car," and the young beau stretched his neck a little out of his tight collar as he looked in the dinky windowpane partially reflecting his good, straight figure and glowing countenance.

"You better walk now when you can, save the price of the taxi, and some day when you may have your own taxi, and the girl, too, you can lounge back in the last model limousine and enjoy the luxury of goul."

Pulling on a new pair of gloves uncomfortably, Young Georgia took the advice of his comrades and took the girl to the theater.

"Was she willing to go with him that way?" shiveringly asked a debutante who heard the story. "I would take cold if I rode on the car after the theater, and I am so afraid of catching germs on the car—so many strange looking people standing around! Percy Pinmaker apologized for not taking me in a limousine last night because he knows I get chilly in anything else!"

"Has Percy any money? How do I know? He acts like it. We had supper afterward at a cafe and he sent me flowers to wear. We occupied a box because he had things he wanted to tell me. I never thought of what he had or he did not have."

THE CASE OF PERCY PINMAKER.

Now to be perfectly explicit in this case, Percy Pinmaker is a very nice, well bred young man. He gets a salary of $150 a month. He lives at home; does not have to pay any board, and he is only 23. His father has a large salary and wants Percy to have a good time. Percy belongs to two social clubs—and a pressing club. He wears good clothes; has a life insurance policy he is trying to pay on. He is very much under obligation to many young women this season who have entertained him. Indeed, he can't get out of taking out one about three nights in every week, and unless the girl has her own car she can use he feels a delicacy in taking her in anything but a motor car. Say—he gets the car for $4 an evening, sends the girl a corsage that costs about four more, takes her to the picture, and then in the dressing room wherever he goes, and "Percy" of the ebony hue, who opens the car door for him and holds "Mr. Pinmaker's ca-a-h"—he is going to find himself out of work per week, with bills owed at the club, the pressing club; and also owing his aunt, who lives in the house with him; his sister, who has a small allowance, and his little brother, who has a toy bank.

HE'LL FIND HIMSELF ON EASY STREET.

It is awful to ride on a street car a cold night with a man paying 5 cents a ride, but gradually the man who gets his pleasure at the picture and goes to pay, may find himself living on easy street some day. When he marries he may have a little bank account that will warrant the purchase of a little limousine, and he may be able to afford to do any better just yet.

There are those who believe that this very little incident of Young Georgia with his 5-cent ride and Percy with his ride for $4 is going to present itself as a real social problem.

Neither one of the gentlemen has anything yet. They both love the girls, and the girls, too, many of them, want the comforts Percy can ill afford to buy, so what is going to happen to Chivalrous Percy and the debutante so easily chilled?

We all know what will happen to Young Georgia with his courage and his 5-cent ride. He and 200 girls will be lounging together some day in the latest model limousine car.

In the conference of distinguished churchmen here this week, all leaders of the Methodist church north there were a number of golf enthusiasts, and it was noted that the men of the conference represented a markedly wholesome, happy spirit, indicating that recreation was not neglected by them.

One of the members, an excellent raconteur, told the story on himself that while playing golf with a party of friends in Asheville previous to coming here, two caddies were heard to make the following comments:

"Whose dat dey calls 'Bishop' all de time?"

"Why, don't you know? He's a bishop," said the other.

"Bishop?" exclaimed the first. "No he ain't—he's a sport right!"

The conversation of the caddies strikes a note that is too oft sounded when the narrow and ignorant separate from men of church the right of recreation of normal or chosen kind.

There are, no doubt, innumerable people even in this progressive community of ours, who will question the right of a man, ordained a bishop of the church, to play golf, because golf is a game!

"And all games are evil," some will reason, "because sometimes certain games are played for winnings, and to play for winnings is a sin; therefore, all games are a sin."

Yes, there are many so-called intelligent people in this, the twentieth century, who believe that way, and reason that way.

CHEERLESS PRAYER.

These represent the same element of people who, when they pray, do everything but cry out and wail at God; who are so cheerless that to hear them makes one weep. Some even assume an expression of agony that would indicate that while praying they have been suddenly seized with acute colic.

The trouble is the "gloomy Gusses" have a bad influence on society at large. They make people dejected, and respectful of admonitions, instead of respectful to them.

"Little Johnny gets disgruntled always being told about how the devil will get bad little boys, and how he mustn't go to the movies, he mustn't skate on the pond, he mustn't go to church, he mustn't play games, he mustn't go to dancing school, and he mustn't eat plum pudding at Christmas time if cook puts rum in it."

The trouble with folks up with this kind of resentful spirit; has no idea of the constructive beauty of religion, because he hadn't been told anything he could do, not anything about the glory of God, or the relation of God to the fellowman!

MUNICIPAL RECREATION.

More and more does one begin to see that the theory of municipal recreation is a very practical one.

Among the element of people who cannot afford the attractions of music and the drama; who cannot find places to play games for and who have no athletic equipment which they can make use of—is it not a part of the social program humanity demands to see that these people have something to afford them the recreative necessities of life?

"Did you ever notice on Whitehall street late in the afternoon the army of young girls who are walking the streets with really no where to go, and apparently little to look forward to except walking the next afternoon?" asked a thinking man. "There are almost as many young men walking the streets after business hours, and they do not know the young women. There is really no where to meet them. The genteel element will not have recourse to the more fortunate people have a drink counter. The notes of cheery music sounds from picture shows; girls dance in abbreviated skirts on the stages in some of these shows, and ragtime music is yelled out by the band. These are the only places these young people have to go. Their tastes become necessarily vitiated.

When places of meeting are provided for these young people, properly supervised, they will get the story of what they mustn't do; they must not have everything they hear of put in the great receptacle for forbidden fruit. They want just what they see the more fortunate people have. They want to hear music; they want to see the drama (the people of this section are dramatic by temperament; few of us but what would not like to get up just once and show people how to act

some favored role). They want to get some exercise, some natural normal exercise, and dreadful as it may seem they ought to have a chance, if they wish it, to dance—yes, dance the one step, the fox trot, or any other dance, danced in public, properly supervised.

There was a beautiful play in Atlanta this week—Maude Adams in the "Legend of Isadora." It would not have hurt anybody to see it, but the cheapest ticket to the show was a 50-cent seat in the upper gallery. The seats downstairs were $2 and $1.50, and so it is always with the good shows. Condemned vaudeville deteriorates the taste for legitimate music and the best drama, and frequently young men and women, whom God endows with special talents in these directions, have no inspiration to develop them. Their talents lie latent. Why, therefore, should there be criticism of the church or municipal organization providing opportunity in a system of regulated recreation along wholesome, well-supervised lines?

Society

GRIFFIN, GA.

A lovely event of Wednesday was the afternoon tea at which Mrs. Wilbur Barnes entertained thirty guests, among them the bridal party, the out-of-town guests and a few outside guests, complimentary to her sister, Miss Suzanne Grantland.

An enjoyable occasion of Wednesday evening was the possum hunt and supper given by Mr. Seaton Grantland to his guests.

Mr. Robert W. Tilney entertained the bridal party at luncheon at the Hotel Griffin on Thursday.

One of the season's most beautiful weddings was that of Miss Sara Frances Garland and Mr. Walker Nolan Baker, of Atlanta, which took place Friday evening at 7 o'clock at the First Baptist church, Rev. E. S. Sammons officiating. The church was elaborately and artistically decorated with palms, ferns, southern cacti and white roses. Quantities of white tapers were burning on the altar, in the church and on the organ rail.

Miss Ruby Stevens, of Stevens Pottery, was maid of honor. Mrs. Jesse Fulmer, of Waynesboro, and Mrs. Henry J. Garland, mother of the bride, were matrons of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Kansas Baker, sister of the groom, of Fernandina, Fla.; Miss Mary Egan, of Griffin; Miss Zella Allen, of Elberton; Miss Mary Davis, of Decatur; Miss Louise Johnson, of Atlanta; Little Misses Martha Hammond and Fannie Willis Niles were the flower girls and Edward Smith Crouch, the ring-bearer. The best man was Mr. Francis Bullard, of Jackson, Ga.; the groom's attendant, Messrs. Ralph Wolfe, of Fernandina, Fla.; Don Marcus Meadows, Ben Frank Mathews and Newby Tilly of Atlanta, and the bride's brother, Mr. Halsey Garland. The bride entered the church with her father, Dr. Henry J. Garland. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, parents, Dr. and Mrs. Garland, whose twenty-fifth wedding anniversary occurred that evening. The hostesses were Mrs. M. E. and Mrs. J. W. Garland. A buffet supper was served. Assisting were Mesdames Robert Strickland, Lloyd Weichand, Leo Minley, Elizabeth M. Watt, W. C. Hooks, Nellie Head Grimsley, Misses Steady, Smith, and Mrs. J. W. Brown, Rose Kate Green, Ruth Powell, Laura Bailey, Lillian Scott, Rebecca Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Walker left later in the evening for a trip east, and after their return will make their home in Atlanta.

Miss Ruby Stevens entertained the bridal party at the home of her sister, Mrs. Leo Manley, after the rehearsal on Thursday evening.

A theater party was given Miss Sara Garland, her bridesmaids and a few outside friends on Thursday afternoon by Miss Mary Egan, and after the matinee delightful refreshments were served at the home of the hostess.

Miss Cynthia Ellis entertained seventy-five guests at a lovely afternoon tea on Wednesday. Receiving with the hostess was her mother, Mrs. Roswell Drake. Assisting were Mrs. Parke Walker, Miss Lillian Scott, Miss Misadore Brown, Miss Rebecca Brown.

COVINGTON, GA.

One of the prettiest affairs of last week was that at which Mrs. N. S. Turner entertained a few friends on Friday afternoon, from 2:30 to 4:30, in compliment to Miss Bonner Simms, whose marriage to Mr. Ralph Leslie Turner, of McDonough, will be a brilliant social event of December 30.

Miss Clyde Willis entertained forty-eight school pupils of the third grade, on Friday afternoon at a matinee party at the popular little Lyric theater.

Miss Annie Higgins was hostess to the pupils of the fourth grade on Friday afternoon, when she entertained thirty-three children at a theater party at the Lyric.

Among the pleasant affairs of the past week was that at which Mrs. H. D. Terrell entertained the United Daughters of the Confederacy at their regular December meeting at her home on Monticello street, Thursday afternoon. It was more of a social than a business meeting, although there were a few interesting papers read, after which dainty and delicious refreshments were served.

Mrs. Thomas J. Harwell entertained the study section of the Woman's club very pleasantly last Tuesday afternoon at her attractive home on Floyd street. The subject for discussion was Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing."

The I. H. R. C. club was delightfully entertained last Friday evening by Miss Natalie Turner, at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Turner, on Monticello street.

The home wedding of Miss Bonner Simms and Mr. Ralph Leslie Turner, of McDonough, will be a beautiful social event taking place on Wednesday, December 30.

The matrons of honor will be Mrs. C. L. Thompson, of Covington, and Mrs. A. E. Simms, of Atlanta, sister and sister-in-law of the bride. Miss Lydia Heard will be maid of honor and the bridesmaids will include Misses Emily Fitch, of Tusculooza, Ala.; Annie MacLester and Frances Henderson, of Covington.

ROME, GA.

At the fortnightly session of the Music Lovers in Mrs. H. Harben's studio, the study of the afternoon was Great Britain, and in the selections of vocal numbers, the theme of Christmas was introduced. Those who took part in this program of unusual interest were Misses Lola Warner, Edith Lowry, Virginia Gasson, Beulah Adganson and Mesdames T. W. Lipscomb, F. E. Vassiere, Winston and E. C. Hume.

Great regret is felt at the departure to Miami, Fla. of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Hume. Mr. Hume assumes a position with the Florida Granite and Marble company on January 1, but Mrs. Hume and little daughter will not join him for a month or more.

Mrs. B. I. Hughes, Wednesday afternoon, tendered a tea to fifty friends in honor of her niece, Mrs. E. O. Timmons.

As Rome will be their future home, interest centers in the marriage of Miss Echo Coleson, of LaGrange, and Dr. N. C. Doss, who recently became a Roman. The ceremony will be impressively solemnized in the home of the bride's parents in LaGrange, December 23.

An interesting event of Friday evening was the recital at the Christian church, in which Watson Ginn appeared in "The Man from Home," and Rev. E. A. Osborne and Mrs. T. W. Lipscomb assisted with delightful vocal selections.

Dr. and Mrs. William Walker entertained the board of deacons of the First Baptist church warmly with a dinner party Thursday evening.

Miss Addie Lou Lay entertained her juvenile friends Friday afternoon with a party.

GREENVILLE, GA.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Reppard, of Fredericksburg, Va., who are the guests of Mrs. C. M. O'Hara, spent several days in Macon last week.

A social meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. J. F. Chick. Interesting papers were read and several piano selections were rendered.

The regular monthly meeting of the David Whitwether chapter, D. A. R., was held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. John L. Strozier, regent. After a very interesting literary program a social hour was enjoyed.

Among the delightful events was the meeting of the Civic club recently with Mrs. J. J. Atkinson at her party home on LaGrange street. The home was very attractive with its decorations of ferns. The honorees of the occasion were Mesdames J. W. Milligan, of Pittsburg, Pa., and A. H. Reppard, of Fredericksburg, Va. Miss Edith Barnett has returned from a visit to Columbus.

SUMMERVILLE, GA.

One of the most enjoyable events of the week was the 6 o'clock dinner given by Mrs. A. B. Rainey in honor of Misses Bobbie and Mary Daniel, of Coosa, Ga., and Miss Louise Talliaferro, of Lverly.

Miss Martha Higgins delightfully entertained a number of guests at her lovely home last Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Bobbie Daniel and Miss Louise Talliaferro. Refreshments were served.

Miss Mabel Maddox, of Rome, will spend the holidays here, as the guest of Miss Martha Mae Rich.

Miss Mary Fay left Thursday for Rome, to spend a few days with Miss Sophy Hughes.

Their letters to Mr. Northen follow.

My Dear Mr. Northen: I have your letter of December 17 and note that you are organizing the Atlanta Peace Society. I sincerely hope that you may make this an effective organization. I believe that the close of the present war a movement for the establishment of an arbitral court will have more support than ever before and such organizations as yours can promote an organized movement for this purpose. Sincerely yours, WILLIAM H. TAFT.

Mr. Dear Mr. Northen: I am very glad to hear of the organization of the Atlanta Peace Society and I am sure you know that you have my very best wishes for its success. With much affection of your country, I am sincerely yours, JAMES ADDAMS.

I am fully convinced that the hope of the world lies in creating a sentiment which will make war impossible.

With all kind wishes, ever your sincere friend, ELBERT HUBBARD.

My Dear Mr. Northen: It gives me pleasure to acknowledge your letter of the 7th instant.

I congratulate your citizens upon the birth of the Atlanta Peace Society. It is a good step at this Christmas tide and I sincerely hope that the active cooperation and interest of all may result in the development of this great movement.

It is my belief that the peace movement has been liberty, individuality, personal rights, independence and war, but the only way to peace is through the unity of the fraternal community of interests, social class and independence, peace will prevail.

As president of the American Peace Society, I am in favor of peace and food will and also that the world should be a better place than it is now. I remember pleasantly the Atlanta audience which I addressed several years ago and the very kind regards which you kind regards yours very sincerely, ARTHUR DEERIN CALL.

Executive Director, American Peace Society.

President American Peace Society.

Dear Mr. Northen: In view of the delicate situation which confronts the people of America I am sure you are glad to see that this ancient society welcomes the Atlanta Peace Society to its legitimate line of operating agencies. We are convinced that the best hope for the ultimate abolition of all international wars lies principally in the direction of a free democracy.

If the international efforts at legislation and a great court of nations are to be effectively extended it will be in answer to the demand of the peoples. Such organizations therefore are of the highest importance. The opportunity confronting you are sobering, great and important.

Won't you consider us as anxious to cooperate with you in your high efforts?

If you will give us a list of your members we shall be glad to send you a list of our members from this office which I feel sure will be of some help.

With all best wishes I am yours very sincerely, ARTHUR DEERIN CALL.

IN THE LOCAL THEATERS

"Green Stockings." (At the Atlanta.) Miss Percy Haswell will present, as her attraction for Christmas matinee and night, A. W. E. Mason and George Fleming's famous comedy, "Green Stockings." The theme of the comedy is based on an old rural custom in Britain which gives the girls of the village the right to adorn an elder sister with a pair of green stockings if a younger sister has been engaged previously to her marriage. In order to escape this mark which she has been subjected to on two different occasions, Celia Farraday, the eldest but most attractive of a quartet of daughters, invents an imaginary fiance, one Captain Smith, of the English army, who, as she states, has recently sailed for Somaliland Africa.

Colonel Smith, to all intents and purposes, is a myth, inasmuch as she has never met the gentleman in question and never knew of his existence. Celia, who has been the bulwark of the family, has become tired of them. Her "Dear old Celia," "sweet old Celia," Celia who knows everything, Celia who can do anything, and in desperation she announces her engagement to the mysterious Captain Smith, writes him a letter calling him her dear Walter. The letter is found by a maid about the house, who posts it without the knowledge of Celia.

The letter reaches Colonel Smith, who returns to England after a short lapse of time and presents himself to Celia as a friend of Colonel Smith. Herein arises the complications that make it one of the most amusing comedies ever staged. Can you imagine the chagrin of the high-tempered, slightly-edged Celia, when she is brought face to face with the man she has fooled, or the embarrassment of the gentlemanly English officer when brought face to face with the girl he has fallen in love with, at the same time represented himself as Colonel Smith? Can you imagine the intricate situations brought about by his presenting his wish the pin and other ornaments of his alleged friend, Colonel Smith, who has fled on the battlefields of Africa when he himself is impersonating, and is, in truth, the original Colonel Smith?

Give an Umbrella For "Him" or For "Her" Prices $3.50 Upward Umbrellas make especially good gifts. They are certainly appropriate and are sensible and serviceable remembrances. "Potash and Perlmutter." (At the Atlanta.) "Abel" Potash and "Mawruss" Perlmutter come to the Atlanta on December 31, January 1 and 2, when they will display the latest designs in cloaks, suits and laughs. They come direct from New York where for two seasons they did a rushing business at the Cohan theater, and over their staff are some of the finest artists ever seen here.

"A Night in Old Heidelberg." (At the Bijou.) The management of the Bijou has selected for its Christmas attraction the merry musical comedy entitled "A Night in Old Heidelberg." A big company of pretty girls and comedians, with lots of clever vaudeville material to keep things lively. The program announces ten big numbers in addition to the vaudeville interludes of Inez and Ody. Maggie Le Clair, the Harmonious Trio and Gallagher and Anthony, a big dancing chorus of young and pretty girls will appear at frequent intervals, with many changes of costumes, and this feature alone will be worth the price of admission. The Harmonious Trio, one of the vaudeville acts, will be seen in a popular-priced theater every day. The attraction as a whole should be a most popular offering for the holidays. "A Night in Old Heidelberg" will be presented at the Bijou Christmas day at 2:30 and 8 o'clock and in the evening at 7:45 and 9 o'clock. On Saturday matinee and evening performances will be given at the same hours.

Woodall Tells an Interesting Anecdote of Henry W. Grady

While recounting the other day some of the incidents of Atlanta's history and recalling to mind various notables of her citizenry who have contributed in large part to the impetus and prestige which the city now enjoys, David S. Woodall, a grocerman of 815 Peachtree, related the following incident concerning Henry W. Grady.

"Although a busy man coping with affairs on a great scale, Henry W. Grady, by one of those exceptional persons who always had time to deal with small things sympathetically, I remember very distinctly being taken by Mr. Grady to his home for lunch, and then picking up on the streets of Atlanta a strange, lanky, old man, a patriarch's, an old hardware firm on Whitehall.

large chap at that, I strayed off into the streets to look for him. Although greatly confused by the bustle of the business section, I still kept the name of Henry W. Grady fixed in my mind. When finally discovered by a policeman, I told him I was looking for the great editor of The Constitution. Noticing an open street car approaching with Mr. Grady on it, the officer put me aboard.

"Mr. Grady took me to his home and entertained me during luncheon, but could not obtain from me my name. I kept busily repeating W. W. Stewart, the name of a preacher of an old album the picture of my older brother which had been sent the editor since the boy bore his name.

STAMPS NOT NECESSARY, RULES COMMISSIONER

Controversy Regarding War Tax on Bonds of County Officials is Settled.

It is definitely settled that the bonds of state and county officers guaranteeing the faithful performance of their duties are not subject to the federal stamp tax. Governor Slaton was in receipt yesterday of the following official communication from W. H. Osborn, commissioner of internal revenue, who declines itself:

"His Excellency John M. Slaton, Governor of the State of Georgia, Sir: I have the honor of acknowledging the receipt of your letter of the 10th instant, in which you inquire whether bonds guaranteeing the faithful performance of their duties are not subject to the stamp tax under the act of October 22, 1914.

"In reply you are informed that bonds guaranteeing the faithful performance of their duties are not subject to the stamp tax. (Signed) W. H. OSBORN, Commissioner."

BOYS' HIGH DANCE NEXT WEDNESDAY

In Taft Hall at the Auditorium—Courts and McCullough in Charge of the Affair.

Boys high will hold its annual Christmas dance Wednesday night in Taft hall at the Auditorium.

The Boys' high dance has been one of the biggest affairs of the holidays for the past seasons, and judging by the interest throughout the city, this year's affair should prove no exception.

Not only does the dance afford pleasure to the present students of the school, but it is also a gala occasion for the graduates of the school, who return home from college to spend the holidays. There was quite a bunch of former high school men present at the affair last year.

This year a dance is being handled by Richard Courts and Lawrence McCullough, both of whom are seniors. They have secured one of the best orchestras in the city for the dance, and promise a most pleasant evening to those who attend.

The price of admission will be 50 cents, provided that you bring a skirt with you, otherwise the doorkeeper will be forced to extract six bits from you.

WOODBERRY STUDENTS PRESENT GIFTS TO POOR

Girls Make Excellent Showing on Exams—Boarding Students Leave for Home.

It seems almost impossible to believe that it is only five days until Christmas and that the holidays have already begun.

Since the departure of all the girls Woodberry seems deserted, but all extended to the next day welcome when the holidays are over.

Every one, "even the teachers," takes pleasure in presenting the semi-final examinations are over with and that most everyone did exceptionally well.

It was decided to have a Santa Claus to some unfortunate boy or girl by presenting them with a sack of toys, candy, nuts, raisins, candy, apples, oranges, toys and a few other useful things.

The boarders all left Friday night in their homes, while they will spend their Christmas holidays.

Here's wishing all of my readers a merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

GEORGIA AVE. Prizes Given to the Most Improved Classroom.

On November 20 our principal announced that a prize contest was to be held in our school.

Every body was excited the last day of the contest for the class was hoping to receive the prize.

The boys of the two seventh grades are very enthusiastic over their new soccer ball, and have already organized their teams.

These cool days give us life for our athletes. Two boys and two girls have already received gold medals for their excellent work in their respective athletic, and by next week we hope to have at least six more.

MARIST'S CERTAIN TO HAVE GOOD FIVE

The Marist Cadets are just beginning to feel dry again after the drenching rains of the week past.

The corps heard various and numerous congratulatory remarks on their excellent showing for fifth parade under such adverse conditions.

A military exhibition followed by a grand ball is the present outlook. The corps is being drilled daily in fancy work and by the 3th of January the day set for the festivities, we hope to be able to show the Atlanta public just what Marist is accomplishing in the way of fancy military tactics.

The details will be announced later. In the meantime the corps will be working hard with the purpose of doing itself proud before the critical public eye.

A life association has been organized and interested persons are invited to the competitions held. There are rewards for high averages in marksmanship shown in all of the events.

A company competitive indoor shoot was held Thursday. It resulted in victory for the Marist boys, who scored 211 points out of a possible 250, against 199 for Company "A."

In the athletic department basketball is the center of attraction. Candidates are practicing daily under the guidance of Coach Hester.

This year, intends to put out a championship five if one can read the signs. Doctor and Hester, and Coker are the veterans and Julius Jernigan, McClain and Brown are the newcomers.

It was decided to let the superintendents of the various departments and their assistants decide what their duties should be. Among other decisions, they agreed that every afternoon the chairman of the water department was to bring the water to the classroom, and the chairman of the park board was to water the plants.

Council meetings are held every first and third Mondays.

The meeting held on November 13 was an open one. All parents and friends of the children were invited to attend.

Reports were heard from the chairman of the different boards. The following from the water and park boards amused our friends.

Report of the Water Board. About three-quarters of a bucket of water have been brought into the room each day to water the flowers, making about four bucketsful for the entire week.

The holidays are just around the corner. The children of the school are busy making their Christmas cards and decorations.

The second grade A children have been making stockings and fireplaces, and are waiting for Santa Claus to come and fill them full of goodies.

The seventh grade B children are practicing hard on a dialogue, which they are to have the last day before the holidays.

SPEER ENTERTAINS SILVEY EMPLOYEES

Annual Banquet Enjoyed by a Large Number of Travelers and Others.

A jolly crowd of the firm, line boys, together with all other employees of John Silvey & Co., gathered Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. A. Speer, 1445 Peachtree, senior partner of the firm, to enjoy the annual buffet supper given to them during the holiday season by Mr. Speer and his estimable wife.

These events have grown to be a part of the life of Silvey employees, and not a one was missed last evening. The beautiful home was tastefully decorated for the occasion, good music entertained the crowd and most delightful refreshments were served.

Among the employees were Banks Whitman, P. G. Braswell, R. C. Jones, R. H. Jackson, G. S. Smith, J. W. Hughes, P. H. Teter, H. T. Burton, J. W. Roberts, N. Lytle, H. C. Cory, S. A. Johnson, J. P. Davis, John W. Whitaker, W. C. Lee, H. L. Selmonson, T. G. Gwynner, A. C. McLean, R. K. Rambo, A. S. Johnson, Turner Lasseter, E. P. Jordan, J. H. Harrison, C. W. Verrier, J. G. Eloit, G. W. Sawyer, J. P. McDaniel, C. E. Roberts, J. L. Garner, S. L. Baugh, E. R. Abernethy, Virgil Taylor.

Where's Jackson's Pin?

'Listen! Has anybody found Jackson's pin?' If so, notify R. R. Jackson—known as 'Railroad'—for his reward. He calls for John Silvey & Co. It's an interesting and almost sensational story about how Jackson lost his diamond pin. Some of his co-workers believe it was stolen, some think it was lost; some are of the opinion it was taken; while yet there are others who believe it was hooked by that as it may. Jackson says it's gone, and that he missed it one morning not long after he had his room about 10 o'clock in the morning. He hasn't given out the information whether he was going or coming at the time, but he is sure it was about 3 o'clock in the morning. Perhaps it wouldn't be wise to say it was missed just as the miss'it was beginning to fall—but we won't say it, because Jackson told us very plainly that the burglar took it and all, and was even trying to get away with his trunk. The police, it is understood, have examined every pin (it was a diamond stick pin) in the city and have wired Birmingham to look on the lookout for any such diamond that might be stalking around.

BARNWELL AND CALLAWAY IN N. Y.

"NEW YORK BUSINESS MEN A GAME BUNCH"

R. K. Rambo, Just Returned From Metropolis, Talks Interestingly of Conditions.

R. K. Rambo, dry goods buyer for John Silvey & Co., together with D. P. McDaniel, in charge of the notion department, have just returned from a trip to New York, where they went to look over spring lines—in fact, where they purchased much of this line, and the company will start off the first of the coming year in good shape for the spring trade. The speaking of business conditions and the coming demand for goods, Mr. Rambo said. "Business with New Yorkers is fast adjusting itself to conditions and January will bring a great reformation. Doubtless after the revision of prices the spring season will gradually improve and by the time we are again in the market, the goods will be better than ever. New York business men when it comes to their pockets, their love of fast gains and blame no one particularly except an occasional fling at the present democratic administration, and have gone into the next season with as much enthusiasm as ever. "Much ridicule is handed us southerners in trying to sell our cotton at less than 7 cents, and also crying for the government to help the 'poor farmer,' when he has both ends of the rope." "Merchandise will be as low for spring as has been in ten years, with probably a few exceptions. Dyed goods have not gone reasonably low enough. Fine yarn goods, such as labor is the chief cost—are as high as ever. The embargo on wool has naturally thinned the product. For spring lace cloths, dashed and splashed voiles and embroidered goods, the market is very good and we will have our usual up-to-date collection ready for inspection by January. "Here's hoping that by-gones will be by-gones and that each man will do the honorable thing by paying up and starting out anew on a cash basis."

ACCEPTS NEW POSITION

The many friends of J. W. Blood, well known as the district manager for the Schlessinger-Meyer Baking Company, with offices in Atlanta, will be interested in learning that he has accepted a position with the Standard Flake Food company, of Detroit, packers of private and factory brands of flour and other raw materials. He will act in the capacity of president and salesman with his new connection. He has a wide acquaintance with the southern trade, and in order to better serve his customers and friends will probably soon open a southern office in this city.

SOME OVERALLS, THESE

Hanging against the wall in the overall factory of the A. M. Robinson company is a pair of overalls that verily look like they cover the side of the house. They have just been made for a customer, and are hanging there awaiting the arrival of Percy Harris, the South Carolina man for the company, who has contracted to take them back to the purchaser after the holidays. Whether he has agreed to fit them on the wearer—see that he is properly "dolled" up in them—is not known; but if he has he has some job on his hands and will probably need a bicycle or a pair of skates to circle them and see that they fit. They were made under special instructions from Mr. Harris for a customer in Spartanburg, a railroad man who tips the beam at 428 pounds. They measure 30 in the waist and 35 in length, with other measurements in proportion, but these cold figures can give no adequate picture of the big pair of breeches as they hang in the factory. When the customer puts them on Mr. Harris expects to get a pair of overalls as they hang in the factory. When the customer puts them on Mr. Harris expects to get a pair of overalls as they hang in the factory. When the customer puts them on Mr. Harris expects to get a pair of overalls as they hang in the factory.

NEWS NOTES OF U. C. T., FULTON COUNCIL, NO. 505

By W. G. Moore. Councilor George A. Gershon's presence at the council's last meeting was an inspiration to the membership and all wish him to be a regular attendant once again. W. H. Arnold, our junior councillor, thinks that all of the people in his territory—which embraces the state of Georgia—are going to have a very sweet Christmas. He says he has kept his firm (F. W. King company) busy filling large and numerous orders for candy. R. L. Wallace, our secretary, may not believe in doing the impossible, but, as usual, has been whooping things up in a most flattering style. We all regretted that our Brother Hopkins lost his master who died a few days ago. We sympathize deeply with him and his family. A great many people think that birds were made for the air, but speaking for our two cottontail birds (George P. and C. E. Byrd) we learned from our show that they were not made for the stage was made for them. Brother T. B. Lewis, with the Capital City Tobacco company, thinks that smoke is good for the lungs, and, strange to say, lots of his patrons agree fully with him. After all, we must be most thankful for the philosophy of our Brothers B. B. Baber and J. J. Baker.

GUM COMPANY STARTS BIG CAMPAIGN HERE

Sterling Gum Co., of New York, Opens Here First Publicity for Its New Gum.

As strong testimony of the push and hustle of one of the city's big wholesale and jobbing houses, comes the news that the Sterling Gum company, of New York, has decided to make this the first city in the United States in which to inaugurate its publicity campaign on the sale of its new and latest product—Sterling chewing gum. This big chewing gum company are the makers of "Frozen Atlanta," the popular gum sold out here in two months ago through the Capital City Tobacco company. The Sterling Gum company of gum offered to chewers which carried an insert—a cute little "Kewpie" picture on the wrapper which, when chewed, were so successful with this gum, and have made such a remarkably good sales record that the Sterling Gum company decided to come here and, together with the tobacco company, who is woven in color the likeness of some of the nation's rulers. These, together with the high quality of the gum, will make for several days and will remain for several weeks looking after the details of the campaign. Only a few days ago handle this line launch the first box of Sterling gum, ever sold by the company—but they expect to sell many more here and will then launch the campaign over the entire country. "PEOPLE WILL DRINK— BUT IT'S TEA THIS TIME?" R. H. Manley, the bustling representative of Lipton's tea, blew into the city Saturday night in a very busy and profitable trip. He says that if there is any depression it apparently has not affected the tea-drinkers. "They are still buying Lipton's tea," he says, "and our business has increased right along." When it comes to pure-down hustle and enterprise there is no salesman that has Bob backed up the boards. "But I've got the goods," says Bob, "and that's what counts."

Goldin Offers Suggestions About Dumb Animals

David Goldin, the well-known harness manufacturer, is one of the dumb animals' very best friends. He is an active worker in the S. P. U. A., and is always offering suggestions and advice to the members of the organization. In speaking Saturday about the care of animals during cold and stormy weather, Mr. Goldin said: "Blanket your horse when he stands in the cold, the stable or the street. Don't put a frosty, but in his mouth, and other ill result from exposure and chill which follows suddenly. 'Keep in readiness for emergency a set of harness and a non-slippery overshoe when streets are slippery, for often a fall on hard pavement is a serious matter. In addition, your drive slowly, have mercy on the dumb animal in the name of him who was born in a stable."

FIRING LINE NOTES

"We have had an unusually good holiday trade," said Ed Malone, of the Capital City Tobacco company, who has been in the hotel business for thirty-two years, and served as steward of the hotel for many years. He is a well-known man in the city and a valuable man for the big coffee company.

FIFTEEN CARLOADS OF IMPLEMENTS SOLD

One of the largest orders ever taken in the south for farm implements has been closed by T. K. Johnson, division sales manager for the John Deere Plow company. The order was sold to a big dealer in one of the chief cities of Tennessee, and represents more than fifteen carloads of implements of various kinds. The company is now preparing to fill the order, and in fact has already shipped some of the goods, and by a little after the first of the year will have practically the entire order in the house of the buyer.

RUNNING FULL FORCE AND NO WAGES CUT

If every plant in Georgia were as busy as the Schlessinger-Meyer Baking company, of Atlanta, there would be no complaints as to hard times. The Schlessinger-Meyer Baking company make the well-known brand of flour and other raw materials advanced because of the European war. "and many other things throughout the country therefore reduced the size of their loaves or cheapened the quality of their bread, and the result is that there is such a great demand for this popular Atlanta-made product that the plant is running with a full force, and wages have not been reduced."

FRANK TRUITT WEDS MISS FLORA SEGAR

Frank Truitt, the popular young man in charge of the shipping department of the John Deere Plow company, is just receiving the congratulations of his friends and relatives on his wedding to Miss Flora Segar, whose home is in Lavonia, but who had been an employee of the John Deere Plow company for some time. The wedding was held at the home of the bride, and the couple were married by Rev. J. J. Baker.

HEAD OFFICER U. C. T.'S PASSED THROUGH CITY

Much to the regret of members of local councils of the U. C. T.'s, the head of the order passed through the city recently, and on account of the press of business, could not remain long enough to be the recipient of the loyal attention which the travelers' quarters in this city have given him. This official was Claude Duval, supreme councillor of the U. C. T.'s, who is an active traveling man, with headquarters in New York City. He was a guest of the Vinecroft hotel on the evening of November 19, leaving the next morning for New Orleans. His visit here was one purely on business for his house, and no opportunity was afforded the local members to greet him.

CITY SALESMEN GIVE TO HELP WORTHY CAUSES

By J. A. Mansey. The approach of the Christmas season has kept the city salesmen all very busy this week. Business has been good, and all the boys are trying to get their share. Noting the crowded condition of the city warden's office, we were prompted to make a small donation to several worthy causes. Mr. Evans, being recommended to us by Mr. Evans, says this as a suggestion to other associations of the city. It is an exceedingly deserving cause, and should receive unstinted help.

"OPENING BILL" LEWIS OPTIMISTIC, AS USUAL

Mr. Merchant: The year of 1914 is fast drawing to a close, and of course, there is no one who is entirely satisfied that it has been a very successful one. However, it is better to be satisfied with what we have done this year; neither will they be at the end of 1915. The human mind is hard to satisfy. It will not be content with the things that we have accomplished. When we reach this stage in life, we fall to put forth our best efforts, and instead of pushing forward, we go backward. The writer has especially noticed this in the merchant class. The same will apply to employees.

Within th' enameled ward the children wait. And then a hush, for down the shining aisles
 Their little voices rise in piping hums. With all his gay surprise dear Christmas comes,
 Dear Christmas with his candles all alight

The marshals who surrounded and supported the throne of Napoleon form a remarkable exhibition on the productive power of democracy.

Although the emperor flattered himself that he made his marshals out of mud, those eagles really were hatched out of the fertile egg of the revolution.

All but five of that brilliant company were sons of the people, and all but seven started at the bottom as common soldiers.

None but Davout, Marmont and St. Cyr ever had seen the inside of a military school. All except Berthier, Davout, Marmont, Marmont, Grouchy, Perignon and Poniatowski had started at the bottom of war with the musket of a private.

Moreover, most of those who rose from the ranks did not enter the army in the enthusiasm of the revolution.

SERVANTS OF A THRONE.

With the fall of the republic, the democracy of the army was lost. When the Corsican artilleryman seized for himself the scepter of empire, he rewarded and reconciled his companions in arms, the one-time privates and sergeants, by placing in their hands the batons of marshals of France.

Love of country no longer being potent in devotion, Napoleon frankly appealed to personal selfishness as the incentive to service.

When the title deed to France had been made, the nation became the patrimony of his heirs, the peasant marshals soon had to appease what they could transmit to their children.

None but Davout, Marmont and St. Cyr ever had seen the inside of a military school.

Napoleon's Magnetism

I have so inspired multitudes that they would die for me.

But my presence was necessary; the lightning of my eye, my voice, a word from me, then the sacred fire was kindled in their hearts.

I do, indeed, possess the secret of this magical power, which lifts the soul; but I could never impart it to anyone. None of my generals ever learned it from me.—Quoted at St. Helena.

ON MARCH 10 we again embarked and made a kilometer and a half, spending most of the time in getting past two more rapids. Near the first of these we saw a small cayman, a jacaré-tinga.

At each set of rapids the canoes were unloaded and the loads borne past on the shoulders of the camaradas; these were then piled down by a couple of naked paddlers apiece, and the two sets of double canoes were let down by ropes, one of one couple being swamped, but rescued and brought safely to shore on each occasion.

Next morning we had met with a serious misfortune. We had halted at the foot of the rapids. The canoes were moored to trees on the bank, at the tail of the broken water. The two old canoes, although they were the best out biggest cargo-carriers, were water-logged and heavy, and one of them was leaking in the night the river rose.

It was not pleasant to have to stop for some days; thanks to the rapids we had made slow progress, and with our necessarily limited supply of food, and no knowledge whatever of what was actually before us, it was most unpleasant. We had to build either one big canoe or two small ones. It was raining heavily as the men started to explore in different directions for goodly trees.

It was not pleasant to have to stop for some days; thanks to the rapids we had made slow progress, and with our necessarily limited supply of food, and no knowledge whatever of what was actually before us, it was most unpleasant. We had to build either one big canoe or two small ones. It was raining heavily as the men started to explore in different directions for goodly trees.

Our men were "regional volunteers," that is, they had enlisted in the service of the telegraphic commission especially for the purpose of working in the area which was to be built in view of the toil, hardship and hazard to life and health. Two of them had been with Colonel Rondon during the eight months of the expedition, and the other two were regulars from his own battalion of engineers.

On the morning of the 14th the work was resumed in a torrential tropical downpour. The canoe was finished, dragged down to the water, and launched soon after midday and another hour or so saw us underway.

The descent was marked and the swollen river ran along. Several times we passed great whirlpools, shifting, sometimes steady. Half a dozen times we ran over rapids, and although they were not high enough to have been obstacles to loaded Canadian canoes, two of them were serious to us. One heavily laden, clumsy dugouts were sunk to within three or four inches of the surface of the river, and, although they were not high enough to have been obstacles to loaded Canadian canoes, two of them were serious to us.

Launching the CANOES after a PORTAGE.

the dugout, with its load of sick men, started down stream, and Rondon, Lyra, Amaranite and the twelve remaining men resumed their weary march. When a fortnight later they finally struck a camp of rubber-tappers, three of the men were literally and entirely naked. Meanwhile Amilar had ascended the Jacayparana a month or two previously, with provisions to meet them, for at that time the canoe had correctly treated this river as larger, instead of smaller, than the Gy-Parana, which they were in fact descending; and Colonel Rondon had supposed that they were going down the former stream. Amilar returned, after himself suffering much hardship and danger. The different parties finally met at the mouth of the Gy-Parana, where they entered the Madeira. The lost man whom they had found seemed on the road to recovery, and they left him at a ranch on the Madeira, where he could be cared for; yet after that he had left, and they heard that he had died.

On the 15th the men were still hard at work following out the hard work of the big tree, with ax and adze, while watch and ward were kept over them to see that the idlers did not slacken their pace. Some of the industrious, Kermit and Lyra again hunted, the former shot a curassow, which was welcome, as we were endeavoring in all ways to economize our food supply. We were using the tops of palms also.

A Guessless Hunt. I spent the day hunting in the woods, for a most part in the rock bottom, they had at once been riven asunder, and the big fragments that were soon found, floating in eddies, or along the shore, showed that it was useless to look farther. We killed these rapids before the rapids.

It was not pleasant to have to stop for some days; thanks to the rapids we had made slow progress, and with our necessarily limited supply of food, and no knowledge whatever of what was actually before us, it was most unpleasant. We had to build either one big canoe or two small ones. It was raining heavily as the men started to explore in different directions for goodly trees.

Our men were "regional volunteers," that is, they had enlisted in the service of the telegraphic commission especially for the purpose of working in the area which was to be built in view of the toil, hardship and hazard to life and health. Two of them had been with Colonel Rondon during the eight months of the expedition, and the other two were regulars from his own battalion of engineers.

On the morning of the 14th the work was resumed in a torrential tropical downpour. The canoe was finished, dragged down to the water, and launched soon after midday and another hour or so saw us underway.

The descent was marked and the swollen river ran along. Several times we passed great whirlpools, shifting, sometimes steady. Half a dozen times we ran over rapids, and although they were not high enough to have been obstacles to loaded Canadian canoes, two of them were serious to us. One heavily laden, clumsy dugouts were sunk to within three or four inches of the surface of the river, and, although they were not high enough to have been obstacles to loaded Canadian canoes, two of them were serious to us.

In a wilderness, where what is ahead is absolutely unknown, alike in terms of time, space, and method, for we had no idea where we would come out, how we would get out, or when we would get out—it is of vital consequence not to lose one's outfit, especially the provisions, and yet it is of only less consequence to go as rapidly as possible past all the provisions be exhausted and the final stages of the expedition be accomplished by men weakened from semi-starvation, and, therefore, ripe for disaster. On this occasion, of the two hazards, we felt it necessary to risk running the rapids; for our progress had been very slow that, unless we made one of the time, it was probable that we would be short of food before we got where we could expect to procure any more except what little the country in the time of the rains and floods, might yield. We ran until after five, so that the work of pitching camp was finished in the dark. We had made nearly sixteen kilometers in a direction slightly east of north. This evening the air was fresh and cool.

The following morning, the 15th of March, we started in good season for six kilometers we drifted and paddled down the swift river without incident. At times we saw lofty Brazil nut trees rising above the rest of the forest on the banks; and back from the river these trees grew to enormous proportions, towering like giants. There were great rubber trees, their leaves in the ways in sets of threes. Then the ground on either hand rose into bowlder-strewn, forest-clad hills and the roar of broken water announced that once more our course was checked by dangerous rapids. Round the bend we came on them; a wide descent of white water, with an island in the middle, at the upper edge. Here grave misfortune was narrowly escaped.

Engulfed in the Rapids. Kermit, as usual, was leading in his canoe. It was the smallest and least seaworthy of all. He had in it little except a week's supply of our boxed provisions and a few tools; fortunately none of the latter was missing. Kermit was with him. Beside himself, the crew consisted of two men, Joao, the helmsman, or pilot as he is called in Brazil, and Simplício, the bowsman. Both were negroes, and exceptionally good men in every way. Kermit halted his canoe on the left bank, above the rapids, and waited for the colonel's canoe. Then the colonel and Lyra walked down the bank to see what was ahead. Kermit took his canoe across to the island, to see whether the descent could be better accomplished on the other side. Having made his investigation he ordered the men to return to the bank he had left, and the dugout was headed upstream accordingly. Before they had gone a dozen yards the paddlers digging their gables with all their strength into the swift current, one of the shifting whirlpool of which I have spoke came down stream, whirled them around, and swept them so close to the rapids that no human power could avoid going over them. As they were drifting into them broadside on, Kermit yelled to the steersman to turn his head, so as to take them in the only way that offered any chance whatever of safety. But so full as barely to float his own wave, as they raced down. They reached the bottom with the canoe upright, but so full as barely to float his own wave, as they raced down. They reached the bottom with the canoe upright, but so full as barely to float his own wave, as they raced down. They reached the bottom with the canoe upright, but so full as barely to float his own wave, as they raced down.

They had nearly reached the bank when another whirlpool or whirling eddy tore them away and hurried them back to midstream, where the dugout filled and turned over. Joao, seizing the rope, started to swim ashore, the men was pulled from his boat as he reached the bank. Poor Simplício must have been pulled under at once, and his life beaten out on the bowlder beneath the racing torrent. He never rose again, nor did we ever recover his body. Kermit pitched his rifle, his favorite 405 Winchester with which he had done most of his hunting both in Africa and America, and climbed on the bottom of the overturned boat. In a minute he was swept into the second series of rapids, and whirled away from the rolling boat, losing his rifle. The man, strength almost spent. He was in swift but quiet water; and soon a moment later he realized that the utmost his clinging hands could do was to save the branch.

He reached, and clutched it, and then almost lost it. He managed to haul himself fast on the land. Good Trigueiro had faithfully swum alongside him through the rapids, and now he was scrambling ashore. It was a very narrow escape. Kermit was a great comfort and help to me on the way. He was of some fatal accident befalling him was always a nightmare to me. He was to be married as soon as the following morning, and he had sent to his mother all the money that would have been his had he lived. The following morning, to mark our camping spot the following inscription, in Portuguese, was written on the bank:

On an expedition such as ours death is one of the accidents of the way. At the time occur, and narrow escapes from death are too common to be felt as they would be in a more ordinary life. One must be sincerely, but mourning cannot interfere with labor. We immediately proceeded with the work. From the tail of this series of rapids the distance was about 600 yards.

Running the Rapids. A path was built on the bank, over which the loads were brought. The empty canoes ran the rapids without mishap, each with two skilled paddlers. The first of the most rapid, and then swimming tapt at the head of the rapids; it went down the rapids, and then climbed over a bank on the right side. Kermit, accompanied by Joao, went three or four miles down the river, looking for the body of the man who had been found. He found neither. But he found a box of provisions and a saddle, and salvaged both by swimming into midstream, and then he also found that a couple of kilometers below there was another rapid, and a shallow river, and he was sure that the foot he found that it was worse than the one we had just passed, and impossible for canoes on this left-hand side.

We camped at the foot of the rapids we had just passed. There were many small but it was extremely difficult to see or find them in the tangled brush, and to shoot them in the open. Kermit got four species new to the collection. One was a tiny hummer, and Kermit pitched his rifle, his favorite 405 Winchester with which he had

He has written a series of poems in the history of poetry to give his inspiration in the actual battlefields. Mr. Kaufman is not following the old tradition of Belgium army in France. He says that "Little Old Belgium" is not merely an American name for the country, but affectionately designates his country as "Belgique, ma petite vieille."

BOOK REVIEWS IN TABLOID

Miss Sewall, who is one of our most popular authors, has written a story that carries the true spirit of Christmas to the hearts of young and old alike. She goes back to the ante-bellum days and what Christmas meant in the home of a Virginia colonel. And of Betty, his charming and mischievous granddaughter, Aunt and Uncle Caesar's servants, the last of the old regime before the war. At Christmas times in these old estates in the south, where were festive dances to the tune of the Dixie music, early morning hunts and feasts of the old-fashioned "good things," turkey with oyster dressing, ham, goose, and other delicacies. Mrs. Woodruff's latest story is a charming romance of a child who "laughed and loved." It is not only a romance for the "juvenile" set, but for every lover of a charming story.

BAREHEADED CORPORAL WEARS GEN. PAU'S CAP

The French Leader Forces His Headgear on Soldier—Pau Loved by His Men.

The Hague, November 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Here is an incident concerning General Pau, hero of the Franco-Prussian war. A dozen French infantrymen are resting in a train on the way to the front. They are sitting on the seats and the corporal in the train to light his pipe. The corporal fears the end of things—he will be punished for losing his cap. "Take it, I tell you, and wear it," says the general. "And when you do as he is told and becomes respectful in the camp and embelozed with the glorious oak leaves of the general's cap." Since that day the corporal marches along proud in the cap of General Paul. The general himself did not wear it, he says in those who protest. "I obey the general's orders and the cap stays on my head." The general knows his soldiers and the world may understand why his tired, bedraggled and weary army goes on marching and fighting and dying for its commanders.

The Charm of the New Coiffure

THE general tendency of the season is toward the high coiffure, and in this style of dressing, the hair is waved profusely and drawn back and upward, while the fringe lends a softening effect.

HERE the hair is softly waved and the back hair is formed into a roll, with the ends tucked under, so that no knot is visible. This style gives an excellent chance to wear the various shaped combs that are so much in vogue this season.

HERE the line from the crown of the head to the point of the chin is emphasized by a high coiled knot. The hair is parted on the side and taken back. This is a simple but very effective style for evening wear.

THE desirable height to the coiffure is gained by drawing the hair over a little cap of wired net. The ears are partly covered and the hair looser about the face, for to the average woman the tight coiffure is very trying.

BROCADED white velvet and white chiffon, set off with the black fur from the pelt of the South American monkey. Of such is this model constructed, and the bizarre effect of the barbaric ornament only heightens the picturesque quality of this alluring costume. The evening wrap is a particularly charming one, in the coat style. The voluminous folds of the heavy velvet hang in interesting lines, and the fur binding and collar are the season's newest features. Milady isn't a bit superstitious, and to prove it, she gayly sticks a bit of the peacock's plumage in her hair, and holds it in place by a jeweled band.
