Mr. Bruguiere said he swam twenty minutes with his mother. His head was struck by a piece of wreckage and he was forced momentarily to leave her.

When he came again to the surface, Mrs. Bruguiere had disappeared. Half an hour later she was discovered aboard one of the ship's small boats. He found her in the water, but she was too far away to be reached by his mother.

Two Americans Certainly Lost. London, August 20.—At least five passengers of the Lusitania and forty members of the crew lost their lives when the White Star liner was torpedoed and sunk yesterday morning. Nine other passengers are missing and are believed to have perished.

The two Americans lost were Mrs. Josephine Bruguiere of New York, and Edward J. Bruguiere. Mrs. Bruguiere was thrown into the water and was kept afloat for some time by her life preserver. She was rescued by the crew of the ship.

That the loss of life was not much less than that of the Lusitania was made by the officers on entering the "war zone," to the fine weather and to the splendid discipline of the crew. The Lusitania had been placed on the decks and the lifeboats were lowered on the side.

The Americans who reached Queenstown were cared for by the United States consular officials. The passengers they left Ireland for England tonight. They lost all their baggage and many of them were without clothing until the consular had provided for them.

The consular carried 2,315 bags of mail, mostly for the United States. The mail included several hundred letters from the Lusitania, and other countries. England greatly stirred.

England greatly stirred. The Lusitania was sunk from end to end, although on account of the comparative small loss of life public feeling does not show signs of running high as in the days following the sinking of the Lusitania.

MOBBERS RETURNED GUN TO THE WARDEN

It became known on Friday, through a member of the state prison commission, that the mob which took from Warden Smith his gun on the night of the Frank abduction from the state prison did not carry the same away. When members of the mob knocked on Warden Smith's door Warden Smith, anticipating trouble, appeared at the door with a fine new pump gun. This was promptly taken away from him and it was reported that the gun was returned to the warden by the mob. It was found later, however, in the office of the warden that the gun had been returned to him there purposely for the warden to get.

A DANGEROUS PRECEDENT.

Governor Harris is planning to issue a call within the next few days for an extraordinary session of the Georgia legislature, which is necessary to pass a general appropriations bill to meet the expenses of the state for the next two years.

This necessity was created by members of the legislature interested in certain pending measures, who, seeing no possibility of the enactment of these measures at the regular session, brought about an adjournment of that body without the enactment of the appropriation bill, which is essential to the operation of every department of the state.

It was, admittedly, a deliberate action on their part in the hope and belief that consideration of their own measures would be included in the call by the governor for the session which they knew would result from their unusual and obstructive tactics.

The measures in question were the prohibition bills, which have passed the senate and were pending for action in the house. The advocates of these bills, through a majority of a quorum, brought about sine die adjournment when there was abundant unused time in which to have passed the general appropriations bill in legal form.

Without regard to the merits of the proposed legislation, the state cannot afford to circumvent the plain provisions of its constitution by resorting to extraordinary legislative sessions to satisfy the friends or foes of any legislation which is the legitimate subject matter of consideration by regular sessions of the general assembly.

The constitution limits each legislature to two annual sessions of fifty days each, and their recent session voluntarily adjourned before the constitutional period had expired. The same legislature will reconvene next June with fifty more days of regular session available for the enactment of unfinished legislation.

The constitutional authority for an extra session presupposes an emergency of sufficient importance to justify the call. This emergency is presented by the necessity for the passage of the appropriation measure which can be enacted by a six days' session of the general assembly called in extraordinary session for that exclusive purpose.

No excuse of emergency can be found in pending measures which have survived fifty days of regular session, have passed the senate and are pending in the house as unfinished business, with fifty days' additional time for debate and final action.

To include in the call for an extra session the measures which have engendered these conditions will be to invite an unnecessary renewal of legislative tactics which will undoubtedly leave impress upon the important items of the appropriations bill when passed, and which will indefinitely prolong the wranglings of the assembled solons at heavy expense to the state.

The constitutional limitation of time does not apply to extraordinary sessions, and once let loose upon consideration of matters not emergent, the war of words will wage until wisdom and wind have been exhausted.

The responsibility for the inconvenience and expense attendant upon the inevitable extra session is confessedly with those legislators whose tactics made it necessary.

The responsibility for the expense and friction that will undoubtedly result from an extra session, not exclusively confined to appropriation legislation, would be laid upon the shoulders of the executive upon whom the constitution confers the great power of convening the general assembly in extra session when sufficient emergency shall require.

Governor Harris, regardless of his personal views on the merits of the pending measures, should promptly decline to make the executive department a party to the proceedings by which the appropriations bill was sidetracked and abandoned, and a special session necessitated for its consideration.

His strong and urgent special message to the house, demanding the final enactment of the appropriations bill before adjournment, was ignored by the friends of the other measures, who forced the adjournment, over his protest, and who now seek to make him accessory after the fact.

The successful culmination of their efforts would establish a precedent which would create an ever-recurring menace to appropriation measures, nullify the constitutional protection against unlimited sessions of the legislature, and saddle the state with the burdensome legacy of useless expense and disputation.

SINKING OF THE ARABIC.

The torpedoing of the White Star liner Arabic while on her way from Liverpool to New York, by a German submarine, and the consequent loss of life as indicated in cable dispatches, would seem at first glance to complicate the issue between the United States and the Imperial German government more than any incident which has occurred since the sinking of the Lusitania.

We had come to believe that Germany, while she has not yet replied to the last American note, had at least intended to comply in all essential respects with our demands looking to the protection of Americans traveling upon passenger steamers of whatever nationality. In fact, as a result of Germany's apparent tacit acquiescence, there were those who had come to consider the Lusitania incident almost as closed. It was anticipated that even if Germany had delayed her reply until the close of the war, and had at the same time conducted her submarine warfare in a manner not to give further offense to this country, it would have been a comparatively easy matter to reach a basis of agreement, so far as the case of the Lusitania was concerned, through ordinary diplomatic channels.

But now the sinking of the Arabic puts a new aspect upon the matter. The case of the Arabic, so far as is disclosed in the press dispatches, is strikingly similar to that of the Lusitania, with the exception that as she was bound for New York, the German government cannot even fall back upon the excuse that she was carrying ammunition and other contraband of war to Germany's enemies. Among her passengers were a number of Americans.

If the Arabic was sunk without warning and without opportunity being given for the escape to safety of those on board, and if thereby a single American life has been lost, then Germany has committed an act which, as she was informed in the last note dispatched to that government by President Wilson, is considered by the United States as "deliberately unfriendly."

But before forming judgment as to the destruction of the Arabic it is our duty to make full and complete investigation of the facts surrounding it. We should hear both from witnesses and from the German government regarding it. It has even been suggested that possibly the German submarine commander exceeded his orders. There are numerous possibilities in connection with the case, any one of which might take it wholly out of the Lusitania class.

We should not reach the hasty conclusion based upon superficial evidence that Germany has been "deliberately unfriendly." There are those who counsel an immediate rupture of diplomatic relations, the step which has been contemplated by the United States in the event that Germany refused to meet our demands looking to the protection of American life upon passenger steamers.

We do not believe President Wilson will act hastily or unadvisedly. He has given ample demonstration of that foresight and prudence coupled with patriotic determination, which have proven a great American safeguard in dangerous international crises. We shall continue to believe that he can be counted upon to do the right thing at the right time.

ITALY'S FIERY MINSTREL.

Some of the most distinguished authors and artists have volunteered in France and have been fighting with the troops in the trenches. But in Italy D'Annunzio plays the most spectacular part of all. The Philadelphia Public Ledger says "his weapons are winged words," and that "the proclamation he rained on Trieste from an aeroplane was worth many a battalion to Italy."

He struck the war note for his country with hand and heart of fire, and the flame spread. It is finely said of him that he gave wings to words that "breathe and burn."

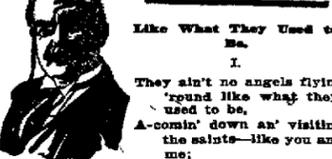

So, whether he is sending proclamations fluttering from airship heights or cheering on the people with songs and deeds, through him the country feels the poetry of power. The glow of victory is in his hues. He strikes strong and true, and the heart of Italy responds.

Villa needn't think he is thoroughly civilized because he can swear like a mad American.

They are trying to get Spain in the war. Since she isn't hunting trouble, they are willing to hand it to her.

Probably the Czar is waiting for his generals to put up a better front before he goes to it.

For yonder, where the bullets fly an' cannon-music a-sings, The airships rounnin' 'round the sky would bump into their wings.

It's dangerous for them to come; the war-clouds look so black; They hide the earth, an' blot the stars along the heavenly track.

There isn't hardly room enough for all the wings to race; The lightning-heaven didn't send make fire hide its face!

The old earth jes' don't know herself that once was shiny-fair, She's flyin' fur from heaven to the awful nothin' of the air; An' so we're sighin' for the times—the times that used to be.

When the angels came a-viallin' the saints—like you an' me!

A Billville Checkbook. One of our leading citizens has just returned from England, where he went up in a airship—so high that he didn't know how to light. He was also at the war front—for about ten minutes, but he made such good time getting away, a gun with a twenty-mile range could not overtake him. No attempt was made to submerge him, coming over, he says he went over there to tell 'em when the war would end, but he didn't stay long enough.

"DELIBERATELY UNFRIENDLY" ACROSS MANY AMERICAN EDITORS

OF THE SINKING OF THE ARABIC

Washington, August 20.—Officials here were greatly interested in the editorials in American newspapers on the sinking of the Arabic. Extracts from these editorials follow:

Knoxville (Tenn.) Sentinel: Without regard to whether American lives are lost or not, Germany's sinking of the Arabic is a deliberately unfriendly act and is apparently determined to put a question mark on the relations of the country which will trust the president to deal with the situation.

Mobile (Ala.) Item: If reports are correct that the Arabic was torpedoed without warning, causing American citizens to lose their lives, it cannot be construed otherwise than as a deliberately unfriendly act against the United States. The withdrawal of Ambassador Gerard, let the consequences be what they may. The United States cannot but feel such a respect.

Case Was Ugly Aspects. Chattanooga (Tenn.) News: At the present writing the case seems to show very critical and ugly aspects and certainly will accentuate feeling in this country and make the diplomatic relations of the two countries more strained. The press dispatches, however, are not so specific as the circumstances seem to warrant.

Montgomery Journal: The sinking without warning of the Arabic with Americans aboard brings the relations between the United States and Germany to a most strained condition, if not to a point of severance of diplomatic relations. This country's consent to the withdrawal of Ambassador Gerard, if this proposition this would seem to be inevitable.

Charleston (S. C.) Evening Post: A strict interpretation of the incident could bring the United States and Germany to a peace treaty with Germany. The note of July 25 left nothing to negotiation.

unfriendly." The people are confident that the president will in this new crisis maintain the principles of the American flag as announced in that are so strongly indorsed by the country.

Washington Post: If the Arabic citizens were brought about a most grave situation in the face of a most solemn warning.

Washington Herald: The gravity of the situation that has been forced upon us cannot be overestimated. We are surely near the breaking point with Germany.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: American sentiment is unanimously against a nation which stands sponsor for the policy of stealthy murder.

Cleveland Leader: If it is true that no warning was given, a grave crisis has come in the relations of the United States with Germany.

Chicago Evening Post: Individuals and newspapers who, without waiting to hear the facts, are rushing to condemn the sinking of the Arabic to be a deliberately unfriendly act in the sense of the president's recent warning to Germany are not expected. "Well, what now?" show by this only that they wish and will have, if nothing is heard from Germany, to be American and unpatriotic. America's interest hands peace and friendship. We believe that a war with Germany would benefit this country.

Challenge Definite and Defiant. Portland, Oregonian: The attack of the Arabic is a challenge, definite and defiant, to President Wilson to follow his words with deeds.

Pueblo (Colo.) Chieftain: It would be unresponsible to expect the German navy to be held back by the incident. The westbound when the same ship was serving as a war cargo carrier on the eastbound trip.

Lincoln (Neb.) Journal: To torpedo the Arabic without warning would be an act of hostility toward the United States.

New York Evening Post: It is useless to heap words to show how critical the situation. The whole tale is not yet told but enough is known to prove that the commander of the Arabic is a man of high ability of the distinct warning given by President Wilson. No one imagines President Wilson would have hesitated to retreat from the position taken by him.

Brooklyn Eagle: Assuming that all the circumstances are as reported the first step is to demand that the German government unambiguously recall Mr. Gerard from Berlin. After that congress could well be assembled to decide for whatever may be forced upon us.

Chicago Evening Post: If the Arabic, carrying American citizens among its passengers, is sunk by a German submarine, the German submarine there is but one thing that can justify the United States in continuing to insist on the withdrawal of Ambassador Gerard. That is a prompt repudiation with ample apology and assurance of further avoidance from the imperial government.

Chicago Daily News: The case of the United States government is the case of the United States. The issues involved have been clearly outlined.

Minneapolis Journal: By sinking the Arabic without warning Germany has given the United States a most serious and humiliating situation. She has united the civilized nations against her.

German-American Viewpoint. New York Evening Staats Zeitung: To deny that the sinking of the Arabic is a deliberate act against which President Wilson gave him timely and friendly warning is to play the role of the ostrich. The hearts are seriously threatened. The situation is serious because the policy of the United States government is being pushed and stimulated by a pro-British press, which despite all protestations of peace wantonly and deliberately is provoking a conflict, because, as the case of the Arabic again shows, the German government is not willing to agree to the terms of our government.

New York (Evening) Herald: With the German war machine in the hands of the United States, the sinking of the Arabic is a deliberate act against which President Wilson gave him timely and friendly warning.

Philadelphia Inquirer: If there has been any delay in the sinking of the Arabic, it is a deliberate act against which President Wilson gave him timely and friendly warning.

Pittsburgh Leader: What other fate for the Arabic is there? The German navy is a deliberate act against which President Wilson gave him timely and friendly warning.

Philadelphia Record: It suffices to say that the sinking of the Arabic is a deliberate act against which President Wilson gave him timely and friendly warning.

Buffalo Express: There, then, is the deliberate act against which President Wilson gave him timely and friendly warning.

DARKNESS.

By GEORGE BYRNE. Author of "At Good Old Hawaii."

Darkness is a condition which occurs when the sun goes off duty at night. It is very thick and black and is distinguished for its entire absence of light. If a thousand miles of darkness could be run through, it is clear that it would yield enough light to satisfy an engaged couple in a lonely parlor.

Darkness is very unpopular, because it compels man to spend large sums of money for hand-made light which is a very inferior article and is always going off at a critical point in the entertainment, giving some chump an opportunity to yell "Fire!" Nevertheless, darkness is very useful and often gratifying. No man who has heard an umpire call the ball and the high baller with the home team and an eyelash can speak in anything but the highest terms of darkness.

Darkness is also a boon to the man who has bought his first suit to dash and and a man has worn one of these suits around the block at night for a week before he has had the courage to ejaculate himself into the thousandth part of all his spotless radiance. Darkness has saved our farmers wives from the high price of kerosene.

If there was no darkness the residents of New York City would have to live by daylight and vast numbers of them would expire of ennui and other contagious diseases. Astronomers take long refreshing squirts at the universe and by means of the stars to weigh the earth and calculate its size. It has also enabled enterprising capitalists of industry to put electric lights in a great many places and to say things to 5,000,000 people at one time.

Moreover, darkness is a soft, thick veil which hides a million billboards from the suffering public. For this reason alone we should be grateful to the stars and their courage it by every means in our power, even to refusing to pay gas bills when they are too high.

SUMMER SCHOOLS SAVE CITY $15,650

Teachers Are Praised for Their Work by Superintendent Landrum and President R. J. Guinn.

Atlanta's public summer schools, which will close their first season next Friday, have been a success far beyond the fondest hopes of the board of education and other interested educators, according to reports made Friday afternoon at a meeting of the two-score of teachers who have conducted the work. Several members of the board of education were present and the general counsel was represented by Alderman C. H. Kelley.

Aside from the great good that has been done for the 1,117 children enrolled in adding them in securing education in the shortest time possible and in restoring their self-confidence, they were given an opportunity to be promoted this fall along with their classmates, the schools have been a financial success.

Saving of $15,650. Figures were submitted by Miss Laura M. Smith, general supervisor of summer schools, and her assistant, Miss Oza Stamps, showing an actual saving to the city of $15,650 as a result of holding the summer schools. The city appropriated $75,000 for this work.

The highly gratifying report was made that of the 1,117 pupils who enrolled for the summer work 92 per cent were successful in making up the requirements.

Of those enrolled, 915 sought to make up deficiencies having failed of promotion at the close of the last regular school term.

An offer was made to children properly recommended by their teachers to give them summer work to enable them to skip a grade next year. In the work 111 children enrolled, and the teachers reported that some excellent work was accomplished in that department.

President R. J. Guinn, of the board of education, in addressing the teachers in their educational symposium, stated that it has been estimated that each 16-year-old child is valued at $200 per year to a community. On that basis, the summer school had been worth $200,000 to Atlanta already.

I have never attended an educational symposium that was more delightful, and I have never appreciated the work of our teachers as much as I do today, said Mr. Guinn. At low salaries you have taken this work, put your whole heart into it, and I consider it a very high type of social service.

The success that has attended the first experiment Atlanta has made in summer schools may be described in several terms, according to Mr. Guinn, who stated that superintendent L. J. Lanorun has already been working out plans for such a system.

Alderman C. H. Kelley, who was largely responsible for the appropriation of money for the establishment of the summer schools, told the teachers that their work would have a far-reaching effect on the city.

A Pioneer Society. Superintendent Landrum likened the summer schools to a pioneer society, organized to establish a new and better educational system for the city. He said that the success of the summer schools, expressed her appreciation of the work of the school teachers.

Miss Brenner urged the establishment of a permanent school for defective children. Miss Mammie Pitts, senior teacher at Moreland Avenue summer school, said that in her five years of teaching in the past summer has been the most pleasant.

Mrs. C. J. Maddox, senior teacher of Moreland Avenue summer school, said that in her five years of teaching in the past summer has been the most pleasant.

Mrs. T. D. Albright, senior teacher of the Boulevard school, stated that one of the most striking features of the summer school was the equality of the children. She said the children were so enthused over their work that to discipline them was a matter of course.

At the Boulevard school Mrs. Albright reported that during the nine weeks only four children in the seventh grade were absent.

Miss Smith, general supervisor of the schools, declared that she was surprised at the equality of the children, after it had been stated by some that the children would object to attending school during the vacation season.

Several of the teachers said they have had tested out the group method of teaching and had found it highly satisfactory in that it held the attention of children who were listless and inattentive in larger classes.

At Druid Hills Baptist. Dr. L. E. Barton pastor of the Jackson Hill Baptist church, will preach at the Druid Hills Baptist church Sunday morning and evening. The subject of the morning's sermon will be, "Joy Lost and Found."

CALLAWAY PREDICTS GOOD COTTON PRICES

Does Not Believe Contraband Declaration by England Will Affect Situation.

Fuller Callaway, principal owner of six large cotton mills, in an interview in The New York Herald on Thursday, takes the optimistic view that England's declaration of a cotton contraband will not affect the cotton situation in the south, and predicts a price of 15 cents for cotton before the summer of 1917.

Mr. Callaway's interview is, in part, as follows: "We have merely arrived at a rock-bottom situation, and from now on for the next five years there will be no worry about cotton and the prices it will bring. The amount of cotton produced in Germany and Austria has been recently about 3,000,000 bales a year. Where did the cotton go? At least 1,500,000 bales were manufactured into material which was shipped to South America and other points. Therefore, the actual shortage of the world's supply is 1,500,000 bales. The goods which were furnished to other countries heretofore dependent on Germany look into the actual cotton situation. Last year the south produced an average crop—about 17,000,000 bales, which was a normal crop, and which must be included in this year's crop. From the available statistics the crop this year will be more than 18,000,000 bales, and very possibly will not exceed 12,500,000. As the cotton crop this year is 18,000,000 bales, this year we should carry over not much more than 1,000,000 bales. The total cotton crop of the world is 1,000,000 bales, which will mean a visible supply in 1916 of only 1,000,000 bales, as compared with a shortage of 1,000,000 bales, as compared to the world's needs. To be conservative, I should hold over 10,000,000 bales, we shall go into 1917 with not a pound of cotton in the world. The figures I take into account hinters."

"Now, in order to force the farmer to begin to add to his cotton production, the price must be advanced. This is simple logic. Therefore, for the present, the price of cotton should be quoted at 15 cents a pound."

Hall County's Capital Is Thrilled When Ford Races With Wild Horse

Gainesville, Ga., August 20.—(Special)—The Roman amphitheater in the days of the first tube skirts furnished such races truly thrilling to occupy plenty of space in ancient history, but for unpolluted thrills it self, the race was enacted before the awed gaze of hundreds of onlookers, many of whom had tried in vain to check the wild horse by throwing his main lines in its path. The buggy contained the 10-year-old son of Mr. Turk Roy, and the horse had become frightened at a passing automobile. Careening dangerously, the animal circled around and around the square, frightening all traffic from the circle of pavement.

Driving the Gray Fox, Berry Egwell and C. O. Wallace, speed kings of local repute, volunteered to save the buggy's occupant. The horse had circled the square a dozen times when the automobile, driving at a furious pace, forced the horse under a street light which kept to the wheel of the rescuing machine, his companion reached out and grabbed the bridle reins.

Two New Measures Proposed to Harris For Extra Session

Almost daily delegations in the interest of various subjects of legislation call upon Governor Harris urging him to include these matters in his call for an extra session.

On Friday two delegations called upon him. One of these asked that he include for consideration at the extra session of the general assembly a bill which would re-establish by special act the school system of the state, as provided by the constitution, as branches of superior courts by the Georgia court of appeals. The other delegation, headed by Mr. K. B. Kilburn of Macon, called in the interest of labor legislation, asking in particular that the matter under consideration be included in the extra session call. Governor Harris has taken all of these matters under consideration, and has not announced his decision in any of them.

LIVED LONG ENOUGH, SO HE SOUGHT DEATH

Elberton, Ga., August 20.—(Special)—T. C. Greer, a Western Union operator for 50 years and a resident of Elberton, died early this morning on a vacant lot near the office of Dr. E. J. Wall with his head against a wall. He was taken to the city hall, where medical attention was given him. He seemed consciousness and stated that he had cut his own throat with a razor he had bought yesterday. His reason for attempting to take his life was that he had lived long enough. He had been missing from Abbeville two or three days. His family was notified and they took charge of him today. It is learned they will place him in a hospital.

Board Election Called Off. Lively, Ga., August 20.—(Special)—Having come to yesterday that he it would be useless to go to the expense of holding an election, the board of health of Lively called off the board election that had been advertised for August 22. # COULD EXTRA SESSION HAVE BEEN AVERTED?

Legislators Believe the Senate Could Have Legally Passed Money Sheet.

That the passage of the appropriations bill by the senate as passed by the house, even though the house had adjourned, would have been sufficient to make it law with the signatures of the assembly officers and the governor, and would have averted the now necessary extra session of the general assembly, is the belief of members of the senate who were at the state house yesterday.

The senate had the original appropriation bill, already passed by the house, under consideration at the time the house adjourned. It was adjourned by action of the vote of the prohibition wing, for the express purpose of forcing an extra session with the hope of then considering prohibition measures which had been barred from the consideration of the house by the minority wing during the regular session.

Although the house did not give the senate any formal notice of its having adjourned, when the senate was unofficially apprised of the adjournment, it also adjourned under the impression that it could do nothing more.

Since the house simply quit without observing this constitutional provision, it is argued that at the time the senate adjourned it was not yet formally adjourned, and if the senate before adjourning, had passed the general appropriations bill, as it was permitted to do, it would have been a further action on the part of the house which would have been necessary, the bill would have become a law without the signatures of the officials of the house and senate and the governor.

It is argued that the speaker and the clerk of the house and the secretary of the senate, if they had been notified of the adjournment of the house for five days after the adjournment of the regular session for committee details of legislation, this would have meant that these officials could have signed the general appropriations bill, and it would have become a law without the signatures of the governor and the senate.

BIG BLACK BEARS BEING KILLED IN BIBB COUNTY

While Squirrel Hunting C. W. Libby, of Bullards, Kills 400-Pound Bruin.

Macon, Ga., August 20.—(Special)—That bears, and big ones, too, are still roaming about the swamps of middle Georgia was proven yesterday when C. W. Libby, of Bullards, in Bibb county, while on a hunt in Houston county, and for a time Mr. Libby thought he wasn't going to live to tell about it either.

While wandering around in search of squirrels Mr. Libby found a big black bear. He attempted to shoot, but the shell in his gun became lodged and would not discharge. Finally, however, he managed to dislodge the shell and then killed the bear. Later it was found that the bear weighed 400 pounds. The skin has been brought to Macon for exhibition purposes.

A few years ago Monroe Phillips, who went on a rampage in Brunswick several months ago and killed several people, invited Theodore Roosevelt to Georgia to participate in a bear hunt, Phillips claiming that the swamp around Phillips' station, below Macon, on the Southern railway, was full of bears. Roosevelt declined the invitation, however. A number of bears of unusual size have been killed there.

Physicians Thwart Woman's Attempt To Commit Suicide

Quick work by physicians of the Grady hospital saved the life of Mrs. Minnie Lee, aged 30, who attempted suicide by taking bichloride of mercury poison.

At the hospital Mrs. Lee said she took the poison because she wanted to die, but would give no additional reasons why she wanted to end her life. She said that the poison had not been opened by the hotel clerks.

Announcement has been made that Lieutenant DeWitt Grubbs, of the Sixth Infantry, of the United States army, is detailed as commandant of the cadet corps of the Georgia Military college. Lieutenant Grubbs is a graduate of West Point, and has wide experience in military affairs.

G. C. GLOVER, NEWSPAPER DEALER, DIES IN MACON

Macon, Ga., August 20.—(Special)—George C. Glover, for many years engaged in the cotton warehouse business in this city and a local politician, died at his home here Friday afternoon following an illness of several months. Before coming to Macon to engage in the cotton business, Mr. Glover was a planter in Twiggs county.

Resinol has been engaged in the newspaper agency business with his son, W. N. Glover, who handles the circulation here for all the Georgia dailies.

AT THE THEATERS

"The Devil's Daughter." (At the Strand.) "The Devil's Daughter" shown today only at the Strand, pictured for William Fox from Gabriel D'Annunzio's most exotic work, the world-known "La Gioconda." It is a screen play of tremendous force and unforgettable in its depiction of an evilly beautiful siren, who like the Lamia of ancient Greek mythology, is half serpent and half woman in her nature. Even if D'Annunzio had not indicated on the farmed Theda Bara was Venus incarnate, the film itself would have been cast for the part before he would sign a film rights agreement with William Fox. It is doubtful if anywhere on earth an actress could have been found to portray "The Devil's Daughter" better than Theda Bara. This type has become world famous. Her striking and beautiful face has been called the wickedest woman's work in "The Devil's Daughter" she portrays a character even more intensely evil than in any of her other great successes. If D'Annunzio had had Miss Bara in mind when he penned "Gioconda," he could not have written a drama that more subtly and more effectively dealt with the theme of "The Devil's Daughter" than this new screen drama.

George DuBois, the art critic of Modern Art, writes: "It is the most extraordinary picture of an extraordinary woman I have ever seen. I could not move from the spot. The immense eyes with their slow smouldering fires follow you everywhere with lazy and sensuous suggestion. The effect of the whole picture is that of a woman who is a devil. Every woman should be on the lookout for the perfect woman with the sinuous Theda Bara wears in this new screen drama."

J. W. MADDOX FINED FOR DRIVING SHOVEL OVER SMOOTH PAVING

Alderman J. W. Maddox, of the fifth ward, was fined $10 and costs by Recorder George E. Johnson in police court Friday afternoon on the charge of driving a steam shovel across the smooth pavement of the street.

A number of prominent city officials appeared as witnesses in the case against the alderman, both for and against him.

A motion to dismiss his case on the grounds that no city ordinance prevented him or his driver from running his steam shovel across the smooth pavement was turned down by Recorder Johnson.

"You are one of the city fathers," said Judge Johnson, "and you naturally expect me to enforce the laws you make."

"But I contend in my motion," replied Alderman Maddox, "there is no such city law preventing my steam shovel from crossing a street of smooth pavement any more than there is one that prevents a heavy auto truck crossing a smooth pavement street."

The case of contempt of court against Alderman Maddox was continued until Friday afternoon. Alderman Maddox will appeal to a higher court.

Searching for Mussels. Lively, Ga., August 20.—Dr. Herbert H. Smith, of the Alabama Museum of Natural History, is in this county exploring the Chattooga river, a tributary of the Coosa river, from which they have secured a collection of mussel shells for scientific purposes for the museum at Tuscaloosa, Ala. The mussels appear in Chattooga river in large quantities and are easily found. Only a few mussels are discovered by the mussels, a Lively boy last year selling one for $135.

International Situation and Poor Demand Depress Cotton

The Weakness of Domestic Markets and Stocks Also Heavy—Net Loss 6 to 8 Points for Friday.

New York, August 20.—Nervousness over the international situation as a result of the Arabic affair was the evident factor during the day in the cotton market, but early losses were partly recovered with the close steady at 3.63 for December, or a 2 to 3 point net loss.

There was quite a flurry of liquidation at the close of the day, and a decline of 4 to 13 points, active months sold 15 to 17 points net lower, while contracts worked up to 3.54 on December to 3.55. Weakness in Liverpool, the opening decline in the stock market, but comparatively all quiet and offerings were pretty well taken at the decline, and after the first spurt of activity had subsided, the market steadier on covering of shorts, a little buying of October by Liverpool, and moderate activity in the cotton market.

There was a heavy selling in New Orleans, New Orleans, August 20.—Fear of impending political complications and reports from the south that the market had been overestimated caused heavy selling of cotton today as soon as the market opened. The market was kept below the level of yesterday's close throughout the session. At the lowest the active months fell to 3.50, while the market recovered to 3.54 at the close.
