FRENCH DRAGOONS IN DARING EXPLOIT

Squadron Charges and Destroys Park of German Aeroplanes and Also an Automobile Convoy.

Paris, November 28.—The French war office supplemented its statement today with an account of the exploits of a squadron of dragoons during the early part of September.

"During the night of September 9," the account reads, "a lieutenant of dragoons who had become isolated with his squadron in the midst of the German lines and had taken refuge at a farm, learned of the presence of a park of German aeroplanes on the road leading from Vieux a factory between Soissons and Compeigne. According to the gossip of peasants, the aeroplanes had landed about 7 o'clock in the evening and had been joined about 10 o'clock by an automobile convoy consisting of from seven to nine machines which had kept company with them during their flight.

"The lieutenant decided upon an immediate attack. It was then 2:30 in the morning. It was proposed that two platoons on foot should approach as near as possible to the convoy, fire three shots and no more. A mounted platoon, proceeding by the consequent disorder, would hurl itself upon the automobiles and charge with their lances those who sought to escape. The mounted platoon was to remain in reserve at the factory.

Charged at Gallop.

"The two platoons on foot succeeded in approaching to within 40 meters of the automobiles, and the challenge of the mounted platoon was the signal for opening fire. Scarcely had the fire ceased in conformity with orders received than the lieutenant in command of the mounted platoon charged at a gallop at the head of his men, shouting, 'Vive La France!'

"Unfortunately, the Germans were only partially surprised, and a rapid fire gun stationed at the head of the automobile convoy opened fire. The French officers were killed and the platoon literally annihilated. Not one of the troops reached the automobile park. The lieutenant in command of the two dismounted platoons also attacked the assembly of German machines. He was killed, the gunners having been killed at their positions.

The French troopers buried themselves upon the aeroplanes. They were in small groups and began to fire in the direction of the automobiles at a distance of 75 yards. The Germans, who were firing along the edge of the road, replied to this fire with great courage.

"The machine this was going on a detachment of engineers, armed with their tools and having been previously instructed to wait for the machine gun, set on the aeroplanes. With sure blows from their pick axes they destroyed the aeroplanes. The assault was so successful that the German aeroplanes and the running gear of the automobiles. Furthermore, three aeroplanes were destroyed by a supply of gasoline caught on fire and threw a glare of light over the scene.

Attacked the Automobiles.

"Before opening the engagement, the courageous commanding officer wanted to know the exact position of the center of the group from which the orders to the Germans had been issued and which seemed to be occupied by the German commander. While the reserve platoon was drawing back with caution, the French lieutenant, followed by only three cavalrymen, made his way up to the automobile and found himself face to face with two men, one of whom was an officer. The lieutenant opened fire on the group of four men with an automatic pistol. The three men received a bullet through the arm, but not before he had been able to destroy the automobile at a distance of a few inches against the chest of his adversary, who was the German commander. The German, who was in the automobile with this officer, succeeded in escaping. The lieutenant succeeded in dragging himself to the shelter of a field of grain.

"Our losses were numerous. In the three platoons engaged only ten men came out of this engagement unscathed. They hid in a village and for three days lived within the German lines. The German commander, on the 13th of September, when a division of French infantry, victorious over the enemy, marched into the town."

A WOMAN'S TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE!

The way a nation treats its women.

Your December Calendar Shows a Red Date—Christmas!

There's nothing so profitably illustrative of the "bird in the hand" as time.

Seize today, tomorrow is in the bush.

"Tomorrow" means the rush hours that precede Christmas, when so much money is spent. "Today's" money is invested, with plenty of time to consider well the investment.

Practical gifts are in order this season. There is no finer sentiment than that displayed in the well-chosen opportune gift.

A thought for a need is the gracious deed.

There is no finer gift than the finely tailored suit or the splendid overcoat for one of the family or close friend—when it bears the name of MUSE behind the collar.

It is a present to contribute pleasure and comfort along the road ahead.

Magnificent assortments in warm and cheerful fabrics, supreme styles—chuck full of the holiday spirit—await your visit.

Let these head your Christmas memoranda.

You'll be glad as soon as such a sensible purchase is made.

You'll draw a big interest on your money's worth many days after the gift date.

Make the price what you will. The gift garment is good at MUSE'S, be it $15 or $50.

WORKING MACHINERY OF A TORPEDO FIRED AT BATTLESHIP FROM DEADLY SUBMARINE

SKETCH OF TORPEDO FIRED AT BATTLESHIP BY SUBMARINE.

This sketch shows a sectional view of a torpedo shot at a battleship. It is self-explanatory. When fired from the submarine the mechanism of the torpedo is automatically set in motion, and the impact of the nose against the hull of a ship springs the trigger which explodes the deadly missile. The exploits of the German submarine U-9 in sinking several English cruisers prove once for all the efficiency of the submarine use of the torpedo.

WAR NO LONGER AFFAIR OF DASH AND OF CLASS

Plenty of Disciplined Men Trained to Shoot Are Needed, Says British Officer.

London, November 18.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Some thing of the inner feelings and impressions of the men actually in the trenches at the front are contained in the following extracts from a letter sent to a friend in London by an officer with the British expeditionary force:

"Sitting here and reading the English papers that arrive one cannot help feeling that England, at any rate, has not yet succeeded in banishing the spectacular and romantic conceptions of war, which no longer bear any relation to the actuality. The papers still give the impression that war is an affair of dash and class. Incidents are invented like the charge of the Bengal Cavalry, other incidents are exaggerated, such as the engagement of the London Scottish, are made to convey a story of heroism."

What is Happening.

"As a matter of fact this is not what is happening. The bravery of our men is hardly to be denied, but they are not sitting for ten days and nights in sodden trenches with the terrifying noises and earth-shaking concussion of shells which 'kill them' and 'drop them' occasionally right into the trench, with a man here and a man there being picked off as he makes a venture. With his rifle in his hand, he has had his rifle picked off and the loss of one man one night and another man another night as the men are sent out to the front. The men of the nation party comes along the road after dark to bring them from the rear to the front. The men are not lively and excitement, a crawl of four or five men on their bellies in the dark night, for the men are not in a position to be evacuated and a very occasional use of the bayonet. It turns out that the men are not so much as they are made out to be, and is only lightly held, and so sit there hoping that our artillery, which can hear whistling overhead, is making the enemy as uncomfortable as they are making us."

Kind of Men Wanted.

"This false conception of what is going on creates a false picture of the soldiers that are wanted. I read of the Sportsmen battalion, all athletes, and so forth, and I wonder how many of these prowess were in question. But it is not what is wanted is ordinary men trained to shoot and to be killed, and plenty of them—men who can be held in not to shoot until the order is given, and who are willing to be whopped and slash and kill two Germans at one stroke."

"Our battalion is of a religious turn. He has his Bible in the trench, and he props it up against the parapet in front of him, and reads aloud in the intervals between his sniping shots."

1,700,000 ARMY SHIRTS WANTED BY BRITAIN

St. Louis, November 28.—Bids for 1,700,000 flannel army shirts for British soldiers were submitted by several St. Louis firms today. The contract will amount to more than $2,000,000. It is thought that 7,000 sets of artillery harness, costing $175,000, was given to a St. Louis manufacturer today. Another firm announced tonight it had just shipped 45,000 sets of underwear for army use to Amsterdam and 12,000 blankets to Mexico.

A hearing is set for December 1 as a continuation of the receivership. Liabilities outstanding of $200,000 are alleged in the complaint, assets not given.

Would a Triumph of the Allies Further Italy's Interests?

(From American Review of Reviews.)

Finally, looking at the larger political and economic aspects of the problem, it is clear that Italy's future is bound up with the decisive triumph of the allies. Whatever else the present war may bring, it means, as far as the western protagonists are concerned, a struggle between contending and contending powers. It is a struggle between nations largely satisfied with the economic and colonial present and nations which come late into the world, desire a larger place in the sun. But Italy has also come late into the world, and she has her own outlets for her products and her territorial ambitions. She also has her own foreign policies and complete independence as an imperious as those of the most extreme section of the Pan-German league. True, Italy cannot win for a decisive victory of those who are contending powers. In the past, nevertheless, it is doubtful whether she should desire a further triumph of the allies which will rivet and perpetuate their present command of the colonial preponderance upon the world.

DANISH-RUSSIAN CABLE CUT BY THE GERMANS

London, November 23.—(1:49 a. m.)—A Central News dispatch from Copenhagen says the cable between Fredericia, Denmark, and Roskilde, and between Fredericia and Petrograd, and the only direct cables between Denmark and Russia, has been cut in the Baltic, 170 miles east of Bornholm. The correspondent says it is believed the cutting was done by German submarines. The only communications with Russia now is by way of Sweden.

RELATION OF JAPAN TO EUROPE'S CONFLICT

Tokio, November 12.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—In an article entitled, "Japan and the European Armageddon," Count Shigenobu Okuma, the prime minister, writing in The Japan Magazine about the war, says some foreboding things about Japan's relation to the west.

"It will be our one ambition at this time," he writes, "to show the west what it is slow to believe, that we can stand harmoniously with great central powers to support and protect the highest ideals of civilization, even to the extent of dying for them. Not only in the Far West, but anywhere else that may be necessary, Japan is ready to lay down her life for the principles that the foremost nations will die for. It is to be a line with these nations that we stand at this time opposing and fighting what she believes to be opposed to these principles."

The premier continues: "She entered the alliance with Great Britain to stand for and die for what Anglo-Saxons are everywhere ready to defend even unto death. It is Japan's duty to stand for the principles of world movements toward noble diplomatic, international relations and the principle of equal opportunity for all. She must not be prevented by one proper means the outbreak or continuance of bloodshed between nations. She must stand to the present conflict as a defender of the things that make for higher civilization and a more permanent peace."

Count Okuma devotes a considerable space to a history of the relations of Japan to the present international war. Speaking generally, he thinks that war is always due to the progress of civilization, which, like water, must find its level. When the nations that are contending will be violence and bloodshed, war also is a result of the pressure offered by resistance to the growth of civilization.

Speaking in particular, the premier is inclined to find the root of the Balkan crisis in the Balkan peninsula. "Like China," he affirms, "it is a seething cauldron in the world's affairs. From conditions apparently insignificant in themselves, half the world can be set on fire and plunged into distress and decline."

LaGrange Club Women Buy Home and Will Incorporate

LaGrange, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—The Woman's club of LaGrange, has bought from Dr. W. A. Heard, the old Heard home place on Church street, and will convert it into a permanent home for the club, thus beginning upon the realization of what has long been a hope of the club leaders. The building, an old colonial residence, admirably suited to the purpose. The rooms are of generous size and can be adapted to the needs of the club at a cost of about $10,000. The club will admit of either additions as desired or of restorations of the former beauty of the grounds during the lifetime of Mrs. Queen Heald. The lot is but a short distance from the business center, rendering it feasible to establish here a rest room which has been an appreciable feature of the club's activities.

The club is now petitioning for a charter of incorporation under the name of "The LaGrange Woman's Club" for a period of twenty years, with the privilege of renewal at that time. The names of some of the prominent women who are following this petition, and are: Mesdames Clifford Smith, Frank Harwell, Frank Harwell, Leonard H. H. Spooty, Brock Callaway, R. D. Rander, T. A. Atkinson, Sarah Reid, C. M. Awrey, F. E. Callaway and W. A. Holmes.

PRICES OF FOOD RISE IN GERMANY

Berlin, November 18.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Until food prices little, but in the last few days a sharp rise has set in. Virtually everything to eat is higher, except meats which, although they are usually large stock of swine, have risen but little, and in some cases not at all.

Vegetables have disappeared from the market. Some of the ones to be had, but of inferior quality. Beans are scarce and hulled peas are not to be had. Prices of peas and lentils have risen from 7 cents to 15 cents, and it is predicted that the price will cost much more. The government recently confiscated all coffee held at Hamburg by English warehouses, but even so, the supply is running short. Fresh oranges and prices have increased. Fresh oranges are rarely seen, there are no bananas and pineapples, and with the entrance of Turkey into the war, the supply of dates and figs probably will be cut off.

Eggs Almost Gone.

Coldstorage stocks of eggs have been greatly reduced, and it will be but a short time before there will be none. The Berlin Chamber of Commerce points to the general surprise that Germany produces only 5 per cent of its egg supply, the remainder being imported from Austria, Denmark and Denmark.

Potatoes have reached prices which are hardly to be believed. Last year at this time they cost 50 cents for 110 pounds. Today the price is $1.10. The price of potatoes must be increased to the production of denatured spirits to take the place of sugar, which was formerly used for the marching of the army's needs.

The rise in grain prices was such that the federal government was obliged to raise a limit. The price of wheat, however, is high. They are: Wheat, $1.05; bushel, barley, $1.05; corn, $1.05. It is also to be noted that Belgium will have to be supplied with 500,000 tons of grain yearly.

Another factor is the presence of many of the prisoners of war in Germany who must be fed in addition to the regular population. This number is estimated at 1,000,000.

Russians Waste German Granary.

Still another disquieting thing is the fact that in East Prussia, the granary of Germany, the invasion of the country by the invading Russians. The invasion came just when the winter grain and to harvest autumn crops. The result was the immediate loss of a large part of the grain. This will be felt most keenly next summer.

Notwithstanding all this, there is no reason to believe that Germany will be beaten in the war. The men in responsible places have, however, felt themselves compelled to reduce the rationing of foodstuffs. The federal government has decreed that a certain percentage of the wheat and flour of potatoes in other forms with rice bread. In the provinces of Prussia, the rationing of wheat, flour and potatoes in restaurants, hotels and restaurants keepers have been advised not to furnish any more of these articles for these for it, to prevent waste. White bread may not be placed on the table, but it is necessary specifically demanded by guests.

WAR PROVES FATAL TO FEATHERED TRIBE

Paris, November 12.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The feathered tribe of Belgium and northern France has been dispersed by the war.

In all the districts of the Marne it was noticed after the battle that the birds had disappeared. The forests also have been nearly denuded of all kinds of game by the constant firing and the noise of the war. Driven to detached woods and thickets, where their dangers would have been increased in times of peace, they now find security.

Apart from their enforced exile, birds are not the least fortunate creatures in these times, game shooting being prohibited in France. The birds which are not the least fortunate are those which are not shot. The birds which are not shot are those which are not shot.

The birds which are not shot are those which are not shot. The birds which are not shot are those which are not shot.

Eating When Others Are Through

Is Not Gluttony, But Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets Will Enable You to Have Such an Appetite.

In these days of high pressure most men and women eat very little and a good old-fashioned appetite is hard to come by. The best way to get such an appetite is the Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

If your stomach cannot digest your food, what will? Where's the relief? The relief is in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, because, as all stomach troubles arise from indigestion and because one ingredient of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is able to thoroughly and completely digest 3,000 grains of food, does it stand to reason that these tablets are going to digest all the food and whatever food you put in your stomach?

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are carefully made to supply every element of a healthy, strong, and healthy stomach, indigestion, gastritis, healthy systems to digest, difficult food at unseasonably hours. Just get one of these little tablets in your purse or pocket. After every meal, no matter when eating, put in a few of these tablets. The assurance that nature will relax and thrive upon this manner one may eat all manner of food, attend late dinners, etc., and feel no serious results afterwards.

Thousands of travelers always have a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and the greatest proof of this fact lies in the assurance that one can purchase a box at any drug store anywhere in this country.

A small sample package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will be mailed free to anyone who will address F. O. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

98 WESTERN RAILWAYS FACE LABOR QUESTION

Differences Between Roads and 55,000 Employees Are to Be Arbitrated.

Chicago, November 28.—The differences of ninety-eight western railroads with 55,000 employees will be taken up here Monday by the federal board of mediation and conciliation. The eyes of railroad and labor men throughout the country will be turned upon the hearing, brought about by the intervention of President Wilson last spring, after the men and their employers had failed to agree.

The men will be represented by a committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen of the United States district courts, Richmond, Va. and Charles Nagel, St. Louis, former secretary of commerce and head of the board of mediation and conciliation. A statement given out today from headquarters of the employees' brotherhoods says:

MACHINE STOLEN HERE - FOUND IN LITTLE ROCK

DRY SCALY PIMPLES OVER CHILD'S FACE

Eczema Looked Angry, Face Red and Disfigured. Applied Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In Ten Days Completely Healed.

Marion, Va.—When my little boy was one year old he had these little dry scaly pimples all over his face. As time went on they would dry up and get scaly and peel off, then they would break out fresh again. He would scratch them until his face was raw and the eczema looked angry and ran blood and corruption. His face was red and disfigured. He seemed restless and I had to be up with him the greater part of the night.

Petition Aimed at Chancellor Kirkland, Signed by Ministers, Is Stopped by Bishop Candler

Dawson, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—A mild sensation was sprung here at the South Georgia Methodist conference when it was learned that a warmly-worded petition in reference to Vanderbilt university, and particularly Chancellor Kirkland, was being circulated among the ministers and being signed.

Wesleyan College President's Fine Report to Conference

Dawson, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—One of the most interesting reports made to the South Georgia Methodist conference in session here was that given by Rev. C. S. Jenkins, D. D., president of Wesleyan college, Macon. The report of Mr. Jenkins' report is as follows: "It gives me pleasure to make to you a glowing report of progress at Wesleyan college. Despite financial difficulties the college is constantly growing. Practically all of the girls at the college are members of some religious organization and many of them are pursuing courses in mission study. Bible study is required, and quite a number of the members are engaged in the study of the Bible. Several of the churches of Macon draw on the Wesleyan girls for Sunday school members. There is no college for men or women in the south that maintains higher educational standards."

DANCING IN CHURCH SCORED BY CANDLER

Continued From Page One. The South Georgia conference today passed a unanimous resolution asking the Rev. J. B. McGehee, of Buena Vista, to write an autobiography of his life and labor, to be published in the next issue of the conference journal.

Work of the Women. A most splendid feature of the missionary activity of South Georgia Methodists is that of the women's societies. The women of this section of the state have made contributions to the mission fund for the year ending this year. The total sum contributed by the remainder of the church membership.

War Church's Punishment. Hon. W. B. Stubbs, of Asbury church, Savannah, a leader in the laymen's activities of the South Georgia conference, was the speaker of the occasion at the missionary anniversary. Mr. Stubbs, in his address, referred to the Statesmanship of Jesus Christ, or "Has the Plan of Jesus Christ Failed?" In his address he paid particular attention to the conditions confronting the world today with reference to the war.

Today's Preaching Program. In arranging the appointments for the preaching services in the Dawson churches for tomorrow, the preachers of Macon and those visiting from Atlanta will be occupied by the chief pulpits. The schedule for Sunday's services is as follows: At 10 o'clock Dr. W. A. Moore will preach at the Methodist church and ordain the class of deacons at the close. At 11 o'clock Dr. W. A. Moore will preach at the Baptist church, Dr. C. R. Jenkins, president of Wesleyan college, will preach at 11, and Rev. R. F. Eakes, of Atlanta.

Dr. Candler's Report. Bishop Candler, as president of the Wesleyan Memorial convention, submitted to the conference the annual report of that institution. Bishop Candler said that 86 patients had been treated during the past year, making 228 more than received treatment the previous year. The 1,186 patients receiving treatment received the same treatment as the patients of the states of Alabama, California, Colorado, Florida, Kentucky, North Carolina, New York, Virginia and Georgia, and that twelve religious denominations were represented by a number, with nine nationalities. The total number of patients treated since the founding of the hospital in 1905 is 7,147.

AN INVITATION

By the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association

TO ALL GEORGIANS AND RESIDENTS OF ADJOINING STATES

The Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, The Chamber of Commerce, The Rotary Club and The Ad Men's Club, all of Atlanta, join in this invitation to every resident of Georgia and adjoining states, to bid you be present and enjoy to the fullest measure the extensive preparations we have made for your entertainment during the happy, frolicsome days of December, 1914.

The Hog and Hominy Carnival, The Boys' Corn Show, The Girls' Canning Club, The Grand Carnival Street Parade, The Carnival Ball and the Merry Christmas Shopping Throngs will make the welkin ring. Atlanta will be no place for "kill-joys" nor "gloom-spreaders" during these days of fun and frolic. So, throw off the cares of the past few months, put the good wife and children aboard an Atlanta-bound train and realize once more that "things are brighter than they seem." Come out of your shells and be "human" these Yuletide days, and you will go home a better and happier man.

Georgia's Great Corn Show AND EXHIBIT OF THE GIRLS' CANNING CLUB

Will prove a liberal education to every man and woman who would learn a real practical lesson from present cotton conditions. In past years these exhibits have interested the "youngsters." This year they will prove doubly interesting to the "grown-ups." Every mother's son and daughter of you Corn Club Boys and you Canning Club Girls should make it your business to bring at least one "grown-up."

The Varied Xmas Displays of Retail Stores

Will add a great measure of delight to this carnival occasion. Practically every store in Atlanta will be in holiday dress to welcome the thousands of visitors. Special displays are being made by all the merchants that you may have large and augmented stocks for easy selection. It is a golden opportunity for you. Special rate arrangements have been made with all railroads leading into Atlanta. This rate is established at one fare and twenty-five cents for the round trip from any point within 200 miles of Atlanta. Ask your agent about it.

STUPENDOUS CARNIVAL FEATURES

Who Will Be Queen of the Carnival?

This question now has all of Atlanta "guessing." Twelve of Atlanta's most popular debutantes are nominated, and no one will know who will wear the crown and the royal robes until Wednesday, December 2.

There will be twenty-three Maids of Honor with their escorts, all in special costume.

A Scintillating Street Pageant

Will open the carnival feature of this great event on Thursday afternoon, December 3. There will be a hundred or more specially designed and decorated moving attractions. Every Atlanta military organization will participate, and there will be a thousand or more maskers on foot. There will be music and fun galore, and the masking and fun will continue far into the night while the Queen's Ball is in progress.

The Queen's Ball---1,000 Masked Dancers

The great Auditorium has been engaged for this affair, which will take place on the night of Thursday, December 3.

The Queen will be crowned at 9 p. m. and then lead the Grand March. From her elevated throne, surrounded by her Maids of Honor, she will review the newest dances as exemplified by professional Terpsichorean artists. Tickets to this Grand Ball can be secured through the Merchants of Atlanta, or by addressing Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, 504 Chamber of Commerce Building, Atlanta.

This Great Event

Is the forerunner of Atlanta's Annual Carnival. Anybody who enjoys a good time cannot afford to miss it.

Make up a carnival party and come to Atlanta for a good and profitable visit. Decide right now to do this thing.

The merchants on the opposite page comprise the membership of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association. Each and every one of them extends to you a most cordial welcome and the fullest courtesy of their stores while in Atlanta. They are all splendidly ready to receive you and will do so in the true "holiday spirit" way.

MASTER KEY COMPANY TO LEAVE LOS ANGELES

Now Staging Third Chapter of Big Serial Coming to Savoy and Alpha.

In order to better stage a number of scenes in the third chapter of "The Master Key" serial, which calls for San Francisco settings, the Rex company, under the direction of Robert Leonard, will leave Los Angeles for the northern city within a few days. With him will go, in addition to the regular cast, the author of the story himself, John Fleming Wilson. His idea in accompanying them is to place at Mr. Leonard's disposal his unusual knowledge of the water front and other sections of the city, which will be invaluable when it comes to running down proper locations for the scenes to be photographed. Mr. Wilson is eminently well fitted to fill this part in the work, for during two years he covered the water front and kindred sections of the city for the San Francisco Chronicle. He worked out of that port as a sailor before the mast in search of local color for subsequent stories.

There is no way of predicting the length of time the company will remain in the heavy fog that drifts from the ocean and the cloudy weather that comes with the opening of the rainy season under the taking of pictures there a matter of conjecture. This big Universal serial, which is published in The Sunday Constitution each week, beginning December 6, and the installment shown at the Savoy and Alpha Monday, December 7, and on every Monday thereafter, until completed.

Actual Battles Shown In Belgian War Films At Grand This Week

Never before in the history of the world has there been taken a motion picture of an actual battle. Although what it would mean today to be able to sit in a comfortable theater and view on the motion picture screen the campaign of the great Napoleon; the battles of the revolution, with that genius Washington in personal command of his ill-equipped troops; the great struggles of the civil war at Gettysburg and in the Wilderness, and the more recent battles of Manila bay and the attack on Santiago. It has remained for the great European struggle, possibly the most devastating war in the world's history, to bring to the knowledge of the moving picture camera on the battlefield. All sorts of pictures have been taken by motion picture experts in an attempt to portray some of the principal European happenings. But so far there is a "last" picture of such a picture being absolutely bona fide. And this is contained in the Weigle staff photographer of The Chicago Tribune.

He marched with the army to Alost and was in the midst of the great battle there. He was present, too, at the battles of Aershot and Malines, and he witnessed the flooding of Lierre and the destruction of Termonde. Always beside him was his camera. And having the official permission of the Belgian government to make pictures wherever he liked, he was, naturally, given every facility to get just the sort of views he wanted. And a trained newspaper man such as Weigle certainly knows what the American public wants.

AT THE GRAND

"On Belgian Battlefields," to be shown at the Grand tomorrow and all week, are the first authentic films shown in this country, and were taken by permission of the Belgian government.

THE STRAND OFFERS "ZUDORA" TOMORROW

Second Episode of Big Than-houser Serial Arouses Eager Interest.

Atlanta movie fans are arousing eager interest over "Zudora," the big Thanhouser picture serial that has already become a sensation, and is one of the most talked-about screen dramas of the season. The second episode, "The Mystery of the Sleeping House," will be on the Strand hill tomorrow. Zudora not only rescues her lover, John Storm, from death in the horror chamber of an Oriental tribe, but saves one of her guardian's most baffling mysteries. This installment of Zudora is a rapid succession of startling incidents that flash with bewildering speed. The Strand has announced the booking of some of the month's biggest feature releases for this week, including "A Romance of Old Holland," a touching drama from the Broncho studio. Other features are: "Leading Lizzy Astray," a Keystone two-reeler, for Tuesday; "The Center of the Web," a Thanhouser society drama, Thursday; "Who Shot Bud Walton?" a Broncho mystery, for Saturday.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS

Owing to the number of queries received and the somewhat limited space allowed for answers it is not always possible to print information as rapidly as the writers desire it, as the letters must be answered in turn. All, however, receive careful attention.

Bestie James Cruz and Marguerite Snow are married. Florence LeBadie is not married. Address her at the Thanhouser Film company, New Rochelle, N. Y. Blanche is 22 or 23 years old. As far as I know, she is not married. Marguerite Snow's address is care of Thanhouser Film company, B. C. J. In writing scenarios, just give the title at the top. Leave out all sub-titles and details. Simply tell the story in as few words as possible.

ROTARIANS ARE MAKING ATTRACTIVE EXHIBITS

Windows in the Healey Building Are Used for Their Displays.

If you happen to be downtown on Monday and in the neighborhood of the Healey building, drop over for a few minutes and look into the windows on the ground floor. If you don't happen to have an engagement, you will bring you into the business section, go down anyhow and take a peep into the windows. You'll be well repaid for your trouble, for you will see there one of the finest exhibitions of the kind that has ever been seen together.

GOWNS WORTH $3,500, SAYS PIEDMONT DANCER

Miss Emily Frances Hooper and Mr. Ellsworth Cook Open Month's Engagement.

Miss Emily Frances Hooper and Mr. Ellsworth Cook, who come to this city from the Hotel Astor, in New York city, where their dancing proved a delight to the hotel patrons, have been engaged by the management of the Piedmont hotel for a series of charming society tea dances, which promise to play a large and prominent part in the galaxy of Atlanta's social set during December.

Rotarians Suggested Idea

L. D. Hicks, secretary of the Rotary club, is responsible for the exhibition idea and he has the indorsement of virtually every member of the club as well as of almost every merchant in town. Adams, president of the club, is another prime mover in the plan and has just made up his mind that the exhibition is going to be something of its sort ever held in Atlanta.

Rotarians Get Through Window

There are several thousand feet of floor space in the showrooms and there won't be much to spare when the rotarians get through window shopping. It is well to find on each their display in the windows of the Rotarian club emblem in the shape of a wheel of gold with a blue background. These are the recognized colors of the organization and no one has been spared to make them conspicuous in the decoration scheme.

ROGERS SENDS SHOT TO BUSH CARTER'S HEART

Marshal of Jesup, Claiming Self-Defense, Kills Appling County Man.

Jesup, Ga., November 28.—(Special.) L. W. Rogers, night marshal, shot and instantly killed Bush P. Carter, of Appling county, while trying to arrest him. Carter, accompanied by his cousin, John Carter, came to Jesup this morning to attend to business. They had been in the city all day. Late in the afternoon Night Marshal Rogers had a message to look out for a stolen overcoat. He found an overcoat on Carter to fill the description and immediately placed him under arrest. He had reached the jail and was on the inside when Carter, says Rogers, snatched out his revolver to shoot, but Rogers shot first, striking the man in the heart of the chest. Coroner: Wages is holding an inquest over the body. Colonel James R. Thomas has been employed by the defendant.

Suit Is Settled, Says Attorney, But Judge Calls Davis to Court

Valdosta, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—J. W. Davis, of this city, who was under a $2,000 bond for an attempted assault on a 13-year-old girl and who failed to appear in court, was ordered arrested by the sheriff and was on the inside when Carter, says Rogers, snatched out his revolver to shoot, but Rogers shot first, striking the man in the heart of the chest. Coroner: Wages is holding an inquest over the body. Colonel James R. Thomas has been employed by the defendant.

Jury Awards Thurman $15,000 for Injuries in Georgia Central Wreck

Americus, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—Fifteen thousand dollars was the amount awarded by the jury in the case of the wreck of the Georgia Central train near Americus, Ga., two years ago. Both Dr. Thurman and his wife were passengers aboard the wrecked train, and each sustained serious personal injuries. Dr. Thurman was awarded $15,000 damages and was asked $15,000 instead. Mrs. Thurman's suit for a less amount is still pending.

RAILROADS OF STATE SHOW LARGE EARNINGS

The Gross Is Largest in History, But the Net Shows Decrease.

The state railroad commission has completed a tabulation of gross earnings, operating expenses and net earnings of the railroads of Georgia, from business within Georgia, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914. The report says: "The 1914 reports show the largest gross earnings and the largest operating expenses for any year in the history of the state. "The net earnings, however, are only the largest since 1910, when they were $13,833,340.29, $15,853,954.19 and $14,193,212.54. The percentage of operating expenses to gross revenue in 1914 was 74.82 as compared with 75.38 in 1913; 72.13 for 1912; 69.78 for 1911 and 68.75 for 1910. "The increased percentage of operating expenses in recent years has been almost wholly caused by increased wages paid and increased cost of materials, supplies and equipment. "The railroad commission believes that the business done within Georgia by the railroads is a fair index as to the volume of general business done in the state. "Here is the tabulation upon which the foregoing remarks are based: Sixty-seven railroads report gross earnings $23,558,931.57. Sixty-seven railroads report net earnings $1,500,823.82. These reports compare with the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913, as follows: Sixty-seven railroads reported gross earnings $23,854,833.06. Sixty-seven railroads reported net earnings $1,729,266.79. Twelve railroads reported deficits, $46,907. "The report continues: "As indicative of the growth of the transportation business in Georgia, and therefore also of the growth of the general business of the state for the year ending June 30, 1914, the following statistics are interesting and encouraging: Railroad mileage in operation 1909, 5,240; in 1914, 7,205. Railroad gross earnings in 1909, $19,550,145.91; in 1914, $23,558,931.57. Railroad operating expenses 1909, $12,597,139.00; in 1914, $18,051,617.27. Railroad net earnings 1909, $6,953,016.91; in 1914, $15,524,069.29. "It is already stated, the reports for 1914, from which the foregoing figures are taken, are for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, and in no wise reflect conditions in the state as they exist today. "The European war has entirely changed conditions, which on July 1, 1914, were at their normal level, and the greatest business in the history of the state. "During the past three months, under the war conditions, monthly reports to the railroad commission show an average decrease in gross earnings of all the railroads of nearly 25 per cent as compared with 1913, without corresponding decreases in operating expenses."

J. C. OWENSBY BURIED

Killed in Atlanta—Funeral in LaGrange.

LaGrange, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—The body of J. C. Owensby, a former resident of LaGrange, was brought to LaGrange on Thursday for interment in Hillview cemetery. The young man died Tuesday morning at the home of his mother, Mrs. Jennie Owensby, as the result of injuries he received while engaged in his duties as a switchman for the Western and Atlantic railroad in Atlanta, Ga. The funeral party was accompanied to LaGrange by a delegation from the Atlanta local of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and was met at the train by an escort from the LaGrange lodge of Masons. Services were conducted at the grave by Rev. H. C. Coffield, pastor of the South Side Baptist church. Mr. Owensby was 27 years of age. Besides his mother, he is survived by four brothers, T. H. and E. R. Owensby, of LaGrange; M. R. and B. G. Owensby, of Atlanta, and three sisters, Mrs. J. T. Hollis, of Shawmut, Ala.; Mrs. E. S. Mathis, of Atlanta, and Mrs. L. M. Hasty, of West Point.

FIRE ENDANGERS SEVEN

Waycross Early Morning Blaze Destroys Two Buildings.

Waycross, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—Two fires within an hour early today caused damage estimated at $2,500, and gave Mrs. L. B. Boggs and two young boys a narrow escape. The Boggs home was practically ruined, inmates being rescued from the house just before the ceiling over them collapsed. Mr. Boggs is city electrician and building inspector. Insurance only partly covered his loss. The grocery store of G. C. Thomas was destroyed, four men occupying the room at the rear getting out in scanty attire.

FORM LAW PARTNERSHIP

A. A. Baumstark and Fred Schrimper Join Forces.

Fred Schrimper, who has been practicing law in Atlanta for the last four years, and A. A. Baumstark, who, at the time of his graduation four months ago from the Atlanta Law school, has been with Hoyton Bros., have formed a partnership under the title of Schrimper & Baumstark, and will open offices Monday in the Temple Court building.

REV. BURDEN, OF ALA., DIES AT LAGRANGE

LaGrange, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—Rev. C. J. Burden, who had been at the hospital in LaGrange for the past two weeks with Bright's disease, died Friday morning about 7:30 o'clock. Mr. Burden was a resident of Shawmut, Ala., and had charge of several Baptist churches in the eastern part of Alabama, and the western part of Georgia. At the time of his death he was 62 years of age. He was well known throughout this section. The body was sent over the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad to LaGrange this morning to LaFayette, Ala., where the funeral took place at 11 o'clock today. Mr. Burden was survived by a wife and one daughter, Mrs. J. D. Darden, of Shawmut, Ala.; one son, Dr. C. J. Burden, of Forsythville, and one sister-in-law, Mrs. J. T. Holiday, of LaGrange.

WAYCROSS CHURCH WILL USE "MOVIES"

Waycross, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—Monday night the church will use a moving picture machine with actual service in a Waycross church. The service will be held in the church moving picture machines in churches to aid in the Sunday school and other work of the church. The machine was loaned, but it remained for the Central Baptist church to install the first machine in the city. The Rev. J. D. Darden, pastor of the Baptist church, will open a meeting of the Baptist Young People's union to illustrate a lecture.

Homes for Pretty Canaries Asked in Constitution Ad

Wanted—Homes for a lot of canaries, fine songsters, good French stock and St. Andrews rollers. Good fathers. Prices reasonable. Address "Davis," care Constitution. There's more than the simple appeal between the lines of the above want ad, which appears elsewhere. There is a story of intense human interest—one which throbs with pathos. It comes from Miss Maude Marion Apple, who now lives with relatives in Florida, and whose father was at one time rector of Trinity church at Apalachicola, Fla. For a long time Miss Apple has suffered from an ailment which has made her almost helpless. To aid her father in her support, she began raising canary birds from the finest stock she could obtain, and at the time of his death she was meeting with great success. The young lady is still an invalid, but she still has that spirit which inspires her to do something to aid her relatives. She has a number of canaries on hand, and is anxious to dispose of them. She has written The Constitution a request for aid. There are thousands of people in Atlanta and Georgia who are able to take advantage of Miss Apple's sale of her birds. It is a known fact that the St. Andrews rollers are the finest birds known, and the fact that there are no canaries on the market for sale at any of the bird stores in the United States, because of the European war. Most of the canaries sold in the United States are trapped in the Hartz mountains in Germany, but the war has stopped that source of supply, and the few birds which reach this side of the water from Japan are priced so high that the ordinary fancier cannot buy them. Miss Apple's ad gives the assurance that she is asking only a reasonable price for her birds, which means that many Atlantans who have been unable to buy from the dealers now have a golden opportunity.

Miss Pickard to Wed Brother Of Man Whom Her Sister Jilted

Macon, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—Dr. and Mrs. William Lowndes Pickard today announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Boile, to Paul Daggett Karstan, formerly of Boston, Mass. The date of the wedding has not yet been fixed. This announcement is of all the more interest by reason of the fact that Miss Pickard's older sister, nee Miss Florence Pickard, was once engaged to marry Mr. Karstan's older brother, Gustave Karstan, but while he was on his way from Europe she eloped with Leverette Harrison, an old sweetheart, and when Mr. Karstan reached Savannah he found that his intended bride had gone. Paul Karstan came to Savannah with his brother and fell in love with Miss Elizabeth Pickard and when the Pickard family moved to Macon, where Dr. Pickard is now president of Mercer university, Mr. Karstan came here to live also, securing a clerical position with a local bank and is now studying law at Mercer university. Bryan Talks to Boys. Ann Arbor, Mich., November 28.—William J. Bryan was principal speaker tonight at the State boys' conference being held here. LET ATLANTA BAR PROBE BOND CASES, URGES SAM CRANE

Asserting that the men indicted by the grand jury for bond swindles in the recent bond scandal were only the tools of men higher up, S. C. Crane, an attorney, who recently created a sensation in the police commission by charging graft and corruption in the police department, has written a letter to Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey, urging that the Atlanta bar association, as well as the grand jury, investigate the charges of bond swindling. He maintains that prominent lawyers are implicated in the alleged gang. He charges that the grand jury has only touched on the surface, and acted against the smaller "vry" and declares that unless a more vigorous investigation is promoted, Atlanta will never be rid of the bond gangs.

Italian Statesman Dead

Rome, November 28.—The Marquis Visconti Venosta, former Italian minister of foreign affairs, died in Rome this morning. The marquis was born in Milan in 1829. He had a distinguished career in the Italian diplomatic service and as late as 1912 he was active in diplomatic negotiations between Italy and Austria.

DR. W. J. GREEN DEAD AT CLAYTON, GA.

Clayton, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—Dr. W. J. Green, a prominent citizen and Mason, died here this morning at 10 o'clock. Dr. Green, who was born and reared in this county, had lived here practically all of his life except about four years that he lived in Athens and Macon, Ga., having returned back to his native county from Macon this year. He was the first native from Rabun county that ever received a medical diploma for practicing medicine. That was in the year 1888, and he has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine ever since. He had been in declining health for three years. He represented this, the fourth, senatorial district in the upper branch of the Georgia assembly from 1898 to 1900. He belonged to the fourth senatorial district in this county. His wife, two sons, two daughters, his mother, one brother and one sister in this county, and two brothers and one sister, of Mooreport, Wyo., survive him. He was 61 years of age.

COLUMBUS ALDERMEN GET BARE 130 VOTES

WOMAN IS INJURED WHEN AUTOMOBILE STRIKES ELECTRIC

Mrs. Addie Fleming, of 95 Central avenue, was thrown out of an automobile on Central avenue, near Trinity avenue, Saturday afternoon late when the car struck an electric which was standing in front of 127 Central avenue. Mrs. Fleming received several severe lacerations on her forehead, caused by the breaking of her nose glasses. She was rushed to the Grady hospital, where several stitches had to be taken. Later she returned to her home. She was riding in the auto with T. A. Coleman, of Macon, Ga., who was driving. Coleman escaped unhurt. The right front wheel of the auto was torn off by the impact with the electric. The police say that the electric was owned by R. C. Darby, of 127 Central avenue. The Jaffa-Jerusalem railway, last year, carried nearly 200,000 passengers and nearly 50,000 tons of freight.

CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP WON BY THE "ARMY"

The "Navy" Basketball Team Badly Beaten at Atlanta Athletic Club.

Two picked basketball teams from Coach Joe Bean's basketball squad battled last night at the Atlanta Athletic club for the championship of the club. The "Army" defeated the "Navy" by the score of 18 to 24.

Coach Bean refereed the contest, which was a hummer from the go to the finish.

The first half ended with the "Army" far ahead, score 19 to 5, but in the second half, with the substitution of Locke and Ernesto Ranspock at forwards for the "Navy," the result was closer, score 23 to 19.

The box score was as follows:

Positions: "NAVY."
 Smith (7) ... L. F. Harrison (2)
 Forbes (25) ... R. F. Locke (10)
 DuBard (10) ... C. Taylor (6)
 Weaver (1) ... L. G. Shewley (3)
 E. Carter (1) ... L. G. McClarin (6)
 Graves (2)

Points scored on foul goals: Abbott 1, Smith 1 and Forbes 1.

Peacock School Closes Its First Prep Football Season With Honors

The football season at Peacock is over. This is the first time that a team representing this institution has entered the prep league, and its showing was remarkably good. Although only two games were won, yet these were not the least of the season's fighting team in the prep league.

The season opened with the Marietta college game, with Peacock leading, easily won, 12 to 0. The next game, and the first of the league, was with Georgia Military academy. Although outweighted 15 pounds to the man, Peacock fought off the heavy tackle and scored a touchdown, while the only touchdown of the game was registered. Peacock lost her chance to score when a forward punted over the goal line and scored a touchdown. The boys' high on the following Friday, won the Tech high school, 20 to 0. The recovery of two fumbled punts netted two touchdowns for Peacock, while Peacock had second chance to score by a fumble on the 10-yard line.

The only game in which Peacock played poor football was in the Tech high mix-up. The result of this was a score of 18 to 0 with the balance in favor of the Tech high squad.

In the final game, Peacock staged one of the greatest uphills fights to a victory that has ever been seen. Donald Fraser, her opponent, came out expecting to win, having had the high school, to which he had only rolled up two touchdowns.

Then Peacock took up and began a march on the Tech high school, winning the line and finally scoring on a forward pass.

In the third quarter she scored again on a series of line plunges. Again in the fourth quarter Peacock marched up the field and scored the final touchdown on a short forward pass, making the score 18 to 14 in favor of Peacock.

All the games were hard fought, the defeats were honorable, the victories hard won and the experience gained will be valuable in the days to come.

 Demorest 42, Cornelia 21.

The Demorest Boy Scouts decisively defeated the Cornelia basketball team on the Piedmont college floor here by a score of 12 to 4.

E. E. Keener, of Cornelia, featured for that team, while the feature of the game was the Demorest boys' team, work and machine-like regularity with which they made their points, making 21 points in each half and their forward, Ken Stambaugh, throwing 13 points in each of these halves.

All Stars 13, Cornelia 6.

Boston, November 13, Cornell star team, composed of former Harvard, Dartmouth, Yale and Brown football players, today defeated the Cornell Indians, 13 to 6. The proceeds went to charity. The former varsity players showed remarkable form, considering their long absence from the game.

VELIE IN LARGER QUARTERS

At the left, above, is shown the big service department of the Velie Motor Vehicle company, Nos. 451-3 Peachtree street; at the right is the spacious show room of the company; below is the attractive front of the Velie company's enlarged quarters.

The Velie Motor Vehicle company, which has for some time occupied a part of the attractive building at Nos. 451-3 Peachtree street, between Pine street and Merritts avenue, has recently taken over the entire building and now has ideal quarters from which to handle its growing southern business.

At the front of the building is a room showing the entire front being of one class, which makes of it an interesting spot which has attracted much attention.

In the rear the Velie company has equipped service departments in the city, and this department, in charge of experts from the Velie factory, is proving a great asset to owners of Velie cars.

In the same building is a stock and parts department, from which parts are quickly supplied to all parts of the southern territory. The parts company, comprising North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and eastern Tennessee.

P. B. Ludwig, southern district manager, who makes his headquarters in Atlanta, is greatly pleased with the growth of the company's business in the southeastern states, and states, from the indications of further growth of his business, a recovery of business conditions throughout his territory.

FORWARD PASSES GIVE ARMY VICTORY

which he was ordered out of the game and the Middles penalized half the distance to the goal line in the second period.

The interference accorded the Army runner was quickly formed and deadly in its effectiveness. Prichard's generalship at quarter was excellent, and his forward passing short and sharp, with Merrill, as a rule, on the receiving end, in punting the various Army socks worked well in conjunction with their ends. It was the fast covering of these kicks that made the salubrious fumble at critical times.

Navy Passing Ragged.

The Navy's passing was ragged. When the Middles tried forward passes there appeared to be little co-operation between the thrower and the intended catcher. Many forward passes overshot their mark by many yards.

In many respects the play of the two teams brought to mind the Harvard-Yale game of a week ago. The Army had the finished team, while the bright spots in the Navy's play was the work of certain individual midshipmen. Captain Overesch, at left end, Quarterback Miles and fullbacks Craig and Huriburt all figured prominently for the Navy at some period of the play.

Captain Prichard and Merrill, because of their perfect work on forward passes, were the Army stars. Every touchdown made by the cadets was due to this method of advance. McEwan, at center, was a tower of defense for the line. Hodgson was the best of the secondary line in this respect.

Many Notables Present.

Members of the president's cabinet, admirals, generals, members of congress and other notables, together with society leaders and other prominent personages from throughout the eastern part of the country, watched the game.

Official Washington was there in force. The secretaries of war, navy, interior, commerce and labor, the postmaster general and the attorney general each headed a party which came on a special train. Admiral Dewey, general Leonard Wood and Major General Hugh L. Scott were among the members of the two branches of the service whose presence was hailed with applause. A list of rear admirals and brigadier generals present would furnish an almost complete registry of these grades. Governor Tener, of Pennsylvania, and Governor Goldsborough, of Maryland, were among the chief state executives present.

Champ Clark, speaker of the national house of representatives, was a guest of Assistant Secretary of War Breckinridge.

Colonel Clarence P. Townley, superintendent of the West Point Military academy, and Captain William P. Fulham, of the naval academy, occupied boxes on opposite sides of the field.

APPLEGARTH WINS 100 YARDS' TITLE FROM DONALDSON

Manchester, England, November 28.—R. Applegarth today wrestled the world's 100-yard professional championship from Jack Donaldson, of South Africa, for several years the world's champion professional sprinter. Applegarth, who was the British amateur champion sprinter and became a professional a few months ago, won the race by six inches. There was a side bet of £200 ($1,000).

FRANKIE BURNS AFTER WILLIAMS IN TITLE FIGHT

New Orleans, November 28.—(Special.)—One of the most unique campaigns in boxing has been started by Frankie Burns, the Jersey City bantamweight, who is a contender for the crown now worn by Kid Williams. Burns is attempting to force Williams' amateur champion status and to win the title in the nature of a purse so that a twenty-round battle for the title will be a possible draw for the match.

New Orleans is now the only city in the country where a twenty-round championship battle can be staged. Two local promoters have negotiated with Williams for a match with Burns, and upon receiving the champion's terms, have thrown their hands up in disgust. Williams asks $8,000 win, lost, draw, for the match.

"Williams' demands make the match out of the question," declares Burns. "My price naturally, with a chance at the title, would be low. But at the lowest, the promoters figure that they must play to a house of close to $12,000 to break even, and neither of them wish to take the chance. I have just knocked out Kid Herman in twelve rounds—this was the only match between myself and a chance at the title. Now along comes Williams and stops all negotiations when he cannot get $8,000 for his end, a heretofore unknown purse for a bantam.

"A man is worth what he draws at the gate. I am willing to take a fair percentage, and the promoters are willing to give the champion 50 per cent with a guarantee of $5,000. I do not believe Williams cares to risk his crown with me, and for that reason he is placing a value on his services which makes the match out of the question and robs me of my chance at the championship. I am going to keep after him until public opinion forces him to accept a reasonable proposition or else give up the championship by default."

STAR ATHLETES KILLED. Anderson and Collins in List of Casualties.

London, November 28.—The latest list of British killed contains the names of two well-known athletes, G. R. L. Anderson, a hurdler, and Lieutenant A. E. J. Collins, a cricket player. Anderson was twice English amateur champion at both high and low hurdles. He broke hurdling records at both Eton and Oxford and ran for England at the Stockholm Olympic games, where he was defeated by the American, J. J. Eiler, Jr.

Lieutenant Collins, while at Clifton college, made the highest individual cricket score on record. He scored 224 not out, in innings lasting six hours and fifty minutes.

LOWER PRICES ON FEDERAL "Rugged Tread" Casings

Effective December 1, 1914

A very material reduction on Federal "Rugged Tread" Casings is made possible by new and improved methods in the Federal Plant.

Automatic machinery has displaced ordinary equipment, hand labor has been supplanted by mechanical devices and new processes have been introduced which materially lower our production costs on these famous non-skid casings. Consequently we are pleased to announce the following schedule of lower prices, effective December 1, 1914.

Note the Saving on a Few Standard Sizes

Size	Former Price	Reduced Price	ACTUAL SAVING
30 x 3	$18.20	$13.80	$4.40
30 x 3 1/2	24.30	18.50	5.80
32 x 3 1/2	25.70	19.70	6.00
31 x 4	31.55	25.70	5.85
33 x 4	33.70	27.55	6.15
34 x 4	34.80	28.50	6.30
34 x 4 1/2	43.10	38.60	4.50
36 x 4 1/2	45.65	40.95	4.70
36 x 5	55.60	47.65	7.95

All other sizes correspondingly reduced

Notwithstanding this material reduction, the Quality of Federal RUGGED TREAD casings remains absolutely unchanged. RUGGED TREAD casings of Straight-Wall and Quick-Detachable Clincher Types have DOUBLE-CABLE-BASE Construction.

Youngster Sets Hot Pace For Veterans in Big Race

For a youngster like Irving Janke, of Milwaukee, to win out in a big race against such men as Don Klank, E. G. (Warrior) Beyer, L. G. Buckner, C. M. Pincus, Arthur Chappelle, Robert (Smiling Bob) Perry, Glenn (Silver) Boyd, "Bill" Armstrong, Alvin Stratton, Ray Weishaar, Paul (Spook) Warner, Madwyn Jones and Carl Goudy was one of the features of the Thanksgiving day race at Savannah, which won the admiration not only of the veterans mentioned here, but of all the other thirty-two racing stars who participated in the second annual classic over the Vanderbilt cup course.

Janke is only 19 years of age, yet he is one of the best road riders in the city which bears the distinction of being the home of the Harley-Davidson, as well as being famous for other things.

With his teammate, Zeddie D. Kelly, of Savannah leading the first five laps, Janke did not open up until Kelly had to stop in the sixth lap on account of having melted his spark plugs. Then young Janke stepped up and brought him around in the lead, after passing Joe Walters and H. L. Wilcox on the back stretch. Janke maintained his lead the eighth lap and then had spark plug trouble, necessitating a stop. Kelly, also on a Harley, was both with and in the race again with new plugs and again took the lead. He was in the lead in the eighteenth lap when he went off the course, sustaining the injuries which caused his death the following day.

The terrific speed made by the Milwaukee youngster melted spark plugs as fast as they could be put in. The veteran riders said they had never seen such speed on the road for such a long distance. Janke made four stops for spark plug changes in addition to the regular stops for gasoline and oil. The twenty-two minutes he lost for changing spark plugs subtracted from his time during the race shows clearly that the Harley-Davidson has in Irving Janke a rider of first rank. Most of Janke's prize money goes to his widowed mother.

Stratton's achievement of breaking the lap record on his twenty-seventh and final lap was another honor carried off by the Harley-Davidson camp that was the talk of the other users. After riding 23 1/2 miles and getting the checkered flag for his last lap, the Harley-Davidson team captain determined to give the spectators something of an idea of the terrific speed stored up in the gray machines from Milwaukee.

He set a pace which all of the other road-burners declared was the fastest they had ever seen on the road with a stock machine. Stratton rode the last 11.4 miles of the 303-mile course in 3:20. This is at the rate of 49.7 seconds—74.6 miles per hour. There were but two laps made in less than a minute, both were made by Harley-Davidson riders. Ray Weishaar covered his twenty-first lap in 3:23, only one second slower than the record of Stratton in the final lap of the race.

PROPER CARE OF TIRES DECLARED IMPORTANT

Look After All Minor Injuries,
Urges Official of Firestone Company.

"Many motorists do not realize the importance of prompt attention to small cuts or injuries in their tires," says L. Greenwood, manager service department Firestone Tires and Rubber Company. "It is especially important, at this time of the year, that this warning be heeded."

"A cut in the tread or cover of the tire has a tendency to expand when that part of the tire is in contact with the road. This permits mud, grit, pebbles and other foreign matter to lodge in the opening. When the injured part of the tire is relieved of the weight of the car, the foreign matter which has accumulated acts as a wedge, and with each revolution of the wheel this foreign matter is forced further and further between the cover and fabric, not infrequently completely separating them."

"If this separation of the tread and fabric is neglected for any length of time, it is often necessary to apply a new cover. If the fabric is in very poor condition, this can generally be done in a very satisfactory manner, but how much expense and trouble can be saved by prompt attention when the cut is first made."

"Examine your tires carefully at regular intervals, and especially after long trips. Tacks, glass or any other matter which may have become imbedded in the tread should be removed before any serious damage is done. Wash away all mud to permit a thorough examination of the tire."

"It is the use of 'Care-Cut,' or similar preparations, intended for emergency repairs small cuts, punctures or snags as they occur, and thus prevent them from growing and becoming serious. Large cuts or injuries should be vulcanized at once by an experienced and competent repair man."

NEW HIGHWAY ROUTE CHICAGO TO FLORIDA

H. M. McDermid Takes Charge of Preliminary Work for Project.

Latest among the good roads projects under consideration is a new route from Chicago to Jacksonville. The movement for this north-to-south highway was launched by W. S. Gilbreath, secretary of the Hoosier Motor Club, at the recent Good Roads congress held in Atlanta, and the proposal was so enthusiastically received and endorsed by the state officials of Georgia that no time was lost in doing the preliminary work in connection with the project.

To route the highway is the task assigned to H. M. McDermid, district manager of the Empire Automobile Company. Driving a new 1915 Empire touring car, the route-blazing party left for the south on November 25. The route taken is through Indianapolis, Louisville, Chattanooga, Macon, Atlanta to Jacksonville.

There has been such an increase between the middle western states and Florida in the past few years, that such a highway should be well traveled. The route selected is by far the most favorable for the proposed road and the marking of the highway would make touring much more pleasurable.

The name of the new road is still undecided. "The Cotton Belt Route" and "The Dixie Way" have been suggested, but the final decision will be left to the governors of the states through which the highway leads.

Dosier's Hand Badly Cut.
LaGrange, Ga., November 23.—(Special)—Hedrick Dosier, of LaGrange, but formerly of Shellman, happened to a peculiar and painful accident Friday afternoon when he was placing a cork in a large milk bottle and pressed too hard. The bottle split and his hand was severely cut by the sharp pieces of glass that were left standing upright. It was necessary for Mr. Dosier to have several stitches taken in the wound and he will not be able to use his left hand for several weeks.

Mr Hopkins who has just returned from the Cadillac establishment on Peachtree to look at the new car. Mr Hopkins states that a number of orders have already been booked as the result of this preliminary inspection.

The new model because of its eight cylinder features is naturally attracting widespread interest and attention. Mr Hopkins who has driven practically every high priced car manufactured in this country has no doubt that he has never felt anything like this.

Notwithstanding the fact that the hood is no longer there the hood on the old car and underneath and engine and the public to come and see the new model and also to get acquainted with the new management.

The more I see of this car and the more I ride on it the more I am convinced that it marks an epoch in motor history. I want my friends who are interested in high class cars to see it and study it.

Every Team Has a Hoodoo; Athletics Easy for Red Sox, Browns Trim the Senators

By HILLY EVANS. (American League Empire) If Walter can get through this series without being defeated he is liable to break the world's record in a flash. It was Captain George Meindert's pitching that did the trick.

Early in the season of 1912 Babe Marquard of the New York Giants started the baseball world by winning thirteen straight games. He followed with the opening game of the season he went to July 8 before suffering defeat.

The entire Washington team was lots more worried about the approaching games than Johnson the player most concerned. While critics figured Johnson would be the one to lead the team to victory.

It is indeed strange how certain teams seem to have the gift of other clubs. The St. Louis team no matter how low it was in the race has always been able to come back.

It is Boston Red Sox have always been mighty troublesome for the Athletics. The six other teams in the American League were as easy for Boston as the Athletics were for Boston.

This the Athletics had grounds for fear of the Boston team was proved by the outcome of that "our game" series. The Athletics took four straight in the most decisive fashion on three big nights.

Auto Business Suffered Less Since War Than Any Other Line

George D. McCutcheon who ever since he has been at the head of the Buick Motor company's business in the south has been a consistent booster of and believer in the south in an interview to The Constitution has given with remarkably clear insight into conditions, the present prosperous status of the automobile business and the part that the automobile business plays in the financial life of the country.

Mr. McCutcheon says Since the awakening of the first oil there has been a tendency to be afraid in the dark and we older chaps don't care to have that feeling and crouch before that which we can not plainly see or understand.

REDUCTION IN PRICES OF FEDERAL "RUGGEDS"

Motoring Public Gains by the Introduction of New Processes.

The Federal Rubber Manufacturing company of Milwaukee Wis. has just announced a marked reduction in the price of their "Rugged" tread casing.

The new methods are now perfect and in full operation. Automatic lathy has displaced ordinary mechanical devices.

The reduction of prices on Rugged Tread casing is distinctly in line with our policy of supplying motorists with highest quality tires at prices as low as the best materials and honest workmanship will permit.

"BUSINESS AS USUAL," SAY SIGNS IN LONDON But Business Is Far From Being as Usual—Theaters Are Having Hard Time.

London, November 18.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—After the period of the war, London as a theatrical scene is a conflict between the two commonest sentiments of the period—"Business as Usual" and "Your King and Country Need You." These signs confront you everywhere.

There has been a revolutionary change in staff of all these and other managers, clerks, doormen, waiters of German or Austrian blood having been sent to the front. The houses and restaurants or hotel can remain open with any chance of making money unless it is done in a way that no alien enemies are hired here. One of the largest hotels on the Strand was recently the scene of a riot because its orchestra never played "God Save the King." That orchestra now plays the national air every day, with frequent repetitions of "Dipper," "Marsellaise" and other favorite songs of the allies.

Most of the galleries are open—the fear of the suffragette having departed—but many of the best known masterpieces have been taken from the walls to places of safety.

Londoners would have nothing new to see. Even "The County of the Future" has been returned from the front. It has no heart for new musical "shows." The paper continues to be devoted to the Prince of Wales fund and that gifts for soldiers and sailors can be obtained with a discount from regular rates.

It is Proposed to Have "Liege Brown," "Louvain Blue," and So On. Manchester, Eng., November 16.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The committee on the Belgian heroism has gone so far as to include a new range of color names, such as "Liege Brown" and "Louvain Blue."

Just Before Thanksgiving. (Walter G. Doty, in Judge.) I feel that the world is in a state of... My overcoat maybe is shabby. But no millionaire's heart is more away with dull care. Let me suggest I've ordered a TURKEY tonight.

TRADE IN BONDS WILL SERVE AS TEST

If It Proves Satisfactory, in a Few Days Stocks Will Be Traded on Exchange Floor—General News.

New York, November 28.—(Special.)—The reopening of the New York stock exchange in a few days is the most important event which has taken place in rehabilitating normal financial conditions in this country since the outbreak of the war.

Committees of Supervision.

A committee will continue to supervise all transactions on the exchange for some time, and it is expected that the minimum price will be maintained as a result of too many offerings and too few buyers.

RAILROADS TAKE OFF RAINS

They Claim It Is an Enormous Saving—How Plan Worked in Panic of 1894. Some Good Results.

New York, November 28.—(Special.)—Wall street was greatly interested in this week's dispatches from Chicago which claim that railroads are saving service in order on all western and northwestern railroads.

Why Railroads

As a result of the 1914 panic, in two years one-fourth of the country's total railway capitalization passed through the bankruptcy courts.

SIMMS—TURNER.
Mrs. Sarah Jackson Simms, of Covington, announces the engagement of her daughter, Bonner, to Mr. Ralph Lesley Turner, the wedding to take place December 30.

Akers-Salter.
Miss Martha Herndon Akers and Mr. James Crisp Salter were married Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock at Trinity Methodist church. Rev. Luke Johnson officiating.

The church was artistically decorated with palms, ferns and white chrysanthemums. The bride's sister, Mrs. H. B. Johnson, was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Frances Coleman and Miss Lillian Bloodworth. Mr. A. F. Akers and Mr. J. S. Fitzgerald were groomsmen, and the ushers were Mr. H. B. Johnson, Dr. N. Hurt, Mr. S. P. Boykin and Mr. A. E. Wheeler.

The bride, who entered with her father, Mr. F. M. Akers, was charming in a suit of midnight-blue cloth trimmed in fur, with hat to match, trimmed with paradise. Her flowers were a shower of bride roses and valley lilies.

The matron of honor wore pink crepe de chine and duchess lace, and hat of gold lace trimmed in pink ostrich. She carried pink roses.

The bridesmaids wore pink crepe de chine and lace, and large pink chiffon hats. They carried pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Salter left immediately for their wedding trip, and on their return will make their home in Montgomery.

Pioneer Society.
The Woman's Pioneer society will meet at 3 p. m. Wednesday, December 23, at Phillips & Crew company's, 23 North Pryor street. All members please attend.

Wedding Party Entertained
Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Akers entertained the Akers-Salter wedding party Tuesday evening at supper after the church rehearsal for the wedding.

The guests were seated at a round table, in the center of which was a large basket filled with pink roses. The salads, ices and cakes were heart-shaped, and all details were pink.

Mr. and Mrs. Poole's Crystal Wedding.
A beautiful event of the past week was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Ovid Poole on Thursday evening in celebration of their nineteenth wedding anniversary.

The reception was given at their handsome country home, Ovidia, on the Cascade road.

There were elaborate decorations throughout the house. The mantels and cabinets were beaded with ferns and white roses, and baskets of white roses were artistically placed on the window arches, and handsome palms were grouped with ferns. Mr. and Mrs. Poole received before a bank of greenery in the drawing room, and standing with them were their handsome children, T. R. Poole, Jr., and Little Miss Frances Poole.

Rev. Dale G. Johnson, on behalf of the guests, made a short talk, in which he expressed love and good wishes for Mr. and Mrs. Poole.

An orchestra furnished a beautiful musical program during the evening. Mrs. Poole was handsomely gowned in white duchess satin and chiffon, with crystal and pearl trimmings. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and an old-fashioned bouquet of pink and white roses.

The Sunday Club.
Miss Carolyn Cobb will be the reader tonight for the Sunday club at the Georgian Terrace. This club is an informal gathering of the guests of the hotel and their friends who call.

Besides Miss Cobb's interpretation of some classic appropriate to the occasion, there will be music.

Pfeffercorn Recital.
An event of artistic distinction is announced for Wednesday, December 23, at the Georgian Terrace, when Pfeiffercorn at the Georgian Terrace.

Mr. Pfeiffercorn, who is at the head of the piano department at Brenau conservatory, Gainesville, is a concert artist of exceptional attainment, and while his playing is characteristic of his style, it is also in that more intimate art—the drawing room recital, which provides a more congenial atmosphere than does the concert hall to the best exploitation of the poetic side of his genius.

He will be accompanied to Atlanta and history.

Program for Arbor Day.
The officers of the city federation, recognizing the beauty and importance of the work done by the Burroughs Nature club, have asked this club to represent the federation in the observance of Arbor day. The Burroughs Nature club, which is composed of members of the city federation, will deliver an address on "Birds: Their Use and Abuse." Mr. Dan Carey will speak on the importance of trees in our parks and playgrounds. The members of the club and the school children will plant trees at the school grounds on this day. We very much wish each school would plant a tree each Arbor day in one of our parks. It would be a very sweet and useful memorial to the young. If we might make a suggestion to the school and colleges, it would be that they plant class trees on this day. Won't you?

Surprise Shower.
One of the happiest events of the week was the surprise shower given to Mrs. C. V. Weathers by the East Atlanta Art club, which is composed of the following members: Mrs. W. B. Owens, president; Mrs. T. H. P. Finch, vice president; Mrs. Edward Marbut, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. C. M. Everett, Mrs. G. H. Waggoner, Mrs. J. P. Brown, Mrs. F. Sweden, Mrs. M. J. Minor, Mrs. O. O. Waldrop, Mrs. J. J. Marbut, Mrs. J. S. McWilliams, Mrs. J. S. Wilson, Mrs. W. S. Loftis, Mrs. F. C. Gates. The honorary members are Mrs. Robert Hollingsworth, Mrs. James Simpson and Mrs. C. V. Weathers. There was a full attendance and each member presented Mrs. Weathers with a handsome piece of art work. Delicious refreshments were furnished by the club. The next meeting will be with Mrs. J. P. Brown, on Flat Shoals avenue.

Terpsichorean Dance.
The Terpsichorean club held its opening dance Friday evening in its new home, the old English home, on Peachtree street.

Miss Blaine Brooks, of Birmingham, was the honored guest of the occasion, which was a delightful one. The chorons were Mrs. Flora Newcomer, Mrs. and Mrs. Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Waltham, Mr. and Mrs. V. Nicholson, Mr. Robert Emory, Mr. and Mrs. Gene. Those present were: Misses Olive Lee Parr, Katie Moore, Irene Hollis, Marjorie Reynolds, Marie Turran, by a large delegation of Brenau students, who will make the Terrace their headquarters to attend Mr. Pfeiffercorn's recital in the afternoon and to see Maude Adams the same night. The recital will be an invitation affair for the guests of the hotel and their friends.

Miss Grant Luncheon.
Miss Margaret Grant was hostess at a beautiful luncheon yesterday at home, on the occasion of her departure to Miss Isoline Campbell and her guest, Miss Orme, of New Orleans.

The party were Miss Campbell, Miss Orme, Misses Louise and Anne Van Dyke, Bertha Moore, Helen McCarty, Rosalie Davis, Nellie Hood, Ridley, Dorothy High, Margaret Traylor, Helen Johnson, Sarah Bell, Laura Elizabeth Clear, Mrs. Arutha Clarke, Mrs. Ewell Gay, Miss Adrienne Batley.

The table centerpiece was a vase of yellow and white chrysanthemums, banked at the base with autumn leaves and fruit, and other effective detail in color was yellow and white.

Miss Grant was becomingly gowned in brown satin with tunic of brown tulle.

Miss Randall in Recital.
Columbus, Miss., November 23.—The Industrial institute and college, under its present head, has earned among its many achievements of prominence a reputation for excellence for the class of entertainment that it has afforded its girls, and in its musical department the presentation of Mme. Bianca Randall than any other night this reputation was more than sustained. It was possible to see the most artistic of all its occasions. The spacious college chapel was filled with an audience of over 1000 persons. Mme. Randall is followed in the spring by Damrosch's orchestra. Miss Randall and her delightful voice are pleasantly known in Atlanta.

Baptist Women Organize.
The first formal meeting of the Institutional Association of Women's Work of the Baptist churches of the Atlanta association, will be held at the Ponce de Leon church on Monday afternoon, November 30, at 3 o'clock.

A few weeks ago it was one of the prominent Baptist women met at the first Baptist church and organized this association, the object of which is to foster institutional work throughout the Baptist churches of the Atlanta association. The Stewart avenue mission, consisting of a day nursery, day and night school and free clinic, was inaugurated by the West End Baptist church. Later all the Baptist churches of the Atlanta association united in this work, which has continued to grow. The territory of the Atlanta association includes all the Baptist churches in Fulton county and one church in Cobb county, Louisiana.

The officers are: Mrs. James R. Little, general president; Mrs. Bolling Jones, first district vice president; Mrs. Cora Brown, second district vice president; Mrs. Horace Collingsworth, third district vice president; Mrs. R. B. Adair, Jr., fourth district vice president; Mrs. Charles Forrest, fifth district vice president; Mrs. Katherine Stewart, vice president-at-large; Mrs. C. N.

Boykin, secretary; Mrs. A. H. Bennett, treasurer.

The speakers of the afternoon are Dr. John E. White, Mr. Dibble, who has charge of the social work of the Tabernacle church, and Mrs. Katie Dawson, of Decatur. The public cordially invited.

To Miss McEvoy.
In compliment to Miss Kitty McEvoy, of Baltimore, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. Brutus Clay, Mrs. William Schroder will entertain Monday at bridge-ten, and Miss Marlon Goldsmith will entertain Wednesday at luncheon.

DAINTIEST COSTUME OF THE SEASON

Will Lose Its Effect Unless the Hair Is Pretty and Properly Dressed.

The woman who looks to clothes for her charm and attractiveness is likely to find her most expensive outfit a failure if she has thin, faded or lifeless hair. The most beautiful evening gown will appear dowdy and out of style unless crowned with a head of pretty hair, soft, fluffy and lustrous. Beautiful hair does not just happen to be so, but is always a matter of care and proper nourishment of the hair roots. No matter how tightly the hair, how badly it is falling, or how much dandruff, Parolan Sage, an inexpensive tonic well rubbed into the scalp, in all that is ever needed. The hair roots are nourished and stimulated to grow new hair. Even dandruff is entirely removed with one application, and itching scalp and falling hair cease. The hair will be bright, vigorous, soft and fluffy.

If the hair is oily, dry, brittle, or you have dandruff, Parolan Sage immediately removes the cause, and by toning up the scalp quickly restores the hair to its original brilliancy and vigor. Parolan Sage can be had from Jacobs' ten stores, or any drug or toilet counter. It is a delightful and harmless treatment that never fails to act as a real and lasting benefit to the hair and scalp.

Distinct Advantages We Afford You In the Economical Purchase of Appropriate and Lasting Gifts

Have you ever considered the many, many advantages we offer to buyers of holiday gifts? We don't mean just a casual thought of gold jewelry and silver being desired by the recipients; but in a serious, critical, investigative sort of way.

Gifts from a jeweler's stock don't cost any more (or as much) as the tawdry, perishable, bizarre, inferior and unworthy wares which many people hurriedly buy at the last moment from other shops.

In our stocks suitable gifts can be purchased at prices ranging from 20 cents upward.

Gifts from our store are of a permanent character. They combine usefulness, beauty and low prices.

CHRISTMAS SUGGESTIONS FOR ALL THE FAMILY

To Ward Off Winter Complexion Ills

To keep the face smooth, white and beautiful all winter, there's nothing quite so good as ordinary mercolized wax. Rough, chapped or discolored skin, invigorated in this weather, is gently absorbed by the wax and replaced by the newer, fresher skin beneath. The face exhibits no trace of the wax, the latter being applied at bedtime and washed off morning. Creams, powders and rouges on the other hand, are apt to appear conspicuous all winter, because of alternating expansion and contraction of the skin, due to changing temperatures. I advise you to change your treatment. Get a ounce of mercolized wax at any drug store and use like cold cream. This will help soothe the face and keep it soft and supple. It will look remarkably youthful and healthy.

Wax and flying dust often cause squinted and chapped corners which make wrinkles. You can quickly get rid of every wrinkle, however produced, by using a mercolized wax made by dissolving in oz. powdered salicite in 1/2 pt. witch hazel.—(adv.)

Coat Season Is at Hand—Coats are Here

Attention now centers on the weather. With unerring sureness there will be much rain and a goodly amount of cold during the winter which is just beginning.

We illustrate two Coats which show the splendid style of our

Plush Coats

These indicate clearly why we are doing such a large coat business.

There is style, finish and character in every line. Behind this is the reason—we insist upon the manufacturer using plenty of material (and it takes a lot of it) to give the correct full flare, generous facings, deep cuffs, wide belts and big, comfortable collars—we demand careful hand workmanship—we insist upon lustrous linings, which make a rich appearance when the coat is thrown open.

The models illustrated are new ones just received.

A skin you love to touch

Why it is so rare. A skin you love to touch is rarely found because so few people understand the skin and its needs.

Begin now to take your skin seriously. You can make it what you would love to have it by using the following treatment regularly.

Make this treatment a daily habit. Just before retiring, work up a warm water lather of Woodbury's Facial Soap and rub it into the skin gently until the skin is softened.

Use this treatment persistently for ten days or two weeks and your skin will show marked improvement. Use Woodbury's regularly thereafter, and before long your skin will take on that finer texture, that greater freshness and clearness of "a skin you love to touch."

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of a skin specialist. It costs 25c a cake. No one hesitates at the price after their first cake.

Do this today—Now! Tear out the illustration of the cake below and put it in your purse as a reminder to get Woodbury's. Tear out the cake now. Take it to your druggist or toilet counter today. Begin tonight to get the benefits of this facial soap. For sale by dealers everywhere.

Dinner-Dance Greatly Enjoyed at Piedmont Driving Club

The broad open fireplace in the living room of the Driving Club last evening and the pleasure of the occasion made the guests at the regular Saturday night dinner-dance of the club forget the moment they arrived the inclemency of the weather, which blustered and became winter so suddenly yesterday.

Dinner served in the main dining room partook of Thanksgiving in the menu and was delicious. The decorations were in varied colorful chrysantheums and the centerpieces had shades of green.

Colonel Lowry entertained a party of young ladies and gentlemen the guests of Mrs. Hugh Inman's house party occupying the central table.

The driving club will, as usual, keep open house on Christmas day from noon on through the afternoon and evening.

Others entertaining were Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Carhart and Mrs. Charles Haverly, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Danforth and Mrs. Milton Dargan.

The school of missions to be conducted by Miss Emily C. Tillotson of New York City was a noteworthy enterprise to teach the methods and authority of church extension.

The dance at the Imperial, the second of the series of formal dances given by the Imperial hotel Thanksgiving evening was a brilliant event and most enjoyable assembling.

The Cox College life, just this time the life of the college is full of a splendid college spirit and enthusiasm.

The most highly enjoyed event of the season was the mock wedding and mock faculty meeting given by the student body on the eve of Thanksgiving.

The Advantages of BYCK'S As a High Class Shoe Store

For 30 years we have been catering to the Footwear needs of the best Southern trade, and we believe that we have well earned the good reputation we enjoy.

It is hardly necessary for us to tell you, like many shoe stores or departments do, that our styles are just the same as you see on Fifth Avenue, etc., etc.

You don't care anything about that—it wouldn't influence your purchases, and we know it.

What you do really want to know, "is"—

- Have we stylish shoes? Are our shoes well made? Can you be properly fitted? Have we the assortment? To all these questions we answer absolutely

YES!

We know the ideas as well as the feet of the Southern people—We know what style is and where to get it—We know what factories are to be relied on—We know first-class workmanship—and we know hundreds of people more this fall than ever before, who have told us—that after going to every store in town, have "Come Back," and said ours were not only the "best looking," but the "most stylish," as well as the most reasonably priced.

We are today—as we have been—buying from the most representative and highest grade "shoemakers" in America; the footwear they make equal any sold anywhere in the world

That's what we're asking you to buy—only, we do not ask you to pay us quite as much profit as the high-class retailer in New York or Chicago must demand.

In the Social Whirl

By Isma Doaly

The Phœnix-like holidays in their gothic cheer and happiness made people momentarily forget the war clouds. The college boys and cheer and the prettiness of the girls home from school added to the holiday atmosphere. Old and young participated in the foot ball excitement and the social clubs all of them kept open house Thanksgiving day. If it were possible there was renewed interest in the dance and the various new incidents of old dances.

Although there are the new and pretty dances many of them Atlanta's social contingent has adopted as its favorite. The dancing has really come under the head of the on step. The fox trot has been modified into a dance with only those sets of steps with no fancy innovations and the accomplishment most to be desired in the dance is that of smoothness, no hop, skip and jumping nor even in the demonstration or exhibit dancing.

THE DANCING SKIRT

The dancing skirt escapes the ground, showing the dainty part of the foot, but—eat too! The chiffon or lace or rayon underskirt if you desire, has become a part of the dancing costume and the toilet is not complete if madame and matronage have failed to wear some kind of pretty underdraper. Over the skirt or the divided skirt of pretty films protective material.

This modification in the matter of attire is really after all real smartness. It is perfectly gorgeous though at the same time obeying the very last decree of fashion.

The afternoon entertainments of the week included the regular Wednesday club dance at the most. During the week the dancing was at the Hills Thursday afternoon and at the same time the two brilliant parties of the week—that at the Piedmont Driving Club last evening and Friday night at the Georgia Terrace Friday evening.

The Thanksgiving tea at Druid Hills, the majority of the younger contingent came from the ball game and long automobile trips and the evening party at the most part were stylish. Miss Irene Campbell in her illustrated a few costumes in the bottom of the new style. Her little toilet of black and white with a little touch of blue was very attractive. MRS. PAINÉ'S GOWN

Mrs. Thomas B. Paine whose grace in dancing was distinguished was shown in a yellow and black trimmed gown in her party to Mrs. John Grant and Mrs. Hugh Richardson. Mrs. Paine's gown was a masterpiece of color and design. It was a long, flowing gown with a high collar and long sleeves. The color scheme was a combination of yellow and black, with white accents. The gown was trimmed with black and white, and had a high collar and long sleeves. The color scheme was a combination of yellow and black, with white accents.

PRETTY TOILETS

Mrs. John F. Murch was a black velvet suit with the skirt showing fullness at the bottom and a long train. Her toilet was a masterpiece of color and design. It was a long, flowing gown with a high collar and long sleeves. The color scheme was a combination of black and white, with red accents. THE DISTANCE TO "TIPPERARY"

It took for the moment as if the bus was never there. The bus was a large, comfortable one with plenty of seats. The driver was a friendly man who spoke in a clear, pleasant voice. MISS TYSON'S BEAUTY

On the 21st of the fine dance set of the evening at the young girls beauty contest among the girls of the city. The contest was held at the Georgia Terrace and was a great success. The girls who participated were all beautiful and talented. The contest was held at the Georgia Terrace and was a great success.

MISS ORME'S POPULARITY

Miss Mary Orme arrived at the new dance late in the evening. She was a beautiful girl with a charming personality. She was a popular figure at the dance and was the center of attention. She was a beautiful girl with a charming personality.

white and blue gown rich in an emerald green and gold. Miss Ruth Wing was one of the most popular guests of the evening. Her costume in blue silk and white lace. Miss Harriet Calhoun was notably handsome in a flesh colored satin and tulle. Miss Lucille Kuhn was picturesque in her toilet of beige velvet.

HANDSOME MATRONS

As usual the matrons of the occasion tested the attractiveness of the young unmarried contingent. Mrs. Edwin Lamb wore a white unadorned satin. The ladies of her party included Mrs. Robert Grant, Mrs. John Grant, Mrs. Frederick Pond, Mrs. Charles Sisson and Mrs. Claude Welles.

Mrs. W. Gentry wore a handsome toilet in white satin. The ladies of her party included Mrs. Caldwell and Miss Calhoun. Mrs. William Bailey Lamar warmly welcomed her Atlanta friends.

Mrs. Robert Wessels gown was a French creation in ivory satin veiled in tulle. She wore a red and white gown. Mrs. John Grant and Mrs. Hugh Richardson were also present.

Mrs. P. W. McCortin wore an elegant toilet in black tulle. Her toilet of cloth of silver, embroidered in sequin, cloth and tulle draperies of marked shades. The ladies of her party included Mrs. M. H. Woodhouse, Mrs. John Kiser and Mrs. M. H. Woodhouse.

Mrs. Samuel Dick was one of a group of charming young matrons. Her toilet of cloth of silver, embroidered in sequin, cloth and tulle draperies of marked shades. The ladies of her party included Mrs. M. H. Woodhouse, Mrs. John Kiser and Mrs. M. H. Woodhouse.

just returned from her bridal trip in Florida, was given on Saturday afternoon of last week by Mrs. James Ingram. There were six tables, to which each guest was expected to make a trip, and at each some interesting feature pertaining to the brides was in evidence. Telegrams written to these happy people, the words to begin with the letters in "Newlywed" were read aloud and caused much merriment.

A happy Leo Jones of this week was the Oriental tea in honor of Mrs. Lovick Pierce Longino and Miss Cone, which was given on Monday afternoon at the home of the former. At the door the guests gave their regards to little Miss Ruth Reid, and were greeted by Miss Alice Carrington both of whom were wearing the new fashion in Oriental fashion in the receiving line were Mesdames Cranston, Willets Longino and Miss Nettie Cone who became Mrs. Sibby on Wednesday.

The wedding of Miss Nettie Cone to Mr. John Sibby which took place at the Baptist church on Wednesday morning at 11 o'clock was the center of social attraction this week. Beautifully arranged and decorated with green and pink tapers the chancel was a fitting background for so sweet and loved an occasion. Mrs. Wister Ritchie at the organ in an artistic way played several selections before the bride party. Miss Nettie Cone was wearing a white gown with pink carnations and a white hat with pink carnations. Mrs. Wister Ritchie entered first followed by four little girls wearing white with pink carnations. TOYLAND IS JOYLAND

My, what a good time the children had yesterday in Hightower's "Toyland"! Their happy little faces were fairly aglow with delight. The boys, of course, were chiefly interested in the Electric Trains, Wagons, Tools, etc. The little girls almost carried the Doll counter away by storm. Their little bright eyes almost popped out looking at the pretty sets of Dishes, Doll Carriages, Roller Skates and hundreds of other things girls like. Monday is going to be another big day at Hightower's, and mothers will find here an excellent opportunity to pick for Santa Claus' big bag, as on that day Toys will be sold at big reductions, some as much as

AUGUSTA'S SOCIAL SIDE

EMORY COLLEGE NOTES. Emory College, Oxford, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—The Reviewers were delightfully entertained Wednesday morning by Miss Annie Dickey at "Maggie's," the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Dickey. The house was attractively decorated in keeping with the Thanksgiving season and the program was appropriate of the coming Christmas holiday season. Miss Dickey was assisted in serving her guests by her mother, Mrs. J. E. Dickey, and her sister, Mrs. C. E. Boyd. The program was a selection of Thanksgiving verse from Frank I. Stanton, Miss Katherine McGeath, "Christmas Story," Miss Annie Dickey. The Young People's Missionary Society held a very unique entertainment at the Cotton Patch, the residence of Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Melton, on Monday night. The entertainment was in the nature of an old-fashioned country school commencement with Mr. Irwin Innes as principal of the school. The following program was rendered. Instrumental duet, Miss Emily Melton and Mr. Walter Melton. Instrumental solo, Mr. Walter Melton. Speech, Mr. Tom Etheridge. Instrumental solo, Mr. Walter Melton. Speech, Mr. Walter Melton. Vocal solo, Miss Emily Melton. Instrumental solo, Mr. Walter Melton. Address of welcome, Mr. Kim. At the close of the "school exercises" punch and cake were served. Oxford was the scene on Thanksgiving for old Emory boys. Among those returning to their alma mater to give thanks and to visit on the toothsome home were Miss Florida Lee and Mr. Cliff Lester, 12 Paul Quillen, 14, Emmett Askew, 12, John Henry Madlock, 14, and Charles H. Johnston, 14. Dr. and Mrs. Stewart Roberts, of Atlanta, are spending the week-end with their parents, Misses Emily Stewart. Miss Edith McMoran, who has been visiting relatives in Atlanta, returned home. Miss Ruth Carr, of Atlanta, is the guest of Miss Katherine McGeath, coming down to attend the Kappa Alpha reception. Miss Mona Pierce, of Atlanta, is the week-end visitor of Miss Annie Sue Bonnell at her home on "Pony" street. Miss Mary Starnes, who has been visiting relatives in Calhoun, has returned home.

MISS EDNA BYCK, Of Savannah, who is the lovely guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Byck. An elaborate series of parties is being given in her honor.

LEE-M'LENDON. Jonesboro, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—On Wednesday, just before the prayer services at the Baptist church here, Miss Florida Lee and Mr. Cliff Lester were united in marriage. Rev. B. H. King, pastor of the Jonesboro Baptist church, officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Dickey, of Atlanta. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Melton. Both the young people are exceedingly popular and have the good wishes of a host of friends.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save 50% Fully Guaranteed. This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering the most obstinate chest and throat colds, is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic cough, bronchial asthma and winter cough. Get from any druggist 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it in a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you—at a cost of only five cents—100 doses of the best cough syrup that you could buy for $2.50. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex. Tastes good and never spoils. You will be pleasantly surprised how quickly it loosens dry, hoarse or tight coughs, and heals the inflamed membrane of the throat. It also stops the formation of mucus in the throat and bronchial tubes, thus ending the persistent loose cough. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine, and don't accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. SOCIAL LIFE IN MACON

Macon, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—Mrs. Ellis M. Tabbott returned Wednesday to her home in Richmond, Va., after a delightful visit to her sister, Mrs. S. R. Jaques. Each day of her short stay in her old home was marked by some pleasant social affair. Among those entertaining for her were Mrs. S. R. Jaques, Mrs. William H. Melton, Mrs. Thomas H. Hall, Mrs. Edward Wadley, Mrs. Charles H. Hall, Mrs. Emory Winslow, Mrs. T. C. Burke, Mrs. H. M. Wainman, Mrs. Walter H. Hall, Mrs. Marshall Johnson and Mrs. Elsworth Hall. Mrs. Jaques' luncheon table on Monday was especially beautiful with its decorations of yellow roses. At Mrs. Charles Hall's farewell luncheon for these were three tables of playlets, the price of each a crystal vase. Exquisite pink roses and lilies were used on the table. The luncheon table was mantled and clothed. The marriage of Miss Mattie Adams and Mr. Clayton Buchanan of Jacksonville was a pretty affair Wednesday afternoon at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Horace Adams, in Whiteside. It was a white and green

"On the River" the young ladies attending from here were Misses Hallie McClure, Annie Ray, Edna Skinner, Susie Hussell, Miss Edna Bennett, of Marietta, and Miss Sarah May Clements, of Atlanta, were guests of honor at a dinner given by Miss Myrtle Skinner Thursday. Miss Lola Key and Mrs. C. A. McDaniel gave a most delightful informal dinner Thursday to their charming visitor, Miss Lucia Harris, of Atlanta. Mrs. Lottie Bell Burnett was a charming young hostess for the Girls' Campfire club Wednesday at her home. Mrs. J. O. Medlock gave a dinner to the teachers of the public school, who were Misses Lila Parks, Mary Russell, Mamie Williams, Bertha Mayfield, Mattie Mitchell, Margie Holland and Ruth Wingo. Mr. David Medlock gave a "possum" hunt Wednesday night on his plantation. The party was very enjoyable, carrying them out to a picnic supper. Quite a catch was made. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Skinner were chaperons. Miss Mary Lou Partridge, of Mountville, was entertained at dinner Thursday by Misses Susie and Mary Russell. Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McElroy and Master Leon Sikes, Jr., were guests of honor at a dinner given by their daughter, Mrs. Lester Hogwood, of Teococ, Thursday. Mrs. Hogwood is very pleasantly remembered as Mrs. Sarah McCarroll.

Augusta, Ga., November 28.—(Special Correspondence.)—The most beautiful and artistic wedding of the year, which took place Wednesday evening at 9 o'clock at the Church of the Good Shepherd, on the Hill, was that of Miss Marguerite Wright, of this city, and Mr. James Fraser Hillman, of Pittsburg, following a brilliant reception at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Boykin Wright. The church was very beautiful with its decorations of palms, ferns, smilax and quantities of palms, ferns, chrysanthemums. The chancel was ablaze with hundreds of cathedral candles arranged in pyramid form. The bridesmaids came two at a time. They wore exquisite costumes of pink charmeuse with overdress of tulle and trimmed with silver lace. With their gowns were worn silver slippers, and each carried a silver basket with valley lilies and wonderful pink roses that dropped almost to the bottom of the gown. The ushers were Mr. William E. Bush, of Baltimore, with Mr. Coles Phinney, Mr. Thomas Barrett, III, with Mr. Tate Wright, Mr. Lansing Lee, with Mr. Henry Garrett. The maids were Miss Martha Phinney, of Athens; Miss Mary Lou Phinney, Miss Margaret Gamble, of Jacksonville; Miss Mary Walker, Miss Moseille Neely and Miss Carolyn Cumming. The groomsmen, who came in alternating with the maids, were Mr. James Phinney, of Pittsburg; Mr. Irvine Branch, Mr. John Luckie, of Chester, Pa.; Mr. Pendleton King, Mr. L. H. Chabonier and Mr. Boykin Wright, Jr. The bride wore a lovely gown of pink satin with overdress of tulle, edged with garlands of tiny pink rosebuds. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses and lilies of the valley. The attendants were grouped around the chancel when the bride came in with her father, read by Mrs. Charlie Lyle, Mrs. B. F. Boykin and Mrs. Robert Pitts. The wedding gown was of lustrous white satin and lace. The bodice and entire gown was draped with real lace and embroidered in pearls. The long court train, which fell from the shoulders, was caught with embroidered eyes of pearls. Pearls caught the lace over the costume, and the tulle veil and orange blossoms. She carried a magnificent bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley. The groom was attended by Mr. Ernest Hillman, of Pittsburg.

NORMAL SCHOOL NOTES.

The members of Mrs. Eberhart's music class have organized a club to be known as the St. Cecilia. Mrs. Edna Holmes is president and the program planned for the year's work is of great attractiveness. The various clubs of the school are busy preparing for recitals that will occur later in the year. The members of the domestic science department have been entertaining at attractive luncheons. The ladies have shown great skill and hospitality in their entertainments. The members of the school are delighted to learn of the continued improvement of Miss Ida Young, Miss Young is at the head of the Latin department and has been connected with the Normal school since its organization. The student body and members of the faculty enjoyed a delightful Thanksgiving dinner in the dining room. The tables were tastefully decorated and the dinner prepared by Mr. Rhodes later in the evening. The dormitory department of the school. Dean Wardlaw entertained Wednesday night a fine number of the faculty at a Thanksgiving dinner at his attractive home. Mrs. Peter F. Brown gave a delightful party to the wives of many of the professors of the faculty. The school will issue one of the quarterly bulletins during the coming month. This bulletin is upon the work being done at the Practice school and will give an interesting account of many phases of teacher training that this school exemplifies.

LOTT-PARKER.

Brunswick, Ga., November 28.—(Special.)—A wedding of unusual brilliance and beauty was that of Miss Gertrude Greer Lott, of this city, and Mr. Frank Louis Barker, of Waycross, which took place on Tuesday evening at the First Methodist church, Rev. C. A. Jackson officiating. Tall palms and ferns formed a background for the clusters of handsome white and golden yellow chrysanthemums, the effect completed by the soft-shaded lights. The large edifice was filled to its utmost and several selections were rendered by Miss Jane Symons before the service began. The bride's going-away gown was a dark blue cloth with accessories to match. Mr. and Mrs. Parker left over the country for a northern trip and on their return will reside in Waycross. The out-of-town guests were Miss Stella Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Parker, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Parker and Mr. Milton Parker, all of Waycross.

TUBERCULOSIS DAY TO BE OBSERVED TODAY

Southern Conference Will Hold Its First Session Monday in Chamber of Commerce.

Sunday is Tuberculosis Day. Governor Slaton has so proclaimed it and today in Atlanta churches ministers and experts in the fight against this disease will speak on its ravages and methods of prevention.

Monday in the Chamber of Commerce building will be held the first southern tuberculosis conference at which will be present delegates from Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana. The gathering will be held under the auspices of the National Society for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

As the national body the objects of the conference are to bring anti-tubercular workers in closer touch, to discuss matters of local interest to the southern states, to bring the facilities and aid of the national association to bear more closely on local problems and to provide a place of meeting for those who cannot attend the annual meetings of the national body.

Sessions Open Monday.

The sessions will open Monday at 10 o'clock and the general public is invited to attend. The initial discussion will cover the Red Cross society seals and addresses on this subject will be made as follows:

“Selling Seals by Mail” Miss Ida V. Clay, Montgomery, Ala. The Use of School Children in Seal Selling, the Rev. George Eaves Birmingham, Ala. Publicity and Advertising Kendall Welsher, Atlanta. Personal Work and the Use of Booths Miss Rosa Lowe secretary of the Atlanta branch of the national body.

Hospital and Home Care of Tuberculosis Will be the Afternoon Topic for Discussion with Addresses as follows:

The Operation and Maintenance of Local Hospitals for Tuberculosis, Dr. Charles D. Hatfield, Philadelphia, general secretary of the national body. Nursing Problems in Tuberculosis Miss Irene R. Foote Jacksonville, Fla. Relief of Tuberculous Families Joseph Logan, Atlanta. Home Hospital Experiment, Dr. Donald B. Armstrong, New York.

Addressing the Tuberculous Negro will be the evening topic. Addresses will be made as follows: The Menace of the Tuberculous Negro to the Community, Dr. W. S. Rankin, Raleigh, N. C. The Community's Duty and Responsibility to the Negro, Dr. Charles L. Miner Asheville, N. C. and The Education of the Negro on Tuberculosis Dr. William H. Sloan Savannah.

Jonesboro Odd Fellows To Hold Public Meeting; Grand Sire Will Speak

Jonesboro Ga. November 28.—(Special)—The Jonesboro lodge of Odd Fellows will have a public meeting on Friday, December 4 at the Jonesboro Methodist church.

The meeting will be addressed by Grand Sire Robert T. Daniel of Griffin and the public generally is invited to be present at this meeting.

Special invitations were sent out by the Jonesboro lodge to Grand Master W. H. Sloan Grand Secretary T. H. Robertson and District Deputy Grand Master R. W. Fives and also to each of the Odd Fellow lodges in Clayton, Henry and Fayette counties to be present.

W. S. Atchel, A. A. Camp and E. L. Dorsey comprise the committee on arrangements. Committee on entertainment Ben F. Perry, J. B. Phillips and J. M. Scarborough. Noble Grand W. S. Swain will be master and ceremonies assisted by Past Grand Ben F. Perry.

NIGHT SCHOOL OF TECH WILL OPEN DECEMBER 7

Although registration for the winter term of the Georgia School of Technology does not begin until December 7, Professor J. N. Nesbit, dean of the school is already receiving numerous applications in advance for admission. The only cost what ever to the student is a fee of $5 to cover lights heating and similar incidentals.

The night school will have this winter a separate course of practical study. One of them which has been attracting special attention is the course in practical chemistry. The first year is designed to give work which will deeply impress with the evening students than does the customary course in general chemistry. With this end in view a course has been outlined which not only gives the fundamental principles of the subject as thoroughly as any elementary course can give them, but in which the laboratory work illustrating these principles is chosen from the operations and manipulations in daily use in the technical laboratory.

SUFFRAGE POSITION DEFINED BY WILSON

Washington, Nov. 28.—President Wilson again defined his position on woman suffrage in a letter to the National Child Labor Government employee here, reiterating that he believed the question to be a state issue. He deeply impressed with the woman suffrage question wrote the president but I believe it can best be settled by a state rather than by attempting a change in the fundamental law of the nation. Such a matter is well beyond the scope of the general public opinion of the country.

He will send a delegation of suffragists in the near future but is not expected to change his position, as he said in this letter.

Mr. Wilson saw no callers during the morning but arrangements were made for him to see Henry Van Dyke minister to Holland as soon as Mr. Van Dyke comes to Washington.

DR. LUKE G. JOHNSON IN HIS NEW CHARGE

Dr. Luke G. Johnson the new pastor of Grace Methodist church will preach to his congregation this morning at 11 o'clock and tonight at 7:30.

Century-Old Clock, With Its Wooden Cogwheels, Is Interesting Relic

Sitting in one corner of the Brown House hotel office, at McDonough St., is a genuine curiosity in the way of an old-time clock.

This old clock is 8½ feet tall is wound up by long cords with weights, every cog-wheel in it is wood with the exception of a small strike fly-wheel on top ticks off just one second with each swing of the pendulum which extends about half way down the casing is provided with separate second, minute, hour and day-of-month hands front and two sides of framing made of walnut, with back of white pine and the entire frame reaching to the floor.

Numerous traveling men have viewed this remarkable old clock which has quite an interesting history. It is at present owned by J. A. Pouché, coming into his grandfather's family in Virginia in 1797. Before the days of general railroads it was hauled from Virginia to Wilkes county Georgia in a two horse wagon. It was later taken to Culloden, Monroe county but by what means of transportation is not known. It is reported that the old Monroe railroad from Atlanta to Macon was at that time in operation—though it is that no railroad was then operated nearer Culloden than Barnesville. It was carried by wagon in 1868 and was later taken to Barnesville remaining in both places numbers of years (including the civil war in Culloden) until 1892, when it was brought to McDonough where it has since remained.

Mr. Pouché has refused numerous offers for this genuine old time-piece, among them $200 in cash from one party, and a second-hand auto from another. He prizes it highly as a family heirloom and hopes it may continue to be handed down to succeeding generations—so long as possible may be done.

Baracas and Philatheas Are Urged to Give Help To Atlanta Child's Home

At their meeting last Tuesday night the Baraca and Philatheas classes were urged by their president to make a liberal contribution to the Atlanta Child's home.

The president of the City Baraca Union recently visited the Atlanta Child's home and found there about thirty children ranging in ages from infants to four or five years. He was impressed with the good management and perfect system of the home but most by the excellent training reflected in the manners of the children. The charity of these classes will be well directed if it begins with this home.

All classes are requested to make a liberal contribution on Sunday morning, December 6. Send all contributions direct to Mrs. Helen G. Woolley at 17 West Cain street on the Monday following.

H. M. DUBOSE TO PREACH TWO SPECIAL SERMONS

Dr. DuBose, pastor of the First Methodist church, corner Peachtree and Porter place will occupy his pulpit Sunday morning and evening. The subject of the morning discourse will be, "The Race of Spirituality," in which the character of a Christian as demanded in all ages and especially as demanded in this age, will be defined. In the evening the subject will be "Lost in Atlanta," which will be an evangelistic discussion of the spiritual needs of men and the power by which they are delivered from the life of sin and dissidence into the life of Christian faith and service.

MINIMUM SWEETNESS DEFINED FOR ORANGES

Washington November 28.—Defining the minimum of sweetness that oranges must attain on the trees if later sweetening is not to be held of unequal inferiority the department of agriculture today announced it consists of 100 parts of sugar to 100 parts of juice does not contain soluble solids to or in excess of eight parts to every part of also contained in the juice. The acidity to be calculated as citric acid without water or crystallization. This decision was made by the interstate shipment of immature citrus fruit to avoid sweating or exposure to the most extensive extent that will conceal its inferiority. The regulation may be made more stringent after further investigation the department announced.

EXPLOSIVE THAT MAKES MINES SO DESTRUCTIVE

(From The Columbus Journal)

The widespread damage wrought by the submarine mine during the present war has been the subject of considerable comment. This missile has all ways been regarded as deadly but it has been considerably overrated. In the Russo Japanese war the destruction wrought by the mine was comparatively negligible only one battleship the Petropavlovsk, sinking almost immediately after striking the lurking mine. In this instance, however it was the circumstance of the mine exploding in proximity to the warship which was thereby determining which was responsible for the swift disaster. The reason why German mines have been so destructive is because a new explosive is used. Hitherto wet gun-cotton has been employed for this service but in the present war the mine is charged with what is colloquially known as T. M. T. The full name of this explosive—which is far more powerful than wet gun-cotton—is trinitrotoluene generally abbreviated in German as trinitrotoluen. This explosive is of comparatively recent origin and is very safe to handle since it can be fired by means of a detonator. If ignited in the open air it will burn away like paper while a rifle bullet fired through it will not cause an explosion. A fulminate of mercury detonator is necessary for its instantaneous destructive effects.

One outstanding quality of this explosive is that its effects are felt over a greater distance than in the case with gun-cotton. The manner in which vessels have been blown to pieces by mines in contact with the floating German mines offers sufficient testimony upon this point. The power of this explosive are well known in Britain and there is no doubt it has been adopted by our services. It is however not the most powerful explosive known, because there are several others which are infinitely more destructive notably nitro-glycerine but it is the danger attending the handling of these agents which rules them out of general practice.

USE BLOODHOUNDS TO HUNT STORE ROBBER

Waverston Ga., November 28.—(Special)—Quick use of bloodhounds today enabled officers to catch a white man whom the police suspect of making an effort to rob a store. Police man W. C. Gardner heard suspicious noises in the rear of the brickman's store, and failing to find anyone he put bloodhounds on the tracks. The dogs led the officer to Claud Chaffee.

PUBLIC SCHOOL PROBLEM

In dealing with the most sacred responsibilities that life brings, there is nothing plainer today than the fact of the educational inefficiency of the public schools, and women can only solve their problems in proportion as they find themselves able to get into helpful co-operation with the other agencies.

That is to say, that, somehow or other, the school board, the city authorities, the teachers and the organized women must get together in dealing with the school problems. Women must be prepared to deal with them with a sympathetic understanding and offer constructive criticism and support.

A great deal of emphasis has been laid on the needs of the situation—the time has come to emphasize results.

The question that confronts us, what are we going to do to help right the wrongs?

We realize that there is no one influence so potent in the formation of character as that of the schools; the history of education having shown again and again the compelling force of their marvelous power, not only for the individual, but for the city and for the state.

Now, side by side with the glorious possibilities and splendid record of our schools, there are evils which must be met and corrected.

If we women see clearly the highest welfare of our children and desire earnestly the upward progress of our state, we shall not falter in this effort to secure a higher standard for our public schools. True women can give the awakening impulse that can arouse the authorities to aims, ambitions and purposes which shall transform our whole public school system.

Now City Federation

The chief activities of the city federation of Macon for the past year were the sale of Red Cross seals for the benefit of the Red Cross hospital in London, England, and the sale of Christmas seals.

The cabinet, given in June, consisted of the following: Mrs. W. C. Holt, president; Mrs. Mike Powell, vice president; Mrs. W. E. Hamilton, recording secretary; Mrs. W. E. Hamilton, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. E. Hamilton, treasurer; Mrs. W. E. Hamilton, auditor; Mrs. W. E. Hamilton, general secretary; Mrs. W. E. Hamilton, parliamentarian.

The city beautiful committee found a number of places on the part of the city council, and many of the resolutions were carried out by the city council.

A committee is working for the installation of smoke consumers, and we hope to have a smokeless town, and to the past, substituting the card service for the progressive cities.

The child labor bill also had our homes. Mrs. J. M. Hays, president.

Bureau of Information

In the November number of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Grace Julian Clarke, press chairman, says: "Mrs. Pennybacker has lately and heretofore been a great help to our members by her generosity."

The bureau of information is the most valuable single branch of general federation work. It is a real dividend-paying institution.

The new club federated. Mrs. J. E. Hays, the newly-elected vice president-at-large and chairman of the club extension, has just organized and federated a splendid women's club at Marshallville.

Our "Old Trail" Road

The history of the famous old trail road in Georgia will soon be forgotten.

We have, living in our state living memorials in our old people, who are leading us daily and silently taking the records with them.

Delays bring regrets, especially when we seek information of by-gone days and find the records have passed beyond our reach.

The history of our "old trail" road now while the facts can be obtained, for the old highways are living memorials to our pioneer men and women.

If the records are preserved, there will be no better way of teaching the history of the county in future years than a tour over the "old trail" roads of our state.

The movement on the part of the Savannah and Springdale Automobile Club to revive the "old trail" road is a most commendable one.

a municipal scandal next September, and the responsibility will be placed. If apathetic parents and taxpayers permit the task to be neglected, the consequences will be visited upon every home, in lack of rightful opportunity to children, in lowering the vitality of the great civic spirit that dominates the affairs of this city and the steadiest feeder of which is the public school system.

ATLANTA, HOST TO GEORGIA.

At all times of the year the people generally of Georgia are genially welcome to Atlanta. But the people of Atlanta have, for the month of December, beginning with the first day and running through to the last day of the old year, issued a particular and specific invitation to every man, woman and child in Georgia to be the guests of this city. We publish elsewhere a terse and official presentation of the invitation from the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, the Chamber of Commerce, the Rotary club and the Ad Men's club.

These organizations represent business and substance and the spirit of cordiality in Atlanta. When any one of them underwrites an invitation it means a big time. When all four combine, the bid is one that is compelling and the nature of the inducements as wide as human needs. There are especial reasons why Georgia should mobilize in Atlanta in the year's holiday month. The state and the south have just negotiated, successfully and with flying colors, one of the most grueling ordeals since the civil war.

Our financial and business fabric have been tested and found not wanting. Admittedly, most of us had a temporary scare, but that is now a thing of the past. Cotton is moving. The revival of business is an actuality. Money is circulating. The Christmas shopping must be done, though the heavens fall. And on top of these various factors, everybody in Georgia deserves a vacation, a sort of outing, and Atlanta's invitation affords an ideal opportunity to materialize it.

In the early part of the month the recreational features, in the way of the Corn and Hog and Hominy carnival, will be a particular incentive. Here the farmers of the state will have a chance to meet and look at the work of those sturdy young Georgians who are destined to make Georgia one of the greatest corn states in the country. They, with their wives and sons and daughters, will have the chance to frolic in the big combined Mardi-Gras-Veiled-Prophet and other spectacles that will characterize the Corn, Hog and Hominy Carnival, with the many picturesque parades and the great masked ball.

Do you remember what an enormous time everybody had during Shriner week? The Corn, Hog and Hominy Carnival will be that on just a slightly reduced scale. For the whole month the railroads have offered exceptionally attractive rates from all over the state. On the side of business it is unnecessary for The Constitution to elaborate to any extent. The buying field here is almost illimitable. Atlanta's stocks are fresh and modern, Atlanta's prices right, Atlanta's facilities for delivery free from criticism.

But the main thing is for everybody in Georgia who can to throw aside dull care some time during December, and concentrate himself or herself on Ma, Pa and the Kids in Atlanta. It'll be worth while!

AN AMAZING PARADOX.

It is a startling indictment Mrs. Nellie Peters Black, farmer, of Atlanta, brings against the enterprise of the business leaders of Georgia when, in a communication published today, she gives proof that the farmers of this state are embarrassed in diversifying, for the reason that there are no markets for diversified crops. Mrs. Black is the daughter of Richard Peters, a pioneer of Atlanta. She is herself a splendid business woman, and a modern farm manager. Her plantation in Gordon county is a model of its kind. The Constitution has before published charges and complaints of a similar nature. Only last week we printed a letter from Dan Hughes, assistant state commissioner of agriculture, who declared that until Georgia had a bureau of markets there was little incentive to the farmer to raise food crops. Mrs. Black speaks out of experience. She says that farmers "single-shot" on cotton because that is the one crop that will fetch cash anywhere. She tells of producing oats and hay, and having Atlanta dealers tell her they preferred the western product. She says also that the farmer who produces apples and eggs and poultry and general dairy products must sacrifice his output, for the simple reason that he can find no remunerative city market.

W. A. Brannon, of Moreland, Ga., puts forward very similar views. He declares that it is the bankers and merchants who are in a rut. They, and not the farmers, need to diversify. Obviously, here is a situation requiring commercial statesmanship of the highest order. There are plenty of mediums for connecting the farm with the city. The machinery is all there. What is wrong with our chambers of commerce, our bankers, our leaders everywhere that they do not co-operate in setting this machinery to work? It is certain as anything can be that if Georgia is to win the true value from the epidemic of diversification that will prevail this coming spring and summer, home markets must be created! That is one of the biggest jobs now confronting constructive Georgia leadership.

LATIN-AMERICA'S PLAIN. The delicate adjustment of the Monroe doctrine and our anomalous relations with Latin-America are accentuated by the protest the South American countries are making over alleged violation of their neutrality by the European combatants. In a way, the resentment of these as yet undeveloped countries is a healthy sign. It shows they have achieved a vigorous national consciousness, and that they rebel against being treated as negligible quantities by the fighting powers of Europe. They see these same powers religiously respect the neutrality of the United States and consult her authorities with regard to interpretation of international law. But when it comes to Latin-American waters, Europe has thus far been lax, seeing fit to coal her ships and transfer provisions and contraband, and even do battle, with rather slight regard for the sovereignty of the states involved. A significant fact is that the Latin-American countries have approached the United States with their grievance, and a request that we act as intermediaries with Europe. Heretofore most of the nations south of the Rio Grande have stood on their dignity and assumed the right to deal direct with Europe itself. But when the other half of the world is blazing, and the United States stands as the chief guardian of law and order and civilization in the new world, the matter is a different one. Then the Latin-American republics are willing enough to crawl under the blanket of the United States. Of course, the fine questions of neutrality involved will be adjudicated without trouble, the United States taking the initiative. Already England has intimated she will abide the decision of this country. But it is a trifle disquieting to view our widening responsibilities under the Monroe doctrine, to see that, under almost any and every condition, we must protect the interests of our neighbors on this continent; to recognize that their dignity as well as their frailties may be in our safekeeping. It is fortunate that in this crisis we have the friendship of England. What the situation might have been had we repudiated the Hay-Pauncefote treaty with regard to canal tolls is not pleasant to contemplate.

THE THREE MUSKETEERS.

If the subject itself were not so mighty with tragedy, there would be a species of grim humor in the three-cornered battle that has been raging in The Saturday Evening Post between the representatives of England, France and Germany over the causes of the war. Arnold Bennett, the British novelist, led off for England, and his reasoning was good and the case well presented, as anyone had a right to expect from this source. Georges Clemenceau, former French premier, followed for France. In Gallic intensity, and shrewd, intricate justification for every move made by France, the article left nothing to be desired. Then Bernard Dernburg, former German secretary for the colonies, closed the debate for Germany. One noted that he departed from the characteristic German serenity, and was bitter in each point he made against his antagonists. To the outsider, it seems a trifle unfair that Dernburg should have been called upon to fight at such odds, since both Bennett and Clemenceau directed their fire against Germany. He sustained himself admirably in argument, however, and it is probable the readers of The Post, if they followed the series, know much more about the subject than they did originally. From time to time there will, of course, be publications upon all sides of this momentous question, but one is tempted to question their utility. Is it possible, under the superheated conditions, to get neutrals to accept an unbiased view of the situation? We doubt it. It is the experience of human nature that when one is near a great object one loses perspective. Distance is required to give perspective. Speaking in the larger sense, distance will be required for a clear judgment on the European struggle, the distance of years. While the air is filled with rumors and counter-rumors, and people of our own traditions and blood are engaged in what seems a life and death struggle, a fair verdict is an arduous matter. The best we can hope to achieve is a certain clarity in our verdicts until the smoke is cleared away and the facts are presented to us by other than partisans.

Well, even if you had to knuckle to the turkey trust it left the wishbone with you. Henry Cabot Lodge is seeing red again. Nightmares are sometimes fatal to persons at his time of life. No, the foot and mouth disease is not confined to cattle. There's the kicking, expiating politician. England has a host of war poets, but "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" for their paper bullets to travel. It's good news that the "better times feeling" is both at home and abroad in the land.

PROMINENT WOMAN FARMER GIVES EXPERIENCES, SAYING NO MARKET FOR FOOD CROPS

Manager the famous Richard Peters farm, who writes of her experiences as a Georgia farmer.

Editor Constitution So much is being said through the columns of our daily papers to our farmers about diversifying the crops for another year that as a farmer and in behalf of this most worthy class of our citizens I desire to present the other side of the question and ask for a patient hearing and for advice. The reason our farmers plant cotton is because it can always be sold for ready money except under such extraordinary conditions as are presented this year and the reason our farmers have not varied from this staple product more than they have is the great difficulty of finding a market for any other farm crop. At the Peters farm in Gordon county we have been most successful in raising winter oats by planting in deep furrows and thereby avoiding a freeze-out. When the crop was ready for the market, I went personally to see every large grain dealer in Atlanta about selling the oats and the invariable reply was "No, we prefer to buy western oats." Consequently there are 1,200 bushels of perfectly good heavy oats in our grain house waiting for a purchaser. Just the same conditions confront us when we try to sell baled hay—"No, we like western hay the best." We raised hogs for the market and the law said, "You cannot ship dressed hogs until they are inspected by a government inspector." As this official lived in Atlanta it was impossible to have the meat inspected from time to time, when the weather was suitable for killing hogs. Then our friends say "Sell your butter and eggs, your apples and potatoes, all of your vegetables and fruits." You will be surprised when I tell you that unless a farmer is near enough to a big city like Atlanta where he can carry his produce by wagon direct to his customers he cannot get more than 14 cents a pound for Jersey butter at the country stores, 50 cents a bushel for apples, and 80 cents a bushel for his potatoes. We all know that these prices are doubled when sold from city stores. I am not a pessimist. I am not saying, "do not diversify your crops," but as a farmer I do say, with Goldberk, "What are you gonna do with it" after you have raised your diversified crops. I will be glad to have this subject discussed by those who are giving advice to farmers, because so often these worthy counselors have never been on a farm in a working capacity and are more facile with their pens than with their hoes and give counsel from theory and not from experience. As an every-day, practical farmer, I beg for helpful information on these points. NELLIE PETERS BLACK, Manager The Richard Peters Farm.

Merchants and Bankers, As Well as Farmers, Must Abandon Rats

Editor Constitution: There has been unusual activity since the outbreak of the European war in telling southern farmers to diversify their crops, to grow grain, live stock, etc. This is good as far as it goes, and no doubt efforts and advice of this kind are duly appreciated by the farmers, but would it not be well for the press and trade bodies so deeply interested in having sound, healthy economic conditions prevail, to preach more to our bankers and merchants as to the part necessary for them to take in bringing about this imperative change. For instance, I read in a recent issue of your paper, where peanue hay was offered on the Atlanta market, that it was stated that buyers could not be found. Would it not be well enough for someone to inform the feed dealers and stock men of Atlanta that peanue hay contains over 90 per cent digestible protein and 45 per cent digestible carbohydrate, while the western product usually has less than 2 per cent protein and 15 per cent carbohydrate?

The peanue hay is therefore worth a great deal more in feed value than it poses the western product is better known in your market. Again, bright, dry, well-hatched corn is being offered in your city in car lots at $12 per ton and no market. This, another southern product, is a fine substitute for horses, mules and cattle, containing 75 per cent protein and no carbohydrates—fully 60 per cent in feeding value compared with timothy, and offered much cheaper according to value. Is it not time for somebody besides the farmer to wake up and get out of old ruts? You tell the farmer to raise more of these products, and that he must do this, and he less cotton, or the whole south will go broke.

I believe that you are right when you say this. Allow me to modestly suggest that you add knowledge to virtue by informing your merchants as to the value of these staple crops, and by advising the farmer to preach so often, to patronize home industry. Our bankers and merchants should know also that debt-ridden cotton farmers cannot get situated in growing grain and live stock if they are to continue their notes in May and meet them in October. Much operating capital will be required for necessary investment, in purchasing breeding herds, machinery and no market for building fences, barns and silos, while very slight returns can be realized for the first three years. It is easy enough to tell the farmer what he should do. We stand or fall together. The idea is some patriotism must be found in commercial and financial circles, not necessarily outside the pale of conservative business. It has been truly said that our nation is wonderful in resources, but general and lasting prosperity can come only through proper use of our products—our farmers. In their present condition, the majority must have more assistance than mere changes that mean ready-made, of patronage and financial assistance can be secured. What has not made present conditions already here, caused by too much cotton and too much buying of feed stuff and live stock from the north, is the necessity, body, farmers and all, now see the necessity of revolutionizing. Then let everybody know it will take common sense, hard work and courage. Yours for more good, honest, practical and content. W. A. BRANNON, Moreland, Ga.

"THE ISSUE OF 1915."

(From The Journal of Labor) The attention of the readers of this paper is directed to the following editorial from The Atlanta Constitution of November 24: The rehabilitation of the public school system—placing it upon a permanently sound basis—must be the paramount duty of the municipal administration of this city. Other departments of the city government demand and will, of course, receive their due attention. But creative and constructive energy will, and must, be mainly centered on the school system. The reason is very simple. Atlanta's educational system, her pride, and for forty years one of her best assets, is in serious danger of permanent impairment. In two years the school population has grown by 3,000. And in that two years not one new school building has been erected. If any other city did business on that basis it would soon be a city of shanties. If any private corporation so flagrantly ignored the laws of expansion, it would soon go out of business. Patch-work methods with permanent expansion is the explanation of present conditions. We have been content, in the main, to make current income meet current expenses and take care of the needs of growth. That economic policy has brought us to the position of today, to the impasse of today. As testified by Principal Dykes, unless a remedy is forthcoming by next September one hundred and fifty boys will be turned away from the High school. Those who do grow up will have to study under congested, unhealthy and unfavorable conditions. Relieved of the same conditions obtain in the Girls' High school. Both buildings and fire-traps, and both long ago outworn the use for which they were originally intended. The two high schools simply dramatize on a concentrated scale the conditions that prevail throughout the school system. The city's educational plant is cluttered with rattle-trap, fire-trap, worn-out, insanitary and inadequate buildings. The bulk of "stratching" to accommodate more children has been reached. Unless a remedy is provided before September hundreds of children will be thrown back upon the homes and into the streets. Council will find, in 1915, its first duty in safeguarding the public health. The next issue, the paramount constructive issue, of 1915 will be the schools! It is well that we approach the new year with that understanding.

The reader should read the above carefully until it is fastened in the mind the full text and meaning and what it conveys. A quick glancing over the editorial is sufficient to convince one of the earnestness of the writer, but when carefully read one finds an intensity of feeling on the subject which, if possessed by one hundred of our people the object desired would be attained before the time specified in the article. This school question has reached the revolutionary point—the line that clearly separates an indefinite, senseless conservatism and justified radicalism. Further deferring or quibbling on this important question shows a woeful lack of civic pride and political intellectuality on the part of those who are responsible for this awful condition of the public schools. The fathers and mothers of Atlanta would be up in arms if they but realized the danger that their children encounter day by day. The Constitution's editorial is a call to arms! How many will respond? The responsibility of this situation lies, it is alleged, with the mayor and council. Will they do anything? If they will not, will they make them act? Is there a man on the board of education who will tell the public just where the trouble lies? Is there a man on the board of education big enough and brave enough to go into the council chamber and present a bill of grievances the name of the council and demand that their officers be impeached for such action would necessitate his resignation from the board of education. The chief of the board of education, the superintendent of public schools, with the schools. Only a few days ago a man announced for a place on the board of education who, chief of the city division (as he has published) has his keen desire to defeat an officer of the schools. The council does not know this man, but whoever he may be, he has no place on the board of education. What is to be done? The Constitution, in its editorial, has the courage to present a bill of indictment against those in authority. It does not retreat. It does not count. It is the only one that has not answered to the serious charges presented. What will the board of education do? What will the people do?

"Jes' the Old Woman an' Me"

By Frank L. Stanton.

I THE task of Time is to roll away . . . Them's the words that I allus say Each Thanksgiving an' Christmas Day. For after you've reached three score an' ten It goes like a gallop'n' race-hoss then; It's hardly here when away it's gone. An' another Christmas comin' on! Well, so it is, an' so 'twill be, An' what Time's left round here, you see: Jes' the old woman an' me.

II JES' the old woman an' me. . . . For long We've walked the way with a sigh or song, With never of anything goin' wrong. Till the children come to say good-bye: And then the first star left the sky! Till one by one they went away, An' left us here, as you see today, To travel together—old an' gray. Nothin' 'round here, where they used to be,— Jes' the old woman an'—me.

III AN' the seasons come, an' the seasons go, An' lonesome an' long falls the winter's snow Where the roses of youtime used to grow; An' the Wind, when the feathery flakes are tossed, Seems allus stagin' of something lost . . . Something lost, that'll come no more— Gleanings of the dreams that have gone before; An' I hear myself to my own self say: 'It's a lonesome world when you're old an' gray!' Yet Love still lives an' is glad to be With jes' the old woman an'—me.

SOME o' these days o'er the River's foam We'll hear the message that calls us Home; An' if the Angel, crowned and fair, Should speak the challenge of "Who comes there?" I'd say, where the saints in glory be: "Two tired travelers, as you see,— Jes' the old woman an'—me!"

On The Constitution Firing Line With the Commercial Travelers Some of the Live Men Who Have Put Atlanta on the Map As South's Leading Market Place for Southern Merchants

Brief Sketches of Ten of Atlanta's Biggest Wholesale Houses and Manufacturing Concerns, and Some of the Men Who Have Made Them.

Brown, Perryman & Greene Company.

Just as Atlanta has, as a whole, developed marvelously along lines of commercial strength, so has that development partook of diversified lines, whereat the southern business man practically every article desired right here at his home market. Retailers have since found that it was not necessary to go beyond the confines of this city to buy all that was desirable in hats and caps, supplemented with the very necessary adjunct line—umbrellas and gloves.

No company in the south is better equipped or has a larger clientele for these goods than the Brown, Perryman & Greene Co.

Following a reorganization some years ago, this company has evolved this strong company. And for that reason, it is stronger than the hat house, represented by a large number of capable and wide-awake travelers, this company is sending its line into every state in the south, and into hundreds of cities and villages in these states.

Leonard W. Brown, the president, is a trained salesman, having spent a number of years on the road. As the head of his company, he not only finds himself busy with details, but he and his company are always found pulling for the bigger and better things for Atlanta and the south.

A. M. Greene, secretary and treasurer, is perhaps one of the best known men to the other trade. While his duties naturally confine him to the house, much of his time, still he can be found out of Atlanta, at various intervals, and a traveler among the Brown, Perryman & Greene Company's line, and does his more business than its secretary-treasurer.

Keeping well in touch with its customers and keeping abreast always of the times as it applies to reliable goods, up-to-date styles, a large stock and right prices, every want and requirement in the hat and cap line is met by this company.

The company is particularly proud of the opportunity it has to serve its patrons in their selection of gloves and umbrellas. Being in large quantities, and not being burdened with the detail of a thousand and one things which have to be done by some merchants, the company is in better shape to devote considerable time and space to its line of hats and caps. Separate buyers handle these lines for each department. These buyers are experts, consequently the big hat house has become almost as famous for its service on gloves and umbrellas as it has on hats and caps.

The company occupies practically all of the big building at the corner of Pryor and Decatur streets, the building being necessary to take care of the large stock always on hand. Like every other big wholesaler in the city, they are expecting a number of good patrons and friends to visit the stock work, and at no place will these visitors find a cheerier welcome than at the Brown, Perryman & Greene Co.

A. M. Robinson Co.

Chief among Atlanta's leading wholesale and jobbing houses stands the A. M. Robinson company. Organized thirty-three years ago in 1881 to be exactly what it has grown into one of Atlanta's most substantial of her many big commercial enterprises.

The founder of the company, A. M. Robinson, was one of the leading merchants and citizens of the city for many years. His brains and energy have co-operated with other business men to make Atlanta the city of the south. Since his death, several years ago, the business has passed into the hands of his sons, who are men trained in the mercantile business—and the leading spirit today in this big wholesale and jobbing house is a worthy son of a worthy father, James D. Robinson. Mr. Robinson is president of the company and much of the success which has come to this wholesale house has been due to the business sagacity and acumen of its chief executive.

J. R. Mobley, perhaps one of the best known of Atlanta's wholesale mercantile contingent, has been secretary and treasurer of the A. M. Robinson company since its reorganization, many years ago.

Long ago outgrowing its former quarters, the company moved, several years ago, into its present spacious building at 59-61 North Pryor street. Its present home was built especially for the company and has all modern advantages which ingenuity could contrive to make it desirable as a big jobbing house.

Originally the company started as a jobbing house only. Now it is not only one of the city's big jobbers, but has added a line of manufactured goods which has gained fame and prestige as the years have rolled by. Hardly a merchant in Dixie that does not know and handle Aragon shirts, claimed by its makers to be the best made and best laundered shirt on the market today. A separate plant, covering several acres of ground and space, located in the Andrews building on Marietta street, and employing something like a hundred men, is kept busy the year round turning out this well-known Atlanta product.

The company also has a separate and separate plant, in which a full line of pants and overalls are made, and employment in the new factory in the southern states. Another 100 or more employees find work here.

The company's line of manufactured goods—Aragon shirts, pants and overalls—are not only sold direct to the retail trade, but are also sold in a large and lucrative jobbing business.

In the beginning only six or eight traveling men were employed; this company, now more than twenty years ago, has a staff of about 100 men, many are singing the praises of the goods of the A. M. Robinson company.

McClure Ten-Cent Co.

From a small beginning in the year 1867, with a capital stock of $2,000, the McClure Ten-Cent company, has in the past eighteen years forged its way to the front in the business world until now it ranks at the top in its line.

These five and ten-cent stores are a Godsend to the poor these hard times, said a customer in the big wholesale house of McClure the other day. "So many useful and necessary little things can be gotten at such a small price."

And that's the very thing that has made the McClure Ten-Cent Co. one of the most prosperous and strongest financial institutions in the south.

Mr. McClure, the head of this company, stands among the foremost in Atlanta's list of the most active business men. He has been in the been successful in his own business has made his advice and suggestions sought for on many matters of civic and state interest. In the beginning of his five and ten-cent business he operated only a retail store in Atlanta. In the course of time another similar store was launched by him in another city. He has kept adding to his chain of stores until now the McClure company is operating ten big stores in as many cities in the south. In the past few years he has added to his chain of stores, a large and profitable jobbing business. In addition to the ten stores operated under its own name, the company supplies practically all the goods for scores of other five-and-ten-cent stores throughout the south. Its wholesale trade has been almost marvellous and the big house operated on South Broad street is the only strictly five-and-ten-cent store and $1 store in the world.

Something more than 200 people now find employment in the McClure stores, and a monthly payroll of almost $10,000 is necessary to carry on the work of this big company.

The work and growth of the McClure company, growing from a small retail store into a score of stores and a big wholesale house, covering many thousands of square feet of floor space, is simply another evidence of the spending power of Atlanta as a wholesale and jobbing center. Mr. McClure was quick to see a few years ago the possibility and the future of a big wholesale house of his kind in the city. And while other merchants have in the past few months been talking "hard times"

—at least some of them—the McClure company has been busy filling orders for a thousand and one things from the Southland. In the beginning of his five and ten-cent business he operated only a retail store in Atlanta. In the course of time another similar store was launched by him in another city. He has kept adding to his chain of stores until now the McClure company is operating ten big stores in as many cities in the south. After operating for years at 5-7 Edgewood avenue, the company three years ago moved into its own home at 114 Marietta street—a modern seven-story, fireproof, reinforced concrete building, with more than an acre of floor space, but not an inch too much to take care of and to display advantageously the big stock always on hand. Boys' Big Corn Show Next Week, With Reduced Railroad Rates, Offers Fine Opportunity for Southern Merchants to Visit the Gate City.

With troops of farmer boys swarming into the city on every train, and with merchants and business men from the entire south following in their wake, the fourth annual Corn Club show, beginning on Tuesday, December 1, and continuing until Friday, will be one of the biggest and most gala events of the year.

Last year it was an occasion that will linger long in the memory of the business men and trades people of Atlanta, but this year will literally knock them off their feet. Not only will it exceed all expectations as an exhibition, but the number of people that will be in attendance will be larger, perhaps, than on any other occasion Atlanta has enjoyed for some time.

The Corn show officials are preparing to care for several thousand visitors.

All railroads are offering special reduced rates of one cent for round trip from every point in Georgia, and railway authorities have assured the Corn show folks that they will haul into Atlanta during the show a large number of guests.

Among them will be hundreds of merchants who will take advantage of the Corn show to attend an event of wide southern interest and importance, to do the big amount of trading they have been putting aside for this occasion. The visiting merchants will be one of the biggest factors of the big Corn show crowd.

The Corn show will open on the 1st of December at 10 o'clock in the morning with elaborate exercises in the state capitol. There will be many interesting features in the program, including receptions, shows, sightseeing trips for Corn Club boys, visitors and all, and the prizes offered the boys are causing keen rivalry among them.

With the spirit of the coming Christmas prevailing, and with each day blooming forth with new festivities, no wonder this year's Corn club will be a celebration that will make history, and will entice business men from all parts of the south.

HOG AND HOMINY CARNIVAL THIS WEEK WILL BE A HUMMER

Chief Snyvers has notified his blue-clad subordinates of police headquarters that on the afternoon of December 3, Mardi Gras day in Atlanta, they shall not do a thing but stand around for in the middle of December. Nothing but a hilarious, shouting spirit of revelry will reign, and the policeman who undertakes to stop proceedings will promptly get himself mobbed in ditch shape and hauled to the hospital infirmary who takes him as a patient will have the severest job of his medical life.

The Hog and Hominy carnival that is to be staged in Atlanta December 3 and 4 will be one of the most stupendous celebrations that a southern city, outside of New Orleans, has ever undertaken. It will be a Young Mardi Gras, just as fascinating and as wildly joyous as its peer down in New Orleans. About the only difference will be the lack of age and prestige.

The Atlanta Ad Men are behind it. If there is any organization in this country that has as much red blood and ginger in it as this group of young business men, it is yet to make itself known. The mere fact that the Ad Men are promoting it makes the prospect seem that the Hog and Hominy affair will be Atlanta's greatest carnival celebration.

The masses of out-of-town merchants will troop into town during the Hog and Hominy carnival. They will come to attend to the Corn Club show, which will be in full blast in conjunction with the carnival. Reduced rates will be given from all great points on all railroads that run into Atlanta, and all roads are preparing to haul the folks who will come here to enjoy Hog and Hominy days.

LATE BUYERS ARE COMING TO ATLANTA FOR THEIR GOODS

The action of perhaps thousands of the south's biggest merchants in postponing their buying trips north and east on account of the shock of the great European conflict, has resulted in shifting to Atlanta a massive influx of tradepeople, who come to buy from every imaginable line of stock.

And Atlanta merchants, realizing that this situation would soon confront them, have put in the cards for the consolation of southern buyers.

All portions of the south are represented in the new arrivals. The lines of business, too, and their coming establishes a new and prosperous epoch in Atlanta's wholesale and jobbing industry.

The host of out-of-town buyers who previously traded in eastern centers has stimulated the local trade of Atlanta to a most encouraging extent.

It has also lengthened the activities of the wholesale business of this city. New buyers have introduced themselves to Atlanta from cities that were nearly a year ago almost dead. The directors of the company are C. G. Johnson, J. W. Bates, R. W. Johnson, W. D. Beacham and M. A. Krue.

Mr. Krue is general manager of the factory, coming with the company four years ago from Ward Hill, Mass.

Than J. K. Orr, Sr., the head of this shoe business, there is no better known or more universally liked man in Atlanta. Engaged as he is in his duties as the head of his company, he always finds time to give his attention to civic interests. He is active in every organization which has for its purpose the upbuilding of Atlanta, and has given much of his time to matters of a public nature, but over of which much good to the city necessarily comes.

J. K. Orr Shoe Co.

The J. K. Orr Shoe company is so thoroughly identified with the commercial life of Atlanta that most folks think it has been here always, but it was really started as a small business in Columbus in June, 1884, coming out of the old firm of J. Kyle & Co., and succeeding to that firm's shoe department which it bought out.

The business in Columbus was a success from its first year, and the present factory has built up the largest exclusive shoe business in the state.

At that time there were several large houses carrying general lines, including shoes, but the Orr Shoe company, which was incorporated in 1894, did an exclusive wholesale shoe business.

The business had reached such proportions that in 1895 it decided to move to Atlanta and build the present warehouse on Auburn avenue, which was at that time a residence street.

The factory was built in 1907. Mr. Orr being convinced that some of these things the south would make its own shoes.

From a small beginning of a hundred pairs a day, it has since attained a production of over a thousand pairs of shoes and boys' shoe shoes, and

BANKS' BIRDS WILL COST HIM $4 EACH

The friends of Banks Waltham—and he has made many of them in the last few years selling goods for John Silvey & Co., and raising blooded stock on his "Fairview Farm"—are of the opinion that he is not as big a success as a bird hunter as he is as a drummer for his house.

He tried his hand at hunting on "Thanksgiving" day. And really he got about a dozen birds—but the price he had to pay for them will have to pay for them is something monstrous.

Why, then, birds will cost me about $4 apiece," said Banks. "I didn't have a hunter's license, but I thought I was in my own right a district, so I was blazing away when along came a crowd of game warden."

Our peas and our oats and our wheat; And though we'll have cotton! We haven't forgotten the wishes were. The main thing is something to eat.

The high cost of living. Gives us no misgiving. For we are determined to toll, And raise our own rations. Right here on our own native soil.

Ah! farm education. And not legislation. Our peas and our oats and our wheat; And farmers are planting. The song of food planting. To stop swapping cotton for flour.

Pickens County Corn and Canning Clubs Set Hot Pace for South

The Four Famous Allred Corn Club Boys; What They Have Accomplished

Mr. & Mrs. C.H. COX, Directing CORN & CANNING CLUBS, in PICKENS CO.

The Four famous ALLRED CORN CLUB BOYS

PICKENS Co. GIRLS CANNING CLUB

PICKENS Co. BOYS CORN CLUB

Every year now the "Army of the Corn" in Georgia is gathering enthusiastic youthful recruits to whom the wonderful achievements of four Georgia boys have been an inspiration. These are the four famous Allred Corn club boys—the "juvenile corn-growing, prize-winning boys of Pickens county—whose corn clubs and canning clubs have more than state-wide reputation.

When the Pickens County Boys' Corn club was organized by Hon. Charles H. Cox, of Jasper, Ga., the Allred boys—Luther, Clarence, Elmer and Arthur—of Jasper, became the leading members.

History of Club.
The club began with a membership of 25 boys between the ages of 10 and 18 years. Organized in January, 1912, in January, 1913, its membership had increased to 75, and a year later 135 members were enrolled, and it is still growing.

As evidence of the work accomplished through its interest and inspiration, the Pickens Corn club boys were awarded fourth prize at the state corn show, held in Atlanta, at the state capitol, December 1, 1913, and the Boys' Corn club of 1914 made 50 exhibits of corn at the state fair at Macon, their record being an average yield of 70 bushels per acre, at the average cost of 34 cents per bushel, winning first prize at the state fair at Macon. First and second individual prizes were won by the Allred boys at the state corn show in Atlanta, 1913, and they also won first, second, third and fourth individual prizes at the state fair, Macon, 1914. This was in a contest of 15 counties of the state competing for the prizes, including in all 1,500 corn club boys.

Do Not Rest on Laurels.
That was a splendid record, but every year gives promise of the realization of greater achievement; they do not rest on their laurels—these boys, working along well-laid industrial lines; earnest, energetic, unswerving in the work of the present—ambitious for the future; growing to a grand manhood in their toll-rewarding native fields.

WHERE THE ALLRED BOYS MADE THE RECORD OF 227 BU. TO THE ACRE

They have, indeed, accomplished wonders. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Allred, of Pickens county, and their names are as follows: Elmer, 11; Arthur, 12; Clarence, 11; and Luther, 16. Elmer, the youngest, has to his credit 210 bushels to the acre; Arthur, next in order of age, 147; Clarence follows with 220 and Luther, the oldest, leads with 227 bushels to the acre. And, too, "It is corn as it is corn."

Talk about alluring visions of the city to the boys of the farm has all but weight with these practical Allred lads. They realize at the right time as come true. And they are PICKENS COUNTY GIRLS CANNING CLUB and BOYS CORN CLUB OF PICKENS CO. at JASPER COURT HOUSE

Book Reviews in Tabloid

Essays: Political and Historical. The author, who was ambassador at St. Petersburg in 1893, to Germany in 1897-1900, has had the opportunity of seeing the pulse of European sentiment. In this volume, "The History of the United States as a World Power," the author treats of subjects dealing with the United States as a world power, with our country in relation to the other nations of the world. He discusses the European attitude toward the Monroe doctrine, the treaty obligations of the United States, the relations of the Panama canal, international disputes, and these are matters in which every American is interested as they bear upon the most popular and best discussed political subjects, and coming from such an experienced international statesman as Dr. Under the book will no doubt be widely read and discussed by both American and English historians. (J. B. Lippincott company, Philadelphia.)

By Richard Burton, president of the Drama League of America. Mr. Burton has for many years made a close study of the drama, and in this book he aims squarely at the theatergoer. The author's purpose is to present a concise treatment of the theater in a general

FASHIONS IN FACE FUR MAY BE CHANGED BY WAR
London, November 18.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—There is some newspaper speculation as to whether the war will follow precedent in instituting any change in fashions of which some of the writers delight to call "face fur." The Waterloo campaign introduced the moustache among the English troops, for it was first borrowed from certain Austrian officers, the guards, who resented very much any attempt to follow the fashion on the part of mere line regiments, while as for shaving it will be remembered, says the Manchester Guardian, how great a snub Clive Newcome drew upon himself by wearing a ferocious moustache.

THE LAST TRUMP

SYNOPSIS—The 3-0-Hearts is the "death-sign" employed by Seneca Trine, an aged and crippled monomaniac, in the private war of vengeance which he wages against Alan Law, son of the man (now dead) who was innocently responsible for the accident which rendered Trine a helpless invalid for life. Alan falls in love with Rose, Trine's daughter, and his love is returned. Judith, Rose's twin and double, but a woman of violent passions and erratic temper, procures her father to compass Alan's death; but under dramatic circumstances Alan saves her life and so, unwillingly, wins her love. Judith then turns against her father and successfully opposes his efforts to cause Alan to be assassinated by his allies and mercenaries. After many adventures Alan, Rose, Judith and Barcus, Alan's best friend, escape to the mountain country of Southern California and there leave Trine helpless and friendless through causing the death (in self-defense) of his two first lieutenants.

I—THE NEW JUDITH.

From sleep, as from drugged stupor Judith Trine awakened, struggling back to consciousness like some exhausted diver from the black depths to the star-smitten surface of a right-bound pool.

And for a little she lay u. stirring, her half-numb wits fumbling with their but less of renewing acquaintance with the world.

At first she could by no means recognize her surroundings. This rude chamber of rough plank walls and primitive furnishings; this wide, hard couch she shared with her still slumbering sister, Rose; the view revealed by an open window at the bedside; a fair perspective of tree-clad mountains through which a wide-bosomed canyon rolled down to an emerald plain, conveyed nothing to her intelligence.

A formless sense of some epochal change in the habits and mental processes of a young lifetime, added to her confusion.

Who was she herself, this strange creature who rested here so calmly by the side of Rose? If she were Judith Trine, how came she to be there? Irreconcilable opposites in every phase of character, the sisters had sedulously avoided association with each other ever since childhood; they had not shared the shelter of four walls overnight since time beyond the bounds of Judith's memory. What, then, had so changed them both that they should be found in such close company? Where was the Judith of yesterday—high-spirited, fearless, proud to arrogance, the puppet of fiery passions, the woman who had been able to contemplate without a qualm committing with her own hand a murder that her father's mind might be eased, his last days soothed with the sense of a wrong repaid in brimming measure?

What, indeed, had become of that wild thing, Judith Trine of yesterday? Surely she had little enough in common with this Judith of today, in whose heart was no more room for envy, hatred, malice or any uncharitableness, so full was it of love which, though it was focused upon the person of one man, none the less embraced all the world—even her sister and successful rival in that one man's affections.

And this was the work of Love! She sighed, but sighed softly, that she might not disturb her sister; and in this very act of consideration emphasized the vastness of the change that had come over her. For a week ago to have roused Rose needlessly would have afforded Judith malicious delight; while today Judith was not only thoughtful of her sister's minor comforts, but stood prepared to sacrifice herself, to break her own heart with her own two hands, that Rose's happiness might be assured.

Now the chain of memories was quite complete, no link lacking in its continuity. She recalled clearly every incident that had marked the slow growth of this great love she had for Alan Law, from that first day, not yet a month old, when he had escaped the fiery deathtrap she had set for him and repaid her only by risking his life anew to save her from destruction, down to this very morning when the stream from a hydraulic nozzle had swept over the brink of a three hundred-foot precipice a crimson racing automobile containing two desperate men bent upon compassing the death of her beloved.

By that act of sheer self-defense the world was richer for the loss of two black-hearted blackguards, and Alan Law might now be considered safe from further persecution—since there now remained not one soul loyal enough to Seneca Trine to prosecute his private war of vengeance against Alan. And though that aged monomaniac had means whereby he might purchase other scoundrels and corrupt them to his hideous purposes, Judith was determined that he should never again have any opportunity so to do. Though Alan, she knew, would never lift his hand to hinder her father's freedom of action, she, Judith, meant to take such steps as his persecution called for. If there were any justice in the land—if there were any alienists capable of discriminating between Trine's apparent sanity and his deep-rooted mania—then surely not many days more should pass into history without witnessing his consignment to an institution for the criminally insane.

She, Judith, would see to that, and then . . . The woman sighed once more.

Then Rose and Alan would marry and live happily ever afterward.

But what of Judith?

She made a small gesture of resignation to her destiny. What became of her no longer mattered, so that Alan were made happy in such happiness as he coveted.

And now the thought stirred her sharply that what was to be done must be done quickly, if at all.

And the almost level rays of the declining sun striking in through the open window, consoled her as if Judith were to accomplish her intention of leaving this place and finding her father again before nightfall.

Far better so: Judith felt she could not trust herself to say farewell to him without breaking down and confessing the utter wretchedness that threatened to overwhelm her each time she forced herself to face the thought that this parting must be final.

Like a thief she stole across the creaking floor to Alan's side, hesitated, bent her head to his and touched her lips to his cheek—a caress so light that he slept on in ignorance of it.

Then, as she lifted her head and stood erect, bosom convulsed with silent sobs, she looked squarely into the face of Rose.

II—THE OLD ADAM.

A long minute elapsed before either woman moved or spoke.

Transfixed beside Alan's chair, steadying herself with a hand upon its back, Judith stared at the figure in the doorway, in a temper at once discomfited and defiant. With this she suffered a phase of incredulity, was scarce able to persuade herself that this was truly Rose who confronted her—Rose whose sweet and gentle nature had ever served as the butt of Judith's supreme contempt and ruthless ridicule.

Here was revolution with a vengeance, when Rose threatened and Judith shrank!

It was as if the women had exchanged natures while she slept.

The countenance that Rose showed her sister was a thundercloud rent by the lurid lightning of her angry eyes. Her pose was tense and alert, like the pose of an animal set to spring. In her hand hung a revolver.

And slowly, toward the end of that long, mute minute, the girl's grasp tightened upon the grip of the weapon and its muzzle lifted.

Remarking this, a flash of her one-time temper quickened Judith. Of a sudden, with a start, she crossed the floor in a single, noiseless stride, and threw herself before her sister.

"Well!" she demanded hotly. "What are you waiting for? Nobody's stopping you; why don't you shoot?"

The upward movement of the hand was checked; the weapon hung level to Judith's breast—as level and unequivocal as the glance that probed her eyes and the tone of Rose's voice as she demanded:

"What were you doing there?"

If you must know from me what you already know on the evidence of your eyes—I was bidding good-by to the man I love—kissing him without his knowledge or consent before leaving him to you for good and all!

"What do you mean?"

"That I'm going away—that I can't stand this situation any longer. Marrophi and Jimmy are dead, my father's helpless—and I mean to see that he remains so. Nothing, then, stands in the way of your marrying Alan but me. And such being the case—and because he's as dear to me as he is to you—I'm going to take myself off and keep out of the way."

"For fear lest he find out that you love him?" Judith's lip curled. "Do you think him so witless he doesn't know that already?"

"And so you leave him to me out of your charity? Is that it?"

"Any way you like. But if it's so intolerable to you to think that I dare love him and confess it to you—if you begrudge me the humiliation of stooping to kiss a man who doesn't want my kisses—if you are so afraid of losing him while I live and love him—very well, then!"

With a passionate gesture Judith tore open the bosom of her waist, offering her flesh to the muzzle of the revolver.

A cry broke from the lips of Rose that was like the cry of a forlorn child punished with cruelty that passes its understanding. She fell back against the wall. The revolver swept up through the air—but its mark was her own head rather than Judith's bosom.

But before her finger found strength to pull the trigger the man at the table, startled from his sleep by the sound of angry voices, leaped from his chair with a violence that sent it clattering to the floor, and hurried himself headlong across the room, imprisoning the wrist of his betrothed with one hand while the other wrested the weapon away and passed it to Judith.

"Rose!" he cried thickly, "what does this mean? Are you mad?" Judith—

Dragging the bosom of her waist together, Judith thrust the weapon into its holster and turned away.

"Be kind to her, Alan," she said in an uncertain voice. "She didn't understand and—and I goaded her beyond endurance, I'm afraid. Forgive me—but be kind to her always!"

Somehow, blindly, she stumbled out of the cabin into the open, possessed by a thought whose temptation was stronger than her powers of resistance. What Rose had failed to accomplish might now serve to resolve Judith's problem. . . . None, she told herself bitterly, would seek to hinder her. But she meant so to arrange the matter that none should see or suspect and be moved to interfere.

Late though the afternoon hour was, the business of hydraulic mining still engaged the undivided attention of every man in the camp. None noticed the girl as she sped up the road toward the cliff—at least, if any one did, it was without remarking the symptoms of the hysteria which was at the bottom of this mad impulse toward self-destruction.

And yet, such is the inconsistency of the human animal, the instinct for self-preservation was stronger than her purpose: when a tearing car swung round the mountain and shot toward her, she checked hastily and jumped aside in ample time to escape being run down.

The next instant the machine was lurching to a halt and the scintillant accents of Seneca Trine were saluting her:

"Judith! You here! What the devil! Where've you been? Where are Marrophi and Jimmy?"

"Dead!" the girl replied, sententious, eyeing him strangely.

"Dead?" he echoed. "Who's dead?" A gleam of infernal joy lighted up his grim and lowering countenance. "You don't mean to tell me Alan Law—"

"No," she cut him short again. "I mean to tell you that Marrophi and Jimmy are dead."

"I don't believe it!" the old man screamed, aghast. "I won't believe it. You're lying to me, you jade! You're lying!"

She indicated with a gesture two forms that lay at a little distance back from the roadside, motionless beneath a sheet of canvas—the bodies of Trine's creatures, recovered by the mining gang and brought up for a Christian burial.

This, then, was the cruel fruition of his merciless hounding of Alan Law from the woods of northern Maine to the hills of southern California! . . .

The last bitter drop that brimmed his cup of misery was added when Alan Law himself appeared, leaving the miners' cabin in company with his betrothed—Rose now soothed and comforted, smiling through the traces of her recent tears as she clung to her lover, nestling in the hollow of his arm.

To Alan, on the other hand, this rencounter seemed to afford nothing but the pleasiest surprise imaginable.

"Well!" he cried, releasing Rose and turning down to the car. "Here's luck! And at the very moment when I was calling my lucky star hard names! How can I ever reward you thoughtfulness, Mr. Trine? It beats me how you do keep track of me this way—happening along like this every time I need a car the worst way in the world!"

"Drive on!" Trine screamed to the chauffeur. "But Judith had stepped up on the running board and was eyeing the driver coldly, with one hand significantly resting on the butt of the weapon at her side. The car remained at a standstill.

"But where's Barcus?" Judith demanded when, after helping Rose into the car and running off

There was no other occupant of the room.

Though he had lain nearly two days in coma, her father's subsequent progress toward recovery of his normal state had been rapid. For the last twenty-four hours he had been in full possession of his faculties and (for some reason impossible for Judith to fathom) uncommonly cheerful.

From this circumstance she drew a certain sense of mystified anxiety. Twice in the course of the morning she had caught his eye following her with a gleam of sardonic exultancy, as though he nursed some secret of extraordinary potentialities.

And yet (she argued) it was quite impossible that he should have some fresh scheme brewing for the assassination of Alan.

And yet . . . she was oppressed by a great uneasiness.

A considerable degree of restlessness was surely pardonable in one who, from her window, watched a carriage-drive populous with vehicles (for the most part motor cars) bringing to the hotel gayly dressed men and women, the guests invited to the wedding of Rose Trine and Alan Law.

Within another ten minutes the man Judith loved with all her body and soul would be the husband of her sister.

Slowly, against her will, she rose and stole across the floor to her father's chair.

His breathing was slow and regular; beyond doubt he slept; unquestionably there was no rea-from half a dozen throats within another instant.

As if from the path of some grizzly visitant from the world beyond the grave, the throng pressed back and cleared a way for Seneca Trine, father of the bride.

And as the way opened and he looked up toward the altar and saw Alan standing hand in hand with Rose while the minister invoked a blessing upon the union, added strength, the strength of the insane, was given to Seneca Trine.

When Alan, annoyed by the disturbance in the body of the chapel, looked round, it was to see the aged maniac standing within a dozen feet of him; and as he looked and cried out in wonder, Trine whipped a revolver from the pocket of his dressing gown and swung it steadily to bear upon Alan's head.

At that instant the storm broke with infernal fury up on the land.

A crash of thunder so heavy and prolonged that it seemed to rock the very building upon its foundations, accompanied the shattering of a huge stained-glass window.

A bolt of bluish flame of dazzling brilliance slashed through the window like a flaming sword and smote the pistol in the hand of Seneca Trine, discharging the weapon even as it struck him dead.

As he fell, the bolt swerved and struck two others down—Alan Law and the woman who had just been made his wife.

IV—THE WIFE.

Again three days elapsed; and Judith, returning from the double funeral of her father and sister, doffed her mourning for a gown less somber and more suited to the atmosphere of a sickroom, then relieved the nurse in charge of Alan.

He remained as he had been ever since the falling of the thunderbolt—in absolute coma.

But he lived, and—the physicians lied—must soon regain consciousness.

Kneeling beside his bedside Judith prayed long and earnestly.

When she arose it was to answer a tap upon the door. She admitted Tom Barcus and suffered him to lead her into the recess of the window, where they conversed in guarded tones in spite of the fact that the subject of their communications could not possibly have heard them.

"I've come to tell you something," Barcus announced with characteristic awkwardness. "I've known it for three days—ever since the wedding, in fact—and kept it to myself, not knowing whether I ought to tell you yet or not."

He paused, eyeing her uncertainly, unhappily. "I am prepared," Judith assured him calmly.

"You're nothing of the sort," he countered, argumentative. "You couldn't be. It's the most amazing thing imaginable. . . . See here . . ."

"Well?"

"You understand, don't you, that Alan must never know that Rose was killed by that lightning stroke?"

"What do you mean?"

"I mean," the man floundered miserably, "you see, he loved her so—I thought—I'm sure it would be best—if you can bring yourself to it—to let him go on believing it wasn't Rose who was killed, but Judith. And that's skating so close to the truth that it makes no difference: the Judith Alan knew and the Judith I knew in the beginning is gone as completely as though she and not Rose had been killed."

After a long pause, the girl asked him quietly: "I understand. But is it possible you don't understand that, if I were to consent to this proposition, lend myself to a deception which I must maintain through all my life to come—Alan would consider me his wife?"

"Well, but—you see—you are his wife. . . . Oh, don't think I'm off my bat: I'm telling you the plain, unvarnished truth. You are Alan's wife. . . . No, listen to me. You remember that day in New York when you substituted for Rose, when Alan tried to elope with her, and you went with him to Jersey City, and stood up to be married by a preacher-guy named Wright—and Marrophi broke in just at the critical moment and busted up the party?"

"Well?" she demanded breathlessly.

Barcus produced a folded yellow paper from his coat pocket and proffered it.

"Read that. It was handed to me as best man, just before the ceremony. Seeing it was addressed to Alan and knowing he was in no frame of mind to be bothered by telegrams, I slipped it into my pocket and forgot all about it temporarily. When I came to find it, I took the liberty of reading it. But read it for yourself."

The typewritten lines of the long message blurred and ran together almost indistinguishably in Judith's vision. None the less, she contrived to grasp the substance of its meaning:

"WHY DIDN'T YOU WIRE ME SOONER?" it ran: "MARRIAGE TO ROSE IMPOSSIBLE. REV. MR. WRIGHT INFORMED ME YOUR MARRIAGE TO JUDITH LAST WEEK HAD GONE TOO FAR WHEN MARROPHAT INTERRUPTED. JUDITH LEGALLY YOUR WIFE. WOULD HAVE ADVISED YOU SOONER HAD YOU LET ME KNOW WHERE TO ADDRESS YOU. HOPE TO HEAVEN THIS GETS TO YOU BEFORE TOO LATE."

The message was signed with the name of Alan's confidential man of business in New York. . . .

When Judith looked up she was alone in the room, but for the silent patient on his couch.

Slowly, almost fearfully, she crept to his bedside and stood looking down into the face of her husband.

And while she looked Alan's lashes fluttered, his respiration quickened, a faint color crept into his pallid cheeks—and his eyes opened wide and looked into hers.

His lips moved and breathed a word of recognition: "Judith!"

With a low cry of tenderness, the girl sank to her knees and encircled his head with her arms.

"Judith," she whispered, hiding her face in his bosom, "Judith is no more."

A pause; and then the feeble voice: "Then, if I was mistaken, if you aren't Judith, you must be Rose—my wife!"

She said steadily: "I am your wife."

His hands fumbled with her face, closed upon her cheeks, lifted her head until her eyes must look into his.

And for many minutes he held her so, looking deep into the soul of the woman.

Then quietly he said: "I know . . ."

END OF THE TREY O' HEARTS

to thank their hosts, Alan returned alone to the car.

"Goodness only knows," the young man answered cheerfully. "He would insist on rambling off down the canyon in search of an alleged town where we could hire a motor car—somewhere down there."

Taking the seat next the chauffeur, he gave the word to drive on; and they slipped away from the location of the mining camp, saluted by cheers from the miners.

Half an hour passed without a word spoken by any member of the party. Each was deep in his or her own special preoccupation.

The aged monomaniac occupied the right-hand corner of the rear seat. Thus his one able hand was next to Judith, in close juxtaposition to the revolver in the holster on her hip!

Without the least warning his left hand closed upon the weapon, withdrew it and leveled it at the back of Alan's head.

As he pulled the trigger Judith flung herself bodily upon the arm.

Even so, the bullet found a goal, though in another than the intended victim. The muscular forearm of the chauffeur received it.

With a shriek of pain the man released the wheel and grasped his arm.

Before Alan could move to prevent the disaster the car, running without a guiding hand, cannoned off a low embankment to the left and shot full tilt into a shallow ditch on the right, shelling its passengers like peas from a broken pod.

Alan catapulted a good twenty feet through the air and alighted with such force that he lay stunned for several moments.

When he came to, he found Barcus helping him to his feet: a heavy seven-passenger touring car halted in the roadway indicated the manner in which his friend had arrived on the scene of the accident.

When damages were assessed it was found that none of the party had suffered seriously but the chauffeur and Seneca Trine himself. The former had only his wound to show, however; while Trine lay still and senseless at a very considerable distance from the wrecked automobile.

III—THE LAST TRUMP.

Toward the evening of the third day following the motor spill, Judith sat in the deeply recessed window of a bedchamber on the second floor of a hotel situated in the heart of California's orange-growing lands.

Behind her Seneca Trine sat, apparently asleep, in a wheeled invalid chair.

CRUSHING PRUSSIA IN SEVEN DAYS IN THE PATH OF NAPOLEON

100 Years After
His Downfall

A Journey of 20,000 Miles

By JAMES MORGAN

The best example of the swiftness with which Napoleon made war is presented by Mr. Morgan today in his story of the astonishing Seven Days' Campaign that culminated in the Battle of Jena and the wreck of the Kingdom of Frederick the Great.

How Napoleon laid the corner stone of the modern German empire—How he abolished serfdom in Germany and made all men equal before the law—How the beautiful Queen Louise, great-grandmother of Kaiser William II., challenged him, and how the death of a simple bookseller aided to bring on a mighty war—How Napoleon hauled his army up the face of a steep cliff and fought the great battle of Jena on its brow—How one German woman conquered him with her courage and another with her tears—Napoleon at the tomb of Frederick the Great—All forming together a complete story today.

OVERTHROWING THE KINGDOM OF FREDERICK THE GREAT

DATES AND EVENTS—AGE 38-87.
November 3, 1805—King and queen of Prussia and czar of Russia pledged themselves against Napoleon by tomb of Frederick the Great.
December 15, 1805—Napoleon gave Hanover to Prussia.
July 12, 1806—The confederation of the Rhine formed under Napoleon's protection.
August 25, 1805—John Palm, the bookseller of Nuremberg, shot.
September 6, 1806—Prussia secretly opened the campaign against Napoleon.
September 25, 1806—Napoleon left Paris.
October 2, 1806—Arrived at the front.
October 8, 1806—Opened his Prussian campaign.
October 14, 1806—Overwhelmed Prussia at Jena and Auerstadt.
October 16, 1806—Napoleon at Weimar.
October 24, 1806—At Potsdam.
October 28, 1806—Entered Berlin in triumph.

It is a familiar remark that hardly a line Napoleon drew on the map of Europe survived his downfall. Yet it is true that he laid the corner stone of three great nations, not to mention Switzerland.

He rescued France from chaos and established her on foundations that have been little changed or weakened by time. He found Italy only a name and he made her a kingdom. He drew many German states together into the confederation of the Rhine, when Germany was but a vague, ill-defined geographical term, and he welded the Germanic peoples which had widened into the empire of the Kaisers.

While this man tore down with one hand, he built up with the other and was equally master of construction and destruction, creating civil institutions as quickly and skillfully as he created armies.

It is easy to quarrel with his motives and forget his achievements. The utter failure of his selfish ambition too often obscures the enduring success he won for the great cause that made him immortal—the mighty power of himself.

and which with the pitilessness of nature cut him away when he was no longer useful. This larger purpose killed him with a rage against the petty subdivisions that medieval ignorance and privilege had drawn between men, and with a passion for the unification of the continent in a United States of Europe.

GERMANY AS IT WAS.
At the opening of the nineteenth century Germany still remained a prey to the tribal system of the Middle Ages. There were nearly, if not quite, as many nations in the few hundred miles between the Rhine and the Neamen as there are independent sovereigns on the entire face of the earth today. A traveler may circumnavigate the globe now without crossing more frontiers or passing through more custom houses than he would find in a single day between the German people only a little more than 100 years ago. Progress was dead among them and patriotism was a name.

The innumerable courts and their aristocrats despised the mother tongue and spoke the more polite language of France. If the king of Prussia was a father to his queen he employed French.

German things were good enough only for the stolid, dumb, driven peasantry. These solid masses were the bulk of the nation, the resting place of earth beneath the burdens of the feudal system. They were without liberty, without schools, almost without rights of any kind and did not own a rod of the soil they tilled. The king of Prussia was by natural leader of Germany, but by far the largest strictly German state. But she was not only Prussian and cared little for Germany as a whole. The reigning family of Hohenzollerns, with no public conscience to call them to account, played politics as a social game of grabbing and cheating, looking only to increasing the numbers of their subjects and swelling their revenues. They were still atoning with the bloody spoils of the partition of Poland when they attacked Austria, their partners in that horrible crime, to traffic with Napoleon.

They were well satisfied to share his spoils until in his war with England he snatched Hanover from the British crown and took possession of the Elbe and the Weser, a step which brought him to the frontiers of Prussia and in the next moment of her fate. Napoleon gave the democracy a martyr as he had already given a martyr to the aristocracy when he ordered the shooting of the Duke d'Enghien in the moat at Vincennes. And the house of John Palm, which Nuremberg cherishes with pride, is one of the first houses on the "Path of Napoleon" to St. Helena. It deserves at the same time to be venerated as among the earliest shrines of United Germany, for perhaps the death of the bookseller of Nuremberg was the first event to arouse a really national public opinion among the German people. His fate contributed a sentiment, an element of

A PATRIOTIC QUEEN.
Louise was not a Prussian. Born in one of the smaller states and a daughter of one of the poorest of the princely families, she grew up in poverty and close to the soil, she had imbibed the true native spirit and felt the stirring of a German patriotism.

When the young and enthusiastic cesar hastened to Berlin to urge the king to join the coalition against France in 1805, he found an enthusiastic ally in Louise. The king and the queen to melodramatic scene viewed over the tomb of Frederick the Great by lantern light never to rest until Napoleon was driven back beyond the Elbe.

In less than a month the battle of Austerlitz was fought, the czar put to flight and the emperor of Austria brought to terms. It was now Napoleon's turn to dictate terms. Instead of whipping his triumphant army toward Prussia, however, he chose to humor her, and at the same time empoison her with England by making her a gift of Hanover, which he had only just taken from her ally, the British king. He was quickly rewarded for his magnanimity when he saw Prussia, mistaking the smiling war on him at war with England, whose navy swooped down upon her merchant flag and swept it from the seas.

THE WAR BEGUN.
The war had begun, with 120,000 Prussians and Saxons moving southward toward the communications of the grand army while the grand army itself, 100,000 strong, moved northward from Bavaria to place itself between the allies and their base. One plan was as good as the other, all things being equal; but they were not equal.

Most of the Prussians, who were challenging the veterans of Austerlitz, never had been in battle and none ever had tasted victory. Moreover, although Napoleon and his commanders had been campaigning almost constantly for a dozen years or more, all but a few among them were well under 40. On the other hand, the Prussian general-in-chief, the Duke of Brunswick, was 70, and no longer able to sit a horse; one of his marshals was 80; nearly half the colonels were more than 60; a third of the majors were past 50 and the rest were past 55. And no one in the army ever had held a command in a successful campaign.

DEATH OF JOHN PALM.
While the Prussian nobility were in the transports of an unreasoning rage and a blind self-assurance, Napoleon himself suddenly aroused the fury of the middle classes throughout Germany. Some anti-French pamphlets appearing in the confederation, he ordered that their editors be brought before a military commission and shot within 24 hours. In accordance with that sentence the soldierly went to Nuremberg, seized John Palm, a bookseller, stood him against a wall and shot him.

By shooting that bookseller, Napoleon gave the democracy a martyr as he had already given a martyr to the aristocracy when he ordered the shooting of the Duke d'Enghien in the moat at Vincennes. And the house of John Palm, which Nuremberg cherishes with pride, is one of the first houses on the "Path of Napoleon" to St. Helena. It deserves at the same time to be venerated as among the earliest shrines of United Germany, for perhaps the death of the bookseller of Nuremberg was the first event to arouse a really national public opinion among the German people. THE NIGHT BEFORE.
The larger part of that small field was white with the tents of the Prussians and Saxons when Napoleon entered their camp. They were sure against the approach of the enemy. They held the only high road from Jena, which winds about until it takes the big hill in the rear while the allied most perpendicular front of the hill rose like an impenetrable breastwork for their protection. The thought that a great army might scale it had not entered their heads. When they were ever had sent an army up the walls of the Alps to be dashed now by the Leaning Tower and he ordered his columns to scramble after him up the wooden steps.

By 1 o'clock there was fighting enough behind the garden walls of Verzenhellenberg for the most ardent warrior there the root of the allied began. There the kingdom of Frederick the Great was suited to earth. At 4 o'clock the Duke of Brunswick, who longer disputed field, where the French artillery, drawn at a gallop in pursuit of the Prussians, ground its way over the bones of the dead.

THE MORNING SURPRISE.
When the darkness of night had lifted from the field a heavy fog remained to conceal the movements of the French from the unsuspecting enemy. The allies were still fast asleep when out of a thick mist a shower of bullets began suddenly to rain upon their tents. Finding that the foe came from their rear and retook them while a hail of lead pelleted their walls.

Against the tiny town of Verzenhellenberg in particular the battle tide ebbed for a full half day. Feudal rises a cross in memory of the men who were slain in its walls, and doryards, while its tavern walls are covered with rusty souvenirs of the old combats. Although divided by stone walls into many thirty, little German farms, the size of the battle-field was as good as the field of the French. It was the only light permitted in the French camp, and the emperor sat by it studying his plans for the morrow.

All night his soldiers were toiling up the rocky beds of the dry brooks, but they extinguished their lanterns as they entered the camp. They were sure their sleeping comrades in the silent encampment. It was the emperor's habit, however, to sleep with the night before a battle. Most commanders at such times issue their orders for the next day and go to bed. Napoleon, on the contrary, took his rest first and planned his battles after rousing himself. He wrote the orders for the possession of the latest reports to reach his headquarters. He lay down, at 8 o'clock, he wrote the orders for the Prussian campaign, "and rise at midnight. I sometimes think that you are not very far from being a prophet."

When he rose at midnight before the battle of Jena and made the round of his camp he found some heavy guns had been stalled in the steep track up the night. He went among the batteries, however, and when he saw they saw the emperor, lantern in hand, taking charge of the work, they were surprised to renewed efforts in their struggles against the rocks and trees that opposed them.

the commanding officers were satisfied that the attack was being made by a mere skirmishing party which had contrived to climb the face of the hill. It is a fact that the battle had been predicted perhaps two hours before the seriousness of the engagement was apparent. From the Prussian commander, Prince Hohenzollern, did not know Napoleon was upon him and he sent off a message congratulating himself. "I am whipping the enemy at every point."

Napoleon's first object and need was to drive in the wings of the allied forces and gain a decent footing on the hill. For his own constant and swelling army, which was separated from the enemy's line by only 1,200 yards, few commanders would have undertaken to open a great battle in such close quarters, with the precipice of the Landgrafenberg yawning behind him. Moreover it was noon before his reinforcements gave him as many men as the enemy. It was only by the swiftness of his march that he was saved from being badly outnumbered and the battle was won by the legs of the French. If they had waited at the pace usual with armies, Jena would have been a defeat instead of a victory for Napoleon.

TWO VICTORIES IN A DAY.
While he waited for the hurrying troops to climb up on the plateau, he positioned the decisive stroke and the imperial guard burned with Gallic impetuosity to get into the fray. "Forward!" some guardsman in the ranks cried. The Prussian line was broken and his saddle to scowl sternly at the impetuous soldier.

"How now?" he exclaimed. "What a useless youth is this who dares to offer his counsel to his emperor? Let him wait till he has commanded in thirty pitched battles before he ventures to give me advice!" Nevertheless the Prussian line was broken and the Napoleon's seal had been broken in the French camp, and the emperor sat by it studying his plans for the morrow.

THE NIGHT BEFORE.
The larger part of that small field was white with the tents of the Prussians and Saxons when Napoleon entered their camp. They were sure against the approach of the enemy. They held the only high road from Jena, which winds about until it takes the big hill in the rear while the allied most perpendicular front of the hill rose like an impenetrable breastwork for their protection. The thought that a great army might scale it had not entered their heads. When they were ever had sent an army up the walls of the Alps to be dashed now by the Leaning Tower and he ordered his columns to scramble after him up the wooden steps.

By 1 o'clock there was fighting enough behind the garden walls of Verzenhellenberg for the most ardent warrior there the root of the allied began. There the kingdom of Frederick the Great was suited to earth. At 4 o'clock the Duke of Brunswick, who longer disputed field, where the French artillery, drawn at a gallop in pursuit of the Prussians, ground its way over the bones of the dead.

A BRAVE WOMAN.
Napoleon, having beaten the allies on the field of battle, proceeded to employ the arts of statesmanship and diplomacy to divide them forever. He assembled and addressed in friendly terms the captive Saxon officers, who pledged themselves not only to abandon the war against him and go home, but also to advise their sovereign to break the alliance with France.

Going to Weimar, through whose peaceful streets the French pursued the routed foe, he came to the palace of the Duke of Weimar, another ally of the Prussians, who was with them in their flight. The duchess, on the other hand, had stopped for breakfast he found he had not saved even the price of a cup of coffee and had to borrow the money to pay for his meal.

A WOMAN'S TEARS.
Another woman saved the life of her husband by appealing to Napoleon, after the battle had been decided, to the capital of Prussia, and entering Berlin in triumph, had seated himself in the abandoned palace of the Hohenzollerns. This was the wife of the Prince Hatzfeld, governor of Berlin, who, after having been obliged to do nothing against the interests of the army of occupation, attempted to communicate with the king. The letter fell into Napoleon's hands; the king was arrested and about to be brought before a court-martial, which would have sentenced him to death. It was when the princess threw herself upon the mercy of the emperor, "I never could read your husband's name," said Napoleon, "but I know the conqueror who had been conquered by Josephine's tears."

"The emperor," she demanded of the princess, "is not that your husband's name?" The princess could not deny that it was Napoleon's name. He had been named in the letter as he pointed to the bed on which he had now in a few weeks thrown it in the fire and I shall have no evidence against him."

BY FREDERICK'S TOMB.
On his march to Berlin, Napoleon entered the green gate and went to bed in the very roccoco precincts of Frederick the Great, whose Frenchified palace of Sans Souci, which sits amid its terraces and fountains at Potsdam, having overthrown the kingdom of Frederick in a campaign of seven days, he felt entitled to make himself at home in the favorite retreat of the hero of the Seven Years' War. Like the tourists who daily stream through the green gate, the emperor sat in the room of the king, and the clock which he used to wind whose hands stopped at the very minute of its master's death. The invited guest of Sans Souci also made a pilgrimage to the Garrison Church in the town of Potsdam, the place of worship of the Hohenzollerns, which is almost as plain as a New England meeting house. There in a barbed-iron niche behind the severely simple Lutheran pulpit, two plain marble sarcophagi rest on the altar. One holds the dust of Frederick the Great, quarrelsome father, Frederick William and heir that he almost drove him into exile and actually did lock him up in the fortress of Spandau, and the other with wretches, holds the dust of Frederick.

A sword and sash and hat of the mighty warrior lay upon his sarcophagus when Napoleon visited the tomb and he promptly ordered that they be sent to the museum of the Hotel des Invalides in Paris. "I would rather have these than 20,000 francs," was his very practical computation of the value of those most impressive—if unvarnished—tokens of his victory over Prussia.

It may seem almost too theatrical to have the dust of Frederick the Great, the dust of Frederick the Great, quarrelsome father, Frederick William and heir that he almost drove him into exile and actually did lock him up in the fortress of Spandau, and the other with wretches, holds the dust of Frederick.

NEXT SUNDAY. The flight of the Brave Queen Louise to the last town in Her Kingdom, Napoleon's Parulf and the Great Battles of Eylau and Friedland, the District Fields of Wlodek. Mr. Morgan Visited in His 20,000-Mile Journey.

Street Costumes For The Young Girl

SIMPLICITY is the characteristic of this demi-tailleur of wool sponge in dark gray. The width of the skirt is in the long tunic. The generous and well-shaped collar is of fine white linen. The sash, buttons and lining, of dull Venetian red, give it a needed touch of color. The hat is of white satin, trimmed with irregular ends of black velvet.

COAT of novelty woolen in mustard color, trimmed with pockets of same material and finished with a detachable circular cape of fine serge. An effective bit of ornamentation is the sash weighted with long silk tassels. A very smart hat is this little model of velvet with a stiff brim turned up sharply against the crown and decorated with three feather fancies.

REDINGOTE of a new shade of blue, gabardine made with full skirt and blouse and raglan sleeves. The self-belt is fastened with buttons that also ornament the sleeves and flat collar. The hat of velvet, of same shade, is trimmed with bands of fur and bronze color ostrich feathers.
