NEW PHAGAN WITNESSES HAVE BEEN FOUND

Solicitor General Dorsey Declares Work of His Greatest Detective Has Been Completed.

WELCOMES AID OF BURNS IN CLEARING UP MYSTERY

Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey said Saturday that his "greatest detective in America" would not figure again in the Phagan investigation, and that it was extremely doubtful whether he would be recalled to testify at the trial.

"He has finished his investigation," said the Solicitor, "and we have no further need for him. A detective is one thing and a witness is another. His investigation led us to witnesses. It is not necessary for him, or any detective, to tell the jury what a disinterested witness will tell."

He would not say, however, whether his decision not to put the "greatest in America" on the witness stand would apply to the city, Pinkerton and Burns detectives.

Grand Jury Meets Wednesday.

The Solicitor announced that the Grand Jury would meet next Wednesday for an extra session, but said it was hardly probable the Phagan case would be considered then. He said there were a number of cases that demanded attention and the extra session would more than likely be called to dispose of everything on the calendar to prepare for the session Friday, when the Phagan case would more than likely be presented.

Mr. Dorsey said that his interview of Friday, in which he said the Burns men would work under the same conditions as the Pinkertons, had been misconstrued by some to mean that the services of the great detective were not needed.

Welcomes Burns' Aid.

He said that he did not intend to create that impression, when as a matter of fact he would welcome Mr. Burns in the case and give him every co-operation, except giving out information or evidence that had already been secured. He will continue to examine witnesses up to the day the case goes to the Grand Judy, he said.

Bernard L. Chappell, attorney for the negro, Newt Lee, said Saturday morning that unless the Grand Jury acted on the Phagan case next week he would bring habeas corpus proceedings in an effort to secure his release.

Pursue Writing Clews.

With powerful microscopes, magnifying glasses and a series of reflecting mirrors Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey and the city detectives, assisted by a handwriting expert, who is said to be one of the best in the country, are minutely examining the "handwriting clews" in the Phagan mystery. They confidently expect important developments.

Solicitor Dorsey would not disclose the identity of the expert on penmanship because, he said, the man's services were voluntary and given with the understanding that he was not to be known unless it became absolutely necessary to place him on the witness stand. The Solicitor said, however, that he was one of the best in the country, and the great detective agencies considered his tests infallible.

The two notes found in the basement of the pencil factory, specimen of the handwriting of the two men held in the Tower in connection with the murder, letters and notes written by the slain girl and the handwriting on the books of the pencil factory are being subjected to rigid tests. Accurate measurements of each letter and

FORREST ADAIR THANKS HEARST PAPERS FOR WORK IN THE SHRINER VICTORY

By FORREST ADAIR.

I HARDLY can find words in which to express my high appreciation of the good work done for Atlanta by Mr. Hearst and the Hearst newspapers in the matter of bringing next year's meeting of the Imperial Council of the Mystic Shrine to Atlanta.

Not only did Mr. Hearst give us the free and unlimited support of The Atlanta Georgian and The Sunday American, but every newspaper he owns in the United States was working for the Gate City.

I REGARD IT AS SIGNIFICANT THAT IN EVERY CITY, WITHOUT EXCEPTION, IN WHICH MR. HEARST HAS A NEWSPAPER, THE DELEGATIONS ATTENDING THE SHRINE MEETING IN DALLAS WERE FOR ATLANTA FIRST, LAST, AND ALL THE TIME.

I saw the effects of Mr. Hearst's work, time and again, as the fight progressed, and always it was hearty and effective in Atlanta's behalf.

The fine special Shriner edition of The Atlanta Sunday American which Mr. Hearst sent to Dallas was read widely and went far toward convincing the delegates that Atlanta is the place to hold next year's meeting.

And last of all, I thank The Georgian and Sunday American for having a personal representative on the ground in Dallas to keep the home folks informed promptly and fully of the proceedings as they developed.

Atlanta won a magnificent victory, through the assembling of numerous influences, and no one deserves more praise to-day than does Mr. Hearst and his newspapers.

He and they have proven themselves to be Atlanta's loyal and enthusiastic friends.

In this statement I am joined cordially by Mr. Hinds, Mr. Foster and Mr. Hutcheson, the other members of the committee from Yaarab Temple having in charge Atlanta's interests in Dallas.

GREAT WELCOME HOME TO SHRINERS WHO WON VICTORY FOR ATLANTA

Caesar in all his glory was never accorded a greater acclamation upon his triumphal entry into Rome than that with which Illustrious Potentate Forrest Adair was received upon his return from Dallas Saturday afternoon.

Atlanta outdid herself in her reception of this victor. Noted as she is for her patriotic spirit, no demonstration that this city has ever given of appreciation of her sons was ever seen to equal this one. And every cheer which arose from the thousands of those who attended the arrival and participated in the following parade rose up from the heart.

Pandemonium reigned when the illustrious Yaarab stepped from the train and pandemonium continued until he disappeared into the Temple at the end of the gorgeous pageant.

Knoxville Shriners in Parade.

Enthusiastic witnesses and participants in this demonstration of Atlanta spirit were the members of the Alhambra Temple of Shriners from Knoxville. They attended the Dallas Conclave and are en route home.

At the Terminal Station, however, they were induced to join in the parade, and lent their efforts also to the tremendous welcoming which was being accorded the Yaarabs. When they return to Knoxville they will carry with them the enthusiasm and impetus of the Georgia city to transplant into their own.

The procession, which formed at the station was an impressive pageant. It consisted of two lines standing shoulder to shoulder and emitting volume after volume of cheers as the illustrious potentate, his coterie of fighters and the reception party paraded.

Upon the repeated shouts for "speech, speech," to the home-comers Mr. Adair said:

"I promised to bring home the bacon and I did. We owe all thanks to the generous hearted Atlanta citizens, who through their donations enabled us to put up the fight we did. I am sure that they will make next year's convention of the Shriners the greatest and most memorable ever held by that body."

When the Yaarabs stepped off their train they were accorded a demonstration such as has not been sent ringing down the streets and avenues of this city in many years.

March to Terminal Station.

All local Shriners, of whom there are about 700, were summoned to be at the Masonic Temple at 12:15 o'clock sharp with fezes on and all the other trappings of their order. At this meeting place also came the brass bands, the elephant and the camels, as well as thousands of other persons. The entire body formed in procession and march to the Terminal Station.

Apprehension as to the actions of the animals in the great excitement which will attend this procession was expressed by park animal keepers; however, on this occasion their excuses would not be accepted by C. H. Essig, of the Reception Committee.

Mr. Essig, in outlining the great demonstration, declaring that it would be the most overwhelming ever accorded to a returning Atlanta citizen.

"In the first place, every loyal Shriner will be in the howling mob," he said. "Summonses have been issued to them numbering nearly 700 in all. They have been asked to attend in their fezes and other regalia.

"Then there will be thousands of other citizens who will join in the reception simply through their patriotic spirit, and their desire in showing their appreciation of the good work done by Potentate Adair and his band of Yaarabs.

"We have a band of 20 pieces to
