FACE CONLEY AND FRANK, AND FORD URGES

Detective Chief Ready to Have Accuser Confront Prisoner Before Grand Jury.

New sensations are expected in the Phagan mystery. Friday morning when the petition of Solicitor Dorey for the revocation of the order holding James Conley as a material witness is heard before Judge L. S. Roan, Luther Z. Hooper, attorney for Conley, will be afforded a first opportunity formally to present his objections to the holding of James Conley not only as a material witness in the Phagan murder mystery, but as an actual suspect.

While it is not anticipated that the attorney will discuss the case freely, it is supposed that he will present every argument he believes necessary to free his client from the custody of the State.

Chief Lanford is willing. "I am perfectly willing that Conley should be taken before the Grand Jury," said Chief Lanford, "but it is only fair, however, that Hooper permit his client to go there at the same time, where he may be confronted by the negro and where the negro may tell his story before the Grand Jury."

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Democratic members of the Senate Finance Committee today adopted the free wool and sugar provisions of the Underwood tariff bill. Action on the bill of taking effect of these schedules was reserved.

Attorney Hooper would make no comment for publication on the proposition made by Chief Lanford, except to say that he stood on his own feet in this matter. He made an emphatic demand that the Grand Jury investigate Jim Conley, with a view to indicting him as the possible murderer of Miss Phagan.

Woman Attacks Policeman; Gets Stockade Term

Katy Whitenburg, charged with disorderly conduct, created a scene in Recorder's Court Thursday afternoon by making a violent attack on Patrolmen Officers Hughes, one of the arresting officers. Recorder Pro Tem Preston retained by sentencing the woman to the stockade 15 days in each of three cases.

The first sentence was the result of the attorney's failure to appear in the court; the second was the penalty for attacking Officer Hughes in the hallway; the third was for the original charge of disorderly conduct, or loitering, near a cafe on the Vidette Way.

Officer Hughes, the officer who was attacked, escaped with only a scratch, but the Whitenburg woman was promptly seized and held by a half dozen strong arms. A second woman, Valera Gunn, the Whitenburg woman's partner, is held, released, fined $25, for 20 days.
