Prisoner in Tower Asks Public For Answers to These Questions

By LEO FRANK.

I have answered a number of questions put to me in reference to various points in my case. I now wish, in turn, to put the following questions to be answered by the public, all of which are based upon undisputed facts, admitted by the prosecution to be the truth:

- (1) If, as the prosecution contends, a man had strangled a young girl to death at ten minutes past 12, is it likely that when the murder was discovered, he would come forward, without hesitation, freely and voluntarily, and state that he had seen and talked with her a few moments previous, when there was no witness to the conversation, and there was probably no way for it to be known unless he revealed it himself?
(2) When the police discovered and first examined Mary Phagan's body, dirt and cinders were so ground into her face that they could not tell whether she was a white girl or a negro. They had to lift her dress and examine her skin to decide. Sergeant Dobbs described her face as having been "punctured" by the cinders. There were no cinders in the metal room, but there was a big bank of them in the basement. Conley said her body was carried every step of the way from the metal room, where he says he picked her up, to the point in the basement where he finally deposited her. Question: How did the dirt and cinders get ground into her face, arms, and hands?
(3) No blood was found on the floor of the metal room at the point where Conley says he found Mary Phagan lying on her back. Wounds bled most freely when they are fresh, and blood flows most freely when it is thin and warm. There was a deep cut in the back of her head. He says the alleged "blood spot" by the dressing room was made when he dropped her. Question: Why was there no blood on the floor where he first found her?
(4) If a white man had committed a horrible crime, and confided his secret to the keeping of an ignorant negro, is it likely that he would then disappoint and anger the negro by giving him $200.00 in cash and then taking it away from him?
(5) Conley made successive false affidavits and explained their successive contradictions by saying that he did not want to "give me away entirely, all at once." Question: If Conley's statement that I dictated the notes to him on Friday had been the truth, did it not "give me away" right then, and demonstrate my guilt of the murder as completely as all the subsequent statements?
(6) Is it right or the law to condemn a man to death when the judge who tried him states that he is not satisfied by his guilt?

ATLANTA TO HAVE MODERN METHOD OF BURIAL

Leads Cities of South in Public Enterprise—Community Mausoleum in North View Cemetery—For Two Hundred Prominent Families

Modern Entombment

THE accompanying illustrations are taken from the plans of the new Community Mausoleum now being erected in North View Cemetery. The sanest "Christian Idea" of the Twentieth Century is the modernized revival of medieval entombment embodied in the Community Mausoleum or "mansion house of the dead." It is the American adaptation of the famous Campo Santa of Italy, combining the ideas of dignity and beauty with modern sanitary devices and monolithic features of more recent concrete construction. Those who have a horror of being placed in the earth after life departs; those who desire a permanent home for the bodies of their loved ones, and all who want to know of the most recent developments toward sanitary burial and insurance against desecration, will be interested in this page. The idea of above-ground entombment is not new. All nations, during their most advanced states of civilization, have erected tombs for the final resting places of their distinguished personages. For generations, even in our own country, we have evidences of the tendency to provide more suitable and permanent resting places for our noted men and their families. The Lincoln, Grant, Garfield and McKinley mausoleums were built by public subscription.

During the past decade, not only science, but public sentiment as well, has demanded the abolition of earth burial as a practice entirely out of keeping with modern thought and progress. Recently the inventive genius of man has devised a method of entombment to satisfy the demands of both sentiment and science. Modern construction and sanitation have made possible the erection of beautiful buildings for the dead, where every man can provide for himself and family that which heretofore only the few could have. A beautiful and permanent resting place where members of the family may lie, side by side, through the long sleep, not an arm's length apart, each in a little white room, perfectly dry, where neither mould nor decay can enter, protected and preserved for all time. The buildings are owned by the subscribers in the same way that cemetery lots or family vaults have been owned heretofore. Each family receives a certificate

Entrance to Mausoleum Park—North View Cemetery—Chattahoochee Avenue and Interurban Railway.

NEW NORTH SIDE CEMETERY

It would be extremely difficult to select a site for the first Community Mausoleum in the South better suited for the purpose than North View Cemetery. Comparatively few citizens of Atlanta realize the extent of a development now in progress which is certain to result in one of the most complete and most beautiful cemeteries in the country.

During the past decade the methods of building and conducting cemeteries have changed. New and modern cemeteries in larger cities are more like attractive parks than dreaded graveyards. They are located in higher and more desirable property rather than in low and inaccessible sections. There prevail more restrictive rules and regulations that tend to more uniformity of ornamentation and decoration, with provisions for perpetual care and upkeep and the prevention of ultimate dilapidation and desecration. The steady growth of Atlanta, especially the continued extension of the city's finest residential sections toward the north and east, has made imperative the establishment of a strictly high-class cemetery to be in keeping with the city's enterprise and at the same time conveniently accessible from the residential sections.

The ideal location for such a cemetery has been found on the north side and for the past several months extensive operations have been in progress. The development of the property has been under the supervision of men who have taken the time and pains to become familiar with the up-to-date methods that are in vogue in other large cities. A visit to this scene of increasing activity convinces one of the unstinted outlay of energy and money in creating a natural beauty spot which will be a decided credit to Atlanta. The property comprises about 200 acres, consisting of a veritable nest of hills overlooking Atlanta and only 20 minutes from the center of the city. From any of these hills one can easily identify the city's skyscrapers and, on the other side, enjoy a view of the beautiful valley of the Chattahoochee River, with the distant mountains as an impressive background.

North View Easily Reached

The cemetery has two attractive entrances, one from Marietta Street, which is a newly paved drive from the center of the city to the river, and the other on Chattahoochee Avenue at the junction of this important thoroughfare and the Marietta Interurban Railway. The street car line running out Marietta Street beyond Inman Yards is now within six blocks of the upper entrance to North View, but one can board the Interurban car at the Walton Street station and, in less than twenty minutes, get off at the main entrance to the grounds. Chattahoochee Avenue has already been graded and the county commissioners have authorized its cherting early this spring. The above illustration, which was made from the plans of the engineer and architect, conveys an excellent idea of what the main entrance will be when completed.

Through the center of the property, around the hills, is being constructed a wide boulevard connecting the two entrances. The hills and natural slopes supply that very desirable feature—perfect drainage—and at the same time, under scientific landscape engineering, yield a system of roadways throughout the property that are practically level and supply a constantly changing panorama of delightful scenic outlooks. Natural rustic hillsides, rocky crags, ravines and sunken gardens, surrounded by groves of heavy timber, and then beautiful stretches of greensward dotted with innumerable gardens of flowers and shrubbery.

And, that this may always be kept beautiful, the company has adopted the plan used by most modern cemeteries, the creation of an endowment fund for permanent investment so that the interest derived from it may be available to keep up the property forever.

On the hills are the remains of an extensive line of fortifications, built during the war for the defense of Atlanta. These will be allowed to remain as points of attraction not only for the residents of the city, but for visitors and tourist inspection, because the completion of this extensive improvement marks the opening of, not only a cemetery, but a beautiful park which can be reached by a delightful drive out Peachtree to Brookwood, thence across to Howell Mill Road and Chattahoochee Avenue, through North View and returning on Marietta Street to the city.

Marble Palace for the Dead

COMMUNITY Mausoleums designed to contain many family and individual compartments, ranging in number from one hundred to one thousand, represent the latest development of the architectural art. It is an interesting fact—a surprising one to most persons—that the custom of burying the dead in graves dug in the ground is being departed from so generally that the construction of mausoleums in the United States has become one of the most important and rapidly growing industries.

How best to dispose of the dead is a question that has been long under consideration by thoughtful and earnest men and women. The practice of burying human bodies in the ground, and the knowledge of what becomes of them there, is undeniably responsible for much of the horror and dread of death. For centuries people have wondered, as they stood by the open grave, whether there might not be some other way of caring for the bodies of departed loved ones. To some, cremation offers a very sanitary disposition of the question, but it has seemed more properly to belong to a rude and unrefined period rather than to the advanced civilization of the twentieth century. It is not easy to bring one's self to the point of permitting, in one brief hour, the annihilation of the form of one long loved. And so it all remained an unsolved problem until 1907. In that year the United States government issued patents for a sanitary crypt and community mausoleum which affords protection to the health of the living, and a saner method of caring for the dead. So perfect is this system in a sanitary way, and so nearly does it satisfy the demands of grief-stricken love, that the sentiment in favor of mausoleum entombment has reached the proportions of a wave of reform. During the past five years nearly two hundred of these buildings have been constructed, the greatest number in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa. Among the principal cities having Community Mausoleums are New York, Philadelphia, Syracuse, Buffalo, Niagara Falls, Toronto, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Chicago, Springfield, Milwaukee, LaCrosse, Omaha, Des Moines, Portland, Tacoma, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The movement is now being introduced in the South and Atlanta will be the first Southern city to complete a building. The Georgia Mausoleum Co., 532 of ownership to the compartments subscribed for and the purchase price covers all charges, including permanent endowment for the perpetual care of the building. The cost is less than the unavoidable expenses incident to earth burial, when even a modest monument is erected, while the remains rest in a better and more sanitary tomb than has heretofore been obtained in the private vaults of the wealthy. The families already interested will require, it is estimated, about six hundred crypts, and plans and specifications for such a building have been prepared by Architect A. Ten Eyck Brown, of this city, who has given the work a great deal of professional study and investigation with a view to making the Atlanta building the finest structure of its kind in the country.

Most Beautiful in America

Experts in this business, to whom the plans have been submitted, universally agree that Atlanta will have by far the most beautiful, most completely equipped and most permanently constructed building of its kind in the country. That the mausoleum will be built according to these plans which have been submitted to the subscribers, and that the whole project will be carried out as represented, is guaranteed by the men who are behind the movement and whose reputation for ability and integrity is unquestioned. As pioneers in this field their work is humanitarian and should appeal to the public spirit and civic pride of thoughtful, earnest men and women.

This is an age of Progress. What was impossible yesterday is today a mere matter of fact. We all must be earnest enough, serious enough and honest enough with ourselves to admit that some day, somewhere, we must find a resting place. It is for you to decide today whether you will have the best there is to have—clean, dry, white room in this marble palace, or leave it to chance.

Interior of Marble Finished Chapel.

Candler Building, whose directorate includes prominent men in various sections of the state, is also engaged in the promotion and construction of these buildings in several other important towns of Georgia. The principal features of construction are similar for most buildings erected up to this time. Reinforced concrete is used entirely for the foundations and superstructure—the foundations, great floor and crypts proper make a monolithic mass of reinforced concrete which will last for all time. The crypts or compartments are separated by concrete walls, pure white inside, and each equipped with patented sanitary devices. The outside walls are of solid masonry, the most durable building stone being used.

Lights Eliminate All Gloom

The interior is faced with beautiful marble and the whole impression is one of reposeful beauty and purity. All doors and window frames are bronze and add to the beauty of the building. The buildings are lighted with ornamental deck lights or skylights, the idea being to eliminate entirely all suggestion of depression and gloom, which has, heretofore, been associated with burial.

These buildings are usually sold out before they are built and then constructed to accommodate only those who have subscribed for space. It is one of those desirable possessions which, in order to have it when needed most, must be provided for when needed least. Construction work on this building is already well under way and reservations for space are being made by some of the most prominent families of Atlanta. Compartments are sold on subscription at prices easily within the reach of persons in moderate circumstances, payable on easy terms. These subscriptions carry ownership, free of taxes or assessments, and with full benefit of the endowment fund for the perpetual maintenance of the building.

Big Crowd Helps Officer Nab Alleged Pickpocket In Kimball Pool Parlors

Sentence of Ten Years Is Given Decatur Man by Judge Bell.

A large crowd helped O. S. Taylor and Officer Sturdivant and Chewing catch an alleged pickpocket Saturday morning chasing the man across the Whitehall viaduct and into the pool room parlors of the Kimball House where the officers seized him. The young man gave his name as William Watson. A few minutes before Taylor was in a store on Whitehall street and feeling a tugging at his hip pocket he turned around and quickly seized the wrist of the man. Watson broke loose from his grasp and ran out of the crowded store with Taylor at his heels. The chase continued across the viaduct being taken up by a large number of people. The fugitive ducked into the entrance of the Kimball House and ran into the pool room. The officers followed him and nabbed him. Watson has been in Atlanta for several days but refuses to tell the detectives where he has been staying. Letters and cards were found on him. The police are holding him for further investigation.

EAT LESS MEAT AND TAKE SALTS IF KIDNEYS ACHE OR BACK HURTS

NOT so very many years ago community life in this country was slight.

A plantation was a community unto itself. The mistress, the chief homemaker, was the superintendent of all industry that provided food and clothing. Even the water supply and garbage disposal systems were under her direct management. As settlements became larger and communities increased these efficient women delegated the water supply, garbage disposal, school systems, lighting plants (discharging kerosene lamps for city electric stations), woolen and cotton supplies, preserves, jellies, etc., to groups of men.

The men took them over and some of the activities were administered efficiently for profit and many of them were absorbed in a maelstrom of politics. Then came a generation of women who forgot that such things properly belonged to their direction and the men had full sway. The present generation of women are cognizant of all the activities, private and public, that touch their family interests. Today their husbands may not raise a drove of hogs, butcher them and turn them over to the kitchen corps of the household for preparation of a winter's meat supply—but, nevertheless, the women are going to see to it that the meat supply coming into their homes is just as clean, unadulterated and reliable as if they did have personal supervision of its preparation.

Women today delegate even much of their soup-making to men—but they are going to assure themselves that men so honored shall use in that soup's preparation ingredients as well grown, as thoroughly cleaned and as properly mixed and cooked as they would have been in their own kitchen at home. You can't fool the women. For a long time, before newspaper men in both advertising and editorial departments, began demanding truth in advertising, a great many men made fortunes out of improper supplies for the home. The women, guided by honest newspapers, found them out. That is why there is now almost universal honesty in the production of family supplies. The women won't buy poor stuff. The retailer who keeps adulterated products or shoddy goods dare not advertise and subject his stock to the scrutiny of the modern woman. He knows she will drive him out of business.

To advertise properly in The Constitution is in itself a guarantee that you have faith in your goods—that they will bear investigation and that the work of supplying families, delegated to you by the women, may safely be left in your hands. Every new home established this spring by a newly married couple should, at your suggestion, first subscribe to The Constitution and form the habit of buying from your advertisements. It is to your profit to offer them this efficient plan of household economy.

Conservatism the Shibboleth Of Good Police Commissioner Says Mason on Leaving Board

The most important and gravest duty of a police commissioner of a large growing and cosmopolitan city like Atlanta where there is almost sure to be agitated questions involving the regulation of public interests is to keep the pendulum from swinging too far towards any extreme.

CARLOS MASON

So stated Carlos H. Mason who retired on March 10 from the board of police commissioners of Atlanta after serving six years five of which he was chairman of the board. He was asked by The Constitution to make a statement about the police department how he had found it, what improvement had been made in six years and what it now most needed.

After a law had been enacted prohibiting a police commissioner from serving more than one term the statute was changed so as to permit a commissioner to succeed himself for one term and this was done especially to allow Mr. Mason to continue in office which was of itself a compliment to him as an official and a recognition of his popular ability.

When Mr. Mason became a commissioner in 1908, there were all told on the police force 139 employees. When he retired there were 250. During his tenure of office he missed only two meetings of the board one caused by illness and the other by sickness.

When asked by The Constitution to make a statement concerning police affairs he said he did not like to parade himself in public print now that he has retired from the police board but it may be well that I say a few words about what has been accomplished in six years.

Spending Money for Advertising

Is but half the process of real advertising. The secret is to make the results of advertising more than pay for the cost--earn a profit and at the same time build up good will for the product advertised.

This applies whether your problem be that of increasing demand on an article of common consumption, the establishment of a new commodity, or the selling of real estate. The principle is the same in every case.

If your advertising is costing you money, it's not the fault of advertising, but the fault of method.

If your advertising is not really profitable, it's because you are depending more upon the cost of it than upon the method.

If your advertising is profitable, perhaps it could be made more so by those who do nothing but study how.

In any case it will cost you nothing to secure expert advice upon this subject, this important subject.

Reputable publications pay competent advertising agents--pay them well--to advise with you on your advertising problems.

If you talk to a good lawyer it costs you so much a minute to get right guidance on legal matters.

If you talk to us it costs you nothing to get business advice on a subject that can be made either to win or lose for larger amounts than are generally involved in law suits.

Let's talk it over.

"Massacre of the Innocents" in the City of Moscow

Foundling Hospital Where, of 1,083,000 Children Received in 150 Years, More Than 900,000 Have Died of Starvation, Suffocation and Other Causes Within a Year of Birth—Authorities Believe Death Is Best Thing That Could Happen to Majority of the Waifs.

Czarina Alexandra of Russia.

Moscow's Foundling Hospital.

Dowager Empress Marie of Russia.

Moscow, March 14.—Empress Alexandra Feodorovna, Moscow's governor Count L. N. Mouraviev, and many other mighty persons are deep in discussion of the massacre of innocents. The massacre of innocents (nothing like it has been seen since Herod's day) is the terrible slaughter of babies that goes on in Moscow's foundling hospital.

Everyone in Moscow knows the foundling hospital—the "Vospitatelni Dom"—a vast, white, barracks-like building, which lies on the banks of the Moscow river. Nobody can help knowing it, for from it every day issue ten to fifty coffins of little children who have done no one harm, except the harm of being born into the world. Since this charitable institution was founded it has put nearly a million babies to death, and despite "science" and "civilization" and the "progress of medicine," it is more fatal to be put into it today than it was in the infancy of the empire.

Great Lethal Chamber.

Last summer a member of the Moscow municipal assembly called the "Vospitatelni Dom" a "great lethal chamber, but somewhat expensive." They must all be killed why not kill them at once? This remark was called forth by a newspaper report that of 207 children brought into the hospital during the week which were dead before the end of July. Moscow officials call the big institution "bozhye grabli," or "God's rake," for there is a proverb that "God rakes in everything at the end," and a baby sent to the "dom" is almost as sure to be killed as when a mouse is run over by a man who already has the mouse round his neck.

Russia has always peculiar ways of treating her foundlings. Peter the Great was considered a great civilization when he issued a decree ordering the church to "institute hospitals at the church boundaries, and to circulate the waifs (that children who were found through away) should no longer be swept into the ashpits with other dirt, but should be handed over to the above mentioned hospitals." Since then many czars and czarinas have fought the problem. Peter's widow, Catherine I, and his daughter, Elizabeth, built several foundling hospitals, and Catherine the Great built the vast Moscow hospital. She was put up to it by her favorite, Betsy Betsy herself drew the plans. Catherine issued a decree saying that the "dom" was for the good education of innocent children and to prevent the innumerable murders by unhappy mothers.

Born Out of Wedlock.

The "dom" was to take children born out of wedlock whose mothers were poor. It was to be a model institution, "to save many thousands of lives." The male foundlings, when they attained manhood, were to marry serf girls, who by virtue of the marriage were at once to be set free. This pious intention was frustrated by the fact that many of the boys, before they were twelve months old, died because of the neglect and carelessness of the nurses. The trouble was that while magnificent Catherine and beneficent Betsy built a splendid edifice they gave it no subsidy. They declared that it must be maintained out of "good men's charity." The good man's charity was so abundant that in 1767, four years after the foundation, out of 1,083 children taken in, 1,073 died. To remedy this a tax was put on playing cards for the "dom's" benefit, and it was allowed to run a pawnshop. These sources brought in $2,000 a year, of about $2 a year per child. In those days the "dom" took, and slaughtered about 1,000 children a year; now its sphere of beneficence is enormously enlarged, for it takes and slaughters about 10,000. The last attempt at reform was the inclusion of the "dom" in the class of charities known as "the institutions of the Empress Marie." This charitable organization has a $1,300,000 annual revenue, which comes partly from compulsory "voluntary" contributions; partly from a tax on playing cards and theater tickets. The elderly Empress Marie is unable to manage it; much of the $1,300,000 is stolen, the institutions are all badly run; and the foundling hospital continues to manufacture corpses at a speed which would make the god of cholera turn green with envy.

Exuberance of Massacre.

The full exuberance of massacre is, of course, not shown by the official figures. The official figures merely show that of 1,083,000 babies taken in the decade ending 1893, 50,000 died, that in the next decade out of 11,000, 43,000 died; that in the next decade 40,000 died out of 120,000. The figures further show that in the 150 years of existence which were completed this summer the charitable institution took in 1,083,000 children, of whom 488,000 died within a year. In reality most of these died, not within a year, but of starvation (or auto-cannation) within a week or ten days of their reception, and usually within four weeks of their birth. To kill half a million children out of a million is no great achievement. But the charitable institution's success was greater. For these figures show the total number of children taken in, but of the deaths they show only that portion which took place within the hospital walls. The real mortality was double that is, since the hospital had the ingenious notion of sending the children out to nurse in the villages near Moscow. At first the village women were given a lump sum of $1.50 for each child, and for this they were expected to bring up the child for a whole year. They took the money, and let the infant die. This system is still in force, with the difference that the village people are a little better paid. But the massacre in the villages goes on. How many die is not exactly known. But in four Moscow districts which took children in 1909 and 1910, 5,800 children died out of 7,000. The final estimate of Dr. Dunansky, a recognized authority, is that of the 1,083,000 babies brought into the hospital during 150 years, at least 900,000 perished, either there or in the villages, within one year of birth.

Cause of the Massacre.

The cause of the massacre of innocents is more or less intentional neglect, starvation and lack of air. "The conditions in the hospital," says Dunansky, "are such that the figure of Mercy which stands on one of the gate pillars ought to be labeled 'Death.' That is, unless 'mercy' is understood to mean the putting of innocent children out of a sinful, sorrowful world. In that case the 'dom' is an institution of mercy, for the feeding, clothing and ventilation are splendidly arranged for the causing of speedy death." Nearly all the deaths are registered as due to intestinal and breathing troubles. That means that the children are either starved, or wrongfully fed, to death; or that they perish from want of air. There is no decent milk supply, and there are foster mothers for only a third of the infants. This alone means death, for all the infants are at an age when milk is the only nourishment. Further, the hospital is overcrowded. It was meant to take in 4,000 children a year, and to keep them till they came to school age, allowing for a normal child mortality. Instead, it takes 15,000 a year, and has sometimes taken 20,000. The overcrowding means wholesale death. The wholesale death would relieve the overcrowding were it not that there are enough homeless infants in Moscow alone to fill three such hospitals.

The "dom" takes a pride in saving a few infants. It picks these out on eugenic principles, choosing the strong, and these it gives to healthy foster-mothers, and puts in relatively well-ventilated rooms. No serious attempt is made to save the other children. The hospital administration reasons that death is the best thing for them. If they are kept alive, the "dom" would soon not be able to take any more, and what would become of the 10,000 dead next year? The simplest thing is to put them to death, and make room for the next. The slaughter in the villages is accelerated by the fact that the "dom" sends out the most unhealthy children. The peasant woman does not feed them with milk. She chews rye bread into a sticky paste, wraps it in ball shape in a wet cotton rag and gives it to the infant to suck. These bread-crumb balls are called "boski" by the peasants, and it is said that some children who are fed on them survive.

People Not Pleasured.

Despite the philosophic attitude toward the massacre of innocents of the "dom" officials, people outside are not pleased. The newspapers publish the figures with notes of exclamation, and ask why the "dom" does not save trouble and suffering by giving the babies a dose of morphia on the day they arrive. Once or twice the outside authorities tried to check the slaughter. Formerly the "dom" took in all foundlings found in the street, and also all children delivered by their mothers or by others. It asks no questions.

Did Murdering for Them.

Anyone could get rid of an unwanted child gratis by sending it to the "dom," and vicious parents were not tempted to murder their children, for the good reason that the "dom" did the murdering for them and saved them trouble and punishment. This system was reformed by compelling mothers to bring evidence of identity and by requiring a payment down of 10 rubles ($5) per baby. The results were bad. The number of babies delivered at the "dom" fell off and the number found in the streets quadrupled. As the children found in the streets were often weak from exposure, the reform had merely the effect of increasing the mortality. Other attempts to remedy abuses had no results, and now Empress Alexandra and other persons in authority think the scandal is too great and want to put a stop to it.

When Empress Alexandra passed through Moscow on the occasion of this week's centenary festivities she summoned Governor Mouraviev and asked him to do something. All he could do, said Mouraviev, was to compel the sanitary police to inspect the building and to insist on inquiries before new babies were admitted. He further said he could enforce police measures which might diminish the evil of abandoning children in the streets. This is not easy, as 32 per cent of Moscow's children are born out of wedlock, and since the "dom" was reformed, and the double for made compulsory the impulse to conceal parentage has become more marked. Governor Mouraviev then suggested that the "dom" should be taken over by the municipality. This caused trouble, because the municipality would mean taking it out of the "Institutions of the Empress Marie," and that has always been opposed by the Empress Marie, who is extremely jealous of her control.

Probably nothing will be done. When Governor Mouraviev visited the "dom" he saw the children who are carried out at the same time. One man carried three, balanced on top of one another as water's balance plates. "This is a quiet day," said the hall porter. "The day before yesterday thirty-seven died." JULIUS OSTMANN

BERLIN TO PUT BRAKES ON ITS ALL-NIGHT LIFE

Members of Reichstag Declare City Has Become a Den of Vice.

Berlin, March 14.—For years Berlin strove to become the greatest all-night city in the world, and now its members of Reichstag declare that it is a den of vice and that it has become a danger to the German people.

Out of the 444 members of the Prussian parliament, 320 had signed a petition that the city is a den of vice and have petitioned the minister of the interior to "ward off the dangers to which the bodies and souls of youths are exposed." The forty members of the progressive party in the diet have not joined in the petition, but their spokesman declared that in a general way it expressed their views. Baron Schenk zu Schweinsberg, speaking for the conservatives, made a bitter attack upon conditions in Berlin. The number of dissolute women, he said, was increasing tremendously, with all the evils that follow in their train. "Berlin by night" had become an advertising slogan known throughout the world. As a matter of fact, Berlin by night is "the darkest spot in Prussia and in the German empire." Cabarets, dance halls and dangerous drinking places were destroying the youth, and when a move was made against them they went up to the police were threatening business. The baron also attacked the cinematograph as a factor in demoralization.

A tree conservative representative, Herr Voster, seconded Baron zu Schweinsberg's statements. The city's night program, he said, is made up as follows: From 8 to 11 o'clock, theaters, 11 to 2, wine restaurants or dance halls; 2 to 4, bars, and 4 to 6, "night resorts." The advocates of all-night revelry, he said, defended their attitude on the ground that Berlin is one of the world's great cities, and must cater to visitors from abroad. They overlooked the fact that the public places in London close at midnight and in New York at 12 o'clock.

Representatives of the liberal and national liberal parties also attacked the night program. The smaller cities, too, are becoming infected, he said. Johann von Döllwitzer, minister of the interior, declared that there were great obstacles in the way of a successful campaign against the dangers of present conditions. He alluded to the fact that the number of places holding all-night licenses is, he hoped, eventually to be reduced to 100. He further stated that the number of places holding all-night licenses is, he hoped, eventually to be reduced to 100.

No Defender of Night Life. No earnest defender of the night life of Germany was to be seen in the diet, but one apologist has directed attention to the fact that in other countries the average business hours are divided into two periods, one from 9 to 12 and another from 2 to 6, and that in the evening, and if they wish to visit theaters, moving picture shows or other amusements, they must go during their place of business without pausing for supper. The speaker declared that it is a necessity, and they will take up a big part of the crowd that will be in the streets drinking places from 11 until 2 o'clock.

Life Insurance at Four Cents a Week

British Government Trying to Galvanize Its Moribund Postoffice Insurance Department into Life, and British Insurance Companies Start a Campaign to Save Their Business From the State.

(Copyright, 1914, by Curtis Brown.) London, March 14.—Ideal socialism would take no account of life insurance, for in a state where all were provided for provision for one's dependence would be unnecessary. In spite of this, the efforts of the British postoffice to infuse life into its moribund system of life insurance are being bitterly attacked by the life insurance companies in England—especially the "industrial" concerns, as "rank socialism."

Comparatively few people, even in this country, know that one can insure one's life with the state and that the premiums can be paid weekly. It is a fact, however, that since 1865 this has been the case. The extent of the business done may be judged by a statement made a few weeks ago by J. Baynton Black, a British insurance expert, at an insurance congress at Glasgow, Scotland, in which he declared that for as long as he could remember the postoffice insurance scheme had been the standing joke of the industry. It was inaugurated as long ago as 1865, and its transfer to the postoffice savings bank took place in 1882. The idea then was that the insured person should have a savings bank account, and that his insurance premium should be deducted from this once a year. In theory this system looked attractive, but in practice it did not work satisfactorily, and in 1897 a parliamentary committee was set up, of which Lord Farrer was chairman, to inquire into the cause of the failure of the scheme.

"We receive many applications from people all over the country for policies for $2,500 or $5,000, but the postoffice is limited to amounts not exceeding $500. Lord Farrer's committee recommended that the limit should be raised, but that could have required legislation and the government took the view that the field for ordinary insurance was amply covered and refused to raise the limit.

The committee recommended that something should be done to induce working men to set aside a few pence a week for life insurance, and our new system of payment by small weekly installments—which can be paid in stamps—has been introduced as a result of this.

Premiums Very Low. From 4 cents to 12 cents a week, and all payments cease at the age of 60. For instance, a payment of 4 cents a week, beginning at the age of 15, will insure the payment of about $101 at death—the exact sum in English money is £20 5 shillings—12 cents a week, beginning at the same age, will insure the payment at death of £160—about $390—4 cents a week, beginning at the age of 40 will pay for 27 1/2 shillings—about $39 50—at death, and 12 cents £29 16 shillings—about $49.

RIGHT HON. DAVID LLOYD-GEORGE, British chancellor of the exchequer, who is the author of the English state insurance scheme.

"Applications from those who desire to invest more than 12 cents a week in insurance will be specially dealt with, and under this part of the scheme persons of either sex between the ages of 14 and 50 are eligible."

The comptroller then handed me a copy of the circular which has just been issued to savings bank depositors. After setting out the table of rates and other particulars the circular goes on as follows:

"Do you feel that you ought to insure your life?"

"Have you enough resolution to set aside a few pence every week for this purpose?"

"If so, the postmaster general, who does not employ canvassers or collectors, desires to call your attention to a new system under which you may pay your premiums in weekly installments and secure the following advantages:

"1. Low rates.

"2. No payments required after age of 60.

"3. Government guarantee.

"4. Generous treatment in the matter of surrender values.

"5. Freedom from restrictions as to residence and occupation.

"6. Free medical examination.

"7. Acceptance without medical examination under certain conditions."

The first step is to apply at a post-office for a proposal form. The form contains a table showing what amount can be insured at death for small weekly payments ceasing at age of 60. It is a simple form to fill up, and any assistance required will be given at the postoffice.

"Every contract which has been invested.

"For instance, insurance not exceeding $125 can be effected with or without medical examination. Above that amount examination is necessary. In no case is any fee charged, and the contract issued to those who undergo examination provides for full benefit in the event of death after the first quarter's premium has been paid. In the absence of a medical examination the full amount of the insurance will not be payable until four quarters' premiums have been paid, but in the event of death within the first year the full premiums paid will be refunded.

"Every contract which has been invested.

"The premiums are payable by means of ordinary postage stamps to be affixed weekly in a premium book kept by the insured person. At the end of each quarter the book is presented at a postoffice, and the officer receiving it tears out the slip bearing the stamps, and gives a receipt for the amount paid. This receipt, which is on a counterfoil in the book, bears the office stamp, and is the insured person's evidence of payment.

Depends on Workingman. "We have in the postoffice all the machinery for doing the biggest insurance business in the world, and the success of the scheme depends on the common sense of the workingman himself. We propose at present to confine ourselves to the small policy, and we hope that the people of small means will see the advantages of doing business with the state. How slow the British workingman has been to see the advantages is shown by the following figures: In 1886, the first year of the scheme, 621 contracts were written for £286,395; in 1897, 677 contracts for $187,560. In 1912, the last year for which figures are available, there were only 315 new contracts, for a total of $7,629. The total number of contracts in force at the end of 1912 was 2,518, their total value being $3,538,520.

All sorts of objections to the scheme are urged by the insurance companies, and a campaign crying down the government enterprise has been begun. Here is the opinion of William Schooling, who is probably the greatest insurance expert in England:

"It is not easy to compare the postoffice policy with those of industrial life offices. The limited policy is not an insurance, but a policy, with premiums ceasing at 60. Do not appear to be quoted by the industrial companies, as no demand for assurance of this kind seems to exist. Endowment assurance, maturing at a given age or at previous ages, is extremely popular, as are whole-life policies, nominally subject to the payment of premiums for the whole of life, but with the cessation of premiums at age 55, provided maturity is not reached by the insured. It is conceivable that the saving of expense by the use of stamps might compensate for the drawback in connection with investments, so far as industrial life assurance is concerned, though it does not appear that this is the case.

Entirely Unattractive. "For policies of £50 or upwards, which can be obtained under the ordinary life rates at quarterly premiums, the postoffice system is entirely unattractive, as was foreseen by the committee, whose opinion on this point, especially in connection with participating policies I have quoted above. The reason for this is to be found chiefly, though not solely, in the limited choice of investments available to a government department.

"If the scheme had been started at the commencement of this century and the money invested in consols as at present there would have been in the course of thirteen years a fatal large amount of depreciation.

"It is scarcely possible that there can be any two opinions as to the inferiority of the postoffice results to those of life assurance companies for policies of £50 or over, so long as the postoffice is limited even to parliamentary securities.

"Another matter I have been wondering about is how the postoffice proposes to deal with speculative policies, and the question of insurable interest. It is scarcely to be expected

POLICEMEN WANTED FOR ARCTIC ISLANDS

Powers to Declare the Islands Neutral and Stop Lawlessness.

Christiania, March 14.—The Arctic islands of Spitzbergen, unclaimed and almost uninhabited, the resort of whalers and walrus hunters and the only place within the Arctic circle visited by tourists, because of the danger to the attention of the powers, including the United States, in an effort officially to declare them neutral and provide for their policing during the summer months, when the ice melts and the crews of visiting whalers and seal hunters has been increasing.

No power ever has made a serious claim to Spitzbergen, the mountainous island north of Norway and northeast of Greenland having been regarded as almost valueless. But the discovery of coal, which is being worked principally by American capital, has completely changed the outlook, and incidentally brought the United States into the picture. The United States has been invited because of the coal interests of American citizens there. These mines are worked by American companies and have been worked in summer since 1905. Some of the miners occasionally spend the winter in the quarters and are completely shut off from the outside world for about eight months.

Spitzbergen is 92 miles from the coasting operations also, while German are interested as owners of an important part of the coal mines. It is proposed that this area be opened to all nations, but under the control of three northern powers. The administration is in the hands of the United States, Sweden and Norway—the expenses of government are to be shared by the three. Other arrangements for revenue, subject to the assent of all the signatory powers, will be proposed at this international convention shall be renewable every eighteen years.

It is not a picture that one easily calls to mind of a government department telephoning to the local postmaster, when, say, a mine accident occurs, to discover the beneficiaries under policies on the lives of those killed, and to pay the claims without questions asked within a few hours as can possibly be managed, yet this is the normal practice of industrial companies." MARBLE MAUSOLEUM NOW BEING ERRECTED

Atlanta Takes Long Step Forward in Caring for Bodies of Departed Loved Ones.

Atlanta has taken a long step forward in the matter of caring for the bodies of departed loved ones. Building now in North View cemetery at the intersection of Chatham street and the Marietta interurban line is a concrete and marble mausoleum containing tombs and crypts for 200 families. This is only the first of others which will be erected on the Fortified hills.

Webber, Mausoleum Construction company; A. DeLoach, architect, and Alex. W. Smith, general counsel.

During the last five years the community mausoleum has become thoroughly established in several northern and eastern states. Several of them have been built in Chicago, Baltimore, a notable one of huge dimensions and great architectural beauty being the Rosshill mausoleum (H. Rosshill) cemetery. Wherever established this system of burial has come to be regarded as the most sanitary and generally satisfactory method of caring for the dead. Moreover, it provides most economical and dignified means, whereas heretofore only the rich and distinguished have been able to bury their bodies in their departed members. The community mausoleum is planned to cost less than the average funeral and even modest monuments are provided. The community mausoleum is endowed with a trust fund to preserve and its upkeep for all time. This fund, placed with a responsible trust company, is so invested to preserve and care for the building in perpetuity.

North View cemetery, which surrounds the new mausoleum, is on hills, one of which is seventy feet higher than the Candler building. It is the most magnificent site around Atlanta and from one side of the property a commanding view of the Chattahoochee valley and the mountains beyond is obtained. The landscape gardening has about been completed and lake, parked drives and floral gardens have begun to take on their spring dress of natural beauty. One large circular plot has been turned over to the cemetery company and is now all ready for division into family lots.

$60,000 IS SUBSCRIBED FOR BAPTIST HOSPITAL

Atlanta Has Only $40,000 More to Raise to Complete Her Part.

The amount subscribed for the Greater Georgia Baptist hospital, which is to be a $200,000 plant and one of the largest Christian hospitals in the south, has reached the high-water mark of $60,000. This has been contributed by the Atlanta Baptist association, which has pledged to raise $100,000 for the hospital. The rest of the amount is to come as follows: From the Baptist State Mission Board, $100,000; and from the Atlanta Baptists, states that the remaining $40,000 will be forthcoming in the next few weeks. He states that subscriptions are coming in every day, and that on Saturday large subscriptions were received by him from churches that heretofore have never given a cent to the fund. "I am having matters go easy now," said Mr. Coolegge, "because I do not wish to interfere with the campaign being waged for the Wesley Memorial hospital. But, just as soon as their campaign is over, I expect to start things going again."

WEST SIDE CLUB WILL ASK FOR IMPROVEMENTS

About seventy-five citizens of West Side, Atlanta, met Saturday night at the Red Men's hall and organized the West Side Improvement club for the purpose of bringing to attention improvements said to be needed in that part of the city. W. E. Savell was elected chairman of the club, and Roy B. Mooney appointed secretary and treasurer. The club will hold its second meeting next Friday night at the Red Men's hall and nearly 200 members are expected to be present.

EX-MAYOR JAILED ON ARSON CHARGE

Visit of the State Fire Commissioner to Sylvester Results in Issuing of Warrants.

Sylvester, Ga., March 14.—(Special.) O. L. Deariso, a prominent young man and former mayor of the town, was this afternoon arrested upon a warrant charging arson in connection with a fire which occurred recently in the Farmers Union warehouse at this place. The warrant was issued by E. E. Cox, judge of superior court, in person, at the request of W. R. Joyner, state fire insurance commissioner, and was made returnable to Worth superior court. The arrest follows a recent visit of the insurance commissioner, who came here for the purpose of investigating a fire which occurred in the warehouse which Deariso operated or managed. The fire in question was discovered before it had gained much headway and was extinguished by the local fire department after damage to only three or four bales of cotton. However, afterward many bales of cotton were reported missing or stolen and the visit of the fire commissioner grew out of this circumstance. Deariso was based on a $3,000 bond and claims absolute innocence of any connection with the fire. He has extensive family connections and is prominent, having served as mayor of Sylvester last year although only about 27 years of age.

NEW STRUCTURES GOING UP ON ALL SIDES AT COLUMBUS

Columbus, Ga., March 14.—(Special.) The Russian jew congregation in Columbus is to erect an edifice and a local architect is now preparing plans. This is the first synagogue and is very venerable building, will be located at the corner of First avenue and Seventh street. The Rose Hill Baptist church will increase the capacity of the auditorium by constructing a balcony and installing piano and an addition to the church. The action of the Muscogee county commissioners in voting $15,000 to the new city-county hospital means that $75,000 will be expended for the building, which will soon be under way. Plans are being prepared for a two-story addition to the three-story Murrah office building. The Southern Railway company's new freight depot, a building nearly a block long, has just been completed. The Empire Mills company is equipping its plant with electric power and making other improvements. The City Mills company has just made substantial improvements at its plant. Work on the new nine-story hotel building of the Columbus Georgia Hotel company is proceeding steadily.

BOARD OF PRISONERS SAVED BY NEW PLAN

Athens, Ga., March 14.—(Special.)—Clarke county has hit upon a good plan to save the board of prisoners who have been bound over by the committing courts to the grand jury—while waiting for trial. Five negro men were this morning sent to the camps as a result of the new plan. In an example, Pierce Dorse, was bound over to the superior court on charges of carrying a pistol concealed and shooting at another—a misdemeanor and a felony—and returned to jail in default of bail. The city court, under accusation and before the judge only, waiving jury trial, advised him guilty of having a pistol without license, a misdemeanor, and he was sent to the camp for eight months straight, being in safekeeping for the superior court and at the same time materially adding to the product of the good roads gang. Burrell Pope and Gyp Smith were yesterday bound over to the superior court for assault with intent to murder, and they were sent up pending that hearing for a like twelve months in the gang straight.

$25,000 SUIT AGAINST CITY OF THOMASVILLE

Thomasville, Ga., March 14.—(Special.)—Thomasville city court convened here Monday for the March term and will probably be in session some time. Among the cases of interest to be tried here was the suit for damages brought by Mrs. Nancy Jones against the city of Thomasville for $25,000 for the death of her son, M. J. Jones, which she claims was the result of his coming in contact with an overcharged wire of the city electric light company. Young Jones, who came with the Cheri-Cola company here, died suddenly one night last year while at his place of business. The verdict of the attending physician was that death was the result of heart trouble superinduced by coming into contact with an electric wire. This case will probably be a hard-fought one on each side and may take some time.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't Stay Gray! Here's an Old-Time Recipe That Anybody Can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and abundant. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. "Brewing at home is messy and awkward. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of 'Wyneth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy,' you will get this famous old recipe which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair and is splendid for dandruff, dry, feverish, itchy scalp and falling hair. A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two it becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and abundant."

First Development of the Year

A BIG BOULEVARD extending through the S. C. Stovall property, past the Capital City Country Club and through the Hart estate, lying just north of the Brookhaven estates and the Country Club; thence into DeKalb County and through one land lot to Oglethorpe University grounds and Silver Lake properties; thence on a direct route to Chamblee and extending on north by way of Peachtree road.

These properties will make only a few tracts, as it is to be cut into lots of two to five acres each. Each tract will be developed upon its own merits, and a carefully selected building site will be provided in each instance.

The route selected follows a ridge higher than any part of Peachtree Road, overlooking the entire country. With the beautiful club property and lake in the foreground, it has the effect of a mountain plateau, with a great formal garden extending in all directions.

Some of the finest landscape engineers of this and other sections have inspected this property, and express wonder that this plan has not been discovered sooner.

Below are the endorsements of some of the officials of the Capital City Country Club, and also a plat showing the proposed Boulevard.

Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company

Works East Pittsburgh, Pa.
CANDLER BUILDING
ATLANTA, GA.
March 15th, 1914.

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir:

The plan you have outlined for connecting the property adjoining the Capital City Country Club with that adjoining the site set aside for Oglethorpe University with a splendid driveway in which you make provision for a private right-of-way for the car line, is one of the broadest developments undertaken around Atlanta.

I did not know until I saw your plat that only one road lot separates the properties of Brookhaven Estates from that of the Silver Lake Estates nor that a drive could be built on the north side of the Capital City Club property to connect with the University site, that would be $\frac{1}{2}$ hundred feet longer than by Peachtree Road.

The fact that you are willing to change your plan, so that your proposed driveways around the Club property be more an attractive Boulevard system around the Club links and are willing to locate your drive on the north of the links, fifty or more feet from the Club property and allow the Club the use of this space that is very necessary to make this part of the links as wide as they should be, is another evidence of your generosity in dealing with your neighbors. It occurs to me that your neighbors, and the public, have profited more than you have, in all of your developments; but it is that broadness of vision that has made your developments successful.

I believe the Club and the University will be glad to co-operate with you to the fullest extent in carrying out your development plans and I hope that all adjoining property owners will do the same.

Wishing you success in all your plans I am

Very truly,

John White
Chairman Golf Committee,
Capital City Country Club.

IN ORDER to meet the demand of the public for suburban home sites, ranging in size from one to five acres, I have formed a syndicate, and had plans prepared, as shown by the above plat of S. Z. Ruff and Knox T. Thomas, engineers, for a subdivision of this kind, lying between the Capital City Country Club property and the site of Oglethorpe University and the Silver Lake Estates, and have planned to connect these two properties by a boulevard sixty-six feet wide, which is shown on this plat as Oglethorpe University Road. It is planned that this road shall be built as a double roadway, with a private right of way twenty feet wide between the roadways, to be used for any extension of the car line, either to the Club or to the University. I believe that it is desirable for every interurban car line to have a private right of way, and therefore I have provided such right of way in the driveway marked "Oglethorpe University Road," which will make a splendid route to the University and the Silver Lake Estates, which will be practically no longer than to use Peachtree Road. I believe it will be more desirable to reach these properties with a car line over this route, and leave Peachtree Road as an automobile route only.

It is proposed for the property owners to bring this driveway to a proper grade, at their own expense, and I think DeKalb and Fulton Counties should co-operate in paying it in view of the wonderful advance in taxable values that will accrue in this section, by reason of the development of this property, which is now known as back property or farm lands.

To show the effect of this class of development, I will state that the City and County derived a revenue of $50,000.00 in taxes from the Ansley Park development alone, in 1913, whereas, nine years ago, this property was a tangled mass of underbrush, and paid taxes of less than $1,000.00 to Fulton County at that time.

I am advised that it is very desirable to widen the Golf Links on the north side of the lake, in order to give more width to the greens, and I have, therefore, planned to move the proposed roadway, extending along the northern side of the club's property, some distance back, approximately as shown by the dotted lines on the above plat, so as to allow the links to be extended into our property.

EDWIN P. ANSLEY
Second Floor Forsyth Building

THE AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK OF ATLANTA
CAPITAL AND RESERVE $1,000,000

ATLANTA, GA., March 15, 1914

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Sir:

I have seen the preliminary plans for connecting from Peachtree Road the Capital City Country Club property and the Oglethorpe University and Silver Lake properties by the development of land lots 10, 11 and 12. This will hold these valuable properties closely together and, when carried out, will be of much benefit to all the properties involved and one of the most important improvements made in the northern end of Fulton and western part of DeKalb County for many years.

I should think the merits of this proposition would fully warrant the City Commissioners of Fulton and DeKalb in co-operating liberally with you and your associates in opening up this property, which is sure to reap a large increase in the taxable values from this section and its rapid development.

As you know I have no personal interest whatever in any of this property, except my interest, as President, in the future welfare of the Capital City Country Club. Knowing your ability and success in developing property in this and other sections of the country, I have confidence in your judgment, and believe that if your present plans are carried out, your expectations in the success of this enterprise will be fully realized, and a second Ansley Park is destined to be developed in this beautiful section of Fulton and DeKalb Counties.

Very truly,
W. P. Maddox

When Baby Cries, What Should Poor Theatrical Manager Do?

HOMER GEORGE REALLY WANTS TO KNOW

By ISMA DOOLY.

I can't help what the mothers in Atlanta fail to do," said Manager Homer George, of the Atlanta theater, when he gently responded to the appeal of a lady who claimed that the conduct of Atlanta audiences was so frequently bad.

The lady a member of the Drama League, explained that she had been appealed to by many, to see what could be done about the bad conduct especially of young women who not only smile at the most trivial moments of plays but actually talked aloud, drop their opera glasses and act altogether inconsiderately.

Mr. George patiently outlined his position in the matter. "These young ladies come to the theater, pay for good seats and seem to feel they can do as they please," he said. "Although there is the unwritten law that ladies should always be considerate in their conduct of people everywhere, there is a clearly written law that if you put anybody out of a theater except for certain specified reasons, the manager is liable for a $10,000 damage suit."

SHE WAS SYMPATHETIC.

The member of the Drama League was sympathetic, but still believed there should be some mode of reprimand decided upon, to protect an audience against ill-bred women young or old.

"Then there arose the question as to the bringing of children to the theater. No one can doubt that the child at its most impressionable age—that between the age of seven and seven and a half—should be brought to see good plays, but the age limit provoked discussion at the recent John Drew matinee, the play was almost directly interrupted by a series of incidents that would have been suitable hints to 'Snootkins' on the funny page. The offenders were two infants in arms—in their mothers arms and one small product of six years. The infants did nothing more than coo and crow a little during the love scenes, but the child of six tried to out-beat the drum of the orchestra with his feet on the seat-in-front of him. He chewed gum, and tested its qualities by drawing it from his cherry mouth, to the top of the bald head of the gentleman in front, threatening to paste it there. He would have done so, but his mother said "don't," slapped his hand, and made him cry.

JUST A LITTLE CRY.

"But he only cried a few moments," said Manager George, "for I remonstrated with the mother for several minutes and the child finally went to sleep on the arm of the lady sitting next to it."

"Yes, I noticed that," said the lady of the Drama League, "but those cooing babies?"

"I had trouble there," said Manager George. "I asked one of the mothers, 'why Madame, did you bring the child here?' It can not understand the play. 'Not understand,' replied the mother, 'why this child understands as much as I do.'"

"I did not argue with the lady," continued Manager George, "but you will understand that it is very difficult for the manager of a theater to make up for what Providence has neglected in the minds of some people and equally as impossible to assume the responsibility so essentially that of a mother to train her daughter to behave well in public places. At this matinee I requested three ladies to leave with their children and they did. Our rule is not to admit those under or near 5 years old except for children's plays."

As a rule the stage people themselves are very tolerant of the bad conduct of audiences, they know it takes all kinds of people to make up a world, but at times when more than the usual number of "oil kettles" begin to misbehave in a public place it is exasperating Mrs. Fiske, after her engagement here, wrote back to a friend the following letter:

MRS. FISKE'S LETTER.

"At our opening performance in Atlanta we faced a large distinguished audience of intelligent and refined people. Such an audience was entitled to the best we could offer, but in this case the performance was marred because of the foolish behavior of several of the young women. Their silly laughter and conspicuous movements distracted and annoyed the actors, and in consequence the actors were unable to give of their best. It is not fair that a majority of unintelligent young people should be permitted to blur the performance for the great body of the audience. We must remember that the persons comprising the audience had each one every one paid the money demanded at the box office. I cannot help repeating that these people were entitled to the best the actors could give. Anything that interferes with the giving of that best should be obliterated completely, with the result that the performance gained immeasurably."

"My father had an effective way of checking habitual coughers in his theaters. He had signs placed conspicuously which read: 'Ladies and gentlemen do not cough in the theater. Others must not."

What a Prominent Artist in Our Midst Has to Say About the Superior Qualities of Kimball Instruments

March 14, 1914.

W.W. Kimball Piano Co.

Gentlemen:-

The last concert of our Philharmonic Orchestra of which I am the Concertmaster, gave me the opportunity of hearing the Kimball Concert grand, and I found this instrument so wonderful that I immediately decided to use the Kimball Pianos for my coming recital and on my concert tour through the United States and Canada.

I am glad to state that your instruments possess all the wonderful qualities, any first class pianist could desire. A perfect inflexible action, and the beautiful carrying tone are the main features of the Kimball Pianos.

I am especially impressed by the brilliancy of the treble and the depth of the bass register giving your noble instrument all possibilities of producing marvelous tonal effects.

Feeling assured in your continued success, I remain,

Very sincerely yours, A. Von Skibinsky

The Political Rights of Women

MRS. MARY L. McLENDON, Editor President Georgia Woman's Suffrage Association.

Miss Jane Adams, first vice president of the National American Woman Suffrage association, together with Mrs. Caroline Ruess, third vice president, Mrs. Mary W. Dammann, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Stanley McCormick, treasurer, and Mrs. James Lois Laidlaw, auditor, honored Atlanta by coming from Birmingham to attend a conference at that place on March 9 and 10 in the state association building.

The reports of the national officers are simply wonderful, of the numbers of members secured, and of the enthusiasm of the women in all the states. It has resulted in putting better cleaner and more public spirited men into office.

It has been the means of accomplishing what has never before been accomplished—namely, the recall of an unscrupulous legislator.

It has resulted in the enactment of laws concerning health, morals, child labor, property, and the men. Equal suffrage has stimulated the men, as well as the women, to a greater interest in all things.

How to Make the Best Cough Remedy at Home

Make a plain syrup by mixing one pint of granulated sugar and 1/2 pint of warm water and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of pure Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle, and fill it with the Sugar Syrup. This gives you a family supply of the best cough syrup at a saving of $2. It never spoils. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

Easy Way to Remove Freckles and Eruptions

Some women have skin of such texture they occasionally are annoyed by the sudden appearance of freckles, slight eruptions or fine lines. March winds usually play havoc with skins of that kind. In such cases, if one will procure an ounce of common mercuric iodine, add to it a few drops of water, and apply with a brush.

The opening of the Linen Store provides the purchasing public of Atlanta a home of specialties of a class found in the larger cities. Linens only of the best known and most reliable makes will be offered, and will be sold at all times under a positive guarantee. We show, among other makes complete lines of— GENUINE MORAVIAN TABLECLOTHS AND NAPKINS— JOHN S. BROWN'S SHAMROCK BRAND DAMASKS— FLEUR DE LIS HAND LOOM TABLECLOTHS AND NAPKINS.

Pianos and Player Pianos

WE HAVE THEM AT PRICES NEVER BEFORE APPROACHED

THE REASON:

We have just purchased a large lot of pianos and player pianos from a concern going out of business. The prices paid were ridiculously low, and we do not believe such a low price was ever before obtained on high-class merchandise. Every piano is a world-famous make; we hesitate to name the makers, as this would hurt their future business in this section.

- $700 to $800 Player Pianos $325 to $365
600 to 700 Player Pianos 300 to 325
500 to 600 Pianos 225 to 300
350 to 475 Pianos 165 to 275

Slightly used pianos and player pianos, many of them like new, go at almost your own price; we do not expect to get cost of manufacture out of this lot; we can sell them much below factory cost, and still make a fair profit. Remember, our guarantee goes with each instrument, and reasonable terms of payment will be granted.

SALESMAN NEEDED DESPITE HIS COST

Editor Voicing a Protest Against Commercial Travelers, Answers His Own Argument for Boosters.

It would be a pretty hard task to convince a good many farmers and other consumers that the traveling salesman do not greatly increase the cost of merchandise sold in the average country town store.

merchandise. We have a lot of good friends among the traveling men and wouldn't like to see them lose their jobs, but at the same time we are inclined to agree with the farmers. A lot less merchandise would be sold if it wasn't for the traveling man, but from them would be better off if there wasn't so much sold.

Editor Answers Himself. He says "A lot less goods would be sold if it wasn't for the traveling man, but better people would be better off if less goods were sold."

According to that argument, it is folly for any retailer to advertise, for advertising surely is done to increase sales, to sell more goods and, following the same argument, the cost of advertising must also be added to those already overloaded goods. Poor consumer!

Salesmen Akin to Advertising. Traveling salesmen serve somewhat the same purpose in this great game of merchandising, which is merely the collocation of the wheels of commerce, as advertising, and instead of increasing the cost of goods to the ultimate consumer they actually lower the cost, just as the right kind of advertising lowers the cost.

Mr. J. K. Orr, Sr., has gone to Clearwater, Fla., to spend about ten days or two with Colonel R. B. Kyle. They will spend most of the time fishing, both gentlemen being particularly fond of such sport.

Satisfy Your Trade

The ultimate aim of every good storekeeper is to satisfy his trade. In fact, his very success depends upon his ability to give his customers just what they want.

This is particularly true of the seller of shoes. An ill-fitting or short-wearing shoe will cause more real trouble and dissatisfaction than any other one commodity. Hence the importance of carrying a line of shoes made by men whose long experience enables them to know the exact needs of your particular trade, and whose manufacturing facilities enable them to meet those needs.

The PREMIUM BRAND Lines of Shoes is the result of just such experience. We are the oldest shoe house in Georgia, having been established since 1875—thirty-nine years.

This long and valuable experience has given us a well-nigh perfect knowledge of the Southern Shoe Market. We know what shoes your customers want, consequently PREMIUM BRAND SHOES not only always sell, but always give the wearer day-in and day-out service.

WILL OPEN ACCOUNT SELLING CONTINUE?

Credit Men Are Asked to Answer Question—Association Seeks to Arouse Interest in Commercial Paper System.

"Will the new banking and currency law effect a change in our system of selling on open account?"

This is a question J. H. Trezoe, secretary and treasurer of the National Association of Credit Men, an organization having a membership of 18,000, is putting to business men of the country. He says that the association is not yet prepared or disposed to offer any recommendations, but that it is anxious to arouse a studious interest in the subject with the hope that manufacturers and distributors will suggest plans for the practical working out of the "commercial paper" system provided for in the new law.

"The question is," said Mr. Trezoe, "will the federal reserve board require that paper offered for discount should show on its face that it has arisen from an actual transfer of merchandise, or will the single name paper, issued on the credit of the maker, which now rules in the discount market, be acceptable. The board's pronouncement, this seems to be a favorable time for business men to consider the advisability of changing to the credit system tending to the decrease of open accounts and the creation of evidences of indebtedness by notes or acceptances passing from the debtor to the creditor. Acceptances or notes being a direct relation to specific merchandise transfers are, of course, within the letter of the law, and yet it may seem wise, if a change under the law seems called for, to develop it gradually so that our credit methods need not be unduly revolutionized and business thereby exposed to undue disturbance.

A consensus of opinion on this subject from members of the association, and perhaps useful."

Mr. Trezoe says that the introduction for the new system of commercial paper in place of open book accounts would have a tendency of going away in a large measure with the existing custom of giving cash and other discounts.

He says that the association is not yet prepared or disposed to offer any recommendations, but that it is anxious to arouse a studious interest in the subject with the hope that manufacturers and distributors will suggest plans for the practical working out of the 'commercial paper' system provided for in the new law.

WHO'LL BE NAMED CHIEF-OF-STAFF?

Major General Leonard Wood Will Retire in April and There Is Much Interest in Regard to Successor.

By John Corrigan, Jr. (Special)—
Washington, March 14.—No announcement has yet been made as to who will succeed Major General Leonard Wood as chief of staff upon his retirement in April. United States army officers everywhere are keenly interested in the selection and are daily speculating over it.

Several names in the higher army officers will occur shortly, and Major General Wood is seeking to have the officers who will succeed Major General Leonard Wood. Wood's successor and Major General George Andrews chosen now although these vacancies are several months off. The former retires for age on August 26 and the latter on November 16.

The position of chief of staff is one of great dignity and importance. This officer is the direct representative of the president who is commander in chief of the army and navy. The desirability of the post is enhanced just now by the ominous situation in Mexico which may give the next chief of staff an opportunity which none has had in fifteen years. Army officers and their congressional friends are making every effort to land the position.

Some of those mentioned are among the ranking officers of the army upon whom the appointment may descend are Major General Thomas H. Barry, Major General William H. Carter and Major General William W. Wotherspoon. As the last named is so soon to retire it is believed he is eliminated from consideration.

Major General J. Franklin Bell, one of the most brilliant officers of the army, stands next to Wood by his health has been impaired by hard campaigns in the Philippines and besides he has already served one year as chief of staff. It is assumed therefore that he will not be named.

Supporters of Barry and Carter say each of them has been more active in field service than Wotherspoon and for that reason the appointment of either would be a more suitable one. Wotherspoon is now head of the army school at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., and in 1911 he was in command of the 2nd Cavalry. Although Carter has been referred to as a member of the "swivel chair brigade" in Washington he has in reality been much more active with the colors. He is a native of Tennessee.

Barry is a New Yorker and although he has not had as much field service as Carter he has had a lot of it. Among the regular generals who are considered competent for the post are Frederick Funston, Tasker H. Bliss and John J. Pershing. Funston is a native of Kansas and has the strong support of Senator Brewster in the last administration for advancement to the post of chief of staff. Pershing is a son-in-law of Senator Warren of Wisconsin and the latter lost his position as chairman of the senate military affairs committee when the senate became disinterested in his nomination as chief of staff.

Colonel Van Orsdale to retire
Colonel J. T. Van Orsdale, now commander of the 1st Cavalry at Fort Meade, Md., is eligible for retirement on March 19. He is a native of Kentucky and his due are in chronological order: Colonel Henry H. Henshaw, April 25; Brigadier General George Andrew, August 25; Brigadier General August S. Bradford, General August D. Foy, Colonel Alfred C. Sharp, Colonel September 12; Colonel Frank West, second cavalry, September 22; Colonel A. P. Hatfield, Thirtieth Cavalry, December 2.

A number of officers of the army most of them of high rank recently have been ordered to retire. The boards to ascertain if they are fit for active duty. As a result of examination by such boards, Colonel William Nichols, infantry, Colonel Lea Feibiger, Sixth Infantry, and Lieutenant Colonel Jacob P. Kriesp, infantry, were referred to the retired list on March 2. Colonel Daniel Cornman, seventh infantry, and Colonel William H. Constant, artillery, have been examined by the retiring board in this city and Major James H. Hughes, and their cases are awaiting action at the hands of the war department. Colonel Cornman probably will be retired. Other officers recently ordered before retiring boards are Colonel Frederick von Schrader and Webster Vinson, quartermaster corps; Colonel Chapman George H. Jones, coast artillery.

Retirement of Colonel Nichols
The retirement of Colonel Nichols will not result in promotion of any officers in the regular army as he was an additional number in his grade. The retirement of Colonel Feibiger and Lieutenant Colonel Kriesp will result in the following named officers due for promotion as of March 2 to the next higher grade, respectively: Lieutenant Colonel Thomas W. Griffith, Ninth Cavalry; Major Almon L. Farwell, Second Cavalry; Major C. Sullivan, Twenty-fourth Infantry; Captain William H. Taylor, First Cavalry; First Lieutenant Detram P. Johnson, Twentieth Infantry; and Bruno T. Volney, Twentieth Infantry, and Second Lieutenant Joseph C. Hattie, Twenty-fifth Infantry, and John W. Smmons, Jr., Sixth Infantry.

GEORGIA'S ENDOWMENT FUND

It is a well-known fact that a good nucleus for a state endowment fund was secured from the Woman's Edition of The Atlanta Constitution on June 3, 1912.

We are glad to give space for this charter, for when we have complied with the law, the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs will be the proud possessor of two incorporated, self-perpetuating bodies—the Ella F. White Memorial and the Student Aid Foundation.

PRESIDENT GENERAL'S LETTER

Mrs. Anna J. H. Pennybacker, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, in her monthly letter to the General Federation Magazine, urges that efforts be concentrated this month towards bringing new clubs into the general federation.

The child labor laws of Georgia, now a theme of national discussion, have been the subject of earnest study and consideration in the program of the Georgia Federated Clubs for fifteen years.

State Department of Agriculture

The bulletin published quarterly by the Georgia department of agriculture is full of interesting facts that should be studied by housekeepers everywhere.

Mr. P. A. Methvin, state food inspector, recommends the indorsement, and asks that the next legislature pass a sanitary law amending the pure food law relative to prosecutions, whereby the inspectors will not be detained in court.

CHILD LABOR DAY MAY 31

"Whereas, The Atlanta Federation of Labor has proposed that Sunday, May 31, be devoted by the moral forces of the state to the consideration of the child labor problem of Georgia, and has earnestly requested the co-operation of the various women's organizations of the state, the churches of all denominations and creeds to have that day devoted to such consideration of a topic so intimately connected with the present and future welfare of the state;

"Resolved, That the Women's clubs indorse the project to have said Sunday, May 31, devoted to the subject of child labor in its various phases, affecting the present and future well-being of Georgia, and call upon the preachers and ministers of all denominations and creeds to devote at least one service on the said 31st day of May to the subject of 'Child Labor.'"

Above all other considerations should be that of the child. I earnestly request every woman's club in the Georgia federation to adopt this resolution at the earliest possible time, then see to it that committees are appointed to urge the pastors and local newspapers to work for the appropriate observance of the last Sunday in May as the "Working Child's Day."

IDA H. FITZPATRICK,
President Georgia Federation Women's Clubs.

J. R. HOLLIDAY, Constitution Building, sole Advertising Manager for all territory outside Atlanta.

The address of the Washington Bureau is No. 1727 S. Street, N. W., Mr. John Corrigan, Jr., staff correspondent, in charge.

THE CONSTITUTION is on sale in New York city by 2 p. m. the day after issue. It can be had: Hotelling's Newsstands, Broadway and Forty-second street (Times building corner), Thirty-eighth street and Broadway and Twenty-ninth street and Broadway.

The Constitution is not responsible for advertisements to out-of-town local carriers, dealers or agents.

THE OSTRICH-HEAD POLICY.
A correspondent writing of a cartoon published in The Constitution of last Sunday, in which Atlanta was symbolized as the giant Gulliver, bound down by inadequate municipal facilities, says:

Editor: Constitution. I would like to know what real good to the city the creation and publication of this cartoon intended to accomplish. What impression will it leave on the man who is thinking of changing his place of living and has had Atlanta in mind as a good place to move and take his family?

Our correspondent views the situation from the wrong angle.
The cartoon and the editorial that accompanied it are a positively beneficial and constructive advertisement of Atlanta.

Why?
For the reason that they portray Atlanta truthfully.
As a community that grows with such marvelous rapidity that the matter of keeping pace with municipal needs is always a problem: that Atlanta is a live town and not a "dead one"; that Atlanta is banking not exclusively on the present or the past, but is anticipating and looking forward to an even more wonderful future.

Now, if any capitalist, or day laborer, or professional man or wage-earner, is not attracted by a city that measures up to these specifications, we miss our guess.
Any of those who prefer a community that stands pat, to a community that bursts at the seams from growth and prosperity—Are the ones who wouldn't be at home in Atlanta.

The Constitution never did believe in the ostrich-head-in-the-sand policy for a city, a newspaper, a business or an individual.
The Constitution has always believed in the efficacy of constructive publicity based upon the truth.

And that is the sort of publicity we have been lading out regarding Atlanta, and which we expect to continue lading out until the people are waked up to see they are losing money from our crazy fiscal system which embarrasses development by making a rich city appear poverty-stricken.

Three years ago, when the $3,000,000 bond issue was proposed to catch up with flagrant municipal lacks, we had this same old cry of "exposing Atlanta's nakedness to the world."

Suppress the sinner but never give head to that backward people!

Our school system would be hopelessly demoralized today; our hospital facilities would be unusable; our sewage system would be a farce; our fire-fighting force would be tragically handicapped, and we would be paying exorbitant insurance premiums.

That bond issue proved a splendid asset and advertisement to Atlanta. An asset and advertisement equally as phenomenal are found in the fact that three years later growth has been such as to demand expansion along the same line.

Suppression of truth never got anywhere, save to the jumping-off place.

Publicity, based upon truth, is the synonym for wholesome, healthful development. It is as imperative to a city as oxygen is to life.

A NATIONAL ROMANCE.

"All the world loves a lover," and the sentiment is emphasized when the lovers are a daughter of the president of the United States and a member of his cabinet. The announcement of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Wilson, youngest daughter of Mr. Wilson, to William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, will strike a sentimental and sympathetic chord the world over.

The president having chosen McAdoo, the "tunnel builder," the man who joined Manhattan with the continent, as secretary of the treasury, will doubtless find in him an acceptable son-in-law. A man of splendid personality and historic achievement, bold in initiative and steadfast in purpose, he appeals to the best instincts of the manhood of the nation. The fact that he is a native Georgian, as is his bride-to-be, lends added savor to his romance.

Miss Wilson is a woman who, in her sweetness, culture and charm, embodies the finest traditions of the old and the new regime of the south, as well as those of the nation. It is the first time in our history that a cabinet member has wed a daughter of the white house. It is the first time white house weddings have occurred in such close succession as the Wilson-McAdoo marriage following the Wilson-Sayre marriage. Not in many years has Dan Cupid so quickly played havoc in such high circles. He seems to be the real master of the white house during this administration.

THE NARROW GAUGE ROAD.

The Constitution noted in its news columns the other day the passing of the last narrow gauge railroad in Georgia, with the standardizing of the gauge of the Gainesville Midland.

The narrow gauge road is associated with pioneering and its hardships, not only in Georgia, but as well throughout the United States.

If one had the time, the facilities and the patience to dig down through a mass of historical data, he would find that the narrow gauge railroad has played an important role in the industrial development of this State.

One or two of the trunk lines in south Georgia, and any number of short line roads, are simply transformations from the narrow gauge lumber road, built originally for the sole purpose of getting timber to the outside world.

In the old days it was comparatively cheap, compared to the enormous expense of the present day, to build a narrow gauge line which would serve all ends, whether directed to passenger or freight service.

As development unfolded and people and money flowed into the section, and demand for roads of standard gauge increased, the "little fellows" could not handle the traffic.

When the people were poor, following Appomattox, and outside capital timid, the narrow gauge road showed the way out of the abyss, metaphoricly speaking, and it was the forerunner of the splendid systems that now bed the south, from the Potomac to the Rio Grande.

Like other institutions that have preceded it into the past, the narrow gauge served its day and time. Upon its ruins have been built stronger structures. Behind it are traditions blended equally of the picturesque and the practical.

TILLMAN ON HEALTH.

Senator Ben Tillman, of South Carolina, who has learned mildness and conservatism with years of experience, gave his colleagues in the senate tolerably sound advice the other day in the matter of individual health conservatism.

Four years ago the senator was stricken with paralysis. Throughout his life he has been a hard worker and a liberal liver, so far as food and tobacco are concerned. He found that he must practice discretion if he would live, much less regain his old-time vigor.

He went at the task like a Trojan and—he won! Tillman says that today his health is as robust as it was twenty years ago. Making due discount for the enthusiasm of the man who has partially emerged from the shadow of chronic invalidism, whatever he says on the subject of health is worth at least a hearing.

As for himself, he declared that so accustomed had he become to fresh air and rigid simplicity of living, that he often tired the complexities of official life would drive him back to the simple routine of a mere voter.

Undoubtedly the average business man of today eats too much and sleeps too little. By a strange paradox, if we would live out the strenuous life, we must, at the same time, live the simpler life. This does not, of course, mean a life of dullness and monotony. But the man or woman who has once suffered the least infraction of health will be fairly glad to choose relative and occasional monotony as against the torture of overworked nerves or racking body.

WHEN WILL SPRING COME THIS YEAR? HOW YOU CAN TELL.

By C. F. von Herrmann, Weather Bureau.
The seasons—of general interest to many classes of people, the poet, the naturalist and the meteorologist, while to all engaged in agricultural pursuits the advent of spring is of so much practical importance as to merit serious investigation. By what criterion can the date of arrival of spring at Atlanta be fixed?

The season which we call spring—considered by many to be the most attractive period of the year—is distinguished by a very complicated series of changes which become manifest by the retreat of winter, the increased temperature of the atmosphere and soil, the awakening of plants, life, and the various movements of animals which are induced by so much practical importance as to merit serious investigation.

The first named, the breaking up of ice and resumption of navigation, will necessarily find only limited application in northern regions where rivers remain frozen throughout the winter. The dates of the opening of navigation in the Hudson river at Albany, the Connecticut river at Hartford, the Kennebec at Augusta, Me., is April 6.

ONE IN A HUNDRED THOUSAND.

Of approximately 100,000 men comprising the present rank and file of the United States army only one man served in the civil war.

That man is "Johnny" Clem, as he is known and loved in Atlanta; Colonel John L. Clem, as he is known to the more formal register of the United States military service. No man ever stationed in Atlanta was more popular.

Although young in physical and mental vigor, the inexorable requirements of the army regulation call for his short time. Under the service limit, within a brief time, what more fitting than that "Johnny" Clem, also one of a hundred thousand in human fellowship and lovable, should retire with the epaulets and honors of a brigadier or a major general, in recognition, not only of his unique distinction, but equally for proven ability and service to country?

No man in the army now living matches his distinction of service.

None exceeds his devotion to country and his ability.
Would it not be a recognition better than a congressional decoration or vote of thanks if the "drummer boy of Chickamauga" were retired with the straps and honors of a general?

MUST TAKE ITS MEDICINE.

Louisiana is instituting legal proceedings to stop the execution of the new sugar schedules.

The state had full notice of the effect and time of operation of the new schedules. The administration worked no snap judgment or gold brick game on the sugar industry of the state.

It was given a fair and full hearing, several of them.
The president even leaned toward them, as against the congressmen inclined to be more radical than he Louisiana was just.

No one expects that Louisiana, with its huge sugar industries, can readjust itself without temporary loss and inconvenience. All unbiased economic students believe that in the long run the enforced competition will be healthful, not only for Louisiana, but, what is more to the point, to the country.

HE HAS THE "PUNCH."

Alfred G. Gardiner, editor of The London Daily News, regards President Wilson's message on the Panama canal, "considered purely from a literary standpoint" as a "classic of which all English-speaking people may be proud."

President Wilson is distinctive in many respects. In no other direction does his difference from his predecessors become more emphatically visible than in his official communications. Whether read to congress or given the press, they are crisp, clear as a bell, unequivocal, forceful. In the language of the street, the president has a "punch" in all he writes and says, and the "punch" is beautifully clothed.

It is rumored that the Sunday school children of Cleveland are saving enough of those new Lincoln pennies to settle John Doe's tax bill.

Perhaps George Bailey's red-headed widows have made all that luminosity on the Texas border.

What John Lind knows about the Mexican situation will fill all the books he will never write.

There is no "nameless pathos" in the spring air;—nothing but sublimated pneumonia.

THE V. M. I.'S CLAIM.

The historic Virginia Military Institute, located at Lexington and classified by Leonard Wood, chief of staff of the United States army, as "the best military school in the country," after West Point, has pending before the United States senate a claim for $214,723.62 damages to library, scientific apparatus and professors' quarters inflicted in June, 1864, by the federal army.

The destruction wrought at Lexington was by the army under the command of General Hunter. General Hunter's chief of artillery was the man who is now Senator du Pont, of Delaware. And, by a historic coincidence, the bill for restitution was introduced by Senator du Pont, the man who assisted in the razing.

In a hearing before the senate committee on claims, held February 7, 1914, Senator du Pont explains that he protested in vain to General Hunter against the destruction of the library, scientific equipment and faculty quarters of the institution. He thought the burning of the cadets' quarters legitimate, since these young men were then engaged in making war against the United States, but he could not see due cause for wiping out of existence property used for educational purposes. In this view, he was supported by William McKinley, now dead, and other prominent federal veterans. His opinion did not, however, prevail against that of General Hunter.

The Virginia Military Institute, established in 1819, is one of the most notable educational institutions in the country. Excepting West Point, it furnished a preponderance of the technically-trained officers to the United States army in the Mexican war. During the civil war most of its graduates fought on the confederate side, though even here there was a division. During the Spanish-American war, this splendid old mold of fighting men furnished to the stars and stripes, aside from West Point, the largest percentage of trained officers. It is in no respect local. Its enrollment represents forty states and five foreign countries.

Sensors Martin and Swanson, of Virginia, the former a cadet at the institute, are behind the bill. Other senators, without regard to federal or confederate affiliation, are supporting the claims. The institute is, in the broadest sense, a national asset. It should be a privilege for southern senators generally to rally behind this measure for restitution as to a wrong committed in the heat of war. Senators from north, and east, and west, irrespective of partisanship, will find patriotism and justice blending with sentiment in an affirmative vote.

THE IDEAL CRITIC.

From the point of view of the naturalist, the critic of the day is the advance of spring must be the awakening of plant life. Plants are fixed in their habitat, and are subject to the influences of their environment, while the progress of growth is largely controlled by the chemical and physical features of the soil. The chief factors are temperature, amount of sunshine. Plants reflect perfectly the successive phases of the grand panorama of the seasons from the moment when the warm sun persuades the crocus to push up its flowers through the snow. The difference in the behavior of the crocus in spring, depending upon the gradual advance of spring. Thus the snow-draped, blood root and clematis herald the advent of spring; peonies and magnolias bloom early and often suffer for their impetuity, while oaks and walnuts are very slow to respond to the influence of warm weather.

By comparing the dates of blossoming of the same plant at different places, the increasing latitude is brought out, with such variations as may be caused by topographic features and soil conditions. This method of this method must suffice. Using the island of Lestia in the Adriatic sea (latitude 43 degrees N. as the starting point, it has been found that spring at Paris (latitude 48 degrees) is retarded 43 days; at Brussels (latitude 50 degrees) 88 days; and at Christiania (latitude 59 degrees) 88 days. Or, vice versa, the plants bloom 88 days earlier at the same latitude as Naples, plants blossom at the same time as at Paris, 45 degrees N. and 10 degrees latitude farther north.

The first attempt in this country to compare the dates of blossoming of the same plants was made by Dr. Jacob Bigelow in a paper published in 1847. The progress of the wave of spring, from the north, was first mapped, the peak was recorded in 1817 at the following places: Charleston, March 8 to 12; Richmond, March 23 to 26; New York, April 9 to 12; Boston, May 9 and Albany, N. Y., May 12.

With these facts in mind, Louisiana must take its medicine.

CHART SHOWING APPROACH OF SPRING.

If we wish to construct a chart of a country showing graphically the approach of spring, a temperature line is adopted which expresses some relation to the development of vegetation. The rapidity and regularity of change in forests from a dull gray to a refreshing green does not take place much before the advent of the spring. The temperature otherwise does not correspond to any particular stage of vegetative growth, and its adoption by some writers has led to very erroneous results.

Different stages in the physiological activity of the living material—the protoplasmic plants occur at different stages of the approach of spring, depending upon the degree to which water, in the growing vegetable cells the activity of the protoplasm is determined between far narrower limits. There is proof that assimilation continues in the evergreen plants, though the temperature is below freezing. The seeds of many species of plants are able to develop at quite low temperatures. The rapidity and regularity of change in forests from a dull gray to a refreshing green does not take place much before the advent of the spring. The temperature otherwise does not correspond to any particular stage of vegetative growth, and its adoption by some writers has led to very erroneous results.

A more practical criterion of the advent of spring is certainly to be found in the average date of the last minimum temperature of the occurrence of the last minimum temperature of 32 degrees, an event which has been determined with great accuracy for Atlanta for a period of 25 years. A killing frost is defined as one which will cause the death of nearly all the plants of ordinary cultivation. From the point of view of agricultural interest, the date of the last minimum temperature of 32 degrees, and the date of the last killing frost are of much practical importance, which often exert a marked influence on the yield of crops. It is determined, in fact, the limit of the growing period of the crop, and the damage often done by late frosts has led to strenuous efforts to secure means of protection. Consequently the last killing frost, as a natural event easily determined, with a distinctive influence on vegetation, may correctly be considered as the final passage of water, the point of beginning of uninterrupted progress in the growth of vegetation—the advent of spring.

It may be of interest to compare the Atlanta record with the data for other places throughout the country, as given in the following table:

SEEKING VOTES IN CRISP COUNTY

Cordele, Ga., March 14.—(Special.)—Interest in the judgeship race in the Cordele circuit and of the nomination of a representative in the next primary, which will be held in the state primary, has somewhat subsided, as far as local politicians are concerned. There is, however, a great interest in the county primary, to be held on March 22.

Just from Georgia. The Sweetheart-roses are not here. And loveliness seems the garden-place. They have a vision of you drawn—Four unforgotten faces.

The varied seasons come and go—God dresses all His world in white—The craves are hidden 'neath His snow—But not your face tonight!

Sweet Memory of a time long fled—A time of storm and splendour near—Love comes, though once I dreamed it dead—And bids life's sorrows cease.

A Little Story. "Well, Colonel, and you go to the surface meeting last night?"

"No, old man. I sat by the wood fire while the storm raged and as the smoke curled from my old corncob pipe I saw pictures in the burning logs, and dreamed of Long Ago. I saw them—Little ones, and big, low, painted rocker, sweet-faced, white-haired mother, slowly rocking, with an outspread-bible on her lap—the patter of footsteps of a ruddy-faced boy, a knit cap on his head, and a pair of little white boots with red tops—heard the sweet voice say: 'Dear, take your wet boots off.'"

"Quickly the little feet were in warm woolen socks, a little chair drawn up and arms resting on the dear mother's lap a little, turned up, expectant face, and the lips murmuring, 'Thank you, mother.'"

"Then that mother, with one hand resting on the curly head, began the story the little saw well—'The little one had a coat of many colors. The little red, bent lower and lower—a log fell—the sparks flew up and lit the fire—'and the dream with them and, starting, I cry.'"

Backward—turn backward, Oh, Time, in thy flight! Make me a child again Just for one night!

A MERE SUGGESTION. Let's say the world is bright enough And that our lives have light enough And that God's ways are 'right enough."

Wayside Sayings. There's poetry in wood—when you're putting it on the fire, but blame little when you're chopping it stove-length.

You needn't burn red fire; any sort that makes a blaze will light the world.

When Wisdom settles in a town folks won't believe it, so it's something like a world-traveler.

Dreams of Light. Light may dim itself away, Storms may sweep the rainbow's way, Yet we weave, in darkest night, Loving blossoms of the light!

15,000 PERSONS TO LOSE U. S. EXPRESS POSITIONS

Company Going Out of Business Because of the New Rates.

New York, March 14.—The passing of the United States Express Company, which its directors yesterday voted to dissolve, will throw 15,000 persons out of employment, about 2,000 of whom work in the New York and Jersey office of the concern. These employes received no salary and wages approximately $6,000,000 a year. Many of them, especially in the larger offices, have grown dependent on the company and it was said today that few were financially able to return from active employment of some sort.

The prospective dissolution will affect express service covering 32,832 miles of railroad with between 5,000 and 6,000 stations, according to a statement made available by Burton Roberts, president of the company since January, 1913. Mr. Roberts denied that the parcel post was responsible for the proposed liquidation, but said the new rates fixed by the interstate commerce commission over the rate for the parcel post was a factor in the company's decision.

There is no quarrel over the parcel post; it fills a want the express companies never satisfied. It is utterly impracticable for express companies to make rural deliveries. The result lies with the change in our rates.

The stockholders, under the plan of liquidation which allows the retention to be decided, will probably get more than the present market value of the stock, as the company's liquidation is expected to yield $5,000,000.

There are 1,550 stockholders and 10,000 of which 750 are women and 1,000 are men. The company has 21,000 shares, is held by the estate of the late F. H. Harriman. The flat holders of the stock are many smaller than was generally believed.

The principal real estate asset of the company was the building at No. 2 Express street, New York. It was in the hands of the company since the death of Mr. Harriman, who was president of the company, dominated the company and the republican politics of the state.

NO PEONAGE INVOLVED IN ALABAMA STATUTE

Mobile, Ala., March 14.—The Alabama statute which allows the confinement of judgment in no way violates the constitution of the United States, and the age, according to a decision rendered here by Judge Harry T. Toumin, of the circuit court of appeal, at the evening in the cases of the United States v. G. W. Broughton and the United States v. Reynolds.

It was in these cases that the legal forces of the state and the federal government were arrayed. In the case of Broughton and Reynolds, planters of Monroe county, secured the services of negroes convicted in the state courts, and who were sent to prison whom judgment was entered and these imposed, the prisoners confessing to the crime of murder.

PROFESSIONAL MOTHERS TO GO OUT OF BUSINESS

New York, March 14.—If the bill recently introduced in the New York legislature before the senate and the passage of the criminal courts becomes a law, a number of gray-haired women who have made a career of it as professional mothers will have to seek other employment. The bill would require that mothers, as well as those who are employed by pickpockets to be their "mothers."

Electricity on the Farm.

(From The Electrical World.)
One of the most important lines of an Ohio electric light station is one of the most complete farm installations in the country. The Meadowsbrook farm, near Lewisburg, Pa., is equipped for threshing wheat, chopping feed, separating cream, lifting hay, pumping water, drying feed, operating a sawing machine and driving an electric vacuum cleaner for horses. The main barn and stable are lighted with electric lamps as are other houses and similar barns about the place. Electricity also uses for night illumination in the barnyard at night. Small motors are used about the farm to drive the mowers, feed cutters, pump, dairy appliances and feed cutters. Nor are the household comforts forgotten. A washing machine, electric iron and other electrical appliances in the homes of the manager and tenants.

In Buying A Diamond

It is hardly possible for a customer to detect a small imperfection in a diamond. It is, therefore, essential that you buy from a dealer in whom you have complete confidence—not only as to his integrity, but also as to his ability to correctly grade diamonds.

Another important factor to consider is in selecting a dealer who buys his diamonds in large quantities. There are very few diamond merchants who buy in quantity of capital to buy original "papers" direct from the cutters.

STATE EDITOR ASKS AID OF CHAPTERS IN HER WORK

I come with another appeal to the Georgia division of the Daughters of the Confederacy, pleading that every chapter send reports of monthly meetings, plans of work, historical data, and interesting suggestions, etc. The chapter that scores best report shall have honorable mention, and the best of the year will be invited to convene at Eastman, Ga., next September.

Please remember copy for newspaper work is of the greatest importance. The paper only and pages carefully numbered. Eight by ten sheet is a standard size. If you have no question about U. D. C. matter setting into print.

Some contributors send their manuscripts typewritten, which presents a pleasing appearance, but is not necessary. Let our organization during March and the month thereafter be a period of busy work for Memorial Day programs. Send accounts of entertainments that arouse interest and enthusiasm. Send account of efforts to establish libraries, scholarships, and all heroic deeds and noble character which inspire the U. D. C. in attaining the things worth while.

Remember that you are not discouraged. If your report should be crowded out and drop out of date try again the next month and get your report off by the first mail. The chapters that forge ahead are the ones that will earn the best friends and your fill your own and make a showing for your own and your chapter. Let us have a progressive organization.

CHAPTER NOTES.

Vienna, Ga.—The regular meeting of the United Daughters of the Confederacy was held at the home of Mrs. B. Walton on last Wednesday afternoon.

On March 11 we will have Mrs. Kellogg to lecture at the opera house. We feel sure that this will be quite an attraction and that it will be one of the best of the season.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. W. F. George, and while we are disappointed that she cannot be present, we will be glad to hear from her at any time. Daughters, he happens to be in your midst, do not hesitate to hear from her, as she will be glad to give us a word for her.

Mrs. Alfriend Chronicles Interesting Incident in the Life of George Washington

An interesting point is made in a paper written by Mrs. Cornelia W. Alfriend, and read before a recent meeting of the Piedmont continental chapter, D. A. R. According to Mrs. Alfriend, it was not the famous cherry tree incident which first demonstrated the love of the father of his country for the truth, but an entirely different happening in his youth.

George Washington grew up to be a steady, hard-working, and obedient young man. When he was a lad he attempted to train a valuable horse, which had become almost wild without having ever been bridled.

One day the other boys were consulting what to do with the horse. The boys were surprised to see Mrs. Alfriend, and she was soon curbed by the strong arms of the boy. There was a fearful struggle, and the horse was nearly killed.

Attractive
Rain Coats.

IN rainy weather one used to think "any old thing would do," but smart and serviceable costumes are fashioned for those who venture forth in such weather. The first is a long coat made of mulberry rubberized silk material cut in raglan style. With this coat is worn a small hat of taffeta of the same shade. The tan coat made on military lines is of cravenette. The black collar and cuffs are of velvet, as is the smart tam-o-shanter hat. The last costume is made of double-faced water-proofed cloaking, cut on the lines of the popular sport coat, though longer, and with the new fullness at the bottom. A chic green hemp hat completes this costume. The accessories, such as gloves, umbrellas and shoes are selected with as much care as the garments. The first are of washable dog-skin and stout dog-skin. The umbrellas match or harmonize with the costumes. The shoes, though cut on trim lines, are waterproof, made so by special process thus eliminating the necessity of wearing rubbers.

Smart Suits for Spring

THE figure at the upper left of this fashion page wears a charming and stylish suit that can be made for a reasonable sum of money. The suit is fifty-four inches long. It requires about four and one-half yards at four dollars a yard, two yards of figured crepe de chine, for lining, at one dollar and a half a yard, and one-eighth of a yard of silk broadcloth, at four dollars a yard, for the collar.

The odd shaped hat worn with this costume is of black hemp, a large aigrette placed at an angle balances the brim, which is turned on the right side.

The suit on figure number two is one well adapted for the young girl. If made at home of English corded sponge, it can be duplicated for about fourteen dollars. This material is forty-two inches wide, and sells for two dollars a yard. The suit requires five yards of the sponge. Crepe de chine at a dollar and a half a yard, thirty-six inches wide, will make a good lining. Two yards of this silk will line the suit. The collar is made of white crepe de chine at two dollars a yard, requiring but an eighth of a yard.

The charming little hat worn with this suit is of white straw, the crown is covered with yellow roses. It is turned up at the back, a yellow rose, holding the black velvet ribbon in place at each side; the ribbon forms a chin strap.

The parasol is a shaped straw, with a puffed flounce of white satin.

Figure three wears a most up-to-date suit, one which will be most correct for Spring wear. This suit made at home can be had for sixteen dollars, if fashioned of English brocaded pique at two dollars a yard; it will take but four and a half yards, as it is fifty-two inches wide. Two yards of brocade lining at two dollars a yard and one-half a yard of silk broadcloth at four dollars a yard will be needed for the collar and vest. The revers and collar of the coat are made of a yard of white pique at two dollars a yard.

The hat is one of the small shapes, high on one side, trimmed with a black aigrette and a band of black satin ribbon is used around the crown, tied in a small tailored bow at the side. The parasol is a very attractive one, made of white taffeta silk, in bands alternating with bands of black and pompadour ribbons.

Figure four. The hat on this figure is made of yellow straw, with a pleated band of tulle. This hat extends high on one side, with a spray of roses, adding more height, and holding ribbon in place.

The suit can be duplicated for about twenty-six dollars. It requires five yards of forty-inch pure silk broadcloth at four dollars a yard, two yards of brocade lining at two dollars a yard, one-half yard of crepe de chine at one dollar a yard, for the tie and collar, one-eighth of a yard of crepe de chine at two dollars a yard for the outer collar, and with the small findings it will amount to the cost mentioned.

Figure five. The hat worn by this figure is of green straw with black satin wings placed on the raised side. The suit can be made for about twelve dollars. Four yards of forty-six-inch French honeycomb raline at one dollar and a half a yard, two yards of figured crepe de chine lining at one dollar and a half a yard, one-half yard of brocaded silk at three dollars a yard for the vest, one-quarter of a yard of silk broadcloth at four dollars a yard for the collar, will be the materials required.
