Bulgaria and Servia Agree to Peace Pact

Rumor of Threatened Hostilities Started for Political Purposes, Believed in Austria.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

VIENNA, May 10.—Threatened hostilities between Bulgaria and Servia have been avoided, according to dispatches published to-day in the official press. These said the two Balkan countries had reached an agreement respecting the redivision of the territory conquered from Turkey.

As a mark of pacific intention, each country has agreed to demobilize as soon as peace is declared.

Many persons in officialdom believe recent reports of dissension in the Balkan League were encouraged by the members of the confederation for political purposes.

Vegetable Wagon Merely Liquor Van

Negro Seen Taking Sack From Vehicle, and, Pursued, Cornered With Contraband Goods.

When a countryman early Saturday drove through Haynes Street crying out fresh country vegetables for sale, James Crawford, a negro, was seen to step into the street and lift from the bottom of the wagon a half filled tow sack.

Other negroes thought him a thief and gave chase. Crawford ran into a building at Haynes and Dover Streets, where he was cornered and held until Police Call Officers Cochran and Long arrived. The sack was found to contain a wholesale supply of liquor.

The negro admitted to the police that he had bought the liquor from the "vegetable man," declaring the farmer was selling liquor from the wagon and was merely using the vegetables as a blind. A search was made for the farmer, but he could not be found.

Recorder Broyles fined the negro $50.75.

Bankers Look Upon Atlanta With Favor

Joseph A. McCord and J. K. Ottley Confident Convention Will Come Here After Invitation.

Atlanta has an excellent chance to be convention city for the American Bankers' Association in 1914.

Joseph A. McCord, vice president of the Third National Bank, returned Saturday from a meeting of the Executive Council of the association at Briarcliff, N. Y., expressing confidence that the annual gathering will be held here next year. Mr. McCord and J. K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National, carried the Atlanta Clearing House invitation. Mr. McCord said they met with a hearty reception.

"I think we shall have the honor of playing host," said Mr. McCord. "Up to the present time, no other city has extended an invitation. Competition, though, usually does set in when the general convention meets."

DARDEN SUES TO TAKE CHILDREN FROM HIS WIFE

Convicted Slayer of C. M. Goddard Swears Out Habeas Corpus Writ.

Elmer T. Darden, convicted slayer, swore out a writ of habeas corpus Saturday to take from his wife, Naomi Carter Darden, the custody of their four children, on the grounds that she is not a fit person to have the care of them.

Darden is under bond pending a hearing of an appeal of his case. He was sentenced to three years on the chaingang for killing C. M. Goddard, despite his plea of the "unwritten law."

A temporary injunction, granted by Judge J. T. Pendleton, was served on Mrs. Darden Saturday at her home on Crew Street, just as she was preparing to leave for the station to take a train for Vermont. Judge Pendleton named May 17 as the date for the trial, and in the meantime Mrs. Darden was commanded not to leave the county.

The children are Naomi, age twelve; Elmer T., Jr., age ten; Rodney, age six, and Emma, age three.

Darden alleged that his wife, from whom he is separated, intended to take the children to a permanent home outside the State of Georgia. He said the responsibility for their education and care rested mainly on him and he wanted them taken from her.

Darden is represented by Attorneys John S. McClelland and W. M. Smith.

Attorney Attacks Savannah Charity

Gazan Says Organization Does Nothing but 'Investigate' While Unfortunates Starve.

SAVANNAH, GA., May 10.—James Gazan, an attorney, scathingly denounced the Savannah Associated Charities in police court to-day during the hearing of Annie May Bacon, a 16-year-old girl, charged with the theft of a bicycle. Miss Helen Pendleton, general secretary of the Associated Charities, was prevented from replying by a ruling of the Recorder. The girl was finally turned over to the attorney, who promised to look after her.

"All the Associated Charities does is to investigate and investigate," he said, "and while they investigate the unfortunates starve."

Miss Pendleton was visibly excited when she left the court room.

The action of Attorney Gazan was voluntary. He had not been retained to defend the girl.

Dental Inspection In Schools Urged

Chamber of Commerce to Ask Council for Appointment of Examiners for Pupils.

Proper dental inspection of the school children of Atlanta will be urged upon the City Council by the Chamber of Commerce. The appointment of dentists to make regular inspections and to see that children having teeth complaint receive proper treatment, will be recommended.

The city already has a method of medical inspection which has given material results. It is proposed to have dentists work in connection with the physicians, many of the children's ills having laid to the fact that their teeth are being neglected.

Dr. C. M. Barnwell, chairman of the dentistry committee of the Chamber of Commerce, has called a meeting of the committee for 5:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

GUARD OF SECRECY IS THROWN ABOUT PHAGAN SEARCH BY SOLICITOR

Names of Witnesses Withheld by Dorsey to Prevent "Manufacturers of Public Opinion" Getting in Touch with Them---Satisfied with Progress.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey declared Saturday afternoon that he was very well satisfied with the progress made in the investigation of the Phagan murder mystery and made the significant remark that he would not reveal the names of new witnesses so that manufacturers of public opinion could not get to them.

The Solicitor held a conference with Dr. H. F. Harris, of the State Board of Health, who examined the girl's body. Dr. Harris said he would rush his report in time for presentation to the Grand Jury when that body takes up the mystery next week. The Solicitor would not reveal just what the physician has learned so far.

The examination of the blood-stained shirt in the back yard of Newt Lee's home was also continued, and the Solicitor was far from convinced that its significance had been rightly determined.

Mr. Dorsey worked all day Saturday on the case and announced that he would continue all of Sunday so that he could present his evidence to the Grand Jury as early as possible next week.

Confers With City Sleuths.

A conference was held with the city detectives, who are working in co-operation with the State, but none of the details could be learned. Strict secrecy is being maintained regarding new developments.

Evidence "exclusive and valuable" in the Mary Phagan case has been obtained. So much the Solicitor said to-day, and no more, declaring details of the evidence would be revealed at the proper time.

The evidence is the result of work by private detectives engaged by the Solicitor, among them one whom he termed "the best detective in America," when speaking of him Friday.

He mentioned the important evidence when he discussed the statement by Monteen Stover, the 14-year-old employee of the National Pencil Company, that is in direct contradiction to the testimony by Leo M. Frank, the suspected factory superintendent.

Other Evidence More Important.

The Solicitor was interested in the girl's statement, but declared that the other evidence in his hands was far more important and tangible.

In opposition to the testimony of Leo M. Frank in the Mary Phagan inquest was the statement of the Stover girl. The evidence that she will bear is to the effect that she was in Frank's office at 12:05 o'clock and a little later on the Saturday afternoon preceding the discovery of the slain girl's body, and that she found it deserted.

According to Frank's testimony, he was in his office from 12 o'clock until 12:25, when Lemmie Quinn, his foreman, came in. During that time, he said, Mary Phagan came in, about 12:05 o'clock, to receive her pay.

Monteen Stover is certain that she reached Frank's office at exactly 12:05 o'clock. She has been retained as an important witness.

Remembers the Time.

"The minute I got to the office floor when I went up to get my pay," she said, "I looked at the clock. I wanted to know if it was time to draw my money. I would have looked at it, anyhow, I suppose, as it is always customary for me to punch it the first thing upon entering the place to go to work.

"It was five minutes after 12. I was sure Mr. Frank would be in his office, so I stepped in. He wasn't in the outer office, and I went into the inner office. He wasn't there, either. I thought he might have been somewhere around the building, so I waited.

"The whole place was awfully quiet. It was scary. When he didn't show up in a few minutes, I went to the door and looked around the machinery. He wasn't there, I stayed until the clock hand was pointing exactly to 12:10. Then I took down-

GLAD HAND FOR SHRINE SPECIAL ALL ALONG LINE

Atlanta Convention Seekers Get Rousing Welcome at Both Jackson and Meridian.

JACKSON, MISS., May 10.—(Special.)—Jackson men and women are going back to their Saturday afternoon duties with a smile that won't come off for days. They have just met the "Yaarab Special" from Atlanta that made its joyous way through the city, and they will not soon forget the meeting.

It is a wonderful party, this bunch that Atlanta has sent to the convention in Dallas to bring back assurance of the Shriners' convention in Atlanta for next year. At least, all Jackson feels that way about it.

And Jackson wishes them well. A fair bit of the city was at the station this afternoon to greet them and to tell them of their good wishes.

The crowd grew. A delegation was there at first to ask Forrest Adair and some of the others to speak, but everybody spoke. This was no day for formality. The more the talking the more the singing, the closer became the ties between Atlanta and Jackson.

Then one of the Atlanta men, whose name could not be ascertained because of the general melee leaned in full view of the populace. He was a stout blonde.

Sure, Everybody Was Happy.

"Is everybody happy?" he shouted. Jackson, Miss., assured him everybody was.

Enterprising newspaper men of the Mississippi capital sought to interview dignitaries among the party. They were met by an imposing delegation, who, after much deliberation, produced a signed statement.

It was as follows:

"We are going to bring back the bacon.

"J. LEE BARNES,
"FRED PATTERSON,
"GRAHAM PHELAN,
"JESSE COUCH,
"W. A. FOSTER."

Then, all too soon, the train pulled out, according to the unsympathetic railroad schedule, which was not alive to the fact that Jackson, Miss., was having the time of its life and that there was an intermingling of souls not often experienced.

Jackson came to this conclusion: The men whom Atlanta Shriners picked to represent Atlanta's cause are irresistible.

Still Anxious About "Joy."

The "Yaarab Special" made its way west. The stout blonde gentleman was on the observation platform when the train passed into the distance, and he was still requesting information as to the happiness of Jacksonites.
