

BIG BATTLESHIP LOST BY BRITAIN

CONSCRIPT MOVEMENT GROWING IN BRITAIN Before Christmas There May Be Compulsory Army Service in Empire.

Super-Dreadnaught Audacious Sunk October 29 Off Coast of Ireland—Crew Saved.

London November 4—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—The movement for conscription in Great Britain progresses rapidly. Men in close touch with public sentiment predict conscription before Christmas.

New York, November 14—(Rumors of disaster to the British super-dreadnaught Audacious which has persisted ever since the White Star liner Olympic, diverted from her course, arrived at Lough Swilly, on October 27, are confirmed in an article received by the Associated Press from a point in Ireland.

Great Britain would have kept Turkey out of the struggle, Russia, however, welcomed the aggression of the Turk, which Russians hope will result in the fulfillment of the emperor's ambitions in the Near East, the occupation of Constantinople and the exclusion of Turkish rule across the Bosphorus into Asia.

The battleship's crew for assistance was caught by the wireless operator of the Olympic, which was only about 10 miles distant. The steamer rushed forward at full speed while her crew made ready for their work.

London newspaper talk strongly for conscription. Ireland presents an obstacle to conscription recruiting there has been no general opinion as to whether or not it should be adopted.

By that time the battleship had a decided list at the stern, where just below the water line she had received her wound.

LAUGHINGLY OFF THESE MEN WENT TO WAR, BUT THIS PICTURE PROVED THEIR LAST ONE

LAUGHING AUSTRIAN SOLDIERS LEAVING VIENNA FOR GALICIA.

This group of laughing, merry Austrian soldiers was snapped while starting for the front in Galicia, cheering those who came for them from the military shouting that they would return soon.

But the regiment to which these men belonged was nearly annihilated by the Russians after brave resistance against overwhelming odds.

NOTABLE PROGRESS BY THE FRENCH

The French, who do not record the capture of the prisoners or their own losses, likewise claim they have repulsed the German attacks and made progress. Their advance on Bixschote, which reached the almost unprecedented distance of one kilometer (3,280 feet)—for in this battle an advance is measured in yards and not in miles—seems to have been important.

which to mobilize their forces more fully. The effectiveness of this process of attrition is largely from the fact that to the other is no longer so pronounced and that any thinning of the ranks on either side means hereafter at least a temporary assumption of the offensive by the other.

RUSSIANS PUSH INTO GERMANY.

The Russians, continuing their enveloping movement against East Prussia, have now entered Kryn, which is west of Soldau and on the road to Thorn. The Russian army has surrounded Emperor William's northwestern and favorite province.

VIENNA ADMITS RUSSIAN SUCCESS.

From the headquarters of the Teutonic armies come conservative statements of the activities of their armies. The official reports from Vienna, however, which incidentally mean that the Slav power again is in possession of the city, are more optimistic.

FUTILE ASSAULTS BY GERMAN FORCES AGAINST THE ALLIES

Paris, November 14—All German attempts to reach Constantinople by the forest of bayonets presented by the allied French, Belgian and British troops. The opposing forces are about equal, while the fact that neither side has overwhelmed the other at any of the three chief points of contact.

CHILINA AND DAUGHTERS NURSE VICTIMS OF WAR

Petrograd, October 28—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Almost in the shadow of Tzarokoye-Selo palace the winter home of Emperor Nicholas is perhaps the most remarkable hospital improvised during the present war.

TURKEY BLAMES GREAT BRITAIN.

Turkey has issued a statement through some agency claiming the blame for the war between the British and Ottoman empires on England, who she says, complains of Turkey's acquisition of the German cruiser Goeben and Breslau and does not mention anything of her seizure of the British battleships which were building in England at the outbreak of the war.

RUSSIAN MENACE WORRIES KAISER.

The slackening of the Teutonic offensive in the west is noted in the reports from the Kaiser's headquarters. It is regarded here as the fact that Germany is obliged to maintain its fronts so far apart as East Prussia and the North sea.

PERIL IN SHIFTS FOR GERMANY.

Paris, November 14—The Avenue de l'Opera was animated today for the first time since the war crowds who thronged the boulevard to witness the signature to an address to King Albert of Belgium on the occasion of his name day.

SWEDEN PROVES DEAF TO GERMAN APPEALS

Stockholm Sweden, October 29—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—Sweden's enthusiasm for war, which was marked by the desire to be left out of the conflict in the early stages of the war, has now culminated with "Robb's" famous march through a tangled wilderness and his capture of the Indian city of Kanpur.

RUSSIA SEEKING LOAN IN THE UNITED STATES

Petrograd, October 17—(Correspondence of the Associated Press)—It was reported here on good authority that definite steps have been taken toward placing the Russian loan in the United States. The project is regarded here as the outgrowth of an agitation for new trades relations with America.

NEUTRALITY PROBE IN SOUTH AMERICA

BIG BALMACAAN SALE

Our Entire Sample Line of Two Thousand Coats MADE OF IMPORTED FABRICS on which we can not fill orders to the trade, because materials are not arriving from Europe. Wonderful Bargains

An unusual combination of circumstances makes this sale remarkable. The European war has cut off our supply of materials, so that we cannot execute orders through our Wholesale Department, and we are even obliged to withdraw our entire lines of samples from the trade. These SAMPLES are, naturally, the best examples of our workmanship. To get them off our hands quickly we are offering them through our retail stores at SENSATIONALLY LOW PRICES. This sale comes at a time when the question of whether it shall be a raincoat or a Fall topcoat is uppermost in people's minds. OUR COAT IS BOTH COMBINED. Every coat offered is an advanced Fall style, and is covered by our GUARANTEE of reliability.

exportation to the war and the foot and mouth disease, are a combination of circumstances that make southern meat production an urgent and a profitable measure. Natural Advantages. The south is naturally an ideal section for meat raising. Its advantages over the present meat-raising localities are patent.

Such consideration of the public is unusual, and is indeed worthy of praise and recognition. Throughout the institution the sanitary feature has been attended to in its smallest detail, and consumers of meat from the Atlanta Butchers' abattoir may rest assured of its complete asepticism. Transportation Facilities. The abattoir is situated directly on the railroad. The cattle, hogs or sheep are driven from the freight cars into the driveway. They go up the slight incline which leads directly to the clean, body, which is a model of cleanliness. Long coils of hose at frequent intervals permit the thorough cleansing of the stalls, a process which is going on almost continually.

For Poorest, Puniest Babies Prizes Will Be Awarded

MORE PRIZES OFFERED.
The following additional prizes are being offered for the most delicate baby examined in the Better Babies contest:
Double sauce pan, by King Hardware company.
Baby cap, by Taylor-Made Corset company.
Stealing silver baby spoon, Jack Hawkins southern representative.
L. F. McCutcheon & Bros., Philadelphia.
Half-dozen photographs of prize-winner by The Constitution, The Journal and The Georgian.

Notes before in the history of baby-dom have prize awards been given for the most delicate and suckiest babies put on exhibition. Yet that is what the general committee of the better babies contest now in progress at the Baptist Tabernacle proposes to do next week. The mother who brings the weakest infant will get the bluest ribbon, the greatest award. The winners will not be announced publicly nor the prizes awarded in this manner. All correspondence will be done through mail. The mothers who carry off these unwanted prizes will be unknown to all except the examining nurses and officials. This scheme is to assure better babies from the specimens who need reconstruction and betterment. The entire body of which has been the healthiest and best lot of infants that a southern show has ever known. But the officials contend that this is not the class that needs the efforts of the better babies movement, but the puny and delicate ones, whose future lives are in danger of permanent impairment.

A dozen or more prizes will be given the delicate babies. But it will not be the awards that are to be considered as much as the valuable education that will be given the mothers. Expert authorities will explain how to rebuild the unhealthy babies and how to insure their futures, how to care for the health of the mother and to remedy baby's illness.

The contest will last until next Wednesday, when the prizes will be awarded. A novel feature for advertising Atlanta's perfect babies has been arranged in conjunction with the Woman's Temperance union, before the entire body of which the prize-winning infants will be displayed at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Tabernacle auditorium. From an exhibition in the Auditorium-Armory at which time an address on "Better Babies" will be delivered by a noted expert. Three hundred and forty-eight babies have been entered up to date in the contest, with prospects for many more next week.

MEMBERS OF CHURCH MEET TODAY TO PLAN TO SAVE TABERNACLE

Unless $2,600 in cash is raised today, the famous Baptist Tabernacle will be sold to pay off the interest on the church mortgage. At the rally service to be held this morning at the Tabernacle, Mrs. Mary Harris Armor, known as the "Georgia Whirlwind," and William D. Upshaw, the editor of The Golden Age, will make pleas for saving the church. A. C. Boatman, director of the Tabernacle choir, has prepared a special program of old-time songs. The building was erected four years ago, when Dr. Len G. Broughton was pastor, and is the largest in the south. The board of deacons have notified the members of the church's needs, and it is hoped that the money will be raised at this morning's meeting. The Tabernacle has offered its handsome $16,000 piano as security for a loan of $2,600 to pay the interest on the debt it owes to James M. Smith, farmer of Oglethorpe county. Only a small amount has been raised so far, with which to pay this accrued interest, and this has come in from outsiders.

No one has yet offered to loan money on the handsome organ as collateral. The Tabernacle is valued at $400,000, with a balance of only $74,000 owing. It was hoped by some that Rev. Len G. Broughton, founder of the church, now pastor of the church, London, would be able to aid, but a letter from him stated that his own church members there in England were unable to do so. Also 250,000 Belgians are being cared for in London, and are occupying the attention of the church leaders. Dr. Broughton has personal charge of a part of the work.

W. C. T. U. Opens Free Clinic To Fight the Tobacco Habit

A free clinic for the treatment of the tobacco habit under the auspices of the national convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, now in session, will be held in the basement of the Baptist Tabernacle Monday afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock. The clinic, which is under the department of the "anti-narcotics" committee, will be free to every man or boy in Atlanta, and will be under the direction of a competent physician. The treatment is said to be thorough and not dangerous.

That whiskey was directly responsible for the Colorado strike war and that the strike war, in turn, was directly responsible for the prohibition victory in Colorado in the last election, was declared Saturday by Mrs. Adrianna Hungerford, state president, from that commonwealth. "Every county concerned in the strike went dry by an overwhelming majority," she said, "and the object lesson given Colorado is one which she will not soon forget."

According to the report of the corresponding secretary of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union, now in session in Atlanta, the organization has nothing to do with mere "temperance" in the dictionary sense of the word. "Total abstinence," says the secretary, Mrs. Frank P. Parks, of Illinois, is the bed rock on which the Woman's Christian Temperance union has ever been building, and all of the forty departments have been created for the purpose of promoting total abstinence.

LAGRANGE NOW USES COLUMBUS CO.'S POWER

LaGrange, Ga., November 14—(Special)—On Saturday afternoon the city of LaGrange closed down its steam generating plant and began using the electric power from the Columbus Power company, generated at their Goat Rock dam on the Chattahoochee river, about forty miles from LaGrange. The change was made in accordance with a contract between the city and the power company agreed upon several weeks ago. The business of the local electric plant had grown to the point where it was a question of either making large additions or of buying power outside.

MEDICAL MEETING AT CORDELE NOVEMBER 18

Cordele, Ga., November 14—(Special)—The semi-annual meeting of the Third Congressional District Medical association, to be held in Cordele on November 18, promises to be largely attended. An afternoon and night session will be held. The address of welcome on behalf of the city will be delivered by Judge E. F. Strozier, and the welcome address on the part of the Cordele County Medical society will be made by Dr. M. R. Smith. The response on the part of the association will be delivered by Dr. J. G. Dean, of Dawson. On this occasion the association will entertain several prominent guests, who will deliver addresses. Among these are Dr. W. B. Hardman, president of the Medical Association of Georgia, Dr. Edward G. Jones and Dr. George M. Niles, both of Atlanta, and Dr. A. G. Fort, field agent for the Rockefeller movement for hookworm treatment. The visitors will be banqueted at the Swaine hotel by the local medical society, and officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

Relief for Catarrh Sufferers Now FREE

You Can Now Treat This Trouble in Your Own Home and Get Relief at Once.

How the Remedy for Catarrh Was Discovered.

THIS terrible disease has raged unchecked for years simply because symptoms have been treated while the cause of the trouble has been left to circulate in the blood, and bring the disease back as fast as local treatments could relieve it. C. E. Gauss, who experimented for years on a treatment for Catarrh, found that after perfecting a balm that relieved the nose and throat troubles quickly, he could not prevent the trouble beginning all over again. On test cases, he could completely remove all signs of Catarrh from nose and throat, but in a few weeks they were back.

Careful experiments and investigations have shown that as the troubles were expelled from the nose and throat, the real cause of the disease was overlooked and in a short time the Catarrh would return stronger than ever. Mr. Gauss has gone way ahead of the ordinary methods of treatment and has provided a remedy that

Removes the Cause and Immediately Gives Relief to the Nose and Throat

Resse Jones, of Scranton, Penn. says that after trying many other treatments, he used this new method and "My nose is now entirely clear and free and I am no longer bothered by the disease any more." "The New Combined Treatment is worth its weight in gold." "Temporary relief from catarrh may be obtained in other ways, but the New Combined Treatment must inevitably be accepted for permanent results."

Sarah J. Cape, Mount Pelin, Tenn. says "I suffered the pains and distress of catarrh for thirteen years and needless to state tried nearly every method. But by your new method I was completely cured and I can never imagine the joy that has come over me."

This new method is so important to the welfare of humanity, so vital to every person suffering from any form of catarrh, that the opportunity to actually test it and prove its results will be gladly extended without one cent of cost. A large trial treatment with complete, minute directions, will be sent free to any catarrh sufferer. Send no money, take no risks, make no promises. Simply clip, sign and mail the coupon and the test package of the New Combined Treatment will be sent fully prepaid, together with the valuable book on Catarrh.

MONCRIEF WINS

Q. The Moncrief Furnace Co., 139 S. Pryor St., the manufacturers of the famous "Original Atlanta Made Moncrief Furnace," win their suit against a concern using their name. Q. The greatest asset of the Moncrief Furnace Co. has been the name "Moncrief" on Furnaces—this name was infringed on—the public was at a loss to decide which was the "Original Moncrief Furnace." Q. The following decision handed down by the Superior Court of Fulton County sets at rest for all time the exclusive use of the name "Moncrief" on furnaces:

The Moncrief Company
Pays good salaries to many skilled Atlanta men, on whom several hundred people are dependent

T. E. HENRY FURNACE CO.
VS.
S. P. MONCRIEF, et al.
No 28424
Fulton
Superior Court

Whereupon, it is considered, ordered and adjudged:

1. That S. P. Moncrief and his associates and assigns shall be entitled to the exclusive use of the trade name "Moncrief" on furnaces and in his or their business, in the states of Georgia, Florida, North and South Carolina.

Extract from the decree handed down by Superior Court the 30th day of September, 1914

The Moncrief Furnace has many advantages over other furnaces. Don't buy a piece of scrap iron and think you are buying a furnace; trade with a reputable concern.

BACON AND BARROW COUNTIES ATTACKED

Citizens of Alma Raise Question as to Whether the Amendments Carried.

Attorney General Warren Grice will decide Monday whether or not the constitutional amendments creating the counties of Bacon and Barrow are legal, or whether the technical errors discovered in the bills will stand and defeat the measures.

Citizens of Alma, Ga., the county seat of one of the new counties, have raised the question as to whether the amendments carried. The point is urged that the acts providing for the submission of the two new county amendments to the voters of the state set forth that they should become a part of the constitution if a majority of the voters qualified to vote in the election for members of the general assembly cast their ballots for them.

The contention is raised that the technical construction of the amendments renders them both void. Although the amendments received a majority of the votes cast in the general election they did not receive a majority of the votes of those qualified to vote in the election, for the reason that many of those qualified did not vote at all.

Authors of the bill do not believe that the technical errors will alter the result, because there is a constitutional provision which provides the method of voting on constitutional amendments, and provides how these amendments shall be adopted. The acts creating Evans and Candler counties did not contain these clauses, hence they are safe from attack on the above grounds.

Many "Down and Outs" Being Given Aid by Associated Charities

Saturday was the third day that the Associated Charities has been open since it closed several weeks ago on account of lack of funds to operate, and the day was the busiest the association has had in many a day. Most of the applicants for help, however, were on the regular list of the charities, and who now have again known what it is to be "down and out" and no place to turn for succor.

One of the cases was of a young man, 23 years old, with a wife and 3-weeks-old baby at home, hungry, while he was out of a job and had walked the streets of Atlanta in vain looking for one.

The charities, therefore, find it impossible to close its doors, in spite of the fact that all the money needed to sustain the association has not been paid in. Little over $2,000 of the needed $20,000 is now lacking and it is hoped that the people of Atlanta will realize the utter impossibility of this city getting along without the institution, and come to its assistance by subscribing the deficit amount.

Lindsey Hopkins Re-enters Auto Field as Executive Head Atlanta Cadillac Co.

The advent of the new eight-cylinder Cadillac has induced Lindsey Hopkins to re-enter the automobile field. On or about December 1, he will become executive head of the Atlanta Cadillac company, succeeding Frank Steinhauer. The latter will, however, continue his affiliation with the company, and will be associated with Mr. Hopkins in the sales end of the business. Mr. Steinhauer is well and favorably known to Cadillac users. Mr. Hopkins will assume full charge of all the Cadillac company interests in Atlanta and throughout the distributing territory, of which this city is the center.

Announcement of Mr. Hopkins' new affiliation is one of the most important events in the automobile field in many months. For years he has been an important figure in the auto world, having been a pioneer in this business in the south, and one of the first autocrats to recognize the big possibilities in this section for the motor business generally. He was for a long time one of the most widely known figures in this industry, having, until his retirement about a year ago, been the southern representative of the Overland company. While with the Overland, Mr. Hopkins made a record for sales, which ranked him among the most progressive leaders in the south. He is also well known in civic, club and social life.

LINDSEY HOPKINS

Following his retirement from the Overland company, Mr. Hopkins made a reputation in the world of finance. He conducted a financial and mortgage business in the Candler building, in which he has been so successful that he intends to continue looking after these interests. He also substantially interested in North Carolina insurance securities. He will close his office in the Candler building and will consolidate his offices at the home of the Atlanta Cadillac company, at 228-230 Peachtree street.

One of the first moves to be made by Mr. Hopkins as executive head of the Atlanta Cadillac company will be to inaugurate important improvements and changes in the sales rooms and show of the company's cars to begin a campaign for the development and extension of the Cadillac business in this territory. Because of his belief that the new eight-cylinder car of the Cadillac company is the acme of perfection in autos, Mr. Hopkins intends to make his coming campaign a record-breaker, insofar as sales in this section are concerned.

It is his opinion that the new eight-cylinder car will usher in a new era in the world of automobiles and it is because of his great confidence in the stability of this new type of car that he was induced to re-enter the automobile field.

The Master Car.

"There has come to me during the last few months numerous propositions in the agency management field, but none has so appealed to me as the one significant and inviting as the Cadillac. This is really the master car in the motor business. No machine that I have ever ridden in has afforded me such pleasure and comfort. There is no other car that rides or drives like it. Always there is that velvety smooth flow of power, whether the machine is going a mile a minute or only two miles an hour. So completely do the circles overlap that they virtually melt into one continuous, smooth and steady flow of power, predict freely that its advent and reception by the riding public will be one big success.

"It was through my familiarity with aeroplanes, one of which I owned in the south last year, that I became acquainted with the value and power of eight-cylinder motors. Stability is an important requisite in aeroplaning and, therefore, there is no doubt of its ultimate adoption on every high grade car. Already this realization is apparent, since although the Atlanta Cadillac company has not yet received its demonstrator car, substantial orders for the new machine have been booked and there has come to the local offices of the company repeated inquiries concerning it."

MORE RAIN EXPECTED IN ATLANTA SUNDAY; COLDER NEXT WEEK

Owing to the passage across the southern part of the state of the Gulf storm rain will probably continue early Sunday at Atlanta with rather high northwest winds. There is prospect, however, that the storm will move rapidly Sunday so that clearing weather will set in Sunday afternoon if not earlier. There will be no great fall in temperature immediately after the rainfall, but the appearance of decidedly colder weather in western Canada indicates colder weather early next week. Sunday therefore will not be a very pleasant day.

HUNDREDS SEARCH FOR MISSING MAN

E. O. Walker Mysteriously Disappears From Waycross. Foul Play Is Suspected.

Waycross, Ga., November 14—(Special)—An all-day search by officers and friends has failed to disclose any clue as to the whereabouts of E. O. Walker, whose mysterious disappearance was reported to police early today. It is feared he met foul play, either in or near Waycross, last night and that his body was hid in the woods or thrown into the Satilla river. When last seen the missing man had between $400 and $500 in cash, and robbery is advanced as the motive for the crime. Receipt books and other personal effects were found this morning in a park in the heart of the city.

But this is the only direct development in the case. Conflicting reports gained circulation, only to be met by police denials.

Walker is secretary of the local camp of Woodmen of the World and a foreman in the Atlantic Coast Lumber shops. He is 35 years old, clean shaven, has black hair and brown eyes, and is nearly 6 feet tall. His father is coroner elect of Ware and came here from Brooks county.

The missing man's wife is prostrated and her condition tonight is serious. Examination of Walker's books shows he is all right with the Woodmen. When last seen Walker was in Phoenix park shortly after 11 o'clock last night and he told a friend he was going to see a carriage and go home. A short while after this, it is reported he was seen with a stranger.

Walker was well liked and popular with all. Arrangements were made tonight for a more extensive search of the country surrounding Waycross tomorrow, in which more than 100 persons will participate.

DOCTORS ARE INDICTED. Failure to Secure Licenses Causes Grand Jury Action.

The grand jury Saturday returned a number of indictments against dentists and physicians who are accused of plying their trade without license. Their names are being withheld for the present.

It is stated that Dr. J. H. Foster, a young dentist formerly of Marietta, is one of the indicted men. Warrants have been issued for others. Whole-sale arrests are expected.

Dentists and physicians have been figuring for months to rid the city of unlicensed practitioners.

WANT BETTER MARKET FOR TURPENTINE

Waycross, Ga., November 14—(Special)—Following the conference of over a hundred turpentine operators, held in Waycross, many of the producers of this section have joined hands with a recently organized association for the purpose of securing better marketing conditions of turpentine. Through a central selling agency and by an agreement that will fix a minimum selling price, it is hoped to improve the industry.

Haralson Court.

LaGrange, Ga., November 14—(Special)—Judge Price Edwards has called a special term of Haralson county superior court, to convene in Buchanan on November 23, and continue for two weeks.

GOVERNMENT HOLDS NEGROES ACCUSED OF COUNTERFEITING

Federal warrants charging M. C. Welborn, Sam Williams and H. E. Howard, negroes, with counterfeiting, were sworn out before United States Commissioner Carter Saturday, and Captain J. M. Wright, of the government secret service, took the men from the custody of the city police and is holding them pending indictment by the federal grand jury.

The men were arrested in a raid on a counterfeiting plant on Piedmont avenue, Williams, it is alleged, attempted to pass counterfeit money on Mrs. Ida Goldberg, proprietress of a store at No. 1 Granger street. She called Policeman O. R. Jones, who arrested the men and later led Captain Wright to the plant.

It is said that the negroes confessed to passing coins amounting to several hundred dollars, but they denied that they stored any spurious coin away. They told Captain Wright the "queer" was spent as fast as it was made.

WASHINGTON OFFICERS VISIT CHIEF BEAVERS

Lieutenant C. L. Pieramons and Patrolman W. J. Lee, of the police force of Washington, D. C., called upon Chief Beavers, at the station house, Saturday afternoon, and inspected the workings of the department. They stated that this was their first visit to Atlanta, which was occasioned by bringing to the federal prison twenty-eight prisoners—two white men and twenty-six negroes.

They found much to praise during their brief stay in Atlanta. Although they found the police department admirably adapted to meet conditions here, they believed the Washington department superior, in that it was based on the substitution system. The city, they said, is divided into eleven police precincts. Each precinct is policed by a captain, a lieutenant, a sergeant and forty patrolmen.

JUDGE BROYLES NOW ON APPELLATE BENCH

In the presence of a number of state officials, clerks of the supreme and court of appeals, Judge Nash R. Broyles took the oath of office at noon Saturday in the office of Governor Slaton, and is now qualified to fill the place to which he has been elected on the court of appeals bench. Judge Wade, who was re-elected to the place he now occupies on the bench, was also sworn in.

Governor Slaton administered the oath of office. After the ceremonies, the governor congratulated each of them on their victories in the recent election, and wished them successful terms.

"Administering the oath to you gentlemen is a bit more of a pleasure to me than otherwise," said the governor. "We are all three classmates."

THE prattling baby on the mother's knee, the children playing on the floor, these are the scenes that go to make the happy American home. But along with it all there is a basic requirement, that these little humans be healthy. First and foremost of their little ills are those pertaining to derangement of the stomach and bowels.

When trouble comes you call the doctor, or you try dieting, special foods, stewed fruits, etc. But have you ever tried Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin? It is a mild laxative tonic that has been on the market for two generations, having proven itself the one dependable remedy, and thousands of mothers now give it to their children. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is gentle in action and especially intended for babies, women and old folk, who should not use strong cathartics or purgatives such as pills, powders, salts and mineral waters.

Mrs. C. L. Hanson, of Holmes, Cal., has used it herself and gives it to her children, and she says she will never be without it as long as a bottle is obtainable. Mr. T. B. Pratt, of Marianna Ark., uses it himself and has the whole family using it and he also says he would not like to be without it. It is the family remedy in thousands of homes because it is a safe and sane remedy for constipation, dyspepsia, biliousness, belching, gas on the stomach, head aches, bloating, etc. Old users always keep the dollar bottle in the house, but there is also a fifty-cent size, and either can be obtained of your druggist.

Coupon for FREE SAMPLE

Dr. Caldwell is glad to send anyone who has never tried his remedy a free sample bottle for personal investigation. Simply clip this coupon and enclose in an envelope with your name and address, or write your name and address plainly on a postcard and mail it to Dr. W. E. Caldwell, 87 Washington St., Monticello, Ill.

Young Men's Christian Association Inaugurates Whirlwind Campaign For New Members Needed at Once

STREET NEWSBOYS' CLASS AT THE Y M C A.

Four hundred Atlanta business men are needed at once as members of the Young Men's Christian Association.

More than that, the association directors mean to have them and they are going out this week, assisted by committees of business men aggregating more than 100 to show them why they should become members and wherein they can get a whole lot more than their money's worth by becoming members and using the association facilities.

This is one campaign and at the same time another will be launched for 300 general members under an entirely different canvass, with ten committees aggregating 100 men, all young men.

Both of these campaigns were launched at a general meeting of the officers, directors and members of the Young Men's Christian Association held Saturday night in the auditorium of the new building at which enthusiastic ran high and every member pledged himself to do everything in his power to put the association on a self-supporting basis.

There are now 420 general members of the Young Men's Christian Association and 300 boys members and there are several hundred on the waiting list anxious to get in, but who cannot be accommodated at the nominal dues which they pay, until the income of the association is sufficiently increased through business memberships.

The boys to enjoy the facilities of the institution.

Twelve Teams to Work.

Twelve teams will go to work this week to secure business memberships for the association, each of them headed by one of the directors and each comprising ten men or a total of 120.

Each of the captains of these teams is a member of the board of directors, and these were named at a meeting of the board Friday night. Each of these captains is now busy selecting the nine men who will serve with him, and every one of them will be a worker.

These teams of workers will be called together at a supper meeting at the Young Men's Christian Association Monday night at 6:30, when they will be finally completed and ready to start work Tuesday and the work of securing all of these new memberships is expected to be completed by Friday.

The entire campaign will be under the general management of J. K. Orr, vice president of the association, and the twelve captains of the teams who will do the work, are as follows:

W. W. Orr, G. I. Walker, Sam N. Dvins, Frank Imann, J. R. Bachmann, H. M. Black, Alfred C. Newell, Marlon M. Jackson, Arnold Broyles, Robert C. Alston and Thomas L. Glenn.

Each of these subcommittees will have nine other workers with them and within three days they are going to Atlanta and show them why they should join the Young Men's Christian Association.

above ground, are giant filters to filter the water for the swimming pools. There are two large swimming pools, one for the men and one for the boys. Fifty-two shower baths adjoining the pools which are equipped with locker rooms. There is also a steam room and Turkish bath features for business men.

There is a well equipped kitchen and storeroom in the basement, with dumb waiters connecting with the dining-room.

On the ground floor there is a mass-sageur room, barber shop, and on the same floor a game room for men, and a special room for boxing and wrestling. On the boys side may be found a game room, reading room, etc.

On the next floor are the two gymnasiums the like of which is not to be found elsewhere in the south.

On the ground floor between the two living rooms are the general offices, while on the second floor are the directors' and secretary's offices. Adjoining the directors' office is the men's reading room from which a gallery gives a view down into the men's lobby below.

On the boys side of the building is a small auditorium for class work or for a moving picture show. Connecting with this auditorium are six classrooms for the boys and near by is a kitchenette where the boys can prepare and serve their own spreads. On the third floor there is a club room and other classrooms.

On the third floor are two dormitories accommodating twelve men each on the men's side and on the floors above on both sides are comfortable sleeping rooms that will accommodate 284. Each floor is fitted with tiled toilet facilities.

The building, lot and furnishings cost $375,524.

After Business Men.

Every business man who joins the Young Men's Christian Association and pays the annual dues of $25, not only gets more than his money's worth in the bathing, athletic and social facilities offered, but he makes it possible for the association to take care of the most modern and completely equipped plant in the south or for that matter in the country. This plant includes Turkish bath facilities offer every possible inducement, besides making it possible for General Memberships.

While the foregoing teams are at work, some hot shot for general memberships will be put in at the same time by the younger members of the association.

The general membership costs $13 a year and just about meets operating expenses. This membership is designed for the younger men, the clerks and employees of various Atlanta businesses. Each of them will be glad to have the benefits of the institution but who may not desire to go in on the business men's basis.

Under the general leadership of J. K. Orr there will be two divisions in this campaign, one managed by Harrison Winship, Jr., each of whom will command five teams of ten men each.

The sub-chairmen under Mr. Jones will be C. D. Montgomery, Jr., Franklin Chalmers, George H. Bonnell, Edward E. Clark and George Star Peak.

The sub chairmen under Mr. Winship are L. O. Grice, James T. Warner, Leonard Greenhaw, George W. Kenly and Leonard Greenhaw.

Just as in the business men's campaign each of these sub chairmen will command five teams of ten men each, a total of 100 men who will be busy at work this week in the canvass for general memberships.

Noon meetings will be held each day at which reports will be submitted of the work done. It is determined that the canvass shall be a speedy one, and it is designed to secure the entire new membership needed before the end of the present week.

ELBERTON ENJOYS FIDDLERS' FETE

Elberton, Ga., November 14—(Special)—The fiddlers' convention of this section met here this week about fifty strong. Every conceivable fashion of fiddle and banjo was represented. For three nights they held forth at the courthouse, with large audiences. The convention closed last night with an old fashioned country breakdown which was enjoyed by the social elite of Elberton.

Bring Back Your Appetite

With a Little Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet, the Secret of Perfect Digestion.

You should see our farmers and their boys eating in the fields. On the farm the most popular remedy for indigestion is Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. Many a person has saved his life by using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. Many a person has saved himself from a serious attack of acute indigestion by using them after heavy meals. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet is a safe, reliable, and efficient cure for all forms of dyspepsia and indigestion.

Farmers' Boys—Just think of brother Joe in the city. He can't eat. Why, a sandwich like this would kill him.

A majority of people have come to know the blessings which an occasional use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets confer upon the stomach. They are unquestionably the most popular remedy known for the reason that dyspepsia is the national disease, and these wonderful little tablets have so widely acquired a national reputation as a thorough, reliable and efficient cure for all forms of dyspepsia and indigestion.

No matter how great the excess of food taken into the stomach, one or two of these tablets will digest every particle of it. A package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets should always be in the house. Many a person has saved himself from a serious attack of acute indigestion by using them after heavy meals. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet is a safe, reliable, and efficient cure for all forms of dyspepsia and indigestion.

Following this meeting the men will get immediately to work and will report results each day at noon luncheons given at the Y. M. C. A. building through Friday.

It is believed the full needed and desired membership will have been secured by the end of the week.

The Advantages Offered.

The advantages and facilities to be obtained in the new Y. M. C. A. include the following:

It is a twin building, one for the boys department and the other for the men and is pervaded with fresh air, light and warmth.

No Bill Is Returned For Lewis by Jury In Macon Bank Case

Macon, Ga., November 14—(Special)—The United States grand jury, which had been in session here all week, this afternoon returned a no bill in the case of E. Nat Lewis, cashier of the Commercial National Bank of Macon, which was recently absorbed by the American National Bank. Mr. Lewis was the only one of the officials of this bank who was investigated, though it is said that another grand jury may go into the alleged action of the officers and directors in making excessive loans to two directors of the bank. The Lewis investigation simply dealt with certain official reports made by Lewis as cashier.

ELBERT FARMERS DO NOT SUFFER BY COTTON

Elberton, Ga., November 14—(Special)—Cotton is moving very slowly in this county, though the price this week has been 7 1/2 cents a pound. At every home in the county almost may be seen bales of cotton stored. About half of what was marketed this time last year has been marketed here. It seems to be the consensus of opinion that the acreage will be reduced at least one-half next year, and some propose to plant none at all. Elbert county farmers, who have always raised enough to eat, are not suffering by the present condition of cotton.

DR. JAMES W. BRYANT BURIED AT LYERLY

Connell, pastor of the Sumnerville Baptist church, conducting the services. Dr. Bryant was probably the best known physician in the county.

Congressman Howard Speaks to Farm Boys At DeKalb Corn Show

Decatur, Ga., November 14—(Special)—The annual meeting of the DeKalb County Boys' Corn Club was held in the courthouse in Decatur today. R. S. Hunter, county agent, had charge of the exhibits and contests. There was a number of the boys present, but owing to the bad weather the attendance was not as large as expected. There were twenty-two exhibits of ten ears each of corn out of about fifty members of the club. No prizes were awarded today, this feature being left for another meeting to be held at a later date, when it is believed all exhibits will be in.

The largest yield in the county was by Eugene Clark, of Lithonia, of 139 bushels and 49 pounds. Cost of production was 16 cents a bushel, with a profit of $110.00.

The second largest yield was by

Seven Reasons

COST

Every bulletin board has a space capacity of at least 20,215 column inches. The average bulletin has a circulation of 18,000 readers. You can advertise to 18,000 people on 20,215 inches of space for 33 cents a day. We claim that this is the utmost in advertising economy.

SIZE

One of the fundamentals of good advertising is to first attract attention. No single agency serves this function better than size. If a man nine feet tall walked down the street, you would be sure to take a good look at him. People go miles to see a Niagara or a Stone Mountain, because of their size. Bulletins possess the attribute of size. They consistently attract attention.

LOCATION

Bulletin boards reach the mark of 100 per cent efficiency in the important matter of location. You advertise just where you want to advertise, not promiscuously. Put your bulletin board in front of your prospect's store if you want to. The virtue in this is patent.

COLOR

The psychological interest in color, always displayed by every one, has become axiomatic. Through its skilful coloration, the bulletin board pulls the attention in spite of everything.

PERSISTENCY

"Keeping everlastingly at it" is one of the Ten Commandments of Advertising. Bulletins are on the job day and night, never relenting. Bulletins break none of the acknowledged advertising requirements.

UNIVERSALITY

Many people fail to read the newspapers. Lots of circular letters reach the waste-basket, unopened. But everybody must read the bulletins. They are conspicuously before every class of people, every day.

NON-COMPETITIVE

LEO FRANK LOSER IN SUPREME COURT

Petition to Set Aside Verdict Because He Was Not in Court When It Was Rendered, Denied.

The first which has been waged in the state courts to save Leo Frank, convicted of the murder of little Mary Phagan, came to an end Saturday at 1 o'clock—no far as the state courts are concerned—when the supreme court affirmed the decision of Judge Benjamin H. Hill in refusing to set aside the verdict on the ground that Frank was not in court when the verdict was read.

Within a few minutes after the decision had reached the clerk's office Leonard Haas attorney and close personal friend of Frank declared that the next move would be in the nature of a writ of error to the United States supreme court. Attorney Haas is still hopeful as ever that Frank will be freed.

"I am more certain than ever that the truth is coming out," Attorney Haas said. "Frank is just as innocent of the crime he has been convicted of as I am and I know that I had nothing to do with the killing."

All justices of the supreme court except Justice Fish, who is ill and confined in the hospital, are expected to vote for a new trial. The opinion of the court covering almost every phase of the case was written by Justice Warner Hill. The decision covers more than thirty-two pages. It goes into a lengthy review of the law and the evidence, and cites a number of authorities on the subjects of motions for new trials and motions to dismiss.

The salient point in the opinion is that the points made by Frank in his motion to set aside the verdict of the jury could and should have been made in the previous motion for a new trial. The court quoted a number of authorities in connection with the points stated above.

It will be seen that where a motion for a new trial is made that the defendant in his motion for a new trial set out all that is known to him at the time or by reasonable diligence could have been known by him as grounds for a new trial.

Frank Was Hopeful. Frank in his cell in the Tower was taking his daily exercise in the corridor when he was informed that the supreme court had decided against him. His wife and other members of his family and several friends were with him. His demeanor when informed of the action of the court indicated that he had either received previous information of the reverse or that of a man who was steered to beat up under any circumstance.

I did not expect an unfavorable decision from the supreme court, he said. I put my faith in my lawyer, and consequently I looked for the best. I have nothing to say at present.

Frank intimated that he would probably give out a statement later in the afternoon. He said that if nothing interfered he would probably prepare a statement.

Before carefully reading the decision of the court Attorney Haas told reporters that he would make a conference with the other attorneys engaged in the case. He explained that the conference would be held immediately—just as soon as copies of the decision came in.

How long we will have plenty of time to determine on our future plans. Attorney Haas declined to comment on the ruling of the supreme court. He said that he had not been given time to carefully discuss the various reasons given by the court.

The court in citing its reason for refusing Frank's motion to set aside the verdict pointed out that "the trial of the indicted murderer a verdict of guilty is received in the absence of the prisoner and without his consent, while he is incarcerated in jail, a motion for a new trial is an available remedy in such a case if it is made in time."

oner and without his consent, while he is incarcerated in jail, a motion for a new trial is an available remedy in such a case if it is made in time. Up to the present stage Dorsey has combatted every move of Frank's attorneys. He entered the case when the knowledge of the fact that the jury on the request at police headquarters a few days after the body of Mary Phagan was found on April 26, 1913. He had also taken an active hand in the investigation that led up to the inquest.

In the proposed supreme court fight Mr Dorsey will be assisted by Assistant Solicitor General E. A. Stephens, who has been associated with him in every phase of the famous Frank battle.

Defense Was Confident. That the attorneys for Leo Frank had built great hopes on the supreme court decision, and that it was a distinct shock to them was stated by Leonard Haas, associate counsel for the convicted man in his plea for court's decision.

We do not believe that the supreme court would deny the motion for a new trial, we were confident that the verdict would be released by the court's decision.

We have not given up hope however. The United States supreme court has many precedents to govern it, in all of which it has ruled that a prisoner cannot waive his presence at a time of verdict.

Within the next two weeks Frank's counsel will file before the state supreme court an application for writ of error to be taken to the United States supreme court.

It will be seen that where a motion for a new trial is made that the defendant in his motion for a new trial set out all that is known to him at the time or by reasonable diligence could have been known by him as grounds for a new trial.

Did the defendant in the instant case know at the time he made his motion for a new trial that he was absent without his consent when the verdict of guilty was rendered against him? He must of necessity have known it and likewise his counsel in one ground of his motion for a new trial which was reviewed and passed on by this court it was alleged.

When one convicted of crime makes a motion for a new trial, it is his duty to include everything in it which was appropriate to such a motion and which was known to him at the time he made the question under consideration in the motion for a new trial.

It is the undoubted right of a defendant, who is indicted for a criminal offense in this state, to be present at every stage of his trial, but he may waive his presence at the reception of the verdict rendered in his case in Cavathorne v. the State a waiver was made by the defendant's counsel in his presence as his personal presence at the reception of the verdict.

Even if an attorney by virtue of the relation of attorney and client, existing between himself and one charged with a felony, has no implied right to waive the right of his client to be present at the reception of the verdict if the attorney makes an express waiver to that effect in the presence of his client who does not at the time repudiate the action of his counsel a verdict afterwaived received in the absence of the accused and in consequence of the waiver, will not be held to be invalid at the instance of the accused seeking to set aside the verdict.

The supreme court sustained the solicitor on the above point. The other contentions of the solicitor for all he held that Frank's conduct had amounted to an estoppel that is, that he too late adopted the remedy which might have been proper at an earlier time but that it was not now after he had successfully fought other motions through the lower court and the supreme court.

Frank's lawyers maintained that the doctrine of estoppel does not exist in criminal cases and that a man on trial for his life has the right at any time to assert for his protection any right given him under the constitution.

Frank's attorneys have exhausted every means within their power insofar as the state courts are concerned in an effort to free him from the charge of murder for which he has been convicted and sentenced to death. Unless the United States supreme court decides that the state supreme court and Judge Hill have erred in refusing to grant the motion to set aside the verdict, the only course which will then be left open will be an application for commutation of sentence before the governor and the prison commission.

The case can be sent back to the state courts by the United States supreme court to have the error corrected. Dorsey to Represent State. Although it was the popular opinion that the work of Solicitor General Hugh S. Dorsey was done on the Frank case when the present verdict rendered its final verdict, the Frank forces in their next move will still have to contend with the state supreme court as goes to the United States supreme court.

case and has been raised and that it is worthy of the consideration of the United States court. Then Goes to Washington. Once the writ is granted, it goes automatically into Washington. The solicitor general has the right of protesting on the ground that no constitutional point exists. In this event, argument is called for from both sides.

Franks' attorneys, however, contend that Dorsey cannot afford to present this argument because of practical admission of a constitutional point when he argued it before the trial judge and supreme court.

The United States supreme court battle will be fought by Attorneys Eye, Peeples & Jordan and Leonard J. Haas and Herbert Haas, assisted by Harry A. Alexander, Luther Rosser and Reuben Arnold. Will not be associated in it, having withdrawn by agreement from the fight when the constitutional point was raised.

REYNARD IS CHASED BY ELBERTONIANS. Athens Ga., November 14—(Special)—Elberton people last night enjoyed a variety of diversions. Two hundred citizens enjoyed an old-fashioned fox chase with horses and a pack of fifteen hounds and a real live gray fox for the quarry.

Simultaneously 200 other Elbertonians were enjoying at the county courthouse a replica of the Old Fiddlers' convention and contests which Company "E" and Company "M" finished third and fourth.

The companies left Marietta after 3 o'clock in a driving rain and over bad roads. The first company left at 3:05 o'clock, and the other followed after three-minute intervals.

LIHEL AGAINST SHIP BY CATTLE PUNCHERS. Newport News Va., November 14—On complaint of five of the discharged cattle punchers who alleged that they had not received their wages, United States Commissioner A. C. Garrett today certified a warrant of libel against the British steamer Rombrant to the United States district court at Norfolk.

A deputy marshal will be over here Monday, the commissioner says, to serve the papers on the captain. It developed in the course of the hearing that the cattlemen had signed on the boat without reading the articles and later discovered that they had been signed at a salary of one shilling a month.

Dividends and Income Tax. Washington, November 14—Dividends from the net earnings or established surplus created from net earnings of any concern are vested in the stockholder when declared and must be accounted for in that individual's return for the year when they are due and payable according to an income tax decision announced tonight by the treasury department.

Such dividends must be included in the returns of all individuals whose incomes make them taxable and must be reported also in the gross income of the corporation.

HIKE FROM MARIETTA WON BY COMPANY "C" Cover Distance in Four Hours and Thirty-Nine Minutes, Breaking Record.

In heavy marching order, with side arms and equipment, Company "C" of the Atlanta guard under the command of Captain Asa W. Candler, won the hike from Marietta to Atlanta Saturday afternoon, making the distance about 20 miles in 4 hours and 39 minutes.

By its feat Company "C" broke the record for the distance made by Company "D" under the command of Captain Bill Stoddard, last year. "D" company made the distance in 4 hours and 45 minutes.

Company "D" was second in this year's hike making the distance in 4 hours and 43 minutes. Captain Fowler is in command this year.

Company "I" German American guard, under the command of Captain Hartlaub, was third covering the distance in 5 hours and 15 minutes.

Company "E" and Company "M" finished third and fourth. The companies left Marietta after 3 o'clock in a driving rain and over bad roads.

HUNTERS' HOUNDS UNEARTH SKELETON. Have These Bones for Twenty Years Hoarded Secret of John Nash's Fate?

Athens Ga., November 14—(Special)—Henry W. Jarrell, while hunting near Fredrick in Oglethorpe county yesterday had his dogs tree a growlome and ghostly find. Under a howler which had been casually upturned the bleaching and moldering skeleton of a man was discovered.

The bones had been placed in an excavation under the big rock and earth piled up over it. From the best evidence the skeleton was that of a denizen grown probably middle aged, white man. It has evidently been in its unnatural grave for twenty years or more.

About that long ago John Nash mysteriously disappeared from Lexington and was never heard of and the theory has been advanced that this little pile of white bones is the sequel to that disappearance.

"IT'S WILSON!"
DISCOVERER CRIED
President Fails to Escape Recognition on Broadway and Gets Ovation—Sadened by Mrs. Wilson's Painting.

New York, November 14.—President Wilson found tonight he could not escape recognition in New York even when he appeared upon the street as a private citizen. He tried it and failed.

Mr. Wilson announced that he intended to spend the evening quietly at the home of his friend, Colonel E. M. House, but changed his mind and at 8:30 o'clock he and Colonel House started for a stroll on Broadway. They were attended only by a couple of secret service men some distance in the rear.

Soon the president and his escort halted for a moment to listen to the music provided at a Salvation Army open-air meeting, and right there Mr. Wilson's incognito came to an end.

"It's Wilson! It's President Wilson!" shouted the discoverer.

Instantly the Salvationists were deserted as the listeners began to follow the president and his host. The secret service men closed in closely.

Two blocks farther on a volunteer street orator discussing the Mexican situation gained the nation's chief executive as an auditor. The president smiled and started on as the speaker eulogized Villa and extolled Carranza. The orator soon was deserted, the throng trailing the president.

"Hurrah for Wilson!"

The next stop in the Wilson itineraries was at a suffragist meeting. The zealous speaker was interrupted in her address as the hundreds who followed the president came up. The crowd shouting "Hurrah for Wilson!" by this time had gained alarming proportions. Two or three New York policemen volunteered to assist the secret service operatives in forcing a path for the city's distinguished guest and they began looking for a safe haven.

The suggestion was made as they reached Thirty-fourth street that they seek the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. The hotel was reached safely and the officers made a hurried search for Wilson. As he gained the door the president turned and waved his hand, crying, "Goodby, I'm going to get away from you now."

As the crowd surged around the Thirty-fourth street entrance Mr. Wilson, Colonel House and their guardians were taken to the second floor in an elevator and spirited out on the Fifth avenue side. As they gained the street the president caught sight of a painting of Mrs. Wilson in the window of an art store.

The president stood sadly and silently before the window for a few minutes, the crowd evidently forgotten. Then he turned and hurriedly hailed a Fifth-avenue bus and in this vehicle the president of the United States, his wife and the two boys, ended for the night, rode to the home of Colonel House.

Wilson took a complete rest today, playing golf during the morning and taking a long automobile ride in the afternoon.

During his automobile ride today the president was within a few miles of the home of Theodore Roosevelt, who is at his home in Oyster Bay, but the two did not meet. Colonel Roosevelt expressed interest when told that Mr. Wilson was near him, and said he hoped the president was well.

Attendance at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church and dinner at the home of Cleveland H. Dodge, at Riverside will make up the president's program tomorrow.

COTTON-LADEN STEAMER PASSES THROUGH CANAL

Washington, November 14.—Traffic, which during the canal's opening today would develop high importance, recently was inaugurated when the steamer Perith Castle, Galveston to Yokohama, laden with 2,700 bales of cotton, passed out into the Pacific. By use of the canal the steamer saved 4,380 nautical miles. The of the city estimated the time saved at 23 days or $3,950 on the outward voyage alone. The money saved is not gain to the owners, were paid by the steamer, but similar charges would have been levied had she gone via the Suez canal, and the money saved is not gain to the carriers by the way they will insure the shipping of their entire shipment hereafter through the canal.

ART SALON TO REMAIN OPEN ALL THIS WEEK

Number of Fine Pictures at the Exhibit Have Been Purchased.

So much interest has been displayed in the art salon at the Fonce de Leon apartments that the Atlanta Art association, under whose auspices it is held, will continue it through this week instead of closing last night, as planned.

Attendance last week averaged more than 100 people per day, and indications point to still better attendance this week.

The salon has several fine exhibits which were not shown in the previous week. It was known that the salon would run another week.

Among these are a fine collection of Royal Doulton porcelain, owned by F. W. Besom, of East Point, who used to work in the Royal Doulton plant in England.

The salon will be open today and every day this week from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and will be open Tuesday and Thursday nights. The latter will be society night, with numbers of the most prominent men and women of the city in attendance.

GEORGIA PRODUCTS DAY.

Everybody in State Is Urged to Observe Day.

The Constitution has been asked by the Georgia Chamber of Commerce to urge every citizen in Georgia, every hotel, every club and every family to observe Georgia Products day, Wednesday, November 18, by putting on a menu made up as completely as possible of Georgia-raised foodstuffs.

Every Georgian is asked to wear Georgia-manufactured articles of clothing and use Georgia-made articles of every available sort needed in their daily life on Georgia Products day.

Every community, every hotel, every club and every family that observes Georgia Products day is requested to advise the Georgia Chamber of Commerce of the fact, so that the industry will reach the headquarters in Atlanta, not later than November 21.

JUDGE W. H. JACKSON ON VISIT TO ATLANTA

He Speaks Interestingly of Conditions in the Canal Zone.

Judge William H. Jackson, accompanied by his wife, is visiting his brother, Henry S. Jackson.

Judge Jackson is judge of the United States district court of the canal zone of Panama, which position was created by the Adamson bill which passed Congress August 1912. He assumed office in April, 1914. Prior to that time there were three judges of the supreme court of the canal zone, which was governed executive and legislatively by the canal commission, of which George W. Goethals was a member. The supreme court was composed of three members, of which Judge Jackson was one. The Adamson bill abolished this commission and the supreme court, and created the governor of the zone and one judge of the district court, with appeals to the United States circuit court of appeals of New Orleans.

The permanent seat of government is Ancon, the American part of the city of Panama.

In speaking of the canal, Judge Jackson said:

"As you know, the canal is completed. Trouble is being experienced with extensive slides at Colobra, which occur from time to time, but this defect will eventually be completely remedied as soon as the angle of repose, as the engineers term it, is established. Dredges are at work all the time fighting these slides. The canal elsewhere has a depth of 45 feet and width of 300 feet. It will, however, be necessary to keep dredges on the scene for some years to come.

The men in charge of the work at Panama are the most marvelous people in the world. They do not recognize defeat.

"The war, of course, has hurt the canal, but it is making $350,000 a month, in spite of this fact, and this is more than sufficient to pay operating expenses.

"The canal is neutral and open to all nations, but thus far no war vessels of the belligerent powers have passed through it.

"The canal is now leaving the canal zone by thousands, but many will remain.

"The conditions in the zone are excellent. The heat is not excessive; it is only the monotony of it that one feels. The temperature ranges from 80 to 85 degrees in the day, and the nights are cool. There are no mosquitoes, no flies and no malarial or yellow fever.

President Wilson's selection of General Goethals was a splendid one. He is the biggest man in America today. The morals of the zone could not be improved. The sale of whisky is prohibited, and gambling is absolutely forbidden. The life of the zone is clean and wholesome and the regard for law and order is high."

Judge Jackson will be in Atlanta for several days.

OPEN DEPOSIT STATION.

Carnegie Library Plans to Extend Influence.

The Carnegie library will open a deposit station on Tuesday at the corner of Georgia avenue and Capitol avenue. This station is intended to serve the convenience of the patrons of the main library who live in the vicinity, by bringing the resources of the library nearer to them, and also to accommodate those residing library so far.

The deposit station will be kept in the store of L. M. Dodd, No. 161 Georgia avenue, who has kindly offered the courtesy of the necessary space. A selection of books on different subjects for readers of all ages will be in the deposit case, also a number of good stories. There will be books for the children, and new picture books for the very little children.

The deposit station will be open on every Tuesday and every Friday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock. A librarian from the main library will always be in charge. She will be glad to receive suggestions as to the books the users of the station would like to have.

Any class in the neighborhood which is pursuing a course of study and needs certain books for additional reference may either submit a list, or ask for aid in getting up such a list, and the books will be furnished as promptly as possible and sent out in the deposit for the use of the club members.

Everyone living in convenient distance from the station is invited to make use of it. This in no way affects the user's privilege at the main library, which will remain the same.

It is hoped, and seems probable, that in a few years' time this deposit station may grow into a south side branch library located in its own building.

Big Movie Picture On Display at Atlanta By the Ad Men's Club

St. Elmo Massengale, president of the Atlanta Ad Men's club, has succeeded in capturing a wonderful moving picture with a special lecturer, sent from the Panama exposition of California.

With the usual enterprise of the Ad Men's club, they have succeeded in engaging the Atlanta theater for Friday evening, November 20. There will be no charge.

The lecturer is said to be splendid, the picture extraordinary. They take you through Colorado, California and the exposition, etc. Friends of the Ad Men's club are congratulating them on securing this attraction for the people of Atlanta.

ROBBERS GET LOOT FROM MACON STORES

Macon, Ga., November 14.—(Special.) Two Macon stores were burglarized last night and looted to the value of $200 secured. Burglars first entered the dry goods store of Reeves & Wright, on Poplar street, taking a lot of clothing and jewelry. Next they went to the repair shop of James H. Holt, on Wall street, and carried off a large number of pairs of shoes.

The police lay the robberies to idlers who have been in the city during the state fair.

Building New Church.

Cornelia, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—Work is progressing rapidly on the new Baptist church building which has been under construction for only a few weeks. This will be one of the most imposing church buildings in this part of the state, costing approximately $10,000. The pastor, Rev. W. J. Barton, and his congregation are highly elated over having a new house of worship before the first of the year.

ONE COUNTY PREVENTS HARDWICK QUALIFYING

Bleckley Has So Far Failed to Consolidate Her Vote for Senatorship.

Although he received a majority of the votes cast in the general election, and although he has won on the face of the returns thus far received, Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick has not yet been formally elected United States senator for the short term.

This fact was developed Saturday when it was found that Bleckley county failed to consolidate the vote for congressman and senator for the short term, and investigation brought out the further fact that after consolidating the returns for all other officers, the election managers made up the tally sheet, put the ballots back in the box and sealed them.

The same thing happened in McDuffie county, but only as to the consolidated vote for congressman.

True, the total vote of the counties is known, but the law requires that the vote shall be consolidated and the result certified in a report to the secretary of state.

The judge of the superior court of the circuit has authority, under the law, to order the boxes opened for the purpose of consolidating the vote, but this will require time, and will mean that Congressman Hardwick cannot qualify as senator for the short term until the consolidation is made.

Congress resumes its session in December for all other officers, the election managers made up the tally sheet, put the ballots back in the box and sealed them.

OFFICER'S ARRIVAL PREVENTS A DUEL IN MACON STREETS

Macon, Ga., November 14.—(Special.) C. C. Allen and W. P. Huff, two well-known residents of Ash street, were before Recorder Cochran this morning on charges of disorderly conduct, and pointing a pistol.

Only the prompt arrival of an officer is said to have prevented a duel that would probably have cost the lives of both men.

Huff engaged in a dispute with Allen's stepson, whereupon Allen took a hand. Huff drew his pistol and threatened to shoot Allen if he approached. Huff claims that Allen also drew a pistol but this is denied by Allen. Just about this time the officer arrived and placed both men under arrest.

Allen claims that Huff made remarks about Mrs. Allen that were not to his liking.

EMPIRE LIFE CO. WINS BEFORE COMMISSION

Following periodical hearings which lasted more than six weeks, the examining board, consisting of Governor John M. Slaton, General William A. Wright, insurance commissioner, and Warren Grice, attorney general, rendered a decision Saturday setting aside contentions of litigants of the Empire Life insurance company.

These contentions were in effect that the insurance company was insolvent, and that its affairs were being mismanaged. The charges were made by Barrie P. Chandler, and were the subject of a decision of litigation seeking to have a receiver take charge and administer the affairs of the company.

In the decision which was rendered Saturday, the examiners declared that the charges were without merit. The decision is a victory for the insurance company.

The decision was signed by each member of the commission who participated in each of the exhaustive hearings.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat Less Meat if Kidneys Feel Like Lead or Bladder Bothers You—Meat Forms Uric Acid.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally. You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless, inexpensive, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

Jad Salts is for old gold, silver, platinum, old watches, broken jewelry, precious stones.

PRINCETON RALLY IN LAST QUARTER SCARED BULLDOGS

Sensational Climax Staged After Yale Had Sent Her Substitutes Into the Game Saturday.

TWO TOUCHDOWNS MADE WHEN ELIS SLOWED UP

"Tigers" Completely Outplayed—Open Attack of "Bulldogs" Had Tiger Defense at Sea—Score 19 to 14

Princeton, N. J., November 14.—Yale defeated Princeton, 19 to 14, today in a football game, which, for thrilling climax, rivaled modern stagecraft at its best.

No similar situation has developed in many years in the annual game between these two universities. With its thrilling moments of spectacular play and gripping uncertainty the contest formed a most fitting climax of Princeton's new Palmer Memorial Stadium.

During three-quarters of the game there was not a yard of gain for the national champion Princeton team to make memorable the dedication of its new football arena.

The contest opened with an exchange of punts. Princeton soon found she could make no progress either by kicking or punting.

The initial score came when, having secured the ball well in Princeton's left side in the first quarter, Yale opened with an assortment of stalling plays and knife-like drives from outside of tackle.

Much the same tactics characterized the second period, and the Princeton team, which had been playing inside the Tigers' final five-yard mark, here Princeton held firmly and the Yale team was unable to make a route for scoring.

Princeton's Rush. The Orange and Black played like a normal combination in the work of rest. With a running game they swept the Blues' substitutes off their feet.

Auburn S. I. A. A. Champs, Having Made Better Record Than the Tennessee Eleven

By Dick Jemison. Mike Donahue's Auburn football eleven is again champions of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association.

For third place, there is such a pretty mix-up that one is in a quandary as to who to pick for the place. Sewanee, Tech, Alabama, Vanderbilt and Mississippi A. & M. have the best claims.

By Dick Jemison. Can De Oro beat Melbourn Inman at English billiards? "Yes," answers Louis Bensinger, the veteran Chicago roomkeeper and friend and admirer of the peerless Billiard champion for a quarter of a century.

There is no keener judge of billiards or a better student in the world than the veteran Bensinger. The gentleman's game has been his life's study. As a fan he always has enjoyed it and in a business sense he has made it his life's study.

ILLINOIS CINGHES WESTERN TITLE

By Defeating Chicago in the Annual Game Saturday, 21 to 7—Brilliant Attack Wins.

Urbana, Ill., November 14.—Illinois made certain the conference football championship today by defeating Chicago, 21 to 7, while Wisconsin was losing to Minnesota.

Illinois played an open game, using many double and triple passes, forward passes and spread formations. Chicago was successful in breaking up forward passes, however, and neither team scored in the first half.

TENNESSEE WINS FROM THE TIGERS

Fierce Struggle Ends 14 to 7—Both Teams Had Opportunities to Win or Tie the Score.

Chattanooga, Tenn., November 14.—In the most terrific struggle ever seen on a local gridiron, the University of Tennessee defeated the University of the South (Sewanee) this afternoon.

Both the match here in Chicago I noticed that Inman made at least half of his points through his wonderful ball control and pocket play. He was able to negotiate the odd angles, invariably presented by these pockets, relying almost entirely on the corner pockets and the open table.

Vanderbilt Gives Auburn Stiff Argument for Verdict; Plainsmen Winning 6 to 0

Birmingham, Ala., November 14.—In a little less than eight minutes of play Auburn had defeated Vanderbilt here this afternoon and had further strengthened her claim to championship honors in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association.

During the second quarter Vanderbilt was within easy striking distance of the Auburn goal, but the Plainsmen from the Alabama Polytechnic Institute held firm and their opponents were forced first to attempt a forward pass and then a goal from field.

Michigan, Mich., November 14.—Cornell clearly outclassed Michigan today and won, 28 to 13. The defeat closed the Wolverines' most disastrous season since Fielding H. Yost became coach.

CORNELL SPRINGS ANOTHER SURPRISE

Michigan, Picked to Win, Defeated 28 to 13—Barrett and Maulbeth Stars.

FIELD GOALS SAVE CLEMSON TIGERS

V. M. I. Rallies in Latter Part of Game—Final Score, 27 to 23.

Richmond, Va., November 14.—Virginia Military Institute lost to Clemson here today after nearly overcoming a 21 point lead secured in the first period.

GEORGIA SPRINGS SURPRISE PARTY ON THE JACKETS

Upset the Dope by Holding Tech to One Touchdown. Both of the Teams Fought Fiercely Throughout.

PATTEN'S THIRTY-YARD RUN GAVE TECH CHANCE

Thompson, Fielder, Padlock and Morrison Were Brightest Stars—The First Tech Victory Since 1909.

By Dick Jemison. Fighting desperately on a muddy field and with the wind and rain adding to the general discomfort of the spectators, the Tech Yellow Jackets defeated the University of Georgia in their annual battle yesterday.

The Red and Black deserved credit for their wonderful fight in the face of tremendous odds. They were defeated, but not disgraced. They fought nobly for the entire game, with no marked advantage for either side.

Statistics on the game show that there was little advantage for either side in actual yardage gained during the game, though there was sufficient to give the Jackets to win the game by.

Each side made eleven first downs during the game in a total gain of 107 yards by Georgia and 91 yards by Tech. Georgia still has a margin of one game, having won nine, Tech eight and one has remained tied.

Georgia's score 18 points to Tech's 16. From this date it will be seen that the Tech jubilation after the game was well justified and the policemen looked the way to have a busy day in the business section, Saturday night.

Little Advantage. Statistics on the game show that there was little advantage for either side in actual yardage gained during the game, though there was sufficient to give the Jackets to win the game by.

One Best Bet Often Fails To Go Through in Baseball

By BILLY EVANS, (American League Umpire.)

It was at the close of the final game of the American league season. I was in my dressing room at Shibe park, packing up preparatory to taking the first train to New York, where I had been assigned to work the series between the Giants and the Yankees. George Hildebrand, who worked the final game with me, and who was in the office in the big series, which opened at Philly, was helping me to make a hurried getaway.

"Confidentially, what do you think of the big series?" asked Hildebrand.

"Well, George, a lot of people have asked me that question, and I have told them all they probably knew more about it than I did, but I'm going to tell you just exactly what I think. I believe it will be an easy series for you. It won't go over six games, in all probability five will be enough, and I wouldn't be terribly surprised if the Athletics took four straight."

"That was just what I thought of the 1914 series. I knew Boston was a good ball team, but I honestly thought the Athletics were so much better that there was nothing to it but Connie Mack's team when picking the winner. Prior to the start of the New York series I talked with a number of the Athletics, every one of whom was in with relative to the big event picked the Athletics to win.

"The Athletics will find it easier to beat the Braves than they did us," was the way the members of McGraw's team put it. I had even further in my confidential chat with Hildebrand. "Bender is one fellow who will beat the Braves, every one of our pitchers, for the Indian never looked better than in the last game he faced New York." I referred to a three-inning work-out Bender had against the New York Americans. In three innings Bender struck out five men.

Dope All Wrong.

My brand of dope on the big series couldn't have been much worse. The series didn't go over six games; in fact, five wasn't needed to settle the winner. It all happened in four straight, but instead of the Athletics coping all four, the Boston Braves turned the trick. No Athletics pitcher was hit harder than the crafty Indian. Manager McGraw was about the only member of the Giants who had much respect for Boston, and he coached his opinion of Stallings' team in a rather funny way.

"When you watch the club practice," four games was probably the strangest collection of players who ever penetrated a big league city. An outfielder played third base, a pitcher worked in the outfield, a regular did the catching, but the rest of the players were either substitutes or bench leaguers, picked for the occasion. The Washington club, one of the strongest teams in the American league, appeared to have a pinch in this series. Looking over the 270 names there didn't appear to be a chance for the Washingtonians to lose; the only question was how long it would take them to get to the top. Detroit and Washington were fighting for third place at the time, and Manager Griffith undoubtedly hoped to clinch the position by taking four straight. I don't believe I will ever forget that series. The midst aggression was the greatest I have ever seen. I imagine Manager Griffith's surprise as well as his players, when they dropped two games. It was only by the hair's breadth that they managed to take the next two and even up the series. Instead of being able to clinch the position by taking all four games, Griffith was forced to battle up to the very finish to capture third place honors.

A Sure Thing Fizzled Out.

Another jolt was handed Manager Griffith just prior to this series. Detroit was scheduled to play its last game of the season in Washington. It drizzled from the noon hour until starting time. Few people thought there was a chance for a game. Manager Griffith needed every penny he could get to keep up in the race. He figured the day was so dark that it would be almost an impossibility to make his team start at the start of the season. No pitcher ever looked better than Jennings' lanky recruit. He beat even the better man, invariably wins, but the breaks of the game figure so prominently in baseball that the dope means nothing. Practically all the big series were looked foolish after the big series was over, for nearly all of them picked the wrong side. The only way to pick a winner in baseball was to select the club that was sure to make the most.

Savannah Motorcycle Race Will Be Warmly Contested

Motorcycle events for the year 1914 will be brought to a glorious close on Thanksgiving day, November 26, at Savannah, Ga., when the Savannah Grand Prize motorcycle road race will take place. This is the second annual event that has been promoted by the Savannah Grand Prize motorcycle road race occupies the same attention in the motorcycle world.

Each year this event had fifty-one starters composed of the premier motorcycle drivers of the country, and great speed and was won by Bob Perry, who averaged practically 100 miles in the present day motorcycle event that will take place on Thanksgiving day is expected to far exceed the speed of last year and experts in the game predict that an average of over 62 miles per hour will be maintained.

The big motorcycle makers all over the country have picked the cream of their riders for entering this contest, as there are $500 worth of cash prizes, not including national trophies or letters from the city of Savannah. The first prize will be $300; second prize, $250; third prize, $100 in gold, and the magneto people have offered an additional cash prize of $100 in gold to the rider crossing the line first, making the event using a Bosch magneto, and an additional $50 in gold if the rider records a broken record.

One of the big makers which has entered the contest for Thanksgiving day was the Harley-Davidson Motor company. Drivers that money can obtain. In the past few months the Harley-Davidson Motor company has entered into the racing game and have made some wonderful records. Their racing machine of work model, has broken many records and won some of the biggest events in the world. The Harley-Davidson entries will consist of Bill Cunningham, who rode 120 miles in 15 minutes on July 4 at Dodge city; also recently won the 100-mile event at Milwaukee; also Red Fuchs, who won the one-hour E. A. M. national championship and quite a number of other events during the year. In September Bill Brier, who broke quite a number of records in his 15 minutes on July 4 at Dodge city, also recently won the 100-mile event at Milwaukee; also Red Fuchs, who won the one-hour E. A. M. national championship and quite a number of other events during the year.

ALVA SPRATTON, one of the speedy riders entered in the big motorcycle race to be held in Savannah Thanksgiving day.

HARVARD'S SCRUBS HOLD BROWN TEAM

Cambridge, Mass., November 14.—Harvard's second and third strings of players, with one or two regulars, were held to a scoreless tie by Brown today. The Crimson showed marked superiority, both on offense and defense, and six times were inside Brown's 20-yard line, only to be thrown back by the overcautiousness of inexperienced forwards, fumbles by the backs and poor field goal kicking.

Tech High Challenges Richmond Academy for Game Here on Dec. 2

Having defeated the Savannah team and having not lost a game to any state high school eleven, Tech High challenges the Richmond Academy for a game here on December 2, which is the morning of the Auburn-Carroll game. The game to be played for the state high school championship. Richmond Academy is one of the strongest high school elevens in the state and so far have not yet been defeated by a high school eleven. Recently they agreed to play Tech High provided Tech High defeated Savannah High and wrote a letter to the management of the local school to this effect.

Tech High will play this team here on Saturday morning, December 2. Being the only date that they have that is not filled, it is now strictly up to the Augusta team.

It is reported that all fields have been discovered in the Vacuifia mountains of Bolivia.

BELGIAN ARMY USES AMERICAN MACHINES

300 Overland Motor Cars Aiding Them in Fight Against Germans.

London, November 14.—(Special.)—A big squadron of 300 Overland motor cars is one of the important factors in the remarkable resistance of the Belgians by the intrepid Belgians against the overwhelming forces of the Kaiser. These cars practically made possible the successful withdrawal of the Belgian troops from Belgium. The entire army would be taken upon the fall of the city. The Overlands were used continuously during the retreat from the city, making trip after trip with loads of men, provisions and ammunition to the front lines and the first line of the allied troops.

The cars were purchased shortly after the actual opening of hostilities from the stock of the Willys-Overland Limited, London, distributor of Overland cars, by a commission of army motor experts headed by Colonel Jamnott, chief engineer of the Belgian artillery. Fortunately, a large shipment of Overland cars in this territory had just reached London and the cars were available for immediate delivery. The order of the Belgians took every car the Overland distributor had to offer.

A number of motor cars and light trucks figured in a series of exhaustive tests held at the Willys-Overland plant for rigorous service in the field. In the course of the trials, an Overland car, equipped with a special military hood prepared for the purpose, traversed the long Hampstead Hill in this city on high speed, carrying a load of petrol amounting to 1,000 pounds. The resultant sale was the largest individual order for cars ever placed with a single firm in the history of the automobile industry in England.

Immediately after the tests, the Belgians ordered 200 Overlands. Although this was the entire number of cars they had been authorized to purchase for their government, they found the Overland so satisfactory for their purpose that a second order for 100 additional cars of the same make followed shortly after the officers had made their report to headquarters.

PRINCETON AND YALE SOCCERS IN A TIE

Princeton, N. J., November 14.—Princeton and Yale tied, 1 and 1, at soccer today.

Wesley Memorial Wins.

Wesley Memorial defeated Methodist university at basketball last night by the score of 22 to 7. Wesley's passing was too much for the Methodists. Hawks played good ball for the latter.

The line-up:

WESLEY.	Positions.	METHODIST.
Hodge (14)	R. F.	Hawkins (4)
Thompson (4)	L. F.	Scott (3)
Boyer (3)	C.	Conroy (2)
Dorough (4)	L. G.	Tate

Madison 12, Rutledge 0.

Madison, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—Friday afternoon Madison high school and Rutledge high opened the athletic season in a game of basketball on the Madison grounds. It was a lively game from start to finish. While all the boys played fine ball, the star players in this game were Bug and Spear. Score 12 to 0 in favor of Madison.

RUBBER WORKERS PLAN GOOD FELLOWSHIP MOVE

At a meeting held by the foremen of the various departments of the Federal Rubber Manufacturing company on Saturday a club was organized, to be known as the Federal Rubber Good-Fellowship club. The purpose of accumulating a fund to bring good cheer into the homes of the needy at Christmas.

The method of collection adopted is to distribute envelopes to employees on which they are to be collected by Mr. Patterson, the financial secretary. The money collected in this manner will be utilized in purchasing clothing, etc., as the committee may decide, and this, together with whatever clothing and toys do not come from the needy, will be sent to the homes a few days before Christmas. Any family reported by an employee as being worthy of help will be investigated by the welfare committee.

A special effort will be made to cheer the little ones with appropriate gifts, the intention being to have a Santa Claus.

Virginia Defeats Swarthmore.

Swarthmore, Pa., November 14.—The University of Virginia easily defeated Swarthmore at football here today, 47 to 0. The southern team literally tore through the Swarthmore team and scored almost at will. Virginia started to score early, crossing Swarthmore's goal line after the first five minutes of play and followed it up with touchdowns after touchdowns.

Morning Star Beats Yamada.

Wheeling, W. Va., November 14.—Ora Morningstar defeated Koji Yamada here today in a Billiard Players' league match tonight. Average and high runs:

Morningstar, 33 1-3, 108; Yamada, 15 11-12, 84.

Cutler Defeats Schaefer.

Utica, N. Y., November 14.—Albert Cutler defeated Jacob Schaefer here tonight in a Billiard Players' league match, 400 to 311. The highest run, 57, was made by Cutler.

Too Soon to Cheer.

It is positively announced that there will be no Paris stries this year, but husbands and fathers should not cheer too much. The stries will be others that are just about as ex-brings every advantage of this big store direct to you. Tell us what you want. Expert shoppers will make all purchases, large or small, with the same thoughtful care that would mark your personal shopping tour.

OUR LETTER ORDER SERVICE

A Business Is Known By the Service it Offers

Store Service!
This is what we are striving for:
To have a store devoted first and foremost to the interest of those who spend money in it.
To have exactly what our Customers want—or to get it for them, and to deliver it in the quickest and most agreeable way to them.
To make such exchanges of service and commodities so as to serve as perfectly as possible all who do business with us.
Those who come to look, as well as the thousands who come here to buy, find much that is interesting and beautiful in the various departments. Welcome!

An Extraordinarily Low Pricing of Women's New Bath Robes

These shivery nights and mornings argue strongly for a comfortable Robe to slip into.
These beautiful garments, at this special pricing, make a much stronger appeal. Both all-wool Elderdown, and Beacon Blanket Robes.

Observe the prices:

- $3.50 and $4.00 Robes at $3
- $5 to $6.75 Robes at $4
- $7.50 to $10.00 Robes at $5

100 New Wool Dresses for Women

At $11.50 Each

This is an interesting feature of Monday's message—from the Women's Apparel Section.

When we tell you that these Dresses are new, and full of charming late style features—and what is still more engaging—they are regular $15 to $30 Dresses—priced for special selling at $11.50—you will more fully realize their desirability and will make sure of being "among those present" early Monday morning—to select the most appealing one.

Just such Dresses as will be needed for the Thanksgiving family dinner party and for many other occasions later.

Fourth Floor.

Is the Price Put Upon Women's Suits for Monday

Suits Ranging From That
Up to $35

Which means that on Monday you may choose from four revolving cases—200 Suits—in the Women's Salons—regular $20, $25, $30 and $35 Suits and pay $15 for the model that pleases you most.

Women's and Small Women's Suits

Among them many beautiful Suits for Junior Girls—13 to 18-year sizes—then all sizes, up to 44—for Women.

And such variety in styles—varied to the point of individuality. All the materials of the season are represented—and every color tone approved by Fashion is among them.

This is an opportunity not to be ignored by any woman or junior girl needing a suit.

The buying of smart suits up to $35 at $15. Fourth Floor.

A Message of Sound Economy to Housewives, Concerning—Linens

A Sale Lasting Through This Week:

Economy is a subject worthy of your attention—and by economy we do not mean lowest price. Durability is economy.

Good Linens are a real investment—they yield three-fold returns of service, wear and satisfaction.

The careful housewife with napery for her Thanksgiving table, and future social functions—likewise for constant use—will find it greatly to her advantage to select her Linens this week—Monday, if possible, while assortments are at their best.

We tell you of them briefly below, beginning with the bread-and-butter damask:

Damask

71 and 72-inch Irish and Scotch Damask, a variety of choice patterns, both staple and fancy—priced at $7.00 yard—the best Damask made at this price.

64-inch Mercerized Damask, an excellent wearing number—an assortment of beautiful patterns; priced at 50c yard.

72-inch extra heavy, fine quality Satin Damask; the most pleasing patterns; price $1.25 yard.

Hemmed Cloths, Ready for Use

Beautiful Damask Cloths, in shamrock, spot, carnation-and-stripe, aster and lily of the valley patterns, three sizes, priced as follows:

- 2x2 yards, square, at $2.50.
- 2x2½-yard size, $3.00.
- 2x3-yard size, $3.50.

Elegant cloths, of double Satin Damask; plain with band border, for hemstitching and monogram work:

- 2x2-yard size, at $5.00.
- 2x2½-yard size, at $6.00.
- 2x3-yard size, at $7.00.

hemmed—21-inch size, priced at $2.75 dozen.

For every day this week we have provided special values in—

- 20-inch Napkins, at $2.50.
- 24-inch Napkins, at $3.00.

A large assortment of double Satin Damask Napkins—choice patterns—some in new, round designs, regular dinner size, at $4 and $5 dozen.

Tea Napkins

15-inch Satin Damask Tea Napkins, at $1.50, $2.50 and $3.50 dozen.

15-inch Moravian, hemstitched Tea Napkins of double damask with satin band border, some have monogram space for initial; $3.50, $4.50, $5 and $7 dozen.

A Quick, Special Sale of Laces at 10c Yard

Regular 15c and 20c Laces

Already you are deep in Christmas plans, the making of pretty camisoles, "Teddies," boudoir caps, and so on. Every one of these require lace. You may save enough on these Laces Monday to buy materials for several gifts. A variety of dainty, diamond mesh and Tosca Valenciennes, both edges and insertions. They sell here regularly at 15c and 20c—buy them Monday at 10c yard.

Monday you may buy our
$1.00 Broadcloths at 89c
yard—all popular colors and black—54 inches wide.

Smart Shoes
For Dainty Feet

And—most important of all—we want you to see what comfort lies behind their smart style.

Try on the pretty Boots with their fabric quarters—or the low-heel shoe for walking.

There's individuality in shoes, and your type and style is here.

Red Cross Shoes are priced
$4 to $5

$1.25 Combinations At 50c

Let us tell you, first of all, they are display soiled—the reason for this absurdly low price. Of course this fact does not detract from their value in good materials and workmanship, and will be entirely overcome with one trip to the laundry.

These Combinations are made of good nainsook—corset cover and drawers—variously trimmed with embroideries, laces, beadings and so on. All sizes for women. You will surely want your share of $1.25 Combinations as they go out at 50c each.

Third Floor.

Modart Corsets

Front Laced

The popular styles for this season have low and medium high busts graduating to a medium and high back. They have the same snugness in hip lines that prevailed throughout the spring, and waists are just a trifle shaped.

All MODART Corsets lace in front because in a corset Front Adjustment means Right Adjustment. They are as perfect as years of specialization on one type of Corset can make them.

A trial fitting is essential to a true appreciation of MODART Style and Comfort.

A New Model
Specially Priced at $5
MODART

Style J-560—you must see this beautiful Corset to fully appreciate why we call it a work of art. A new model—which in its style, workmanship and comfort attains the highest degree of perfection. Made of fine quality imported brocade, pink or white.

This is not a regular $5 Corset—it was made to sell for considerably more, but you may buy it Monday at $5.00.

Third Floor.

Yeager-McGaughy.
A large and fashionable audience was assembled in the First Presbyterian church in Knoxville, Tenn., on Wednesday evening, November 4, to witness the marriage of Miss Edith Yeager and Mr. Carroll Bradford McGaughy.

Mr. McGaughy is one of the prominent young business men of Atlanta, but his family was originally from upper East Tennessee.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alvin A. Yeager, and is widely connected in Knoxville and greatly beloved and admired wherever she is known.

The bridal party numbered Judge Garrick W. Heiskell of Memphis who is the bride's grandfather in marriage; Mrs. William B. Lewis, of Atlanta; Miss McKinney, matron of honor; Miss Edith Lockert, maid of honor; Little Misses Margaret Cooper and Lillie Powell Smith, as first bridesmaids; Julia Cannon, Mary McKinney, and Dorothy Sanderson and Helen Johnson of Chattanooga as bridesmaids; Mr. Frank McGaughy, Jr., of Atlanta was best man, and the groomsmen were Messrs. Howell McGaughy, Carrick Yeager, brother of the bride, Fred Jeter, of Birmingham, Clarence Hill of Atlanta, Fred Amittage and Jay Milligan, of Greenville, and Samuel E. Luttrell, Jr., and Edward McMillan, Rev. Dr. Thompson was the officiating minister and used the impressive ring ceremony.

Following the church ceremony the bridal party and the out-of-town guests and relatives were entertained with a reception at Riverty, the beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. Powell Smith, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Receiving with the hostess were her mother and sisters.

Among the out-of-town guests in Knoxville for the wedding were Judge and Mrs. Heiskell and the Misses Heiskell, of Memphis; Colonel Frank McGaughy, Messrs. Frank and Howell McGaughy, Clarence Hill, Mrs. Arguard, Mrs. L. E. Bradford of Atlanta; Mrs. Harry Milligan, Messrs. Jay Milligan and Fred Amittage, of Greenville; Miss Dorothea Spodgrass and Miss Helen Johnson, of Chattanooga; Mrs.

Atlanta Chapter, U. D. C.
Atlanta chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy met at the Women's club rooms on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. T. T. Stevens in the chair. The special feature of the program was the address of Dr. H. M. DuBose to the Confederate veterans present who came to receive crosses of honor.

His message was eloquent and full of pathos, appealing to those who hold as dear the veterans of the Confederate cause.

Immediately followed the presentation of the crosses of honor. As Professor Joseph Berry called the names of the veterans, Miss Sara Lee Evans, daughter of the lamented General Clement S. Stevens, presented them with the crosses.

Mr. Samuel Scott, one of the veterans present in the name of the veterans proposed the sending of greetings to Mrs. William McCarthy, the absent president of the Atlanta chapter.

Mrs. Daiton Mitchell announced the death of one of the devoted daughters, Mrs. R. M. Clayton, wife of Atlanta city engineer, and paid a loving tribute to her memory.

Miss Elizabeth Hanna read resolutions on the death of Mrs. Anna Good, of Nashville, Tenn., the founder of the United Daughters of the Confederacy.

Mrs. William C. King sang two songs, "Absent and Night and Day," which appealed to the veterans especially.

Mr. R. E. Blackburn, in her characteristic way recited two numbers.

Informal Dance.
Mr. John Stewart entertained at a small informal dance last evening at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stewart, on Ponce de Leon avenue, for five of his college friends from the state university, who are spending the week end with him and for Miss Louise Dorsey, of Athens, the guest of Miss Mary Stewart.

Committee of U. D. C. At Piedmont.
In order that every daughter of the Atlanta chapter may attend the reception to Mrs. Daisy McLaren Stephens on Thursday, November 19, at the Capital City club and an admission will be given by cards only, the committee, Mrs.

Laura Wedell, Miss Sallie Melone and Mrs. L. Clayton Matthews, will be at the Piedmont hotel on Monday from 11 to 2 o'clock in order to accommodate those who have not as yet secured cards of invitation.

To Rev. and Mrs. Hudson.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Jarvis, of College Park, entertained a few friends at a party Thursday evening in compliment to Rev. and Mrs. Frank S. Hudson, of East Point.

Home and School Club.

The East Point Home and School club met Tuesday afternoon in the school building. An attractive Thanksgiving program was rendered by the pupils of the different grades, which consisted of songs, readings and an old-fashioned minuet. After the minuet, the superintendent, Mr. M. F. Ramsey made a short talk on the school exhibits and was followed by Rev. T. G. Linkous, who also spoke for better schools.

Mrs. Joseph Hubbard, president of the club, called a short business session to discuss plans for the new library, which is to be established soon.

Mrs. Boston Entertains.

Mrs. Ruben A. Boston entertained at a party Friday afternoon. The home was effectively decorated with autumn leaves, ferns and roses. Mrs. Fred Boston assisted in entertaining. The guests were Misses Boston, Mrs. James Brown, Mrs. Joseph R. Cluck, Mrs. Harford, Miss Alline Boston and Mrs. Fred Boston.

For Visitors.

Mrs. J. F. Hartough entertained at a luncheon the past week at her home on Peachtree street for Mr. J. M. Chandler, of Sumpter, S. C., the guest of Mrs. Arminius Light, and Mrs. Worley, of Columbus, the guest of Mrs. Marlon Seabrook. Autumn leaves and chrysanthemums decorated the house and a pretty arrangement of pink carnations was the centerpiece of the luncheon table. There were eight guests.

To Mrs. Sandwich.

Mrs. T. H. Clower, Jr., entertained at luncheon Thursday in compliment to Mrs. W. D. Sandwich, of Albany, a delegate to the W. C. T. U. convention.

To Mr. Atkinson.

For Miss Sharpe.

A great many delightful entertainments have been given in honor of Miss Caro Sharpe, a bride-elect. One of the most charming of these was that tendered by her maid of honor, Miss Margaret Armstrong, at her home, 26 West North avenue, Tuesday last. It was an afternoon tea, to which about 100 guests, friends of the bride, were invited. Miss Sharpe wore a gown of old gold silk with girde of abainthe green velvet and over-dress of blue embroidered in pink and blue. Her hat was of black velvet. Miss Armstrong wore white lace with girde of blue velvet. The decorations of the parlor, where they received, were of gold and white chrysanthemums. In the dining room were red roses; the table was in red and white with the color scheme carried out in the menu and other details.

Miss Ethel Powers and Miss Annie Armstrong served punch in front of a punch bowl banked with fruits and autumn leaves. Miss Powers wore a gown of green crepe de chine with over-dress of gold lace and silk; Miss Annie Armstrong's of pink silk and white chiffon. Mrs. Laurie Greene Jackson, in yellow silk and black lace, poured tea. Others who assisted in serving were Mrs. Julia Schilling of Birmingham; Mrs. Jack Armstrong; Mrs. James Sharpe; Miss Winnie Davis; Miss Ethel Noble and Miss Bauer. Miss Pearl Parks gave a bridge party at her home on Sixteenth street

Soft, Fluffy Hair Always Aids Beauty and Charm

Girls and women of all ages want to be charmingly beautiful and attractive—it's their birthright—but stringy, thin and lifeless hair destroys half the beauty of a pretty face. If your hair is not beautiful, is falling out, greasy, full of dandruff, too dry, or if the scalp itches and burns, use Parisian Sage. Rub it well into the scalp. It will go right to the hair roots, nourish them, and stimulate the hair to grow strong and luxuriant. Parisian Sage removes dandruff with one application and cleanses the hair of dirt, dust and excess oil. It will cool and invigorate the scalp and make the hair doubly beautiful. Parisian Sage is a scientifically made preparation that gives the hair just what is needed to make it soft, fluffy, thick and gloriously radiant. It is delicately perfumed, is inexpensive, and can be had at all drug and toilet counters or from Jacobs' 10 stores.

Assisting Mrs. Jackson in entertaining will be Mrs. V. L. Wilkins, Mrs. Luther D. Mower, Mrs. W. O. Mashburn and Mrs. Leon Wilkins.

To Mr. and Mrs. Rainey.

Mrs. Annie Letton, of East Point, entertained at a small, rook party Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Rainey. The marriage was a recent event. Those invited were Misses Dece Willis, Carrie May Allen, Marian Thomas, Mrs. Gresham, Messrs. John Christian, C. H. Livsey, P. D. Allen, B. B. Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Kappeler.

Rook Party.

Misses Anna and Reecie Jarrett entertained eight tables at rook Friday evening at the Heaton house in East Point. The decorations were yellow chrysanthemums. Refreshments were served at the tables after the game.

THOMASTON, GA.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Carolyn Marchman and Mr. Douglas McKeown, of the city, is of much social interest to the people of Thomaston and community. Miss Marchman is an unusually attractive woman, very versatile and possesses a happy disposition that has endeared her to a large circle of friends. She has been quite a social favorite in Barnesville and spends a great deal of her time in Atlanta with her sister, Mrs. Harry L. McKeown.

Mrs. Harry L. McKeown is a successful merchant of The Rock, whose many sterling qualities of character have made him an enviable reputation in business and social circles.

The ladies of the Baptist church are planning for a bazaar to be held for the benefit of the building fund for the new church. The crocheted counterpane on exhibit at the tri-county fair at Barnesville won first prize and has been sent to the Mason fair.

Mrs. E. J. Reeves was hostess to the Round Dozen on Saturday afternoon. The large living room was adorned with handsome chrysanthemums in yellow and white, the color suggestion being carried out in the menu and ices served. Display rook was the feature of entertainment. On leaving the guests were presented with beautiful purple chrysanthemums.

One of the most pleasant meetings of the Young Men's Club was held at W. Fruit on Wednesday afternoon. Feathery chrysanthemums in yellow and white and lovely ices were effectively used in the rooms where the guests were assembled. Arsin on Wednesday evening, Mrs. J. H. Pruitt entertained a few of their special friends at dinner.

Misses Mae and Louise Knox were joint hostesses to the Bachelor Girls on Wednesday afternoon. Fall roses and varicolored autumn leaves made an attractive decoration. After the game a social course was served by the hostesses. The guest list numbered twenty-four.

Friday afternoon Miss Mary Matthews entertained the Rock Dozen, composed of matrons. Chrysanthemums and autumn leaves were in all the rooms where the game was played. A salad course with coffee was served.

GAINESVILLE, GA.

Mrs. Ross McConnell cordially entertained the Young Men's Sewing club Tuesday afternoon at her home on Green Street circle. The guests were entertained in the reception room, which was artistically decorated in autumn leaves and flowers.

Mrs. W. H. Slack was hostess Wednesday afternoon to the members of the Bridge club, which she entertained at her home on Riverside drive. She was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. J. E. Redwine.

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Maynor entertained three tables of five hundred Wednesday evening.

Misses Mabel Bowman, of Hendersonville, N. C., and Miss Eunice Asbury, who have been the guests of Mrs. Will Davis and Miss Susie Ham, have been the recipients of several pretty parties.

GREENVILLE, GA.

An interesting meeting of the David Meriwether Chapter, D. A. R., was held at the home of the president, Mrs. John L. Strozier, Tuesday afternoon.

Many Visiting Guests At Dinner Dance

Yellow and white chrysanthemums in picturesque arrangement were the decorations at the Driving club dinner-dance last night, a delightful occasion assembling one hundred and fifty guests.

There were a number of large parties, among them a dinner at which Mr. and Mrs. Mell R. Wilkinson entertained in compliment to Miss Crosby, of New Jersey, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. McBurney.

In the party were Miss Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. McBurney, Governor and Mrs. Slaton, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Inman, Mr. and Mrs. George Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Woodruff, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ellis, Jr., Mr. Brooks Morgan, Mr. W. E. Smith, of Battle Creek.

Miss Harriet Benedict, of Athens, who is the charming guest of Miss Louise Broyles, for the week-end, was the guest of honor in a gay party of the younger set.

The party included Miss Broyles, Miss Benedict, of Athens; Miss Helen McCarty, Miss Rosalie Davis, Miss Josephine Mobley, Mr. and Mrs. Junius Colesby, Jr., Mr. Stanley Matthews, Dr. Ragan, Mr. Ralph Ragan, Mr. Sanders Hickey, Mr. Sanders Jones, Mr. Joel Hurt and his guest, Mr. Duncan.

EATONTON, GA.

Tuesday morning Glen Dennis, the lovely suburban home of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Dennis, was the scene of one of the most delightful affairs of the fall season. It was the meeting of the Samuel Reid chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution. After an interesting meeting, a delicious four-course luncheon was served. Those present were Mrs. Frank Heuser, Mrs. Howell Heuser, Mrs. J. P. Williams, Mrs. Valentine Tallafiero, Mrs. Clarence Little, Mrs. Charlie Cox, Mrs. Jesse Champion, Misses Agnes Lovette and Martha Edmondson.

Miss Mary King entertained a number of her young friends very pleasantly on Monday afternoon in celebration of her ninth birthday. After games of all kinds, refreshments were served.

Your skin is continually being rebuilt

Your skin like the rest of your body, is continually being rebuilt. Every day, in washing, you rub off dead skin. As this old skin dies, new forms. This is your opportunity—make this new skin just what you would love to have it by using the following treatment regularly.

How to keep your skin active

Wash your face with care and take plenty of time to do it. Lather freely with Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub in gently until the skin is softened and the pores open. After this, rinse in warm, then in very cold water. Whenever possible, rub your skin for a few minutes with a lump of ice.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of an authority on the skin and its needs. This treatment with Woodbury's cleanses the pores, then closes them and brings the blood to the surface. You feel the difference the first time you use it—a promise of that lovelier complexion which the steady use of Woodbury's always brings.

Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake.

Do this today—Now! Tear out the illustration of the cake below and put it in your purse as a reminder to get Woodbury's. Tear out the cake now. Take it to your druggist or toilet counter today. Begin tonight to get the benefit of this facial soap. For sale by dealers everywhere.

Exhibit and Sale For Home for Incurables.
The Christmas exhibit and sale to be held by the yard committee of the home during the first week in December promises to be of more than usual interest.

In addition to the branch of work so successfully carried on in rugs and pillow tops, there will be a unique assortment of baskets, appealing both to the housekeeper for utilitarian purposes, as well as the usual decorative uses—charming line of dainty baby coach rugs and the De Bouville half-teaspoon—something new to Atlanta, and for which the committee is the exclusive agent.

"42" Party.
Mrs. K. E. Edwards will entertain a forty-two party this week at her home in West End for her visitor, Miss Eva Thompson, of Gainesville.

Mrs. Shipley's Luncheon.
An event of Thursday was the beautiful luncheon at which Mrs. C. Shipley entertained at her home on Lee street.

The table about which the guests were seated was covered with a handsome Mexican drawn-work cover, and a low bowl filled with yellow and white hyacinth stems formed the central decoration.

The guests included Mrs. C. B. Myers, Mrs. J. H. Merritt, Mrs. Hale, Mrs. R. R. Orchard, Miss Charlie Orchard, Mrs. R. L. Robinson, Mrs. William Freney, Mrs. T. L. Beckwell and Mrs. N. J. Grizzard.

Mr. and Mrs. Headington Entertain.
A Dutch supper and dance were given by Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Headington, at their apartments at 709 Whitehall street Wednesday evening. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. L. Whittier, Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford E. Boyd, and Mrs. John Rooney, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Headington, Mrs. J. C. Faulkner, Miss Willie Lanier, Miss Alice Roan, Mrs. R. L. Reardon, Mr. George Hart, Mr. Ben Sharp, Mr. F. J. Maslin and Mr. F. B. Mathews.

Delightful music was furnished for the occasion by an orchestra.

Reading of Russian Dramas
A series of six lecture-readings of modern Russian plays will be given by Mrs. Emma Garrett Boyd on successive Mondays, beginning tomorrow, at Carnegie library, at 7 o'clock, in the lecture room. While these lectures are intended primarily for a little group of interested drama league members, Mrs. Boyd will be glad to have any club women, readers at the library, or students who are interested, whether members or non-members, present.

There will be no charge for the series. The play for tomorrow will be a rollicking farce by Gogol, "The Inspector General," satirizing the bureaucracy of Russian government. It will be followed on successive Mondays by talks and readings from Ostrovsky, possibly the greatest of Russian dramatists Tolstol, the exquisitely sensitive Tchekov, Maxim Gorki and our even greater contemporary, Andreyeff.

Mrs. Boardman Entertains.
Mrs. J. S. Boardman entertained her auction bridge club Thursday afternoon at her home in West End.

The house was decorated with autumn leaves and chrysanthemums. The scorecards, favors, and other details suggested Thanksgiving.

The prize for top score, a white and gold dinner plate, was won by Mrs. W. W. Stanley, Mrs. Gleason Goree cut consolation also.

Allen-Ferguson.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Letitia Allen, of Monticello, Ga., and Mr. Frank Ferguson, of The City, Ga., on the evening of November 14, 1914, at the parsonage in Leslie, Ga.

Suffrage Meetings.

The weekly suffrage meetings were held in the second, third, fourth, eighth and ninth wards on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Mary Raoul Willis made a most inspiring speech, and Miss Simmons read some delightful stories in negro dialect at the home of Mrs. Brien in the second ward. Mrs. Hinchelliff entertained in the third ward. Miss Bernice Horton was the leader and also read a humorous playlet.

U. C. T. Benefit.

A number of Atlantans are showing much interest in the comedy, "A Day at the Union Station," to be presented at the Atlanta theater on December 3, by local talent. The play is to be put on for the benefit of the charity fund of the United Commercial Travelers of the city, which organization is pushing the sale of tickets. A number of rehearsals have been held at the Lyric theater, and every character is being carefully trained for his or her part by Mrs. Charles A. Shelton, Sr. Besides the best of local talent, some of the parts are assumed by members of the United Commercial Travelers, who are showing much aptitude for the parts assigned them. The comedy has been seen here before, but the United Commercial Travelers have introduced a number of new features and promise their friends and the public generally, a delightful, breezy and entertaining performance on December 3.

BREAU COLLEGE NEWS.

Tuesday afternoon, November 3, the tennis tournament was opened with the game between the freshman and sophomore classes. Misses Lucille Haddaway and Lydia Jones were the winners. The game against Olive Tilghman and Eugenia Russell, sophomores, the latter team winning. The regular season continued Friday afternoon by the game between the juniors and seniors. Misses Flossie Brannett and Rosa Gillen, juniors, against Kathryn Lumpkin and Fannie M. Chestnut, seniors, the latter team winning.

Saturday evening the members of the various classes gave a most interesting variety of "skits" at the regular meeting of the Students' union, each class giving its own program. The senior class impersonated the faculty. The programs afforded much fun, and carried with them a demonstration of rare originality. Monday evening, November 9, there was a recital given in the auditorium by the members of the Cushman club, assisted by Mrs. H. J. Pearce, for Miss Annie L. Paget, accompanist. The program was most interesting and enjoyable, and displayed excellent work on the part of the girls.

The tennis tournament was continued Tuesday afternoon, November 10, with the game between the seniors and sophomores, the two leading teams of the college. Those playing for the seniors were Misses Kathryn Lumpkin against Olive Tilghman and Eugenia Russell, sophomores. The contest was by a large score. A great deal of enthusiasm is being shown by the classes for their teams during the tournament. Miss Mary Porter, of Charleston, W. Va., former traveling student secretary of the south Atlantic field committee, is here practically acting as local secretary for a month in the interest of the Y. W. C. A.

ROME, GA.

The beautiful wedding ceremonial Tuesday evening uniting the destinies of Miss Emily Arrington and Mr. H. G. Bowie, climax of a series of beautiful pre-nuptial courtesies. Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. David W. Curry and Mrs. Charles R. Porter tendered Miss Arrington a delightful bridge at the home of the former on Fourth street. For top score the prize was a dainty corsage pin, and Mrs. Simpson Penny was winner. The bride-crest was presented with a small suit case, adorned with white satin bow, the unique case containing the travel-er's necessities. When the games were called, refreshments served, the guests repaired to the cottage on Fourth avenue for a social gathering. The bride-crest was showered with a "housekeeper's shower" of useful articles. The reception Monday evening given by the First Baptist church to honor Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Walker, shorter college faculty at students was an enjoyable event. The Sunday school room, beautifully decorated, was converted into a splendid reception hall. A delightful musical program rendered by Messames T. W. Lipscomb, Taut White and the Misses Glover charmingly entertained the callers during the hours from 3 to 11 o'clock.

Mrs. T. D. Boyd, who has her sister, Miss Elizabeth Haley, of Rockwood, Tenn., as her guest, entertained in her home a corps of friends Wednesday. Mrs. Boyd was assisted in receiving by her neighbors in the Bon Air. Mrs. Charles Dean honored her guests at the club of the Niseling Tuesday afternoon, a most interesting and instructive program was rendered by Messames Nancy White Johnson, A. Van Hoose and Miss Estelle Mitchell. While refreshments were served Mrs. Dean gave the symposium on a comparison of the ancient and modern drama. Miss Genevieve Neal pleasantly entertained a number of guests Friday afternoon in honor of her cousin, Miss Mary Lamb, of Virginia. The Young Women's Missionary society of the First Baptist church Tuesday afternoon entertained at the home of one of their members, Mrs. C. I. Carey, recently returned from her bridal tour. One by one they dropped in incidentally—to her surprise—until the membership was present and showed the hostess a most gracious articles that go to complete the young housekeeper's outfit. Mrs. Charles Dean entertained at luncheon Tuesday for Mrs. Charles B. Woodruff and Mrs. E. J. Powers. Miss Charles Dean honored her guest, Miss Houscal, of Cedartown, with a high noon luncheon, at which covers were laid for eight.

Walter Peck, Stanley A. G. O. organist and choir-master.

To Miss Dargan.

The series of parties this week in compliment to Miss Helen Dargan, whose marriage to Mr. Dozier Loundea will be a brilliant event of Friday night, will include Miss Louise Triley's luncheon Monday at the Driving club for the bride-to-be. Miss Mary Helen Moody's tea on Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. George McKenzies' luncheon

Wednesday Mrs. Charles Seale will entertain at the tea-dance at the Driving club Wednesday, and Mr. Lewis Carhart will entertain the same party at the Driving club Wednesday night. Miss Jeanette Lowndes will entertain at buffet supper after the rehearsal Thursday night.

Civic Work Planned.

The civic committee of the Atlanta Woman's club met on Thursday afternoon at the home of the chairman, Mrs. Emma Amiden, to discuss plans for the year's work. It was decided to take up immediately as most important the subject of definitely marking the streets at every corner. Having heard and felt many instances of discomfort and annoyance on account of the irregular and indistinct posting of the streets throughout the city, it behooves this committee to appeal to the city council in asking that this civic duty be discharged. Resolutions for the celebration of a tree-planting festival on Arbor day were adopted. This committee to lend its aid to assist the schools and city federation on this occasion for the public welfare and enjoyment. A splendid program was outlined for Civics day on December 23.

Fancy Article Sale.

Committee No. 6 of St. Luke's church, Mrs. D. B. DeSaussure chairman, will hold a fancy article sale on Wednesday, November 18, from 2 to 6 p. m. at the residence of Mrs. C. B. Wilmer, 769 Piedmont avenue. Many dainty Christmas gifts will be on hand, and all friends are cordially invited.

Miss Cobb to Read For Drama League.

The Drama league will continue its series of Tuesday meetings this week with the reading of "The War God" by Zangwill. This is a very powerful play, in which both Tolstoi and Dostoevski appear, and a disguise of altered names, and which sets forth the whole struggle between the advocates of peace and the advocates of militarism and conquest for world empire. No play could be more timely in theme. Miss Carolyn Cobb, the state organizer of the Drama league, will give the reading, which promises to be especially delightful.

A new play-acting department has been installed in the league under Mrs. Ramson Wright's direction, and a play is now in preparation for a public reading rehearsal, the parts all to be taken by members of the Drama league board of directors. For this new department Mrs. Spiker is preparing a set of lectures on "The Technique of Acting," which she will give on Wednesday mornings at 11 o'clock at the Terrace, and which will be open to any interested members of the Drama league. Such a set of lectures is a distinct novelty for Atlanta, but a similar course has been given by Mrs. Spiker at an eastern university.

Mrs. Peacock Entertains.

A delightful affair of Thursday evening was the dinner party given by Mrs. Richard Peacock at her home, 208 Grant street, in honor of the anniversary of her husband's birthday. The table was prettily decorated in fall flowers and the centerpiece was a large birthday cake. Covers were laid for ten.

To Miss Phinizy.

Mr. and Mrs. S. K. Dick entertained at the dinner-dance at the Georgian Terrace Friday in compliment to Miss Martha Phinizy, of Athens. The other guests were Miss Marion Atchison, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson, Jr., Mr. Henry Newman, Mr. John Hardisty.

Old-Fashioned Pound Cake.

With the old-time taste, also a variety of other cakes, including White Fruit for part of the cake, Miss Annie Mitchell, 230 Peachtree Circle, Ivy 7459-J.—(adv.)

BRIDWELL-PARSONS.

Douglasville, Ga., November 14.—(Special.)—A marriage of interest to a large circle of friends in this section and in Atlanta, the home of the groom, was that of Miss Hattie Mae Bridwell, of this place, and Mr. J. W. Parsons, of Atlanta, which took place on Thursday, November 5.

The wedding was performed at the home of Miss Lilla Freeman, the bride's aunt, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Parsons, the father of the groom. The home was tastefully decorated with ferns and autumn leaves, and a large number of the friends of the contracting parties were present. Delightful refreshments were served after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Parsons left Thursday evening for Atlanta, their future home.

Among the out-of-town guests were Rev. Mr. Parsons and daughter, Miss Maudie Parsons, of Emerson, Ga.; Charles Parsons, of Atlanta; Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland, of Jonesboro, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Morris, of Atlanta.

Branham and Misses Lynn Branham and Fannie Singleton at the home on "Bramham Heights." For more than three-quarters of a century this home has been a center of good cheer and hospitality. The present generation keeps alive the traditions of parents and grandparents. Tuesday afternoon an unusually large crowd was present for the entire day. The lovely in decorations of white and yellow chrysanthemums. Clarence E. Boyd, Oxford's youngest charming matron, entertained The Reviewers Wednesday morning. The meeting was largely a social nature, of a delightful hour being spent in fancy work and chatter. The club definitely decided to accept the invitation of the "Bramham Heights" club, weekly and bring out an edition of that paper next week. The editors are to be as follows: Editor-in-chief, Mrs. Katherine Mathis; athletic editor, Miss Emily Melton; society editor, Misses Edith MacDonald and Annie Sue Gordon; "Just From Every" Miss Annie Dickey, matrimonial column, Miss Sue Means. Mrs. Boyd was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. James E. Dickey, and her sister, Miss Annie Dickey. A delicious salad course was served. MONROE, GA. On Wednesday afternoon the Athanacium club was most delightfully entertained by the president, Miss Lulu Selman. The guests were received in the spacious hall and into the drawing room. Vases of exquisite chrysanthemums were placed on the table. The entire room was bright with the glowing fire, in informal groups, the hostess made each feel the true welcome of her gracious hospitality. Questions about war and peace, Mrs. Cliff Walker read the minutes of the last meeting, Mrs. F. M. H. Smith, the history lesson, teaching the marvelous assistance of the German peoples. An interesting reading, opinions of noted Germany concerning militancy, was given by Mrs. Lena Felker Lewis. At the close of the program, a "home production" of the general coverings was served. This was both an agricultural and culinary triumph. In the library, Mrs. Edgar Schenker poured coffee before departing for their homes, the guests were invited to a table covered with autumn foliage. This evening the week was the marriage of Miss Fleurine Hatcher and Mr. Harrison W. Clark, of Jacksonville, Fla., solemnized Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Hatcher, the parents of the bride, in the presence of a large assemblage of friends. The beautiful home was artistically and attractively decorated throughout, the maid of honor was Miss Susie Hatcher, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Lyla Swift, Miss Mathon Lounis, Miss Eliza Shepherd and Miss Inna Morris, of New Orleans. Little Miss Mary Mouray, a niece of the bride, was the little flower girl, and the ribbon-bearers were Miss Margaret Fallock and Misses M. Pupper, of Jacksonville. Mr. Clark was attended by Mr. Ned Reid, Jr., of Nashville, as best man, and the other attendants were Mr. Hardee Bessent, of Jacksonville, Mr. Cliff Tarver, Mr. Samuel B. Hatcher, Jr., and Mr. Madden Hatcher. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. S. B. Hatcher. The ceremony was performed impressively by the Rev. T. M. Christian, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, who officiated at the wedding. A beautiful reception, after which Mr. and Mrs. Clark left on their wedding journey for New York. They will reside in Jacksonville, where Mr. Clark, who is a member of a leading Florida family, is well-known in business circles. The bride is Miss Hatcher, who has been very popular in social circles in Columbus and other Georgia cities, where she is much admired on account of her attractive personality, and her departure to another state is regretted by a large circle of friends in her home city. She is a member of a prominent Georgia family and numbers of relatives from other cities were in attendance upon the ceremony. Miss Helen Vernon Smith and Mr. George Parker Swift were married Wednesday morning at Trinity Episcopal church and in every respect it was a beautiful wedding. The ushers, Mr. Lemuel Hill, Mr. Eugene Ramsey, Mr. Norman Eise and Mr. Rolf Sims, Jr., of Atlanta, first entered the church, and next came the bride, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Edith M. Smith, by whom she was given in marriage. Mr. Swift was attended by his brother, Mr. George Swift, as best man. The ceremony, an impressive one, was performed by the Rev. S. A. Atton, of Madison street. Mrs. Swift left Wednesday on a wedding trip to New York city, and on her return will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Leo Swift, on Twelfth street. Among the out-of-town guests in attendance upon the wedding were Mr. and Mrs.

SOCIETY IN COLUMBUS. Columbus, Ga., November 14.—(Special Correspondence.)—A brilliant social event of the week was the marriage of Miss Fleurine Hatcher and Mr. Harrison W. Clark, of Jacksonville, Fla., solemnized Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel B. Hatcher, the parents of the bride, in the presence of a large assemblage of friends. The beautiful home was artistically and attractively decorated throughout, the maid of honor was Miss Susie Hatcher, sister of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Lyla Swift, Miss Mathon Lounis, Miss Eliza Shepherd and Miss Inna Morris, of New Orleans. Little Miss Mary Mouray, a niece of the bride, was the little flower girl, and the ribbon-bearers were Miss Margaret Fallock and Misses M. Pupper, of Jacksonville. Mr. Clark was attended by Mr. Ned Reid, Jr., of Nashville, as best man, and the other attendants were Mr. Hardee Bessent, of Jacksonville, Mr. Cliff Tarver, Mr. Samuel B. Hatcher, Jr., and Mr. Madden Hatcher. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. S. B. Hatcher. The ceremony was performed impressively by the Rev. T. M. Christian, pastor of St. Paul's Methodist church, who officiated at the wedding. A beautiful reception, after which Mr. and Mrs. Clark left on their wedding journey for New York. They will reside in Jacksonville, where Mr. Clark, who is a member of a leading Florida family, is well-known in business circles. Among the out-of-town guests in attendance upon the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Rolf Sims, of Atlanta; Mr. Rolf Sims, Jr., of Atlanta; and Mrs. Marshall Grover, of Roswell, Ga. Much pleasant interest was felt in this wedding, the young people being prominent and popular socially. The bride is a charming young woman and Mr. Swift is a representative of one of the old Columbus families. Mrs. Rhodes Browne entertained the Tea Cup club Thursday in honor of Mrs. Cornelia Elson Osburn, of Atlanta. WAYCROSS, GA. Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cornell, Miss Willie Cornell and Mr. J. M. Harris were married, Rev. H. E. Holcomb, assisted by Rev. W. H. Scruggs, performing the ceremony. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Pink carnations with ferns were used in the reception hall and dining room, while in the parlor white chrysanthemums and ferns were arranged. To the strains of Lohengrin's bridal chorus, played by Miss Annie Laurie Pittman, the bride party entered the parlor. Miss Lillie Cornell, sister of the bride, wearing a white dress and Mr. Will Harris, of South America, brother of the groom, preceded the bridal couple. The bride was sown in a suit of blue with hat to match and carried a bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The maid of honor wore pink muslin with pink chiffon overlay. Assisting in serving were Mrs. H. R. Holcomb, Mrs. J. Walter Bennett, Miss Arline Bellinger, Miss Daisy Perham, Miss Ruth Carver, Miss Carrie Perham, Mr. and Mrs. Harris left on an evening train for West Florida, where they will spend two weeks. Invitations have been received in Waycross to the wedding of Miss Gertrude Green Lott and Mr. Frank Louis Clark on Tuesday evening, November 24th, at the First Methodist church, Brunswick. Miss Lott is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Jones Lott, of Brunswick, and has a wide circle of friends in Georgia who are cordially interested in her approaching marriage. Mr. Parker fills a responsible position with a railroad and is one of the well known young men of the city. Miss Hazel Sprowl, of Savannah, Mrs. Amy Rolofson entertained with a dance at the Country club Wednesday evening. Ten couples made up the party. Rich autumn-colored leaves were used with chrysanthemums and roses in the decorations, which were unusually pretty in the grill room, where supper was served at 11. Mrs. Rolofson received her guests in a white lingerie gown with blue accessories. Miss Sprowl wore a handsome gown of black net built over blue charmeuse with trimmings of fur. CORNELIA, GA. The regular meeting of the E. C. N. club met at Miss Louisa Carson's home this week. Miss Carson is in school at Piedmont college, but came home Saturday to entertain her club. Those present were Misses Mary Hannah Kinsey, Eula Erwin, Edna Avery, Nettie Pool, Lela Campbell, Clyde Ellard and Louise Carson. Mrs. Henry Cleveland is in Columbus, Ga., attending the Baptist Missionary conference. She expects to visit a number of other places before returning home. A large number of young people gave Miss Marjette Lou and Miss Blonnie Little a delightful surprise party on Friday evening. Mr. Roy Finch entertained the Crochet club on Saturday afternoon. Miss Flora Stallard, of Nacoochee Valley, was the guest of Mrs. Henry Stallard, who was the honor guest. GREENSBORO, GA. Cordial interest is centered in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Blonnie Little to Mr. Frank E. Floyd, the wedding to take place the latter part of November in Atlanta, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. George Seale. The bride-elect formerly lived here, where she was a popular member of the younger social set. Miss Julia Copelan, whose marriage to Mr. George Avery, of Augusta, will be an interesting event of the fall, was the honor guest at the recent meeting of the Domino club, at which Mrs. Pierce Brown was hostess Wednesday afternoon. The parlors were prettily decorated in nasturtiums, and these flowers were arranged in crystal bowls and placed at small tables, where a tempting salad course was served at the conclusion of the game of forty-two. The guests included, besides the club members, Mrs. Will Childs, Mrs. Hill Carver, Miss James Barnes, Mrs. Edward Hixon and Miss Mildred Jackson. Mr. and Mrs. R. Lawton Caldwell entertained the Round Dozen club and several other friends at a lovely party Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Faust. The lower floor was thrown together, and beautifully decorated in chrysanthemums and house plants. Progressive rummy was played during the evening, and the occasion was one of the delightful social affairs in honor of Mrs. Crum, of Tennessee, the guest of Mrs. Henry B. Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Faust assisted in entertaining and among the guests were Mrs. Crum, Mr. and Mrs. Robertson, Mr.

and Mrs. Andrew Wagoner, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Armor, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimbro, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Boswell, Dr. and Mrs. Galhard Adams, Mrs. Sarah McWhorter, Misses Hallie Park, Eloise Smith, Eva Fulton, Mr. M. E. Slack. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kimbro were at home to a congenial party of friends Thursday evening. Mrs. Crum, of Tennessee, coining the honor guest. The reception rooms were artistically decorated in quantities of fall flowers, and the game of rummy was followed by dainty refreshments. Twelve guests enjoyed the occasion. A lovely social event of Friday afternoon was the meeting of the Eucronons club, Mrs. Felix Boswell being the cordial hostess. An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made. Specially Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective. By making this pint of old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about as much as you could buy, but you also will have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way, it overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup. Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (30 cents worth), pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good. You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough and heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes. The effect of Pinex on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract combined with guaiaol and other natural healing pine elements. There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. ANNIVERSARY SALE

As We Grow We Give

Our Expansion Is Your Economy.

The much heralded, keenly anticipated, always welcomed event is here. Your week of economies begins tomorrow. It extends thru every department on our three floors. It is in celebration of the 6th anniversary of this store.

This great Sixth Anniversary Sale is going to be greater than all preceding like occasions, which is no more than natural.

It is our chief business to make it so. Any store that anchors itself content with its past successes, ceases to grow.

Every year we set our stake up—every year we have surpassed our own expectations; we have not yet equaled our possibilities.

Courage and initiative, collaborating with intelligent planning and earnest work, are the forces behind the opportunities we are presenting to the public in this great sale this week.

'Tis no more than your share of a year's good business.

Now that the war, to an extent, puts America on her own resources in the matter of fashion, this sale and the garments in this event are doubly significant of this store's ability to uphold the fame of American ingenuity and our organization's mastery of the art of reproduction and adaptation. Paris is well represented in this extraordinary sale by fashions she originated, but which we have "Americanized."

Anniversary Sale of All Fine Millinery

THE SUNDAY NEWS

DONALD FRASER ENDS SEASON

On Next Friday With Tech High as Opponents—Team Loses Hard-Fought Game to Peacock Last Friday.

By John H. Emmett. Donald Fraser shows her football season next Friday in a game with Tech High. The season has been a success, yet it has been a failure. Donald Fraser has never been a single league game, yet a more plucky bunch of youngsters has been assembled in one team. The team has practiced faithfully and has fought hard for every game.

SEMINARY GIRLS GIVE ART EXHIBIT

Delightful Reception Held After the Exhibit Was Closed—Seminary Graduate Visits School.

By Elizabeth MacDonald. A delightful reception and exhibit was given Monday by the art students and their teacher, Miss Butler, to the faculty. A delicious lunch was attractively arranged in one room while in the other this year's work was displayed. I am sorry that I am not an art critic, to be able to give a thoroughly intelligent account of the work.

Donald Fraser Eleven Expects To Triumph Over Peacock Team

By John H. Emmett. Donald Fraser played her best game in the local prep league against Boys' High Friday afternoon. Captain Estes won the toss and took the receive. Donald Fraser carried the ball to the 5-yard line on a series of line bucks. It was here that Boys' High recovered a fumble and carried the ball back to the middle of the field.

BATTLE HILL. Three Boys Do Best Work in City's Broad Jump.

Burrish' ten seventh grade boys, in the broad jumps, did the best work of all the Atlanta public schools. We are very proud of them. The seventh grade girls and the sixth grade boys were also on the honor roll for athletics.

FAITH SCHOOL. Pupils Trying Hard to Make Yard Beautiful.

The fourth grade led the school in attendance last month with an average of 98.2. They were awarded a beautiful picture by our principal. The other grades are trying hard to try hard to beat them this month.

VERSES ON MARKS' COMPOSED BY PUPIL OF STATE SCHOOL

We have had the most beautiful weather for two weeks. No Italian skies were ever bluer than ours, out here. The attendance has been splendid, averaging 98.4 for the school. The afternoon division of the first A class has not had an absence for the whole month.

TENTH ST. PUPILS MOURN THE DEATH OF SCHOOL'S FRIEND

It was a sad day at Tenth street when the news of Mrs. T. K. Glenn's death reached the school. She has been the president of our Teachers' Mothers' association for the last two years, and certainly has been a fine one.

THE ALPHA WILL HAVE ANOTHER CHILDREN'S DAY

Balloons Given Away on Last Wednesday a Novel Scheme That Pleased All.

Last Wednesday was Children's Day at the Alpha and many a child was made happy by receiving a great big red or yellow balloon as a gift from the management. This feature will be repeated again on Wednesday, November 25—not with balloons as gifts but something better. It's a secret but an announcement will be made in due time. The management want to make this day little boys and girls of Atlanta and have lots of pleasant little surprises in store for them.

LAURA SAWYER IN "ONE OF MILLIONS"

Monday, November 16 The Strand offers Laura Sawyer in "One of Millions." This is the first of the Doree Act feature photo plays to be released and is said to be the first production against the war ever staged. The story follows a soldier who is captured by the enemy and taken to a prison camp. He meets a girl who is also a prisoner and they fall in love. The girl is the daughter of a general and she is being held in the camp as a hostage. The soldier is determined to escape and rescue her.

THANHOUSER SERIAL, "ZUDORA," COMING SOON

Thanhouser's new serial production "Zudora" will be presented at the Strand on Monday, November 23. It is a serial story one installment of which will be shown every Monday until completed. It has been created by Daniel Clavin Goodman, author, scientist, philosopher and originator of a new school of realism in motion pictures. The film has been novelized by Harold Victor who wrote "The Million Dollar Mystery." Kathryn Adams is the heroine. The story is told in twenty episodes. Each one is a complete plot, the unraveling of the thing, mysteries through scientific deductions. A master plot however runs through the entire twenty weeks.

In Style.

Mr. Crabslaw—I see that many of the American tourists in their rush to get home were obliged to leave most of their clothing behind them. Crabslaw—I'm afraid I don't think that would embarrass you women very much.

FOUR REELS OF WAR AT THE ELITE MONDAY

Authentic Scenes at the Front Secured by Sawyer (Incorporated).

The first edition of authentic war pictures released by Sawyer (Inc.) by agreement with the War Films company will be shown at the Elite Monday, November 16, in four reels. The films have a real thrill from start to finish. They were made by trained camera men who thought nothing of risking their lives. The scenes taken in the midst of the great battles on the Austro-Serbian front are the first real records of magnitude ever recorded in motion pictures. Only by showing the horrors of war can the world be brought to demand peace. These wonderful films show the conflict now raging with truth and realism. The Austrian Serbian campaign was taken by royal command of his majesty King Peter of Serbia. The Russian campaign by permit of King Nicholas. The Russian operations on German front by authority of the Russian military under censorship. French naval scenes in Adriatic made by French officer and sold to War Film company. Greek mobilization scenes made by permission of his majesty, King Constantine. All above rulers mentioned are shown in the films.

TWO FAMOUS PLAYS BEING PRODUCED NOW

Lloyd B. Carleton one of America's best known film directors, now directing for the William Fox company, is engaged in the production of "The Idler" an old play by C. Hadden Champlin and "Plains" a new play by Clyde Pitch, both in five parts. In spite of Mr. Carleton's success as producer of Andrew Mack's picture "The Ragged Dicks" and "Mistral Straggle" while he was a director for Lubin it is expected that he will turn out even better work in the two new plays. He uses the possession of the leading parts in "The Idler" and are now hard at work on the film in the Pathe studios in Jersey City. When Carleton was stage director for Frankman he first produced "Captain Jinks" and the knowledge of every minute detail of staging suggested to him the knowledge of the film conditions will stand him in good stead in preparing this famous play for the films.

Mrs. Thomas Whiffen.

When the Cosmos Feature Film corporation release the five part photo play, "Hearts and Flowers" there will be a special feature in it. It is the knowledge of the best known stars in this country. In 1869 Mrs. Thomas Whiffen came to America from England and early in her life she made a specialty of lady parts. In speaking of the past, Mrs. Whiffen says: "Even as a young girl I had my hair and made up much older than I was. I was never a beauty and so I had to try to be clever. I had a very unusual cleverness." Whiffen had the distinction of playing Buttercup in the original production of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Pinafore" in the Old Dan Opera company in New York. Later she appeared in the famous Hazel Kirke production when that play ran for 186 nights in New York. In this production Mrs. Whiffen played Mercy Kirke the wife of Mrs. Whiffen was also associated with the famous comedienne, in association with E. M. Holland, Jeffrey Lewis, Eben Plimpton, George Fayvan, Herbert Essiecy and other players of equal note. Next Mrs. Whiffen joined the Lyceum company which was the first of many Chicago thespians, playing the part of the blind mother in "The Charity School" which Mrs. Whiffen created one of her best roles. Five years ago many others will remember with delight "The Builder of Bridges" the late K. J. Bellamy a play in which Mrs. Whiffen had a big part. As Mrs. Talcott an elderly companion with a very unusual character, she played a delight beyond words. At the time of her death Mrs. Whiffen was 82 and she was a delightful audience at the Lyceum theater, portraying the part of Mrs. De Treville in "The Beautiful Adventure" a new comedy in three acts which has been literally packing them in. Mrs. Whiffen's last appearance was a remarkable work of Mrs. Thomas Whiffen the grand old lady of the American stage.

"Shorty" Finds His Mate.

Shorty Hamilton the north maker of the Lyceum company, was under an avalanche of congratulations. He is being told that he is certain to make a good husband and that he has won the prize. He is a very good looking man and that he has nothing but good fortune. Cause Shorty went and got married. He is a very much married for the ceremony was solemnized on Saturday, October 10. Behind the scenes a matrimonial venture and romance of the unusual sort. He is a bit reticent about it, but when inveigled into a conversation exhibits a willingness to tell all about it. It happened like this: About two months ago "Shorty" was the honored guest at a moving picture theater in Venice. His face is as well known as that of Buena Tumble and a big crowd gathered at the picture theater. He was invited when he stepped on the stage and tried to say that he can't help being funny. The audience sat a pretty lass named Ethel Spurgint daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Al Spurgint of 244 East Twenty-third street, and member of the Burbank Stock company. She had admired Shorty and his work on the screen ever since the noted comedians had been protected by a picture machine. And she longed to meet him face to face. She got her chance that very night. After the performance, "Shorty" was invited to attend a dance at a Venice home. So was Miss Spurgint. They met. They talked. They fell in love. Shorty invited Miss Spurgint to her home in his automobile. They met again. And talked again. And Shorty discovered that she was falling in love. But the unusual feature of his affair was that he told none about it. Not even his closest friends. At Inceville night of the match. Last Saturday he asked Stanley Bingham and Miss Diana Carrillo to attend at the picture theater. The invitation was accepted and when the two guests arrived they were introduced to Rev. J. C. Myers, which they did while Shorty and his bride were united in wedlock.

New Screen for Vaudette

The Vaudette has just installed a new $1,000 mirror screen, which is the largest plate glass ever shipped south standing seventeen feet in its frame and being seven eighths of an inch in thickness. It weighs 2,780 pounds and required the services of fifteen men to install it.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS

Owing to the number of queries received and the somewhat limited space allowed for answers it is not always possible to print information as rapidly as the writers desire it, as the letters must be answered in turn. All however, receive careful attention. Address all queries to Moving Picture Editor. Questions considered as ridiculous will not be answered. Questions regarding relationship will be answered to the best of our knowledge but we are not responsible if mistakes are made.

Brown curls Crane Wilbur is a grass widow. Don't know who the lady was. I think he would answer if you wrote him try to address P. O. Box 100, New York City. The pictures are shown in Atlanta at the Vaudette and the Little Vaudette. Crane Wilbur is said to be present time only in the Peris of Pauline.

Anxious The young lady is Miss Ethel Grandin now with the Little Vaudette. Thank you for your offer of friendship.

Myrtle This department is conducted for answering questions about motion pictures and players not the discussion of love affairs.

W. B. Beverly Bayne usually plays opposite Francis X. Bushman. Anna, Vivian Prescott was the girl in that Biograph. George Morgan was the sweetheart. The water scene in "Love Luck and Gasoline" was taken in New York Bay.

Miss Callie Charles Ogle is playing opposite Mary Pickford just now. You will have to write direct to Essanay for pictures.

Vivian Charles Chaplin is still with Keystone and funnier than ever. Opinions differ as to who is the greatest moving picture actor whom do you think is?

M. F. The part of Peter Varing in "An Innocent Deed" or "Holt or Robert Grey" I cannot ascertain which one.

ATLANTA MAY HAVE $100,000 PICTURE HOUSE

Rumored That Deal Is About Closed—The Ground to Be Broken Next Month.

Think of it Movie Fans a $100,000 moving picture theater for Atlanta! While the promoter will not let his name nor location be known just now, he claims that the deal is just about closed. It will be located in the central part of town and be 60x158 feet. It is expected to start on about December 10. This new theater will be one of the finest in the United States and will seat 1,400 people in two stories. It will have 110,000 feet of floor space with 110,000 feet of marble staircases. Ladies rest rooms gentlemen's smoking and lounging rooms and surrounded by the largest electric sign in Atlanta—let us be eight feet high. The name of the owner and location will be announced in a few days.

HOWARD ESTABROOK IN "OFFICER 666"

Howard Estabrook who is having his initial experience as a moving picture actor in the lead of Travers Gladwin in George Kleine's film version of the famous Conan & Harris success "Officer 666" writes entertainingly of his conversion to the new art. Mr. Estabrook's point of view is that of most Broadway stars who have taken up pictures seriously. "Before I began making the picture of Officer 666 I don't believe I had been inside of more than two or three picture theaters and that was long ago. I don't know the quality of what I saw would not tempt me to visit. But observe me now going into every movie theater I pass by only for a few moments spend quantities of 25-cent pieces and spare half hours watching the new magic of the screen. Atlanta like a wonderful industry seems to have grown overnight. I called it a few scattered pieces of faces publications weeklies supply houses etc. all seemingly sprung from nothing but founded on the sure rock of the greatest entertainment of the greatest number for the smallest admission and it can only go on and up if producers will beware of what one cannot fall at times to detect the sacrifice of quality for quantity. Count me as a movie enthusiast."

L. J. SELZNICK COMBINES TO PRODUCE FEATURE

Lewis J. Selznick general manager of the World Film corporation has combined with Mrs. Medill McCormick of Chicago, the executive head of the Woman's Suffrage association, to attend the cause of woman's suffrage by means of the sensational melodramatic feature "Your Girl and Mine" picture is in seven reels with Dr. Anna Howard Shaw and such noted Broadway players as Cate Wynham, Katherine Kelland and Sidney Booth. This big feature will shortly be ready for release.

MINNESOTA MILL SELLS BAD FLOUR TO WAYCROSS

Waycross, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—City Health Officer D. M. Bendis, acting on a report made to him by Inspector L. B. Boggs, condemned a quantity of high grade flour sent to a local wholesaler from a Minnesota mill. The flour was examined by the inspector and found to contain numerous white bugs of some kind. To make sure of the case before taking action sacks of the flour were examined in retail stores and then at the wholesale establishment. Every sack examined had worms in it and the entire lot in the city was condemned as unfit for human consumption.

Will Build Flour Mill To Take Care of Wheat Crop Planted in Butts

Jackson, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—Where there was one acre planted in wheat and oats a year ago there is now twenty acres in Butts county. The farmers here have entered into the hog and hatching program with vim and determination. Such a large acreage has been sown in wheat in this county that there is agitation for a roller mill to be erected in Butts county and it is declared that the enterprise will be in operation in time for next year's crop. There is no disputing the fact that the farmers of Butts county are preparing to live at home during the coming year. Coincident with the planting of large grain crops is the movement for more and better live stock a car load of Percheron mares and blooded beef and dairy cattle having recently been bought by Butts county farmers.

ENORMOUS QUANTITIES OF COTTON AT JACKSON

Jackson, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—Never before at one time was there such a vast quantity of cotton stored in Jackson. All the warehouses having been filled to overflowing, cotton is being piled in the streets and put on vacant lots. It is stated that more than 1,500 bales of cotton have been shipped away from here this season as compared with several thousand last year at the same time. So great has become the congestion of cotton being brought here this season and the largest brought by wagon in several seasons came from Snow. Judge W. W. Tindall, of Walton county, Mr. Snow stated that he will have 250 bales in all to warehouse here bringing fifty seven more bales Monday.

MUCH COTTON COMES TO ATHENS WAREHOUSES

Athens, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—Wednesday the scenes of busy seasons in past years were revived by the sight of twenty three wagons drawn by forty six mules lined up before John Welch a warehouse with 114 bales of cotton. The price being paid for middling was 7 1/2 cents. This the largest single lot of cotton from one seller brought here this season and the largest brought by wagon in several seasons came from Snow. Judge W. W. Tindall, of Walton county, Mr. Snow stated that he will have 250 bales in all to warehouse here bringing fifty seven more bales Monday.

BUTTS CORN CLUB BOYS AFTER ATLANTA PRIZES

Jackson, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—Citizens here feel gratified at the showing made by Butts county Corn club boys at the state fair in Macon. The county was awarded fourth prize. In last year's contest the prize was given to the boys of the state. The boys of Butts county showed an average of 17 bushels. Three boys, Richard Gordon, J. H. Busbush, Ernest Watkins, 114 and Frank McElhenny, 127 bushels also won such prizes at the college of agriculture in Athens. After showing the corn in the county fair here November 14 to the boys will send exhibits to Atlanta where it is thought they will win some of the prizes at the Atlanta corn show under the management of Demonstration Agent H. L. Worsham this is by far the best year the corn club boys of this county have ever had.

BUTTS COUNTY READY FOR FAIR WEDNESDAY

Jackson, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—With everything in readiness the Butts county fair which opens here Wednesday promises to be an unequalled success. A large number of exhibits have been entered and they will probably be asked. The premium list for the members of the Boys' Corn club and the Girls' Corn club amount to several hundred dollars. The exhibits will be shown in the county courthouse. Prof. G. H. Gidley of the State College of Agriculture will judge the live stock exhibits, Professor Frank Adams, the poultry, Miss Holt at the canning club exhibits and Professor E. W. Gown the corn. The fair will be a large attendance is expected at the fair. The members of the various women's organizations in Jackson will wear cotton costumes. County Demonstration Agent H. L. Worsham is general manager of the fair.

GREAT DINNER IN BUTTS ON GA. PRODUCTS DAY

Jackson, Ga., November 14.—(Special)—In conjunction with the Butts county fair to be held November 15, Butts county will have one of the largest Products days in the state. The people of the entire county will take part and enjoy a dinner at one time. The products basket dinner will be enjoyed at 11 o'clock. A barbecue which was served last November in the county will be a notable one. The attendees will be county wide. Several stacks of new hats will be on hand that day to tell of the agricultural successes of the state. The date of the fair was set at one time previous to the Products day thus insuring a large crowd and keen interest.

Thanksgiving Offerings

A linen sale

---anticipate your Thanksgiving needs now

All conditions favor the plans which we have made for you in anticipation of this sale. It shows variety, novelty and value. It is a splendid thing for you to have this sale come just now, when the Holiday problems are beginning to confront you. Every one needs to replenish their Linens for Thanksgiving, and no one, in preparing for Xmas Gifts, can overlook the desirability, the suitability of linens as a most welcome Xmas present.

By beginning your selection at once, think of the time you will save, the worry you will avoid and the good investment you can make. Each piece shown here, whether it be a plain linen, dinner or tea napkins, a lunch cloth or a fancy square or center piece, is a new one. These were bought in the chief linen centers, at the lowest price, in ample time to insure their deliveries before foreign complications arose.

100 Belgian table cloths of snow white satin damask

The order for these, having been given last March, and they having been landed by the end of summer, we are fortunate in being able to show you the scarcest cloths known to the trade.

1914 table damask from Bonnie Scotland-- new patterns at $1.19 yard

This quality is the best we have ever shown at the price advertised today, which is fully 25 per cent less than you will find them quoted elsewhere. The peculiar value of Scotch damask is its sturdiness. Nothing launders so well--nothing wears so long. This is truly 70 inches wide.

Special importation fine Moravian damask cloths

The peculiarity of this cloth is that they have a high satiny, lustrous texture, and yet are soft finished. These are unlike any other linens produced, and are shown in 1914 designs--at old prices.

THE CONSTITUTION is on sale in New York City by 3 p. m. the day after issue. It can be had: Holaling's Newsstands, Broadway and Forty-second street (Times building corner), Thirty-eighth street and Broadway and Twenty-ninth street and Broadway.

THE CONSTITUTION is not responsible for advance payments to out-of-town local carriers, dealers or agents.

FIRST, PAY DEBTS; THEN, ESCAPE BONDAGE.

The first duty of the southern farmer in a year unprecedented since the civil war is to sell enough cotton to pay his debts.

The second duty, and it is hardly less emergent, is to plan to escape next year the bondage of all-cotton by raising foodstuffs at home, reducing cotton sharply and using as little credit as possible to produce even his minimum of cotton.

These are the flat terms of the south's emancipation. The Constitution makes the statement, advisedly, that the salvation of the south is in the hands of the farmer; and we say further, that the landlord who compels the tenant to overplant in cotton, or who himself holds too much cotton, or who will not permit the tenant to plant foodstuffs, is a public foe!

If cotton were a crop that were raised debt-free, it would be legitimate to hoard it indefinitely. Cotton is not raised debt-free. Most of it is raised on credit.

That credit influence starts at the crossroads grocery and stretches up to the pay envelope of every man in every city in the south. That is just how tyrannical and all-pervasive cotton is.

The landlord, therefore, or the farmer, who is hoarding cotton and not paying his debts is hoarding the cotton of other people; he is paralyzing the current of activity all along the line; he is affecting people living hundreds of miles away who never heard of him.

That is why The Constitution says the first duty of men who control cotton, and it isn't always the bona fide farmer, is to sell enough to clear debts. What cotton is left can be hoarded.

The Constitution realizes and sympathizes with the disappointment over low-priced cotton. The Constitution knows, too, that cotton, intrinsically, is worth more than the price it will now bring. But the south must, as it has on previous occasions, face the situation as it exists, not as we would like it to be. We have the nerve for that process. We must get about it. We must recognize that the cotton market is readjusting itself to a level that, while it will postpone many of the things the south hoped for, will permit a good, sound living, added to the accumulated surplus of many years of good prices. Next year, the indications are that we will return to normal. But we are dealing now with this year. And we must act accordingly.

If cotton were not a debt-raised crop, the south today would be faced by no problem. One of the big lessons of the present emergency is, henceforth, to raise cotton with as little debt as possible; to broaden our agricultural program to include foodstuffs. The country that feeds itself need fear nothing. The south can feed itself. It can produce every pound of meat and every other article of food necessary to the sustenance of man and beast.

And yet, the anomaly is presented of this enormously versatile section sending annually fortunes away for the necessities of life, and for the bills, saddling a mortgage on cotton. The wonder is we have done so well, despite this self-created and maintained handicap.

The time is come to escape this bondage. The lesson of the war in Europe ought to hammer home the wisdom of an immediate beginning.

1. Sell cotton enough to clear debts! 2. Blaze a way out of the system of bondage!

FERTILIZING HOME LABEL.

W. H. White, Jr., president of the White Provision Company, is just one of the Atlanta manufacturers who has discovered a record-breaking fertilizer for the home label. It's just systematic advertising!

Elsewhere in this issue Mr. White describes his experience and his theories. The manufacturers and consumers of Atlanta would do well to study both. If ever this community is to be built to its true scale as a big manufacturing and industrial center, it must be through increasing patronage of home industries, more local factories.

Mr. White thinks systematic advertising is one of the formulas for accomplishing that end. He's right!

Several days ago The Constitution commented on a series of advertisements by Atlanta firms extolling the virtues of home-made goods, and detailing the value of keeping Atlanta money in Atlanta.

As a direct result of that campaign, several of these firms found such an increase in demand for their products that they had to put on more men. The White people, cited only as an illustration, put on five extra men. The Atlanta Refining & Mfg. Co. put on four extra men. The Dixie Pickle & Preserving Co., ten extra. The Southern Broom Manufacturing Company, three extra. Here is a total of twenty-two men given probably steady employment, several families provided for, and all through a few days' advertising of home wares. Keep the campaign up, broaden it and, the results are difficult to prophesy. The beauty of the thing is that these especial converts to Atlanta products are permanent. Once convinced, they're apt to stay put.

Organization is another certain way of fertilizing the home label. Naturally, the first organization to take up the cudgels, not spasmodically, but regularly, for home-made goods is the City Federation of Women's Clubs. They comprise generally the buyers of the city. As a rule, their word is law. If every member of the federation declared tomorrow for the home label there would be an industrial demand for perhaps ten thousand extra workers. The unions, with their close organization, can help. Lodges can help. Each civic body can help, and surely there is no better civic endeavor than planning to increase the resources and wealth of the city in which one's lot, and the lot of his family, is cast.

A universal complaint of the Atlanta and Georgia manufacturers is that they are at a disadvantage, because they have to fight the traditional preference for the foreign label on goods. Now, what is responsible for that traditional preference for the foreign label? Advertising, not spasmodic and haphazard, but continuous, intelligent, unremitting. Day after day, week after week, and month after month, outside manufacturers have hammered home the virtues of their products.

Like water dropping on a stone, the impact of the idea of those products has gone home to the consciousness of men and women everywhere, left a clean-cut and abiding impression.

Reiteration! That's the thing! What's the result? When the man or the woman wants a particular article, nine times out of ten they are going to call for the one a preference for which has been cleverly planted in their sub-conscious minds by the advertiser.

Another factor is that the consumer reasons, and quite naturally, that if the home article was good it would be advertised. In any event, it is the article that makes itself persistently known that finds a steady market. This psychology should convey its easy lesson to the Atlanta manufacturer.

They must meet other manufacturers on their own ground and with their own weapons! The ground is publicity, and the weapons, pertinacity!

If one little campaign of a few days' duration can produce such a marvelous change in the industries in Atlanta, what would not a protracted campaign accomplish?

The question answers itself. Patronizing home industries means more factories; more factories means more population, more spending capacity, greater activity in the real estate market, for the grocer, the butcher, the insurance man. The circle is endless and productive.

And—the best fertilizer of the home label, as Mr. White says, is— ADVERTISING!

FOR ATLANTA'S BOYS.

Atlanta has built and brought to the point of usefulness one of the finest and most completely equipped Young Men's Christian Association plants in the entire country. The next and most important thing is to give it the widest possible efficiency in community-building and development.

There is but one way to do this, and that is to use it and make it possible for Atlanta's boys to use it. This Y. M. C. A. plant can take care of one thousand boys. It will furnish them entertaining and wholesome diversion and keep them off the streets. It will supply them attractive athletic exercise of every kind under expert direction. It will build them in heart and mind and body into good citizens, the best sort of citizens.

But to do this it must have community support, it must have members, and its well-organized committees of business men are going out among the business men of Atlanta this week to make them members of Atlanta's new Y. M. C. A.

It is not a question of charity; that does not enter into it. These committees are not going on any begging expedition; they have something to offer—a quid pro quo, and a bigger, better and more substantial one than has ever before been offered in Atlanta.

They are going to ask the business men of Atlanta to join the Young Men's Christian Association, not only because it will do Atlanta good, but because it will do them good; because the association has something to offer in exchange for the comparatively small membership fee, and it will give every man who joins it and uses it much more than his money's worth.

It will do more than that. Getting back to the boys in whom every business man in Atlanta is or ought to be interested, it will give the association an opportunity to render a community service that is invaluable.

Boys are admitted to the privileges and athletic classes of the association at membership fees which are merely nominal, and far below the cost of operation. This deficit must be made up in the dues from regular members; these must pay, largely, the expenses of operation while the institution is engaged in building and developing Atlanta's future citizens.

Every business man in Atlanta who joins and uses the Young Men's Christian Association will not only get more than his money's worth himself, but will make it possible for the association to take in at least two more boys at the lower rates.

The campaign is on, will be in full blast Monday, for 400 business memberships. There are 400 men and more in Atlanta who can use the Y. M. C. A. with splendid advantage to themselves and at the same time make it a big, active paying institution—not paying in dollars and cents—which will render to Atlanta a thousand fold what her citizens have put into it.

The new association building in its infancy is caring for nearly 200 boys now. When these 400 business memberships are taken, it will mean opportunity for 800 more boys—a total of 1,000 boys on the road to vigor, strength and right living; the groundwork of 1,000 splendid citizens who will make Atlanta's future bigger and better than her past has ever been.

Atlanta's business men should, and will, we have no doubt, give prompt and unhesitating response to this invitation to join an association fraught with so much of good and advantage to themselves and to the city. This week should see the 400 business members fully signed up.

The Holland Letter

Within a few days representatives presumably of one of the belligerent nations have entered into contract with the manufacturer of large American industrial plants to buy the entire output of this plant—which is large—for one year. Furthermore, it was stipulated that $100,000 should be paid in cash upon the execution of the contract.

The future payments to be made in cash or its equivalent when the gunboats is placed aboard the steamers. If the managers of this large industry know positively that the purchasers are they have kept that knowledge to themselves. It is possible that the purchases have been made through international banking houses, which themselves would be a sufficient guarantee for the payment of bills.

Presently this gunboat is to be utilized in the manufacture of munition, and no great amount of reasoning is necessary to persuade the manufacturers that it is chiefly to be used for siege guns. For it is known that the largest pieces of artillery are constructed in England and that the gunboat is the base. Powder, as we understand the term, is not used for these larger pieces.

Germany, however, appears to have an abundant supply of the ammunition needed for these siege guns and has adequate facilities for the constant manufacture of it. Moreover, Germany already possesses siege guns, as the destruction of the fortifications at Liege, at Antwerp and Maauberge demonstrated.

England, however, has no siege guns comparable with those with which Germany surprised not only the belligerent nations, but the world. While some of the artillery of France is highly effective, she does not possess any siege guns. The only gun in the world which is not being manufactured now under way in Great Britain—because England believes the war will be of long continuance—is the beginning of the manufacture of siege guns. Occasionally news has come from England regarding the construction of one of these colossal implements of war. Four months are reported to be necessary for the making of a gun of this kind. Good authorities in the city say that while four months are needed for the manufacture of one gun, it is possible that two or four or six guns may be manufactured in far less time than eight months, or sixteen for four, or two years for six guns.

The gun which is turned out in much less time than the first gun. At all events, the reasons are good for surmising that England is now building a number of siege guns which will match in energy and destructiveness the best that Germany has brought against the fortresses of Liege and other forts. Presumably by spring of next year several of these guns will have been constructed in England. Possibly some may be sent to the United States.

The inference is strong that the purchase by one of the belligerent nations of the entire output for a year of a gunboat manufacturing plant in the United States reflects the construction of siege guns in England and the mobilizing of ammunition of the kind which is needed to operate these guns.

The Extent of the War. A natural inference, therefore, is that England looks for the existence of war for many months. In the financial district, where careful heed is necessarily taken of the progress of the war—since financial questions are involved in this contingency—the belief prevails that, severe as has been the fighting since August, there is no prospect of a truce or of a cessation of hostilities before the winter or early in the spring. Some of those who read carefully the address which was made by Lord Kitchener at the Lord Mayor's Banquet in London on Monday last would believe that the war will last for a year or more.

Lord Kitchener said that the utilization of elaborate destructive machinery by the enemy has inevitably modified the old principles of strategy and tactics. Modern warfare is something which approximate siege operations. England has the arsenal plants of capacity sufficient for the manufacture of siege guns. She has, however, been compelled to buy equipment for these plants in large amounts. Her great need for chasing demand now is, as illustrated by the exigencies of one of the great manufacturing plants of New England, in Hartford, Conn. This plant is being expanded by emergency measures almost double its normal capacity. This Hartford industry is presumably chiefly occupied with the manufacture of apparatus which is needed for assault work in England.

An estimate recently made by good authorities places the value of the purchases made in the United States since August 4, but principally since mid-September, by the belligerent and the neutral nations, at about $250,000,000. Probably the greater part of these purchases would be made in the United States, and it is certain that many of the commodities which have been purchased here by neutral nations have been sold to them for instance, and to some extent, Greece—would have been bought elsewhere than in the United States had war not come.

There are a good many almost inexplicable complications in the present situation here. For instance, the banks of New York are holding in their vaults a large amount of gold the early part of the week. This gold is to be utilized for the payment of the foreign obligations of New York City, which mature within the next two or three weeks.

Yet at the time this gold was shipped large credits were advanced to New York, presumably for the most part with the international bankers, against which drafts are being cashed. It is not clear how the date payment to American exporters for commodities bought here by the belligerent nations is being made. It is not clear how the waste of energy and a highly uncommercial method of financing payment of debts, but those who are astute and of long experience in financing payment of international obligations either in favor of or against the United States admit, with a single exception, that there seems to be no way of proceeding which the recent obligations in favor of the United States can be utilized to offset in any considerable measure our own debt on current account to Europe. It has been observed that Max May, who ranks among the ablest masters both of the practice and theoretical side of foreign exchange, thought to believe that some way could be devised whereby the current obligations to Europe could be liquidated by Europe's recently incurred obligations to the United States.

The Harvest Fields of Home

BY FRANK L. STANTON.

I. AT HOME with the hearts o' the nation—a wonderful table is spread; The home-fields have answered the toilers and Providence blesses the bread. Shadows that breathe of world-sorrow from distant and storm-stricken skies, But strength for today and the wonderful Way of God shining clear in Life's eyes.

II. AROUND the home-hearth play the children—thanks be to God for His grace! Messengers they of Life's Morning, bringing light to the mother's sweet face; Theirs the first Rose of the Morning, catching its earliest beams, And mother-love bending above them when 'Twillight comes in with the Dreams.

III. SHE thinks, when they're clasped to her bosom—when Evening unveils the first star, Of the war-driven waifs of the nations—the motherless dreamers afar; They come to her, calling and crying; she hears in the Night the light fall Of their feet 'round their gloom-darkened hearthsides, and there's room in her love for them all.

IV. AT HOME with the hearts o' the nation: On hillside and valley and plain Shine the love-sheltered cots of the toilers where Love's more than gold in the gain; Valleys of Peace and of Plenty; hills that see Heaven and say: "Answered—the prayers of Thy children: God walks the great world today!"

V. OH, WERE friends with the fields that have blessed us, far hidden from thunder-swept strife; Where Toil finds the fullness of harvest, where Love reaps the lilies of Life; Joy o' the world in the toiling; so are the host-tables spread; So falls the Heaven's benediction where the sad words of Hunger are fed.

VI. THERE was strength for the storms of the past time; there'll be light in the storms that may be; The Life-Ship sails sure to the harbor whose lights shine like stars o'er the sea. At home with the hearts o' the nation, with the blessing of Love and of Light, The shadow of God on the life-breathing soil, and the crowned heights eternal in sight.

At home with the hearts o' the nation, with the blessing of Love and of Light, The shadow of God on the life-breathing soil, and the crowned heights eternal in sight.

With the Exchanges

HAD BET AGAINST A COFFIN. (From The New York Times.) W. C. Skinner, who was at the Plaza for many years before he opened the Hotel Clark, at Derby, Conn., reached New York recently, after a long absence, and told his friends of a bet that was registered in his hotel the night before the world's series began.

"Two of the roughest rooters for the national game in Derby are W. L. Young and Walter Perkins," said Mr. Skinner. "Young was for the Braves while Perkins favored the Mackens.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," exclaimed Young. "I'll bet you a fat against anything you care to name that the Braves win the series."

"Let me take that correctly," replied Perkins. "As I understand it, I bet and I win the wager I get a hat, and if you win you get anything I care to name."

"You can take it that way if you want," retorted Young, "only you must write down the name of the stake, and give it to the stakeholder." To this Perkins agreed.

"I'll bet you a fat against anything you care to name that the Braves win the series."

ABOUT MACHINE GUNS. (From Answers.) Every day in the newspapers there crop up incidents dealing with the effect of machine-guns, and an enormous number of those weapons are doing their deadly work today.

In the British army the machine gun is the Maxim; the French use the Hotchkiss; the Austrians employ the Schwarzloose, and Germany the Maxim. In all cases machine guns are attached to the infantry forces, usually at the proportion of two guns per battalion, or 1,000 men.

These guns fire high-caliber cartridges at immense speed by mechanical means, and usually the kick, or recoil, of the gun is used for the purpose of reloading. It is interesting to note that in a test forty-two British first-class shots engaged a machine gun, and the gun discharged 228 rounds and made 63 hits; the forty-two marksmen discharged 408 rounds and made 62 hits.

AN OBJECT LESSON FROM EAST TEXAS. (From The Palestine Herald.) There is a man over at Nacogdoches who has found that something else besides cotton can be grown, and at a good profit. His name is R. S. Jordan, and he has just shipped his first crop of hogs to Fort Worth, getting top prices for them. One Durpe-Jersey tipped the scales at 1,060 pounds, and gave conclusive proof that hogs can be grown in Texas. Mr. Jordan is also interested in fine, and has just recently sold four cows for $1,000.

DUTCH PROVIDE PLEASANT QUARTERS. (From The London Chronicle.) The Dutch have chosen pleasant places for the internment of the English machine-gunners. Groningen is a town of fine houses and wide, clean streets, in which enough sixteenth century houses remain to give it an old world air. Gardens and promenades abound on the north side of the town, and in the center lies a group of open spaces, chief among them the large market square, in which the French republicans planted their tree of liberty in 1795.

MOSLEMS ARE HUMAN. (From The Kansas City Star.) French Catholics are fighting against the Catholics of the south of Germany. Prussian Protestants are fighting against English Protestants. The cleavage of war isn't so. With this European object lesson in mind there is no difficulty in understanding the division that brings the Moslems of India into conflict with the Moslems of Turkey.

HE ALWAYS WINS. (From The New York World.) Bushes soaked with kerosene light desperate night battles. Whoever loses in this war, John D. Wins.

THE GIRL WHO ONLY LOOKS FASTIDIOUS.

A young man meets her at a dance. He is struck with her refreshing neatness of appearance. Her hair, he notices, is fastidiously plaited. "I like it," says he, "a tangent like that of most girls. The arrangement of her hair, alone, must have cost her full ten minutes. The nicest girl I've ever seen!" He tells himself, owing to know her better. Three weeks later, he stands on her doorstep. "I've just our maid lay his hat and gloves on the parlor. 'Lost to himself'—he realizes, 'but she's not really fastidious; she can bear to live in ill-kept surroundings.' If she were really fastidious, she'd have those ties removed if she had to clean it herself. She's a diamond set in brass."

EMPIRE FURNITURE COMPANY

129 - 131 Whitehall Street
Between Mitchell St. and Trinity Ave.

A CHARMING simplification of the redingote is the suit shown above, which is developed in navy blue serge and is trimmed with a black satin collar and band of fur. The underskirt is of black satin and is edged with fur. The deep V neck of the coat is softened with a narrow band of organdy and the high rolling collar is most becoming. This young lady is carrying on her arm one of the new silk tricot sweaters which may be had in many wonderful combinations of color.

When coats are not very long, they are very short and full like the green broadcloth one on the figure in the center. This suit shows several new features, short coat with cape-like extension in the back, wide braid trimmings and the narrow shoulders and bell-shaped skirt. The collar and muff are of fur.

The next girl is wearing a black-and-white plaid top coat of Russian velour with collar and cuffs of monkey fur. This coat, when worn with the black velvet jockey cap, would make a most comfortable combination for motor wear.

THE JAWS OF DEATH

SYNOPSIS—The 3 of Hearts is the "death-sig" employed by Seneca Trine in the private war of vengeance which, through the agency of his daughter Judith, a woman of violent passions like his own, he wages against Alan Law, son of the man (now dead) who was innocently responsible for the accident which left Trine a helpless cripple for life. Alan loves and is loved by Rose, Judith's twin and double, but in all other respects her opposite. Judith vows to compass Alan's death, but Alan saves her in a dramatic circumstance and so, unwillingly, wins her love. Thereafter Judith is actuated in turn by the old hatred, the new love, and jealousy of her sister, Rose, she becomes alienated from her father through her failure to carry out his homicidal plans, and because of the aid she has extended Alan in his fight with Rose from the vengeance of Trine through the mountains of western Arizona.

I—CAMP-FOR-THE-NIGHT.

"Well, gents!" the driver observed cheerfully, withdrawing head and hands from long and intimate communion with the stubborn genius beneath the hood, "I reckon you-all may's well make up yore minds to christen this-hyeh salubrious spot Camp-for-the-Night. You won't be goin' no farther—not just 't present. Pulling this old wagon through them desert sands back yonder has just naturally broke' the heart of that engine!"

"What, precisely, is the trouble?" Alan Law inquired, rousing from anxious preoccupation.

"Plumb bust' all to hell," the chauffeur explained tersely.

"Nothing could be fairer, more exact and comprehensive than that," Tom Barcus commented.

Law nodded a head too weary to respond to the other's humor. His worried eyes reviewed the scene of the breakdown.

"What's to be done?" he wondered aloud.

"Take it calm," the affable chauffeur advised. "Frettin' won't get you-all nothin'. If it was me, I'd call it a day, make a fire, get them cushions out of the cyah, and get some rest. You can't do nothin' till I get back, anyway, and that won't be much before sunup."

"Where are you going?" Barcus demanded.

"Walkin', friend; just walkin'—"

"What for?"

"To fetch help—leastways, unless yo've got some kick comin' and 'ud ruther stop hyeh permanent!"

He turned off and busied himself with preparations against his journey.

"It's simply things like this make me believe this isn't, after all, nothing more nor less than a long-drawn-out nightmare," Barcus observed.

Mr. Law was not attending; he had turned away and was just then standing by the running-board of the motor car and civilly explaining to Miss Judith Trine the purpose of the chauffeur's expedition.

Discovery of this circumstance worked a deep wrinkle between the brows as well as into the humor of Mr. Barcus.

Here, he promised himself, was a situation to titillate the Comic Muse itself. He pointed out in turn the several component parts: the motor car derelict in the hollow of those awful and silent hills—for all the world like a mouse petrified with fright at finding itself in the midst of a herd of elephants; in the car that ached monomania, Mr. Seneca Trine, author of all their woes and misadventures, gnashing his teeth in impotent rage to find himself in close juxtaposition to and helpless to injure the man for whose life he lusted with an insatiate passion; the latter standing outside the car in polite conversation with Mr. Trine's mutinous Judith—talking to her in the friendliest fashion imaginable, precisely as if she had not fallen little short of compassing his death, not once, but half a dozen times; Judith herself poised on the running-board and smiling down at her victim with a warmth patently even more than the warmth of friendship; and at some little distance, Rose, Mr. Law's fiancée and Judith's sister, eating her heart out with jealousy of this new-sprung intimacy between her sister and her lover!

"Bad business, my friend!" Barcus mentally apostrophized the unwitting Alan Law. "Bad business—and only the beginning of it, or I'm no prophet. If you had the wit with which Providence has endowed the domestic goose, you'd realize that you might as well encourage the attentions of a coy young cyclone as the affections of that handsome, upstanding and able-bodied young woman who's spilling her heart out of her eyes into yours this blessed minute as ever was!" Not to mention the trouble you're brewing for yourself with the young woman to whom your affections are unswervingly devoted!

He interposed himself to nod knowingly and with profound conviction. "I knew it. Now it begins again!"

For Rose had abruptly taken a hand in the affair, a gesture of exasperation prefacing her call "Alan!"

To her Mr. Law turned instantly, with such alacrity that none who watched might doubt which of the two women came first in his esteem.

Nor was this wasted upon the understanding of Judith. Eyeing her narrowly though furtively, Mr. Barcus saw her handsome face darken ominously.

And her father was as quick to recognize these portents of trouble and to seek to advantage of them.

His head craned out horribly on his long, wasted neck as he pitched a sibilant whisper for her ears, and his face in the moonlight seemed to glow with the reflection of that inferno which smoldered in his evil bosom.

But one was silenced the other quenched, all in a twinkling. His daughter turned on him in a flash of fierce rage.

"Be silent!" Barcus heard her say. "Be silent, do you hear? Don't ever speak to me again unless you want me to replace that gag. I say, don't speak to me!"

I am finished with you once and for all time never again shall you pervert my nature to your damnable purposes—never again shall word or wish of yours drive me to lift my hand against a man who has never done you the least harm, though your persecution of him would have acquitted him of a charge of manslaughter in any court—on grounds of self-defense! . . . Understand me!" she raged. "I'm through. Henceforth I go my way, and you yours . . ."

Her voice broke. She clenched her hands into two tight fists with the effort at self-control, and lifted a writhen face to the moonlight. "God help us both!" she cried.

II—AS IN A GLASS, DARKLY.

Thoughtfully Mr. Barcus returned his attention to the lovers.

If the evidence of his senses did not mislead him, he was witnessing their first difference of opinion. It was not an argument acute enough to deserve the name of quarrel; but undoubtedly the two were at odds upon some question—Rose insistent, Alan reluctant.

This last gave way in the end, shrugged—returned to the car.

"I'm going back up the trail," he announced, and hesitated oddly.

"Feeling the need of some little exercise, no doubt," Barcus suggested.

"Rose thinks it's dangerous to stop here," Alan began to explain, ignoring the interruption.

"Miss Rose is right—eh, Miss Judith?" Barcus interpolated.

Judith nodded darkly.

"So I'm going to see if I can't buy burros from the prospector back there. Rose says he has some—doesn't know how many—"

"Three will be enough," Judith interposed. "I mean, don't get one for me. I'm stopping here."

"But—" Alan started to protest.

She gave him pause with a weary gesture.

"Please! It's no good arguing, Mr. Law: I've made up my mind; I can be most helpful here, by my father's side," she asserted, and nodded at Trine with a significant smile that maddened him.

"He needs me—and no harm can come to me: I'm pretty well able to take care of myself!"

At this the innocent bystander breathed an unheard but fervent little prayer of thanksgiving, whose spirit he doubted not was shared by Alan.

For it stuck in the memory of Barcus that their friend, the prospector (whose shack had sheltered Rose and Barcus after their transit of the desert and prior to the man-made avalanche, which had afforded this temporary immunity from pursuit) had mentioned in the hearing of Rose the fact that his string of burros was limited to three.

This, then, must have been the nub of the lovers' quarrel: Rose's insistence that Judith be left behind, Alan's reluctance to consent to this last he convicted himself of the charge of rank ingratitude, remembering the great service his erstwhile antagonist had done him.

If only Judith might not find cause to change her mind!

He set himself sedulously to divert Judith with the magic of his conversational powers—an offering indifferently received. He was still blithely gossiping when Judith flung away to her sister's side.

The ensuing quarrel seemed but the more portentous in view of the restraint imposed upon themselves by both parties thereto.

He believed, however, that a crisis impended when the tinkle of mule-bells sounded down the canyon road; and at this he threw discretion to the winds and ran toward the two with hands upheld in mock horror and a manner of humorous protest.

"Ladies, ladies!" he pleaded. "I beg of you both, let dogs delight to bark and bite—"

He got no farther: Judith's ears were as quick as his own; she, too, had caught the sound of bells behind the base of the hill. And of a sudden, without another word, she turned and flung away into the heavy thickets of undergrowth that masked all the canyon, to either side of the wagon-trail. In a twinkling she had lost herself to view in their labyrinthine shadows. . . .

The remainder of that business was transacted rapidly enough. There were no preparations to be made; once Alan had ridden up with his three burros, nothing remained but to mount and make off without delay.

Before morning they were all riding like so many hypnotized subjects, fatigue bearing so heavily on all their senses that none spoke or cared to speak. Barcus so often caught himself nodding in the saddle that he had little doubt he slept through long stretches of that perilous way.

Broad daylight surprised them in this state, still stubbornly traveling; and shortly afterward showed them one place so perilous that it shocked them temporarily awake.

This was simply a spot where the trail came abruptly to an end on one side of a cleft in the hills quite thirty feet wide and several hundred in depth and was continued on the further side, the chasm being spanned by a bridge of the simplest character.

Alan tested the bridge cautiously. It bore him. He returned, helped Rose to cross, and with her once safely landed on the farther side, took his life in his hands and, aided by a Barcus unaffectedly afflicted with qualms, somehow or other (neither ever knew precisely how) persuaded the burros to cross.

After that, though the way grew more broad and easy and even showed symptoms of a decline, they had not strength enough left to sustain through another hour.

And what they thought good fortune, opportunely at this pass, brought them to a clearing dotted with the buildings of an abandoned copper mine. Not a soul was in evidence there, but the rude structures offered shelter for beast as well as man. Barely had they made Rose as comfortable as might be upon the rough plank flooring of one of out into the sunlight, carried a considerable distance, and deposited unceremoniously within a few feet of the mouth of the abandoned mine.

Then he was left to himself once more, but only for a few moments: the interval ended when the two appeared again, this time bringing Rose in similar fashion.

Not until she had been put down beside him did he discover that Alan was likewise a captive—trussed to a tree at some distance.

The remaining arrangements of their captors were swiftly and deftly consummated, though their design remained obscure to Mr. Barcus until he, after Rose, was dumped like a bale into a huge bucket, and therein by means of rope and windlass lowered to the bottom of the shaft—a descent, he estimated shrewdly, of something like a hundred feet.

A hideous screeching followed, the protests of rusty and greaseless machinery. Twisting his neck, Barcus saw the dim opening of the shaft slowly closing, as if a curtain were being drawn down over it. Jimmy was closing the bulkhead door, leaving them definitely prisoners, beyond human aid, there in that everlasting black hole. . . .

With a final squeal and thump the bulkhead set

But even as Alan lifted his hands to grasp the bottom rung the opening at the top of the shaft was temporarily obscured.

Thrilled with apprehension, he hesitated: Marrophat was up there, he little doubted, hardly like that one to overlook the ladder-shaft in preparing the tunnel to be a living tomb.

Marrophat or no Marrophat at the top, there was nothing for him to do but to grasp the nettle danger with a steady hand, unflinching. Even though he were shot dead on emerging from the shaft, it were better than to die down there, like a rat in a trap. . . .

He had climbed not more than half a dozen rungs when a voice hailed from above:

"Law—Oh, Mister Law I say—don't come up—here's a present for you."

Pausing without answer, he looked up. A few drops of water splattered his face, like heavy rain. Almost immediately the blue sky was permanently eclipsed: a heavy cascade of water, almost a solid column, shot down the shaft with terrific force. Alan sought vainly to escape it, to mount against it. Seeming to gain in strength and volume with each instant, it beat upon his head and shoulders with irresistible power. Before he knew it, his grasp had been wrenched away from the ladders and he was shooting feet first back into the tunnel.

Half-drowned and wholly dazed, he felt himself picked up and dragged away from the waterfall.

Then, as his senses cleared, he comprehended the fact that the tunnel was already filling; that where they stood it was already ankle deep; while the water continued to fall without hint of letup.

IV—FLOOD AND FIRE.

Screaming to make himself heard above the roar of the deluge, Barcus yammered in Alan's ear:

"That devil! He's found the reservoir—opened the sluiceways—turned it into that shaft! We're done for!"

Alan had no argument with which to gainsay him. Silently getting on his feet, he groped for Rose in the darkness, momentarily becoming more dense as the fall of water shut out the light, and drew her away with him, up the slight incline that led back to the bulkhead. . . . as an hour in hell.

To die there, in the darkness, like so many noxious animals trapped in a well! . . .

The water mounted rapidly. Within five minutes it drove them back to the elbow in the tunnel: within ten it lapped their ankles as they lingered there, doubting which was the greater peril, to advance or to stand fast and let the flooding tide snuff out the fires of life. To return to the neighborhood of the bulkhead was to court the death indicated by the fuse and the keg of blasting powder. . . .

Of a sudden the thought crossed Alan's mind that Marrophat had arranged the latter solely to keep them away from the bulkhead.

He was decidedly of the opinion that it were better to be extinguished once and for all time, in the space of a second, annihilated by an explosion, than to die thus lingeringly.

On this consideration, he drew Rose with him, back to the bulkhead.

When they had been some fifteen minutes beside the bulkhead, the water mounted the head of a slight rise perhaps ten feet behind them, and poured down in ever deeper volume to back up against the barrier.

In fifteen minutes more it had reached their chins. And they stood with heads against the roof of the tunnel.

Holding Rose close to him, Alan kissed her lips, that were as cold as death.

Then, fumbling under water, he found the hand of the man at his side.

The water lapped his lips like a blind hand. . . .

In the tunnel that branched off from the main shaft, beyond the bulkhead, some thirty minutes before this juncture, a candle had guttered in its stick, left carelessly thrust into the wall by Marrophat's lieutenant, and guttering, had dropped a flaming wick into a little heap of bone-dry debris. This last flamed, licked hungrily at the timbering that upheld the walls of the tunnel. The timbering caught fire without delay. In a space of time incredibly brief the flames were spreading right and left, the tunnel was a vault of blistering fire.

As Alan said his last mute farewell to Rose and Barcus, the fire spread out in the bottom of the shaft and invaded the powder room.

Alan had guessed aright at Marrophat's design: the keg of blasting powder was less than an eighth full; its explosion could not possibly have effected the cave-in Alan had at first feared.

But what Marrophat had overlooked was the proximity to the keg of some several sticks of dynamite, masked by a film of earth that had fallen from the crumbling walls.

When the blazing fuse dropped sparks into the blasting powder this last exploded right willingly and the dynamite took its cue without the least delay.

The resultant detonation was terrific. The bulkhead was crushed in like an eggshell barrier. Part of the walls fell in, but the tunnels and shaft remained intact.

Swept with the stream as it poured out of the tunnel, Alan contrived throughout to retain his hold round the waist of Rose. Barcus shot past him unseen in the darkness.

Half-blinded and stifed as he was by the reek of steam and powder fumes, Alan struggled with himself until his wits were passably clear.

Immediately before him dangled the hoisting bucket and rope.

Surrendering the care of Rose to Barcus, Alan climbed into the bucket and stared upward, examining the walls of the shaft for a way to the top.

There was none other than the most difficult: gaps too great to be bridged by climbing showed in the wooden ladders.

The one feasible route was via the rope. And there was nobody at the top to work the windlass—and Alan hoped there would be nobody to oppose his essay.

He addressed himself to the task without murmuring—lifted himself upon the rope, wound it round one leg, and began that heart-breaking climb.

He arrived at the top of the shaft far too exhausted to show surprise when, falling in half-fainting condition within two feet of the brink, he saw Judith Trine running like mad across the clearing.

But without her aid he would not within hours have been able to work the windlass and lift Rose and Barcus to the surface.

HANK AND HIS ANIMAL FRIENDS By Walt McDougall

BETSY PATERSON, THE AMERICAN SISTER-IN-LAW IN THE PATH OF NAPOLEON

100 Years After His Downfall

A Journey of 20,000 Miles

By JAMES MORGAN

The story of Napoleon's restless matchmaking is one of the comedies of history, a comedy that ended in the tragedy of Josephine's divorce.

Mr. Morgan's story today describes the earliest shadow that fell upon Napoleon as the conductor of a matrimonial bureau, when he dissolved the marriage of Jerome Bonaparte and Betsy Paterson of Baltimore.

THE BONAPARTES AND THEIR MARRIAGES

- January 7, 1768—Joseph born.
- August 1, 1794—Married Julie Clara.

- October 20, 1780—Pauline born.
- June 14, 1797—Married Leclerc.
- November 1, 1802—Leclerc died.
- November 3, 1803—Married Borghese.
- March 20, 1788—Christine born.
- January 20, 1800—Married Murat.
- December 15, 1784—Jerome born.
- December 24, 1803—Married Betsy Paterson.
- February 22, 1805—Marriage invalidated by French law.
- April 2, 1805—Jerome and Betsy parted at Lisbon.
- July 7, 1805—Birth of son.
- September 27, 1805—Betsy sailed for America.
- June 26, 1806—Holy See refused to annul Jerome's marriage.
- August 22, 1807—Jerome married Catherine.
- June 21, 1800—Jerome died.
- April 1, 1879—Betsy died, aged 94.

As Napoleon turned from the victorious field of Austerlitz, he laid aside the shield and spear of Mars for the bow and arrow of Cupid. Always filled with a passion for match-making, if he had not gone into the business of empire's opened a real estate agency with Bourienne, he might have prospered as the proprietor of a matrimonial bureau.

After his capture of Ulm, he ordered Josephine to follow his line of march through Germany as far as Munich and visit the courts of his allies. He wished to reinforce his conquering sword with her captivating smile and employ it to reconcile the German princes to the empire as it had been employed to win the old aristocracy of France over to the consulate. Carefully instructing her just how to wear her imperial dignity abroad and bear herself among the lesser if older royalties, he wrote:

"Bring with you the means of making presents to the ladies and to the functionaries who may serve you. Be unassuming, but receive all homage. Everything is due to you. You owe nothing but courtesy. The Electress of Wurtemberg is a daughter of the King of England. She is a lovely woman. Treat her with kindness but without affection."

Josephine seems to have remained the same indifferent correspondent as when she was the bride of the conqueror of Italy, and her husband thus chided her after the battle of Austerlitz:

"August Empress—Not one letter from you since your departure from Stasbourg. You have entered Baden, Stuttgart and Munich without writing us a word. That is not very amiable, nor very tender. I am still at Brunn. The Russians have gone. I have a trace.

"Condescend from the summit of your grandeur to occupy yourself a little with your slaves."

THE FIRST ROYAL MATCH.

The conquest of Austria completed and the spoils of victory secured, Napoleon proceeded to Munich, where Josephine awaited him. Having vanquished the ancient empire, he felt entitled now to demand royal alliances for the new empire, and at Munich he began his imperial matchmaking with the sovereign of Bavaria. Arranging the details of the match with the speed of a military maneuver, he marched the couple to the altar at double quick.

Eugene Beauharnais, now a prince and the viceroy of Italy, was to be the happy groom on that occasion and his happiness was announced to him by Napoleon in the terms of a battle command: "I have arranged your marriage with the Princess Augusta. It has been announced. This morning the princess visited me and I spoke with her for a long time. She is very pretty. You will find her with her portrait on a cup; but she is much better looking."

Josephine obediently flew over the Alps from his vice-regal post at Milan, while her step-father impatiently waited to see the marriage celebrated at the cathedral of Paris. It chanced that the Princess Augusta was already betrothed to the heir of the reigning house of Baden, but that circumstance did not hinder Napoleon. He promised to divorce another bride, the Baden heiress and the gave him Stephanie Beauharnais, a distant cousin-in-law of Josephine. The girl held the sight of her betrothed in their honeymoon began at the Tuileries with her dear named against him.

Stephanie was a granddaughter of Fanny Beauharnais, aunt of Josephine's first husband. But Fanny having made a second marriage with a negro and left her family, Napoleon had taken Fanny's own daughter under his protection and before the Egyptian campaign had married her to his aide, Lavallette. As for Stephanie, he had almost spoiled her with his fondness. When she pertinently refused to rise and stand in the presence of his sisters, and they stamped their imperial feet with rage, he indelicately took her part and said to the little girl: "Come and sit on my knee; then you will be in no one's way."

IN SIMPLER DAYS.

While he was arranging marriages from the highest throne on earth, with the hands of nearly all the princes and princesses in Europe at his command, Napoleon must have smiled at his simplicity only a dozen years before when he thought Joseph Bonaparte "a lucky dog" for capturing Julie Clara, heiress to the fortune of a Marseilles soap manufacturer and money lender. But even in those plain days, he had spurned Christine Boyer whom Lucien married out of a tavern keeper's family. Christine, however, won him by diligently acquiring the accomplishment of reading and writing and by her natural graces of character and person.

In spite of his stern commands, his sister Elisa had married a poor stick of a Corsican, and he had been far from satisfied at first with his sister-in-law's husband. "Murat! Murat!" he snarled. "He is the son of an inn keeper. In the elevated rank to which I have attained, I cannot mix by blood with his."

Two or three reluctant spouses were chosen for Pauline, the most dashing and frivolous of the sisters, before Napoleon fixed upon the complaisant General Leclerc, whose early death in Santo Domingo threw her back upon her brother's hands. Pauline's gawdy of spirits was even more menacing in widowhood than in maidenhood and in such haste as was compatible with decency she was wedded to the Borghese of Rome, becoming the first princess in the Bonaparte family.

Napoleon delicately expressed in the Monitor the relief and gratification which that matchmaking brought him, announcing that the prince had undertaken "the task of rendering happy the widow of a brave man and the sister of a hero. Alas, Borghese proved unequal to that heavy, if not impossible, task!

Josephine seems to have taken the leading part in the marriage of her daughter, Hortense, to Louis Bonaparte. The heart of each had bestowed elsewhere, but Louis, with a very face, and Hortense, with bitter tears joining hands in a union hateful and galling to both.

A MATRIMONIAL CAMPAIGN.

As Napoleon mounted to grandeur and neared the throne, he increasingly regretted the matches made by his family in humbler days. With a little foresight, and patient waiting, the Bonapartes might all have made royal marriages that would have bound to him every reigning house in Europe. Although he had grown fond of Christine Boyer, he was somewhat consoled for her untimely death by the hope of making a more ambitious second marriage for Lucien, and he congratulated himself that Jerome, his youngest brother, was still available. With those two eligible brothers at his disposal, he planned a matrimonial campaign among the princesses of the continent.

Not long after Jerome left Patrick MacDermott's College in Ireland, at St. Germain, the levity of his life in Paris alarmed the first consul, who was very fond of and indulgent toward his boys. When Napoleon returned from his victory at Marengo, he found Jerome still putting over his refusal to take him along on the campaign. "Let us make peace," the elder pleaded. "I will give you anything you want." And he was immensely pleased to have Jerome throw his arms about his neck and ask him for the sword of Marengo. The youth had his wish and kept the sword through life.

Napoleon determined that Jerome should become what he himself had once hoped to be, a naval officer. His parting injunction to his light-hearted brother was expressed in these Spanish terms: "Die young and I shall be consoled, but not if you live 60 years

WHEN JEROME AND BETSY MET.

After tedious cruising in the tropic waters of the West Indies and rising to a lieutenant, Jerome landed at Norfolk, Va., in the summer of 1803 with Captain Joshua Barney, the American sailor of fortune, who was retiring from the French navy. Lieutenant Bonaparte was also accompanied by a son of the former Director Rewbell and two other companions-in-arms, who were as eager as he for the pleasures of the shore. At Baltimore, in the home of Samuel Chase, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, Jerome met the 18-year-old daughter of a great calculated he could have put her entire outfit in his pocket.

While it was said of Elizabeth, or Betsy, now that we have been properly introduced to her, that "she charmed by her eyes and slays by her tongue," her deadlier weapon spared Jerome at that first meeting and left him wholly charmed. In one swift month more while in Washington, where he chanced to meet the Irish immigrant who had won his way from poverty to the rank of the richest merchant in America.

The French consul general warned the Patersons that by the law of France the marriage of a man under 25 was not legal unless with the consent of a parent or a guardian. The family accepted the warning, disapprovingly, but Jerome's youth—he was not yet 19—and of his name, for Bonaparte, leader of revolutionary France, sounded no better in the ears of the Americans in America than in England. Betsy was bundled off to a Virginia plantation, and her lover, seeming to submit, relieved the troubled mind of the consul general by assuring him that the engagement was at an end, which news was dispatched to Baltimore. It was nearer the truth, however, that the spendthrift was at the end of his financial resources, having burned up $5,000 in the course of a four months' sojourn in the consul general gratefully responded by a loan and by hiring a ship in Philadelphia for $10,000 to take Jerome back to France. But instead of taking passage for home, the lovesick young man who had been in correspondence with Betsy all the while, returned to Baltimore to meet her on her return from Virginia. And so came back vowing solemnly "would rather be the wife of Jerome Bonaparte for one hour than the wife of any other man for life."

THE BALTIMORE MARRIAGE.

Meanwhile Jerome's companion, young Rewbell, had married another pair of eyes that charmed, and the Spanish minister, who also had an American wife, was interfering for the other pair of lovers. Perhaps, too, the growing rumor that the Bonapartes were about to be transformed into an imperial house was having a mollifying effect on Betsy's family.

Apparently the poor consul general lost their co-operation in his efforts to break up the match, for he denounced them now as "possessed with an inconceivable infatuation for the marriage. It is really the young man who has seduced." At any rate, the Patersons were dispatched to a small acquaintance by Christmas eve of 1803 when the marriage contract having been drawn up by Alexander J. Dallas, Jerome and Betsy were married by John Carroll, Roman Catholic bishop of Baltimore, in the presence of a small company including the mayor of the

AN INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM.

As fast as sails could take him, Betsy's brother, Robert, sped to Paris with a letter from James Madison secretary of state, commending him to the good offices of Robert R. Livingston, the American minister of France. For the bride had two influential uncles at Washington, Robert R. Livingston, of the navy, and Samuel Smith, who had just been elected to the senate and was now sitting in the special session called to ratify the purchase of Louisiana from Napoleon. Uncle Robert and Samuel did not bid their satisfaction with the match from John Quincy Adams, who wrote that "the Smiths are so elated with their supposed elevation by this event that a Virginia dispatch to his minister at Paris more would fit them for the discipline of Dr. Willis"—the alienist of the day.

Although President Jefferson received the bride and groom at the white house, he expressed the fear, in dispatch to his minister at Paris, that Napoleon might take it into his head to call the president of the United States to account for permitting the wedding to take place. Jefferson thoughtfully prepared Livingston, in the event of a Napoleonic outbreak, to give assurance that not only was the president powerless under American law, but also that Jerome's father-in-law was the wealthiest man in Maryland, perhaps in the United States, except Mr. Carroll—Charles Carroll, of Carrollton.

LUCIEN AND JEROME IN SAME BOX.

Robert Paterson arrived in Paris not only with high official credentials, but also with a warm letter of indorsement of his sister from Elisa Monroe, which the latter had addressed to her schoolmate, Hortense. But it was most unfortunate that Jerome, a diplomat, that Napoleon had already been thrown into a wild fury by hearing of another marriage in the family against his wish. Lucien had secretly married a Mme. Joubertin, and thereby rewarded one who had long consoled his widowerhood by making her his lawful wife. When the Duc whispered in Napoleon's ear the news of the marriage with the widow, the first consul sprang to his feet in the midst of a musicale at St. Cloud. "Stop the music!" he demanded of the amusement of the musicians and his guests. Facing the hall, he exclaimed, "Treason! It is treason!"

AN ADVENTUROUS HONEYMOON.

Jerome and Betsy were presented with a problem in blockade running. How was he to steal through his brother's tightly drawn lines and take Betsy into France? Many were their adventures, even before they had succeeded in clearing the American coast. For a time the couple lived in Washington, where the British minister complained that Jerome was honored above him. Next they toured the country, going to Niagara Falls and as far east as Boston. When they arrived in New York, the officers of a French vessel in port tickled Jerome's ears by saluting him as "your imperial highness." There being none of Lucien's stubborn fiber in his composition, he grew increasingly impatient to be a prince and swing his legs from the steps of a throne.

An arrangement was made for the bride and groom to sail on the French ship, the officers not having yet received the edict against Betsy. But three British ships were lying off Sandy Hook and Jerome decided not to take the chance of capture. Again the pair sailed from Annapolis, but when a British naval vessel was sighted Betsy took alarm and they came ashore. Another time they sailed from Philadelphia, but the vessel ran on a sand bar in the Delaware and Betsy insisted on landing. Finally her father fitted out for the meal not a word was spoken about Betsy or the wedding. Lucien, filled with a fellow-feeling for a more orderly life, assured Mr. Paterson that all the Bonapartes—with only one dissenting voice—were pleased with the match, and hoped that Jerome, becoming a citizen of the United States, would "assimilate himself to the plain and uncorrupted manners of your incomparable nation."

Such a compliment, however, was even then packing up to take flight from France while the one dissenting voice in the family was pitched in a scornful tone. Napoleon wrote to Camille Desmoulins that such a marriage as Jerome's was "no more real than if it had been between two lovers who marry in a garden on the altar of love in the presence of the moon and stars."

CUTTING OFF THE SUPPLIES.

In strict accordance with his favorite strategy, he cut off Jerome's supplies, leaving him dependent on "his wife's purse," as he homely saying is, while he commanded that the bridegroom should leave "in America the young person in question" and "come either to associate himself in my fortunes."

The emperer was dawning on its full glory burst upon the Bonapartes. Lucien and Jerome were left in the outer darkness. The obedient senate decreed that no civil officer should permit her to enter the empire. "She shall not set foot on the soil of France," he declared.

Mother Letizia, who had abandoned the court and the country and turned her back on the coronation to take her stand with Lucien, the banished son, tried to soften Napoleon's spirit toward Jerome; but the emperor wrote her, "If he is not prepared to wash out the dishonor which he has brought upon my name by abandoning his flag for a wretched woman, I shall send him up forever." Poor Letizia truly expressed her maternal nature when she said, "My love is always deepest for the most unhappy of my children."

She could offer Jerome no better advice than that he make his appeal to the emperor in person, while Betsy went to Holland, and waited for the imperial will to relent.

A FAITHLESS FATHER.

In three months more Jerome's dishonor was complete when he stood before the world a faithless father as well as a faithless husband, his deserted wife giving birth to a son in a London gutter. His dutifully chiding him Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte. It is true that Jerome wrote Betsy, "Teach our child to love and esteem his father, and say to him, 'Your father will always prefer you to greatness, fortune, to all the state of high rank. Leave you, my good wife? I never had this state of house' that after Jerome's death, I will fulfill that of a husband."

But the baby hands of little Jerome Napoleon not having proved strong enough to draw the father away from his vanity, Betsy and her family gave up hope, and she sailed home, bitterly lamenting, "The emperor hurled me back on what I hated most on earth—my Baltimore obscurity. But even that shock could not destroy my admiration for his genius and glory." And she accepted such solace for her wounded pride as a pension of $12,000 a year from Napoleon afforded.

for a while, was rewarded first with the rank of rear admiral and then with the title of prince, not to mention the payment of his always rapidly accumulating debts. "It is inconceivable," Napoleon growled, "how much this young man cost me." But he wrote to Joseph: "I have recognized him as a prince and I have given him the grand cordon of the Legion of Honor. I have arranged his marriage with Princess Catherine, daughter of the King of Wurtemberg."

Although a heavy liability in a financial way, the youth was an asset for the imperial matrimonial bureau, and Napoleon made haste to ask Pope Pius VII. to annul the Baltimore marriage in a religious sense, as it already was annulled by civil procedure. He assured the pope that his brother had been married by a Spanish priest to "a Protestant young woman."

The holy see knew the true facts and braved the imperial displeasure by declining to invalidate a marriage with a Christian. Any faith that had been performed by a bishop of the church. But the royal house of Wurtemberg, being Protestant, was not troubled by the refusal of Rome to sanction the match, and in 1808, more than two years after his parting from Betsy, Jerome became the husband of the Princess Catherine.

THE EAGLE AND THE GOOSE.

Some time after the costly youth had been elevated to the throne of Westphalia and Napoleon had unloaded him upon the poor taxpayers of his new realm, Jerome grew generous toward Betsy with the money of his subjects. He offered her $4000 a year in place of the $12,000 she was receiving from Napoleon if she would bring their boy and live in Westphalia.

But Betsy was not the woman to be twice fooled by the same person and she replied to Jerome that "the kingdom of Westphalia is not large enough for two queens" and furthermore that she preferred her present position as "being sheltered under the wing of an eagle to being suspended from the bill of a goose." When the eagle heard of that witty reply, he envied it so much that he instructed the French minister at Washington to ask Betsy what he could do for her. She answered, "Make me a duchess," but it continued to be a matter of degree on a level of equality "with people who after I had married a prince became my inferiors."

When the kingdom of Westphalia was no more and Jerome's story had departed, he and Betsy met for the first and only time after their parting in the harbor of Lisbon. He was now a bankrupt, and she had divorced him to protect her property. They passed without a word of greeting as each was strolling in the picture gallery of the Pitti Palace at Florence. Jerome merely jerking his thumb toward Betsy and remarking to Catherine, "That is my American wife."

THE AMERICAN BONAPARTES.

Both Jerome and Catherine often saw young Jerome Napoleon, but his father ignored him in his will. Emperor Napoleon III. offered to make him a prince in the vanity of his race this American son-in-law refused to relinquish his pretensions to a higher dignity, that of a prince of the empire and a legitimate heir to the throne.

Although his mother never forgave her native Presbyterianism she reared Jerome a Catholic, because that was to insure the religion of princes and kings. She educated him at Harvard, where he graduated with honors. His mother's grief, he so far forgot his princely rank as to make an American marriage.

Two sons were born to this second Bonaparte, became attorney general in President Roosevelt's cabinet, while the elder was elected Colonel Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, of the United States West Point, who married Caroline Roy, daughter of Samuel Appleton, of Boston, and granddaughter of Daniel Webster.

Jerome's younger, Charles Jerome Napoleon Bonaparte, of Washington, the great-grandson of King Jerome and great-grandnephew of Napoleon. If his great-grandmother's marriage had been recognized by the emperor in Washington would be the son of the house of Bonaparte and first in line for the vanished throne of Napoleon installed as King Jerome's other great-grandson, Victor of Brussels.

BETSY TRUE TO THE EMPIRE.

Betsy ever remained faithful to the empire that banned her. Long after it had fallen she continued to wander about Europe where she could number her conquest by mingling with titled people. To her hard-headed father's protest against her forsaking her place as the head of his household, she replied "It was impossible to bend my tastes and opinions to the obscure destiny of a Baltimore wife. It was absurd to attempt it. If I had married the brother of an emperor, and in his will the father deposed her as 'my disobedient daughter,' Betsy? When strength she did return to America it was to take up the management of her estate in her native city."

Betsy's husband was the last survivor among the brothers of Napoleon, but she outlived him many years, and outlived her son as well. After the second empire had risen from the ruins of the first at Waterloo and fallen at Sedan, and she was four-score-and-ten, Mme. Bonaparte still did her own bargaining and collecting as she went through the streets of Baltimore, an old carpet bag in her hand. Although reputed to be more than a millionaire, she passed the last years of her life in a boarding house, where her many trunks she cherished her fondest treasures—the purple satin coat Jerome wore at their wedding, a gown given to her by the princess Pauline, another from Mme. Moreau, all the other faded finery of the days of her imperial dreams.

It is not the gravestone of Betsy Paterson in Greenwood cemetery near the Union railway station of Baltimore, a marker on "the Path of Napoleon" to his downfall? Perhaps it was in dissolving her marriage that the emperor took the fatal step toward his own divorce. At least it lost him a sister, whose loyalty to his throne would have been an example to his own sisters, whose thrift and ambition would have been used to the practical and silly Jerome, and whose beauty of person and purity of life would have done credit to the court of the empire.
