Captain Scott's Tragic Death in Polar Wastes Told in Photographs

THE SUNDAY AMERICAN, in this issue, publishes seven pictures—the only ones in existence—showing the last dash of the ill-fated Scott expedition to the South Pole. These pictures vividly depict the brave struggle of the British explorers in their quest for the goal. They show the start of the expedition on the final dash; they depict their arrival at the pole, where, to their intense disappointment, they found the tent and flag of the courageous Captain Amundsen, the Norwegian explorer who had preceded them to the coveted goal; they show the pathetic tent of death in which Captain Scott and his brave comrades perished; and lastly, they show the cairn marking the final resting place of these heroic men.

These pictures are the most remarkable ever published of a similar tragedy and give some idea of the terrors of the Antarctic wastes. They should prove a most instructive study to both young and old, and as such, The Sunday American presents them. They will be found on pages 2, 3, 4 and 5 of the Second Main News Section.

ORSEY'S GRILL AILS TO MAKE ONLEY ADMIT HAND IN KILLING

es Not Deviate In Least From Detailed Story Despite Traps to Snare Him.

ANK APPEARS PLEASED

isoner Tells His Friends That Sweeper's Affidavit Is Good News to Him.

A grueling cross-examination of n Conley, confessed accessory in e murder of Mary Phagan, in an fort to break down his charges ainst Leo M. Frank as the actual yer of the little girl, was made by olicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey late aturday afternoon.

Before the rapid-fire questioning, which every imaginable snare was t to entrap him, the negro did not eviate one iota from the detailed count which he made Friday to the olice. Every effort to make him conss that he was the slayer failed.

In amazing contrast to the attitude the negro is that of the pencil facry superintendent.

Ex-friends who visited the Tower, here he is confined, Frank declared aturday that Conley's statement was ood news to him. Frank had just ead the negro's affidavit in full in he Georgian. That the negro was eginning to talk meant that the mysery soon would be cleared, Frank old his friends. He had said previously that the murderer should be anged.

Did Not Accuse Conley.

Frank did not declare outwardly that he thought Conley guilty of the murder when he spoke with his visitors Saturday. He stated, however, that he was glad that the negro had begun to talk, and predicted an early solution of the mystery.

Luther Z. Rosser, the noted Atlanta lawyer and counsel for Frank, also expressed to friends of his client his opinion of Conley's statement Saturday as a most satisfactory turn in the case.

Friends of the accused man declare that Frank was not in the factory at the time given by Conley. They stated Saturday that Frank would offer five witnesses to prove an alibi to this effect.

Police Seek Meeting of Two.

The police will make another attempt this week to confront Frank with his accuser in an effort to break the deadlock. They look for a possible solution of the diverging statements, should the two prisoners meet face to face.

It developed Saturday that should Conley be declared an accessory after the fact, as he will be adjudged should his present statement prove to be true, his sentence, under the Georgia Code, will be not under one year imprisonment nor more than three years.

It was reported late Saturday night that an effort will be made to prove Conley an accessory to the fact. Should this be established, and the negro is proved to have been an actual participant in the murder, he will be liable to the death penalty.

Solicitor General Dorsey tried in vain to wring a confession from Conley that he was alone in the crime.

Time and again during the interview the Solicitor cautioned the negro:

"If you are guilty say so now. It would be found out later and it possible it would go much harder with you. You must tell the truth, for the truth will be known."

Swears He Is Telling Truth.

And the negro's answer was always the same:

"Before God, I am telling the truth."

Trying the trap him, the Solicitor often would completely turn the conversation and discuss with Chief Beavers some case entirely foreign to the Phagan murder, the new police automobile, the Stevens murder and

Fish Overrun Lake At Piedmont; Carey Lifts Ban on Angling

Public Invited to Raid Mischievous Bream That Persist in Nibbling Fair Bathers' "Tootsies."

Fish have become so plentiful in Piedmont Park and so pernicious in nibbling fair bathers' "tootsies" that Dan Carey, general manager of parks, announced Saturday that during June the public is invited to fish in the lake.

All entreaties of enthusiastic anglers have been resisted by Manager Carey. When the sparkling bream flashed their plump bodies in the sunlight it was almost impossible to restrain them. But the argument that finally persuaded was entirely different. It began last summer when a woman screamed to a policeman one day that a strange man had dived and tickled her feet. A fish was the culprit.

The lake was stocked with thousands of little bream by the Federal Government three years ago.

"June is to be the annual fishing month," said Manager Carey. "But the fishing must stop at midnight on June 30. We simply ask that these two rules be observed:

"No one person shall catch over six fish.

"All fish caught beneath pan size must be thrown back."

NEW YORK, May 31.—"I'm engaged to the finest soldier in Austria and all because of a cigarette," said Miss Rosa Roth, of New York, Budapest and Chicago, when she arrived from Europe on the Friedrich Der Grosse.

Miss Roth was smoking in a cafe in Budapest. Lieutenant Leo Nov Andrasfy sent her a box of her favorite brand by a waiter. On the bottom he had written a verse telling her how ardently he admired her.

An introduction followed and soon afterward the engagement was announced.

VANDERBILT TO GET $1,000,000 FROM CARNEGIE

Benefaction Is to Build and Maintain Laboratories in Charge of Eminent Scientists.

ONE-FIFTH AVAILABLE NOW

Income From Remainder To Be Paid Annually to Medical School of University.

NASHVILLE, TENN., May 31.—Andrew Carnegie has offered $1,000,000 to the medical department of Vanderbilt University, according to an announcement to-day by Chancellor J. H. Kirkland.

The only contingency the "Iron Master" imposes is that direction of the educational and scientific department be committed to a board of seven members, three of whom must be eminent in medical and scientific work and research.

Of the sum from Carnegie $200,000 will be given immediately for the erection and equipment of laboratories, while the income from the remaining $800,000 will be paid annually through the Carnegie Corporation of New York for maintenance.

Will Not Hurry Work.

"Already there is invested in the medical department of Vanderbilt about $325,000," said Chancellor Kirkland, in making announcement of the gift, "and while we do not consider that the million dollars from Mr. Carnegie will give us the greatest medical school in the country, it will lay the foundation for one of the greatest medical schools in the South, and we will proceed with this idea in view. We will not hurry. The laboratories which the donation provides for will be planned and erected with the utmost care. The three scientists provided for in the board of seven will be selected from among the most eminent men in the nation.

"This benefaction is largely the result of the great interest taken in Vanderbilt University's medical work by Dr. Henry S. Pritchett, of New York, president of the Carnegie Foundation."

It is understood to be one of the provisions of Mr. Carnegie's gift that Chancellor Kirkland himself be a member of the board of seven. Dr. Kirkland, however, did not indicate to-day whether any names had been considered for the remaining members.

Vanderbilt has been favored with several large gifts, but that of Mr. Carnegie surpasses them all. It is, in fact, the largest single donation ever given the university.

Statesmen Accept Spelling Bee Defi

Congressmen and Newspaper Men Will Be Matched in Contest Before National Press Club.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Although many statesmen have declined for the reason, as they admit, that they are poor spellers and "we're not going to stand up there and make darned fools of themselves," sixteen have accepted the challenge of the Washington newspaper men and will meet in an old-fashioned spelling bee on Thursday next, to mark the annual "ladies' day" of the National Press Club.

The challenge had its origin in the comment by Chairman Underwood, of the Ways and Means Committee, on a dispatch sent out criticising the committee in respect to the duty on "diamidosulfobendisulfoacid" in the tariff bill. Underwood forgave the criticism, but condemned the spelling. Hence the meeting at which Secretary of Agriculture Houston will be "teacher."

Suspicious Sailors Damage Imperator

Vessel's Accident and Kaiser's Refusal to Make Trial Trip Brand Her "Jonah Ship."

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, May 31.—A large portion of the equipment and furnishings of the Imperator have been irreparably damaged by vandals, according to statements made by German shipping masters to-day. Liquid cement has been poured into the water pipes and allowed to harden, thus rendering the system inoperable, many valuable carpets and carpets with which the cabins were furnished have been cut and slashed.

These acts are believed to have been committed by workmen who were angered at being forced to accompany the ship to a desolate part of the coast near Cuxhaven after the Imperator had grounded in the Elbe after being launched.

Sailors regard the Imperator with great superstition, and this has become more marked since it has been learned that Emperor William has refused to go on the trial trip.

Georgia Man Drowns Saving Friend's Life

John D. Artley, of Savannah, Victim of the Surf at Wrightsville Beach.

WILMINGTON, N. C., May 31.—John D. Artley, 22 years old, lost his life at Wrightsville Beach this afternoon in an effort to rescue Dr. Ralph E. Knouse, with whom he was bathing, and who had been caught by a heavy undertow. Dr. Knouse was afterward brought in by a life guard, on duty nearby, and resuscitated. The body of Artley was recovered by the life-saver, who returned in a boat and found it floating face downward near the surface. Artley leaves a wife and an eight-month-old child.

Mrs. Artley was Miss Fleming, of LaGrange, Ga., before her marriage. Mr. Artley was a son of A. Artley, a large contractor of Savannah.

COLUMBUS, GA., May 31.—Mrs. J. D. Artley, whose husband was drowned at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., to-day while trying to save a friend, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Newsome Cooper, in Columbus. She came here this week direct from Wrightsville Beach, leaving her husband employed there.

Washington, D. C., Chief of Police Notifies Brother in This City of Death.

F. P. Smith, formerly of Atlanta, and a brother of H. W. Smith, connected with the Fulton Bag and Cotton Company, committed suicide in Washington, D. C., Saturday night, according to a telegram from police authorities of that city to Chief Beavers.

The dispatch read as follows:

Notify H. W. Smith, 38 Cleburne Avenue, that F. P. Smith committed suicide here to-night.

Sylvester, Chief of Police.

Mr. Smith left Atlanta four years ago. He was married, his wife having formerly been Miss Helen Watts, also of this city. No reason for the suicide could be given by his brother here Saturday night.

GALE SWEEPS ATLANTA; ONE DEAD IN STATE

Storm Which Does Heavy Damage in This City Covers Wide Area.

MANY SECTIONS ISOLATED

Loss Here From Terrific Wind Will Reach Thousands—All Traffic Halted.

One man is dead and another seriously injured as the result of the storm that swept over Atlanta and adjacent territory Saturday afternoon, leaving thousands of dollars' damage in its wake.

A man named Rosser was killed by lightning at the river bridge just out of Cartersville, while a man named Field suffered a broken arm at Villa Rica.

But meager reports from the storm-swept district have been received, because the wind played havoc with telephone and telegraph wires, whole counties being isolated Saturday night.

The storm seemed to have originated in the mountains at the headwaters of the Chattahoochee and Etowah Rivers and to have swept down the river valleys, gaining force as it progressed until it reached its maximum of intensity in Douglas, Campbell and Carroll Counties.

Houses Reported Wrecked.

Several houses were reported wrecked in Douglas County between Douglasville and the Chattahoochee River. Chapel Hill and Winston sections in that county suffered heavily. At Villa Rica, on the line between Douglas and Carroll Counties, a store was wrecked, Field being caught in the debris.

Reports from Fairburn are that the storm was intense in that section. All country telephone lines in the western part of Campbell County are down.

Heavy wind and rain were reported at Newnan, in Coweta County, and Hogansville and LaGrange, in Troup, but not as severe as in the counties just north. Carrollton reported a severe storm along the entire east side of Carroll County.

Paulding, Cherokee and Milton Counties were entirely cut off and no

Ethel Barrymore in Quarantine With Little Daughter Has Diphtheria

Ethel Barrymore (Mrs. Russell Griswold Colt), and her two children.

Actress Forced to Abandon Her Theatrical Engagements and Trip to Europe.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Ethel Barrymore, in private life Mrs. Russell Griswold Colt, is spending a two-week quarantine in the Minturn Hospital in this city, where her 1-year-old daughter is confined with diphtheria.

Mrs. Colt has been compelled to cancel her professional engagements and her plans to sail for Europe a week from Monday have been interrupted.

When the family physician diagnosed the ailment affecting the baby as diphtheria, the mother hastened with the child to the hospital.

After seeing her daughter tucked in bed, she told the house physician that she would like to engage a room in the hospital for herself.

She promptly was told that she could not leave if she wished to, for she had been exposed to the disease for two days and must consider herself under a fourteen-day quarantine.

NEW YORK, May 31.—Harry Sain, 21 years old, a member of the Irish-American Athletic Club, will leave Coney Island on a long hike for San Francisco some day during the coming week in an effort to prove that a man can thrive on an uncooked diet, though taking violent exercise.

His diet on the tramp will consist of cereals, raw oatmeal, vegetables, fruit and nuts, washed down with water and an occasional glass of milk. He expects to finish the trip by September. He will carry a letter from Mayor Gaynor to Mayor Rolph of San Francisco.

PROPERTY LOSS ENORMOUS IN HURRICANE IN VIRGINIA

PORTSMOUTH, VA., May 31.—Scattering reports received here to-day show that the loss of life from the hurricane which swept over this section yesterday probably will not exceed two. The property loss, however, is enormous. Wire communication throughout the stricken section is cut off.

STEVENS BOY TRAPS NEGRO PAIR SOUGHT AS SLAYERS

Son Points Out on Atlanta Street Two Suspects in McDonough Road Fire Mystery—Success Comes as Hunt Is Given Up.

Prisoners Are Placed in Solitary Confinement Preparatory to Grilling—Both Are Caught in Falsehoods, Police Declare.

Wilkes, Who Says That He Is a Preacher, Admits He Marked Bible Found in His Cabin Near the Scene of the Tragedy.

To a youth of 16—Wade Stevens—once himself suspected of slaying his mother, Mrs. William Stevens, and her adopted daughter, Nellie, whose bodies were found in the ruins of their burned home, will go the credit for the solution of the mystery of McDonough Road if two prisoners now held at police headquarters are rightly accused.

The lad, who was arrested a few days ago in Chattanooga at the recommendation of a coroner's jury, first dissipated entirely the clouds of suspicion about him, and then joined in the pursuit of the real criminals with such tenacity that late Saturday afternoon his efforts were rewarded.

The searchers, Detectives Rosser, of the local force; L. M. Johnson, a close friend of the Stevens family, and young Stevens, were just about to give up the hunt after an exhaustive automobile tour of the city, when at Peters and Beerman Streets, the youth shouted:

Points Out Men.

"There are your men."

The machine was halted and a few moments later Walter Wilkes, a negro, who had been employed in the Stevens household, and Ernest Maynard, an Indian half-breed, seen hanging around the place, both of whom had been sought ever since the tragedy was discovered, were in custody.

Both suspects, denying they are guilty, are held in cells in the police station in solitary confinement. They will be "sweated." Both men, officers say, already have been trapped in falsehoods.

Wilkes admitted that he marked the Bible found in the cabin he formerly occupied when he worked on the Stevens place. Many of the passages marked referred to the taking of human life. He declared that he was "studying the Scriptures."

A few minutes later, when asked if he had read the newspaper accounts of the tragedy, he asserted that he was unable to read.

Wilkes at first also denied that he saw Wade Stevens in Atlanta Tuesday night, just before young Stevens left for Chattanooga with "Red" Merchant, the companion with whom he was arrested.

Under a fire of questioning, he finally admitted that what young Stevens said was true, that he did meet the boy, and that the latter told him he was going to Chattanooga.

Knew Women Were Alone.

Stevens told the officers that he met Wilkes and that when he told him he was going to Chattanooga, the negro said:

"Your father is already in Chattanooga, ain't he?"

Stevens answered in the affirmative, and said the negro then remarked:

"I guess your mother and sister will be alone to-night."

He then added, according to Stevens:

"I think I'll go out and see if I can't get my job back."

It required persistent effort on the
