FINANCIERS' WIVES ARE NOT FELT HERE

Atlanta Bankers See Good Business Year in South Despite Wall Street's Gloom.

Business in Atlanta and the South is good, according to Atlanta business men. In some cases it is above last year's level.

There is some stringency of money, but well-established business houses, carrying on conservative operations, are getting their usual accommodations from the banks. The country banks in Atlanta territory have been supplied to the limits of their needs by their city agents.

Words of Wall Street, which very rarely reach New York, seem rather and only viewed from the distance. Wall Street is the bluest spot on the map and Atlanta one of the brightest.

The cotton crop promises well, and it will be made cheaper than any previous Georgia crop. A recent means remarkable prosperity this fall. There are the conclusions of Atlanta bankers, who, unwilling that the public should accept Wall Street's view of the situation as final, express their opinion of local conditions.

Colonel Lovry Optimistic.

"Conditions in the South are all right. Business is good, and the demand for money is not greater than it usually is at this season of the year. From May, October, I look for good prosperity," says Colonel Robert J. Lovry, president of the Lovry National Bank.

"The information which reaches us is that the crop is in excellent shape. I talked with one well-informed man yesterday from a section in Georgia which grows a great deal of cotton, and he says he never saw a better crop since the late rains."

"There is some uneasiness, of course, with the tariff, but I believe reform questions notwithstanding, I am, as you know, a protectionist. I suppose, therefore, there are some things which would regulate. Some modification no doubt is desirable. The manufacturers are prepared to meet reductions to some extent."

"I believe it is more important to argue with the matter cleared up than it is to argue over the exact amount of the changes. It is the unrest, the uncertainty, which causes the uneasiness. When the thing is determined one way or another, trade can proceed. Just now textile mills, for instance, can not make trades, but they do not know just what the future holds will be."

Urges Moderate Revision.

"Things are going to turn out all right. As I said, although I am and always have been a protectionist, I believe we could stand a moderate revision, downward, of the tariff. I believe in the income tax, too. It would make no exceptions, though. To my mind, the man who makes $100 ought to be willing to give his dollar to the Government, and the man who makes $10,000 ought to be willing to give his $1,000 for the benefit of the Government which he enjoys."

Your Dress Is Your Morals

Not your real morals, explains Lady Duff Gordon, in an interesting article illustrated with some of her newest hats and gowns, but your manners that make your morals are controlled by the clothes you wear.

Weather Man Says Cold Snap Is Over; Low Record Is 49

After smashing all low records for June 11 in Atlanta with a minimum temperature of 49 degrees Wednesday morning, the mercury left off its frenzied ascension and started on a slow and dignified climb to more sane and reasonable levels.

Winter is over on the word of Weather Forecaster, Vontlermann. He promised the mercury would continue its ascent through Wednesday, and Thursday would be still warmer.

The lowest temperature on June 11 clearly previous year was in 1888 when the mercury dropped to 51 degrees. Tuesday's high temperature was 86 degrees, the lowest maximum temperature recorded in Atlanta, June 10, 1891, recorded the lowest maximum temperature previously, 72 degrees.

Mahmud Shevket Pasha and Aide Shot by Assassins--Was Power Behind the Sultan.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian. LONDON, June 11.—Mahmud Shevket Pasha, Grand Vizier of Turkey, and his military aide were shot to death to-day by two assassins in the streets of Constantinople. News of the double assassination was first received in private dispatches. Later it was officially confirmed.

Mahmud Pasha and his aide were returning in a private motor car when the murderers, who stood near the entrance of the building, fired upon the motor car with deadly aim.

Mahmud Shevket Pasha, who came into power in February, has been excelling the prerogatives of military dictator. He was one of the chief leaders of the Young Turk party, and the closest adviser of Enver Bey, the commander-in-chief of the Turkish army.

Dr. Grayson immediately yielded his seat, but three other men were not so gallant. Miss Wilson, with an elegant look at the men, arose and plucked at the other woman to her seat, while she swung on a strap the remainder of the way to the White House.
